METHODIST CHURCH BROTHERHOOD FEAST

BANQUET FOLLOWED BY TOASTS

Professor I. H. Britell Presides as Toastmaster—Wesleyan University Boosted.

About 170 members and guests of the Methodist Brotherhood surrounded tables in the spacious church basement Tuesday night. The main object of the gathering was to stimulate interest in the Wesleyan university. A state-wide campaign is being prosecuted to secure an increased endowment fund for the college, and the Wayne banquet was designed to acquaint local Methodists with the equipment, attainments, educational, religious and moral value, and present and future needs of the institution.

Methodist Hospitality.

Proverbial Methodist hospitality was manifested in the cordial greetings and the subsequent feast of viands and delicacies prepared and served by over forty ladies of the church. After willing palates had been gratified, Rev. William Gorst, who figured fittingly and gracefully as general manager and overseer, introduced W. D. Redmond, president of the Brotherhood. Mr. Redmond got on rapport by telling an appropriate story, and then, after thanking the ladies, in behalf of the Brotherhood, for their part in the success of the occasion, and commending the men in the forward religious movement, he introduced the toastmaster, Professor I. H. Britell. The toastmaster took charge and presided with the ease of one who has often served in that capacity, and prefaced the introduction of speakers in a happy and pointed manner.

The State Normal male quartet—the best male quartet on either side of the Platte river—furnished the music, and the initial selection was so well executed and so well received that the singers had to respond to an encore.

The First Speaker.

After the inspiring songs, Toastmaster Britell presented the first speaker, District Superintendent E. E. Hosman of Norfolk. The speaker said women and children had long shouldered the burdens of church work, but now the men were becoming interested and active—were "coming to themselves." At this point he was reminded of a new and rather twisted version of the story of the Prodigal Son, who finally "came to himself." The son took off his coat, vest and shirt, and "came to himself." Mr. Hosman spoke of the value of the Wesleyan university to the young of the state, and emphasized the fact that the Norfolk district is a big asset for the college. He told several stories and his points were well made.

Chancellor C. A. Fulmer of the Wesleyan university, was the next speaker. He praised the looks of the men surrounding the festal boards, and had good words for the ladies who served the feast. He explained the condition of the university. He said that while Kansas has three and Iowa six Methodist schools, Nebraska has only one. He told of the institution's faculty and different departments, its thousand students, and religious and moral influence. He gave many interesting facts.

Wealth of Pointed Stories.

Judge John N. Dryden of Kearney, member of the board of trustees of the Wesleyan university, followed the chancellor, and his experience in helping manage affairs at the college enabled him to know exactly what he was talking about. He explained the financial needs of the school, and pointed out the value of religious and moral as well as educational training. He said, however, that he would have a student, living in Wayne, finish the course of the State Normal before taking up the work at Wesleyan. He has a wealth of stories and he wove them in with a cleverness seldom equalled. His keen sense of humor was appreciated.

William Crossland was called on for a talk, and he responded by standing up for Wesleyan and telling what it had done for him.

At 11 o'clock, following a couple of selections by the quartet, Rev. C. J. Ringer pronounced the benediction, and the crowd, after a pleasant and instructive evening, slowly dispersed.

Besides the immediate family and the families of C. M. Craven and H. B. Craven of Wayne, Mrs. S. Miller of West Point, and Mrs. S. A. Long of Madison, were present.

In 1895 he retired from business, and soon afterwards moved to Wayne, Neb., to be near the two sons, C. M. and H. B. Craven, and daughter, Miss Nettie Craven, who had located here. Since coming to Wayne Mr. Craven has not been actively engaged in business. Mr. and Mrs. Craven are aged 83 and 70 years respectively. Mr. Craven moved from Pennsylvania to Wisconsin in 1851, making the trip with an ox team. Wisconsin was then a border state, new and untamed.

CHANGE OF VENUE IS ASKED IN FLEGE CASE

MOTION TO BE ARGUED MONDAY

Defendant Claims He Cannot Secure Fair Trial in Dixon County—State Resists Motion.

In the district court at Ponca Monday the case of William Flege, charged with the murder of his sister, Miss Louise Flege, on the Flege farm, June 30, 1910, was called. The attorneys for the defendant at once filed a motion for a change of venue, alleging that a fair trial could not be secured in Dixon county. The attorneys for the state resisted the motion and were given until next Monday to gather support for their opposition. At that time the motion will be argued. In December, 1910, William Flege was tried at Ponca on the charge of killing his sister, and the jury pronounced him guilty. He was sentenced to life imprisonment, and was taken to the penitentiary. After the court had remanded the case for a new trial, Flege was released under heavy bond.

Let us show you the machine itself—turn it to prove how easy running it is, let us show you the bowl to prove how easy it is to clean, let us show you the million-dollar 5-year guarantee that insures your satisfaction. ### TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF DAN HARRINGTON

Clung to Wayne Friends.

The last loving respects to the late Mr. Dan Harrington were paid by a host of friends last Saturday morning. The funeral held at the residence of Dr. W. C. Wightman, was one of the most beautiful and impressive ever witnessed here. The floral offerings were beautiful and elaborate. Mr. Harrington expressed the wish that he might return to Wayne to take final leave of his friends and relatives. This last touching wish shows how great was his love for Wayne, and his friends with whom he had labored the greater part of his life. Here was his heart, and though detached from Wayne friends by business he never wavered in his devotion to them.

IN MEMORIAM

(A Tribute by One Who Loved Him.)

We pause in our labor to honor the great and noble life that has just departed. Mere words are inadequate and written thoughts far too meagre to record our love for him. The achievements of a great life can never be fully written or spoken. Rather our unbidden tears, our silent gratitude, our precious memories more fittingly express what words cannot. The impress of his life upon ours, and all that it means to us, is the greatest tribute we can bring.

One great central fact stands out in his life. Mr. Harrington was a man who lived to help his fellow men. Every one who came in contact with him realized this. He was in business to help men, and not simply for business. Those in his employ he trained for efficient service. They took him as their ideal and strove to emulate his virtues. They trusted in him implicitly and sought his counsel and guidance. Many young men owe to him not only their business training but their character. Their success will in a large measure be his success, a living monument to his memory. His friends were from all classes, rich and poor, high and low. Children as well as grownups and the aged, counted him as their friend. His bright smile dispersed the shadows and his genuine sympathy lightened many a load. His deeds of kindness, his words of encouragement were innumerable as his influence is immeasurable. No unclean words passed his lips; no impure thoughts were ever voiced by him. His conscience and sense of honor were keen, alert; his self control under the most trying circumstances was a marvel to all. It seemed as if he were ever mindful of the influence he wielded. To his family he continually manifested that never-failing, all-absorbing love which is the height of earthly devotion. His was an ideal home. They were first in his thoughts while on earth and he is now watching over them from above.

His ideals of business integrity were constant and unchangeable. His competitors were his true friends for they realized that he was interested in their welfare as well as his own. In the quarter of a century of his business activity in Wayne he never swerved from the highest standards. Success to him was not success unless honestly achieved. Temptation inevitably comes in all pursuits and doubtless came to him, yet he never yielded. And this integrity manifested throughout the years has not failed to bear its fruits for many have made his ideals their own. He always took a firm stand on moral issues and furthermore had the courage to voice his convictions regardless of the consequences. To local government in various capacities he gave of his time and thought. In him was exemplified the highest type of true American citizenship. And lastly, he continually lived his religion in that quiet and effective way which brought the greatest service to his God. And when called by his Creator he was ready—ready to leave this worldly life, ready not to cease his labors but renew them in a grander field.

The world has been impoverished, but heaven enriched by his departure. He has ceased to labor but not to live among us. His life, his personality, his influence will grow as the years pass by. We thank the Almighty for such a life that has made us nobler and better; we thank Him for all that Mr. Harrington was and will be. And the parting is not unmixt with joy. We are all journeying to the great beyond, we tarry here but a little while. Soon we shall all reach that land where sorrow is unknown, where friends and loved ones are reunited, where life will be begun anew. May the sublime hope of the future sustain us for the present.—William A. Crossland.

Wilmington, Calif., Journal: A number of Wilmington business men will recollect meeting two Nebraska men, John and Dan Harrington who have been over from Long Beach on several occasions to call on the writer. The latter of the two brothers was the picture of good health until a month ago when stricken with an illness that baffled the physicians. Last week John Harrington and wife were callers at this office and reported the sick man better and able to get out, so on Sunday afternoon M. S. Davies, whose home in Nebraska has been next door to the Harrington residence for some twenty-five years, and the Journal reporter went to Long Beach to have a nice visit with the invalid, and found him dead, he having passed away the morning after his brother's call on us. Deceased was a fine man, one of the cleanest and best characters we have ever known, and his death a sorrow that time will not soon efface as it is only a little over a year since we exchanged business confidences and planned to sell out in Nebraska and come to California to "spend the probable next twenty-five years of our lives where life was worth while."

SCHOOL NOTES.

Eight newly enrolled pupils this week. Attendance is very good. Schools close this evening for the week. All the teachers are going to Norfolk to attend the North Nebraska Teachers' association the rest of the week.

An unusually large attendance is anticipated at the N. N. T. A. this spring. Many of our high school students are going to Norfolk this evening to attend the North Nebraska high school declamatory contest. Marjorie Kohl will represent the Wayne high school in this contest and we feel that any one who can win from Marjorie must be exceedingly good. We feel confident that our contestant will win.

Remember the Wayne-Randolph debate in the high school auditorium next Friday evening, April 5. The Wayne debaters are Tracy Kohl, Clement Crossland and Bernard McConnell. The question to be debated is: "Resolved, That the Movement of Organized Labor for the Closed Shop Should Receive the Support of Public Opinion." The Wayne team will have the affirmative side of the question. Come out and hear this debate. Boost for the Wayne team.

The basket ball game between the Normal and high school Midgets last Saturday evening resulted in a 14 to 13 victory for the Normal team.

The ninth grade gave the following Fire Prevention program last Friday morning, with Everett Raymond presiding: "Origin and Dangers of Fire," Joe Munsinger; "Independence Day Fires and Accidents," Florence Wright; "Dangers of Kerosene and Gasoline," Earl Lewis; "How to Prevent Fires," Cora Panabaker. As a closing number, the high school students and teachers rose and sang "America."

Chancellor Fulmer of the Nebraska Wesleyan university delighted our high school with a brief address on Tuesday afternoon. It was 3:45 when Mr. Fulmer began to speak and it was 4:10 when he closed his address. But judging from the interest manifested in the speaker and what he had to say, no one would have objected if he had continued much longer. In part, Mr. Fulmer said: "The world is moving rapidly, and competition is so keen and relentless, that the weak always die. There is no reason for you not becoming able to compete with conditions as you will find them when you enter upon life's activities. You have the opportunities and so has every one, to become strong in whatever line you choose. You are cowards if you are afraid of hard work and are ready to give up without putting forth much effort. Poverty and poor health are not obstacles to the person who is determined to make good and be a winner. All the world hates a quitter. Brace up and hit the tin hard. Have grit and gumption and you will win." Come and speak to us again, Mr. Fulmer.

Professor W. A. Crossland of the University Place high school, visited our high school this week.

STATE NORMAL NEWS.

Mrs. Alice J. Warnock is visiting her sister, Miss Lillian Jewell.

French Penn received a tempting offer from a rural school district near Wayne, and has contracted for a two months' term of school. He will return to the Normal for the summer session.

There will be no school on Friday, March 29, and the educational meeting at Norfolk will be attended by a large number from the Normal, both students and members of the faculty.

President Conn received a message from Middletown, Ind., last Saturday apprising him of the death of his nephew. He and Mrs. Conn left on the afternoon train and they will be out of the city for several days.

Mr. Will Crossland, formerly a student of the Nebraska Normal and now a teacher in the public schools at University Place, was a visitor Monday. Mr. Crossland is a graduate of Wesleyan university and has won distinction in the state in debating and oratory.

Students and members of the faculty were expecting a visit from Chancellor C. A. Fulmer when he was in Wayne, but owing to an engagement at Aurora Mr. Fulmer found it necessary to leave on the morning train. Chancellor Fulmer has long been identified with the educational interests of the state and he was characterized by Former State Superintendent Bishop as "the best loved school man in Nebraska."

A game of basket ball is scheduled to take place on Wednesday evening between the second Normal team and the Stanton high school. The boys of our second team have not lost a game on their own floor this year, and this game, which will be the last of the season, promises to be of unusual interest.

The school is indebted to the Young Women's Christian association for the very unique social event which was so well planned and so skillfully executed on last Saturday evening. "The people were first invited to the gymnasium to witness a basket ball game played by the ladies of the school, also a game between the Normal and Wayne high school. Following this, in the chapel, an illustrated talk was given by Professor Britell, describing a trip he and his family had made to the southland several years ago. At the close of Professor Britell's talk an invitation was extended for all to visit the basement, where it was found that one of the class rooms had been equipped as a modern "Boston lunch," and the hungry and thirsty were refreshed by doughnuts and coffee. The music furnished by the band and several special features arranged by the committee added interest to the evening's program.

On Friday morning Professor Lewis discussed current events before the students at convocation. Professor Lewis has been keeping the school informed on matters of current interest and his talks are always instructive. Among the events discussed at this time were: 1.—A recent decision of the U. S. supreme court that a company which had secured a patent on a mimeograph could designate the kind of ink to be used with the machine. 2.—The men who are candidates for the presidential nomination and the principles involved in the campaign. 3.—The discovery of the South pole.

Our two debating teams met in joint discussion last Monday afternoon. Both teams are preparing to debate on the question of Initiative and Referendum, the one to meet Kearney to have the affirmative and the one to meet Peru the negative side of the question. The affirmative is upheld by E. W. Hesse, Eugenia Madsen, and Ralph W. Sterling; the negative will be defended by James E. Britton, J. H. Wichman and G. E. Cress. The debate with the other schools will take place on the evening of April 12.

Uncle Walt The Poet Philosopher

The man who firmly takes his stand upon the corner of the street to tell us how to save the land, with arguments as good as wheat.

QUALIFICATIONS. should have the documents to show that he owes nothing at the store; for men who won't pay what they owe don't interest us any more. Before he starts his wordy strife about our national despair, he should convince us that his wife and kids have decent things to wear. Before he hurries through his hat, before of platform planks he yells, he surely should persuade us that in some sane labor he excels. The man who does his task in style, who helps us make the wheels go round, has got a right to talk a while, and we will listen to the sound. But no one cares to hear the wails of some cheap skates who thinks he's wise, who shakes the walkin' up and falls to keep his larder stocked with pies. The men who have the right to talk, the men who work, the men who win, are never standing on the walk dispensing music of the chit. So when you see a jay arise to shoot the skin full of holes, just ask him how he's fixed for pies, and Sunday clothes and soap and coals.

With my old furnace I have tinkered through weary months of grief and groan, and I am sooted up and clinkered, my reason totters on its throne. And FURNACE so I'm glad that spring is coming with balmy winds and skies of blue, when humming birds will be a-humming, and katydids their stunts will do. The furnace is a weird invention that makes men wish that they were dead; its whims, too numerous to mention, drive patient guys to painting red. On balmy days it earns its wages, and throws out fifty kinds of heat; but when a howling blizzard rages, it soldiers till you freeze your feet. It stores up heaps and heaps of ashes, and when you shake the blamed things down, they spoil your whiskers and mustaches, and cke your silk hat and your gown. Around my furnace I have potted and wished the man who made its grate was rounded up and neatly slaughtered, and buried in a basswood crate. And now spring harbingers are harbing, the wintry days are almost gone; and soon my form in flynet garbing, I'll mosey forth to mow the lawn. When I'm above my mower crouching, an old straw hat up on my brow, you'll hear me ranting 'round and grouching about the same as I do now.

Some time ago I had the heaves, which laid me on a couch of pain; it is a malady that leaves you broken down in wind and brain. BENEFACTORS and while I tossed upon my bed, old Bilkins came, with comfort sweet; he placed a poultice on my head and gently fanned my fevered feet. He gladly helped the weary frau, and from her heart the sadness drove; he fed the horse and milked the cow, and whacked up cordwood for the stove. For weary weeks he did my chores while I was tangled with disease; and when I'd uttered thanks he roared disgustedly: "Forget it please!" Old Winkletoot has wide renown for freely giving princely sums; he gave a fountain to the town and built a home for busted bums. He is the boss philanthropist, whom all the papers advertise; he surely will be sorely missed when he kicks up his heels and dies. But when I had the heaves and lay with plaster casts upon my ears, he never came to say good-day, although he's known me fifty years. To see a neighbor in distress, and help him with a song and dance, won't win the plaudits of the press or make your cherished fame advance.

The modern airs are cheerful, melodious and sweet, we hear them sung and whistled all day upon the street. Some lifting rag-time ditty that's rollin' and gay will gain the public favor, and hold it—for a day. But when the day is ended, and we are tired and worn, and more than half persuaded that man was made to mourn, how soothing then the music our fathers used to know! The songs of sense and feeling, the songs of long ago! The "Jungle Joe" effusions and kindred roundelays will do to hum or whistle throughout our busy days; and in the garish limelight the yodelers may yell, and Injun songs may flourish—and all is passing well; but when to light the heavens the shining stars return, and in the cottage windows the lights begin to burn, when parents and their children are seated by the fire, remote from worldly clamor, and all the world's desire, when eyes are soft and shining, and hearts with love aglow, how pleasant is the singing of songs of long ago!

About the sanest motto, methinks, that ever grew, is "Never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you." We LET TROUBLE here, we worry o'er the ALONE is the harvest of all our pains at last; calamities that threaten are lighter than they seem, and all our dark forebodings are but a winter dream. And no man loves the fellow who's always in a stew; so never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you. How foolish, how wrong-headed are all the human crowd! For when the sky is sunny they're searching for a cloud; and when the crops are thriving they murmur and complain; they fear there'll be too little or else too much of rain; and when their health is buoyant they pore o'er almanacs until they're sure they suffer from humors on their backs; and so their useless worries just keep them sick and blue—oh, never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you! Of course the world has troubles and some of them will come and snite you in the midriff and put you out of plumb; but don't go forth to meet them and fold them to your breast, but let them come and seek you, then knock them gully west. Oh, this old world is pleasant, the skies are bright and blue, so never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you!

Down this little world we travel, headed for the land of Dawn, sawing wood and scratching gravel, here today, tomorrow gone! Down

TRAVELERS our path of doubts and dangers, we are toddling mile on mile, transient and enquiring strangers, dumped into this world a while. Let us make the journey pleasant for the little time we stay; all we have is just the present—all we need is just today. Let's encourage one another as we push along the road, saying to the jaded brother: "Here, I'll help you with your load!" Banish scorn and vain reviling, banish useless tears and woe; let us do the journey smiling, all our hearts with love aglow. Let us never search for sorrow, since the journey is so brief; here today and gone tomorrow, what have we to do with grief? Down this little world we wander, strangers from some unknown spheres, headed for the county yonder where they have no sighs or tears; let us therefore cease complaining, let us be no longer glum; let us all go into training for the joyful life to come!

LECTURE COURSE IS PLEASING SUCCESS

The managers of the local lecture course are gratified by the financial success which followed their efforts during the past winter. They started in with a debt of $82, and concluded with $85 in the treasury. The last number, the lecture by Edmund Vance Cooke, was considered the best of the series. "If all numbers of the lecture course could be of the high order of Mr. Cooke," says Professor J. T. House of the State Normal, "people could not fail to be greatly benefited and pleased."

FUNERAL OF LATE DAN HARRINGTON

The remains of the late Dan Harrington arrived in Wayne Friday, and funeral services were held at the residence of Dr. W. L. Wightman Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Alexander Corkey with the assistance of Rev. William Garst and Rev. C. J. Ringer. A large concourse of friends of the deceased attended the service. Interment took place in Greenwood cemetery.

The following obituary was prepared by Rev. Alexander Corkey of the Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Harrington was a member:

Dan Harrington was born in Rockland, Maine, on November 17, 1860, and departed this life at Long Beach, Cal., on Friday, March 15, 1912, aged 51 years, 3 months and 28 days. His father died during his boyhood, and his mother and family moved to Tokamah, Neb., in 1870. Here Mr. Harrington grew to manhood, and began his business life. In 1886, accompanied by his brother, John Harrington, and his half-brother, Charles Robbins, he came to Wayne. After a partnership for a time with his brother John, he spent nearly a year in Salt Lake City, but returned to Wayne, and engaged in business with Charles Robbins. A few years later he became sole owner of the business, and remained in charge until a little over a year ago, when he sold out.

On September 15, 1892, he was married in the Presbyterian church of Jordan, N. Y., to May-Van-Karen, who survives to mourn a faithful husband's loss. During his long residence in our community, Mr. Harrington was, in the fullest sense of the term, a good citizen. As a business man, he was capable, energetic, honorable and successful. As a member of society he was broad-minded, public-spirited, and friendly to every effort that meant better things for the community. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, who honored him with a lodge of sorrow last Thursday evening. In his religious faith he affiliated himself with the Presbyterian church, and the present success of that organization owes much to his life-long support. During recent years he was elected to the position of trustee, an office which he filled with loyal devotion. He a long term of service in the store he decided, over a year ago, to make a change, and on January 1, 1911, his well known establishment was handed over to Gamble, Senter & Co.

Last summer he spent in the west with his family, returning to Wayne in the fall. Late in the month of December last he left Wayne for the west, arriving early in the year, in southern California. Here, by the side of the ocean, in the balmy climate of that land, he was enjoying a well earned rest, surrounded by his family and friends. Always strong and active, he was planning to re-enter the business world, and was expecting soon to decide on a permanent location. But his life's work was over. Without warning, he was stricken on February 16, and the serious nature of his illness was at once recognized. However his strong constitution enabled him to rally, and in a few weeks he seemed on the highway to a complete recovery, but a last attack on March 15 resulted in complete unconsciousness, in which he quietly passed away.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and one child, Natalie; his brother, John Harrington, and a half brother, Charles Robbins. His wide circle of friends feel his loss sadly, and at the funeral home the stores of Wayne were closed as a tribute of respect.

"His life was gentle; and the elements so mixed in him,
That nature might stand up and say to all the world:
"This was a man."

One sweetly solemn thought comes to me o'er and o'er;
I'm nearer home today than I ever have been before.
Nearer the bound of life where we lay our burdens down;
Nearer leaving the cross; nearer wearing the crown.

Saviour, perfect my trust; strengthen the might of my faith;
Let me feel as I would when I stand on the rock of the shore of death—
Feel as I would when my feet are slipping over the brink;
For it may be I'm nearer home—nearer than now I think.

Washington correspondence in Tuesday's Omaha Bee: John T. Bressler of Wayne, Neb., and his son, John T. Bressler, jr., who is attending school in western Pennsylvania, are in Washington for a few days, Mr. Bressler acting as "guide, philosopher and friend" to the young man in seeing the capital. Mr. Bressler says that Taft sentiment in Nebraska is growing by leaps and bounds and in his opinion the president will easily carry the state next month.

It has dawned on the democrats in Washington that W. J. Bryan's first choice for the democratic presidential nomination is W. J. Bryan.

Wayne people will be pleased to know that local men have secured contracts for both the library building and city hall. This satisfactory condition speaks well for the contractors and the bodies having the contracts to let.

Senator Norris Brown who is a candidate to succeed himself, has been a consistent and progressive member of the United States senate. His record shows that he has been a faithful servant of the people, and he deserves and should not be denied a second term.

The man who thinks only of self, making a feeble attempt to conceal his selfish motives, is not a very valuable asset for society, and follows an existence of more or less discontent and misery. And his manifest selfishness usually defeats his selfish purposes.

The note sounded by the Madison Post, democratic, is not very encouraging for the democratic party. It says everything indicates Nebraska will go republican this year, and attributes the prospect to quarrels within democratic ranks. It criticizes Mike Harrington with a good deal of severity.

The Nebraska sheriff who proudly lifted up the bodies of the dead desperadoes at the Lincoln station, so the curious crowd could see them, and exclaimed that he killed them, leads one to inquire if home missionary work is not being neglected. Some of the missionaries doing duty in China should be recalled and set to work in Nebraska.

Senator LaFollette charges that Roosevelt proved unfaithful to him; that he virtually had the promise of his support in the presidential campaign. It begins to look as though LaFollette might prove a stronger man than Roosevelt in the national convention. The Wisconsin man is at least consistent. That cannot be said of the colonel.

People are apt to yield to one extreme or another. One man's penitence should not drive another man to extravagance, and vice versa. The balanced middle course is the safe and sane one to follow.

There is alarming discord between Mr. Bryan and Senator Hitchcock. Mr. Bryan says he will not go to the Baltimore convention if Harmon is made the choice of the Nebraska democracy, but in that event will go as a private citizen prepared to fight against the Ohio man's nomination. Mr. Hitchcock points out that Mr. Bryan is not willing to let the people rule. The senator thinks Mr. Bryan should gracefully yield to the wishes of the people as expressed in the primary which he has long and ardently favored. Mr. Bryan indicates that if the judgment of the democrats of Nebraska suits him, he will support it, but if it is contrary to his idea, he will oppose it. He is willing to let the people rule if they rule in accordance with his opinion.

Congressman Dan V. Stephens has written another letter to his democratic friends. This letter is devoted to urging democrats to support Champ Clark for the presidential nomination. He praises Clark in the highest terms. He points out that a bitter fight between Wilson and Harmon factions is growing worse daily, and that "it will soon be apparent to all practical party men to nominate either would be quite impossible, even if desirable." Incidentally, Stephens mentions that Clark came into the Third Nebraska district last fall to help him win in the congressional contest, and that he would be glad if democrats would now boost for the speaker. Stephens wants the democrats in this district to help him reciprocate. What the congressman is accomplishing for his district, the letter does not state.

The sheriff of Lancaster county is quoted in the Lincoln Journal as saying that it was lucky the penitentiary murderers were caught without more loss of life. He says he fully expected that men would be killed, and does not know how he could change any of his tactics if he had the affair to do over again. He says if the convicts had remained at the Blunt home, both Mr. and Mrs. Blunt might have been killed. And with the same lack of tact, discretion and good sense on the part of the officers, displayed in the final round-up, the public can readily understand how results might have been worse if the posses had felt called upon to bombard the Blunt home. But no matter what any officer who participated in the battle with the bandits thinks, the fact remains and is patent to the general public that there was no emergency that warranted the killing of the helpless farmer. The people in the Blunt neighborhood are justly incensed. They feel that there was no need for the sacrifice of the young farmer, and that his death was a crime.

The primaries in New York Tuesday gave President Taft an overwhelming victory. It would look as though the primary to which Roosevelt looked for aid and comfort is not more cheering for him in results than the convention system which is still used in a majority of the states. Leaders of the Roosevelt campaign in New York complain that there was delay in the distribution of ballots. They should be comforted by the thought, however, that if there had been more voting there would have been greater defeat for their toppling idol. Viewing wrecked hopes in New York, Chairman Duell of the Roosevelt aggregation, said: "Governor Dix should be called upon to convene the legislature in special session for the purpose of passing a presidential primary law, so that there may be an honest expression of the wishes of the people." A satisfactory primary law that does not yield giant returns for Roosevelt is evidently inconceivable to Roosevelt boosters. They ought to demand a law compelling people to vote for Roosevelt.

"In its actual workings," said Colonel Roosevelt in a speech in Maine, "the president's scheme would be a government of the people, for the people, by the bosses." President Taft has not uttered a syllable indicating disposition on his part to lessen the rule of the people. On the contrary, he came out recently in support of a properly regulated presidential primary. The president's record and speeches refute Roosevelt's imputation. The colonel does not help himself in the eyes of the American people by misrepresenting the president—the man whom he praised in a public speech not longer ago than February, 1911. Whatever change there has been in the Taft record since then has been for the better. If the colonel found Taft worthy of commendation little more than a year ago, he is giving people small credit for clear, independent thinking if he believes he can swing them against the president now. As to letting the people rule, the colonel is anxious to have them seem to do it if they follow his directions carefully. He would virtually do the ruling, but have the people approve of his plans from time to time. His policy is one boss—himself—and an army of applauding satellites.

A Tyrant and a Terror.

It has been said the life of Frederick the Great as a boy under his father, Frederick I., first king of Prussia, was worse than that of Oliver Twist or Smeke at Dotheboys Hall. The old king was a tyrant of the worst description, and his own family experienced him at his worst. Frederick as a boy received instruction in music and French from refugees in Berlin, but when the king learned of it he stopped the music peremptorily.

The lad had little liking for military pursuits. His father suspected his son of heresy without having any clear idea of what his own theology really was. Once in a rage the king almost strangled his son with a window cord, and at length matters were brought to a crisis by the prince running away. It was only through diplomatic intervention that Frederick's life was spared, for he was a soldier, and he had been guilty of desertion. In his father's eyes this was a heinous offense and so grave that a friend who was associated with the prince in his "rebellion" suffered the extreme penalty.

Name Unknown.

The men were eating their lunch in the temporary headquarters of the chief electrician when the telephone bell rang. Terry answered.

"Hello. Yes, this is the place, mum. What's his name again? Stewart, is it? No, there ain't nobody by that name here that I know of. Boys, does any of you know a man around here by the name of Mr. Stewart?"

"Not I," said Pat.

"Nor I," said Mike.

Phelim and Aloisius shook their heads.

"There's nobody here knows who you want, mum," said Terry to the phone. He returned to his dinner pail and a moment later suddenly laid down his sandwich and shouted:

"Boys, do you know who the man Stewart is that the lady wanted? Be gorry, it's the boss!"—Newark News.

Dickens' Tidiness.

Authors, as a rule, are not famed for tidiness, but Dickens was an exception. "There never existed, I think, in all the world a more thoroughly tidy or methodical creature than was my father," wrote his daughter Mamie. "He was tidy in every way—in his mind, in his handsome and graceful person, in his work, in keeping his writing table drawers in his large correspondence in fact, in his whole life." But he could be a fidget also, for example, in regard to the furniture in a room in a hotel. He might be staying only a single night, but if it did not please him he would rearrange it all, always turning the bed north and south to meet his views of the electrical currents of the earth.

Lincoln at the Ball.

Lincoln married Miss Mary Todd of Kentucky. He met her, the story goes, when he was first elected to the legislature of Illinois at the governor's ball in Springfield, the state capital.

Said he to the lady, "Miss Todd, I would like to dance with you the worst way."

She was agreeable, and they joined the throng.

"Well, Mary," said a friend when he had escorted her back to her place, "how was the dance?"

"Why, just as he said," Miss Todd replied, "the very worst way."

Hissing in the Theater.

Formerly there was no hissing in the theater. The benevolent audience was content to yawn and fall asleep. The invention of hissing is no older than 1850 and took place at the first representation of "Aspar," a tragedy of Fontenelle, so we are told by the poet Rol in his "Brevet de la Calotte." A farce was produced in Bannister's time under the title of "Fire and Water." "I predict its fate," said Bannister. "What fate?" Whispered the anxious author at his side. "What fate?" said Bannister. "Why, what can fire and water produce but a hiss?"

Always a Way.

"I am beginning to fear," said the Rev. Mr. Goodman, "that I may be injecting too much humor into my sermons. The congregation may fall into the habit of neglecting to take me seriously."

"Oh, don't worry about that, dear," his wife replied. "Whenever you begin to notice that they are not taking you seriously just ask them to raise your salary."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Buccaneers.

Originally buccaneers were peaceful English, French and Dutch settlers in the Spanish West Indies, and they received their name on account of their custom of drying their meat, in the Indian fashion, on a buccan, or hurdle. The Spaniards resented strongly the intrusion of these foreigners and made many attempts to oust them, but the buccaneers were a hardy set of men and crack shots with the musket, so they successfully resisted all the Spaniards' attacks and obstinately remained in the islands. What it was that caused the buccaneers to abandon their comparatively peaceful mode of living and take to piracy it is hard to say. Whatever the reason, their depredations soon rendered the passage of the Caribbean sea an undertaking of extreme danger to merchantmen, and the word buccaneer has come down as a synonym for robbery, murder and all the vices.

Goethe's Birthday.

In August, 1818, Goethe went to Carlsbad for the cure and placed himself under the care of Dr. Rehbain. One morning when he rose he requested Charles, his domestic, to place a bottle of red wine and a glass in each of the two windows in the room. Then the poet walked round and round the apartment, stopping at each window to drink a glass of wine. When he had nearly emptied the bottles the doctor arrived. "Ah," said Goethe, "you are come. Do you know it is my birthday?" "No," said the doctor, "it is not your birthday." It falls tomorrow.

Only the production of the almanac could convince Goethe that he was a day out in his reckoning. When he discovered his mistake he gave vent to a strong expression and, after a long pause, turning to the doctor, said, "Then I have got drunk for nothing."

Harry Selson, sometimes known as "Bill Hepburn," has a blacksmith shop out on the farm near here. Bill says he can fix your wagon, sharpen your plow and shoe your horse, and wants an opportunity to prove it.

Mrs. Charles Meink and her four boys left Monday afternoon for their home in Dakota. John Hadley accompanied them as far as Sioux City and Mr. Meink will meet them at Aberdeen. Their friends hope that they will reach their destination without any misfortune.

Wear Slippers In the House.

In England it is the custom not only for grown persons, but also for children, to wear slippers in the house. English children as well as grownups wear shoes as we in America wear rubbers, only out of doors. This is not only a more comfortable custom with regard to footwear than ours, but it is also more healthful. The streets and sidewalks and even the yards are dusty. This dust, full of germs as it is, should not be tracked all over the house. We would do well in the interests of preventive medicine to provide slippers for our children and to insist upon the wearing of them in the house. It is less trouble to change from shoes to slippers, even three or four times a day, than it is to cure an illness the germ of which may have been brought into the nursery on the soles of the children's shoes.—Home Progress.

The Herb of Ferocity.

If you have any reason to suspect that you are too mild mannered, too gentle for this strenuous age, eat cat-mint. Miss F. A. Bardswell in her book "The Herb Garden" says cat-mint, one of the ten varieties of mint, is known as the herb of ferocity because of the ferocious disposition it imparts. "The herb when chewed" says Miss Bardswell, "is said to make the most gentle person fierce and quarrelsome. A legend is extant of a certain executioner who could never muster up his courage to the point of hanging till he had partaken of it."

Crushed Again.

"If you have a fault?" Mrs. Henpeck broke in. "Ha, ha! Excuse me for laughing. If I have a fault it is that I sometimes permit my sense of humor to get the better of me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.
From Logan Valley Herald, March 28, 1884.
The foundation is being laid for the new Lutheran church building.
William House, late of Missouri Valley, Ia., is building a new house on his farm near town.
Married, at the residence of the bride's parents in Hoskins, March 25, 1884, Mr. Al. Houser and Miss Lizzie Ziemer, daughter of L. Ziemer.
Died, March 25, 1884, Jerome Agler, father of Joseph W. and W. P. Agler; Mrs. C. E. Hunter, Mrs. P. Merriman, Mrs. W. H. Hunt and Mrs. Henry Merriman.
Dr. Crawford and his father went to Ponca Monday to attend court, where the case of Crawford vs. Ponca will be tried. This is a suit for damages, brought by Mr. Crawford against the city of Ponca, on account of injuries occasioned by defective sidewalks.
The people of Dixon county are to be congratulated over the decision of the supreme court of the United States, in their bond cases. The court gave judgment for the county, reversing the decision of the circuit court, and relieving them of a stroke of $100,000 indebtedness. The court held the bonds to have been issued unconstitutionally.

From the Wayne Herald, April 14, 1892:
Born, April 8, 1892, to Mr. and Mrs. R. Patton, a girl.
Died of measles, 2-year-old daughter of William Danne.
Died at her home, five miles northeast of Wayne, April 13, 1892, Mrs. Chris Wischhoff.
The damage suit of William Viergutz against Herman Neigenfand was tried in the district court and resulted in a verdict awarding $5,700 to the plaintiff.
About 300 people attended a leap-year party at the opera house. It was promoted by Mrs. Ley, Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Corbit, Mrs. Steele, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Ash, Mrs. Weber, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. McFarland, Mrs. Main, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Mitchell and Miss Mae VanKuren.

From the Wayne Herald, April 10, 1902:
A bridge over Dogtown creek was destroyed by fire.
Professor Gregg delivers the first of the series of lectures under the auspices of the Baptist church.
Married, March 8, at the residence of the bride's parents, south of Hoskins, Mr. Simon Strate and Miss Boymeister.
Married, April 10, 1892, Miss Marie Mettler of Wayne, and Mr. H. J. Caudor of Hoskins, the ceremony being performed in Omaha.
Died, April 2, W. C. Parsons, aged 25 years; April 6, Harold, little son of Mr. and Mrs. John Koefoed; April 2, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McEachen.

From the Ponca Journal, April 4, 1878:
One night last week some perambulating individual of a pilfering disposition, entered the cellar of John Krause of this place and stole his pork, hams, etc., making a clean sweep, not even leaving enough for breakfast.
J. W. Jones made a trip into the southern part of the county last week. He came to the Logan—couldn't get over—camped out all night—and had a romantic time generally. He was out showing a man some land.
On yesterday afternoon a half-breed named St. Cyr stole a pair of boots from Ford & Myers' for which he was arrested and jailed. During last night Deputy Sheriff Bovee of Elk Point, arrived in pursuit of the same man on a charge of horse-stealing. Ford & Myers, having been reimbursed for their goods, refused to prosecute, and he was released. But Sheriff Jones immediately arrested him again, and he is now in the city calaboose awaiting requisition.

From Ponca Journal, April 1, 1880:
It is reported that from the first of May to June 1 no regular trains will be run between Ponca and Covington as at that time the workmen will be employed widening the track and remodeling the grade. Thus it would seem for a time Ponca will not be blessed with railroad connection with the outside world.
When the two Indians convicted of murder in Dakota county are comfortably hung and thus disposed of, probably after they get into the other world, and have looked over the happy hunting grounds and made a claim, they will take some leisurely day and start out to find who they have killed. And when St. Peter, after examining the records, tells them it was nobody at all they will feel disappointed and will consider that they have lived in vain.
There is no definite information yet as to when the boring for coal will recommence. There can be no doubt, however, that ere long, the business will be started again, and when it is there will not be a shadow of doubt as to the finding of a valuable and paying vein of coal.

The Sioux City Journal of Tuesday states that on Monday a bridge building crew crossed over to the Nebraska side, to begin work on the pile driving between Dakota City and Ponca. From all appearances our little pocket railroad will soon blossom out into a first-class institution.

RECALLED A JUDGE.
(Bixby in Lincoln Journal.)
The mountain rough neck had a grudge against the courts and laws; Said he: "I will recall a judge, Or perish in the cause."
He drew his gun and blazed away— His aim was not so "slow," For there is one less judge today, John Anderson, my jo.

ARREST AT RANDOLPH.
Randolph Times—Last Saturday night John F. Sides of Dakota City, U. S. deputy marshal, arrived in Randolph and quietly located Grover P. Miller of Harlan, Ia., who has been about Randolph for some three weeks. During the day advices from the U. S. district attorney at Omaha received by C. B. Willey, led to a call of the latter at the postoffice to find from what points Miller was receiving mail. This information led to telegrams and the visit of the U. S. marshal and the arrest of the Iowa man on an information charging him with what is commonly called "white slavery."
The count against Miller in the complaint is that he is alleged to be implicated, with two or three others, in enticing Rasil Kinzie, aged 17, from Harlan, Ia., to Omaha for immoral purposes. This is the girl that was found in the Millard hotel at Omaha a few weeks ago in a locked room. The door was forced by the hotel authorities and the girl taken in charge.
Miller is a real estate man, is well supplied with money and at one time owned some land here it is said. Whether he is guilty of the serious charge against him or not is a matter that the courts will decide, his preliminary hearing having occurred at Tekamah Monday, before the U. S. commissioner.

The following dispatch gives additional light on the matter:
Omaha, March 18.—Grover Miller, Roy Murfield, Leo Van Gorkom, and George White all of Harlan, Ia., have been arrested on federal warrants, charging them with enticing and persuading Rasil Kinzie of Harlan and Sheldon, Ia., to come to Omaha for immoral purposes. The girl was found in a hotel two weeks ago.
Miller was arrested at Randolph last Saturday and the others were taken at Harlan. Miller was arraigned at Tekamah today and bound over to the federal court. The others were arraigned at Council Bluffs.
The arrest followed an investigation by District Attorney Howell of Omaha, and the discoveries made by a special federal officer from Washington.

POLITICAL ADVERTISING.

FRANKLIN C. HAMER.

Franklin C. Hamer, republican candidate for the nomination for state treasurer, is a native of Nebraska and a graduate of the State University. For twenty years he has been engaged in practical farming and in investment banking. Mr. Hamer has extensive farming interests in Lancaster, Holt and Lincoln counties, and to these he gives the attention of a man deeply interested in the production of agricultural wealth. He is interested in the American Safe Deposit Company of Omaha and Lincoln, which has the handling of large sums in money and securities for its customers. A large portion of these are the wage earners of those cities, who find this company a safe advisor and guardian.

Mr. Hamer's thorough training in the investment banking business peculiarly fits him for the position of state treasurer, whose duties lie along the lines of investing the funds of Nebraska amounting to $2,000,000, in safe and revenue-producing securities. In this line of endeavor he has been brought into close contact with the investment world, a thing needed by any man who safely and conservatively handles the immense financial resources of this state. He is thoroughly familiar with Nebraska needs and conditions, has the energy and ability to give the taxpayers a successful administration of the office, and is thoroughly in touch with the progressive sentiment of the republican party. It is not often that Nebraskans have an opportunity to vote for a native son of the state for an important state office, and less often for one whose training has so well fitted him for the position to which he aspires. Mr. Hamer is making an active, thorough and dignified campaign for the nomination and invites the closest scrutiny of his record as a business man.

Water as Food.
In the light of certain statistics given by W. J. McGee in the World's Work the old sentence of "bread and water" does not, at all events, sound like starvation rations. For man and other animals water is the leading food. The average human ration is some six pounds daily, four and one-half liquid and one and one-half nominally solid. A pound of grain is the equivalent of two tons of water used by the growing wheat and a pound of beef the equivalent of fifteen to thirty tons of water consumed by the heaves chiefly in the form of feed, and the adult who eats 200 pounds each of bread and beef in a year consumes something like a ton of water in drink and the equivalent of 400 tons in bread and 4,000 tons in meat, or 4,401 tons in all.

Presbyterian Church.
(Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.)
"The Meaning of Good Friday" will be the subject of the Palm Sunday sermon at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning. In the evening the pastor will give the second sermon on Genesis. The theme will be, "The World's First Tragedy."
Attention is called to the program of the Woman's Presbyterian meeting which is held this week, Thursday and Friday, at the Presbyterian church. The evening services are open to all, and every one is cordially invited. On Thursday evening the Wimbago Indian quartet will sing.
The leader of the C. E. society next Sunday evening will be B. F. Svoboda. The subject will be "A Bird's Eye View of Presbyterian Work-Wide Work."

Mr. J. Woodward Jones and Mr. C. W. Hiseux have been elected by the Presbyterian Brotherhood to represent them at a meeting of the Men and Religion forward movement, which is to be held this week at Omaha.
The Wayne Choral Union is preparing an Easter cantata which will be rendered at a Union meeting on Easter evening at the Presbyterian church. The Union is under the leadership of Professor Alexander.

First Baptist Church.
(Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor.)
Worship and preaching both morning and evening. The morning sermon will be appropriate for Palm Sunday. In the evening, after a brief sermon, the ordinance of baptism will be administered.
All awaiting baptism are asked to be prepared for this on Sunday evening. The girls from the Sunday school will be baptized at the Sunday school hour.
We are planning for an unusually delightful service Easter morning at which time we are to give the hand of church fellowship to a goodly number of new members.
Tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. M. Christenson, the Women's Missionary society will meet. At this time the annual election of officers will take place.
On next Wednesday evening the covenant meeting will be held. This ought to be a helpful service, as it is the first of the kind we have had for some time.
The missionary committee has charge of our young people's work for next Sunday evening.
We cordially invite you to come and worship with us.

First Methodist Church.
(Rev. William Gorst, Pastor.)
A little error crept into the figures regarding the number of invitations to the banquet. About 250 is the correct number and 170 were in attendance on Tuesday evening. Professor I. H. Britell did splendid work as toastmaster and the addresses by Superintendent Hosman, Chancellor Palmer and Judge John N. Dryden were very able throughout. Under high and very unexpected pressure from without Will Crossland appeared as a finished product of Nebraska Wesleyan university for a minute or two and spoke of the influences of the school over the lives of young people. No one was the least bit ashamed of the "specimen."
Several persons received the sacrament of baptism last Sunday morning. Four young people became members of the church on profession of faith and seven by transfer. The attendance at Sunday school reached 261.

Rev. A. S. Budj of Lyons will preach both morning and evening next Sunday and the pastor of this church goes to Lyons. That is Nebraska Wesleyan university day in Norfolk district and there will be an exchange of pastors throughout the district.
The second quarterly conference was held on Wednesday evening with District Superintendent Hosman presiding.
The women of the Foreign Missionary society have prepared a program of music, song and story pertaining to their work, to be given in the church parlors on Tuesday evening, April 2, at 8 o'clock. This meeting is held for the entertainment and instruction of every adult member of the church and it is sincerely hoped by the members of the society that the call will be heard and heeded by all. There is to be no price of admission nor any collection taken.

SERMONS ON GENESIS.
Last Sunday evening Rev. Alexander Corkey began a series of sermons on the book of Genesis. In a prelude to his sermon he explained in regard to the history and purpose of the Bible, contrasting the Old and New Testaments and showing the ripe fruit of the religious experiences recorded in the inspired Word to be Jesus Christ, whose perfection of character is now unchallenged among intelligent people throughout the world. He declared that the purpose of the Bible was to reveal the connection which the world has with God, and teach men the true religious faith, and the right human life of mortals, denying that the Bible was given as to teach geology, astronomy, or any other science, and ridiculing those who imagined there was a conflict between Scripture and scientific knowledge.
In setting forth the teachings of the Bible in regard to the creation of the universe, and the introduction of man upon the earth, the speaker declared the first chapter of Genesis taught the three fundamental truths of the pre-existence of God, the Creator, before the universe was called into being; the spiritual likeness between man and his Maker, and the sovereignty of man over the earth as God's vicegerent. The knowledge of these sublime truths gave man an intelligent outlook on life and destiny, and fitted him to seek and find his life in God.
In the subsequent sermons on this remarkable and most valuable book, Mr. Corkey will discuss the leading dramatic scenes connected with man's earliest religious experiences as recorded.

ARTIFICIAL CAMPHOR.

Man Does In Two Weeks What Nature Takes Two Years to Do.
Who, unless he be a chemist, would suppose that there exists anything in common between the camphor of the orient and the turpentine obtained from the pine tree in the occident? The two substances have no superficial resemblance, their very odors being different. Yet, chemically considered, there is very little difference between them. Turpentine is composed of ten atoms of carbon combined with sixteen atoms of hydrogen, and camphor has the same components, with the addition of one atom of oxygen.
The best natural camphor comes from Formosa, and the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war advanced the price to such an extent that the chemists of the world were called upon to contrive a substitute. They soon decided that it would be more practicable to make an artificial camphor. Knowing turpentine to be the substance most nearly allied to it in chemical structure, a series of experiments on a very large scale was begun. A detailed history of these experiments would fill many volumes. Today from a determined quantity of turpentine may be obtained a fourth part of the weight of pure camphor. The success of the experiments was first known when the odor of camphor issued from set combinations.
Today man can manufacture in the laboratory in fifteen days an amount of camphor which it takes a tree two years to produce.—Harper's Weekly.

Novel Betrothal Customs of the Natives of New Guinea.
So far as proposals of marriage are concerned, in New Guinea it is always leap year, for in that island the men consider it beneath their dignity to notice women much less to make overtures of marriage. Consequently the proposing is left to the women to do.
When the ebony belle falls in love with a man she sends a piece of string to his sister or, if he has no sister, to his mother or another of his lady relatives. Then the lady who receives the string tells the dusky masher that the particular damsel is in love with him. No courting follows, however, for it is considered beneath a New Guinea gentleman's dignity to waste time in such a pursuit. If the man thinks he would like to wed the lady he meets her alone, and they decide straight away whether to marry or drop the idea.
In the former case the betrothal is announced. The man is then marked on the back with charcoal, while a mark is actually cut into the woman's skin.
No breach of promise actions are possible in New Guinea, though if the lady is jilted her friends may hunt her lover up and "go" for him. On the other hand, if the dark damsel proves faithless she is liable to be beaten by her betrothed if he catches her.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Gallon.

The gallon measure in Canada differs quite materially from the gallon in the United States. There the gallon measure contains exactly ten pounds of distilled water, here the gallon contains only 8.3389 pounds. Milk being heavier than water, a Canadian gallon of milk will weigh 10.33 pounds. Whereas in the United States the weight will be 8.6 pounds.

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.

From Logan Valley Herald, March 28, 1884.

The foundation is being laid for the new Lutheran church building.

William House, late of Missouri Valley, Ia., is building a new house on his farm near town.

Married, at the residence of the bride's parents in Hoskins, March 25, 1884, Mr. AT Houser and Miss Lizzie Ziemer, daughter of L. Ziemer.

Died, March 25, 1884, Jerome Agler, father of Joseph W. and W. P. Agler, Mrs. C. E. Hunter, Mrs. P. Merriman, Mrs. W. H. Hunt and Mrs. Henry Merriman.

Dr. Crawford and his father went to Ponca Monday to attend court, where the case of Crawford vs. Ponca will be tried. This is a suit for damages.

brought by Mr. Crawford against the city of Ponca, on account of injuries occasioned by defective sidewalks.

The people of Dixon county are to be congratulated over the decision of the supreme court of the United States, in their bond cases. The court gave judgment for the county, reversing the decision of the circuit court, and releasing them of one stroke of $100,000 indebtedness. The court held the bonds to have been issued unconstitutionally.

From the Wayne Herald, April 14, 1892.

Born, April 8, 1892, to Mr. and Mrs. R. Patton, a girl.

Died of measles, 2-year-old daughter of William Danne.

Died at her home, five miles north-east of Wayne, April 13, 1892, Mrs. Chris Weichhof.

The damage suit of William Viergutz against Herman Neigenfand was tried in the district court and resulted in a verdict awarding $5,700 to the plaintiff.

About 300 people attended a leap year party at the opera house. It was promoted by Mrs. Fey, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Corbit, Mrs. Steele, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Ash, Mrs. Weber, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. McFarland, Mrs. Mann, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Mitchell and Miss Mae VanKuren.

From the Wayne Herald, April 10, 1892.

A bridge over Dogtown creek was destroyed by fire.

Professor Gregg delivers the first of the series of lectures under the auspices of the Baptist church.

Married, March 8, at the residence of the bride's parents, south of Hoskins, Mr. Simon Straub and Miss Rowena Hill.

Married, April 10, 1892, Miss Marie Mettlen of Wayne, and Mr. H. J. Cannon of Hoskins, the ceremony being performed in Omaha.

Died, April 3, W. C. Parsons, aged 25 years; April 6, Harold, little son of Mr. and Mrs. John Koefoed; April 2, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McEachen.

From the Ponca Journal, April 4, 1878.

One night last week some perambulating individual of a pilfering disposition, entered the cellar of John Krause of this place and stole his pork, hams, etc., making a clean sweep, not even leaving enough for breakfast.

J. W. Jones made a trip into the southern part of the county last week. He came to the Logan—couldn't get over—camped out all night—and had a romantic time generally. He was out showing a man some land.

On yesterday afternoon a half-breed named St. Cyr stole a pair of boots from Ford & Myers' for which he was arrested and huffed. During last night Deputy Sheriff Boyce of Elk Point, arrived in pursuit of the same man on a charge of horse stealing. Ford & Myers, having been reimbursed for their goods, refused to prosecute, and he was released. But Sheriff Jones immediately arrested him again, and he is now in the city calaboose awaiting requisition.

From Ponca Journal, April 1, 1880.

It is reported that from the first of May to June 1, no regular trains will be run between Ponca and Covington as at that time the workmen will be employed widening the track and remodeling the grade. Thus it would seem that for a time Ponca will not be blessed with railroad connection with the outside world.

When the two Indians convicted of murder in Dakota county are comfortably hung and thus disposed of, probably after they get into the other world, and have looked over the happy hunting grounds and made a claim, they will take some leisure day and start out to find who they have killed. And when St. Peter, after examining the records, tells them it was nobody at all they will feel disappointed and will consider that they have lived in vain.

There is no definite information yet as to when the boring for coal will recommence. There can be no doubt, however, that ere long the business will be started again, and when it is there will not be a shadow of doubt as to the finding of a valuable and paying vein of coal.

The Sioux City Journal of Tuesday states that on Monday a bridge building crew crossed over to the Nebraska side to begin work on the pile driving between Dakota City and Ponca. From all appearances our little pocket railroad will soon blossom out into a first-class institution.

RECALLED A JUDGE.

(Bixby in Lincoln Journal.)
 The mountain rough-neck had a grudge against the courts and laws; Said he: "I will recall a judge, Or perish in the cause."

He drew his gun and blazed away— His aim was not so "slow," For there is one less judge today, John Anderson, my jo.

ARREST AT RANDOLPH.

Randolph Times: Last Saturday night John F. Sides of Dakota City, U. S. deputy marshal, arrived in Randolph and quietly located Grover P. Miller of Harlan, Ia., who has been about Randolph for some three weeks. During the day advices from the U. S. district attorney at Omaha received by G. B. Wiley led to a call of the latter at the postoffice to find from what points Miller was receiving mail. This information led to telegrams and the visit of the U. S. marshal and the arrest of the Iowa man on an information charging him with what is commonly called "white slavery."

The count against Miller in the complaint is that he is alleged to be implicated with two or three others, in enticing Bissil Kinzie, aged 17, from Harlan, Ia., to Omaha for immoral purposes. This is the girl that was found in the Millard hotel at Omaha a few weeks ago in a locked room. The door was forced by the hotel authorities and the girl taken in charge.

Miller is a real estate man, is well supplied with money and at one time owned some land here it is said. Whether he is guilty of the serious charge against him or not is a matter that the courts will decide, his preliminary hearing having occurred at Tekamah Monday before the U. S. commissioner.

The following dispatch gives additional light on the matter: Omaha, March 18.—Grover Miller, Roy Murfield, Leo Van Gorkom, and George White all of Harlan, Ia., have been arrested on federal warrants charging them with enticing and persuading Rylis Kinzie of Harlan and Sheldon, Ia., to come to Omaha for immoral purposes.—The girl was found in a hotel two weeks ago.

Miller was arrested at Randolph last Saturday and the others were taken at Harlan. Miller was arraigned at Tekamah today and bound over to the federal court. The others were arraigned at Council Bluffs.

The arrest followed an investigation by District Attorney Howell of Omaha, and the discoveries made by a special federal officer from Washington.

POLITICAL ADVERTISING.

FRANKLIN C. HAMER.

Franklin C. Hamer, republican candidate for the nomination for state treasurer, is a native of Nebraska and a graduate of the State University. For twenty years he has been engaged in practical farming and in investment banking. Mr. Hamer has extensive farming interests in Lancaster, Holt and Lincoln counties, and to these he gives the attention of a man deeply interested in the production of agricultural wealth. He is interested in the American Safe Deposit Company of Omaha and Lincoln, which has the handling of large sums in money and securities for its customers. A large portion of these are the wage earners of those cities who find this company a safe advisor and guardian.

Mr. Hamer's thorough training in the investment banking business peculiarly fits him for the position of state treasurer, whose duties lie chiefly along the lines of investing the funds of Nebraska amounting to $10,000,000, in safe and revenue producing securities. In this line of endeavor he has been brought into close touch with the investment world, a thing needed by any man who safely and conservatively handles the immense financial resources of this state. He is thoroughly familiar with Nebraska needs and conditions, has the energy and ability to give the taxpayers a successful administration of the office, and is thoroughly in touch with the progressive sentiment of the republican party. It is not often that Nebraskans have an opportunity to vote for a native son of the state for an important state office, and less often for one whose training has so well fitted him for the position to which he aspires. Mr. Hamer is making an active, thorough and dignified campaign for the nomination and invites the closest scrutiny of his record as a business man.

Water as Food.

In the light of certain statistics given by W. J. McGee in the World's Work the old set-vice of "bread and water" does not, at all events, sound like starvation rations. For man and other animals water is the leading food. The average human ration is some six pounds daily, four and one-half liquid and one and one-half solid. A pound of grain is the equivalent of two tons of water used in the growing wheat and a pound of the equivalent of fifteen to thirty tons of water consumed by the bees steadily in the form of feed, and the adult who eats 200 pounds each of bread and beef in a year consumes something like a ton of water in drink and the equivalent of 400 tons in bread and 4,000 tons in meat, or 4,401 tons in all.

St. Mary's Catholic Church. (Rev. William Kearns, Pastor.) Next Sunday, Palm Sunday, Mass at 10:15 a. m. Blessing and distribution of palms before Mass. Rosary and benediction at 7:30 p. m. Sunday school at 8:30 p. m. Lenten devotions on Friday evening at 7:30.

German Evangelical Lutheran. (Rev. J. H. Karpenstein, Pastor.) Confirmation services will be held next Sunday, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m., when seven young people will be publicly examined, and on confession of faith received into the church. The names of the young people are as follows: Kamilla Jahnina Hansen, Aada Jaoki, Wilhelm Karl Heinrich Prdil of Wayne; Meta Clara Agnes Otte, Martha Marie Wagner, of Carroll; Herts Bruckner of Hoskins, and Sophia Elise Vollers of Concord.

On Good Friday there will be services in the afternoon at 3 p. m. Everyone cordially invited.

Presbyterian Church. (Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.) "The Meaning of Good Friday" will be the subject of the Palm Sunday sermon at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning. In the evening the pastor will give the second sermon on Genesis. The theme will be, "The World's First Tragedy."

Attention is called to the program of the Women's Presbyterian meeting which is held this week, Thursday and Friday, at the Presbyterian church. The evening services are open to all, and every one is cordially invited. On Thursday evening the Winnebago Indian quartet will sing.

The leader of the C. E. society next Sunday evening will be B. F. Seobada. The subject will be "A Bird's Eye View of Presbyterian World-Wide Work." Mr. J. Woodward Jones and Mr. C. W. Hiscox have been elected by the Presbyterian Brotherhood to represent them at a meeting of the Men and Religion forward movement, which is to be held this week at Omaha. The Wayne Choral Union is preparing an Easter cantata which will be rendered at a Union meeting on Easter evening at the Presbyterian church. The Union is under the leadership of Professor Alexander.

First Baptist Church. (Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor.) Worship and preaching both morning and evening. The morning sermon will be appropriate for Palm Sunday. In the evening, after a brief sermon, the ordinance of baptism will be administered.

All awaiting baptism are asked to be prepared for this on Sunday evening. The girls from the Sunday school will be baptised at the Sunday school hour. We are planning for an unusually delightful service Easter morning at which time we are to give the hand of church fellowship to a goodly number of new members.

Tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. M. Christenson, the Women's Missionary society will meet. At this time, the annual election of officers will take place.

On next Wednesday evening the covenant meeting will be held. This ought to be a helpful service, as it is the first of the kind we have had for some time. The missionary committee has charge of our young people's work for next Sunday evening.

We cordially invite you to come and worship with us.

First Methodist Church. (Rev. William Gorst, Pastor.) A little error crept into the figures regarding the number of invitations to the banquet. About 250 is the correct number and 170 were in attendance on Tuesday evening. Professor I. H. Brittel did splendid work as toastmaster and the addresses by Superintendent Hosman, Chancellor Fulmer and Judge John N. Dryden were very able throughout. Under high and very unexpected pressure from without Will Crossland appeared as a finished product of Nebraska Wesleyan university for a minute or two and spoke of the influences of the school over the lives of young people. No one was the least bit ashamed of the "specimen."

Several persons received the sacrament of baptism last Sunday morning. Four young people became members of the church on profession of faith and seven by transfer. The attendance at Sunday school reached 261.

Rev. A. S. Biel of Lyons, will preach both morning and evening next Sunday and the pastor of this church goes to Lyons. That is Norfolk-Wesleyan university day in Norfolk district and there will be an exchange of pastors throughout the district.

The second quarterly conference was held on Wednesday evening with District Superintendent Hosman presiding.

The women of the Foreign Missionary society have prepared a program of music, song and story pertaining to their work to be given in the church parlors on Tuesday evening, April 2, at 8 o'clock. This meeting is being held for the entertainment and instruction of every adult member of the church and it is sincerely hoped by the members of the society that the call will be heard and heeded by all. There is to be no price of admission nor any collection taken.

SERMONS ON GENESIS.

Last Sunday evening Rev. Alexander Corkey began a series of sermons on the book of Genesis. In a prelude to his sermon he explained in regard to the history and purpose of the Bible, contrasting the Old and New Testaments and showing the ripe fruit of the religious experiences recorded in the inspired Word to be Jesus Christ, whose perfection of character is now unaltered throughout the world. He declared that the purpose of the Bible was to reveal the connection which the world has with God, and teach men the true religious faith and the right human life of mortals, denying that the Bible was given us to teach geology, astronomy, or any other science, and ridiculing those who imagined there was a conflict between Scripture and scientific knowledge.

In setting forth the teachings of the Bible in regard to the creation of the universe, and the introduction of man upon the earth, the speaker declared the first chapter of Genesis taught the three fundamental truths of the pre-existence of God, the Creator, before the universe was called into being, the spiritual likeness between man and his Maker, and the sovereignty of man over the earth as God's vicegerent. The knowledge of these sublime truths gave man an intelligent outlook on life and destiny, and ritted him to seek and find his life in God.

In the subsequent sermons on this remarkable and most valuable book, Mr. Corkey will discuss the leading dramatic scenes connected with man's earliest religious experiences as recorded.

ARTIFICIAL CAMPHOR.

Man Does In Two Weeks What Nature Takes Two Years to Do.

Who, unless he be a chemist, would suppose that there exists anything in common between the camphor of the orient and the turpentine obtained from the pine tree in the occident? The two substances have no superficial resemblance, their very odors being different, yet chemically considered, there is very little difference between them. Turpentine is composed of ten atoms of carbon combined with sixteen atoms of hydrogen, and camphor has the same components, with the addition of one atom of oxygen.

The best natural camphor comes from Formosa, and the outbreak of the Russian-Japanese war advanced the price to such an extent that the chemists of the world were called upon to contrive a substitute. They soon decided that it would be more practicable to make an artificial camphor. Knowing turpentine to be the substance most nearly allied to it in chemical structure, a series of experiments on a very large scale was begun. A detailed history of these experiments would fill many volumes. Today from a determined quantity of turpentine was obtained a fourth part of the weight of pure camphor. The success of the experiments was first known when the odor of camphor issued from set combinations.

Today man can manufacture in the laboratory in fifteen days an amount of camphor which it takes a tree two years to produce. -Harper's Weekly.

BRANDED BRIDES.

Novel Betrothal Customs of the Natives of New Guinea.

So far as proposals of marriage are concerned, in New Guinea it is always leap year, for in that island the men consider it beneath their dignity to notice women, much less to make overtures of marriage. Consequently the proposing is left to the women to do.

When the ebony belle falls in love with a man she sends a piece of string to his sister or, if he has no sister, to his mother or another of his lady relatives. Then the lady who receives the string tells the dusky ushah that the particular damsel is in love with him. No courting follows, however, for it is considered beneath a New Guinea gentleman's dignity to waste time in such a pursuit. If the man thinks he would like to wed the lady he meets her alone, and they decide straight away whether to marry or drop the idea.

In the former case the betrothal is announced. The man is then marked on the back with charcoal, while a mark is actually cut into the woman's skin.

No breach of promise actions are possible in New Guinea, though if the lady is jilted her friends may hunt her lover up and "go" for him. On the other hand, if the dark damsel prove faithless she is liable to be beaten by her betrothed if he catches her. -Pearson's Weekly.

Old Furniture. The ordinary furniture polish, very useful when the furniture is comparatively new or well-preserved, will not always fill the bill. When furniture is old and badly scratched any desired shade of wood stain mixed with equal proportions of spirits of turpentine will bring back the original shade and newness. Be careful to apply the mixture very evenly, using preferably a flat bristle brush of rather small dimension. -National Magazine. A Shock. "Now, Henry," she began with a set jaw. "I must have $10 today." "All right," replied her husband, "here it is." "Gracious, Henry!" she exclaimed, suddenly paling. "What's the matter? Are you ill?" Thrilling Racing Drama. ### LINCOLN'S RETORT.

Caustic Answer to an Opponent at a Political Meeting.

Herdon, his law partner, tells the story of Lincoln's encounter with one Mr. Forquer, who had suddenly changed from the Whig to the Democratic faith and had been rewarded with a fat political office. Forquer had thereupon built himself an elaborate home in Springfield and over it had erected a lightning rod, the only one in the place and the first one Lincoln had ever seen.

Once at a political meeting Forquer set himself to "take down" the presumptuous young man of elongated stature and ready tongue. "His reply to Forquer," says Herdon's informant, "was characterized by great dignity and force. I shall never forget the conclusion of that speech.

"The gentleman has seen fit to allude to my being a young man, but he forgets that I am older in years than I am in tricks and trades of politicians. I desire to live, and I desire peace and distinction, but I would rather die now than, like the gentleman, live to see the day that I would change my politics for an office worth $3,000 a year and then feel compelled to erect a lightning rod to protect a guilty conscience from an offended God."—New York Post.

BETWEEN TWO VISITS.

The Great Change That Came Over the Poor Little Fat Boy.

Sir Francis Chantrey, the famous sculptor of Georgian days, whose bequest for the encouragement of art is now famous as the "Chantrey trust," is the subject of a very pleasing story told in Lady Chatterton's diary.

"Last week I met Sir Francis Chantrey and Luttrell at Rogers' house. Lady Luttrell, Mrs. Damer, Lord Lansdowne and Lord Glenelg were there. After breakfast Chantrey pointed out a sideboard and said to Rogers: "Do you remember a poor little boy in a common workman's dress who came one morning many, many years ago to take some order about that sideboard?"

"Yes, I do," said Rogers, "for I thought what a fine head and intelligent look the poor boy had."

"Well, he is the now celebrated sculptor, who not only goes to all the best houses in London, but gives parties that people are so good as to call pleasant, where all the highest and most intellectual people honor him with their presence. Can you guess who it is? Well," Chantrey added, "that cabinetmaker's apprentice was myself."

A Conscientious Jury.

On one occasion a native in Kafi, Hawaii, charged a neighbor out of a small sum of money. The community was indignant and determined that the guilty party should be punished. The day of the trial came; the testimony was conclusive; the judge closed his charge, reminding the jury that "it takes time to convict," for a three-fourths majority was required instead of a unanimous jury. It was thought that the twelve might decide in the box, but the Hawaiian likes form, and they gravely withdrew to the jury room. They were gone an unconscionable time. At length the judge, impatient, sent to find out what in the world was the matter and discovered this predicament: All twelve were for conviction, and no three could be induced to vote for the defendant.

Mending Screens.

Few repairs are more conspicuous or annoying than ugly patches on screen doors or windows. When a screen is broken first make the broken place a neat, trim oblong hole with wire cutters. Then from a piece of screen cut a patch two inches larger than the opening. Ravel the wires for half an inch all around this piece and bend the wires thus left at right angles. Holding the patch carefully in place, push the bent wires through the screen and secure the patch by bending the wires back evenly and smoothly. The patch will be hardly noticeable when completed.—National Magazine.

The Reason of It.

"Have you seen Joe lately?" "Why, yes. I saw the old chap yesterday. And, what do you think, he's going to be married." "Can it be possible? To whom?" "He's going to marry Mary Merrie." "What! Why, I didn't know they knew each other." "They don't. That's why they're going to be married."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Precise.

Footpad—Hands up! If you move, you're a dead man! Professor Yale—Pardon me, my friend, that statement is neither logically nor etymologically correct. Manifestly, if I move I'm a living man, not a dead man! Be a little more careful in your use of words.—Satire.

That Waked Him.

Diffident Lover—Do you know I actually dreamt that I proposed to you last night. Now—er—what can that mean? Practical Girl (promptly)—Mean? Well, it means that you are a lot more sensible asleep than you are awake, Freddy.

Didn't Appreciate It.

Mrs. Peck—Really, we never know who our best friends are. Peck—That's true. There's the fellow I won you away from. He hasn't spoken to me since.—Boston Transcript.

He only employs prejudice who can make no use of reason.—Cicero.

TAFT-ROOSEVELT POLITICAL BOUT

ROOSEVELT IN OHIO.
St. Louis City Journal: The Roosevelt sentiment in Ohio is something fierce until it comes to a real counting of noses. A meeting of the republican state executive committee was held the other day with sixty-two county chairmen present in person and thirteen more represented by letters, or telegrams. These committee chairmen, seventy-five in all, united in a hearty endorsement of the Taft administration and the president's candidacy for re-nomination. There were just thirteen county chairmen who were not represented at the meeting and who presumably can be counted in opposition to Taft.

INDICATES TAFT'S SUCCESS.
Lincoln Journal: The somewhat surprising outcome of the North Dakota primary confirms the impression that has been growing during the past month that Mr. Roosevelt's nomination for the presidency is impossible. Curiously enough, it is a sign of success for President Taft in the convention, even though he was hardly in the running in the popular voting. The Roosevelt movement may be revived in some of the primaries soon to come, but there is no doubt that it is at present making little forward progress. One certain result of the North Dakota voting will be the stiffening of the backs of the LaFollette people in Nebraska, and their refusal to retire from the field. In a three-cornered fight this state is likely to be for Taft.

MR. TAFT IN BOSTON.
Springfield, Mass., Republican: Really, it was time for William H. Taft to be given a taste of a rousing exhibition of the popular favor and acclaim. He got it in generous measure in Boston. It banished the smile from his face when he stood before the legislature and made him sober and foreboding beyond his wont. He was profoundly moved. The deeps are being touched in the man and the people. We have got down to discussion of the basic things in our government—which is incomparably the world's best exhibit of democracy today, despite all defects, as it was in the beginning. Thoughtful Americans will not lightly abrogate constitutional safeguards. Our legislative reporter, whose experience runs back over more years than he would care to have us tell, describes the president's reception in the hall of the house of representatives as unprecedented in its ardor, and the welcome is unquestionably genuine. The same story is told by the Boston papers of last evening. There can be no mistake about the facts and little room for debate as to the meaning of so exceptional a demonstration.

OUTSIDE OF POLITICS.
The Sioux City Journal believes if political considerations were cast aside entirely, ample ground would be left to explain the reason why popular sentiment is now moving against Col. Roosevelt. To put here is the Journal's editorial analysis: What quality in one man will most effectively earn the dislike of the 999. Egotism. The human instinct is to like a natural leader and to worship him when the normal process of events makes a hero of him. The public likes a leader who is self confident, but it has no time for vanity. Roosevelt, with his full complement of honors on merit, and the public liked and boosted him while he was doing it. Having got every honor that any other American, from George Washington down, had received, Roosevelt played his hand for more than it was worth. Had he been content to sit quietly in retirement it is possible the public might have come to him and demanded that he take more than it had ever given to another man. The moment he voluntarily reached out for more tens of thousands of his former friends wrote him down as an egotist—a man who believed that in himself alone lay the sole hope of the American people. The public doesn't like an egotist. It likes an opportunity to make its feeling known. The public is now making it known to Roosevelt, as it has to many a man before him.

There is one thing that men set great store by in making their estimates of fellow men. By and large they like a man whose word is as good as his bond, and they have little use for a man to whom a solemn pledge becomes a matter for reconsideration when profit seems to come with the breaking of it. A politician particularly may commit many sins and yet so long as his word is good men will have respect for him. Possibly this ought not to be the fact, but it is. Roosevelt gave his word not to seek or accept another nomination. When he threw his hat into the ring he broke his word. After he had done that all the king's horses and all the king's men could not repair the damage to Humpty Dumpty. In politics of our mainly mean do not like men to whom the short and ugly epithet can be applied and made to stick. They like a chance to take a whack at such men when they put themselves forward in public or private life.

It is not a matter of the head, but of the heart. Call it disloyalty to a friend and the sum of the offending is increased. Taft and Roosevelt were friends. They worked together for years with mutual loyalty. Then Roosevelt deliberately pushed his friend into a position where his need for loyalty was great. To match the long series of Taft's acts of loyalty to Roosevelt while Roosevelt was president, we cannot find one single instance of Roosevelt's loyalty to Taft while Taft was president. Instead we find a series of veiled hints of opposition, finally developing into the crowning act of disloyalty when Roosevelt became a candidate against Taft. The defender of Roosevelt may talk for hours explaining why Roosevelt was justified in withdrawing his support from Taft. Strong as he may make the case he never will be able to explain it satisfactorily to the man whose regard for his friends, as well as their regard for him, has been proof against mistakes and misfortune. There is much of that sort of friendship in the world. It is the salt of life. The man who has openly denied a square deal to his friend is not likely to get very far as an exponent of the square deal to the public.

Finally, there is the matter of sportsmanship. Theodore Roosevelt used to be a good sportsman. It was one of the reasons why everybody liked him. We didn't know then, but we know now he was only a fair weather sportsman. He played the game fairly and generously while everything was coming his way. When the exigencies of the case seemed to demand unfair tactics we find Roosevelt is not averse to using them. The man who cries "foul" and demands a change of rules when the contest is going against him has queered himself with real sportsmen.

T. R. AND THE PRIMARIES.
New York Evening Post: Mr. Roosevelt's pronouncements on presidential primaries is full of fire and fury. But let us see. The movement for direct primaries in general has been going on for a number of years, but it failed to interest him until the question came to have a direct bearing on his own fortunes. The idea of presidential primaries, on the other hand, is still very new, and the sum and substance of the colonel's arraignment of the president is that he has not rushed manly to the front to get emergency legislation enacted in every state where the proposal has been broached. It was all right to let the bosses have their way, to look upon direct primaries as a proposal of impractical dreamers, so long as there was merely a general principle involved; but now it is not only a crime to oppose them, or to oppose the latest developments of them—it is a crime not to throw yourself into the breach and get them at once, in the face of all obstacles. In this, however, there is nothing inconsistent. It is only now that the fate of the nation hangs in the balance, and of course to be indifferent to the fate of the nation is infamous. Does not President Taft see that circumvention or deliberation, which might be quite justifiable in ordinary circumstances, is inexcusable when it is nothing less than the interests of Theodore Roosevelt that demand immediate action.

THE UNEXPECTED.
(Bixby in Lincoln Journal.)
Great Roosevelt was running strong, All up and down the Jim,
When Bob LaFollette came along
The road and frightened him.
He pushed him down, he tore his shirt,
He smashed his silken tile;
He rolled him in the moistened dirt
For many a weary mile.

ROOSEVELT BOOM FAILS.
Denver Republican: The fact is that the third term movement has failed. There has been general recognition of this among politicians for a week or more. Even the warmest supporters of the cause have acknowledged it, some of them publicly. The expected recognition of Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy has utterly failed to materialize. The confident predictions that the people would rise up with hearty unanimity to approve the nomination of the ex-president have been dismally disproved. Where conventions have been held the sentiment has been all for President Taft. The primary vote has given the same results. Now the first state-wide popular vote is much more favorable to the moribund candidate, LaFollette, than to Mr. Roosevelt.

ROOSEVELT'S BLUNTNESS.
Sioux City Journal: Col. Roosevelt should withdraw as a candidate for a third term. His withdrawal would stop the publication of correspondence damaging to his reputation as a lover of truth and as an advocate of the square deal.
The following letter has been made public by the St. Louis Republic, the leading democratic newspaper of Missouri, which vouches for the genuineness of the communication:
White House, Washington, D. C., February 9, 1904.—William D. Miles, General Manager, Stock Exchange Building, 314 North Fourth street, St. Louis, Mo.—Letter of 16th with enclosures received. While the president thanks you for your courtesy, he strongly objects to his letter being published in whole or in part. If it should appear, he would be obliged to take steps to repudiate it. He trusts you will comply with his wishes.—William Loeb, jr., secretary to the President.

President Roosevelt had written something to the St. Louis man not intended for publication. It was something he was very much opposed to having passed up to his credit. Up to this point no ground for complaint is presented. The suppressed letter may have been a proper letter, and it may have been a proper request not to give the letter to the newspapers.
"If it should appear, he would feel obliged to repudiate it." That was the very important notice. It was not enough to make request that the letter in question be not printed. The big stick was shown and membership in the Ananias club was proposed. It may be presumed that copy of matter proposed for publication had been submitted to Washington, and that such considerate action is the "courtesy" referred to. But there is doubt in the mind of the chit whether a courteous request would keep the objectionable matter out of print and therefore the threat.

Mr. Roosevelt did not deny the authorship of the letter the man desired to print. But he said bluntly that if the letter was printed "he would feel obliged to take steps to repudiate it." He did not entertain doubt that his reputation would be accepted to the discredit of the man responsible for inviting it.
Col. Roosevelt may be the sufferer if this sort of thing is permitted to continue.

HAVEN'T THE PEOPLE RULED?
St. Louis Globe-Democrat: If the people haven't been ruling lately how about the seven years' tenure of the colonel and three years of the president he claims to have picked out. The colonel seems to be attacking his own practice and power of wise selection, while presenting himself for a re-election. But no matter. The republican party has always been greater than any man and will continue to carry on its affairs in its own way.

RETURNS TO LAUREL.
Laurel Advocate: Joe Larson arrived from Spokane, Wash., Friday to resume his old position with the Anchor Grain company, and J. L. Coon who has held the position during Mr. Larson's absence, will again work for W. A. Price. Mr. Larson says he liked it in the west, where he went to work in the Northern Pacific ships; but when the slack time came about the first of January, he, with about 1,000 other ship and train men, was laid off. There are too many men in the west wanting work and unable to get it, to suit Mr. Larson, when all he had to do was to come back here and go to work. Mrs. Larson and the children will probably not return for several months.

PIONEER DEAD.
West Point, Neb., March 25.—In the death of Mrs. Catherine E. Neligh, which occurred last night, West Point has lost its oldest resident. Mrs. Neligh was the first white woman to make her residence in what is known as Cumming county. She came here with her husband, the late John D. Neligh, the father and founder of the city of West Point, in the year 1856. She was 76 years of age at her death. Mrs. Neligh had the distinction of being the mother of the first white child born within the confines of Cumming county. Mrs. Alice Sims, now residing here, She is also survived by three sons, William T. S., U. S. Grant, and John P. S. Neligh.
"Aunt Kitty," as she was familiarly called, was a woman of remarkably gracious personality, the soul of kindness and hospitality, a favorite with all classes of the community, especially the children and young people.
