

TESTIMONY BEGINS IN THE FLEGE TRIAL

STATE'S WITNESSES CALLED

Summary of Their Evidence as Published by Sioux City Journal—Large Crowds Attend.

(Pender Special to Sioux City Journal) Pender, Neb., April 30.—Special: The taking of evidence was commenced in the trial of William Flege charged with the murder of his sister, Louise, today. The first witness called was A. S. Maskell, sheriff of Dixon county, who told of the situation of the Flege premises, and what he did after being called to the Flege home on the evening of the tragedy.

Fred Flege was called next and he testified as to the occurrences at the Flege home on the evening of the murder after he was notified of his sister's death.

The state attempted to show that all of the dead girl's estate had been turned over to the attorneys for the defense. In this it failed.

Henry Heinrichs was called. The old man has been a neighbor of the Fleges for thirty years. He gave the details of the visit of William Flege to his house on the afternoon and evening of the day his sister was slain.

Henry Heinrichs, Jr., was the next witness. He also testified to the two visits of the defendant to the Heinrichs home.

Heinrichs, Jr., was on the stand when court adjourned at noon, and after it reconvened he told about William Flege purchasing a revolver by sending to a mail order house; that on the day of the tragedy when he was at the Heinrichs home that his eyes were bloodshot and red, his face swollen and he appeared to be nervous.

New Evidence Related.

On cross examination by Mr. Berry for the defense the witness stated that on Friday before the death of Louise, William said to the witness, that he "expected" Louise would give him hell for being out so late, but that it would soon be over and he would be rid of her."

This was something that he did not testify to on the former trial of this case. But the witness could not give any reason for it only that he had not been asked before. Other discrepancies were called to his attention by reading from the record of the former trial.

The two undertakers, Beckenhauer and Gaertner, from Wayne, who prepared the body for burial, were the next witnesses. They detailed the occurrences of the night when they were called and also the condition of the body which had apparently been dead eight or ten hours.

Dr. Graham, coroner of Dixon county, was the next called and described the wounds and their nature and what he did in the way of examination of the body and holding an inquest.

The next witness was Ida Heinrichs, the young lady whom the defendant visited on the afternoon of Louise Flege's death. She told of his visit and of their going out to the road to the mail box and bringing the mail of the day in his auto, and various details. She stated that the defendant's eyes were bloodshot, face swollen and that he appeared nervous and looked at the ground.

The record of her testimony on the former trial showed that she said at that time that she did not notice anything unusual about him on that visit only that his eyes were red, and the same at the preliminary examination. She also told of his threatening to shoot some person at one time when she was riding with him after night in his auto when her brother was with them. She did not know who the person was, but it was somebody who followed them with a team and buggy for about a half mile. This was a new phase in her testimony, which had not been told before. She was asked why she did not tell that before but had no reason to give.

(Pender Special to Sioux City Journal)

Pender, Neb., May 1.—Special: W. C. Davenport, the Sioux City detective, was on the stand practically all afternoon as a witness for the state in the case against William Flege. He recounted his acts in his employment on the case and went over the ground as in the former trial. Every inch of the ground was contested by the defense. One of the first things done was to object to the presence of the bloody clothes before the jury, asking to have them removed. The judge took the clothes and laid them under his desk out of the view of the jury.

Davenport testified that the gun found on the Flege place and said to belong to the defendant had been recently fired from two of the cylinders, while the other three had not. On this point he was later subjected to a rigid cross examination by Fred Berry. The witness had also made reference to a bloody shirt which he had found and which belonged to William Flege. This furnished the subject for another grilling cross examination. The witness could not produce it and stated that he had delivered it to County Attorney Kingsbury.

A motion was then made by the defense to require the state to produce the shirt referred to if it was in existence. The motion was denied by the court.

Large Crowds Attend.

Large crowds are now attending the trial. Although it is a busy time, farmers are coming in from the fields, and business men spend all the time they can listening to the trial. This first witness after the noon hour was Justice of the Peace Meyers. Then followed Alex Holtz. The state attempted to prove by him that there was ill feeling existing between William Flege and his dead sister at a time when the witness remained over night at their home.

Much of the day was spent in tracing and identifying exhibits used in the former trial of this case.

The trial opened this morning with Herbert Heinrichs on the stand. Henry Heinrichs was also recalled for a few minutes.

John M. Hurley was next called. He is clerk of the district court of Dixon county, and he was called to identify certain exhibits, such as the gun and some other articles.

The jury was excused and several objections were made and disposed of. The principal objection was that as the death of Louise Flege was admitted and also that she died from gunshot wounds, it was not necessary to prove that point and that the exhibition under such circumstances of bloody clothing and guns and the like before the jury is said to be prejudicial. No final decision was made on this point.

Will Heller, a reporter from Omaha, came this morning to relieve the regular court reporter, J. B. Rossiter.

C. A. Kingsbury, county attorney of Dixon county, was next called and detailed his acts during the evening and night of the tragedy.

ORGANIZATION OF BASEBALL COMPANY

Those who subscribed stock for a baseball company met at the court house Friday evening to perfect the organization. The following officers who will constitute the board of directors and manage base ball affairs for the year, were elected: F. F. Strahan, president; C. M. Craven, vice president; P. H. Kohl, treasurer; J. J. Abern, secretary. The board of directors will meet soon to plan the course of the organization.

MAU-WELAND

A wedding took place at the German Evangelical Lutheran church Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when Miss Emma L. Wieland, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wieland, was united in marriage with Carl A. Mau, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mau, Rev. J. H. Karpenstein officiating, using the impressive ring ceremony. The bride was attended by Misses Alice Mau and Bertha Wieland, and the groom by Frank Klopning and William Wieland, Jr. Lohengrin's wedding march was played as the bridal party marched to the altar. After the ceremony the party repaired to the home of the bride, where a reception was held. The bride and groom stood under an artistic arch of pale blue and white, in the center of which hung a white wedding bell. After receiving the congratulations of their friends, a delicious wedding dinner was served to about sixty-five guests. The color scheme of blue and white with white carnations and ferns was carried out in the various rooms.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of pale blue messaline with a tulle veil, with orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of white carnations and ferns. Miss Alice Mau wore a lavender messaline and Miss Bertha Wieland a gray messaline. The groom and his attendants were dressed in the conventional black.

Mr. and Mrs. Mau will go housekeeping immediately on the farm of the groom's father, northeast of town, where the best wishes of their numerous friends follow them.

A great number of beautiful and valuable presents were received.

INDEPENDENCE DAY AS SEEN ON THE STAGE

JULY FOURTH BY WAYNE TALENT

An Army of Local Performers Witnessed by Crowded House—Attractive Specialties.

The opera house was packed last night to see the "Fourth of July" presented by home talent under the direction of Miss Chlorine Desart, and the scenes and performances shown were true reproductions of those that have been seen at the average old-fashioned Independence Day celebration. A profusion of national colors stimulated patriotism. Refreshment stands and vendors of toy balloons were conspicuous. The ladies' aid society served ice cream with customary enthusiasm. Ladies and lassies buoyant with the inspiration of Cupid, made love in the usual way.

Everyone who came along to greet Mrs. Nerxa Symptom was made familiar with her stock of ailments. At every celebration since the beginning of time her joyful habit of recounting personal ills has been exhibited by one or more.

Quire Appleby, widower, was on hand with his bevy of children, and was attracted by the favor of Widow Pinkham whose capacious and well filled lunch basket appealed strongly to the affections of her new-made friends.

All the members of the Jones family were present and attracted a good deal of attention. Rubie Cornstassel, leading a shy and verdant daughter, excited interest. A bridal couple was introduced at a suitable time. The groom was youthful in appearance, and of small stature. The bride was not so young, and towered majestically above her apparently willing captive. She was bewitchingly crowned. Judge Britton, in cognito, looked radiant and spoke beautifully, causing a tornado of applause.

Every participant in the Fourth of July burlesque deserves separate mention and praise. The costumes were appropriate, and the acting was good. The chorus, drills and specialties generally were woven in at frequent intervals, and all carried out their parts with the skill of professionals. The little folks in the introductory song, and the boys in "Souza's band" did well, and elicited hearty applause. All the little folks taking part behaved like grown people. The "see-saw" song with electrical effects was ingenious and interesting. Mayor J. H. Kate came out tonight as a baseball pitcher, and made an eloquent speech, substituting base ball lore for Fourth of July platitudes.

Clyde Oman was generalissimo of the army of performers, and gave introductions in lively and pointed fashion. From behind the scenes Miss Dysart directed the program, and had everything so perfectly arranged that there were no tedious delays. Mrs. Henry Ley, who promoted the entertainment, deserves appreciation for her untiring efforts. The net cash proceeds, amounting to $120, will be used to aid local baseball.

SOCIAL EVENTS

The P. E. O. society will meet next Monday evening at the home of Mrs. P. A. Theobald.

The Bridge Whist club did not meet this week. It will meet next week with Miss Reba Nangle.

The U. D. club met with Mrs. Huffer Monday afternoon, and discussed current events. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ray Reynolds.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stallsmith entertained a party of relatives at Sunday dinner in honor of the birthday anniversary of their daughter, Miss Clara.

Dr. and Mrs. Hess entertained the Misses Lulu Wilcox and Inez Clark, from Iman, and Messrs. Elmer Rogers and George Wilcox at a 6 o'clock dinner Tuesday.

The Tuesday club met with Mrs. Orlando Adams, and carried out the program published in last week's Herald. The next meeting, May 14, will be with Mrs. Phillee at Carroll.

The fourth and last lecture of the year before the Minerva club and its friends was given Tuesday evening at the home of President and Mrs. Conn. The lecturer was Miss Sarah Killen of the Art department of the State Normal, and her subject was "Symbolism in Art." It was a polished and illuminating address, greatly enjoyed by all present. Mrs. House, president of the club, introduced Miss Killen with the comment that it was customary to give the woman the last word. The last word was certainly a good one. At the close of the address Miss McBeth sang a beautiful solo, and was enthusiastically encored. After this, the guests engaged in a skittling contest. Refreshments were then served, after which the crowd dispersed.

Current events occupied the attention of the Acme club at its meeting Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. J. H. Briffall. Mrs. Raymond was the leader. The next meeting will be with Mrs. H. M. Crawford.

The Shakespeare club will be entertained by Miss Killen tomorrow evening. The members will attend the Passion Play to be given at the Normal chapel. The club will meet next week with Miss Wallace at the F. H. Jones residence.

The Monday club met this week with Mrs. Heckert and devoted the afternoon to the discussion of current events. At the close of the program the hostess served dainty refreshments. The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. H. Kate.

Mrs. C. A. Grothe and her mother, Mrs. Dean, entertained a number of friends Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. M. M. Buffington who is leaving Wayne for a year's stay in Clinton, Ia., where her oldest son resides. Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Buffington have been friends for over forty years. The occasion was also in honor of Mrs. E. Hunter who has recently returned from California after a year's absence, and who will soon go back there to make her home permanently. After a social afternoon, a two-course supper was served by Miss Maude Grothe and Miss Edith Larue. Those invited were: Mrs. M. M. Buffington, Mrs. E. Hunter, Mrs. R. Perrin, Mrs. A. J. Ferguson, Mrs. J. W. Mason, Mrs. C. O. Fisher, Mrs. W. O. Miner, Mrs. M. J. Reynolds, Mrs. R. Craven, Mrs. Bentley and Mrs. Horton.

BIBLE STUDY CIRCLE.

The Bible Study Circle had a very helpful meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dayton, one of Wayne's welcome newcomers. Mrs. Wendte conducted the lesson in a most pleasing manner, after which a beautiful and touching vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. Lewis. This "women and religion movement" has a grip on the lives of the woman of Wayne which is telling for purity and righteousness. After the meeting a May basket was planned for the blind family on Main street and many good things were taken to them in the evening. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Earl Lewis on College hill. All the ladies are invited to come.

MISS NEVA ORE CHAMPION SPELLER.

A certain list of seventy-five practical yet difficult words was recently given to the high school as a test in spelling. The average per cent made by the students was 79. The seniors averaged 85, the juniors 79%, the tenth grade 78 and the ninth grade 72. Neva Orr spelled every word correctly and has the distinguished honor of being the champion speller in the high school. Neva is a senior and a master of the art of spelling. The second highest grade was 97-13 by Dorothy Von Seggern. Nine pupils had above 95 and twenty-one had above 90.

The same list of words was recently given to 112 Kansas high school and college students and their average was 75 per cent. The list was also given to 116 Massachusetts high school students and their average was 89 per cent.

Next week results in the seventh and eighth grades will be reported with more comparisons on the results in the high school.

PRESIDENT TAFT WINS IN MASSACHUSETTS

MAJORITY OF ALL VOTES CAST

Though Gaining Preference, Roosevelt Gets Delegates at Large—Split Delegation.

Boston, May 1.—Additional and practically complete returns from yesterday's presidential primaries, giving the vote from 1076 out of 1080 precincts in the state show:

Lafollette (preference) 7,756.
Roosevelt (preference) 71,203.
Taft (preference) 74,808.
For delegates at large:
Baxter (heading Roosevelt group, 74,121.
Crane (heading Taft group) 65,876.

Practically complete returns from fourteen congressional districts show the complete Massachusetts delegation to Chicago will stand 18 for Roosevelt and 18 for Taft.

The result on district delegates gave Roosevelt ten delegates and Taft eighteen.

Does Not Claim Delegates.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., May 1.—Col. Roosevelt this afternoon renounced his claim to the eight delegates at large to the republican national convention elected for him in Massachusetts yesterday. He telegraphed that he would expect them to vote for President Taft, taking this action, he said, because of the fact that President Taft carried the state on the presidential preference vote.

May Not Accept Advice.

Boston, May 1.—After two conferences today, the eight Roosevelt delegates at large elected at the primaries yesterday to the Chicago convention decided not to take any joint action on the attitude adopted by Col. Roosevelt in releasing them from the obligation to vote for him, but leave each delegate free to act as he sees fit. A statement issued today by Mathew Hale, chairman of the Roosevelt committee, says:

"In view of the complicated political conditions following our state primary I decided to call a meeting of the eight delegates at large to discuss the situation. I had not then heard anything about Col. Roosevelt's statement regarding the delegates at large. The delegates who assembled here I believe saw the newspaper accounts of the colonel's statement.

Rescind Joint Action.

"With the knowledge on the part of each delegate that he had been fairly elected and squarely by a large majority over the Taft delegates, it was the unanimous opinion that they should stand together and vote for Roosevelt. Consequently a joint statement to this effect was signed by each delegate present.

"Later in the day and after carefully considering the position so forcefully taken by Col. Roosevelt, the situation was again talked over with the delegates, and they decided to take no joint action, but to rescind their agreement and leave each individual free to determine for himself the responsibility to his constituents and to act accordingly."

Bixby in Lincoln Journal: This is a small subject but an important one. The housefly is an emissary of the evil. It is the most detestable and dangerous winged insect in the world. It is unclean, unsanitary and unnecessary. It cannot be eliminated by resolutions passed by the city council and approved by the mayor. Much may be done by the systematic efforts of all the people to keep their premises free from filth and by swatting the insect on all convenient occasions. Burn the rubbish, disinfest garbage cans, and then use the swat-stick with vigor as occasion demands. One fly killed early in the season will prevent the appearance of many more as the season advances.

Travelers in two covered wagons, drawn by and followed by strings of bony horses, drove into Wayne Monday evening. Their appearance reminded one of earlier days when settlers often abandoned their claims on the frontier, and were seen working their way back to former scenes in conveyances that suggested disappointment and hard luck. Irving Auker, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Auker, was taken suddenly sick with appendicitis, while visiting at the home of his brother Willard, early Saturday morning. His parents were notified, and Drs. Blair and Zoll were summoned. The doctors pronounced the case one of appendicitis, and advised an operation without delay. The boy was taken to a Sioux City hospital by his parents Sunday morning, and an operation was performed by Dr. Sibley in the afternoon. Mrs. Auker remained at the hospital with her son, while Mr. Auker returned home Monday afternoon. The boy stood the operation well, and is recovering satisfactorily. Mr. Auker says he has had five surgical operations in his family, three of them for appendicitis.

Among the many young men in this part of the state whose training in the Nebraska Normal College helped toward a successful business career. Mr. Nangle sang with excellent interpretation and beautiful voice 'Peace, Be Still' and the 'Gospel Railroad.'

Miss Beva Harris a member of the senior class of 1912, has received notice of her election in the primary department at Ponca, Miss Harris is a graduate of the Ponca high school and her selection for this responsible position is evidence of the high standing she enjoys among the people of her home town.

Miss Sterling graduated from Ponda, Ia., high school before enrolling in the Normal, and she is exceptionally well qualified both in scholarship and leadership to direct the work at Hoskins.

The school of 1912 are pleased to know that Hon. Richard L. Metcalfe of Lincoln has accepted the invitation to give the commencement address on May 29. ## The Poet Philosopher

Our country's headed for the dump, we see her finish clearly; thus orators, upon the stump, assure us most sincere

THE BOW-WOWS old maxims of our duds are mostly all forgotten; we're merely here to get the seeds and all our ways are rotten. And when our fathers played the game they heard the same old story; our government was halt and lame, that was conveyed in glory. Their fathers heard the same old bunk while yet the land was fruitful, farmers' teeth in verbal junk more eloquent than truthful. It was the same in ancient Greece and Egypt, too; I'm thinking; farmers howled for the police and said the state was sinking. And so the prophet of despair can't get me much excited, let him rear up and paw the air and say the hand is blighted; let him conduct his holy war to better our condition, and show us that we're headed for the bow-wows of demanition; I've heard that hoary yarn too much—that sort of language bosh is; so I'll dig round to beat the ditch and plant my snuds and squashes.

This is the season of sassafras tea! Granny is sure it's a wonderful thing; twenty-five gallons she poured into me, I say, it cures all SASSAFRAS TEA the humors of Spring. "Sassafras tea is a sure and a fact," so all the eminent scientists say; "he'll will it banish a pain or an ache, it is as good as in broth made of hay." "Granny knows better, she's old and she's wise, she has seen mortals both come and depart, all of the lore of the world's in her eyes, all of its kindness is stored in her heart. Granny has seen the long march of the years, years which have scattered the snow on her head, granny has known much of laughter and tears, granny has closed the dim eyes of the dead. What do I care what the scientists say? Granny is ancient and wondrously wise; granny is brewing a potion today—tea before which every malady flies! Here's to old granny, her hope and her pills! So I shall swallow with evident glee, whether it cures me or whether it kills, twenty-five gallons of sassafras tea!

No bard embalms the copious song, few people praise or toast him; what ceter he does is always wrong, so we unite to roast

THE POLICEMAN him. He is the butt of hoary jests—canst name the time he wasn't? We damn him if he makes arrests and damn him if he doesn't. We cuss him for his daily sins, with criticisms haunt him; for every peeler should be twins—he's never where we want him. We blame him if some schoolboy hits our precious little Willie; we blame him if the cat has fits or if the cow goes silly. We roast him from his crown to feet, the custom is contagious; and still the cop walks his beat, calm, patient and courageous. He guards the traffic in great style from blockades and congestions, and answers, with a kindly smile, five million silly questions. When those who roast him daunted stand, in times of strife and riot, he takes his life and club in hand, and scraps for peace and quiet. He hunts the bad man and the yegg, he walks all night with dangers, and gets a bullet in the leg pursuing heady strangers; he seeks in dark and noisome lairs the burglar who eschews him. And in our cozy rocking chairs we sit up and abuse him.

"Come hither, little Mary Ann," the doting mother said; "I have about three quarts of jute to put upon your head. I see THE PROUD MOTHER the neighbors' daughters go to school fixed up so fine, and I won't have it said, my dear, that you are not in line; so let me kalsomine your face with pigments rich and rare, and put some red paint on your lips and cook and curl your hair, and push you in a narrow skirt that shows your every curve, so you will get from rubberneck the notice you deserve. And you must wear your snowy shoes that advertise your feet, and eke the crazy hat that scares the horses on the street. For I won't have the neighbors say that my dear little maid is not as good as any or as stylishly arrayed. Of course you don't look like a child with all your paint and curls, but you're up-hoistered just as well as any other girls; of course you cannot run or play, as children used to do, but we must show the neighbors' girls they have no edge on you; of course, you're like a monkey, dear, of course it is a shame; but since the neighbors turn out apes, I have to do the same."

The time has come when chickens scratch the stuffing from your garden patch and cause resentment warm. The man who owns a bunch of CHICKENS hens should keep them shackled in their pens or give them chloroform. For hens have caused more strife and stress, and broken lives and bitterness than any thing on earth; one hen can bring more grief and care and wretchedness and black despair than all known hens are worth. Our village once was sweet and calm, and every sorrow had its balm. We never heard a wail; there was an atmosphere of peace, we had no use for the Police, and no one was in jail. Then some one started keeping chicks, and soon we all were throwing bricks and leading riot acts, and when the court we stood in line his honor sprung a heavy fine when he had learned the facts. Disgust is brooding on our brows, we spend our time in raising rows, with voices and with pens, we shake our fists and deal in threats, assassinate each other's pets—and all because of hens. Because of hens, a million jays are cussing daily, fifty ways, and raising grievous howls. A law must soon be written down prohibiting the folks in town from keeping feathered fowls.

The man who really likes to labor, white'er the tool that he employs—the hammer, frowl, pen or sabre—will find this life replete THE GLAD with joys. But sorrow TOILER looms, up grim and bulky, to him who holds that toil is woe, whose head is sore, whose face is sulky, whose feet are twelve degrees below. The willing worker doesn't languish among the waiting unemployed; his cottage doesn't rock with anguish, his ladder knows no aching void. I hired a man to wash my surrey which got all muddy in a ditch; he gave up all his time to worry over vices of the idle rib. He boomed away like some pipe organ denouncing this and roasting that, and throwing things at J. Pierp. Morgan and every other plutocrat. And so I fired him through the transom when he had jagged for half a day, and hired Jim Briggs to wash my hansom, and rid its shining wheels of clay. With noble ire he never bristled, his soul with sorrow wasn't sour; he merely rustled round and whistled, and cleaned the blamed rig in an hour. And old Jim Briggs is always busy, for men who want a useful hand just chase him round till they are dizzy, and hand him coin to beat the band.

WORK OF THE PRIMARY.

Lincoln Special to Monday's Omaha Bee.—With enough of the primary returns known to indicate who is nominated, about the only ones who are taking any interest in the affair are the ones whose duty it is to complete the official results and some who have been studying out the workings of the present law. The practically universal comment is that the law, in its operation has proven too cumbersome, but when it comes to providing a remedy they all confess their inability, at present, at least, to prescribe. Wherever politicians gather, however, it is generally conceded that some move along this line is practically certain to be made when the next legislature meets and they are hoping that between now and then some one may be able to evolve a workable plan.

Another thing connected with the primary is becoming apparent. When first returns came in, the general comment was that under the present system, the many who were unwilling or unable to spend a large amount of money in a campaign of advertising and personal solicitation, stood no show. Results in this respect are somewhat mixed, but as the expense accounts are filed and compared with the names of successful ones this claim is not so clear. The men who spent the largest amount of money were not nominated, but one thing in this direction does stand out and that is that a candidate who without the expenditure of considerable money would not have attracted any considerable number of votes, can by liberal expenditure make it decidedly uncomfortable for others. There are several such instances in the recent primary campaign.

In the democratic camp it is common talk that both Bryan and Senator Hitchcock came out of it considerably disfigured politically, for certain it is that neither obtained just what he wanted, though both are sent to the national convention. The lineup of all Bryan's intimate friends with Wilson, taken with the sorry showing that candidate made in the primary, has been the cause of many wry faces in the Bryan camp. On the other hand, Hitchcock's favored candidate did not make a much better showing. Hitchcock's man did capture some delegates, but Bryan had the satisfaction of heading the poll in the list of delegates. The result of the contest for governor, taken in connection of the injection of the liquor question into the campaign by the successful candidate, is also causing many democrats in this section of

It is hoped the youth of the land will not follow the Roosevelt leadership in manner of condemning others. And parents and teachers should keep up training along lines of civility notwithstanding the late conspicuous example of vituperation and mud.

Champ Clark's managers made an intelligent and convincing campaign for support in Massachusetts by flooding the state with copies of the "Houn Dawg" song. It is evidently regarded as the most powerful thing that can be used to prove qualities of surpassing statesmanship.

The Massachusetts democrats took to the "houn dog" song like cats to fresh milk. Copies of it were generously distributed over the state, and accordingly the voters went to the polls with big support for the Missouri candidate, satisfied with his proof of statesmanship.

If a man reads the newspapers he is apt to have formed an opinion that disqualifies him as a juror in a murder case. If he doesn't read, and is therefore better able to qualify as a juror in such a case, has his mental machinery had sufficient practice to grasp the facts and determine from the evidence what is essential and what is unimportant?

A lecturer before the Omaha Theosophical society Sunday, said Christ would soon return to the earth to unite the world in a "brotherhood of religion—brotherhood of man." of the anti-administration agitators by saying that they contained evidence that would sustain Roosevelt in his dispute with the president over the harbor trust.

Columel Roosevelt's advice to give the Massachusetts delegates at large to President Taft in view of the fact that he carried the state, though losing the men put up for his delegates, was what would be termed "good politics" and will tend to soften the asperities of the conflict, although the action was the only one that could have been taken to carry out the policy of letting the people rule.

The primary system is subjected to a good deal of criticism as a complicated, cumbersome, expensive and useless piece of machinery by which to make nominations. Thousands of voters, unacquainted with candidates, merely guessed as they followed the long column of names and indicated their preferences. Everybody regards the primary in its present condition unsatisfactory, and no one has thus far been able to figure out any change that would make it practical. It will long continue a live subject for legislatures to deal with, and every succeeding session will doubtless make changes in an effort for improvement.

The Sioux City Journal whose editor, George D. Perkins, is one of the soundest and ablest men in Iowa, has good reason to feel well satisfied over that state's action in following a course in support of the national administration and against the insatiable political ambition of Senator Cummins. In former campaigns Cummins has been able to arouse enough support to have his own way. This time the Cummins candidacy failed to cause any excitement even on the plea for "state pride". The senator has apparently lost strength, while Editor Perkins whose political attitude has always been consistent with solid reason and enduring progress, is forging to the front in popular esteem.

His Rare Old Painting. Speaking of fake antiques and forged paintings of art amateur said: "There is an American who bought a Raphael in Rome, some years ago. The Italian law prohibits the exportation of masterpieces, and the American had the happy idea of getting the Raphael painted over. This was accordingly done. The rare old painting reached New York in the guise of a modern snow scene. Then the restorer, under the watchful owner's eye, set to work on it. With a sponge dipped in turpentine he proceeded to rub the snow scene off. He sponged it off readily, but he sponged a bit of the Raphael off, too—and, behold, underneath the Raphael a portrait of Marconi was revealed."—Washington Star.

The Dutch at Church. Men still wear their hats in church in many parts of Holland. Moreover, smoking in church is not considered irreverent by the Dutch when service is not in progress, and the ministers themselves indulge in this practice. Altogether, according to a recent visitor, "the Dutchman has a very comfortable form of religion. You keep your hat on in church and that saves you many a chill; you talk freely and in your natural voice, not in a whisper; you have a neat housemaid in a white cap and apron (and nothing is more cleanly and charming than a Dutch servant maid) to show you to your seat or to offer you a chair; you have nice drab pews of painted deal all around you and a cheerful two-decker pulpit above."

Slow Development in the Child. Remembering that Balzac, Walter Scott, Daniel Webster and the great educator, Froebel, were counted as dullards in their youth, the importance of allowing certain minds a slow development is manifest. SHIP CARVING.

An Art That Went Out With the Old Wooden Warships.

An almost forgotten profession is that of ship carving. For many centuries down to the beginning of the nineteenth, the ornamentation of vessels, especially men of war, was profuse, intricate and florid. The carving on the United States line of battle ship America, launched in 1782 and presented to France, will give some idea of the extent to which this was carried.

The figurehead was a female figure crowned with laurel representing America. The right arm was raised, pointing to heaven. On the left arm was a bookler with a blue ground carrying thirteen stars. On the stern of the ship under the cabin windows appeared two large figures in bas-relief representing "Tyranny" and "Oppression" bound and bleeding on the ground. On the back of the starboard quarter was a large figure of "Mars." On the highest part of the stern appeared "Wisdom" and above her head an owl.

Philadelphia furnished not only the greatest ship designer in the United States, but also the best ship carver in the world, William Rush. In this field he was without a rival, and to a wonderful technical skill he added an artistic sense of beauty and genius for composition.

He was the first carver to give an idea of life and motion to a ship's figurehead. Each of his figureheads was either the lifelike representation of a person or some symbolic conception expressed in exquisite carving. His most noted productions were "Nature" for the Constellation, the "Genius of the United States" for the frigate of that name and "The River God" for the East India ship Ganges. These figureheads were nine feet high and could be removed for repair or in action.—Harper's Weekly.

A SARTORIAL TRAGEDY.

The Lady Accepted a Flower and Lost Her Beautiful Figure.

In London Truth of March 8, 1877, Henry Labouchere told this story of a toilet calamity due to the feminine fashion of those days:

At a dinner party given lately in Paris one lady was remarked above all others for the elegance of her figure and the perfection of her toilet. During the mauvais quart d'heure before dinner she was surrounded by a host of admirers, and one less bashful than the rest ventured to offer her the flower from his buttonhole. It was accepted, but as the "princess robe" worn by the graceful creature was laced behind it was necessary to fasten the flower to the front of her dress with a pin. The operation was successfully performed, and the fair lady was led to dinner by the donor of the flower. They were hardly seated when he heard a curious sound like the gentle sighing of the wind, and on turning toward his partner he saw with horror that the lovely figure was getting "small by degrees and beautifully less." The rounded form had disappeared before the soup was over, and long before the first entree the once creaseless garment hung in great folds about a sergery framework! It seems that the newest dresses for light ladies are made with air-tight linings and inflated until the required degree of bombonnet is attained. The unfortunate lady mentioned above had forgotten this detail when she fastened the fatal flower to her bosom with a pin; hence the collapse.

A City of the Dead. Bath, from which city Dickens carried away the immortal names of Pickwick and Snodgrass, holds relics of the master. His tobacco jar and beer jug are still piously preserved at the Saracen's Head. But, though Dickens wrote gloriously of Bath, he never really liked the place. "Lander's ghost goes along the silent streets here before me," he writes in 1868. "The place looks to me like a cemetery which the dead have succeeded in rising and taking. Having built streets of their old grave-stones, they wander about, scarcely trying to 'look alive.' A dead failure."

Read Only Women Authors. Misandry occasionally has its uses. A Russian lady, Mme. Kaissavoff, who died in 1901 in St. Petersburg, would not allow any book written by a man to enter her house. She was, however, a voracious reader and wealthy enough to satisfy her cravings in this direction. On her death her library was found to contain nearly 18,000 volumes, all written by women. This was said at the time to be the most extensive collection of this kind ever formed.

HUNGRY FOR SHIPS

Goodwin Sands. In the North Sea, Swallow Them Pitilessly.

SCENE OF MANY TRAGEDIES.

These Greedy Shoals, That Mock Man's Efforts to Tame Them, Once Gulped Down a Fleet of War Vessels With Over a Thousand Officers and Men.

From the steep rough shore of Deal, overlooking the ship swallowing Goodwin sands, many of the pilgrim fathers embarked for America, and their descendants, in visiting or leaving England, travel through the famous downs from which their stern progenitors set sail in search of perfect liberty. The Goodwins were then in the heyday of their evil reputation, and for unnumbered years they have been as much the graveyard of the narrow seas as Sable Island is of the Atlantic ocean. With fervent thankfulness the pilgrim fathers say the last of those notorious and fat-reaching shoals, which break the vicious seas in gales and make them surge and roar like rapids and which, faithful to their treacherous character, appear on bright summer days as restful as golden plains, with blue and glorious rivers running through the countless channels.

Ships of battle, treasure ships, Indian with precious cargoes and emigrant ships have sailed as far as the Goodwins and there have been engulfed. Most travelers who skirt the coast between the Forelands see the gaunt remains of melancholy wrecks.

The romantic tale is told that the Goodwins were at one time a beautiful and fruitful island, the estate of Earl Goodwin, but that in 1097 they became a vast shoal because of "a turbulent rate of rain and an unheard-of rage of the sea." The island disappeared and became "incredibly covered with sand." That has been the tradition for many centuries, and less than 200 years ago there was an alchemist-keeper who declared that his oak-leaf shingle was made from a tree which grew on the Goodwins when they were an island.

A clerical investigator, however, who knew the publican sorrowfully classed him as a lying fellow. Although the tradition is generally credited, it seems far more likely that the Goodwins are formed by the strong run of the tide down the North sea and the tide up the strait of Dover, the two meeting off the Kentish coast and sweeping vast quantities of sand in a whirlpool shoal.

In those days of lumbering sailing craft, when vessels were completely at the mercy of the weather, there was little hope of keeping clear of the Goodwins, unless the sands could be discerned and wind and tide were favorable. Every gale that blew gave tribute of life and vessel to the shoals.

There have been memorable disasters in recent years, even since steam became almost universal for marine propulsion, but the most noted calamities relate to the days of sail. Of all that have been put on record, none is more terrible than the annihilation of an entire fleet of warships in the storm which devastated England in 1703. Thirteen warships anchored in the downs were swept from their moorings. Some were driven ashore. Five, including four sail of the line, were hurled toward the Goodwins and dashed to pieces. Nearly 1,100 officers and men perished, yet a handful were saved and brought to shore by men of Deal and Ramsgate and the little havens of the coast.

'Tis the hard gray weather breeds hard Englishmen. The hardest and gravest British weather is that of the North sea. The Goodwins are at the southernmost part of the North sea, and there on the coast line overlooking the sands men battle ceaselessly with one of the sailors' most pitiless enemies. The Goodwins cannot be coaxed or engineered into submission.

They flout mastery and scorn domination and in their essentials remain what they have been for centuries. Man has tried repeatedly to bribe them, to find a foothold on their slinking bases. More than 300 years ago a scheme was formed to build a beacon or a lighthouse on the Goodwins, but it came to nothing. Long afterward attempts were made to raise a lighthouse, but the work was never finished. In 1841 an old ship was scuttled and was made a dead weight with ballast. A mast was put in her and bore a beacon, but only for a time. The greedy Goodwins swallowed all.

The only way to conquer the shoals is to gird them with buoys and lightships, and that has been so well accomplished that in fine weather the sands are marked as clearly on the dial of a watch. But fogs make beacons useless, and so rapid is the run of the sea in the swashes or channels of the sands that even in clear weather an experienced pilot may not get his vessel safely through the indicated tracks.—Walter Wood in Harper's Magazine.

Our Islands in the Pacific. The United States is in possession of a number of scattered small islands in the Pacific, some of them really nothing more than barren rocks or coral reefs. Over these comparatively worthless insular possessions the American flag has been raised from time to time as a matter of form. Up to this time they have been found of no practical value and for the most part are uninhabited. In fact, few of them are capable of producing enough to sustain inhabitants. Among the largest of these Pacific islands are Christmas, Gallego, Starbuck, Penrhyn, Palmyra, Phoenix, Howland, Baker, Johnson, Gardner, Midway, Morel and Marcus. The Midway islands are occupied by a colony of cable telegraphers and electricians. They are in charge of the relay in the cable line connecting the Philippines with the Pacific coast. This colony is composed of about forty persons.—New York Times.

A Bold Bet.

In Thomas E. Farish's book, "Gold Hunters of California," is a yarn about the biggest gambling Mr. Farish knew of in that time of big betting: "A man of the name of Moore had been betting and lost over and over sums aggregating several thousands of dollars on the game of faro. Finally, as he turned to leave, the dealer asked, 'Are you through?' Moore halted, hesitated, then, turning and taking from his pocket a key, held it up and said, 'I will bet you everything in my safe, which this key unlocks, on the ten.' 'How much is in your safe?' inquired the dealer. 'I do not know, but it is a large sum. If you win take the key, open the safe and secure all the money you find there. If I win we will go to the safe together, turn the money, and you must cover the amount,' was the answer. The challenge was accepted, the bet made, and Moore won something over $47,000."

Pigg Pye.

What strikes the reader of the ancient books on cookery is the mention of whole pigs, whole oxen and so on. "Piggs" was a very fashionable dish and was cooked in many ways. Here is a recipe from "Dyverse Baked Meats," a fifteenth century cookery book: "To make a Pigg Pye: Take a pig and scald it and slit in the middle and take out the bones, season it with pepper, salt, cloves and mace and nutmegs. Chop sweet herbs fine with the yolks of two or three eggs and some plumped currant. Then lay the one half of the pigg into the pye, and the herbs and currants and salt over it and some butter. Then lay the other half of the pigg on top of thatte, and the rest of the herbs and currants on the top with some butter, and so bake it, you may eat it hot or cold."

He Translated It.

The general manager of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was riding in a freight engine on the Cumberland division of that road a short time ago. The train was a heavy one, made up of refrigerator cars loaded with the maximum tonnage for the engine. As they approached a grade the engineer leaned over to the fireman and yelled: "Warm her up, old tallowpot, warm her up. Slam a potpie into her so she'll be kish-to take the big dip for the knob." "Will you kindly translate that for me?" asked the manager. "Why sure," said the engineer. "I told him to slip somechow to her so she'll rattle-dazzle the bump." Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Curbing Her Tongue.

"What if I do get my sentences mixed up?" asked the wife. "Anybody can understand with any sense what words mean." "Not always, my dear," explains the patient husband. GOATS—AND INSURANCE.

You'd Hardly Think the Two Were Related, but They Are.

Everybody knows something about insurance. Almost everybody carries some—life, accident, fire, fidelity, plate glass, partnership, burglary, marine or what not—and many occasionally find the payment of the regularly recurring premiums a heavy tax, however greatly they may appreciate the advantages of holding the policies. Everybody knows something about goats, but few would think of associating goats with insurance or of acquiring goats with a view to reducing the amount of their premiums. Yet a large contracting firm in Kansas City keeps a herd of Angora goats for that very purpose.

The company's yards cover many acres of ground, and the buildings and other equipment thereon represent an investment of several hundred thousand dollars. When the yards were first established the weeds and other vegetation on the property were considered by the underwriters to be dangerous fire hazards, so much so that the rates charged were almost prohibitive. It was agreed, however, that if the weeds were kept down the premiums would be greatly reduced.

But the cost of mowing the weeds and cutting down the undergrowth would have been in itself no inconsiderable item in the yearly budget. The company accordingly bought a flock of Angora goats and turned them loose in the extrahazardous yards. The goats now keep the yards cropped as close as a mowed lawn and not only save the firm a large amount annually in fire insurance premiums, but thrive so well on the objectionable vegetation and multiply so abundantly that they have actually returned a considerable profit on the amount of the company's capital that their purchase represents.—Detroit Free Press.

DYNAMITE ACCIDENTS.

Some of the Stuff May Remain After a Charge Is Exploded.

It is generally supposed that when a charge of dynamite has exploded it is all over—that the entire charge has been consumed.—said a "hard rock" man who has worked in mines, in river tunnels and other places where high explosives are used. "This supposition, however, is not correct," he continued. "Sometimes particles of dynamite will be blown out with the broken rock. Then it becomes a menace to the workmen. It is a favorite practice of men who are waiting or resting to sit on a pile of 'muck,' as the broken rock is called, and to jab into it with a pick or a candlestick or some other steel thing, much the same as a Yankee will whistle while he talks or thinks. If the steel strikes one of these bits of dynamite that has not gone off, because the glycerin in it has started to run or because a fragment of it has been crystallized, there will be an explosion. The chances are that not one of the group of men sitting around will escape injury.

"Another frequent cause of accidents is that sometimes when the dynamite explodes and tears out the rock a small quantity of it will be left in the bottom of the drill hole, unaffected by the shock. At the drill hole that remains happens to be pointed in the right direction a lazy drill runner is likely to take advantage of it and start his new hole in the old one in order to make a record or save time. The instant his drill commences to thud on the unexploded dynamite it goes off. The steel is driven back through the barrel of the machine, wrecking it and usually killing the drill runner. This explains many mysterious deaths that have been attributed to 'missed shots.'"—New York Press.

Original of Sam Weller.

The original of Sam Weller was Sam or Samivel Vale, who was well known as a London comedian who acted in the farce called "The Boarding House" and subsequently at Covent Garden theater. Sam Vale was noted everywhere for his Wellerisms, such as "Come on, as the man said to his tight boot." "I'm down on you, as the extinguisher said to the candle." "Where shall we fly, as the bullet said to the trigger." and "Let every one take care of themselves, as the donkey observed when dancing among the chickens." Sam Vale died in 1848.

Clean Monday.

Clean Monday is peculiarly a Grecian institution. It is the day that ushers in the great Lenten fast at Athens and the people go holiday making to eat Lenten fare on the hills around the city, while the shepherds and country people dance the ancient Greek dances in the old temples. This practice is termed "cutting the nose of Len."—London Telegraph.

Some Are So by Nature.

A certain young man, who prided himself on a brusqueness that he mistook for wit, met an eminent, but touchy, sculptor at a studio supper. "So you're the chap," he said, on being introduced, "that makes mud heads?" "Not all of them," the sculptor replied, quietly.—Youth's Companion.

A HUSBAND'S DUTY

He Owes It to His Family to Have His House in Order.

PROVISION FOR THE FUTURE.

A Few Very Sensible and Very Practical Suggestions to the Man Who Doesn't Stop to Think About What May Happen When He is Gone.

There are any number of men who are the most indulgent of husbands and fathers, providing a good living for their families and who yet live up to the limit of their incomes, with never a thought for the future and never an effort to protect their loved ones and their homes in case of their death.

To such men, as well as to those who are provident, but who keep putting off the arrangement of their business affairs to meet such an emergency, the following sensible suggestions by Willis Frederick Dix in the New York Independent may be of interest.

Is your house really in order? Outwardly, perhaps, yes, since your wife is a good housekeeper, but how about your own personal affairs? Your lawyer has perhaps drawn your will for you, and your personal accounts are businesslike, but have you looked that will over recently, and in the case of your death is there some one in your household who is sufficiently familiar with your account book to understand your system?

Have you tried to imagine just what condition would exist in your family immediately after your death, and have you carefully provided for that condition? These and a number of similar questions must be answered satisfactorily before you can say that your house is really in order.

The following are a few practical suggestions which, if you think them over and act upon them, may be the means of saving you or your family from some seriously inconvenient plight or actual trouble and loss.

First of all, make a point of keeping your wife or some member of your household familiar with your system of personal accounts. Let her know where your safety deposit box is, where you keep the key, where your letter file relating to these business matters is kept and just what your relation to your business is. You know it is quite possible that you will die sometime.

Keep your fire insurance policies in your safety deposit box, where they will not be burned with your house, and keep in the same package with them, plans and specifications of your house. So that the fire insurance companies can know definitely just how much it would cost to replace it. With your furniture insurance policy, keep a detailed inventory of your household effects, with statement of their values. It would be impossible for you to do this from memory after the goods have been destroyed, and much needless trouble would necessarily ensue without such a list. And don't rely wholly upon your agent to renew your policies as they expire. Keep a list of the dates of expiry in your account book, where you will see them frequently.

Suppose you should be run over and killed today. Have you looked into the law of your state to ascertain whether or not your safety box would be sealed, and if it would be sealed are there any documents in it which your family would need before it were officially opened by your executors in the presence of a state officer? Your executors may take a year to settle up your estate. How about ready money for the use of your family?

When a man draws up his will it is seldom that he appreciates the fact that his cash in bank and the interest accrued on his investments up to the date of his death become principal and cannot be used by his family to pay their current expenses following his death.

An excellent way for a man to be sure that his family, upon his death, will have ready money at once, free from all complications, is to take out, in addition to his regular insurance, a policy for say $1,000 or $2,000 in favor of his wife or some member of his family.

This sum will have nothing to do with the legal formalities necessary in connection with the settling up of the estate and can be immediately collected and put in use.

Pistoles and Doubloons.
The pistole was much used in Spain and Italy. Originally equivalent to about eleven old French livres, until about 1730 it seems to have been merely an irregular piece of gold. In common with the moidore, the sequin and the doubloon its value varied at different times and in different countries, usually being, however, about $3.75.

A Southern Antidote.
If Americans need an antidote for restlessness they can find it among the mountaineers of the south. It is said that when a native is asked to hurry he replies, "Don't forget there's a whole day tomorrow 'tain't been touched yet."—Detroit Free Press.

Dutch Etiquette.
In Holland etiquette demands that an unmarried woman walk on the right of her escort, while a married woman takes her husband's left arm.

Lost time is never found again, and what we call time enough always proves little enough.

CHURCH STEEPLES.

And the Ancient Mountain Peak Shines of the Storm God.

There is a theory which finds the spire of the New England meeting house in the mountain peaks of Arabia.

Tracing back the process of evolution we come first to London, where the clean sweep of the great fire gave Sir Christopher Wren his opportunity to experiment in steeples, and then Venice, where the campanile is a shining example of a tower beside a church, but separate from it, and then to Alexandria, where the famous light-house on the isle of Pharos contributed to the religion of Mohammed both the form and the name of the minaret, and then to the tower of Babel at Borsippa and the zikkurats of the temples of Babylonia and Assyria. A zikkurat is a huge quadrangular mass of brick, rising in diminishing stories as a child places a big block on the floor and puts a smaller one on it and on that a smaller still—and ascended by a winding balustraded stair to a shrine on top.

This, according to the theory, was the ritual equivalent of a mountain. Into the flat lands between the Tigris and Euphrates came the ancestors of the Babylonians and Assyrians out of the mountains of Arabia. There they had worshipped the storm god, who dwelt upon the heights among the clouds, with whom they communed like Moses, by climbing up and making their offerings and saying their prayers upon the summit. And because there were no mountains in their new country they erected beside every temple a little mountain in the yard. Thus the zikkurat, and then the minaret, and then the campanile and then the steeple of the parish church—George Hodges in Atlantic Magazine.

TANGIER ISLAND.

Where the People Do Without Lairs, Lawyers, Horses and Cows.

There is a little island in Chesapeake bay, 125 miles south of Baltimore, where the world has stood still for more than a hundred years. Tangier island is five miles long and much less than a mile wide, but more than 1,500 people live on it. There is only one street, nine feet wide, without sidewalks, and the houses are all built along this street with narrow canals of the deep water of the bay between each two houses. There is only one church, presided over by a Methodist minister, and only one doctor, and there is no cemetery, the dead of each family being buried in the yard. There is no newspaper, no jail, no lockup and no lawyers nor any need for them. Everybody is deeply religious, and profanity is punished with a fine imposed by the deacon of the church.

The men go fishing and crabbing in sailboats early on Monday mornings and do not come home until Saturdays, when they have marketed their sea harvests in towns on the mainland. There are no gardens, no horses or cows, but plenty of chickens are raised. Food is supplied to the islanders by sloops, which come every month or so loaded with wood and anchor oil. Tangier, sending small boats piled with cordwood and kindlings to every house by means of the little canals. The women are customers and go to the mainland, and there is an organ in nearly every home. Tangier was first settled by white people in 1696 and before that time was occupied by the Indians.

Barring the Evil Spirits.
The Chinese believe that evil spirits are able to move only in straight lines and that they cannot penetrate through solid matter, therefore the problem of keeping them out of a dwelling, or a garden seems to them a simple matter. On passing through the entrance of the ordinary middle class home in China it is necessary to turn to the right or left because of a fixed screen, the purpose of which, according to Popular Mechanics, is to keep evil spirits out. Likewise just at the back of the entrance to a walled garden may sometimes be found another wall erected for the same purpose.

Love Matches.
"I argued and wrangled about love matches with Miss Marie Corell one whole day in her old fashioned Stratford house," said a prominent woman magazine writer, "but she rather got the better of me at the end with an epigram."
"She who marries for love, Miss Corell said, enters heaven with her eyes shut. She who marries without love enters hell with them open."

Mixed Metaphors.
"Jorkins certainly did get all mixed up when somebody asked if he hadn't some unpleasant family secrets hidden."
"What did he say?"
"He said he was ready to admit his family had their skeleton in a closet and would make no bones about it either."—Baltimore American.

Perilous Comparison.
"Now," said the professor of astronomy, who was trying to be entertaining, "the most beautiful star I know of is—"
"Be careful, professor," whispered the hostess, "the lady to whom you are speaking is a prima donna."—Washington Star.

A Closed Mouth.
Man is a good deal like a fish. You know, the fish would never get into very serious trouble if it kept its mouth shut.

Order and falsehood cannot subsist together.—Carlyle.

STORIES OF O. HENRY.

A Promised Visit and the Droll Way It Was Evaded.
Wherever one goes one hears a story of the late O. Henry, the writer. Every one in magazine circles hereabouts knew him, and most had had a personal experience or two. Somehow every story illuminates the man. They are not merely humorous tales, but through them one catches a glimpse of his characteristics, his broad humanity or his generosity or his love of the city. Robert H. Davis, the magazine man, related that on one occasion he went a-visiting with O. Henry down on Long Island.

"It was a very hot day," said Davis. "We had climbed an everlasting hill. Another greater hill stretched before us. The sun was a disk of brass, and dust and heat and clicking insects rose from the ground. We sat on a fence to rest."

"Is there anything else I can show you?" I asked him.

"Yes," said Henry, wiping his forehead. "Show me a return ticket to New York."

"On one occasion he had promised to spend the week end with Gilman Hall at his country place in Jersey. Mr. Hall had invited him several times. When Henry finally accepted Hall gave him the most precise directions.

"Take a 9 o'clock train on Friday afternoon," said Mr. Hall, "and I will meet you with the carryall at the station."

"At 11 o'clock on Friday morning Mr. Hall was called to the telephone in his country home. The boy at the railroad station droningly informed him that there was a telegram for him, signed 'O. Henry.'"

"Read it," commanded Mr. Hall, and the boy's sleepy voice buzzed over the wire.

"New York," he read. "Twenty-third street station, Western Union Telegraph company, 10.30 a. m. Addressed, Gilman Hall, Far Out, N. J. Dear Hall—I have missed the 9 o'clock train. Signed, O. Henry."

"Neither Henry nor Hall ever referred to the telegram or the evaded visit in subsequent talks." New York Letter to Cincinnati Times-Sit.

Musical Troubles.
Little Harold had just begun the study of music, and a visitor asked how he was getting along.

"All right," he replied, "only I have trouble with the sharks and flaps." Chicago News.

Right in His Line.
"Mistress—Why, Norah, what are you doing on that policeman's knee? Norah—Sure, mum, he's a restin' me!"—London Tit-Bits.

AT OPERA HOUSE.

In introducing Elwin Strong and the "Cry Baby" company to the patrons of the Wayne opera house on the night of May 6, both management of the house and company desire to personally guarantee this production, not only as being a new one but far better than any attraction seen here this season. The "Cry Baby" is not a farce as the name might imply, although full of bright, sparkling comedy, which is interwoven with pathos and mystery through the four acts of one of those intensely interesting stories of the west, founded on facts, which carries with it the same atmosphere as that well known play, "The Virginian" to which it has been compared by many. The management of the company is in the capable hands of Walter Savidge, well known throughout the middle west, who has surrounded the popular young actor, Elwin Strong, with an entire cast of carefully selected players, and who has spared no expense in making the "Cry Baby" a scenic as well as an artistic dramatic production. The title of the play originates from the fact of a whole-soul, big-hearted creature of circumstance, whose ready sympathy and tenderness of heart caused him to break down and cry like a child after being forced to kill a man in self-defense. The love of this rough westerner for a mother whom he has never known, and the working out of the usual love affair without which no play is complete, leads up to amusing situations and thrilling climaxes seldom seen in one evening's entertainment.

THE TEST THAT TELLS

Is the One of Time. Wayne People Have Made this Test. Years ago this Wayne citizen told in a public statement the benefit derived from Doan's Kidney Pills. The statement is now continued—the testimony complete. Instances like this are numerous. They doubly prove the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills. Can any Wayne reader demand more convincing proof? It's Wayne testimony—it may be investigated. Mrs. J. C. Hansen of Wayne, Neb., says: "I have no reason to withdraw anything from the public statement I gave three years ago recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. I had a serious attack of kidney complaint and I suffered terribly from headaches, dizzy spells and tired, languid feeling. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I had a dull, heavy ache through my loins. In a few days after I began the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, I felt better and improvement continued until all the symptoms of my complaint disappeared." Beware by all dealers. Price 25c.

Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other. Henry Ferris, Hadar, Neb., is the father of ten children and for the past twenty years has used Foley's Honey and Tar Compound with the best of results. He tells us: "I think Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is the best cough medicine in the world for I have used it for the past twenty years and can recommend it to anyone needing a cough medicine." Shultheis Pharmacy. Sometimes it occurs to a boy when there are weeds to pull or chores to do, when he ought to be fishing or playing ball, or marbles, that no one understands a boy, and he retires behind the woodshed to tell his troubles to Towser. Perhaps, he thinks, the dog understands; at any rate, it does not make unreasonable demands. But the boy is understood pretty well by us older folks, and, although we conceal it pretty well, comes the same feeling to us occasionally. It is a peevish feeling, based principally on the fact that we can't have our own way, and boys have it more than men. It is well to break it to the boy gently, but he must learn. Few, if any, have their own way for long, and it may be a pretty good rule: it might not be a good way if they got it. James C. Dahlman, serving his third term as mayor, Omaha, Neb., again was successful in receiving the overwhelming support of the voters in the primary election. He also successfully rid himself of a bad case of kidney trouble by the aid of Foley Kidney Pills, and writes: "I have taken Foley Kidney Pills and they have given me a great deal of relief, so I cheerfully recommend them." What Foley Kidney Pills have done for Mayor Dahlman they will do for any other person bothered with backache, rheumatism, or any other form of kidney or bladder trouble. Just try them for quick and permanent results. Shultheis Pharmacy. PROBATE NOTICE TO CREDITORS. In the county court of Wayne county, Nebraska. In the matter of the estate of Maria Brudigan, deceased. STALLIONS

We will have the usual number of big ton draft stallions at our barns in Carroll this season, consisting of Percheron, Belgian and Shire; also a good French Coach stallion.

It pays to raise the best; good-draft horses never were higher than they are this spring, and in spite of all talk to the contrary, good heavy drafters will remain high priced.

Wayne county is noted for heavy drafters and we are doing all we can do to better them.

Call and see our stallions and get our terms.

SWAT THE FIRST FLIES.

Beatrice Express: The State Journal does some fearful and wonderful figuring regarding our well known pet—the housefly. The Journal starts with one papa and mama fly today and traces their progeny as far as July 4, before which time the mental powers of the writer become unable to keep up with the pace and the figures cease. The Journal says two industrious flies on the premises today will have increased by May 1 to fifty children besides the old folks—fifty-two in all; by May 10 there will be 1,352; May 20, 34,476; Memorial day, 863,500 flies; ten days later, 22,000,000 flies. At this stage the Journal writer's mind begins to wobble and he loses count, but gasps out that by July 4 there would be so many flies the number could not be printed in the limited space at his disposal. To make it worse, he states that each fly who attends strictly to business is capable of transmitting 100,000 bacteria and the sum total of said bacteria would be amply sufficient to contaminate all the milk bottles and all the food supplies in the state with a few to spare to the neighbors. Then along in August, and the fall months the typhoid fever epidemics would begin. The Journal man's scientific deductions may be correct and they may not, but we can easily discern his moral—swat those first two flies found on the premises today, and the next two and the next if possible, and the task next July will be materially lessened.

Many men who favor equal suffrage probably feel that they don't dare tell their wives so.

A man isn't permitted to fight a woman, which is one reason the men are abused a good deal.

First Baptist Church. (Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor.) Next Sunday is communion Sunday. We want to give the hand of church fellowship to those who have been received since last communion Sunday. This service ought to be the best attended during the month.

Last Sunday evening a splendid crowd of young people were present at the service. Good interest was shown. The young people's society as a power is indeed very great. Our prayer meeting is a good place to come to. Our meetings are full of helpfulness and inspiration. The subject for next Wednesday is "The Abundant Life."

On tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at 4 o'clock the Boy Scouts will meet at the church prepared for a hike into the country. We want every Scout present as this will be an important meeting.

Sunday evening at 8 o'clock there will be regular preaching service.

We are always pleased to greet strangers at our services.

Presbyterian Church. (Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.) Next Sabbath morning will be communion service, and a service for the reception of new members. The subject of the pre-communion address will be "Is His Place Vacant?"

In the evening the pastor will speak on the forces back of the men and religion movement. The subject of his sermon will be "Religion, a Man's Job."

Miss Edna Neely, president of the C. E. society, will lead the prayer meeting next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. The topic will be "Unselfishness, a Christian Virtue."

The Junior meeting at 3 o'clock will be led by Mae Hixon.

The Sunday school begins at 9:50 a. m. and the morning service of worship at 11. The evening preaching service is held at 8 o'clock.

The ladies of the Women's Missionary society joined this week in sending a missionary box to Laos, Asia. The gifts were mostly small articles that the missionaries could use in appealing to the natives.

The Women's Missionary society will hold its regular monthly meeting next week on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. S. Ringland. The leaders are Mrs. Corkey and Mrs. Schroer. Siam and Laos, and Cuba and Porto Rico will be discussed.

First Methodist Church. (Rev. William Gorst, Pastor.)

Dr. C. N. Dawson and Will Crossland were in Wayne a part of last week and over Sunday in the interests of the Nebraska Wesleyan university. The former occupied the pulpit at the M. E. church Sunday morning. They made only a partial canvass in the interests of the endowment fund and others will be seen and have an opportunity to aid in this great enterprise.

The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church composed of an equal number of ministers and laymen, sent up by the annual conference in all parts of the world, went into quadrennial session for a month at Minneapolis yesterday morning. This is the legislative body of Methodism, making laws for the government of the church in all of its enterprises throughout the world. For a month the eyes of all reading and thinking Methodist Episcopal people will be eagerly turned toward Minneapolis.

Next Sunday the pastor will not preach, but instead the pulpit will be occupied by Miss Jennie Borg, a missionary for years in Chungking, China. Miss Borg arrived in this country on the 18th of March. She is in close touch with the Chinese situation. The occasion of her visit to Wayne is her attendance on the district convention of the W. F. M. S. whose program is given below.

Another able speaker will be here for Friday evening—Mrs. Mary Mauck Romick, until recently a field secretary for the Fisk National Training school for deaconesses, at Kansas City, Mo. Mrs. Romick comes under the auspices of the W. F. M. S. of Norfolk district whose annual convention program is given below. The public is cordially invited to attend all of the services of these conventions and those who do so will be richly repaid.

WAYNE PASTOR IN OMAHA.

Tuesday morning's Omaha Bee has this to say of the lecture of Rev. Alexander Corkey in Omaha Monday evening. The feature of the rally was the lecture by Dr. Alexander Corkey of Wayne upon "Bible Literature in the Public Schools." Dr. Corkey laid particular stress upon the fact that the bible was one of the volumes used in the earlier schools of this country, and that a careful dissemination of biblical facts and extracts is far more useful to the scholar than many of the useless branches of the curriculum taught nowadays. Dr. Corkey compared the relegation of the Bible from the schools to the liner Titanic which sank with only sufficient life-boats to save one-third of the passengers on board. He said that instead of numerous luxuries the boats should have on board plenty of life-saving appliances, and the schools should have more bibles instead of fads and fancies, which are forgotten after commencement.

MAIDEN SPEECH.

Fremont Tribune: Dan Stephens delivered his maiden speech in the House the other day. He took for his text the parcels post to which was attached the question of good roads and some features relating to the responsibility of newspaper publishers. According to wireless reports received from Washington, the maiden effort was a pleasing one. The speaker lammed right through it and made his points so clear the thickest-headed member could understand, and he was given a respectful hearing, which is not always a dead certainty for those who get sail in a high wind. Now that he has broken the ice it will be easier for him to say "Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen" with less of the tremolo effect and the Congressional Record will probably contain more paragraphs preceded by "Mr. Stephens." The Third district member is a lovable fellow and his colleagues naturally desired to hear him sing. But the words he uttered have started something. In favoring a parcels post he has set the retail merchants of the district in motion. But he knows farmers are most numerous and he doubtless figures that the "greatest good to the greatest number" is pretty safe doctrine, if only the farmers will be as cohesive as the merchants. At any rate it is a pleasure to note that they quit singing that "Houn Day" song long enough to listen to Dan.

SPOTS ON THE SUN

They Indicate the Aging of Our Orb of Life and Light.

THE GREAT SOLAR TRAGEDY.

A Grim Play In Which the "Star" is Fighting For Existence, Has Absolutely No Chance to Win and Whose Death Means the End of the World.

Life is a tragedy, the earth a stage,
men and women the actors, the "gods"
the audience. Some pessimists believe that this great play of life is more comic than tragic in the opinion of the spectators.

However this may be, there is another, vastly greater, tragedy of life at which man himself is an onlooker, although, unfortunately, his own ultimate fate is bound up with the denouement of the play.

It is the life drama of the solar system. Its chief actor is the sun, and men are beginning to rub their eyes and wipe the specks from their glasses as they perceive more and more plainly indications that the "star" of the play is aging.

The fact is becoming only too clear that for him this is no sport, but real, deadly tragedy. He is not acting a part, but fighting for life. He cannot win; he can only prolong the struggle, and when he falls exhausted the stage,
the theater, actors, spectators, pit and galleries will go with him in one universal ruin.

Until recently we were only troubled a little in mind by the sun spots. It was evident that they must cut off some radiation, but the amount appeared to be trifling, and their maxima are far apart, ten or eleven years. But now we are confronted by a much more disquieting phenomenon. The sun appears to "fluctuate" at irregular intervals of several days and sometimes of several months.

Here is the crux of the whole matter. What does the recognition of the fact that the sun is a veritable star mean? What may it mean to the earth and its inhabitants? These questions can best be answered by considering other veritable stars.

Let us take an extreme example.
There is in the constellation of the Whale a famous variable star known as Mira the Wonderful. In a period of about ten months on the average it changes from the third—sometimes the second—magnitude to about the ninth and then back again.

That means, in the extreme, a probable difference of between two and three hundred times in the amount of light and heat which it radiates around it at maximum and at minimum.

When it is faintest it cannot be seen with the naked eye; when it is brightest it is a conspicuous object. As it fades it turns reddish in color, and when it brightens it blazes with brilliant spectroscopic lines.

It is probably a sun at least as great as our sun, and it has recently been found that its spectrum resembles in some striking peculiarities the spectra of sun spots.

Did it ever have any worlds to light and nourish? If so think of the condition of those worlds now.

A sun is like a living organism—it wears out. As it ages it becomes more and more variable. It maintains itself and its planets white its radiant power lasts, but it cannot do so forever. It contracts, flickers, struggles, fades and goes out. Its lifetime is millions of years, but it has an end.

"Let us account as a mere nothing," cried Bossuet, "everything that ends, for, though we should multiply years beyond the reach of numbers, yet all would be nothing when the fatal term is reached."—Garrett P. Serviss in New York American.

Ham Experts.

In certain watering places of, Europe men make fortunes in ham shops.
There is said to be such a shop in Carlsbad, where a man in white garments slices the lean Prague ham or the fatter Westphalian for the people who are at the springs. It is said that none there are really judges of ham until they can argue every morning outside the shop for a quarter of an hour as to what breed of pig gives the most appetizing slice. At Martenbad the representatives of the most exclusive circles of society in the world
lunch on lean ham.—Argonaut.

The Sign of Equality.

Robert Recorde introduced the sign of equality into algebra. Recorde was the first English author who wrote on the subject of algebra. In his treatise called "Whetstone of Witte," published about 1557, he says: "To avoide the tedious repetition of these words, is equale to, I will sette, as I doe often in worke use, a paire of parallel lines of one lengthe, thus: =, because no 2
thynges can be more equale."

Evarts and Reed.

William M. Evarts once met Thomas
B. Reed in the capitol at Washington and said to him, "Mr. Speaker, I half suspect that you believe that a deliberative body is like a woman—if it de-liberates it is lost."

CHICAGO IN ITS YOUTH.

It Got One Weekly Mail, by Horseback,
From the East in 1832.

Extracts from the first city directory of Chicago reprinted in the Record-Herald show, for the most part, a feeling of satisfaction in the compiler. The directory appeared in 1844. "Our common schools," he writes, "are worthy of special notice." Regarding entertainment for the stranger within the gates, he is able to note definite improvement. Whereas, "In early times our luns were miserable in the extreme," now "we have eighteen hotels and houses of public entertainment, many of them large and splendid establishments, not inferior to any in the west."

He hazards a prophecy which has been more than fulfilled when he says:
"We have four large packing houses,
and all of them have done a heavy business thus far. The pork packing is only just commencing, but will, it is thought, be extensive."

The progress that had been made in postal facilities is shown by this record: "A weekly mail from the east was received here on horseback in 1832.
The next year it was received in a one horse wagon weekly. In 1833 a two horse wagon was substituted. In 1834 a four horse stage line was established semi-weekly; tri-weekly in 1835.
In 1837 there was a daily eastern mail.
There are now received and made up
at this office forty-eight mails weekly, and the receipts of the office amount to about $10,000."

In one or two respects the narrator cannot speak so cheerfully. He is compelled to acknowledge a debt of $8,977.25. He adds, however, that "The credit of the city is now established upon a permanent foundation and cannot easily be shaken." But for the stage he sees no immediate hope.
This is his plaint: "Our theater—a very pretty one—has been in operation the past season and met with some encouragement, but it must be confessed that at present the prospects of the drama are not flattering."

PERILOUS POSING.

Setting "Human Interest" in the Camera Man's Pictures.

A. W. Dimock in Outing tells of his engagement as a professional disturber of snakes, lynx, alligators, tarpon, etc., for his camera man and of a partial trowning necessary to supply the "human interest." To quote him:

"When a coiled rattlesnake needed stirring up I shook a short stick in his face. If we caught a big gator or crocodile on a bank I was the one to keep between it and its home. In river or bay, and discourage with a club its advance. When our captive lynx was let out of his cage to pose it was my business to keep him busy with fish or otherwise lest he eat the camera man.
I was expected to hypnotize any bird, from a tern to a turkey buzzard, while the camera man got in his work.

"Even tarpon fishing was made adventurous, and half a dozen times a day I heard the shout:
"Can't you pull your canoe nearer the fish? I must have human interest."

"Then I dragged on the line till the canoe was over a fish that was bigger than I, which often shot ten feet over my head, sometimes crashing into the canoe, when instead of being promptly rescued I was likely to hear the call:
"Swim farther out, where the light is better."

TWO DORE SKETCHES.

One That Was Stolen and Another
That Was Confiscated.

While Gustave Dore was at Ischl and wandering about the mountains he became much interested in a country wedding and sketched it on the spot.
He put the sketch in a book in the pocket of his palatoc and went back to the hotel to dinner. After dinner he looked for the sketch. It was gone.

Angry at the theft, the artist called the landlord and made complaint, but no trace of the book was found. From Ischl Dore went to Vienna, and there he found a letter and a parcel awaiting him. The letter, which was anonymous, read thus:

Sir, I stole your book at Ischl. The sketch was so charming that I could not resist the temptation of having it in my possession, and I knew very well that you would never consent to sell to me. But there is neither my trade nor my habit, and I beg you to accept as a souvenir of my crime and my enthusiasm for your talent the walking stick which will reach you at the same time as this letter.

The cane was a massive one with a gold head, in which was set a gem of value.

On another occasion the artist lost his passport while on a tour in Switzerland. At Lucerne he asked to be allowed to speak to the mayor, to whom he gave his name.

"You say that you are M. Gustave Dore, and I believe you," said the mayor, "but," and he produced a piece of paper and a pencil, "you can easily prove it."

Dore looked around him and saw some peasants selling potatoes in the street. With a few clever touches he reproduced the homely scene and, appending his name to the sketch, gave it to the mayor.

"Your passport is all right," remarked the official, "but you must allow me to keep it and to offer you in return
one of the ordinary form."—New York

From the Ponca Journal, May 6, 1880:

The rainfall in Nebraska has been smaller this spring than at any corresponding time since 1875. The papers in all parts of the state are bemoaning the lack of moisture to start the crops.

The Review says that Mr. James Crawford of Wayne county, met with a severe accident last week. While adjusting a chain to a harrow, his team started, catching his hand in the hook, tearing off the second finger of the left hand at the first joint and badly mangling the other three. The wounds were dressed and are getting along as well as could be expected in a man of his age, he being upwards of 70.

Saturday was May day. It was a beautiful, sunny day. It is pleasant to have the most charming month in the year commence so agreeably. Among the many changes and improvements for the better which we may confidently expect this month, will be the rebuilding and widening of the railroad and the putting on of new and elegant cars, so that passengers can ride from Ponca to Covington by rail without blushing over the trifling little boxes and toy engines, which like a train of slow-going tumble bugs, have heretofore trundled up and down the road.

From the Ponca Journal, May 9, 1912: The village schools commenced on Monday. The higher department is kept in the hall of Hurley & Richards. Mrs. Bigelow, the teacher of the higher department, and Miss Tabor of the primary, have full schools and both are highly spoken of by the scholars in attendance.

As the supreme court has in its late decision virtually declared that the railroad bonds of Dixon and Dakota counties are utterly void, would it not be well for the receiver of the C. C. & B. H. R. R. to take the proper steps to deliver the bonds to those counties? By that act of justice he would do much to gain friendship for his road, and the benefit would be seen when the road is extended.

The county commissioners at their meeting this week, ascertained that the outstanding warrants of the county amounted to $5,790.36. The amount of taxes on hand and to be collected is probably double that amount. Under these circumstances warrants should be worth at least 95 cents on the dollar.

J. Allison, defendant, the object and prayer of which is to obtain a judgment against you, the said C. J. Allison, in the sum of $500 and interest upon a contract for the exchange of real estate, mutually entered into by the said Arthur G. Adams and the said C. J. Allison, and on the same date, filed an affidavit for attachment and obtained an order of attachment against your property, subjecting the same to the payment of the claim, alleged to be due in said petition, which order of attachment has been levied upon the following described property in Wayne county, Nebraska, to-wit: Lots 15 and 16, in block 1, East addition to the city of Wayne, Nebraska. You are required to answer said petition on or before the 20th day of May, 1912.

Rumors of Approaching Weddings. We should not be surprised if wedding bells should ring in Carroll in the near future. Dame Rumor has it that the single life does not appeal very strongly to certain of Carroll's young people. From the changes of residence to take place during this summer it would seem that there is some truth in the Dame's story.

School Students Want a Picnic. The pupils of the Carroll school are anxious to have a picnic at the close of school and in connection with the picnic have a track meet and baseball game between the high school team and the boys of the Welsh settlement. We believe that something of this sort would be a very proper thing. After the pupils have worked hard all year one day off will do them no harm and will create a new school spirit. The school spirit here is not what it should be in this respect.

Six-Thirty Closing. The two hardware stores and lumber yards have agreed to close shop at 6:30, beginning on May 6. A movement is on foot to have the other stores close at an early hour also. This is a good plan. Friends, if you were the clerk in one of the general stores, would you like to sit and wait in the evening until ten o'clock just to see if someone would come in with a dozen eggs or to purchase a nickel's worth of candy? The patrons will purchase just as much at the store if it closes at 6:30 as if it closed at 12, so why keep the tired clerks up at the store when they need an opportunity to get out in the fresh air?

For Mr. and Miss Lundquist. Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the Methodist church occurred a reception for Mr. and Miss Lundquist who leave our city for Marcus, Ia. About 125 people gathered at the church for a social hour with the esteemed young people whom we so greatly regret to see leaving our community. Mr. and Miss Lundquist have always stood for the very highest and best things in the community and the place they leave vacant will be hard to fill. It is not flattery to say that we have never met young people with more sterling qualities than these people possess. Mr. Lundquist has purchased an interest in the bank at Marcus and finds it necessary to move there in order to look after the business. We cannot recommend them too highly to the people of Marcus. Carroll and community send their best wishes with them.

The contract is with the Redpath people who put out an exceptionally strong course. Entertainments such as these will be a certainly a benefit to any town or community, and decide even now to help Mr. Brakemeyer support the course.
