SOCIAL EVENTS

The Tuesday club will meet next Saturday with Mrs. Alice Phillo at Carroll, and carry out the usual program.

The Bridge Whist club met Tuesday evening with Miss Reba Nangle. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. William Mellor.

Mrs. Charles S. Beebe will entertain a party of lady friends tomorrow in honor of Mrs. E. Hunter who soon leaves for California.

The P. E. O. society will hold a business meeting at the home of Miss Ruth Bressler next Monday evening. A number of new members will be initiated.

The Acme club will have its annual picnic supper at the home of Mrs. Walter Weber next Wednesday. The members will invite their husbands to join them in the picnic.

Mrs. Roscoe Jones entertained a party of young lady friends at a three-course dinner Thursday evening at her home three miles south of town. The evening was spent in general sociability.

The "Workers" of the M. E. church will have a party this evening at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Lutgen. Each member will bring a lady friend. This event is given in honor of those who will soon leave Wayne.

The Shakespeare club met Tuesday evening with Miss Nellie Craven, and will meet again in two weeks. The meetings will keep up regularly until warm weather sets in, which, according to the present behavior of Old Boreas is very indefinite.

Next Tuesday the Minerva club will have its annual picnic at the Bressler park. Before the big feed, the members of the club will hold a business session and listen to an outline of the work for next year. The husbands of the members will share in the picnic.

The final meeting of the Westminster Guild before the usual summer vacation was held at the home of Miss Katherine Gamble Tuesday evening. A delicious buffet luncheon was served and the evening was pleasantly spent. Miss Berg was a guest of the Guild.

About fourteen young people of the Baptist church pleasantly surprised Miss Dorothy Rimel Monday evening by giving her a linen shower. The evening was devoted to making candy, which afforded much enjoyment. The evening was declared a most happy one, long to be remembered by those present.

The U. D. club had its last meeting before vacation at the home of Mrs. D. W. Kinn Monday afternoon. Miss Olive McBeth of the State Normal gave a reading, "The Dawn of Tomorrow." The club nominated candidates for officers for the coming year, and will hold an election preliminary to a picnic supper at the Bressler park next Monday evening.

The Bible Study circle, usually meeting Wednesday, was postponed until this afternoon on account of the inability of Miss Agnes Glenn, returned missionary from Japan, to be here yesterday. She is here to speak before the circle this afternoon. The meeting is held at the home of Mrs. L. R. Tharp, and following the program a farewell reception takes place in honor of Mrs. E. Hunter, with the serving of luncheon.

The women of the Missionary society gave Mrs. H. S. Ringland a pleasant surprise last week at the missionary meeting which was held at her home on Thursday afternoon. By a previous arrangement on the part of the ladies, they all came to the meeting loaded down with good things to eat, and after the meeting was over the ladies made themselves at home and prepared a substantial supper. Shortly after six o'clock the men folks appeared, and the self-invited guests placed Mr. and Mrs. Ringland in the seats of honor, and supper was served. During this part of the proceedings Mrs. Ringland was presented with a beautiful silver spoon by the ladies as a token of their appreciation of her faithful services in church work. As it was the twelfth anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Ringland were in the best of spirits to appreciate the occasion, and after supper the guests wished them many happy returns of the day, and the enjoyable social occasion was over.

MOVEMENT STARTED FOR BETTER ROADS
MEN ORGANIZE ASSOCIATION
Organization to be Completed May 27—Co-operation With County Board Proposed.

A number of citizens met in Wayne Friday afternoon for the purpose of effecting a temporary organization to be known as the Good Roads association. The following officers were chosen: John T. Bressler, president; W. H. Gildersleeve, vice president; C. M. Christensen, secretary; H. B. Jones, treasurer. A meeting will be held at the sale pavilion Monday, May 27, for the purpose of completing the organization, and outlining the course to be pursued in carrying out the purpose of the society.

The object is a united effort for better roads. It is expected to follow the local organization with a county organization, and then become a part of the state organization. Every one interested in road improvement is invited to become a member.

The society expects to co-operate with the county board in the work of building better roads. It is proposed to take an interest in the use of the inheritance tax fund and other public moneys designed for building roads.

Townpeople and farmers alike are vitally interested in good roads. They are not only important to automobile owners, but important in facilitating business relations between the country and town. It is a movement which is of the greatest value to all, and which everybody should encourage and boost.

DATE OF EIGHTH GRADE GRADUATION

The annual eighth grade graduating exercises will be held this year on Saturday, June 8. The program, soon to be issued by the superintendent, will include an address by Rev. Alexander Corkey. How many eighth grade students will graduate will be determined by the results of the recent examinations. It is certain there will be more than there were last year when thirty-seven received diplomas. Fifty took examinations last Saturday, and others submitted to the test on previous dates.

FOR TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Fred Pile and C. W. Salisbury went to Omaha last week to confer with state leaders of lawn tennis in regard to the Nebraska tournament to be held in July, in the hope of securing the meet for Wayne, and it is believed this point will be favorably considered. It is thought the question of location will be determined the last of this week.

THE PROFESSOR'S MUMMY

At the opera house Thursday evening, May 23. This is a farce comedy in three acts. The play should appeal to every one wishing a good, live play that is brim full of comedy from start to finish. Has plenty of good comedy characters, abundant humor, amusing complications and a good story intertwined. There is so much to the story that it is hard to give it in brief, but suffice it to say that Professor Hezekiah Green, thinks he has discovered the Elixir of Life much to the disgust of the entire Green family. He advertises for patients and that starts the fun. He further helps things along by purchasing a mummy which he intends to bring to life and that really does complicate matters. It all ends happily, but not until every one gets into trouble and out again, with a lot of comedy situations to help things along. This play must be seen to be appreciated.

THE UNION BANQUET AT BAPTIST CHURCH

MANY MEN SURROUND TABLES
Feast Prepared by Ladies, Followed by Music and Address—Event Passed Pleasantly.

Whatever sensibility a man possesses is said to be most easily reached by way of the stomach. Hunger appeased, it is said his understanding is quickened and his soul more readily attuned to contemplation of noble subjects. An empty gnawing stomach assuages all the senses, and monopolizes attention needed for other and higher things. The stomach supplied, its behavior is unobtrusive, quiet and pleasing, and its existence is forgotten. And as long as men have stomachs, this will be more or less true.

Thus, after 170 men, representing all religious denominations, had feasted on the choice viands and delicacies provided by the united skill of the ladies of all the churches, they felt at ease and were at their best for the consideration of religious and spiritual subjects. The nine tables were attractively decorated with flowers, and the serving of the excellent repast was done in a most pleasing manner.

Mr. S. R. Theobald was the master of ceremonies, and he looked and acted the part well. Following a song by Mr. Willis Fleetwood, Mr. Theobald introduced Mr. W. D. Redmond as toastmaster. In his address, Mr. Redmond emphasized the spirit of the brotherhood movement, pointing out that it resulted in the fraternity and co-operation needed to advance the cause of Christianity and promote purer and nobler living. He believes this hope of the brotherhood movement will be realized.

Mr. Kieser's Address.
After a solo by Mr. Ralph Emery, Toastmaster Redmond introduced the main speaker of the evening, Mr. Henry Kieser who is associated with the Bennett Book company of Omaha. Mr. Kieser's subject was "The Efficient Church." He said every business enterprise aimed at efficiency, and that the same may be said of the school system. Thus, standards have been raised in both business and education. He spoke of the introduction of schools of training by railroad companies in a determined effort to increase the efficiency of their service. A man who is earning $10 per week may develop his capacity to earn $20 per week by proper training. No live business will carry dead employees. Every employe must be a producer and contribute his share to the success of an undertaking. What is necessary for the upbuilding of business, is essential in the growth of a church. He said every member should be an active and developing unit in a church organization. He should steadily increase his capacity for usefulness. Every individual who is a profitable asset to the church, honors the institution and reflects its purpose. The speaker said the supreme business of the church was to bring the claims of Christ to everybody in the world, and that such service will never reach the highest standard until the men take hold of the work in earnest. He closed by saying that the brotherhood movement was a hopeful indication.

At the conclusion of Mr. Kieser's address which was given close attention by the large body of men, Mr. Willis Fleetwood sang another song. Then a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Kieser for his address. At 10:30 the crowd joined in singing "America," and then dispersed. It was a happy gathering, and the expectations of all were realized.

Besides a large delegation from Grace church, southwest of town, the following visitors were present: Messrs. Levi Kimball, J. H. Weaver, and George Whipperman of Wakefield; Rev. Reeves and W. H. James of Carroll; Rev. Fetzer and Charles Peel of Winside; Dr. Gaulk and Richard Closson of Sholes; Messrs. George Weatherholt, J. Kaulin, Andrew Johnson and William Johnson of Hoskins.

D., where she was engaged as a trimmer in a millinery store the past season. Dr. and Mrs. A. White, who have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. John F. Clunkheard, and family, in Wayne, left yesterday morning for their home at Missouri Valley, Ia. Miss Edna Sommerer and Miss Mag-dal Bassman of Jefferson City, Mo., returned to their home Saturday afternoon a few weeks with the family of John Luers, near LaPorte. Miss Olive McBeth of the State Normal went to Shelby, Neb., yesterday where she gave an address at the commencement exercises. She was accompanied by little Florence Beckenbauer. President U. S. Conn and Professor J. T. House of the State Normal took an automobile jaunt to a number of neighboring towns yesterday. They visited the schools at Wakefield, Emerson and Pender. Mrs. Walter E. Weber and little daughter who have been visiting at the Will Weber home for a few weeks, left yesterday for Sioux City where they will spend a few days with relatives, and then return to their home at Omaha. Mother's day, last Sunday, was remembered at the local churches. Large crowds attended and listened to appropriate sermons. Men were earnest out of respect to the memory of their mothers. Motherhood was deservedly eulogized and exalted. Yesterday's Sioux City Journal reports the death of Gideon Fritts, father of Thomas H. Fritts, former electrician in Wayne. The deceased died of paralysis, and was aged 84 years. He had often visited his son in Wayne. Improvements still go on. Phil Kohl has been adding materially to the home he purchased from Mrs. Wright. Cement steps both back and front and a cement walk out to the roadway—both here and at his own residence, John James doing the work. A1611 For his high rank as an alumnus of the Wesleyan university, William Crossland, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Crossland of Wayne, has been awarded a free scholarship for a post graduate course in Washington college. This is an honor which he has earned, and which his Wayne friends are glad to see him get. He will take advantage of it next year. While a soaking rain and warm zephyrs would be welcome, conditions are generally favorable, and people have good reason to look forward to a year of big crops. As to the chilly weather, people familiar with the habits and resources of the Nebraska climate, know that it can easily make up for any time foolishly devoted to unseasonable cold. The library has received another present of books, P. L. Miller giving eight volumes from his mother's library. All of them are good books. "Principles of Grammar," "Russian War," "Biblical Reasons Why," "Handwriting of God," "Lives of Great and Celebrated Characters," "Carybeare & Howson's Life of St. Paul," "Prince of the Home of David," "Adam Clark's Commentary." Weldon Crossland who is to represent Nebraska colleges at the interstate oratorical contest at Northfield, Minn., arrived in Wayne yesterday from University Place, and left this morning for Northfield accompanied by his mother, Mrs. G. W. Crossland. The contest takes place tomorrow. There will be ten contestants, representing the following ten states: Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois, Nebraska, North Dakota, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Kansas and South Dakota. Weldon Crossland's subject will be "Tolstoi," being the same one that he used in the state contest. It is hoped additional laurels reward his effort.

Sunday's Omaha and Lincoln papers contained pictures of the representatives of Nebraska high schools who are to take part in the fifth annual state championship debate of the Nebraska High School Debating league at the state university next Saturday. Tracy Kohl of Wayne, is among the honored debaters, representing the northeastern district, and Wayne friends hope he will win further and surpassing honors in the forthcoming event. Of the Wayne debater, Sunday's Omaha Bee has this to say: Philip Tracy Kohl, son of Senator Philip H. Kohl of Wayne, will be the representative of the northeastern district. Mr. Kohl has been on the Wayne team for three years and has made a fine record in argumentation and debate. He is a senior and ranks high in scholarship in the class of twenty. The Wayne team, composed of Mr. Kohl, Clement Crossland and Bernard McConnell, won from Randolph and by default from Creighton.

EXPECTS TO RETURN TO UTAH

Mrs. J. M. Pile who has been engaged in educational work at Springville, Utah, writes the Herald that she will be in Wayne on or about May 21, and adds the following comment on her experience in the west: "Have had a most delightful time here, although plenty of work. I return to Utah, but will be supervisor of one of the districts of Salt Lake. It will be much pleasanter in many respects than being here. However, the people here have been very nice and express themselves as being very sorry that I have decided not to return. This valley is certainly very beautiful.

ful. Trees are loaded with fruit. Every thing is raised here that can be grown in California, except oranges and lemons. The mountains look beautiful dressed in green with snow-white caps. I was most pleasantly surprised to have Mr. Paul Harrington call on me. He and Elwin Strong (Arthur Savidge) are the only Wayneites I have met in Springfield."

W. O. W.

The Sovereigns of the World, No. 128, Woodmen of the World, are requested to meet at their hall on Friday night, May 18, 1912. A class of several members are to be initiated into the mysteries of Woodcraft at that time. THOMAS C. DAVIS, District Deputy.

STATE NORMAL NEWS

Commencement week, May 26-May 29. The Jung number of the Flame will be issued a few days before the first of the month in order that the paper may be delivered to the students before the close of the term. The regular school year will close on Wednesday, May 29. Registration for the summer term will be on June 3 and 4. Quite a number of the students now in attendance will remain for the summer. President Conn has just received a letter from Dean Hahn assuring him he will be in Wayne and ready for work on June 4. Professor Hahn received an offer to work in another field during the summer but prefers to return to the Normal school. President Conn and Professor House made a visit Wednesday to high schools in the vicinity of Wayne with a view to bringing the advantages of the Normal before the young men and women who are completing the work of the home school. Among the schools visited were Wakefield, Emerson, Thurston and Pender. Mrs. J. G. W. Lewis received a telegram Monday apprising her of the death of her mother. Mrs. Lewis left on the afternoon train for Fort Dodge, Ia., where she was joined on Thursday by Professor Lewis. Students and members of the faculty sympathize very deeply with Mrs. Lewis in her affliction. During his stay in the city Mr. H. E. Carson took advantage of the opportunity of attending the chapel exercises at the Normal. The talk he gave students on Monday morning is considered one of the brightest and wittiest speeches that has been made here during the year. Mr. Carson taught for a number of years in the Fremont Normal college and was associated with President Conn who was then a member of the faculty of that institution.

Bentley, Fannie Britell, Mollie A. Bush, Florence M. Kingsbury, Edith E. Witwer, Stella V. Witwer and Paul H. Young.

Juniors Entertain

The Juniors of the Wayne State Normal entertained the Seniors at a banquet on Thursday evening, May 9. It was held at the DePew cafe and was presided over by Miss Fannie Britell, president of the Junior class. The tables were tastefully decorated with smilax, the color scheme being red and white, the Senior roses. The favors were red and white roses, the place cards bore a cream rose, hand painted. The menu cards were white and tied with red ribbon. The toasts interspersed between the courses provoked much merriment. The "Seniors" by James McEachen was a scintillation of wit from beginning to end. Incidentally he mentioned that while much of the lustre emitted by the Senior class during the year was a result of reflected Junior light, yet no matter at what time of day or night the Seniors might meet, even the most casual observer could not fail to detect the brilliant Ruby hues (Hughes.) The response, "Juniors" by Miss Ruby Hughes was a witty rejoinder. At a late hour the Juniors and Seniors made a "Home Run" voting that though the Seniors were "the whole cheese now" the Junior would be next year.

Visits John G. Neihardt

While in Bancroft the other day Mr. House, of the faculty of the Normal, called on John G. Neihardt. On his return Mr. House expressed the great interest and delight he experienced in meeting this young man, who, though only a little over thirty years of age, is already taken very seriously by literary critics of the country. Mr. Neihardt is the author of several volumes of poetry which those able to judge pronounce of the very highest rank. Some even compare his work to that of Kents, whose technical skill and artistic soul have placed him among the immortals. Mr. Neihardt lives very simply with his charming wife in his home in Bancroft, where he writes much, spends a good deal of time out of doors, and enjoys himself in a healthy, normal way. His nearest neighbor is his mother. He is the father of a beautiful little daughter six months old. Mr. Neihardt talked freely and enthusiastically about his art, declared his earnest conviction that poetry can never be immoral, only that which is helpful, only that which teaches man his true place in the universe is worthy the name of poetry. He expressed the opinion that there is just now much good poetry being written in this country, indeed he thought that it would be revealed that we are just now in a renaissance of poetic art. Mr. Neihardt spoke with keen interest of the political campaign, especially in its psychological phases. He said that he had received the invitation to the alumni reunion and hoped to be present. With that he talked with much interest of the Normal, asking about the work of President Conn, remarking that Mr. Conn never be immortal, only that which is helpful, only that which teaches man his true place in the universe is worthy the name of poetry. VERDICT OF GUILTY IN THE FLEGE CASE

JURY NAMES MANSLAUGHTER

Motion for New Trial is Denied. Appeal Will be Taken at Once to Supreme Court.

"Guilty of manslaughter" was the verdict returned by the jury in the case against William Flege who was on trial at Pender charged with the murder of his sister Louise. A motion for a new trial was made by the attorneys for the defense and arguments will be heard by Judge Graves at Pender some time this week. If the motion is denied sentence will be passed on the defendant, and in that event, according to Fred S. Berry, leading attorney for the defense, an appeal will at once be taken to the supreme court. For manslaughter, a ten year term in the penitentiary is the maximum.

EVENTS IN FLEGE CASE.

- June 30—Body of Louise Flege found cold in death in the yard of her home near Wayne, Neb.
- June 30—Inquest held and a qualified verdict returned.
- July 1—Detectives and officers put on the case.
- July 2—Funeral of murdered girl.
- July 20—Flege arrested for murder after a confession of Albert Echtenkamp, a hired man.
- July 28-29—Preliminary hearing held and Flege held on $15,000 bonds, furnished by brothers, to appear for trial in district court.
- August 7—Flege erects $500 monument over grave of sister.
- November 29—Flege's trial begins at Ponca, Neb.
- December 10—Flege convicted.
- December 14—Flege given a life sentence.

1911.

- April—Flege released on bail pending decision on appeal for new trial.
- November 29—Supreme court of Nebraska grants Flege new trial.

- April 29—Flege's second trial begins at Pender.
- May 11—Flege found guilty of manslaughter by jury at Pender, Neb.

(Sunday's Sioux City Journal.) Pender, Neb., May 11.—William Flege, accused of the murder of his sister, Louise Flege, is guilty of manslaughter, according to the verdict of the jury in the famous case, which was returned at 1:30 this afternoon. The jury had been out since 3:15 last evening.

The penalty for manslaughter in Nebraska is from one to ten years in the penitentiary. At the first trial Flege was convicted of murder in the second degree and given a life sentence.

There were only a few persons present in the court room when the verdict was returned and there was no demonstration.

When William Flege was brought into the courtroom to hear the verdict it was apparent that he had been under a severe strain. His two brothers, Henry and Fred, who have been with him during the trial, sat by his side. The clerk of the court read the verdict. Flege took the decision calmly, scarcely changing his position.

Application was made to the court to fix bail that he might be released from prison pending a hearing on a motion for a new trial. But the court declined, stating that it doubted its authority to do so.

Statement of Attorneys.

While preparing a motion for a new trial, J. J. McCarthy and Fred S. Berry, counsel for Flege, were asked for statements regarding the verdict. Mr. McCarthy said there was not one iota of evidence introduced by the state that was not introduced before.

Mr. Berry said the defense showed conclusively by Professor W. S. Haines and Dr. Ludwig Hoeckton, both of Chicago, that death occurred at least two and one-half hours after eating her last meal and the defendant has been convicted upon prejudice and not upon the evidence.

Mr. Berry declared he had a conversation with one of the jurors after the verdict in which the latter admitted the evidence was hardly sufficient to warrant a conviction of his client.

"We simply won't stand for it," he declared, "and will carry the fight to the supreme court again."

C. A. Kingsbury, county attorney of Dixon county, and chief attorney for the prosecution in the Flege murder case, stated that he had expected a conviction and was "entirely satisfied" with verdict returned by the jury at Pender. He declined to make any additional statement.

The motion for a new trial was denied.

sixty-five counts of alleged reasons why a new trial should be granted. Some of these are formal and some are repetitions, but there are a great many which the defense deems good.

Brief Review of Case.

On the afternoon of June 30, 1910, Louise Flege was murdered at the Flege farm near Wayne, Neb., by being shot twice, once in the head and once in the breast.

Miss Flege was shot from the rear, one bullet penetrating the base of her skull. The murderer held the gun so close to her that the powder blaze burned the sunbonnet she was wearing. The bullet made its exit just under the left eye. Evidently after the victim had fallen and was writhing in the death agony the murderer shot her in the breast. This bullet entered in an upward course, as if the assassin had stood at her feet in morbid elation at his deed, and decided to add one more shot to thoroughly complete his terrible act.

William C. Davenport, at one time chief of police of Sioux City, was engaged by the county attorney of Dixon county to run down the murderer of the girl. Almost a month had passed before Albert Echtenkamp, a 17-year-old boy employed on the Flege farm, confessed to Sheriff Grant Moars of Wayne county that he had seen William Flege kill his sister after a quarrel following the second meal. He told of how, after dinner, he went out to fill the radiator of the automobile with water. He said he had hardly started to work on it when he heard Louise and William quarreling, and on looking up saw the two come out of the doorway together. He said they came out into the yard, and the girl screamed: "Let me alone! Leave me alone! What have I done to you?" That William Flege then pulled a revolver and shot his sister, who dropped upon her knees. The boy said he then rushed to the barn and just as he reached the door he heard another shot. Turning around, he saw the body of the girl stretched at full length upon the lawn.

Echtenkamp said that Flege then went into the house, but soon came out and told him if he said anything about the shooting he would give him some of the same medicine.

The day Echtenkamp confessed William Flege was arrested and taken to the county jail at Ponca, Neb. On July 28 and 29, he was given a preliminary hearing and charged with the murder of his sister, Louise, and his bond fixed at $15,000 for his appearance before the district court on November 30.

The three brothers and the one sister put up a reward of $500 each for the arrest and conviction of the murderer, and the county of Dixon also posted a reward of $500 making a total of $2,500.

At the first trial at Ponca Flege was found guilty after the jury had been out six hours, and was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Nebraska penitentiary by Judge Graves. In April 1911, he was released on bond pending a decision on his appeal to the Nebraska supreme court for a new trial. Last November the supreme court granted Flege a new trial. His second trial began at Pender Neb., April 29.

The members of the Flege family are mostly farmers, and the trials of William Flege have attracted wide attention. Flege had lived with his brother for twenty-six years. When the elder Fleges died they left 200 acres of land near Wayne to each of the three brothers. On condition that she make her home with her brother, Miss Louise was to receive $3,000 of which $1,500 was to come from William Flege, and $1,500 from Henry Flege. The other sister, Augusta, who is the wife of Henry Evert, received $1,500 as her dower.

Miss Flege was 32 years old. She owned a quarter section of land in Cheyenne county, Neb. Her education was gained in the schools of Washington county, Neb., where she was born.

TREASURER REPORTS TO LIBRARY BOARD

The public library board met Tuesday evening, and received and approved of the semi-annual report of Treasurer H. S. Ringland. The report shows the following facts:

Balance on hand November 1, 1911	$ 443.87
Received from Dr. G. J. Green	57.50
Received from Dr. T. B. Heckert	10.00
Received from County Treasurer	590.76
Total	$1102.13
Expenditures	181.62
Balance on hand	$ 920.51

The librarian reported that some patrons of the library had been careless in their treatment of books, and that injury had been done to them. Accordingly the board decided to strictly enforce the rules in reference to the use of books.

ROOSEVELT WINS CALIFORNIA.

San Francisco, May 15.—Early returns from scattered precincts in districts throughout the eleven congressional districts in California indicate an overwhelming victory for Roosevelt in yesterday's presidential preference primaries.

Apparently he has carried even San Francisco county in which the Taft managers centered their greatest hopes. On the basis of these returns Taft appears to have been the second choice of republican voters over LaFollette.

Clark leads Wilson by a wide margin in the democratic preferential vote.

LAYMEN AS PREACHEES.

Wayne county had new experience along religious lines last Sunday. Almost every township in the county was the scene of a religious gathering at which laymen were the chief speakers, and the religious campaign was appreciated by all. The various "teams" of speakers had a very kindly reception in every place, and generally the audiences were large and representative. The largest attendance was at Wakefield where Professor Bright and Willis Fleetwood, accompanied by Rev. B. P. Richardson, were in charge.

At Hoskins also a splendid meeting was held under the leadership of Messrs. C. N. F. Clasen and E. B. Young. Besides these town meetings there were services in the country churches and school houses, and altogether the men who are back of the movement have been greatly pleased at the outcome. Representatives from all parts of the county were invited to be present at the banquet.

The day was beautiful, and being Mother's day added to the interest of the services as nowhere is the mother more appreciated than in the country, and the references to the honor due to motherhood were much appreciated. The teams were all conveyed to their speaking points by automobile, except the speakers at Hoskins, who went by train. It is expected to establish permanent preaching stations at some of the points visited, and the uplift of the efforts will be long felt in Wayne county.

A Sigh From the Author. "Proofreading is Greek to me, even after having several books published." Miss Alice Louise Lee recently wrote to her publishers. "But what worries me is this psychological question. Will my corrections be as unintelligible to the printer as all his marks are to me? It seems to me very confusing. In the face of proofreading I feel like the farmer who before the rhinoceros' cage declared, 'There ain't no such beast!'"

With this we mean that we will accept any half-way reasonable price named by you. The motive for doing this is that we want to discontinue to handle curtains, sell out what we have on hand and put other goods in their place. Usually all our goods are marked in plain figures and all ONE price because we do not believe in soaking Peter to please Paul. On those curtains, though, you can set your own price and whatever they are worth to you will be right with us, if the amount is any way within reason. The goods are not out of style or shopworn, but new and clean. If you need a pair of curtains or if you want to replace your old ones for new ones, here is your chance.

looked around with gloomy frown. “I hate to see rain coming down; we farmers want to sow our oats, and can't unless we sail in boats.” I met him later when the sun was shining till it took the bun. “Why lookest thou,”

I asked, “so tough? This weather surely is the stuff.” “We need a rain,” the farmer said; “the grass is looking brown and dead; my squashes scarcely are alive; my peas and pumpkins do not thrive.” I met this farmer every week and tears are always on his cheek; he wants dry weather when it rains, and when it's wet he still complains; he kicks because there's too much wind, and says the weather bureau's sinned, and when we have a refreshing snow, he springs a little spiel of woo. And when his cribs in Autumn grain beneath their loads of golden grain, he stands around and sadly yawns about the shortage of his crops.

“Had there been less sunshine and rain,” he wails, “I hadn't toiled in vain!” I sometimes wonder that the gods don't lann him with their rhinotening rods; they must grow tired of roasting rude, complainings and ingratitude.

There's nothing but tears for the man who steers our ship o'er the troubled sea; there's nothing but grief for the nation's chief, whoever that chief may be. Whatever he does, he can hear the buzz of critics as thick as flies; and all of his aims are sins and shames, and nothing he does is wise. There's nothing but kicks for the man who sticks four years to the White House chair; and his stout heart aches, and his wishbone breaks, and he loses most of his hair. There's nothing but growls and the knockers' howls, and the spiteful slings and slams; and the vile cartoons and the dish of prunes and a chorus of tinkers' anathemas. Oh, we humble states in our low estates, who fuss with our garden sass; should view the woes of the men who rose above and beyond the mass, and be glad today that we go our way mid-quiet and peaceful seas; should thankfully take the hoe and rake, and wrestle with spuds and greens!

Granddad wore his whiskers till they hid his vest; in that beard the robin used to build its nest. Granddad, in the in the spring time, sat upon a chair; grandma, with the scissors, pruned his flowing hair. That was in the golden time of long ago, when the waste of money meant a store of woe. That was in the happy, good old frugal times, when our sires far-sceing salted down the dimes. Father seeks the barber when he's run to hair, stretches out in comfort in a padded chair; while the smiling artist through his blades hews, energetic bootblacks degenerate his shoes, and the manicurist monkeys with his hand—all these vain proceedings cost to beat the band! Granddad saved and sweated all his days on earth; when he made a finish, how much was he worth? He had eighty acres, quite a farm, you say, and some hundred dollars safely tucked away. Father spends his money like a soused marine, such a dazzling spend-thrift never yet was seen. Well he can afford to blow in coin with zest; he owns banks and buildings till you cannot rest. Where's the helpful morsel of this tale of moan? Hunt it with a lantern—guess there isn't one.

work around like blazes, and when she needs a yen, her husband springs reproachful phrases: “Great-Scot! More wealth again! You'll have us in a sorry pickle your conduct's much too fast; have you already spent the nickel I gave you Monday last? No money left, you haven't any! You need some shoe-strings, Belle! Here, you may have this hard-earned penny—invest it wisely well!” No wonder that the dames, disgusted, are kicking in their tugs; no wonder plate glass fronts are bustered by wrathful lady thugs. No wonder that the girls are saying: “I'll go my way alone; 'twere better earning money buying, and have it for my own, than be the mistress of a palace, to live in discontent with one who fairly breaks his gallus when parting from a cent!” Ten thousand wives who live with misers are plunged in dark despair, and if they join the bold up-tisers, the tightwads drove them there.

Pending to your knitting—that's the name that wins! Hustling forth and hitting up your task with gears, being brave and cheerful, shunning or sour and tearful fretting over ghosts! Tending to your knitting—that's the only plan; for the hours are fitting swiftly as they can; soon the shades will gather, soon the night will come, then methinks you'll rather wish you'd hustled some. Tending to your knitting, in the good old way, while the loafers, sitting, waste the golden day! While they heap derision on this worldly stage, you will make provision for your wintry age! Tending to your knitting—that's the proper game, though the world, unwitting, gives no wealth or fame; though a scanty measure of reward is yours, still the sweetest pleasure honest work assures. Tending to your knitting makes your soul rejoice. Better far than splitting welkins with your voice! Better far than growling curses on this land, better far than howling where the idlers stand!

at novel to peruse, and the book turns out a sermon, and my soul contracts the blues. Worn by worldly strife and bounding to the show I go and find that the actors are expounding doctrines that disturb my mind. And the daily prints are screeching sermons on the nation's crimes; and the magazines are preaching on the evils of the times; all the doctors are discussing health rules till they bring the tears, and the scientists are fussing, pounding texts into our ears. Every one is bent on teaching, teaching us with voice and tongue; every one is bent on preaching till the last lone dog is hung. It would make the world less solemn, make our journey far more nice, if we once could read a column that contains no good advice; if the speaker in the forum and the writer in the prints, wouldn't nag the folks and bore 'em with a string of helpful hints.

CROP PROSPECTS.

Lincoln Trade Review: The Trade Review met at the state association of commercial clubs, business men from all sections of the state, and the word came from all points that the crop prospects at the present time are exceptionally good everywhere. Winter wheat, except in some localities on the southern border of the state, is very promising. All through the central wheat belt, it is good for a full crop. The late spring has given farmers opportunity to prepare their ground for planting so that they were never better prepared for the putting in of a good corn crop than they are this year. Planting is well under way; heavy rains have filled the ground with moisture; special attention has been given to getting good seed and the corn crop ought to be the best this year that we have had for a number of years. Early vegetables are coming on fine everywhere, and notwithstanding the severe winter, the fruit crop promises to be one of great abundance. With high prices for everything grown and a scarcity in all lines, a big crop year means much to Nebraska. Here's hoping all the promises of the present will go on unchecked to complete fulfillment.

Mexico is badly in need of a new leader. We would recommend Theodore Roosevelt.

Until women are granted the right to vote they will not agree that the people are permitted to rule even though the primary is generally followed.

The movement for good roads is of the utmost importance to the general public. Road improvement brings the town and country closer together, and all are thus benefited.

The claims of strength made by rival presidential candidates are so widely divergent that the country will likely be left in doubt as to the nominee of either the Chicago or Baltimore convention until the balloting takes place.

There is a general demand for a change in the constitution fixing the presidential term at six or eight years and limiting a man to one term. The disturbance caused by a presidential campaign would be less frequent.

Colonel Roosevelt is the most active and aggressive presidential candidate the world ever saw, and still he started out by assuming a receptive, passive frame of mind, virtually saying he would accept if the nomination were forced on him. He is the most volcanic receptive candidate on record.

Progress toward a general law requiring the election of United States senators by direct vote does not cause any excitement in this state. Such practice has been virtually followed here for several years, and a change in the federal constitution will merely ratify what we have long been doing.

The lurid presidential battle in Ohio is attracting chief attention right now. President Taft and Theodore Roosevelt, erstwhile friends, now bitter enemies, are engaged in a heated and shameful conflict. Roosevelt began the personal abuse, and the president is now aroused. If the world loves a fighter, President Taft may yet show off to advantage.

President Taft's attitude toward liberal pensions for the old soldiers had evidently been misunderstood, as many of the things he has done or hasn't done have been misunderstood or misrepresented. Before he had an opportunity to act on any proposed pension bill, it was assumed, without ground, that he would be against it and would use his veto power. The false assumption was spread over the country, and naturally aroused the antagonism of the old soldiers. That the report was unfounded and did the president an injustice is seen by the fact that he signed the pension measure presented to him by the house and senate for his approval. The bill as finally passed and signed carries an increase of $35,000,000 for pensions during the first year of its operation.

People are apt to feel discontented when times are the best and prosperity the greatest. This should not be so, but is often so. In 1892 conditions were more prosperous than they had been in any year previous to that time. But people became uneasy, and thought they would try a change in the political complexion of the administration. They were getting better prices for farm products and live stock than they had previously received, and how they expected to derive benefit from a change they probably didn't know themselves. They just wanted a change, and they got it. The year 1893 found the country in the grasp of hard times which continued for four years. Distrust over-spread the country, factories closed, armies of unemployed developed, there was reduced consumption of everything grown and manufactured, farm products were hardly worth hauling to market, and prices for live stock were paralyzed. It was charged that the gold standard was the cause of all the trouble, and in 1896 along came William J. Bryan with the free silver nostrum. Mr. Bryan said wheat would not advance unless the United States adopted free silver independent of other nations, and that the rich would grow richer and the poor poorer, and he acted as though he believed all the dire predictions he made. It looked awfully hopeless for the country to turn down Bryan's diagnosis and prescriptions. In fact, he so convinced Nebraska that he was right that it gave him a majority at the polls in November. But enough other states turned deaf ears to his warnings to insure the election of William McKinley, and his election re-established confidence and stability. There was assurance of no dangerous experimenting. As though touched by magic, the country took on new life. Factories started, idle men were given work, consumption of farm products increased, and market prices grew with the greater demand. The severe struggle with hard times made people rejoice on the return of a brighter era. Bryan was merely mistaken in his idea of what ailed the country and what it needed. Others may be mistaken now. Prices for farm products cannot be other than satisfactory to farming districts at this time. If factories and other employing institutions hire help at good wages, the products of the farm will be in demand at high prices. With high prices for farm products, high prices for farm lands will prevail. What more do we want? Is our prosperity so great that it cannot be prostrated by a wave of distrust? Let us not try it. Let us progress, but let our forward movement be steered by the counsels of sober wisdom and safety. Let us yield to no leadership that would recklessly put the test of untried and doubtful vagaries above the prosperity and welfare of 90,000,000 of people. Our prosperity is not so firmly entrenched that it cannot be stricken down by fear engendered by the folly and daring of men entrusted with power.

A Bath in a Holland Hotel. "There are some things about a trip through Holland that you recall when stopping at one of our modern hotels," said a traveler. "In many places the hotels are run as they have been for ages, and candles still are the vogue. Rooms with baths are unknown. Instead they charge you about 40 cents in American money for a bath. You ask for the privilege of using the tub, and they send up a maid, who brings with her towels and soap if you have none, for you are supposed to carry both with you. She fills the tub, has it about the right degree of heat, and the faucets are locked, so that if you want any more water you don't get it; also there is no chance for your traveling pal sneaking in and enjoying a bath without coming through with another 40 cents. You are provided with one candle a day and charged for it. The lights go out early in the night, and if you happen to get up or want to read you have to use a candle. This does not apply to Amsterdam, which is a metropolitan city.—Detroit Free Press.

Smiled and Killed the Play. Past-Lindau in "The Memories of My Life" relates that at the performance of his Countess Leah in Berlin the old Emperor William, who had been present at the play, sent for him to congratulate him upon his fine work and the favor it had won. "Only," he added, as if casually and without the least emphasis, "it is a pity that the titled officers do not play a very brilliant part in it." When the emperor had dismissed Lindau with a gracious nod, the manager, De Hulsen, came to the author and said: "I am sorry that I can no longer produce your piece. It promised to have a long run."

The Old Charcoal Burner. The charcoal burner may still be found within thirty miles of London. This writer knows a charcoal burner who has carried on his ancient trade for forty years in Surrey and Sussex. You come suddenly upon the piled dome of fine earth on heath or in woodland, and near it is his neatly constructed hut of wicker, reeds and bender, with its rough corner posts and little door. There he lives during the whole period of the calcining process, keeping a sharp lookout to see that inquisitive passersby do not push an inquiring stick into the mound, which might result in a sudden burst of flame and the ruin of that particular lot of wood. This man is his own master. He knows his markets, and he makes a decent living a curious, solitary life, but he knows all about the birds.—London Chronicle.

Danced in a Coal Mine. Some years ago a Newcastle (England) coal operator named Branding gave a famous ball. The ballroom was in the coal mine, 1,100 feet below ground, in the shape of the letter L, the width being 15 feet, the height 48 feet and the length 300 feet. The floor was dried and flagged, seats provided and the whole place illuminated with wax candles. The company comprised all the miners and their families, the proprietors and agents and a number of guests from London. It required considerable courage for some of the strangers to go down the shaft, but they all ventured. Dancing was from noon till 3 p. m., and all returned to the upper air clean and safe and each carrying as a memento a piece of coal hewn from the end of the drift.

Weight of Brains. According to some scientists, every human being gets a complete new outfit of brains about every two months. They estimate that the duration of a nerve's life is approximately sixty days and that every brain cell is destroyed and renewed that often. In other words, we all have six brand new sets of brains each year. The following gives, showing the comparative weights of persons of different nationalities, an interesting list. According to Bastian and other brain experts, the average scores are: German brain 49.5 ounces, English brain 49.5 ounces, French brain 47.5 ounces, Zulu brain 47.5 ounces, Chinese brain 47.2 ounces, Pawnee brain 47.1 ounces, Italian brain 46.9 ounces, Hindoo brain 45.1 ounces, Gypsy brain 44.8 ounces, Russian brain 44.6 ounces and Eskimo brain 43.0 ounces.—San Francisco Chronicle.

One on the Proofroom. There are few works in an unabridged dictionary that have not at some time divided the proofroom of this office, but one came in the other day, an utter stranger. It was in the body of an astronomical article. "This beats me," said proofreader No. 1 to the copyholder. "Let's see the copy." There it was written in with a heavy hand in the blackest of black ink. "It's got more tops than a spider," said the proofreader—"only six letters in the word and five of 'em below the line." There it was szyzygy—three of the six letters are y's. "What does the blooming word mean?" asked the copyholder. The proofreader for the first time in many moons declined to give an opinion. The dictionary was consulted: "Szyzygy—the point of an orbit, as of the moon or a planet, at which it is in conjunction or opposition." The word is pronounced siz-zee-gee. "Souds like the cracker to a college yell," said the proofreader as he closed the book.—Indianapolis News.

About a Pair of "Pants." A Detroit man who had contributed a bundle of his castoff clothing for the relief of the victims of a great fire received from one of the sufferers the following note: "The comality man give me amongst other things wat he called a pare of pants, and t'would make me pant some to ware 'em. I found your name and where you live on one of the packets. My wife luffed so when I shode em to her that I t'ot sh'wood pave a coniphun fit. She warts to no if there lives and breathes a man who has less no bigger than that. She sed if there was he orter be taken up for vagrancy for havin' no visible means of support. I couldent get 'em on my oldest boy, so I used em for gun cases. If you hav another pare to spare, my wife would like to get 'em to hang up by the side of the fireplace to keep the tones in."—Spofford's Library of Wit and Humor.

Lowell's Retort. The original contributors to the Atlantic Monthly met at intervals and had dinner. The occasions were in formal, and though the conversation progressed once in a while to lofty flights, it frequently ran to a plot of fun, says the Chicago Post. At one time when the weather was frosty the propriety of a bowl of hot punch was fair. James Russell Lowell, editor-in-chief, had an impending engagement which was to take him some distance, and he was looking at his watch at frequent intervals. The company was remarkable, and he hated to leave it. Still, the engagement. He arose to go and was saluted by Dr. Holmes. "Have another glass of punch," said the eminent "it will shorten the journey."

A Beach That Changes Color. There is an island in the gulf of Mexico where the beaches change color twice daily with the tides. When uncovered the sands are purple, but the inflowing waters quickly transform them to gold. The name of the island is Snails' island, and this supplies the key to the remarkable phenomenon. The sands are really of a golden color, and when the rising tide spreads over the wide beach the glistening bits of earth glisten in the sunlight, but when the tide ebb the golden sands are made purple by myriads of tiny purple snails crawling in the wake of the ebbing tides. As the tide recedes the purple becomes deeper as millions of these little snails come from the wet sand in search of food, moving with remarkable rapidity.

Knelling Horses. In ancient times, before the invention of stirrups and luxurious saddles, horses were taught to kneel to permit their riders to mount. A beautiful Greek vase in one of the museums in St. Petersburg shows a war horse of many centuries ago kneeling low before an amazon. The riders in those days mounted from the "off" side in contradiction to the modern usage. Plutarch tells how in the first century of this era certain effeminate Roman riders found even the horse block of too little assistance and had their horses trained to kneel to them.

Split Soup. "John," his wife complained, "I wish you would be more careful. It seems to me you never go to a banquet without spilling soup on your shirt or your vest."

Could Work It. Store proprietor (hiring a new clerk): "You know how to work a cash register?" "Yes, sir. I was one of the first to get on it. I can work anything from a taximeter to a gum slot, but they watch you closer nowadays."—Satire.

SCOTCH HAGGIS. Here is the Recipe For it in All Its Beautiful Simplicity. Every one in a while, and particularly on the day after a Robert Burns anniversary celebration, the newspapers publish reports of gatherings and banquets of Scotchmen in which the name "haggis" occupies a prominent place on the menu. Then a few curious minded persons who do not know Inquire: "Haggis? What is haggis?" The answers vary from a kind of Scotch oat cake to hot drinks. Nobody ever seems quite sure what haggis really is. One hears vaguely from guests at Scotch banquets that it is a fearsome dish. There is a story of the elderly gentleman of rickety digestion who, taking off his overcoat in a friend's house and smelling haggis in preparation, remarked, "Eh, but I'll be bad the morrow!" The possibility of refusing this dish apparently never dawned upon him, and in a sturdy sort of fashion when one is hungry the recipe certainly sounds as though the compound might be fascinating. Here is the recipe: A pound each of liver, onions, tripe, suet and cooked pearl barley and half a pound of oatmeal, with salt and pepper, are put into a sheep's paunch and slowly boiled for four hours. That is all in its beautiful simplicity. A French chef in a stuffy kitchen might faint at the recipe, but a hungry Scotchman thinks it is the finest dish on earth.—New York World.

Ear Guards For Gunners. Many people may have wondered how the men on the deck of a battleship can stand the awful shock produced by the discharge of heavy artillery. The gunners within the turret are not affected much, because the gun discharges outside. To save the ear-drums from destruction ear protectors are employed. The protector consists of a celluloid piece shaped somewhat like an anchor with a ball at one end, which fits in the ear.—Scientific American.

PRESCOTT'S WAGERS. The Historian Had His Own Way of Forcing Himself to Work. Rollo Ogden in his biography of William H. Prescott, the historian, cites many passages from the diary showing Prescott's habit of flogging himself to his work by making wagers with his secretaries that he would complete a given task by a certain day, the odds always heavily against himself. "Prescott always took this betting on his own industry with perfect seriousness. Sometimes he would radiantly greet his secretary with: 'You have lost. You owe me a dollar.' And he would exact payment. Occasionally he would, with woebegone countenance, produce and pay over to the protesting secretary the $20 or $30 he himself had lost." One elaborately made memorandum witnesses that a bet of $1 to $50 had been made between E. B. Otis and William H. Prescott, Esq., the latter betting $50 that he will write 100 pages of his "History of Peru" in 100 days.

OFFER THEIR SERVICES FREE OF CHARGE. The United Doctors, licensed by the state of Nebraska for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever except the actual cost of medicine. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result obtained to their friends and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality that at last treatments have been discovered that are reasonably sure and certain in their effect.

Early Rapid Transit. Cardinal Wolsey did not live in an age of rapid transit, but he created it for himself. His capacity for rapid travel was a valuable aid in carving out a career. Wolsey is said to have first won royal favor in this way. He was charged with a message from Henry VII. to the Emperor Maximilian in the Low Countries and left London in the afternoon. He went by boat to Gravesend, by horse to Dover, then by boat again to Calais, and he was with the emperor the following evening and back to the king in just over two days from the time of starting.

All Broken Long Ago. A Lakewood lady paid a call on an east Cleveland woman the other day. After all the mean compliments had been paid, the Lakewood lady remarked, "I have some lovely china that belonged to my ancestors."

Procrastination. "One of the greatest evils in life," said the elderly woman, "is procrastination." "I think so, too," replied the young married woman. "I don't see the sense of putting off your golden wedding anniversary till you are sixty or seventy years old."

COMING TO WAYNE UNITED DOCTORS, SPECIALISTS will be at THE BOYD HOTEL MONDAY, JUNE 3, AND WILL REMAIN ONE DAY ONLY Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases.

These doctors are considered by many former patients, among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases and so great and wonderful have been their results that in many cases it is hard indeed to find the dividing line between skill and miracle. Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, leg ulcers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long standing, deep-seated chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of the family physician, should not fail to call. According to their system, no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goitre or certain forms of cancer. They were among the first in America to earn the name of the "Bloodless Surgeons" by doing away with the knife, with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases. If you have kidney or bladder trouble bring a two-ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination. Deafness often has been cured in sixty days. No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to see them at once. Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable, they will give you such advice as may relieve and stay the disease. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness, as a visit this time may help you. Remember, this free offer is for one day only. Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents. Office at Boyd hotel. Hours 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. M102

Preparing for the Future. "He drinks heavily." "I know it." "He gambles." "I am going to marry him to reform him."

Nothing to Pay For. "When are you going to pay me that $5.00 you owe me?" asked an attorney of one of his acquaintances. "What $5.00?" "The $5.00 for the opinion you had of me."

Mutual Satisfaction. "What is this? A portrait of Dauber by himself, eh? Seems a queer idea for a man to paint his own portrait."

WONDERS OF THE YOSEMITE.

First Seen by White Men During a Chase After Indians.

It was in the middle years of the last century that the eyes of a white man caught their first glimpse of the wonders of the Yosemite. In January, 1850, Dr. Bunnell, while prospecting for gold in the Sierra Nevada mountains saw a stupendous cliff looming up in the distance, but did not then take time to make any investigation.

In March, 1851, the Mariposa battalion, commanded by Major Savage, of which Dr. Bunnell was a member, penetrated the mountains in pursuit of Indians, who had been giving great trouble to gold miners, prospectors and settlers. On the 21st of March they entered the valley, being, so far as known, the first white men to obtain a near view of its sublime cliffs and wonderful waterfalls, although a Captain Walker, with several companions, had crossed the Sierras and looked down into the valley shortly before. Dr. Bunnell quickly recognized in the giant cliff, now called El Capitan, the towering rock that had attracted his attention the year before, although he had then viewed it from a point fully forty miles away.

Four years later the first party of tourists visited the valley, arriving in June, 1855. A member of this party wrote a description of it for the Mariposa Gazette, which was widely copied in newspapers and magazines in this and other countries, being the first authentic description ever published. JEBEL MUSA.

Mount Upon Which Moses Received the Tables of the Law.

In a wild and desolate region in the southern half of the Sinai peninsula stands the mount which Moses ascended to receive the tables of the law. From its sacred associations this mountainous region has long been a favorite abode of religious recluses. The mountain itself divides into three parts, and there has been much discussion as to the exact site of the giving of the law.

Jebel Musa, the central of the three peaks, is now considered as best fulfilling the conditions described in Scripture. At its base is the broad plain of sufficient extent to permit the encampment of the hosts of Israel. The peak itself rises to a height of 7,363 feet, and on its northeastern slope, at an elevation of about 5,000 feet, is the monastery of St. Catherine. So precipitous is the side of the mountain at this point that the only means of access to the monastery is by a windlass. In this lofty dwelling place, however, are housed some thirty monks of the Greek church.

The whole place was favorite of the Christian anchorites of the early centuries, and the rocks are full of the cells and caves in which they lived. There are to be seen here also numerous ancient inscriptions upon the rocks which are of great interest to archaeologists, and one of the best manuscripts of the Bible was discovered here in 1859. - Brooklyn Eagle.

The Pugnacious Arctic Dog. Arctic dogs seem to love fighting for its own sake, and so long as it is a fight they are said to be indifferent as to why they fight, how they fight and whom they fight. Two dogs, seeing another dog enjoying a meat can that has been empty for months, will spring on him, roll him over and seemingly tear him to pieces. Fortunately, the wool is so long and thick that the attacking dog gets his mouth too full of hair to be able to bite his antagonist's flesh. The dogs know that their vulnerable points are the ears and belly. When a dog is attacked by two or three of his companions he will run into a snow bank, shove his head in and, lying on his stomach, let his foes choke themselves with the hair they tear out of his back. - Harper's.

All in the Name. "Funny thing about names," says Noah Count of Chiggerbite. "Now, there was my old friend Yule B. Sick. He started in the drug business and plastered all over town: 'Take Our Drugs - Yule B. Sick - The Busy Corner.' Well, he didn't have any more trade than a rabbit. So one day he takes a squint at that sign and sees what's the matter. Had a sudden inspiration and ran for a sign painter. The next day all over town was 'Take Our Drugs - Y. B. Sick - The Busy Corner.' And now he's the richest man in this here town." - Kansas City Star.

They Were Orphans. "What a mendacious duffer you are, Philbs," said Dibbs. "You said this was an orphan asylum, instead of which it is an old men's home." "Well, you go in and look for an old man who isn't an orphan. You won't find him."

Will Make Him Crazy. "Ma expects to be blamed for every thing soon." "Why?" "Pa says he's going to swear off smoking again." - Detroit Free Press.

schildt of Norfolk were Hoskins visitors Sunday.

The Edwards & Bradford auditor spent Sunday at the Edwards & Bradford hall.

Venus Rublow was in Wayne Thursday and Friday taking eighth grade examinations.

Those on the sick list with neuritis: Mrs. F. Miller, Mrs. R. Rohrke and Mrs. John Foster.

Misses Nellie Whaley and Margaret Schomel were Wayne visitors last Saturday afternoon.

H. S. Hannan of Grand Island, representing the M. B. of America, spent Thursday in Hoskins.

The thermometer at daybreak on Tuesday morning showed 32 degrees above zero in Hoskins.

Rev. Mr. Brauer of Hadar, and daughter Marie, were visitors at the Heberon home last Thursday.

The 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Krause fell from a lawn swing Tuesday evening and broke her arm.

Mr. F. Hart visited the Bowman & Krantz yards at Craig and Uehling, leaving Friday and returning Monday.

F. Miller drove to Wayne in his new car Sunday. He brought back with him Harry and Minnie Kieper who remained until Monday.

The new cement garage is now completed. Mr. Miller has been busy demonstrating since the arrival of his two new Buick cars.

Mr. H. Moses in company with Miss Reed and Mr. and Mrs. Lance brought Miss Bright to Hoskins in his car last Sunday evening.

Mrs. Fred Bright and son, Master Frank, in company with Mrs. Morrow, were present at the school exercises last Friday afternoon.

Misses Dora Green, Nellie Whaley, Margaret Schomel and Messrs. James McConnaghe and Leslie Kranz were Hadar visitors last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heberon celebrated the event of their fifteenth wedding anniversary in the midst of a large circle of invited guests last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Saehjen, old-time residents of near Hoskins, returned last Wednesday from a two months' visit with relatives in Kansas and other states.

The Edwards & Bradford hall was the scene of a merry gathering last Thursday evening. On this occasion the young men of the village invited their lady friends to a strawberry feast.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Moratz, jr., and Mr. and Mrs. F. Benser, Mr. and Mrs. F. Aroushildt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wezlich, Miss Bertha Moratz and John Aroushildt were guests Sunday at the Will Moratz home in Wayne.

John Strasser left Monday for Hadar, Neb., where he enters the employ of the Farmer's Co-operative Elevator company. While we are sorry to lose Mr. Strasser, we are glad to see him go to a better position.

The village school gave a closing day program and exhibit on last Friday afternoon. Each pupil was represented by his written work done during the school year, giving the parent or patron a fair measure of the child's progress made during this time. The thirty minute program of each room consisted of songs and recitations by the pupils of each room respectively. The class paper was particularly excellent and was immensely enjoyed by all present. Miss Fair and Miss Whaley will continue their work with us during the coming year. Miss Bright will go to Winside to teach and Miss Wegener to Iowa.

Earl Worth and Fred Soderberg started for Fairmont, Minn., Monday where they will stay this summer.

Would it not be well before the close of the year for the Bachelor club and the Spinners society to hold a meeting for the purpose of considering co-operation for the mutual benefit of their members?

A MADE OVER STATUE.

Designed to Pose as a King, It Now Represents a Saint.

The most made over statue in the world is in a quiet little church at Yarmouth, Isle of Wight. It was originally designed for that of Louis XIV. of France and was the work of a Roman sculptor who started for France with the statue, but was captured on the way by an English warship. France and England were then at war, and the box containing the statue was taken on board the English vessel with other spoils.

When Sir Richard Holmes, the English commander, examined it and found the head was unfinished he ordered the sculptor to complete it in his own likeness, and so the heroic figure that was intended to represent a French monarch was turned into an officer of the English navy.

When Sir Richard was made governor of the Isle of Wight in 1667, he presented the statue of himself to the Yarmouth church. Half a century after his death a statue of St. John was desired for a certain niche in the church, and an English sculptor was called in to chisel out the face and naval hat of Sir Richard and make them over into the beauteous features and flowing locks of the saint.

The incongruity of court clothes and a jeweled chain on the figure of one of the apostles did not seem to strike the worshippers as anything unusual, and St. John still occupies his place by the altar attired in the finery of a French king. - New York Press.

GIRAFFES IN BATTLE.

The Long Necked Animals Wield Their Heads as Weapons.

The giraffe has an original and curious method of fighting. The long necked beast has neither claws nor hoofs nor sharp teeth with which to defend or attack, so when it is out of temper with one of its own kind it does not fly in the face of provocation by trying to disembowel its adversary, as a tiger might, or toss it, as a rhinoceros would.

On the contrary, the giraffe, knowing that it has been provided by nature with a long and pliable neck, terminating in a very solid head, uses the upper part of itself like a club and, swinging its neck round and round in a way that does immense credit to its organization, brings its head down at each swing with a thump on its adversary.

The other combatant adopts precisely the same tactics, and the two animals, planting themselves as firmly as possible by stretching out on all four legs to the utmost, stand opposite each other, hammering with their heads until one or the other has had enough.

The head of the giraffe is furnished with two stumpy, horn-like processes, so that the animals when at this hammer and tongs method of warfare remind the spectator somewhat of two ancient warriors thumping each other with the spiked balls they used to carry for that purpose at the end of chains. Harper's Weekly.

The Triple Plume.

The three feathers of the Prince of Wales, with the German motto, "Ich dien" ("I serve"), are supposed to be the arms of the blind king of Bohemia, whom Edward III's son, the Black Prince, overcame at Cressy. The captor, it will be remembered, waited in his own tent upon his captive; hence a special significance to the words "I serve." In this, however, we have a story that history refuses to accept. The triple plume, indeed, as well as feathers of various numbers, came into general use about the time of Edward III. But it was not unknown before that time, and even at that time it was not the distinctive cognizance of the Prince of Wales. Other members of the royal family bore it as well as he. Not till the reign of Henry VII. was the triple plume within a coronet restricted to the eldest son of the sovereign. - St. Louis Republic.

The Horse.

The reins may guide the horse, the bit may inspire him by its careful manipulation and the whip may urge him forward to greater ambition, but the human voice is far more potent than all these agencies. Its assuring tones will more quickly dispel his fright, its sharp, clear, electric commands will more thoroughly arouse his ambition and its gentle, kindly praises will more competently encourage the intelligent road horse than the united force of the bit and reins and the lash. No animal in domestic use more readily responds to the power of kindness than the road horse. - Exchange.

His Egotism.

"What is the matter with Jones? He used to be a modest sort of fellow, but lately he seems almost bursting with self importance." "Haven't you heard? Mrs. Jones is suing another woman for alienating his affections and puts the damages at $30,000." - Judge.

The Law.

Of all the parts of a law, the most effectual is the vindictory, for it is but lost labor to say, "Do this or avoid that," unless we also declare, "This shall be the consequence of your non-compliance." The main strength and force of a law consist in the penalty annexed to it. - Blackstone.

Faces Over the Doors.

Those who visit Pompeii for the first time are struck by one significant feature of those little houses whose owners have been dead for 2,000 years. That is the faces which are often carved over the door or in the atrium and intended to convey a welcome or a defiance to the entering guest. The New House, as it is called, because it is the last rescued from the tomb of ashes, has before it two marble heads on pillars rising from beds of roses. Their faces are turned to greet the stranger.

W. S. Goldie was given a surprise party June 1, 1892, in honor of his twenty-eighth birthday.
Born, May 30, 1892, to Mr. and Mrs. E. Fuhs, a boy; May 27, 1892, to Mr. and Mrs. James Finn, a boy.
Members of the graduating class of 1892: Luella and Ida Alexander, Earl Wright, Harry Fisher and Ed King.

From the Wayne Herald, May 29, 1902:
J. W. Ziegler buys the residence property of Mrs. W. C. Parsons for $1,300.
Died, May 23, 1902, John L. Pawelski, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pawelski.
Married, May 28, 1902, Mr. William A. Saunders and Miss Clara A. Madsen, both of Wakefield.
The Christian Endeavor convention of the First Nebraska district convenes in Wayne, June 6 to 9, 1902.
The Nebraska Presbytery met in Wayne, and among other duties, ordained Lloyd Cunningham as a minister, and installed Rev. Peter Birrell as pastor of the Wayne Presbyterian church.

From Ponca Journal, May 27, 1880:
From Sioux City comes an invitation to Professor Davies to remove to that place for the purpose of teaching music. They promise him a large class, as well as the position of organist in one of the churches, if he will go, but he has not yet determined whether he will or not.
Alf. Barnes visited the Ionia valley no last Sunday. He says it has apparently worked its last wunk, all that is left to tell the tale of its former fire throwing propensities being a few pieces of Singlass which he brought home with him. This gives all a chance to see the volcano by calling at Mr. Barnes' office, where he has the thing stored. It is not serving Ionia just right, either to carry away their volcano, but they have had it a long time and we might as well take charge of it a while.

It now looks as though instead of being left without any railroad at all, Wayne county will soon be traversed by two first-class railroads. The Union Pacific company are having a survey made from Norfolk, the present across Wayne to Middle Creek, thence down the Elk Creek valley in Dakota county, which brings it within about a mile of Summit, and on to Covington. The St. Paul company have ordered work to be commenced on the old Columbus grade to LaPorte, whence A. K. Nash and party are now running a line to Norfolk. There seems to be a strong rivalry between the Union Pacific and St. Paul companies, and unless a compromise is made the indications are that both companies will have a rail connection between Norfolk and Sioux City.

From the Ponca Journal, May 23, 1878:
A covered wagon passed our office on Tuesday bearing the expressive motto: "To— with railroading." We second the motion, if he means the narrow gauge.
The glorious, patriotic, whoopemup, squawk the buzzard Fourth, will soon be here. Firecrackers will fizz, the rip-roaring rocket will scour the heavens, the orator will flourish his red bandana and sweat and shriek about our "berlood bought liberty" and our hind-fathers' heroism; weak lemonade will disappear in enormous quantities, and brass bands will torment the tender tympanum; forty million throats will murder "Hail Columbia," and the wise man will rave and tear his hair, and finally take to the brush until the tumult is over.

Wayne, like Every City and Town in the Union, Receives It.

People with kidney ills want to be cured. When one suffers the tortures of an aching back, relief is eagerly sought for. There are many remedies today that relieve, but do not cure. Doan's Kidney Pills have cured thousands. Here is Wayne evidence to prove it:
W. H. Hoguewood of Wayne, Neb., says: "About a year ago my back was so painful and lame that I could scarcely get up after sitting. Other symptoms of kidney trouble left no doubt as to what sort of treatment was needed. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in our home for a similar complaint and had given such great benefit that I finally decided to try them. I was not disappointed with the results. I found relief almost immediately and in a short time was cured. I have since been free from kidney complaint and in return for this permanent cure I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills whenever I have had an opportunity."

GOOD ROADS AND THE FARMER

Why He is the One Most Interested in Their Upkeep.

THE GOOD WORK IN KANSAS.

State Agricultural College Advocates Holding Meetings to Boost the Movement Throughout the State—Outline of an Instructive Program.

How many farmers know that it costs them 25 cents a mile to haul a ton of farm produce to a market over the ordinary unimproved roads? How many know that for a few cents an acre a year—less probably than the value of the grain they drop in feeding or hauling—they could pay their share on the cost of a good road? How many ever think about the wet feet of their children, who trudge through mud to sit all day damp and snuffling in a poorly ventilated schoolroom? It is to alleviate these conditions that the Kansas Agricultural college is holding meetings and inviting the grangers and farmers' associations to talk at them.

The following program has been outlined:

Methods.—(1) Right and wrong grading season, tools, width of road, etc. (2) Fair average cost of grading perfectly one mile of road. (3) Right and wrong methods of draining a road. (4) Drugging—when, how, by whom, fair cost, etc. (5) Why not contract both grading and drugging? (6) Advantages of concrete or stone bridges and culverts, durability, use of home labor, etc.

Laws and Policies.—(1) Why not separate office of assessor from that of road trustee and elect road trustees on score of fitness to supervise the building of roads and keep them busy at least from March 1 to October? (2) Advantage of classifying roads into county and township roads, etc., according to law. (3) Why not build each year a few miles of permanent earth roads instead of "patching" all the roads, building first the roads with greatest travel? (4) Reports of funds available this year for township roads. Why not have a county road and bridge engineer?

CARPETS FOR ROADS.

An "Elastic Skin" Recommended by English Expert.

A lecture was recently delivered by a member of the road board before the Royal Institution of London on "The Road—Past, Present and Future." The lecturer said the problem was to find the best mode by which a road should be constructed so that its surface would not be broken by traffic, so that the transit might be easier for both passengers and goods, a road which would form neither puddle holes nor exude mud from vehicles and create no dust when the weather was dry.

One thing was universally recognized—that the road of the future should be a truly bound road in which, whatever kind of stone was used, the stone-ever kind be held together so that it would form a crust. The lecturer suggested that what he called a carpet or an elastic skin should be adopted as the covering.

The carpet, he thought, should be made of bituminous material mixed with sand and placed on the roads in various thicknesses according to the nature of the traffic. It should go on in liquid form, solidifying quickly, but always remaining resilient and compressible and so integrating with the crust of the road that there could be no shifting of the surface below.

The advantage of such a carpet, it was said, would be to permanently protect the crust, and just as a carpet on the floor softens the step so would this carpet for the roads silence the noise and reduce the shock of rolling vehicles. It was admitted that the original cost of a road so laid would be more than that of a mud bound road, but spreading the cost over a series of years it would probably not be so great, since the crust of the road itself would not have to be renewed.

COINS AND THE MINT.

Metal Money That Uncle Sam's Officials Buy and Sell.

The mint does not buy old coins or paper money, except certain rare colonial coins in fine condition, desired for the mint's cabinet. Mutilated or uncurrent United States gold and silver coin is purchased as bullion.

New coins cannot be struck in this country in the absence of authorization by congress. The mint supplies United States coins only and not of any past date.

The coinage of the following coins ceased in the years named: The half cent, copper, in 1857; one cent, nickel, 1864; half dime and three cent, silver, and two cent, bronze, in 1873; twenty cent, silver, 1878; three dollars, 1893; one dollar, and three dollar, gold, and five cent nickel, 1899.

The Columbia half dollar was coined in 1892 and the Isabella quarter in 1893. The Lafayette dollar was struck in 1899, the date on the coin (1900) being that of the unveiling of the memorial.

Certain markings, indicating the place of coinage, are to be seen on our coins. Those struck at the Philadelphia mint have no mint mark, but those struck at

EDITORIAL EXCERPTS. FAVORITE SONS. Omaha Bee: Every state has its favorite son, but some, including Iowa, have queer ways of favoring them. METHODISTS FOR PEACE. From the Tribune: The Methodist general conference voted an endorsement of President Taft's peace treaties and international arbitration. The Methodists are a great and a strong and a patriotic organization, on the whole made up of clear-thinking, God-fearing men and women. They may reasonably lay claim to being about as near right as those who argue for the building of Dreadnaughts and for a large standing army and who swing a big stick and love the smell of blood and delight in warlike action.

OUTSIDE INVESTMENTS. Omaha Bee: Reports keep coming back to Nebraska of investments made outside by men who accumulated their wealth at home. This is poor advertising for Nebraska at a time when the energies of most are bent in the direction of developing the latent resources of the state and attracting outside capital, and it does not seem right that local capital should go abroad for investment. California land doubtless looks fair under the sunshine, but government reports show that Nebraska's crops annually exceed in dollars and cents by a very wide margin the California output. Our capitalists should get better acquainted with their home state.

A SOLEMN JOKE. Lincoln Journal: Maryland for Champ Clark, too! Really, democratic brothers, isn't this carrying the joke almost too far? It is well enough for Pike county to have its candidate for president. We all welcomed the hot air. The situation had become too tense to be pleasant, and our good humor came back with the advent of the dawg and the annexation statesman. But there's such a thing as too much fun. Champ Clark is fine in his place. Ever since he rolled up his sleeves and told a member from Maine that he had more mouth and less brains than any man that ever sat in the American congress, his place as the congressional popoff has been secure! But his place as president—that's another matter. Of course we see the logic of it. This isn't any kind of popular wave, though it does carry popular votes in Nebraska, Massachusetts, Illinois, Maryland and the like. The party leaders see the point. Bryan has condemned Harmon and Underwood. The reactionaries have repudiated Wilson. Nobody has kicked Clark. Why should they? He isn't against anybody. The democrats seek victory, granted only they find a candidate nobody opposes. And that's Champ Clark—lovable, tractable, as hard to hate as a bale of cotton, and just about as likely to disturb anybody. He talks progressive, but, living as Senator LaFollette says, twenty years ago, he gives no chills to stand-patters. Such purely negative candidates as this used to win presidential elections. It is probably different now. But could the democrats afford to win with such a candidate? Why not rather nominate Punch and Judy and so at least win credit for smiling under true colors?

AFTER THE NOMINATION. Springfield, Mass., Republican: Are there more Taft supporters who will not swallow Roosevelt, or more Roosevelt supporters who will not swallow Taft? It is a question to half of which only can the November election furnish an answer and that but approximately. Yet in spite of the spirit of unrest and the ill-founded hostility to Mr. Taft, to which Mr. Roosevelt has contributed by his misrepresentations, our guess is that in view of the third term issue there are more Taft than Roosevelt men who would vote the democratic ticket. Yet one thing is apparently growing certain. If Mr. Taft is nominated, among those who do not vote for him will be Colonel Roosevelt, and vice versa. It is difficult to see how either the president or the ex-president could possibly reconcile a vote for the other in November with what has been said within the last few weeks. As Mr. Roosevelt has increased in violence the impression has grown strong to the point of conviction that he is preparing to lead a bolt if defeated at Chicago. On the other hand, Mr. Taft, although a strict party man, has repeatedly declared that "next to the constitution" the custom which forbids a third term "is our most valuable government tradition." In the light of that statement, deliberately and solemnly made, even were it not for the personal charges which Mr. Taft has been forced to lay at Theodore Roosevelt's door, and it would seem that Mr. Roosevelt were to be nominated at Chicago, we should have the spectacle of a republican president voting against, or at least failing to vote for, the party nominee. How many hundreds of thousands that follow Mr. Taft's example only a prophet can tell.

HOW TO USE THE ROAD DRAG Get the Right Materials and Don't Make it Too Heavy.

PLANKS OR LOGS ARE BEST. Two Principles Involved in the Successful Operation of the Drag-Position of the Driver and Length of the Hitch to Be Considered.

The earth road is by far the most common type of highway in this country. Its cheapness in comparison with other types of construction and the absence in many sections of the country of rock, gravel or other hard natural materials for road building will render its use necessary for many years to come. There are at present in this country about 1,000,000 miles of such roads, most of which must be maintained by some means more or less expensive. The split log drag is of great service on roads of this class, and an increasing mileage of the rural highways of this country is being kept in repair economically and well by the use of this simple implement. Two mistakes are commonly made in constructing a drag. The first lies in making it too heavy. It should be so light that one man can easily lift it. Besides, a light drag responds more readily to various methods of hitching.

and to the shifting of the position and weight of the operator, both of which are essential considerations. The other mistake is in the use of squared timbers instead of those with sharp edges, whereby the cutting effect of the sharp edges is lost and the drag is permitted to glide over instead of to equalize the irregularities in the surface of the road.

A dry cedar log is the best material for a drag. It is cut and sawed when thoroughly dried and excellent, and box elder, soft maple or even willow is preferable to oak, hickory or ash. Drags are often constructed of planks instead of logs. There is nothing in the construction of a plank drag that calls for particular mention except the strengthening of the planks along their middle line by a 2 by 6 inch strip. A triangular strip may be used under the lower edge of the blade to give it the proper cutting slope.

The successful operation of a drag involves two principles, which, when thoroughly understood and intelligently applied, make road working with this implement very simple. The first concerns the length and position of the hitch, while the second deals with the position of the driver on the drag. Each influences the other to a large extent, and successful manipulation of the drag is dependent upon an understanding of both of them.

For ordinary purposes the snatch link or clevis should be fastened far enough toward the blade end of the chain to force the unloaded drag to follow the team at an angle of 45 degrees. This will cause the earth to move along the face of the drag smoothly and will give comparatively light draft to the team, provided the driver rides in the line of draft. Sometimes, however, conditions are met which require special treatment, and in a rolling country such conditions are not infrequent. Often a flat place several rods in length or a seepy spot needs special attention. The distance from the drag at which the team is hitched affects the depth of the cutting. Shortening the chain tends to lift the front slab from the ground. A longer hitch causes the blade to cut more deeply. The length of hitch may be regulated by lengthening and shortening the chain at the end which runs through the hole in the blade end of the drag. The advantages to be gained from the persistent use of a road drag may be summarized as follows: First-The maintenance of a smooth, serviceable earth road free from ruts and mudholes. Second-Obtaining such a road surface with the expenditure of very little money and labor in comparison with the money and labor required for other methods. Third-The reduction of mud in wet weather and of dust in dry weather.

THE MUD NUISANCE ON OILED MACADAM ROADS. A Question That Is Perplexing Road Engineers.

With the coming of summer mud engineers have brought again before them the perplexing question which has been giving many of their gray hairs for several seasons past: What shall we do this season to cope with the dust nuisance on macadamized streets?

Probably the most generally adopted plan has been the sprinkling of the macadam with some asphaltic oil. It has been demonstrated that where heavy traffic does not predominate such sprinkling is a success in preventing disintegration and undue wear by building up a rubbery traffic mat on top of the stone.

But in escaping from the chorus of complaints of the dust nuisance the engineer runs foul of a new set of protests from indignant citizens who find carriage varnish, clothing and floor coverings ruined by the black, greasy mud which covers these roads after every hard rain.

The cause of this nuisance has been variously explained, but the condition has seldom been remedied. It has now been shown that asphaltic oils and water will form an emulsion whenever colloidal matter like clay is added. This is what happens to the asphalt bound traffic mat under the soaking of rain and the kneading of traffic. Considerable loam and litter are carried on to the road in the course of ordinary traffic, and the rain and wheels complete the process. After the rain has ceased the emulsion gradually dries out, and the traffic mat eventually becomes as effective as before, but it is again converted to mud by the next heavy storm. When the mat contains a large proportion of bitumen and is dense and rubbery this emulsifying is delayed, but only delayed. When the mat grows older and so much dirt and litter have been ground into it that the proportion of bitumen is lowered, then its earlier water-shedding qualities are lost and its surface is slimy, slippery and nasty after every shower.

Several remedies are conceivable, but practical objections arise to all of them. For instance, before applying the binder great care must be paid to removing the last traces of fine dust and litter, and in throwing on gravel, small stone or screenings as a filter. The finest dust is to be discarded. Moreover, this filter, must be of a material not easily reduced to an impalpable powder under traffic. Every means must be taken to prevent the carriage of dirt and litter on to the traffic mat, as by providing frequently cleaned approaches. The unavoidable accumulations of dirt and litter must be removed before each storm. More oil should perhaps be added from time to time during the season to keep the bitumen percentage high and the water-shedding qualities of the mat unimpaired. The expense involved in these measures is obvious.

So impractical, therefore, seem all the present expedients for preventing this greasy mud that the trouble seems like a necessary wet weather evil of oiled macadam. BEST ROADS IN THE WORLD. The Splendid System in France That Has Brought This About. In France, where they have the best roads of any country in the world, the highways are divided into several classes, but all of them are supervised by the national government, which maintains a bureau of roads and bridges and supports a school for the education of the engineers and inspectors who are employed in the bureau. This method of building and maintaining roads in France was started by the first Napoleon, who appears to have been the earliest European statesman who clearly saw the economic advantage of proper highways and who at the same time had the power to carry out what he wished. The effect of these good roads in France has been wonderful. They have brought all of the various parts of the country nearer together, they have made country life less lonesome, and they have reduced the cost of transportation of country produce to a minimum. France is the only country in Europe where the agricultural classes are not dissatisfied and where they do not feel that they have a harder time than those who labor in other fields.

Work in Alabama. Mobile county, Ala., is preparing to surface 100,000 yards of road with chert, clay, gravel and oyster shells.

Good roads will create a happier condition of the people and make this an ideal country to live in.

Fifty years ago there was an excuse for bad roads for the country was poor, but there is not much excuse now.

The roads will never be good as long as the work is left to the individual to work when and how he pleases.

We need more education of local authorities as to the application of local materials and to proper methods of road work.

Every state should enact uniform road laws and provide for a system of state regulation to be followed by local road officials.

In For Life. A certain English peer drove in a taxicab to Westminster and when he got out gave the driver a very small tip. The driver mistook him for a member of the house of commons and snarled: "I hope you get turned out next election and don't never get in again!" "Don't worry, my friend," said the peer as he set off for the house of lords. "Don't worry-I'm in for life."

He who has health has hope, and he who has hope has everything.-Archie Frost.

BLUE LAWS OF OLD ENGLAND. Codes That Terrorized New England in Colonial Days. ENACTED BY THE PURITANS.

Witchcraft Was an Offense Punishable With Death, and It Was a Crime For Husband and Wife or Mother and Child to Kiss on the Sabbath Day.

Blue laws were no joke, though often an object of irony and derision. They were drawn up by Puritan pioneers—a race of stern and inflexible men who in the excess of their religious zeal and enthusiasm adopted such sanctimonious names as Stand-Fast-on-High Stringer, Kill-Sin Smith, More Fruit Fowler, Fight-the-Good-Fight Fowler.

These men went straight to the old Mosaic law of Holy Writ for their code. In fact, each section of the capital laws has its Bible text appended—a grewsome combination of sermon and death warrant.

The original blue laws were those written of New Haven, Connecticut colony, at the first more or less unwritten, or at least unprinted, but systematized and printed by Governor Eaton in 1656. They were enveloped in blue colored paper, whence the popular and subsequently unpopular name.

The Plymouth and Massachusetts colonies also had their blue laws, calculated to send a chill through every human vein. Even New York, Maryland, Virginia and South Carolina in fact all the English colonial settlements in seventeenth century America had laws, orders and resolutions of more or less pronounced indigo tint. But the true blue laws or code was that which terrorized early Connecticut. These, known as capital laws, and purporting to punish, according to the penalties prescribed in the Old Testament, those offenses forbidden therein, were enacted in April, 1642. The texts of Scripture on which they are based were added to each law, as dicta probantia, showing the divine authority by which they were defended, and are singular specimens of jurisprudence.

For instance, witchcraft is one of the first offenses taken up. "It is enacted that if a man or woman be a witch or hath consulted with a familiar spirit they shall be put to death." And if any man steal a man or mankind or sell him or be found in his hand he shall be put to death.

Yet the good colonists made slaves of the Pequot Indians as the regulation punishment for breaking these same blue laws. The Puritan legislators, having disposed of the ordinary everyday crimes, went on in due course to enact the more minute laws, covering every conceivable misdemeanor, from sneezing in church to crossing a stream otherwise than by the licensed ferry.

It reminds one of De Quincey's ironical observations to the effect that the habit of murder if persisted in may lead insensibly to procrastination and Sabbath breaking.

The following examples, transcribed literally from the best authorities on American colonial history, relate mostly to the heinous crime of Sabbath breaking: "No one shall run on the Sabbath day or walk in his garden or elsewhere except reverently to and from meeting." "No one shall travel, cook victuals, make beds, sweep house, cut hair or shave on the Sabbath day." "No woman shall kiss her child on the Sabbath or fasting day." "The Sabbath shall begin at sunset on Saturday." "If any man shall kiss his wife or wife kiss her husband on the Lord's day the party at fault shall be punished at the discretion of the court of magistrates."

(Tradition says a gentleman of New Haven after an absence of some months reached home on the Sabbath and meeting his wife at his door, kissed her with an appetite and for his temerity in violating this law the next day was arraigned before the court and fined for so palpable a breach of the law on the Lord's day.) "No one shall read common prayer, keep Christmas or saints' days, make minced pies, dance, play cards or play on any instrument of music except the drum, trumpet and Jewsharp."

It is said by Peters in his "History of Connecticut" that these laws were the laws made by the people of New Haven previous to their incorporation with Saybrook and Hartford colonies and, as he says, "were very properly termed blue laws—i. e., bloody laws." "For," says he, "they were all sanctified with excommunication, confiscation, fines, banishment, whipping, cutting off the ears, burning the tongue and death."—New York Sun.

STORIES OF PIUS IX. The Lady Who Told the Pontiff She Wished He Were Dead.

Lady Paget in the Nineteenth Century has a chapter of recollections dealing with life in Rome during the first years of completely united Italy, when Lady Paget's husband was British ambassador to the Quirinal. Among her stories are some of Pope Pius IX., which show that pontiff in a most amiable light. Though the pope had twice excommunicated the king, they really loved each other, says Lady Paget, "for they were made of the same kind of stuff, and both belonged emphatically to the days that are past and gone. Impulsive in action, primesautier and generous in temperament, they allowed themselves the luxury of sometimes letting their feelings deviate from what orders might consider the stern path of duty."

When King Victor Emmanuel died his chaplain, against all rules, gave him absolution for everything, though he was under the major excommunication. The pope sent for the priest, inquired most feelingly about the king's last moments, and when the chaplain confessed Pius IX., with tears in his eyes, cried: "Hai fatto bene! Hai fatto bene!" "You have done well! You have done well!"

Another story illustrates Pius IX.'s sense of humor. It concerns Mme. de Corcelles, the wife of the ambassador to the Vatican, a delightful old lady, who often visited Lady Paget, in spite of prohibitions. "For," she declared, "I am the granddaughter of Lafayette, and I do what I please." She never addressed the cardinals as eminence, but hailed them in cheery tones as her "dear cardinals." When one day she visited Pius IX., he asked her whether she had seen all the sights of Rome. "Yes, holy father," she replied, "but I should dearly like to see a conclave." "This story was told by the pontiff himself."

PORT SAID GAMBLERS. Traps They Have Ready Baited to Fleece Unwary Tourists.

Picturesque Port Said, at the entrance to the Suez canal, is given an unsavory reputation by J. Johnston Abraham in his book, "The Surgeon's Log." Ugly stories are told about the town, the writer says, and his description of a gambling house fitted on purpose to fleece the unwary traveler bears out his assertion.

Suddenly as we drew near one house the strains of music came echoing into the empty sandy street. As if at a signal the decrepit chariot stood still, my guide got down and suggested I should go in. I thought rapidly and then followed him. It was queer, and I wanted to know. He led the way upstairs into a large room, where several men were playing roulette. None took any notice of me, but apparently the bank was having a very bad time of it. Every one was winning. The music from the automatic piano was deafening. I looked on silently for some time and then made a move for the door. An oily looking Greek intercepted me. "Won't you try your luck?" he said. "I'm not drunk enough," I answered.

He shrugged his shoulders, and I passed on. On the stairs I paused and then stole quietly back. The music had ceased, and all the confederates who had been playing so feverishly and winning so much had ceased also and were preparing to resume the siesta my advent had so fruitlessly interrupted.

Free Drinks. In the French chamber of deputies each speaker has to mount a tribune near the president's chair. On a deputy coming forward to address the assembly an usher invariably brings a glass of some beverage and places it at his side. Under the empire orators were allowed only a glass of sweetened water, and nowadays when a new speaker advances the usher, to be on the right side, gives him a glass of sweetened water, but among the veteran speakers water alone is not very high in favor. Cold soup, coffee, wine, spirits and lemonade are among the favorite beverages.

Perpetual Motion. Perpetual motion machine? Suppose that man could finally perfect a machine that would run itself. It would not deliver a trace of power. The entire force would be employed in the running. It would have to be free from friction, not nearly, but absolutely. This man cannot accomplish. But the machine would of necessity have to start itself, an impossibility. Only creative mind is able to do this.—New York American.

No Excuse. "We shall never have her in another club we get it." "What's the matter?" "Her mother died last week, and she resigned on that account." "I don't see how you can blame her for that. It seems to me that she did the proper thing." "I knew you'd think that. But it was her turn to entertain next."—Detroit Free Press.

Reasonable Anxiety. "Captain," said the pilot anxiously, "I fear the vessel is ashore." "Humph!" ejaculated the captain as the steamer's nose went further into the mud, "your fears seem to be like the vessel, well grounded!"—Baltimore American.

Guard Your Children Against Bowel Trouble

Many children at an early age become constipated, and frequently serious consequences result. Not being able to realize his own condition, a child's bowels should be constantly watched, and a gentle laxative given when necessary. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are especially well adapted to women and children. The Sisters of Christian Charity, 531 Charles St., Luzerne, Pa., who attend many cases of sickness say of them:

"Some time ago we began using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, and find that we like them very much. Their action is excellent and we are grateful for having been made acquainted with them. We have had good results in every case and the Sisters are very much pleased."

The form and flavor of any medicine is very important, no matter who is to take it. The taste and appearance are especially important when children are concerned. All parents know how hard it is to give the average child "medicine," even though the taste is partially disguised. In using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, however, this difficulty is overcome. The shape of the tablets, their appearance, and candy-like taste are all pleasant to any child, with the result that they are taken without objection.

The medicinal value of the tablets is also of great importance. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are the ideal remedy for children.

If the mother fails to benefit, the physician should give your druggist a prescription for tablets only 25 cents a box. Bulk, MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.
