TENNIS TOURNAMENT DRAWING TO CLOSE

The city handicap tennis tournament is drawing to a close after having been in progress about three weeks. The semi-finals in the upper division of the championship singles will be played Friday, the contesting players being Messrs. Cress and Guy Hunter. The winner of this match will meet Fred Pile on Saturday in the finals for the championship, and possession of the silver loving cup on exhibition in Mines' show window. But two matches were played this week in the singles and one in the doubles. Some most interesting matches have been played during the tournament and in most cases play has been close and hard-fought. As a result, a great many new players have become interested in the game, and next year, no doubt, the tournament will have more entrants than was the case this year.

The following is the record of the matches this week:

Singles:
Second round—Hunter d. Tilkey 6-0, 6-0.
Third round—Hunter d. Ahern 6-1, 6-4.
Doubles:
Second round—Gamble and Leavens d. Fisher and Ringland 6-1, 6-4.
Consolation Singles:
Second round—Kiplinger d. Leavens 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.
Third round—Ringland d. Kiplinger 6-3, 6-4.

The younger players have been playing a good deal of tennis this summer and have just concluded a tournament for the junior championship, the winner being Claire Brown. The following players took part: Claire Brown, Joe Ringland, Dale—Richkabbagh, Eugene Garrett, R. B. Berry, Burdette Daeger, Homer Taylor, Marion Grothe.

BUSINESS MEN FAVOR SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS TO PROMOTE ACQUAINTANCE AND STIMULATE TRADE

BARGAIN DAYS POPULAR

AN AVIATION MEET CONSIDERED ONE SURE WAY TO AT TRACT BIG CROWDS.

BOOSTERS' TRIP IMPORTANT

Citizens Interested in Local Trade Give Opinions to Herald Repre-sentative.

A Herald representative interviewed a number of the local business men as possible recently to ascertain their wishes in regard to some special attractions for Wayne this fall, and this paper is pleased to present results in the following quotations:

ORLANDO ADAMS: "I think two or three bargain days would be a good idea and have seen them carried out successfully. We should have free entertainment such as band-concerts, moving pictures, etc., and there is no doubt but that an aviation meet would draw a large crowd."

C. A. BERRY: "We need something to stimulate business, and I would be in favor of anything that would get results. The entertainment should be new and first class."

J. F. BARRETT: "Fall trade ought to be stimulated and I believe the bargain days idea is all right. The entertainment ought to be free and we ought to have something that we can carry through successfully."

W. M. ORE: "We ought to give some kind of a fall festival with good entertainment, and the entertainment ought to be free. I believe that an aviation meet would be a good drawing card."

CHARLES M. CHAVEN: "I would like to see something new and would favor an aviation meet. One bargain day or two at the most would be sufficient, and the bargain ought to be such that would induce people to come to Wayne."

FRANK GAERTNER: "The bargain day idea is good. Have seen the 'wild west' exhibition worked with success and think it would be a good attraction here. The expense connected with it would not be great, and it ought to be free to the patrons."

BOLLIE LBY: "Wayne surely ought to do something good and different in the way of a fall festival. I think a good fall parade in connection with the two days would be provided in connection with the entertainment ought to be free. A 'wild west' exhibition might be worked out successfully."

H. S. REINGLAND: "While I am not fully familiar with the plan of a fall festival and several bargain days, it might be worked out successfully. A 'wild west' exhibition would be all right, or any other form of amusement that would entertain the patrons of the town. I believe the entertainment should be free."

L. A. FANSEE: "Several bargain days would be a good scheme. It is surely a fact that Wayne ought to do something and I would be interested in anything that would draw the crowd and do the business. A 'wild west' exhibition would be a good plan."

J. B. RUNDLELL: "It would be a good plan to have two or three bargain days, but the merchants ought to be united in the scheme. I have seen it worked with good success. A series of prizes for different things, such as the highest stalk of corn, etc., would arouse interest. I believe that the entertainment ought to be free."

H. W. THEOBALD: "Two days of special bargains a little later in the fall would be a good plan. I believe that a good aviation meet would be one of the best attractions. It would attract something new and different from anything we have had."

A. G. BOHNET: "I am heartily in favor of a fall festival, for anything that brings business to the city benefits every one. A good band in connection with an aviation meet would be popular, and I would suggest a mass meeting to boost the thing along."

W. A. SENESE: "I think that the bargain day idea is good and that an aviation meet would draw the crowd at least it would be something different from what is generally provided for entertainment. We should do something to offset the fall trade that goes to the cities at fair time. For bargains, we should give liberal discounts on our goods."

J. H. WENDT: "Two or perhaps three bargain days a little later would be a good plan and I think an aviation meet would draw a large crowd on account of its novelty. A series of parades and a good band might be a good drawing card."

WARREY SHULHEIS: "I would favor two or three bargain days a little later and entertainment in connection that would draw the outside people and think that the entertainment should be different from that generally given on such occasions."

E. S. WELCH: "A fall festival would be a good thing and there should be some attractions with it, and attractions that would draw. The business men ought to foot the bill and it should be held a little later, in September."

FRANK GAMBLE: "Make one or two sale-days and provide good entertainment. Make the days real bargain days on staple and winter goods, and the merchants be united in this respect. I think two days would be about the right length of time."

W. B. VAIL: "Have seen an auto parade worked successfully, giving prizes for best decorated autos one day and best decorated hay-racks the next, and have something of interest all day."

FRED BLAIR: "I would favor giving the cost of the entertainment to the people in the way of real bargains. An automobile parade with prizes for the best decorations would be a good idea. I think a boosters' trip in connection with the good proposition, and then let the merchants give real bargains on the two days chosen."

J. C. NUSS: "It would be a good plan to have two or three bargain days this fall, and they ought to be real bargains, for that would be most satisfactory to the people. Some kind of an entertainment should be provided in connection with the bargain days."

JAMES LEAHY: "Two bargain days would be a good scheme. It ought to be a question of entertainment that would be satisfactory. I believe that it ought to be before the Sioux City fair, and an aviation meet would draw especially on account of its novelty."

W. A. BRAMAN: "A fall festival under conditions where all the merchants co-operate would be a good idea and I would be willing to work with the rest. It seems as though an aviation meet would be a good drawing card."

H. B. CRAVEN: "The plan of two bargain days seems to be good and I think an aviation meet would be a good idea, except that there is always the question of suitable weather to make the meet a success."

O. P. D'PREW: "I would be in favor of a fall festival of two and not more than three days. An aviation meet would certainly get the people here."

E. H. JONES: "I would favor two or three real bargain days. There should be something in the line of entertainment all day and would like to see something different from the ordinary street carnival. An aviation meet would be a good plan."

J. J. ABERN: "I think the bargain days idea would be O. K. A boosters' trip to advertise it would be the best proposition, letting each firm give suitable souvenirs and get out to meet the people of the country."

W. A. HISCOX: "I heartily approve of the plan for an aviation meet this fall. But the business men of the town should first get together and figure out the expense of having the attraction here before making any definite plans. In order to make it prove a success. Think two or three bargain days in connection with this festival would be a good thing."

JOE MEISTER: "I think a fall festival and aviation meet would be a good thing for the town and would surely attract the people from surrounding towns."

C. W. HISCOX: "It appears to me that a number of bargain days in the fall would be a good thing for Wayne and do not see why it should not prove a success. Think an aviation meet would be just the thing as it is something different from the average street carnival. I am willing to help with anything that would be for the good of the town."

L. A. KIPLINGER: "The main thing to be considered in planning an entertainment for advertising purposes is to get something that the people are not tired of. For Wayne I think an aviation meet would be just the thing."

S. R. TEMPLE: "I think a fall festival, including an aviation meet, would be very beneficial to the town, and I believe it would get the crowd here. I am heartily in favor of it."

HERBERT BLUEHORN: "I think a fall festival and aviation meet would stimulate trade in Wayne. Has never had anything of that kind. I believe this plan would attract a big crowd."

HERMAN HENNEY: "I think it would not be advisable to have a festival this fall as there are too many attractions here and in neighboring towns. Of course I heartily endorse the bargain day plan, in carrying out which business men should get together."

A. B. DAVIS: "The fact that in aviation science has opened up a new field, permanent in its nature and wonderful in its possibilities, and as no practical demonstrations have been made in Wayne or surrounding towns. I am in favor of an aviation meet. I think the most desirable one would be special sales features by the merchants, and ball games with teams from surrounding towns."

F. S. BERRY: "I am in favor of a fall festival in connection with the bargain day idea. I think an aviation meet would be a good thing for the town."

ED. ELLIS: "Don't see why the bargain day idea in connection with a fall festival could not be carried out successfully in Wayne. I favor an aviation meet, and no doubt it would attract crowds of people from neighboring towns."

DROWNED IN RAGING WATERS NEAR PONCA

PONCA, Neb., Aug. 10.—The body of James Casey who was drowned Saturday night, was recovered by Sheriff Masket and others Sunday. James Casey and Mike Donlin were trying to get through the raging waters in a buggy when the horses became unmanageable and both men jumped from the buggy. Donlin later landed in a tree, from which he was rescued by boat, but Casey was swept into the creek and lost. Casey was a well-to-do farmer and lived with his mother near here. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus at Ponca. The flood put the pumping station out of commission and Ponca has been without water or light for two days. The damages will amount to more than $250,000.

One reason an outing is desirable is because it is so much harder work than one's accustomed duties that the latter seem easy when undertaken again.

G. J. Martin, elector of the republican ticket in Iowa, has shown the courage and consistency to send his resignation to the chairman of the republican committee, having decided to quit the republican party and join the bull moose.

The Chautauqua which opens in Wayne tomorrow, promises to surpass in attendance and in quality of program all previous efforts in that line here. A Chautauqua program is not only entertaining, but stimulates right and wholesome thinking. Its training is intellectual and moral. It deserves the support which it receives.

If it is true as feelingly expressed by Roosevelt that George W. Perkins has espoused the bull moose cause in order to vouchsafe to his children-in-law the balance between capital and labor, wouldn't it be well for him to quit the employ of the steel and harvester trust? He could help regulate the trusts easier if he were not a part of them.

Governor Aldrich has issued a lengthy letter to John H. Moschler, democratic candidate for governor, challenging him to a series of joint discussions of public questions. The governor's proposition is fair enough and it is hoped the democratic nominee will have the fortitude to accept. If he refuses can be arranged, Wayne ought to be selected as one of the battle grounds.

One man who is not farming and who is engaged in no business, says he is interested in seeing prices for farm products go down, so he can buy them cheaper, and therefore he proposes to vote for either Roosevelt or Wilson. He says he wants a change in Washington and of prices and thinks a change of administration would produce the results desired. It is inconceivable that he means what he says.

It may reasonably be suspected that congressmen, though apparently sticking to their posts in Washington with phenomenal heroism, are not overly anxious for the session to adjourn so they can return to their constituents, review the work they have done, explain issues and take pronounced sides in the political contest now on. It might be a comfort to them if the session could be prolonged until after election.

Reflecting on the little panic which came along in the fall of 1907 as a result of Roosevelt's radicalism, one farmer says he had a horse that was worth $200 at that time. A few days after the panic struck, a man who had been figuring on buying at the price mentioned called on him and told him that the value of horses had fallen off sixty-five per cent in a very few days. This is one of the many instances that point out the way of wisdom and safety.

Senator Keyvon, well known progressive of Iowa, gives out a letter in which he recommends that the republican party support the union-employer ticket. He sees no hope of the new party as a means of fighting party losses and securing progressive legislation. He characterizes Barnes and Proctor of the republican party, Sullivan, Murphy and Duggart of the democratic party and Perkins and Elmer of the bull moose party as unscrupulous bases and mentions them with equal unfriendliness.

The one who devotes his time to figuring out how a public or private enterprise can't be accomplished is worth a little something for his city in pointing out objections to be overcome. The obstructionist digs up every conceivable reason why an improvement should not be made or a new enterprise should not be undertaken, and in so doing puts into possession of the constructive mind important facts about obstacles that may be thwarted to achieve success. So the chronic opposer is a source of gloomy information which is necessary to escape danger points for any forward movement, private or public. If obstructionists are not too numerous, they are valuable in society.

The teachers of Wayne county are gathered here this week for their annual institute, and they deserve cordial friendship and hospitality at the hands of Wayne citizens. From an address in a luncheon attended of training demands on low pay in dollars than from teachers. The teacher gets some compensation in self-discipline and self-education, but not enough to warrant the frequent nerve-wracking experiences which fall to his or her lot. There is reward in connection of doing high and noble duty, but not enough to justify the material sacrifice if parents are cold, indifferent and unappreciative. Let these men and women whose efforts are vital to the foundation of our citizenship, be cheered and encouraged and treated right.

Suppose a farmer wanted to hire a man to look after his farm and manage the business connected with it, would he employ a wild and daring radical who thought more of making a big noise and attracting public attention than of carefully attending to the duties intrusted to him? Would he employ a scholarly college professor whose life has been mainly devoted to contemplation of pleasing theories? Wouldn't he employ a master at the work, one whose practical knowledge and experience attested to his worth, one who could work out new methods on a safe and practical basis, and who would make headway without fireworks and without stirring his path with ruin? Would he employ a man who would be glad to hire a president to lead in managing governmental affairs?

The Herald presents in this issue the views of many business men regarding special fall attractions. Every one could not be seen. All favor having bargain days, but vary somewhat in opinions as to what other attractions should be offered. The interviews reflect a deep interest in Wayne and anxious to do whatever is feasible and best to knit together more closely the ties of friendship between the town and surrounding country. A review of the opinions expressed explains why Wayne is the most progressive town in the state and why it is the one to watch what it undertakes. The opinions indicate a resolution to pull ahead and not to pull back. If these men—all business—determine to have special attractions in connection with the fall days, they will succeed. They are of the quality that succeeds.

When we read political harangues, bewailing the condition of the people, and endeavoring to make us feel we are having tough sledding, we wonder what they are driving at. If we do any work, we are well paid for it, and if we have any live stock or product of the soil to sell, we can sell it at a good price. There are more comforts of life than ever, and most of them are within the reach of everybody. If people who labor and plan with care on the farm and elsewhere are to receive no greater compensation than those who do not work as little as possible, and who are indifferent to the importance of active and judicious management, then the premium on industry and ability would be removed. There would be no stimulus to excel. According to that unfair way of figuring, the farmer who raises his crops would receive no more than the farmer who raises near crops. Do politicians think they can fool people into believing a condition can be brought about guaranteeing in all lines of endeavor equal rewards to the toiler on the one hand and the loafer on the other? If not, what are they trying to do? They know, aside from trying to bolster up selfish political ambitions!

Oliver S. Gamble who retired from his farm last winter, recalls the tough times of 1907 in a letter to the Herald. He says he remembers and will never forget the sale of his corn crop in 1906. He had 8,000 bushels and sold the entire lot for seven cents per bushel, making a total of $560 for the crop. The cost of husking was two and one-half cents per bushel, or $200 for the 8,000 bushels. This he had $360 to show for the year's work, and as he was routing them he had to pay for use of the land. He contrasts results in 1906 with what they have been since then. A crop of 8,000 bushels of corn would now sell for sixty-five cents per bushel or $5,200. The cost of husking would amount to $200, or two cents per bushel, or $280 for the 8,000 bushels. Deducting the expense of husking, the crop would be worth $4,920, or $4,520 more than it was worth in 1906. Mr. Gamble's experience was one of many that could be cited. If conditions are satisfactory now, why the political agitation and demand for higher wages and other social policies? If we are not satisfied, what do we want? In 1906 when people were feverishly struggling against low prices, there was good reason for unrest and discontent, but now with prices high for farm products on which prices depend for support, it is hard to see what we want.

MAKES CAUSTIC REFERENCES.

In the course of his speech yesterday morning Vice President Sherman made his re-remembrance, Senator Sutherland made caustic references to Colonel Roosevelt. Following are extracts from his speech:

"We shall have arrayed against us in the coming campaign our ancient and hereditary enemy, the democratic party," said he. "In addition we shall be called upon to contend with some former associates who have concluded to abandon their amiable custom of firing upon the flag they have been following, in order that they may engage in the more honorable, but no more direct, occupation of assaulting it from the front.

"For the next few months our ears are to be filled with the voice of malcontent, strident and manykyled, calling upon the people to forsake the tried and beaten paths of constitutional government, along which they have walked with sure feet for more than a century, and enter upon a personally conducted pilgrimage through the political wilderness to a promised land as shadowy and unsubstantial as a desert mirage.

"The advance agents of this delirious excursion tarried a few days ago at Chicago, long enough to puff their individual grievances, and to engage in a bewildering jargon of impractical political nostrums such as never before has been collected at one time out of the violent words of a madhouse. And thus the so-called progressive party was born, its sole excuse for existence being the unfounded claim that the nominee for the presidency was defeated for a like nomination by stolen votes at the republican convention.

"In form 2,600 delegates, more or less, gathered in the coliseum; in reality Mr. Roosevelt met in convention at Chicago, made a confession of faith, gave his hand to the colored, negro, Irish, and other races, and to an honored brother from the south, adopted a platform, nominated himself and Brother Johnson and adjourned with the ease of a thoroughly trained thimbleigger pivoting his vocation among the rural visitors to the midway pleasure.

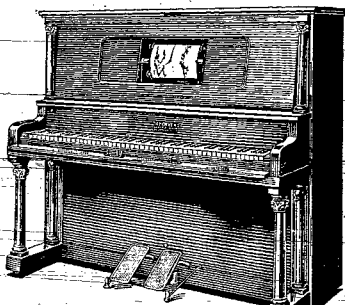

"The campaign upon which we are about to enter promises to be one of the serious moments in the American people than they have confronted since the grave questions which immediately preceded and accompanied the civil war. The ever-showering question as whether the union, under the constitution, could be perpetuated; that which confronts us today is whether the acquisition itself and the government which the constitution established, shall be preserved—a question of equal, if not greater gravity, since it would be of little avail to have preserved the union from the chaos of disintegration if the government of the union is to be given over to the chaos of disorganization.

"The party to which we belong, Mr. Vice President, stands in this supreme contest for the independence and integrity of the judicial tribunals of the land without which the guaranty of life, liberty and prosperity would be a meaningless platitude. It stands for the settled rule of impartial government, its opposed to the arbitrary power of the vast amalgamation for the liberty and order of general law, as against the tyranny of special edicts of changing men. It plants itself upon the impregnable ramparts of the constitution, and solemnly protesting against any subversion of the terms of that great compact by the formal approval of a process of amendment by misconstruction, appeals from the midsummer madness of that portion of the people which can be fettered all the time to the sober second thought of the great body of the American electorate—who will render judgment in November."

Fate of Alcibiades. The brilliant, witty and illustrious Alcibiades had one of the most extensive experiences in exile that ever fell to the lot of man. While in command of the Sicilian army he was rejected to stand trial for the destruction of the busts of Heraeus, an offense that had taken place just before his departure. Knowing that his death had been determined on he escaped to Sparta, where, by adopting the manners of the people, in strange contrast to his former style of luxury, he became immensely popular. He engaged in military operations against the Athenians and succeeded so well as to excite the envy of the Spartan leaders, who expelled him, whereupon he went to Persia and lived there with a magnificence that astonished the Persians themselves. He was recalled to Athens with the same capriciousness that marked his ostracism and was appointed commander in chief of all the Athenian forces; but failing in an important expedition, he was again sent into exile and was finally assassinated in Persia.

When anything is to be said In democratic praise, They do the speakers wake the dead— They turn their fearful gaze. To patriots who no longer keep Their trysts with those who strive; The bones of those in death's long sleep Look good to those alive. And so we hear of Jackson's deeds, Great deeds that all admire; And how, to satisfy man's needs, Was Jefferson's desire. But as for statesmen now on earth, Who the speakers wake and stir, We calculate a crop of dirt.

It is not generally known that the bluejacket of the service signifying for a New Yorker is the best British silk obtainable and that the admiralty is a very fastidious customer. GOLD ON A BIG SHIP

How Bullion In Transit Is Guarded on an Ocean Liner.

LOCKED IN ROOMS OF STEEL.

After the Treasure Is Safely Stowed Away There Is Little Danger of Its Being Stolen During the Voyage. Shipping and Checking the Keys.

The natural assumption would be that in the safeguarding of the treasure which the various countries are constantly sending one another by the big ocean liners there would be required the vigilance of many men. This, however, is not generally the case, since once the gold is stowed away in the rooms set apart for that purpose on the big ships and the vessel is well out at sea, no armed guards are necessary.

Taking the specific case of one liner sailing under the British flag, we find that it has two strong rooms, the smaller in the most forward part of the vessel, the other in the most aft. This one compartment has no doubt sheltered gold enough to pay the cost of the liner many times over. The walls, the roof and the ceiling are lined with two inch steel plate, and the room contains nothing in the way of fixtures save shelves. The lock, which is of the most reliable variety, are rendered still more secure by steel bars covering the key holes, and the strong is provided with massive padlocks. The strong rooms, being in the most forward part of the vessel, where persons are passing them at all hours of the day and night, thus receive the best protection, after all. There are two sets of keys, one of which is retained by the agent in charge of the consignment of gold and the other of which remains with the captain.

In the case of the British vessel mentioned there is another and larger section, situated next to the provisions department. This is of the same length by four in width. It frequently happens that both strong rooms are filled to their utmost capacity, and on one occasion this liner carried some $2,000,000 worth of bullion packed in small kegs bound with steel hoops.

Gold usually is brought to the vessel on which it is to be shipped the day before the date of sailing, and it is stored away carefully before passengers embark. It arrives at the pier in ordinary trucks under the guard of armed men. The customary method of getting the gold on board is to haul the kegs up an inclined chute to the deck by means of a crane. The kegs, but this method is not followed in variously. Sometimes each keg is placed in a sling and carried on board by means of this service.

The receipt given by the steamship company sets forth that so many kegs have been received for shipment, for any stated amount of gold to the value of so much. The kegs bear the government seal in many instances, and in such cases, when they have been safely put in the strong room, the iron doors thereof are sealed with government wax, the impression being broken only when the official on the other side comes to receive the gold.

The kegs are checked three—when they are taken from the trucks, when they reach the gangway and when they are placed in the strong room. Although no armed guard stands by the strong room, two men watch the room constantly so long as the ship is in sight of land. As a matter of fact, there is little danger of any one stealing gold in transit on a ship. It would be necessary that he should shoulder a keg weighing some 500 pounds and vanish with it without being seen. Masters of vessels declare gold is the safest cargo of any kind.

The total weight of one consignment of gold shipped by the British vessel in question amounted to something like 30,000 pounds, or sixteen tons, and the freight charges amounted to $12,000, or nearly one per cent. The freight of 1 per cent. Specie thus shipped is insured at its full value—New York Press.

NAVAL DISCIPLINE.

Punishments That Are Meted Out to British Sailors.

For infraction of regulations some curious punishments are meted out in the English navy. It is an every day occurrence, says the London Tit-Bits, to see half a dozen sailors lined up on deck, facing the paint work, holding their hammocks on their shoulders. As first the hammock trestle is heavy, but after an hour or so it drags on one's shoulders like lead. Besides, it is not at all entertaining to stare fixedly at a square foot of painted woodwork for an hour or more at a time.

Another punishment that Jack despises is bathing with a spoon. He is placed upon the deck, with two large wooden buckets, one filled with water and the other empty. With a spoon he must dip all the water from one bucket and transfer it to the other, being meanwhile the butt of his comrades' jests and leers.

Sometimes a delinquent is made to walk slowly backward and forward along the deck, carrying in his arms a long, heavy projectile, resembling a little over 100 pounds. Once a sailor who laughed at the stammering speech of his commander was made to stand upon the forebidge in full view of the ship's crew and laugh for an hour and a half.

Sitting upon the deck of a man-of-war is strictly prohibited. Cuspidors are placed at intervals along the deck, and these must be used. Upon no ships when a sailor is caught sitting upon the deck a small tub is strapped to his chest, and he is made to wear it.

Any one who reports may see the walking receipt. The offences mentioned rarely repeat in the navy.

CHRIS WISCHHOF ON RETURN FROM ABROAD

Holland, August 7, 1912.

Editor Herald, Wayne, Neb.
My dear Sir: Please stop sending my Herald to this address as I will have here August 26 for Hamburg and then the ship for New York, August 28. I have been travelling around Germany for the past three weeks and I have found many beautiful cities and towns. People look fine and are well dressed, streets and buildings are neat and clean. Berlin is a very large and well kept city; also Hauser is very beautiful.

Mr. Hoffman and myself will start for the southern provinces and spend the next two weeks in France. We are enjoying ourselves in visiting all the great cities, as we were both quite young when we left Germany. Then, too, traveling is not expensive in the Old World.

Germany has a big harvest of crops, both grain and vegetables, this year, but everything is high-priced. Hogs are selling for $12.25 per hundred; live weight; cattle, $12; calves, $17.50; milk cows, $125, and hoes $250 and up. Rice seems to be the main crop and is sold from $7.50 to $9.00 per bushel, and sells for $1.15 per bushel. Oats sell at 60 cents per bushel. So you see, farmers make all kinds of money, but they have to keep from five to seven hired hands all year to work, as everything is done by hand. Then 100 farmers of 120 acres have to spend about $1,000 for lime and all kinds of fertilizer. So they don't fare any better than we do in Wayne county. I have not found a single man here who has managed to earn or buy a farm in a lifetime, such as we do in Nebraska. Farms are not selling higher here than in Nebraska. You can buy a very good improved place of 160 acres at $25,000 to $30,000.

Here is one thing I can't solve: Butcher giving over $15 per hundred for live hogs and other stock and still selling meat at twenty cents per pound—twenty-five cents per pound. I wonder how our American meat eaters would like to do this and make such small profit?

Will close, hoping to be with you again in September. Best regards to all.
Respectfully,
CHRIS WISCHHOF.

Our Sunday-school session at twelve o'clock will be the only meeting we shall have at the church next Sunday. At eleven in the morning there will be preaching at the chautauqua tent, by Dr. Cook, pastor of the Westport Baptist church, Kansas City. Dr. Cook will deliver an address at 7:45 Sunday evening, also.

There will be no prayer meeting next week as a large number of our people will be at the association at Norfolk.

We have elected delegates to attend the Norfolk meeting, but any one of our people who can go will likely have a chance to go as an alternate. Let as many as possible plan to go on Tuesday morning and get there at the beginning of the meeting.

First Methodist Church.
(Rev. William Gors, Pastor.)
Two or three things are now of immediate and much importance:
First—The Sunday school will convene next Sunday at twelve o'clock; noon and will be the only meeting held in the church for the day.
Second—The Holy Communion will be administered Sunday morning September 1, and is to be a rallying service to open up the greater activities of the autumn period.
Third—All budget expenses and benevolent contributions for the year must be reported to the annual conference on the 18th day of September. Now is the time forever member of the church to pay up on all of these appointments. We must maintain the excellent reputation of Wayne church in these matters besides doing our part in our own homes, which is of the greatest importance. But if we do every member will have to do his part and do it now.

Fourth—Officers of the church will please remember that the last quarterly conference for the year is to be held on Wednesday evening, September 4, at eight o'clock.

HARVEST CARNIVAL TO BE AT WAKEFIELD

A harvest carnival and base ball tournament will be held at Wakefield three days next week, August 29, 30 and 31. The program will commence each day at 10 o'clock with a concert of one hour by the First Regiment band of Bloomfield. The concert will be followed immediately by free street performances.

The Geyer Amusement company will present the following acts: Refined rube monologue, comedy juggling act, double rolling globe act, iron jaw heavy juggling act, Arabian gun-spinning act, impromptu act introducing Madame Geyer, acrobatic act introducing Little Sadie Geyer, the youngest and smallest acrobat in the world.

The Vivos Bell College Jubilee singers will give an entertainment of songs and dances.

A short time ago application blanks were mailed to parents who live close to the State Normal, with the request that information be furnished regarding to children who expect to attend Model School. A large number of applications have already been received at the office, but a few places are still open and it is necessary to complete the roll of the various grades at once. Six grades and the Kindergarten will be represented in the work of the Model School this year. From applications already on file it has been determined that classes will be organized in the kindergarten and in grades 1, 2, 4, 6 and 8. Grades will also be organized in either grade 3 or grade 5, the choice depending upon requests received not later than Saturday, August 24. Grade 7 will not be taught.

For those who have not already done so, applications for assignments to kindergarten, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 8 should be mailed at once to President Cook, at the information given by calling telephone No. 207. Report name of pupil, age and grade of work desired.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.
Some years ago an Atchison girl and young man were married. He had an office position which paid him a fair salary, and her parents were pretty well off. The wedding was what is called in a town this size, "a social event," and the young people went to house-keeping in a house, which, to quote the newspaper account of the wedding, "the groom had furnished for himself and bride." That couple has separated, after a year a suit for divorce was brought. "Creelity" will be the charge made by the wife against her husband, although the husband has not been credited her. He does not drink or smoke to excess. He does not gamble, and has the average disposition. But their married life is a failure. The girl was brought up in a home to do the "front house-work." That means she brushes up the parlor and front hall, dusts the furniture, sweeps the stairs, and is brushed up the bedrooms. Her mother did the cooking, dishwashing, cleaning ironing and helped a colored woman do the washing. When the bride went to house-keeping the bride kept a "girl." The "girl" was a half-grown colored girl. Mornings the "girl" was always late. But finally she would come strolling down the street, turn in at the house where she worked, and drag around the kitchen until she got a cold, sloopy breakfast on the table. All the time the man of the house was in a feverish hurry to get to his work, and if he stayed home for breakfast, swallowed it whole, and left the house cross. The bride did the "front house-work," but left the kitchen entirely to the inexperienced little colored girl. At any hour in the day that slovenly little girl could be seen either going to, or coming from the corner grocery with the paper bags, and tin cans, containing the meals to be set before that household. The "girl" was changed frequently, but was always colored and hardly more than a child; and with no more idea of cooking and running a kitchen than a kitten. Well, that's the story of that shipwrecked couple. They did not strike the rock of scandal; no other woman or other man dragged them down in the sea of wretchedness. Their unhappy fate can be traced back to the fact that the man married a girl, who, when she lived at home, did nothing but the "front house-work."

Uncle Sam 's pictured as a wise old guy, but as a matter of fact, a lot of very cheap politicians bounce him.

BIG SHIP BUILDING YOUR MONEY BACK

The Planning and Constructing of an Ocean Liner.
FIRST A MINIATURE IS MADE.

This Small Model is Than Thoroughly Tested, and the Story it Tells When Perfected Will be the Story of the New Vessel When Launched.

Building a modern ocean liner is an interesting and complicated operation. The ship's plan is first prepared in sections from owners' specifications, on a scale of a quarter or half an inch to the foot. One set of drawings, called the "owner draft" is a plan of the ship's skeleton or framework without the plates, the internal deck, bulkhead and hold arrangements being indicated by a series of detailed drawings.

Surely, it is worth a quarter to get rid of these corns. And a remedy that is offered you with a guarantee to restore your feet to comfort, or money back, is worth a trial. CHIEF RAWIE, PULPIT ORATOR OF ABILITY.

Member of Rawie's Co. Chief Rawie, the head of the New Zealand company which appears here Chautauqua Week, has made a long jump from an environment of savagery. He is not only a scholarly lecturer, but is said to be one of the most able pulpit orators that could be found.

Spoke For Twenty-six Hours. A bill was pending in the legislature of British Columbia which, if passed, would drive many settlers from their lands. The legislature was within a day and a half of its final adjournment, and the vote was about to be taken. At this juncture Mr. De Cosmos, a member rose to address the body. It was 10 o'clock in the morning, and the members thought he would finish in an hour or two. Next morning when the sun flooded the hall with the light of day the orator was still without faltering, pouring forth his torrent of words. As the clock struck 12 the limit prescribed by law for the session expired, and the legislature stood adjourned sine die. De Cosmos stopped in the middle of a sentence and fell fainting in his seat. He had spoken, standing on his feet, for twenty-six hours. His eyes were bloodred and red, and his lips were cracked and running blood. He was nearly dead, but he had prevented the bill from becoming law.

Ross Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo., and is regularly sold by all druggists at $1 a bottle. But to prove what it will do at trifling expense, Zemo is now put up in 25-cent trial bottles.

VARNISHING DAY.

It Brings Many Surprises at the English Royal Academy. When the hanging committee of the English Royal Academy has completed the work of "hanging" the artists whose pictures are exhibited on the academy walls are forwarded a piece of post-board known as a "varnishing card." This card is the first intimation the artist receives that his picture has passed triumphantly through the processes of judging and "hanging" and it allows him to visit the academy on a particular day—"varnishing day" -just before the galleries are thrown open to the public. Hundreds of knights of the brush are to be found in the galleries of Burlington House on "varnishing day," and here and there lights of steps along the corridors platforms covered with artists putting the last loving touches to their canvases. Here, perched on the top rung of a pair of steps, is a young lady with smiling face scraping her picture with a palette knife and putting in fresh spots of paint occasionally, while on the floor at her feet is a young man in a trench coat and top hat, his eyes roaming toward the printing. His canvas is hopelessly spoiled, and he is stealthily abusing the members of the hanging committee for their lack of judgment.

"Varnishing day" brings many surprises to the exhibitors. One man will find his canvas wrongly named, and another's impressionist, may be situated to discover that his glorious sunset, over which he has taken so much pains, is upside down. And for the first time he realizes that an impressionist's pictures can be turned about any way without greatly endangering the effect.

Turner had one of his paintings hung upside down, and old academy-clans-well remember that a little canvas, "A Sleeping Naird," was once, owing to lack of space, placed on the wall in an upright position and renamed "The Waking Naird"-National Magazine.

FUNNY FRILLED LIZARD.

Carries an Umbrella, Has a Whip Tail and Walks Like a Bird. The frilled lizard is found in Australian woods, being tolerably abundant in north Queensland and the Kimberley district of Western Australia. It lives on beetles such as are found on the tree bark. It is about three feet long, measured from head to tail point. What makes it remarkable consists of two things—a buried tail and its fighting anger.

It carries a sort of natural umbrella top about its neck, which it elevates about with an amazing effect even to ordinary lizard killing dogs, scaring them as an umbrella opened in the face of a charging bull; hence it is called the frilled lizard. The teeth are not of much use as a defense against a vigorous animal, but when it fights it uses its long, lithe tail in a way to bring long bruises on the hands of the hunter. It could not be properly trained, it might serve as an automatic switch, which, like the magic rub-a-dub-dub effect, would at the word administer a thrashing to the disobedient child.

From the scientific point of view the creature's peculiar method of ambulation is most interesting, because it presents an absurdly grotesque appearance at such times, more especially from the rear. It walks bipedally on two feet, like a bird; and so much does it resemble a bird in its walk that it seems to be the connecting link between the ancestors of birds and the lizards of today.

A Real Disciplinarian.

The other night we heard a father speak thus: "William, your mother tells me that you must have a dose of castor oil before retiring tonight. It is our belief that you take your medicine and go to bed at once."
"But, papa, I don't want to take no castor oil."
"You must like it, and immediately."
"Aw, papa, I don't want it."
"William, if you don't take that medicine I'll put you right to bed this minute without giving you a drop of it."
William was so scared that he took it. That's the way to enforce discipline.-Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Eye Photographs.

An image impressed upon the retina of the eye remains there an appreciable time. This is the reason why a lock swung rapidly seems to be still, or that the sensibility of the retina is different at different times of the day. Every one has noticed how on waking in the morning and looking at the bright window, then closing the eyes, he will observe an impression or phantom of the window for an appreciable time after his eyes are closed.

Domestic Bookkeeping.

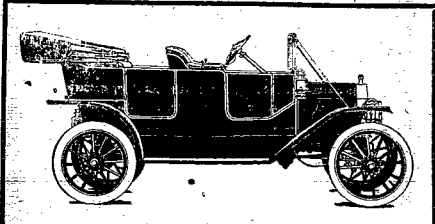

"And what's your reason for increasing the servants' wages, pray?" friend asked.
"Because my husband complained that my dress and utility bills equaled the household expenses, and I want to show him they do not."-London Tit-Bits.

Teaching the Teacher.

Mother (whose children have had an education superior to her own, to her own satisfaction) says to the teacher, "I'm smacking—I'll learn you not to contradict me! Small daughter between her sobb—Teach, mother, teach."-London Punch.

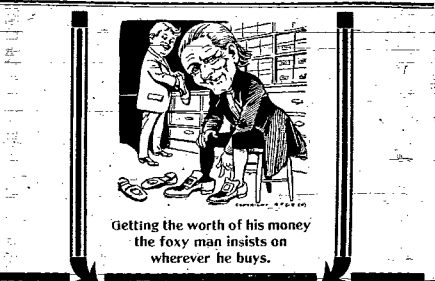

A Mystery.

"Mummy, darling, where does the dog go when it goes out?"
"The dog goes out when it goes out, might just as well ask us where our dog goes."-London Answers.

Don't Talk Loudly Over the Telephone

Most people in using the telephone talk unnecessarily loud. Speak in an ordinary conversational but slowly and distinctly. Half the art of telephoning is in deliberate speech.

Talk directly into the transmitter—not simply at it. Keep your lips close to the mouthpiece but not against it. Hold the receiver close against your ear.

Your conversation over the telephone reflects your personality. Be yourself when you telephone. Talk as you would face to face. Be natural in your speech.
