

BULL MOOSERS ROUT TAFT MEN AT LINCOLN

GOVERNOR ALDRICH CHAIRMAN

Taft Supporters Hold Separate Conventions. Adopted Opposite Resolutions.

Lincoln, July 31.—Republicans of Nebraska parted company yesterday, holding two distinct conventions, adopting opposite declarations of principles, selecting two state central committees and paving the way for two state tickets to be voted for in November.

The break came on the evening of the executive committee of the old state central committee of a majority of the progressive delegates whose seats had been contested by the followers of President Taft.

The progressives thoroughly selected Governor Aldrich chairman and set the first rulings were to declare out of order a resolution declaring the feat of republicanism to be fealty to the national ticket.

Following the split, the plans in the main convention went through with a rush. The resolutions adopted by the progressives are silent as to national and state candidates.

It is the platform of the progressives that "in convention assembled, the republicans of the state of Nebraska reaffirm the fundamental principles enunciated by the founder of the party."

"We believe in a permanent non-partisan tariff commission and we demand that those schedules of the present tariff which have already been proven exorbitant be immediately reduced."

"We believe in a permanent non-partisan tariff commission and we demand that those schedules of the present tariff which have already been proven exorbitant be immediately reduced."

"We believe that representation of the national convention should be based upon the republican votes and not on population."

"We believe in the direct election of United States senators."

"We believe that the rules of the national committee should be so amended that members elected to the national committee should take their seats immediately upon election."

the senate a nomination of a federal judge, to send there with all the endorsements, written or oral, of said court and objections thereto.

"We believe in a thorough revision of our public road laws, looking to a more efficient system of road administration, to the end that the farmer may have better means of transportation from their farms to the markets."

"We believe in equal suffrage for women, and we pledge the republican party of Nebraska to do all in its power to bring it about."

"We object to the interference of federal officials with conventions and primaries, and we believe that a law should be passed taking the entire postoffice department out of politics."

"We believe in the short ballot as necessary for the preservation of the direct primary law."

"We believe in the initiative, referendum and recall, and the non-partisan board of control of our state institutions under civil service restrictions and we call upon all the people of the state to vote for the constitutional amendment providing for direct legislation."

The balance of the platform is devoted to state issues.

Following the walkout from the main Nebraska republican state convention held July 29 or 30, the number of progressive delegates who had been contested by the report of the committee marched in and took their places.

PROFESSORSHIP IS OFFERED WAYNE MAN

Rev. Alexander Corky, pastor of the Wayne Presbyterian church, has been offered a professorship in Bellevue college, similar to that occupied by Dr. A. E. Steiner at Grinnell, Ia. Dr. Steiner's work consists not only in teaching, but also in writing and lecturing and Bellevue college hopes that the Wayne pastor will accept the offer, agreeing to attend the summer sessions for his literary efforts.

DEMOCRATS ENDORSE BRYAN IN PLATFORM

CONVENTION WAS HARMONIOUS

Elected Thompson Chairman—Voted Against Telephone Merger and Women's Suffrage.

Grand Island, Neb., July 31.—The W. J. Bryan faction triumphed yesterday afternoon in the democratic convention to the extent that W. H. Thompson, Bryan man, was elected chairman of the state central committee over the present chairman, John C. Byrnes, who was a candidate for reelection.

The vote was close, Thompson receiving 478 votes and Byrnes 428. Changes following the roll call increased the majority of Thompson slightly.

The anti-Bryan men accepted defeat gracefully and declared their loyalty to the ticket.

Following the election of the new chairman and a new state central committee, the convention adjourned last night when the contest over the platform declaration endorsing the action of William Jennings Bryan at the Baltimore convention began.

Chairman Hanks of the platform committee submitted a report eulogistic of Bryan and his attitude at Baltimore, and the report was promptly challenged by a number of delegates, who objected to any mention of Bryan aside from pointing out his pride in the leadership he had taken in the past—eighteen years in Nebraska, and the nation.

Former Attorney General Arthur Mullen opposed the plank with vigor, declaring in effect that to endorse Bryan for his change from Champ Clark to Governor Wilson in the national convention was to put a premium upon bolting.

The resolution endorsing Bryan was finally adopted by a vote of 636 to 246. Aside from the endorsement of Mr. Bryan the platform says in part:

"We approve of the work of the democratic house of representatives and we heartily commend the Nebraska democratic delegation in each branch of congress for their faithful efforts to represent in the votes they have cast, the democratic sentiment of Nebraska."

The platform favors the proposed state constitutional amendments, opposes "log rolling" in the legislature, prohibits the endorsement of the anti-labor law, sees in the merger of telephone companies an effort to establish a monopoly, and deplores delays in the supreme court.

It denounces the sentences and imprisonment of Gompers and Mitchell and asks for the impeachment of Judge Wright. It favors the working man's compensatory law, opposes contributions to campaign funds by saloons or breweries; favors reservation of water power by the state and abolition of power contracts.

WAYNE'S BASE BALL RECORD FOR THE WEEK

LOCAL TEAM USUALLY WINNER

Review of Games Played Up to Date—Some Good Contents Scheduled for the Future.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE

AT HOME: Tuesday, August 6, Bloomfield vs. Wayne. Saturday, August 10, Carroll vs. Wayne. AWAY FROM HOME: Monday at Randolph. Wednesday open. Thursday at Coleridge. Friday at Crofton.

Since the last writing the Wayne aggregation have been playing great ball. Making a clean sweep last week by winning five games from Carroll, Wilson, Bloomfield and Coleridge, they began again by defeating Winfield 5 to 2 on the local diamond, but Bloomfield put a crimp in their percentage by taking them down the pike to the tune of 7 to 5.

Last Friday the M. G. R. took his bunch to Winster, in Holland, and played a beautiful game, winning 2 to 0, that being the second shutout for that city during the week.

Saturday Coleridge made their first appearance and were promptly trounced, 8 to 4, but not until after the most sensational rally seen here for some time.

Monday our good friend, Winside, blew into camp and promptly left, leaving their little imprint on our score book which reads 3 to 3.

Next week we are matched for a number of games at Randolph and Crofton against Bloomfield and Coleridge and sincerely hope that we come out on top and will if the same class of ball is played here as has been last week.

big battle Tuesday. They have the players and they fight to win. This will be the only game next week until Saturday. Don't miss it. Remember the date, Tuesday, August 6.

It is interesting to note that the game against Coleridge, Saturday, weighed in on the most market scales at 10:30 in the morning and again after the game. The scales showed that the lost just six pounds during the afternoon, which would demonstrate that base ball is play that takes some strenuous work.

When you are preparing to attend the ball games just think of some one you might influence to go along and bring them with you. The gate receipts must keep up in good shape if we are to keep the team going.

He armed himself with a shotgun and hurried in quest of the bold, bad intruders. Contrary to their expectations the door was barred and they could not get into the upstairs through the cellar. The doctor stationed himself at the window through which the burglar had entered, intending to let loose his artillery when escape was attempted. But he was outgeneraled by the cunning of the burglar who retreated through another opening. Therefore, the unwelcome visitor escaped with a whole hide. Nothing was taken from the basement.

DEMOCRATS MEET IN MASS CONVENTION

J. C. ECKER CHOSEN TO PRESIDE

Resolutions Pled With Usual Frequent Speeches Punctuated Proceedings.

The democrats of Wayne county held a mass convention in the court room Saturday afternoon, and they were apparently harmonious. One Republican individual taxed the patience of the meeting somewhat by frequent interruptions and speeches. A resolution introduced and passed restricting speakers to one speech did not seem to hold him. He talked whenever there was a lull in the proceedings notwithstanding when there was a lull in any talk. Aside from such lull, everything passed off serenely and joyfully. L. A. Kiplinger, democratic nominee for county attorney, was called on for an address and briefly reviewed the history of the democratic party, pointing to the future with confidence and enthusiasm.

The convention was called to order by H. C. Bartels, and then J. C. Ecker of Winslow was elected chairman and F. A. Berry of Wayne, secretary. W. D. Redmond, J. H. Kemp and Chas. Fry were appointed to prepare resolutions, and G. H. Garwood, E. O. Gardner and J. H. Mitchell were selected to present a list of delegates for the state convention. The reports of both committees were accepted without opposition.

Delegates to the state convention: W. D. Redmond, Herbert Lounsbury, S. L. Tidrick, W. H. James, L. A. Kiplinger, H. C. Bartels, J. H. Kemp and W. H. Root.

The following were the resolutions:

We, the democrats of Wayne county, in convention assembled, reaffirm our faith in the principles of democracy as exemplified in the lives and records of its illustrious leaders.

We read with pride to the democrats of the nation and congratulate them upon the nomination of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas R. Marshall for president and vice president of the United States.

We point with pride to the splendid record of our national candidates and invite the progressive element of all parties to unite in making Wilson and Marshall the choice of the people at the polls in November.

We endorse without reservation the state and congressional candidates and take pride in presenting them to the voters for their approval.

We especially endorse the efficient and painstaking work of State Senator Phil H. Kohl and Representative H. C. Bartels who served their constituents so acceptably in the last session of the Nebraska legislature, and commend them to the voters for re-election.

We commend our entire county ticket, including L. A. Kiplinger for county attorney, J. W. Ziegler for county assessor and Henry Klopfer for county commissioner, believing that the people's interests will be best served by their election.

We heartily endorse the wise, patriotic and courageous course pursued by the Honorable William J. Bryan and the delegates supporting him at the Baltimore convention, and the delegates to the state convention are instructed to vote on a unit against any effort to endorse or endorse by the introduction of resolutions either praising or censuring any delegates for his act at said convention.

The average merchant hates like thunder to cut the price, for a special price offering, on such goods which are new and right in season—and he seldom does. Our policy is different. We make it a practice to use not only for our Saturday bargains, but for every day leaders the "New" and the "New" goods—the goods which are timely and in the height of demand. SOME THINGS ABOUT HERALD'S PROGRESS

WHAT IT'S DONE IN TWO YEARS

Linotype, Folder, Motors and Other Equipments Installed Under Present Management.

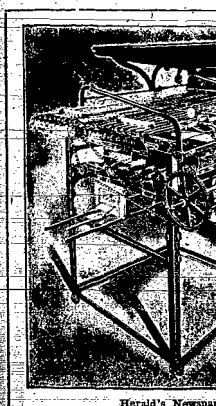

It has been just two years since the Herald passed into the hands of the present editor and manager, and it may not be deemed inappropriate at this time to briefly review some of the improvements made since August 1, 1910.

Immediately on taking charge two years ago, the office force was increased and salaries raised. The struggle to issue an improved paper with hand composition and hand folding prompted the purchase of a standard linotype machine and a folder.

More Than Local Paper.

It has been the policy of the Herald to make it a country paper, not a mere local affair. That the plan has been appreciated is testified to by increased circulation.

In Rich Territory.

Herald's Newspaper Folding Machine.

all parts of the best county in Nebraska in closer ties of friendship and business has been gratified to a considerable extent. In boosting for Wayne and Wayne county, and giving the territory a publication in which all can take an interest and to which all can point without apology, the Herald has tried to reciprocate patronage and other evidence of appreciation.

PAPER READ BEFORE PRESS ASSOCIATION

The Herald editor was sought to prepare a paper for the late meeting of the Nebraska Press Association, and did so. While he was unable to attend the meeting, his paper was read, and was later reproduced in the American Press and The Publishers' Auxiliary.

THE BEST NEWSPAPER MAKEUP.

The best newspaper makeup is the one that wins greatest favor among readers, and the makeup that suits a thoughtful, careful, painstaking newspaper manager is likely to attain that result, providing, of course, news features are satisfactory. Whether a daily or weekly, the makeup is important.

The best makeup does not refer merely to news matter. It means equal consideration for advertising and paid matter of all classes.

Burn of Printer's Art. I have before me, as I consider this subject, the copy of a county seat case change that looks as though its forms had been pitched together with a student intent to violate every newspaper principle of symmetry and good taste.

The Herald's Makeup.

The more pages justified by a publication, the more satisfactory the makeup can be made. Two years ago the Wayne Herald was a seven-column quarto, half patent. For several years it had often been necessary to run supplements which are always unsatisfactory.

The Herald runs a summary of its contents on the first page, and in it mentions not only news features, but every advertisement. The purpose is of course to stimulate as far as possible attention to what dealers have to offer. The Herald runs no advertising on its first page, but occupies it with the most important matters of local interest. The heads are made uniform on that page, as well as throughout the paper.

Fewer and Better Papers.

The tendency is toward fewer and better newspapers. The time when each political faction had to have an organ has passed. The newspaper must succeed in reflecting the happenings, big and little, of the territory in which it is published.

HERALD REPRESENTATIVE VISITS FARMERS AND WRITES OF THEIR IMPROVEMENTS AND PROSPECTS BY H. G. LEAVENS

A. C. THOMPSON.

A. C. Thompson rents 200 acres about four miles southeast of Wayne. This is his first season on the place. He reports ninety acres of corn, seventy acres of small grain and about fifteen acres of alfalfa. He has 150 head of hogs and about fifty head of cattle on the farm at present. A new coat of paint has recently been put on the house and other improvements are contemplated.

ADOLPH DORMAN.

Adolph Dorman owns 120 acres about five and one-half miles southeast of Wayne, having been on the place one year. He has forty-five acres of fair corn, but as he says: "too small for the time of year"; forty-five acres of small grain and the remainder of the farm in pasture. He has had about sixteen head of cattle, but had bad luck with pigs this year, having only about twenty-five head at present. Mr. Dorman has made a number of improvements recently and says that his first year was satisfactory.

HENRY RUBECK.

Henry Rubeck owns about 200 acres five miles east of Wayne and has been on the place for the past twenty years. He has about 105 acres of corn and forty acres of small grain. He shipped one car of stock in the winter, and has eighteen head of cattle and fifty head of hogs on the place. A new house built three years ago adds much to the looks of this place and Mr. Rubeck can well feel proud of its appearance.

AUGUST ERKLEBEN.

August Erkleben owns a quarter section about nine and one-half miles southeast of Wayne. He has been on this place for six years and this year has fifty acres of good corn and sixty acres of small grain. The rest of the farm is in hay and pasture. He now has about twenty head of cattle and sixty head of hogs. Repairs have recently been made on the house, and remodeling the barn is contemplated. Mr. Erkleben says: "If we have rain, crops should be good," and we think that the recent rains have done away with the conditional part of the statement.

RAY HURST.

Ray Hurst rents 200 acres just west of town, having gone on the farm about a year ago, although he has been in Nebraska for the past nine years. He reports ninety acres of good corn, fifty acres of small grain and eight acres of alfalfa. Mr. Hurst lost a good many pigs this year, but now has about seventy-five head of hogs on the farm. About twenty-two head of cattle and twenty-two head of horses. He expresses the belief that crops will be good this year.

AUGUST DANBERG.

August Danberg owns 100 acres five miles southwest of town and rents out a quarter section. He has been on the farm for twenty-five years, and reports 120 acres of corn and 800 acres of small grain. He has about thirty head of cattle and thirty-five head of hogs on the farm at present. A new corn crib is the most recent of Mr. Danberg's improvements.

PERRY BENSHOOF.

Perry Benshoof owns 120 acres about nine miles southwest of Wayne, having lived on the farm about twenty years. He has this year about forty acres of head of cattle and thirty-five head of hogs on the farm at present. A new corn crib is the most recent of Mr. Benshoof's improvements, having lately shipped about 100 hogs and thirty-five head of cattle. During the past year he fed about 500 sheep, shipping about twelve cars of stock during the year. On the place we saw abundant fruit, such as fruit can be raised in Wayne county. Especially was this evident in the grape vines and plant trees which were loaded with fruit. Mr. Benshoof contemplates a new barn, and looks for a good year.

JOHN LOEBACK.

John Loeback came here a year ago from Colorado and now rents 200 acres southwest of Wayne. He has 165 acres of corn and about forty acres of alfalfa and is putting most of his time on the crops. He expects a new windmill will be put up soon, and thinks there is good prospect for the year. In comparing Colorado and Nebraska, he says: "I like Nebraska the better."

CARL ERKLEBEN.

Carl Erkleben rents 240 acres about eleven miles southeast of Wayne, this being the tenth year he has been on the farm. He reports ninety acres of good corn and fifty-five acres of small grain. Mr. Erkleben has considerable stock business and during the spring shipped three car loads of hogs and one and one-half cars of cattle, and has now seventeen head of cattle and sixty head of hogs. A new auto wheel to house a new Caterpillar is one of the latest improvements. Mr. Erkleben says: "The years have averaged well on this farm, and with right weather, this year prospects are up to the standard."

FRED BOYER.

This is the third year that Fred Boyer has rented 160 acres about ten miles southeast of Wayne. He has sent out one car of corn and forty acres of oats, the rest of the farm being in pasture and hay. He also has about twenty head of cattle and 100 head of hogs on the farm at present. Mr. Boyer tells us that he has bought a farm in Minnesota and will probably move there in the winter.

ABRAHAM GILDERBLEVE.

Abraham Gilderbleve rents 180 acres about nine and one-half miles southeast of Wayne and reports sixty-five acres good corn and sixty acres of small grain. He has ten head of cattle and seventy head of hogs, and says prospects are good for a fine yield of corn this year. Mr. Gilderbleve expresses himself thus: "My other two years on the farm were fine and this one looks good; my oats look especially good, but the wheat is not quite up to standard."

ALBERT OCHICESTER.

Albert Ochicester rents 240 acres about seven and one-half miles southeast of Wayne, having made all the improvements on the farm during the eleven years he has been on it. This year he has thirty acres of corn, forty-five acres of small grain and thirty acres of alfalfa, concerning which crop he says: "Alfalfa is the crop for this country if you want any." The rest of the farm is in hay and pasture, and he now has on the place about eighty-five head of cattle and 100 hogs.

FRED ERKLEBEN.

Fred Erkleben owns 160 acres about nine miles southeast of Wayne having been on the place six years. He reports ninety acres of good corn and fifty acres of small grain; also ten acres of good alfalfa. He has on the farm about eighty head of cattle and fifty head of hogs, having shipped two carloads of stock in the spring. Mr. Erkleben tells us that he contemplates many improvements in the near future and that he considers the prospects fair for this year's crop.

W. H. GILDERBLEVE.

Coming from Iowa in 1882, W. H. Gilderbleve now owns about 280 acres two and one-half miles southeast of Wayne, having bought the place nine years ago. He reports this year about seventy-five acres of corn, thirty acres of wheat and twenty acres of good alfalfa, the rest of the farm being in hay and pasture. Considerable stock business is done here. Mr. Gilderbleve and during the past year he shipped about thirty cars of cattle. At the time the writer called he had about fifty head of stock cattle and sixty head of hogs on the farm and was just completing a new cement water tank. Mr. Gilderbleve has a strictly modern house and the place shows that it is managed in a scientific businesslike manner.

M. T. MCINERNEY.

Although his farm of twenty acres is small compared with some Wayne county farms, M. T. McInerney says he uses most of the land for this purpose but also raises a little corn. He has about seventy head of hogs on the farm at present and turned off about 100 head during the past year. This is Mr. McInerney's second year on the place, having come from Stanton county.

AUGUST KAY.

August Kay rents 160 acres about five miles east of Wayne. He has been on the place about five years and this year has fifty acres of corn and small grain, the rest of the farm being in hay and pasture. He has about thirty-three head of cattle and fifty-eight head of hogs on the place at present. Mr. Kay says: "The prospects are fair for a good crop if we get rain soon." Since he made the statement, rains have come in abundance.

FRANK A. LONG.

Frank A. Long rents 160 acres about four miles east of Wayne and is spending his fourth year on the farm. He reports fifty-five acres of corn and forty-five acres of small grain, and has about head of hogs on the place at present. Mr. Long says: "The prospects are

No improvements have been made on the farm recently. Mr. Long considers his crop prospects good for the year.

Henry Baker owns 180 acres about five and one-half miles southeast of Wayne, this being his seventh year on the place. He has fifty acres each of corn and small grain, the rest being in hay and pasture. There are now about forty-eight head of cattle and eighty head of hogs on the place. A new hog house is one of Mr. Baker's contemplated improvements. At the time the writer called, the dry weather made prospects look a trifle dark, but with the recent rains things must appear in a different light.

CARL BAKER.

Carl Baker rents 160 acres about six miles southeast of town and is spending his sixth year on the place. He has eighty acres of corn and fifty-two acres of small grain. There are also on the farm at present about twenty head of cattle and eighty-five head of hogs. With the possible exception of his oat crop, Mr. Baker considers the prospects bright for a good yield this year.

O. A. FOX.

O. A. Fox rents sixty-five acres six and one-half miles southeast of Wayne, this being his first year on the place. He puts most of his time on crops of which he has about thirty-eight acres of corn and twenty acres of oats, and has considerable live stock on the farm. Mr. Fox recently bought the buildings of the place and hopes this year will prove as profitable as the prospects give promise.

THEODORE LARSEN.

Theodore Larsen has been on the 160 acre farm about nine and one-half miles southeast of Wayne for the past sixteen years and bought the farm about twelve years ago. He reports forty-five acres of corn and forty-five acres of small grain, besides considerable hay and pasture. He has about six head of cattle and fifty head of hogs. A new house was built on the place two years ago, and this is Mr. Larsen's first year after an absence of two years from the farm.

PETE SIEVERS.

Pete Sievers has spent eighty years on the 200 acres which he owns about seven miles southeast of Wayne. He has ninety acres of corn and seventy-five acres of small grain. He generally sells his stock on the local market and now has about twenty head of cattle and sixty head of hogs. Repairs on the house are one of the most recent improvements to the farm building. Mr. Sievers makes a conditional opinion as to the crop prospects, but with the recent rains his doubts should be set at rest.

K. HENRY MEYER.

Twenty-eight years K. Henry Meyer has been on the 230 acres about eight miles southeast of Wayne. He reports an excellent crop of alfalfa this year and has 200 acres of corn and 120 acres of small grain. Gophers bothered considerably, but he believes he has a fair crop. He has sixty head of cattle and about 125 head of hogs, having shipped a car of cattle recently. This place gives one a good impression and speaks well for the management of Mr. Meyer and his four sons.

S. E. AUKER.

S. E. Auker owns 240 acres about three miles east of Wayne. He reports about 100 acres of corn, forty-five acres of oats and wheat and considerable alfalfa. Mr. Auker applies scientific methods of farming and his crops and stock show the results. He exhibited a 30-acre field of alfalfa which he pastured continually for seven years and which is in good condition now, contrary to the general opinion that this crop cannot be pastured for so long a time. Mr. Auker's farm shows that his study of up-to-date farming methods has brought results. A new auto house is one of the recent improvements.

Does any water clerk, sales girl, or any cashier in town wait on you as quickly as do the operators of the Telephone Company?

Some people regard the month of August as they do the state of Nevada; as a waste of time and money. Both views are of course wrong.

The chauntiqua will be the big attraction in Wayne this month, and people from the surrounding country should join in the enjoyment of the occasion.

President Taft is to be formally notified today of his nomination by the Chicago convention. We fear he has already received an inkling of the news and that it will be a trifling state.

The Roosevelt party might appropriately be termed the Titanic. The Titanic was built for speed and it was long on splurge, and amidst the plaudits of its human cargo, rushed ahead utterly indifferent to the danger of iceberg. The analogy is plain.

The Grand Island convention was altogether dove-like. There was a sharp clash between the Bryan and Hitchcock factions for control, and the former came out of the battle triumphant. Anti-Bryan democrats doubtless feel the effects of the dominating lead, and may be saying strong words in a hushed breath. On the other hand, Bryan admirers feel happy and sanguine.

Many young people amount to little in this world because they don't begin to begin at the bottom and work their way up. They want to begin where their seniors, old in the service, rest of their life, they want big pay without doing anything to justify it. Those who are unfortunate enough to begin at the top are badly mangled in their tumble to the level from which they can make progress according to their worth. They seek advancement, and realize that hard work is the price of real success.

Delegates to the republican state convention did not get along harmoniously and happily at Lincoln, and as a result they split, and held two conventions, and adopted two platforms. The Roosevelt sympathizers, outnumbered the Taft crowd, and consequently the latter held. If Taft forces had exceeded their opponents in number, the same result would have followed, excepting a different crowd would have been the bolters. The bull moose with endorsement of the Chicago convention, whereas the Taft wing gave such endorsement. As Roosevelt was under a new party name, and as a third party convention was held Wednesday, there would seem to be some good reason for the Roosevelt people to dominate the republican convention. It is expected the bull moose will name electors favorable to Roosevelt, and that republican electors will, regardless of personal preferences, either resign or pledge themselves to vote for Taft in case of election. That would seem to be the only fair and consistent course to pursue.

A thoughtful student of conditions, influenced by the prospect of official emoluments or prestige, will conclude that a good deal of progress has been made and is being made in government affairs, both state and national. Reform measures in Nebraska have been passed, the statutes as fast as they could be brought up, and the administration, with all its big, complicated machinery to handle, has made notable progress, unattended by brass bands or flamboyant politicians. The different departments have followed business lines and practiced policies of economy never before equaled. Of thing demanded in the platform of the Roosevelt wing of the republican state convention, the elimination of federal officers from politics was proposed months ago by President Taft. The progress of government, national and state, has been great enough to satisfy any one who wants to insure safety with advancement. Policies have been worked out and made practical without injury to crop prices, land values or the general business of the country. Progress has been made without ruin, and such fact is of supreme importance to all.

THE DOCTORS DISAGREE.

If a serious attempt were made to put the Baltimore platform into operation the whole country would be reduced to a condition of industrial chaos. Theodore Roosevelt to Judge John I. can see no outcome to a third party ty and feel that its organization would be disastrous to the progressive cause."—A. B. Cummins to Joseph B. Morcott.

Surely, as the Iowa senator has said, "the whole situation is chaotic. Roosevelt says 'it is absolutely necessary to have a new party.' Cummins answers that a new party is the promise of disaster to the progressive cause. If the senator is understood, he asserts that the movement is a wedge to divide the progressives and to deliver them over to the enemy. If Roosevelt is understood, he cites the democratic party and says that if the progressive cause is not made successful the whole country will be reduced 'to a condition of industrial chaos.'"

So far as they may be faithful in the vision of these prophets, what is the same thing for progressives everywhere to do? Clearly, the thing for them to do is to withhold support from a new party, rally to the support of William McKinley Taft, save the progressive cause, ward off industrial chaos—save the republic—Sicout City Journal.

L'FOLLETTE HITS ROOSEVELT.

Senator LaFollette opposes the third party movement as the proposition of one man's insatiable personal ambition—one man whose record shows alliance with machine politics. LaFollette evidently believed the proposed party, with Roosevelt the central figure, is a reactionary movement, and would, if successful, hinder the development of progressive governmental policies. In an article in the current number of his magazine, Senator LaFollette says in part:

"The contest in many of these states was severe and protracted. Defeat was the result of aggressive action. While Roosevelt was president, he offered no encouragement to the progressive republicans who were struggling with the old machine bosses to enact direct primaries and other progressive statutes. His influence was openly on the side of the reactionaries. His appointees were the most active agents of the opposition. In Wisconsin, federal office holders were lobby agents for corporations, and spent their time almost wholly at the state capital during legislative sessions. I am somewhat acquainted with the conditions which prevailed in northern and western states where I spoke, year after year in support of the effort to establish progressive republican government, and I know that the same opposition was encountered in most of these states. I recall little more than one year ago, Roosevelt had not even expressed himself as friendly to what had become while he was in office—so widely known as the progressive republican movement. Not until about five months ago did he make his so-called declaration of principles. Shortly thereafter he abandoned any attempt to discuss principles. Ignoring issues, he lured the President's own campaign, so bitterly personal, that by the time of the Chicago convention, the frenzy and passion aroused subordinated everything to a fierce scramble to seat delegates and secure the nomination. Fraud and bribery were charged on both sides. Tempers were at white heat. Threats of personal violence were common. Investigation was barred. There was no chance for argument. The truth was discounted. Lies were as good as facts. The Roosevelt men charged that the Taft men were stealing the convention. The Taft men charged the Roosevelt men with trying to steal the convention."

Chair of the Giant's Idris.

One of the mountain peaks of north Wales is known as the Chair of Idris, or Cader Idris, as the Welsh people call it, because its top is hollowed out like a chair seat. According to local tradition, whoever spends a night in the Chair of Idris will in the following morning be dead, raving mad or enfeebled with the loftiest poetic inspiration. No one knows how or when exactly why Idris was or when he lived, but he must have been a giant, if his body was in proportion with his colossal chair. Mr. P. J. Mans has a fine piece of the wood of Idris as the theme, and Teunsson also mentions it in "Eidol."

Fifth Monarchy Men.

The fifth monarchy men formed a religious sect that sprang up in the days of Charles I. of England. They were so called from the fact that they asserted that in the last days the four ancient monarchies, the Assyrian, the Persian, the Babylonian and the Roman, would be restored, and the fifth would be added a Christian monarchy or fifth monarchy, of which Christ would be the king.

TRACING A CRIME.

Clever Detective Work by a University Professor.

THE KEEN EYES OF SCIENCE.

They Detected Blood Where There Were No Apparent Traces of It and Found Telltale Finger Marks That Pointed Direct to the Criminal.

Mme. Gulan was the wealthy widow of Jean Howard Gulan, former president of the Bank of France. Mme. Gulan was seventy years old. One night she took a train at Fontainebleau for Paris. She had to herself a first class compartment. When the train arrived in Paris the porters found her compartment unoccupied. The door had been half torn from its hinges. There was a great pool of blood on the floor, and the police picked up from the door a handful of woman's hair, a torn piece of skirt and a first class railroad ticket from Fontainebleau to Paris. A search along the railroad tracks resulted in the finding of Mme. Gulan's body beside the rails just outside Fontainebleau. It was greatly mangled. A little farther on they found the suitcase she had carried. There were no clues on her fingers and no money in her pockets.

Mme. Gulan's relatives took the amount that she had been seized with a hemorrhage, to which she was subjected, had tried to open the door of her compartment to summon aid or to get air, that she had, in her paroxysm, wrenched the door open and had fallen over the train, killing herself. The police were not satisfied with this explanation, particularly after Professor Reiss, the famous Lousville pathologist, had pointed out that the cut on the woman's skirt had been made by a knife and not by a sharp stone, as had been thought. This, however, was very little done, and Professor Reiss turned his attention to the compartment which Mme. Gulan had occupied. After he had finished his investigation he went to St. Lepine, prefect of Paris, and said to him:

"I am sure that Mme. Gulan was murdered, and I am equally sure that her murderer was a soldier. In the train compartment there were a towel and a stationary washstand. These were so stained upon the towel visible to the naked eye. Nevertheless, we subjected every square inch to one of the most delicate tests for blood. We at last discovered an area which gave us the positive reaction for human blood."

"Upon this towel the murderer of Mme. Gulan wiped his bloody hands. He knew that this would be evidence that the old woman did not meet her death by accident as he wished it to be, and so he washed the towel thoroughly, as he thought, and hung it up to dry."

"The detection then of this microscopic quantity of blood, which can be removed from a fabric only by acids, pointed to the fact that Mme. Gulan met death by the hands of a murderer."

"But I found another piece of evidence. There was, as you remember, a railroad ticket picked up on the ground near the train. It was the imprint of Mme. Gulan; it was not hers. I threw it away upon economy on a lantern screen. I was then struck by the peculiar impression of the little ridges on the inner side of the mark. Careful analysis of these marked ridges showed me that this was the thumb of a man who was actually serving as a soldier in the army. Little by little, guns result in the pressure upon the ridges of the inner side of the thumb. This causes a peculiar flattening, which is visible under a microscope when enlarged and it true to other occupations except that of a soldier."

"As I reconstruct this crime this soldier managed to get into Mme. Gulan's compartment after the train had left Fontainebleau. He knew that she usually carried a number of jewels and a large sum of money. He tried to rob the old woman, and, meeting with unexpected resistance, fought with her to the compartment, killing her by beating her head against the register and then stripped the body of its jewels. He thoughtlessly wiped his hands upon the towel, and he thought that this would be evidence of the presence of some one else in the compartment, so he washes the towel with soap and water, but does not know that we can detect blood even when it is so small an amount of one one-thousandth millimeters."

"He then wrenches the compartment door open and throws out the body of the woman. He leaves the door open, the satchel with his rifle. Then, taking advantage of the sleeping down of the train between Fontainebleau and Paris, he jumps from it and makes his escape."

"As a result of Professor Reiss' analysis it was found that two soldiers, Gravy and Michel, had followed Mme. Gulan to the train on the night of her murder. They had hidden in her compartment, and when the train had started they murdered her, as Professor Reiss had indicated. The rest of the reconstruction was proved at the trial of these two men. They both confessed, were convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment."

OUTWITTED A LION.

Clever Tactics of a Plucky and Ingenious African.

The lion's burrowing of South Africa is not only small in size, but feisty in mind. Yet there is no record on encounter between a bushman and a lion which shows the man as cool in danger and fertile in resource.

This bushman, while a long way from his home, was met by a lion. The animal, assured that he had but virtue completely in his power, began to sport and dally with him with a fellow jocosity which the poor little bushman failed to appreciate. The lion would appear at a point in the road and leap back again into the jungle to reappear a little farther on.

The bushman, however, did not lose the presence of mind and presently hit upon a device whereby he might outwit his foe. This plan was suggested by the lion's own conduct.

Aware that the best was ahead of him, the bushman dodged to the right and, feeling pretty sure of the lion's whereabouts, resorted to the course of quietly watching his movements.

When the lion discovered that the man had suddenly disappeared from the path he was a good deal perplexed. He roared with mortification. Then he espied the bushman peeping at him over the grass.

The bushman at once changed his position, while the lion stood irresolute in the path, following with his eye the shifting black man. In another moment the little man rustled the reeds, resisted and showed himself at another point.

The great brute was first confused and then alarmed. It evidently began to dawn upon him that he had mistaken the position of his hunters and that he was the hunted party.

The bushman, who clearly recognized the situation, did not pause to permit the lion to "scower" by starting with it. He began to steal gradually toward the foe, who, now in a complete state of doubt and fear, tumbled tall and decumped, leaving the plucky and resourceful little bushman master of the situation.—Harper's.

GREAT HORN SPOONS.

The Ones That Are Made by Natives of Southern Alaska.

Horns of the mountain sheep, the buffalo and the moose are made into dishes, ladles and spoons. Some of these are carved, while others are both carved and inlaid with shell. The decoration is sometimes geometrical, but often a conventional representation of animal forms. This is especially true of the spoons of the Indians on the coast of northern British Columbia and in southern Alaska. A few of these spoons are so large, so wonderfully artistic and so well made from the horn of the rare Rocky mountain sheep that even a moderately good one may appropriately be called a "great horn spoon." These are of a rich golden yellow color. By far the greatest number of horn spoons in this same region are made of the horn of the mountain sheep, and these are black. A few have black handles of goat horn and golden bowls of sheep horn. All these handles are usually carved to represent traditional or mythical men, and some of them are carved to resemble the individual family, just as among our people silver spoons bear the family monogram.—Detroit Free Press.

Church Tower Bellows.

Probably you have noticed that the openings in the belfry of a church are usually filled with a number of slanting boards, something covered with sand. These are there to support the louvers, and many persons imagine that they are so arranged as to keep out the rain. The right name for these slats is rainbars, a word that means to throw down.

Their use is not to keep out the rain because the wet does not hurt the bells at all and rain can beat in through the openings very easily. They are designed to turn the sound of the bells downward, so that persons on the ground can hear them better. In the middle ages some of these apparatuses were made of carved and decorated wood.—New York Press.

The Game of Lacrosse.

The game known as lacrosse was originated by the Canadian Indians, and from them adopted successively by the French and English settlers, and by them introduced to the United States. The object of the game is to strike the ball with goals situated at each end of the field. The players are usually twelve on a side. In 1907 the Lacrosse Association of Canada was formed, and an Indian team visited Great Britain, creating great excitement. The game is one of real importance in the English sporting world.

For sale by all dealers. GIANT CATARACTS. Victoria Falls the Greatest of the Mighty Torrents. NIAGARA RANKS ONLY THIRD. The Falls of the Iguazu River Hold Second Place, and These Three Are in a Class by Themselves—Their Electric Power Possibilities. At one time waterfalls in large rivers were interesting only because of their scenic beauty, and their very existence was deplored because they obstructed navigation. But man has found a way to harness these mighty power producers and today they are the great veins of the commercial world because the millions of water horse power can be changed into electricity and transmitted for hundreds of miles to be used as a reliable substitute for our vanishing coal supply. When it is remembered that two cubic feet of water, weighing 125 pounds, by falling a distance of only six feet will produce one horse power of energy, it is easy to comprehend that millions and millions of horse power are wasted every minute by the torrents of water tumbling over Niagara, the Victoria falls and the Iguazu river and lesser falls throughout the world. This falling water is guided by steel and concrete penstocks to powerful water turbines which whirl great electric generators. The current produced in this way is easily transported by lines of wire to the great copper wires to the cities and towns where it is used to haul the railroad trains to drive the great manufacturing plants and to give us light and power. Look at us all here in our country, we must admit that even the mighty torrent of Niagara ranks only third in waterfalls when compared to the waterfalls of the world. The highest waterfall in the world, the Victoria falls, is 386 feet high and more than a mile wide and were discovered by Lieutenant Gordon in 1857. The highest power of these falls is estimated to be fully 35,000,000 horse power, two and one-half times that of Iguazu and five times that of Niagara. South America possesses a waterfall which exceeds Niagara both in width and in height and it is actually the second largest waterfall in the world. This falls flows over the crest of the Iguazu river, tributary of the Parana, and, like Niagara, is situated at the boundary of two states, each of which owns half of it. The total water flow of the Iguazu fall, which is 213 feet high and nearly two miles wide, is estimated as about 14,000,000 horse power. This is approximately equal to the power of the Victoria falls. The Iguazu falls, which is in waterfalls, is about ten times the total water power of Germany. "There is no other waterfall in the world as all-comparable in grandness with the Zambesi, Iguazu or the Niagara. Asia, notwithstanding its colossal mountain ranges, is comparatively poor in large waterfalls, which are found most abundantly in Africa and North America. The largest African streams especially are interrupted by many falls of considerable height. The Congo has several high falls which give to the great volume of the river, about sixteen times that of the Nile, may be counted among the most important sources of water power in the world. The Signy falls, in the middle reach of the river, consist of seven successive falls of a total height of 104 feet and a width of nearly 4,000 feet and offer an exceedingly rich source of power which probably will soon be exploited. Still more important is the total water power which the Congo develops in the non-navigable section extending from its mouth to Stanley pool. Here the river, confined in a channel only a few hundred yards wide and with a depth of water of nearly 300 feet, flows with a velocity of forty-eight feet per second, so that at every cubic meter of the stream 25,000 to 30,000 cubic feet or about 1,000,000 cubic feet of water are hurled 400 feet with irresistible force, while thirty-two rapids and waterfalls lower the level of the stream by 820 feet in a stretch of 170 miles. The lower Nile, in Egypt, possesses a series of rapids, the celebrated cataracts of Victoria nianza. This Nile falls in the strict sense of the word. True waterfalls occur on the upper Nile, the most beautiful of them at the point where the stream issues from Lake Victoria nianza. This Nile fall is only a few yards in height, but the volume of water is so great that it presents a magnificent spectacle. Comparatively few waterfalls, however, which is the highest waterfall in Europe. The most voluminous of European waterfalls, strictly so called, are the Rhine falls, at Schaffhausen, but the highest are the Fieslen falls of the Mann-Elf river, in the Norwegian province of Telemarken. The principal fall is 800 feet high, and the total height of the two chief falls with the intervening rapids amounts to 1,325 feet, while the average flow of water is only cubic meters, or 1,760 cubic feet a second. The Rhine falls, with their total energy of 250,000 horse power, have been converted to industrial uses—Electric News. ## GIANT CATARACTS

Victoria Falls the Greatest of the Mighty Torrents

NIAGARA RANKS ONLY THIRD.

The Falls of the Iguazu River Hold Second Place, and These Three Are in a Class by Themselves—Their Electric Power Possibilities. At one time waterfalls in large rivers were interesting only because of their scenic beauty, and their very existence was deplored because they obstructed navigation. But man has found a way to harness these mighty power producers and today they are the great veins of the commercial world because the millions of water horse power can be changed into electricity and transmitted for hundreds of miles to be used as a reliable substitute for our vanishing coal supply. When it is remembered that two cubic feet of water, weighing 125 pounds, by falling a distance of only six feet will produce one horse power of energy, it is easy to comprehend that millions and millions of horse power are wasted every minute by the torrents of water tumbling over Niagara, the Victoria falls and the Iguazu river and lesser falls throughout the world. This falling water is guided by steel and concrete penstocks to powerful water turbines which whirl great electric generators. The current produced in this way is easily transported by lines of wire to the great copper wires to the cities and towns where it is used to haul the railroad trains to drive the great manufacturing plants and to give us light and power. Look at us all here in our country, we must admit that even the mighty torrent of Niagara ranks only third in waterfalls when compared to the waterfalls of the world. The highest waterfall in the world, the Victoria falls, is 386 feet high and more than a mile wide and were discovered by Lieutenant Gordon in 1857. The highest power of these falls is estimated to be fully 35,000,000 horse power, two and one-half times that of Iguazu and five times that of Niagara. South America possesses a waterfall which exceeds Niagara both in width and in height and it is actually the second largest waterfall in the world. This falls flows over the crest of the Iguazu river, tributary of the Parana, and, like Niagara, is situated at the boundary of two states, each of which owns half of it. The total water flow of the Iguazu fall, which is 213 feet high and nearly two miles wide, is estimated as about 14,000,000 horse power. This is approximately equal to the power of the Victoria falls. The Iguazu falls, which is in waterfalls, is about ten times the total water power of Germany. "There is no other waterfall in the world as all-comparable in grandness with the Zambesi, Iguazu or the Niagara. Asia, notwithstanding its colossal mountain ranges, is comparatively poor in large waterfalls, which are found most abundantly in Africa and North America. The largest African streams especially are interrupted by many falls of considerable height. The Congo has several high falls which give to the great volume of the river, about sixteen times that of the Nile, may be counted among the most important sources of water power in the world. The Signy falls, in the middle reach of the river, consist of seven successive falls of a total height of 104 feet and a width of nearly 4,000 feet and offer an exceedingly rich source of power which probably will soon be exploited. Still more important is the total water power which the Congo develops in the non-navigable section extending from its mouth to Stanley pool. Here the river, confined in a channel only a few hundred yards wide and with a depth of water of nearly 300 feet, flows with a velocity of forty-eight feet per second, so that at every cubic meter of the stream 25,000 to 30,000 cubic feet or about 1,000,000 cubic feet of water are hurled 400 feet with irresistible force, while thirty-two rapids and waterfalls lower the level of the stream by 820 feet in a stretch of 170 miles. The lower Nile, in Egypt, possesses a series of rapids, the celebrated cataracts of Victoria nianza. This Nile falls in the strict sense of the word. True waterfalls occur on the upper Nile, the most beautiful of them at the point where the stream issues from Lake Victoria nianza. This Nile fall is only a few yards in height, but the volume of water is so great that it presents a magnificent spectacle. Comparatively few waterfalls, however, which is the highest waterfall in Europe. The most voluminous of European waterfalls, strictly so called, are the Rhine falls, at Schaffhausen, but the highest are the Fieslen falls of the Mann-Elf river, in the Norwegian province of Telemarken. The principal fall is 800 feet high, and the total height of the two chief falls with the intervening rapids amounts to 1,325 feet, while the average flow of water is only cubic meters, or 1,760 cubic feet a second. The Rhine falls, with their total energy of 250,000 horse power, have been converted to industrial uses—Electric News. ### FINDING A PAWN TICKET.

Sometimes It May Be Just Walking. "While walking through one of the prominent streets the other day," said an innocent looking individual, "I espied an important looking piece of paper on the sidewalk and, picking it up, I found it to be a pawn ticket for a diamond scarf pin which some careless person had apparently dropped. "According to the ticket, the pin had been pledged several weeks before for $15. "How am I to find the owner?" thought I. "I shall take it to the pawn broker? Perhaps if I do the owner will never see it anyway. The pin must surely be a good one and doubtless worth three times the amount for which it was pledged. Why not appropriate it to my own use? "The name on the ticket was brown and my conscience was relieved when I found several hundred of that name in the directory. I soon made up my mind and started for the broker's office. I asked to see the pin before redeeming it, stating that I had bought the ticket, and upon the payment of 25 cents was allowed to examine it. "It looked all right to me, although I am not a qualified judge of diamonds, so I paid the original $15 and the balance of $1.50 and the pin became mine. "The next day I showed it to an expert, who declared it to be worth far less than the amount I had paid for it. "It is a trick of some people, he said, to defraud unsuspecting persons like myself. The scheme consists of issuing tickets for spurious pieces of jewelry for amounts many times in excess of their value and dropping them on the sidewalk in different parts of town where unsuspecting persons might find them and redeem them, as you did this yielding a handsome profit to the perpetrators."—Philadelphia Record.

AN HOUR'S WALK.

You Would Hardly Think It Meant Traveling 82,253 Miles. Have you ever thought of the distance you travel when you are out on an hour's stroll? Possibly you walk three miles within the hour, but this does not by any means represent the distance you travel. The earth turns on its axis every twenty-four hours. For the sake of round figures, we will call the earth's circumference 24,000 miles, and so you must have traveled during the hour's stroll 1,000 miles in the axial turn of the earth. "But this is not all. The earth makes a journey around the sun every year, and a long, but rapid trip it is. The distance of our planet from the sun we will put at 92,000,000 miles. This is the radius of the earth's orbit—half
