DEMOCRATIC SPEECHES

A crowd gathered on Main street last Thursday afternoon to hear a bunch of democratic celebrities tell why they ought to win in the forthcoming election. A. C. Shallenberger, candidate for United States senator, was the first speaker, and he is a polished and scholarly orator, and succeeded in making as strong an argument for his party as can be presented.

Congressman Dan V. Stevens, also followed in turn, but neither is said to have shown the ability displayed by the first speaker.

Gorman Evangelical Lutheran. (Rev. J. H. Karpenstein, Pastor.) There will be no services Sunday as the pastor will preach at Wesside. Sunday school as usual.

First Methodist Church. (Rev. William Gorst, Pastor.) Next Sunday the Sunday school will hold two sessions—one in the day time at the usual hour, 11:45 a. m., and the other at 7:30 p. m. The day session is for the usual study of the lesson when it is expected every member of the Sunday school will be present to be committed on fully day and to take a recess in the evening for the work of the school. The evening session is for the purpose of rendering the program "Loyalty," prepared by the board of Sunday school of the Methodist Episcopal church. This program is doubtless one of the best ever put out by the denomination and we hope to give it before all the members and patrons of the school. Let all parents as far as possible attend in the evening with their children.

Evangelist Lingren will begin his work here on the 17th of November. Next Sunday morning the pastor will present principles for the consideration of voters. The men of the churches entering in to the union meeting with Mr. Lingren will be called to meet at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Baptist church to organize the work. It is the purpose to make this a short, sharp and decisive campaign and therefore a popular and enthusiastic response to this call is very desirable.

First Baptist Church. (Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor.) Sunday morning will be our communion service. The spirit of the service, together with the large number of members present, make this the most interesting and helpful service of the month. The subject of the pastor's communion address will be "The Upward Look."

The Young People's meeting at 6:30 p. m. will be held by Misses Ella McVey and Ethel Kopp. The subject is "Zal." At 7:30 p. m. the pastor will preach an evangelistic sermon. At this service the large chorus choir under the direction of Professor Davies will render some good music. Our prayer meetings are still full of life and interest. We desire to make them still more useful by eliciting your help. Our union revival meetings conducted by Mr. Lingren of Chicago will begin in two weeks from next Sunday, November 17. On Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a meeting of the men from all the churches who are interested in this meeting, at the Baptist church, in order to make final arrangements for the revival. Watch the paper for more details about the coming meeting.

Presbyterian Church. (Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.) "How to Vote on Election Day" will be the subject of the sermon by the pastor at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning. In the evening he will speak on "The True Cause of Individual and Social Evil."

The Ladies' Aid society met this week on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry Ley. The following delegates were chosen by the Sunday school to the county convention in Carroll: Mrs. H. Theobald, Miss Edna Neely, Miss Irma

James and Miss Moler. Next week the Wednesday evening meeting will be devoted to considering plans for the coming union meeting under the leadership of Evangelist Lingren.

Dr. Guy W. Wadsworth, formerly president of Bellevue college and now western secretary of the temperance committee of the Presbyterian church, will visit Wayne early in November in the interests of the committee which he represents. He is at present campaigning in Colorado as that state votes on a prohibition amendment at the coming election.

A large audience filled to overflowing the McEachen school house last Sabbath afternoon when services were held by Rev. Alexander Corkey, who was assisted by Messrs. A. R. Davis and C. Clasen, and also by Mrs. A. E. Davis and Ensign Young. Services will be held next Sunday afternoon, November 10.

INEXPERIENCE VS. EXPERIENCE.

Professor Wilson, a theorist—has experienced in statesmanship and an uncertainty in administration.

President Taft, a practical statesman, diplomat and experienced executive, with improved administration assured.

AN UNBIASED OPINION.

When Theodore Roosevelt was enjoying the honor, and exercising the power of president, and before he became intoxicated by ambition or otherwise, he gave utterance to the following, regarding then Secretary of War Wm. H. Taft:

"If there is one body of men more than another whose support I feel I have a right to challenge on behalf of Secretary Taft, it is the body of workmen of the country. A staunch friend, a fairer and truer representative, they cannot find within the borders of the United States. He will do everything in his power for them except to do that which is wrong; he will do wrong for no man, and therefore can be trusted by all men. During the ten years of my intimate acquaintance with him, since I have myself as governor and president, been obliged to deal practically with labor problems, he has been one of the men upon whose judgment and aid I could always rely in doing everything possible for the cause of the workman, of the man who works with his hands, or with both hands and head."

Great Achievements. From the Erie, Pa. Dispatch. There is no doubt that the great achievements of Taft will be acknowledged by the historian of the future. The voter of the present ought to be no less clear-eyed to do the same.

What Does a Change Mean For YOU?

With our abundant crops and prosperity in all lines of business in the country, our farmers, our laborers, and our business men are going to think twice before voting for a change in the republican management of our national affairs. The following wise words of Chairman Jones, of the national republican committee, are worth mulling over by the voter:

Two groups of zealous politicians are crying to the country for a change in our national administration.

They want to take charge of the nation. They want to administer public affairs.

And they promise wildly, eagerly, that they will do us returns if only they are granted control.

From Maine to California, their words fill the air.

And have you, the workers and taxpayers, whose affairs these gentlemen would control, stopped to analyze their profers and promises? You should.

To the politicians themselves and these profers and promises are of no special importance. They have nothing to lose. They have everything to gain. Even if they lose, they win; for the contest will keep them in the limelight.

But for you, the workers and taxpayers, this contest is serious business, and you should weigh the consequences with a serious mind. Don't take mere words. Seek facts.

Out of this whirlwind of language which the "spellbinders" send beating about your ears, what is it that stands out, first and all the time?

"We want a change in Washington."

A change for what? To what? The present administration, after nearly four years' hard work, has finally succeeded in restoring the country's business to a prosperous basis.

The mills are running full time. Mines are operating all their shifts. Factories are working to capacity. Commerce is thriving. The country is free of labor troubles and financial troubles.

The working man is steadily gaining better wages. The farmer is growing steadily more prosperous. The market for farm products has never been so broad and generous.

The railroads report the heaviest freight and passenger traffic in their existence. Shipping is everywhere active. Public works on a great scale are everywhere under way. Trade is moving smoothly, in ever-increasing volume. The savings banks are overflowing with money.

The United States is on the threshold of the greatest boom in its history. Within six months, under present conditions, we will dwarf the great period that followed the Spanish War.

And our prosperity will be here to stay, for we are on sounder ground than we were in '98.

The trust problem has been settled—and settled right. "Big Business" has been put in its proper place, and this without halting industry or disorganizing affairs. The currency question is understood as it never has been, and will be solved along sound lines as soon as the heat of partisan political controversy dies down. The tariff is gradually being placed on a business basis, and soon will be out of politics, as it should.

Everything is shaping to give the American people a long, unbroken, unparalleled period of peace and plenty.

And at this time of all others, along come these political gentlemen shouting for a change.

Do you want to change? Do you want to check prosperity just as you are about to pluck its choicest fruits?

Would you, the workers who must pay, commit the mad folly of taking your government out of tried and proven hands and turning it over to the self-seekers who are clamoring for its control?

When President Taft took over the government the country was prosperous. Industry was paralyzed. Business was chaotic, uncertain, suspicious. Millions were out of employment. Investors, wherever possible, had withdrawn their capital. Enterprise was dead.

All this was the result of the panic of 1907, the "talking panic." The "Rich Man's" Panic, it was called. But do you remember any poor man who was not hurt?

It took the Taft administration over three years to repair the damage of this panic. It required infinite patience, skillful management at home and abroad, unflinching enterprise, good judgment and vast resources to bring the country out of that black pit.

And now that the pit is covered, and the country is banking once more in the level sunshine of prosperity, do you want to take a chance on being thrown back? Do you want to take a chance on being talked into another and a needless panic?

The question is not to be settled by talk, no matter how smart. The huzzahs of the hustings may make sweet music, but in the background of the future you may hear the mutterings of a people unemployed.

Your family stands with you at the dividing line, which has happiness and prosperity on one side and unhappiness and even want on the other.

If you are a tramp, without kindred and without responsibility, by all means follow the adventurers. But if you own a stake in the country, if you have kith or kin dependent on the job you hold, weigh carefully the words and deeds of those who would lead you in a mad gallop to the precipice of experimental government.

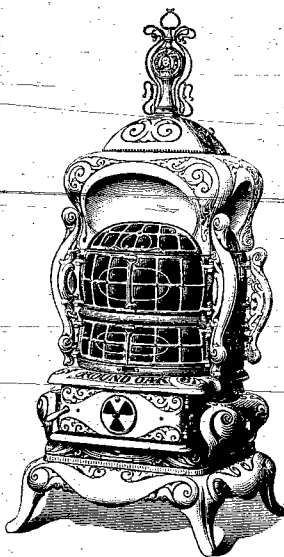

Remember, a change at Washington would mean everything for them. But what would it mean for you?

Would Mr. Taft's defeat help you? Would the theories, untried and unproven, on which the politicians are seeking to ride into office, benefit your wife and family?

Braze aside all the fine language of the orators long enough to dig out answers to these questions. You will then have a reasonably safe guide on election day, for, like true charity, true politics begins at home. The intelligent man votes for that which is best for himself and those dependent on him, and not for that which is best only for the other fellow. He is not misled by the shadow of the bean in the water.

The American people, for the first time in years, have the bond of prosperity firmly between their teeth. Are they prepared to let the dog in the yard to drop it to some outside thief?

Round Oak...Riverside Base Burners

Certainly one of these beautifully designed, and economical stoves should appeal to your sound judgment when you buy a base burner. Everything a late model stove contains is built into these 2 stoves:

Three flue return. Nickel removed in one minute without touching a bolt or screw. Ground joints, and the best of iron.

In fact, there is nothing lacking in either of these stoves—and three beautiful designs from which to make a choice.

The Poet Philosopher

"The time has come," the walrus said, "to talk about many things: of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax, of cabbages and kings; and also of the great policy of the walrus; but the walrus happened in the good old days when walrus folk could preach, and carpenters had naught to do, but ramble on the beach. It happened in the good old times when birds and beasts of prey could talk of more uplifting things than politics all-day. If we could find a walrus now that's blessed or cursed with speech, of income tax and L. and R. the tiresome brute would preach; And it would roast the plutocrats and give John D. a jolt, and we would all be bored to death ere it had shot its bolt. How rare the clear old times of which the poet sings, when animals and men could talk of cabbages and kings! For nowadays we never hear of aught but politics; or orators and managers and all their treacherous tricks. You hear about them in the street, and in the grocer's store; no matter where you choose to stray, you'll meet some windy hero who throws a harangue at the trusts; you hear the tariff-lashed; you even in the synagogues the same old straw is thrashed. And so I long for ancient days, and ancient ways, by jings, when Colonel Walrus talked awhile of cabbages and kings.

Help your town along by boosting! Wear a bright and hopeful face. Do not be forever roosting somewhere near the waiting place! You can't BOOSTING help your town by knocking, if its in a backward groove, but some optimistic talking does a lot to help things move. In the land our town was sticking, exultantly anchored there, for her people all were kicking, all were dishing up despair. All were grouncing o'er their taxes, shedding teardrops in a stream, all had hammers, adz and axes, ready for each helpful scheme. So the village sat and rotted till a booster landed there; soon the trouble's seat he spotted, saw the fungus in the air, and he jerryed the village croakers, stirred them up to bump along, till the place was full of jokers and the breeze was full of song. Citizens forsook the habit of bewailing this and that, and the timid business rabbit rustled like a tiger cat, and they all turned in kerfudding, singing forth the hamlet's name, and that hamlet, lately drooping, filled its neighbors with amaze. Now, this story, true as preaching, shows what one lone man can do, if instead of doleful screeching, he yells "cockadoodleloo!" For you stimulate your neighbors every time you give three cheers, and the harvest of your labors will be reaped in coming years.

Grim winter is a time of dread to people who are shy of bread, who hear the wolf before their door, and have no credit at the store, whose children cry in vain for WINTER rakes to soothe their painful stomach aches. Alas, that some must suffer thus! Alas, that some must groan and curse, when from the North the wintry blast goes screaming and rip-snorthing past! For when the shack is well supplied, with flour, and bacon on the side, when we have apple pies and mince, gooseberry jam and peach and quince, and cold and cold and cold in the clock's roll of men, then winter is a thing sublime, with all its snow and sleet and rime. To sit beside a cheerful fire, and read a book or punch a leaf, and hear above the household din, the storm whooping past like sin,—that's solid comfort, such as Spring or Summer days can never bring. I hope that when the Winter comes, and old King Blizzard ups and hums, you all may know the peace and bliss of sitting, by the fire like this. And if, while to the fire we tend, we think of hardup folks and send some pies and cordwood to the poor, our happiness will be more sure.

The man of perfect manners may not tattered uppers go his way, and he will gain a host of friends as on his toilsome way he wends. POLITENESS But those whose manners are correct don't need such hard-ship to expect; they mostly tread our joyous fest along the bow of easy street. For men of courtesy and grace will find a welcome any place. They are not turned from any door; the merchant wants them in his store; wherever there are high priced chairs, there's a demand for gracious chaps who have a stock of winning ways that they have carried all their days. These fellows get the best in life, when one goes forth to seek a wife the luscious damsels fairly scrap to get their talons on that chap. But never yet did pretty girl distress herself to look a churl. The courteous man finds life a feast for him the good old ways are praised, and when he dies the whole blessed world will miss him.

Or, you'd think that men whose heads are sore would try to profit by the same, and quit their foolish, gronchy Rome. Politeness makes your life severe; then why be bossish, ugly, mean? The more you deal in stress and shock, the more the world will hit you back.

Oh, William and Woodrow and Ted! How tired they must be of the noise, of painting geography red, and handing out Fairs to the boys! How tired they must be of expounding of nations and rostrals and rat, debating the whiteness of where, and also the thinness of what! How weary and sick are they all, expanding to thickheaded goats why they're for or against the recall, and why they are railing out votes. Oh, Willie and Teddy and Wood, whose colors are nailed to the mast! No matter which one's to the good when votes have been counted at last, there's nothing but trouble in store, there's nothing but grief and despair, there's nothing but walking the floor and thinking up words fit to swear! I wonder why people will strain and break their souls, trying to get a job that will drive them insane with worry and we and regret. The honors don't pay for the grief! I'd rather go fishing. I know, than live in the White House as chief, with trouble's entroned on my brow. Oh, Woolly and Teddy and Bill! When the sounds of the conflict subside, and the roar of the captain is still, and the tail is thrown in with the pride, then out political strife, the uproar, confusion and noise, retire from the strenuous life, and live like the rest of the boys.

If your stomach's working right, doing duty day and night, you will find this life a blessing, sure enough, but when it has jumped THE STOMACH the truck everything seems out of whack, and the road on which you toddle's pretty rough. When a man can sit and eat steaks and taters and repeat, you will find he is contented and serene; but the man whose stomach groans every time he gnaws some bones, gets to be a chronic sorehead, cross and mean. Oh, his works are full of storms, and he clamors for reforms, and he grouches round the village by the year; when; if he could eat some kraut without turning inside out, you would see him wear a smile from ear to ear. People talk of broken hearts, and they weep by fits and starts, telling how they long to slumber in the tomb; if their stomachs would allow them to eat a chunk of cow, they would soon forsake their brooding and their gloom. Nearly all the grief and we that we human beings know come from stomachs out of kilter, sure as fate; when man's stomach's in repair he's as frisky as a bear and his bosom has no room for fear or hate.

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Here is a druggist's opinion: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for fifteen years," says Enoch Lollar of Saratoga, Ind., "and consider it the best on the market." For sale by all dealers.

Speaking of bosses, did you ever read or hear of more pronounced and uncompromising political bosses than Theodor Roosevelt and William J. Bryan? Don't they go to the limit?

If you doubt the wisdom of electing Wilson, don't waste your vote by casting it for Roosevelt. The contest is clearly between Wilson and Taft, and a vote for Roosevelt is in effect a vote for Wilson.

If you vote a straight progressive ticket you will not vote for legislative or county officers. Those who so vote, should follow down the column and place crosses after the names of candidates preferred for the legislature and county officers.

The supreme court's decision revoking Roosevelt electors from the republican ticket is approved by most people regardless of presidential preference. Most of the Roosevelt electors at whom the court action was directed, appreciated the situation, and are pleased over the result. By reason of the court ruling, every voter can support his preference at the polls, and all will concede that such arrangement is the only fair and just one.

Soon the campaign orator will take his voice out of commission. He has worked it hard for six months, and it needs quiet and rest. The public rejoices with him over his fulfillment of duty and the approaching respite for an overworked jaw. Speaking of campaign orators reminds us of one pre-election thriller whose eloquent appeal to young men was based largely on an attempt to show that their future was before them. He shouted "Your future, my future is before you," so often and so forcefully that they were at last persuaded to believe him by the time he had finished amidst tumultuous applause.

Democratic leaders who wait office, don't contend that they will help business or the condition of the farming community. They merely assume that they will do no harm. If the people will give them charge of affairs, they hope to avoid damage to the country. They feel they won't injure the country, as much as their opponents assume, and the little injury they no doubt think likely to follow is fully warranted by their ambition to get in and run things. But why should people suppose a proposition that gives no promise of something better, but a reasonable assurance of something worse—far worse, if past experience is an indication of what would happen.

The cost of living was reduced by the democrats during Cleveland's administration, and it can be reduced by them again. And the Cleveland times would have been satisfactory if everybody had had plenty of money. But most people were caught with an inadequate supply of the latter, and therefore when a man wanted to buy something, no matter how cheap, he didn't have the cash. Lack of money to take advantage of the long series of bargain days during the Cleveland administration, necessitating the establishment of free soup houses, is the only very serious fault that can be found with that unhappy time. If everybody had plenty of money with which to run through a period of depression, no one would feel uneasy over the prospect.

The people can be trusted to do what is right when they fully understand the facts. They would not intentionally do any man an injustice. President Taft will be re-elected and justly vindicated next Tuesday if voters view with a clear and unprejudiced vision the man's efforts and achievements in behalf of all the people. People have earnestly studied political conditions the last few weeks, and as a result are brushing aside the artful misrepresentations of bold and self-seeking politicians, and rallying to the support of the one statesman among presidential candidates—the one statesman who has the capacity and understanding to lead national affairs along progressive lines without injury to the prosperity of the country. President Taft is the only one whose election gives assurance of continuing and improving good times. All other election will increase dangerous conditions on the part of the inexperienced Wilson, and will place

The popularity and scarcity of black plush coats is apparent from the following letter. Mr. Fisher who writes the letter is the salesman who sells us our coats. He was in the house at the time our order went in for black plushes and it was only through his activity as shown by this letter, that we were fortunate enough to get them.

The other manufacturers we ordered from were unable to send us a single one.

Cleveland, O., Oct 24, 1912.

Dear Jim:
 Just a line on the Q. T. When it was seen what I got together for you, you should have heard the "howl" that went up from stock-keepers, salesmen etc.; they actually did all but hang me.

The facts of the case are, we are 2 to 3 weeks behind on our orders and it is tough 'you know' to grab and steal stuff from such sources; but this don't help you out; you wanted goods and got them.

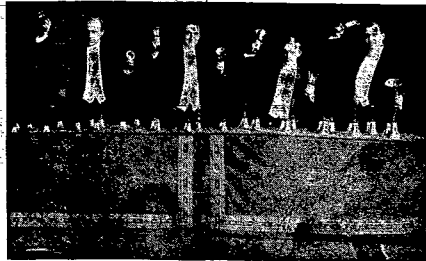

The truth is on plushes, I actually stole 'em from out of orders, in fact I ransacked from cellar to garret for the stuff I sent you, and trust it will please you. All garments sent are as clean as a whistle. Am here to tell you you are lucky to get the bunch you got. Yours Truly,

HARRY P. FISHER.

We also received a fine assortment of coats in Boucles, Diagonals and Chincillas. Young people who want novelty coats in pretty mixtures will find a splendid assortment at hand this week. Don't delay buying your coat. All the manufacturers are swamped with orders and the best-sellers are hard to get.

SHAVED BY FORCE

Peter the Great's Merry War on Beards in Russia.

RAZORS FOLLOWED THE TAX.

When Heavy Fines Failed to Produce the Desired Result the Czar Had Barbers Seize His Subjects in the Streets and Mow Their Whiskers.

Peter the Great on his return to Moscow in 1688 after traveling through Germany, Holland and England, determined to make his Russian subjects look like Europeans, for at that time, in both appearance and manners, they resembled the Asiatics. They were dressed in long robes reaching down to their ankles, gathered in folds at the waist and girded by a belt or sash, the wealthier classes wearing garments of rich materials, lined with costly furs, and on their heads they wore a high cap with a fur border.

They took a great pride in their long beards, which were combed out over their breasts, and they reckoned them not only an ornament to the face, but a distinction from the surrounding nations, who were all clean-shaven.

Peter began his reforms by ordering all the boyars, or nobles, to appear at court in English dresses on pain of his displeasure, and patterns of English coats were hung up at the gates of the city, and all persons passing through the gates in their long habits had to pay a tax or else have their skirts cut round by the king.

The poor peasants alone were exempted from this rule. On the wearing of long beards a tax was imposed, but this measure only increased the czar's revenue, for the people willingly paid the money that they might retain their cherished beards.

Even those who adopted the English dress refused to submit to an act that they thought not only irrelevant, but foolish, "for why," said they, "deprive the rich of its natural covering in a climate where the protection of fur collars was necessary during six months in the year?"

So, finding taxes and fines useless, the czar resolved to convert his subjects to the new fashion by force. At the gates of the city barbers were stationed, and all, except the peasants, who were allowed to retain their beards, were obliged to submit to a beard shaving, the right of which was sold by the king.

And venerable gray beards might be seen scattering through the streets pursued by the barbers, whom they fled from as they would from hangmen, and when caught the poor runaways frequently looked as well as their hair in this rough way of shaving. The barbers were most likely German or English and probably enjoyed the havoc they caused among the Russians.

Shaving had at one time been denounced by the clergy, and a beard at that time was looked upon as a sign of orthodoxy, so that native barbers would have got but little custom. Those Russians who persisted in wearing their long catans were obliged to kneel down, and their garments were cut off at the knees. Peter sometimes invited the nobles to his table and had them shaved in his presence, a process that some of them resisted, their faces suffering in consequence.

One day when the czar was out walking he met an old man coming from the barber's. Peter spoke kindly to him, telling him that now he had lost his beard he looked like a young man. Upon this the old man put his hand into his bosom and, drawing forth the beard that had been cut off and showing it to the czar, told him that he should preserve it and have it placed in his coffin, that in the next world he might show it to St. Nicholas to prove that he was a true Russian.

Peter did not confine his reforms to the men's habits. He also changed the dress of the Russian ladies; but, though the new costume may have been more convenient, it was certainly not so quaint or picturesque as the old one. The ladies of Russia lived in a certain seclusion, seldom appearing in public and having a separate part of the house appropriated to them, but the czar ordered that at all festivities or public entertainments women should be invited as well as men, but that they must all appear in English dresses.

Great crises affect people differently. With some the hair turns white, with others emotion expresses itself in incoherent speech. Fenway when he first met Frederick Barbarossa, whom he much admired, and who he knew had led the pope, was so nervous that he could talk to the "beard" before he had even been shaved.

James Alexander, farmer living eight miles west of Ponca, was shot and killed by Robert Blair. Born, October 24, 1885, to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Raber, a son. Married, October 25, 1885, Mr. H. E. Nye of Wayne, to Miss Cora B. Giles of Sioux City. Died, Mrs. J. S. Hake. The district conference of the M. E. church is held in Wayne.

From the Wayne Herald, November 17, 1892: Local market: Corn, 25 cents; wheat, 48 cents; oats, 20 cents; flax, 90 cents; rye, 38 cents; hay, $4.00. Married Mr. W. H. Nangle to Miss Rosa Edwards. The brick plant of J. S. Lewis was destroyed by fire, causing a loss of about $3,000.00.

Since the election of a democratic president, a lively contest follows for the postoffice. Married, at Wayne, November 16, 1892, John Thede to Pauline Bakker. Died of consumption, November 16, 1892, John Broeger.

From the Wayne Herald, November 18, 1902: Cattle: Niegendorf, found guilty of murdering Anna Peters in Pierce county, was sentenced by Judge Boyd to be hanged. A public meeting is advertised to take place to talk over the proposition of a free public library.

Married, November 12, 1902, Oscar Schlander of Cedar Rapids, Neb., to Nellie Tudenholz, daughter of the proprietor of the Boyd hotel. A horse and buggy were stolen from E. H. Wright, living southwest of Wayne.

From the Ponca Journal, November 21, 1878: The price of wheat, from thirty-five to fifty cents per bushel, is so low that farmers do not come to market unless absolutely compelled to.

A public meeting was one of the attractions in town last Saturday, when John Lawrence's old "Jim," who has a record of having beaten the narrow gauge, and a long-eared quadruped belonging to Mr. Gibson. It resulted in a draw.

We understand that one day last week some spallions for mischievously disposed persons in the central part of Cedar county started the report that a band of Indians were making a raid through Knox county with intent to clean out Cedar and Dixon. It was a foolish story yet it startled a few, but it was so improbable that it did not create a genuine, old-fashioned Indian scare, as was expected. Indian raids in Dixon or Cedar counties, within a hundred miles of them are things of the past.

The late pedestrian feats all over the country will hardly excite in point of speed, the performance of a gentleman who walked down to Sioux City from this place on Monday. He started out at 9 o'clock in the morning, being half an hour after the train left, and following the railroad track, so briskly did he ply his legs that he made the trip, twenty-six miles, in four hours and fifteen minutes, being a trifle over six miles an hour. He thinks he could have made even better time, but when he overtook the train, it was in the narrow cut at the Hedges farm, and it blocked his path nearly twenty minutes before he had an opportunity of passing it.

From the Ponca Journal, November 18, 1880: The Cedar County Nonpartisan states that City B. Wilbur of St. Helens, is to be general manager of that route.

The telegraph poles are being set along the railroad between Covington and Omaha. On the line to Ponca, we shall have to wait awhile longer.

Ponca now has direct railroad connection with Omaha, the line having been finished last Thursday. Regular trains commenced running between Covington and Omaha Monday. This gives northern Nebraska additional market facilities, making it optional whether the products of this section shall be shipped north or south.

The railroad surveyors who have been making a line west from this place, by the way of the Silver Creek, to the Cedar county, find that the route is not practicable. After looking over that route, the surveyors returned the old line an Army creek at Neversdale, and have as we understand, decided to

COUPLE WEDS AGAIN.

Sioux City Journal, October 24: Reconciliation between Miss Lucy Ulrich and Robert G. Mears, her former husband, was shown yesterday when a license granting them permission to marry again was issued. The couple was drawn together following a three weeks illness of Miss Ulrich at Samaritan hospital.

Mrs. Mears obtained a divorce a year ago, and resumed her maiden name, as she was a minor. They were married the first time in June, 1909, in Sioux City. Differences arose, but after the divorce, Mears said his wife would see him frequently and kept up a correspondence. Mears declared that another marriage offered him the only means of properly caring for his former wife.

Mrs. Anna Ulrich, mother of Miss Ulrich, lives in Wayne, Neb.

Perhaps the man who tries to be better than other people has some license to feel that way.

A relative who took them complained of a severe pain across the back and could get no rest at night on account of the weakness of the kidneys. He explains that the irrigated valleys produce never-fasting crops of hay, especially alfalfa, that would be a credit to land worth $100 an acre. Potatoes, pumpkins and tomatoes that almost break the ground with their weight are grown and cattle, sheep and hogs thrive there. Mr. Hamilton describes the sand hills of Nebraska as the garden spot of the country.

PRESENTATION OF HAMLET IN WAYNE

The honors were inclined to believe the words of Mr. Wight, the chief actor in the play of Hamlet that was rendered at the opera house in Wayne last Saturday night, when, in his address before the curtain at the close of the fourth act, he said that he and his collaborators were seeking to educate the public, especially the young, to appreciate good drama.

It is a pity that the play was so greatly admired. The writer is sure that many did not see the intricacies of the situation. It would have been better had the managers had the courage to begin an hour earlier and run an hour later and present the whole in one continuous and unbroken tragedy.
