POWER PLANT UNDER DISCUSSION MEETING FRIDAY NIGHT

Asked to Appoint Committee Outside of City Council to Help Make Plans.

A meeting called by Mayor J. G. W. Lewis on Friday evening to consider the power plant was not largely attended, but those present discussed the subject in hand, and finally carried a resolution asking the mayor to appoint a committee of five, outside of the city council, to act with a committee from the council in the preparation of plans for needed improvements.

Mayor Kate called the meeting to order, and after stating the object, asked Professor J. G. W. Lewis to preside. As chairman, Mr. Lewis called for remarks from different citizens expressive of opinions as to what should be done with the plant, whether it should be repaired or replaced with a new one, whether the system should be turned over to a private corporation.

Commitman W. W. Kingsbury whose experience has made him familiar with the plant and cost of operation, explained that the boilers were not worn out and that something would have to be done soon. He mentioned the enormous consumption of coal, made excessive by a poor kind of machinery, badly worn.

Others expressed themselves, all in favor of doing something without needless delay. Some suggested that a private corporation would relieve the city of a burden of the favoring rates to be made if enforced in a franchise, which, however, was deemed unlikely.

The kind of current that should be provided in the installation of a new plant was discussed somewhat. Wayne now has what is called a "direct" current and it seemed to be the general opinion that no fault could justly be found with the quantity of the service. The fact it was suggested that if any of this class has more satisfactory electricity. It was mentioned that if the alternating current were put in with a new plant, every meter and every motor in the city would be rendered useless. Thousands of dollars invested in such equipment might be thrown away, unless it could be proven conclusively that a great saving in operation could be made with the alternating current without diminishing the quality of the service.

The suggestion that the city was losing money in the operation of the lighting and waterworks plant led to a suggestion by one citizen that a superintendent, experienced and sufficiently paid to justify him in carefully managing all the business in connection with supplying and operating the plant, would be practical economy. The suggestion meant that to carry on a public service plant under municipal ownership at a satisfactory private corporation would do it, it is necessary to centralize power and centralize responsibility, and to do so, ample compensation must be paid.

The question of oil burning machinery, similar to that used in Weber Brothers' mill, or the latest in the shape of coal burners, was mentioned, but the absence of definite information was not fully discussed. It was made apparent that something must be done in the near future to improve the city plant, and citizens at the meeting seemed to be in favor of an entirely new one, involving the voting of bonds.

Therefore, committees, chosen with regard for the duties to be undertaken, will formulate and formulate practical plans to be presented and considered at a later mass meeting.

Committees Acts.

In accordance with the resolution passed at the mass meeting, Mayor Kate appointed the following citizens to act as a committee to confer with the city council in regard to the power plant: George Stringer, T. W. Moran, Dr. T. B. Isckert, A. B. Davis, E. R. Theobald and C. C. Stevens. They met last night with the council Monday evening, and discussed the proposed improvements. The committee accompanied Mayor Kate to the engineering department of the state university to send an expert here to explain the conditions to be undertaken, and explain that would be the most feasible thing to do to meet the needs of the city.

INFORMATION FROM NEBRASKA CITIES

REGARDING ELECTRIC PLANTS

Series of Questions Answered by City Clerks—Charges to Consumers Vary Greatly.

After the mass meeting to consider improvements to the city lighting plant, the Herald dispatched cards of inquiry to about fifty Nebraska cities to ascertain facts regarding their electric and waterworks systems, and accordingly up to this time has heard from twenty-two of them. These questions were asked:

Is lighting plant owned by the city or private corporation?

What is the rate for lighting?

What is the rate for power?

If owned by corporation, what does city pay for street lighting?

How often the past year has electric plant been unable to furnish service?

MURPHY IS CHARGED WITH WHITE SLAVERY

TRAVELING MAN UNDER ARREST

Harry Murphy, in Trouble at Sioux City, Visited Wayne Saturday— Came Here Every Week.

Harry Murphy, traveling salesman, arrested in Sioux City on a serious charge, is said to have visited Wayne twice every week in the interest of the company which he represented. He is reported to have been here last Saturday. Tuesday's Sioux City Journal contains the following reference to his arrest and the charge lodged against him:

Harry Murphy, a traveling salesman, who was arrested Saturday evening by detectives following the story of Louise Browning, 15 years old, of Pender, Neb., who told the police that Murphy held her a prisoner in his room at the Chicago Hotel, will be prosecuted under the Mann white slave act.

Murphy was turned over to Deputy United States Marshal Blanchard late yesterday. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner A. O. Wakefield on a charge of violating the Mann act, which prohibits the importing of a woman from one state to another for immoral purposes. Murphy, through his attorney, entered a plea of not guilty. His hearing was set for December 23.

Murphy was unable to obtain a $2,000 bond and spent the night in the county jail. Mrs. Murphy, who declares her husband is innocent, was expected to return from Lincoln, Neb., last night.

The federal action against Murphy followed a conference between Chief of Detectives Richard, County Attorney Jenson and the federal officials.

Letters that Murphy had received from girls in the territory where he traveled were seized by detectives in a search of his rooms Sunday. The letters, it is said, contain evidence that will be used by the federal authorities.

INVESTIGATION OF JOHN KAUFFL'S DEATH

IN-LAW UNDER ARREST

Country Farmer is Held on Incest Charge—Story of His Relations With Kauffl.

John Kauffl who was killed near Long Pine on December 3, spent most of his life on a Wayne county farm near Mendon. He moved with his family to the Long Pine vicinity last August. His father-in-law, Frank Farrer, is being held on an incest charge. He is now in jail, being unable to furnish $2,000 bonds.

At Worth, Neb., December 8.—The body of John Kauffl who was found near Long Pine on December 3, is being investigated by the authorities. Pending the result of the investigation, Frank Farrer, Kauffl's father-in-law, is being held on an incest charge. He is now in jail, being unable to furnish $2,000 bonds.

On Tuesday evening, December 9, Frank Farrer rode into Long Pine from the south, and stopping at the DeLand store, had the "boys" call up their father, Justice DeLand and Marshal Cox and informed them that the dead body of John Kauffl, his son-in-law, was lying near the road just outside the corporate limits to the southeast. Coroner Beal was at the depot and was called, and the coroner, Justice DeLand, Marshal Cox, Drs. Lawson and Tricher and others went out and brought in the body.

An inquest was ordered, which was concluded the next day, the verdict being that Kauffl came to his death from a fracture of the skull at the base of the brain, but it was not known what caused the fracture.

Sends for County Attorney. On the train that night Kauffl's father came in from his home near Marshall, Minn. He was not satisfied with the verdict of the coroner's jury, and he postponed the funeral and sent for County Attorney Cotton.

The county attorney arrived next morning and began his investigation. Attorney Cotton says that Frank Farrer had been sustaining illicit relations with Kauffl's wife, who is his own daughter, and that these relations began when she was less than 15 years of age. It is said John Kauffl was engaged to the girl years ago, but that he broke the engagement. She then married Walter Bolish, and Kauffl went away. Bolish lived with her several years, when he died. Farrer, her father, then returned to the farm and lived with his daughter. After a time Kauffl returned and resumed his suit for her hand. He was successful, and they were married in the face of her father's opposition.

While Kauffl and his bride were away on a wedding trip it is charged that Farrer took all the stock and all the cars away from the place and sold it. There has never been the best of feeling between Kauffl and Farrer, and this has resulted in being identified by Farrer breaking up the match in the first instance, his opposition to the second courtship and his appropriation of all the stock and grain after the marriage.

Meet on the Highway.

At noon on December 3, Kauffl started from the farm, thirteen miles south of Long Pine, to go to Mendon to get a load of lumber to be used in finishing his barn. When about two miles from town, and about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, he met Farrer, who was going south on a gray horse. They stopped and talked. This talk, or parley, or quarrel, whatever it was, lasted for over three hours, and the imprints of their feet on the road for a space of about ten feet in diameter was plainly to be seen today. Several farmers passed them while they were there talking, and all report that they were talking loud, and some say in angry tones. Two pint whiskey bottles were found. The bartender in the Long Pine saloon says he sold Farrer two pint bottles of whiskey Tuesday forenoon before he left town.

Farrer says that the talk was friendly. He says that Kauffl wanted him to go back to town and stay over night with him, but that he said he could not. About 5:15 they separated, Kauffl going toward town and Farrer pursuing his journey southward. Farrer says that when he had gone about thirty or forty rods he concluded that he would go back to town and stay over night. He turned around and thought he saw Kauffl's team running away. He rode on until he overtook him and says that soon afterwards he fell from the wagon. Farrer says he rode around the back of the team while Kauffl got up and climbed upon the wagon again. He said that he did not notice anything unusual in his actions.

Kauffl's dead body was found by the roadside, his head resting on the ground about three or four inches lower than his body. The neck of the team which Kauffl got up and climbed upon drove down to the road for some one or two feet. Farrer denies that he was with Kauffl when they passed the Mendon place, or that he was with him when they passed the Barker place, as charged by witnesses. He says that he was some distance behind, and when he came up to Kauffl he found him dead and his team gone.

WOMAN AT STANTON BURNED TO DEATH

Stanton special in Tuesday's Norfolk Daily News: Mrs. I. N. Garner, a widow about 68 years of age, was burned to death at her home in the east part of Stanton yesterday.

At about 1 o'clock she had occasion to get up and light a match, accidentally the curtain of the bedroom was ignited. In attempting to put out the curtain, fire was communicated to her night robe. Her entire person surrounded by flames, she rushed out into the night and endeavored to extinguish the flames in the snow. But it availed her nothing. Her sole companion, Martha Weidner, a young school girl, could render no effective assistance and Mrs. Garner's body was burned to a crisp.

The neighbors were aroused, and Dr. Peters was called, but she was beyond help. She retained consciousness, suffering greatly, until about 5 a. m. She expired about 8 o'clock, a. m. Mrs. Garner was the widow of Isaac Garner who died some three years ago. Her first husband, Christian Stock, who also died some ten years ago, was a prominent farmer in this county. Her children, two sons and a daughter, are all grown to manhood and womanhood. She was highly respected by all who knew her.

PAVILION SALE IN WAYNE

The pavilion sale on last Saturday was a pretty good one, taken as a whole. The goods were not high on animal sold, neither were they low, but just about fair. The bidders seemed to be slow in taking hold making the auctioneer work extremely hard to sell the goods. The prevalence of cholera in this section doubtless was responsible for the lack of interest manifested by farmers in the pavilion. The goods offered and accounted largely for the low prices these animals sold at. Milch cows sold well and the demand seemed very urgent at prices that certainly were profitable to the sellers. The steer stuff was not of the best quality and failed to attract much interest among the buyers, but it looked as though buyers would pay good prices if they had good stuff to bid on. The horse stock offered was pretty much on the "plug" order and prices were about on a par with the offerings. The demands is for good stuff and if our farmers and dealers have anything to sell that has merit we are satisfied the buyers will meet them half way and pay satisfactory prices. The management is in hopes that the offering of Saturday, December 21, will be of a kind that will be attractive to the buyers and believes the prices will justify sellers in offering the best they have on the farm.

The fire chief submitted a list of names as members of the fire department. On motion the appointments were approved as follows: Frank Geisbert, R. A. Clark, H. E. Griggs, H. W. Theobald, T. J. Tielke.

MAYOR KATE IN YEKAMAH

Tekamah Journal: The called meeting to talk over plans for securing a Carnegie library was well attended by Tekamah citizens last Friday at the school auditorium. Mrs. Kate of Wayne, was there to tell us how the citizens of her place secured a similar library and what he thought about such a proposition in general. He was emphatic in his opinion of the good such things do to a community. He declared a dollar gift to such institutions as churches, schools and a thing that equates a town is not so much a gift as an investment that returns a splendid rate of interest. Mayor Kate is an enthusiast in the matter of making a town better and he is the kind who is not afraid to put his dollars into matters of this kind. He was asked questions freely and the result of the meeting was that Mayor Anderson, who was made chairman was given power to appoint committees to circulate a petition for the city school to act upon

Let us be so kind and magnanimous during the holiday season that the hat will become so firmly fixed that we will continue so throughout the year.

More suspicion or rumor than an alternating current would be better for the city than the present direct current should not cause serious consideration of a change. It should be definitely proven that service would be enough better and cheaper to warrant the huge sacrifice in meters and motors.

In a matter of necessary improvements, the city should give its power plant the same prompt attention that would be devoted to it if owned by a private corporation. No man or set of men, having money invested in a public service institution, would delay improvements until utter ruin made service impossible. The city should exercise the same sound business judgment.

The commission form of government has proven successful wherever tried, and Wayne might well consider a movement in that direction. As we understand it means management of all municipal affairs by a few thoroughly competent and well paid men. These few men become directly responsible for everything done, and it would be up to them to exercise the same care in doing things for the city as they would exercise in handling their own business. The compensation would be great enough to justify all of the time and attention of men well qualified for the task. It is an advanced step worth considering.

A New York newspaper which was sued for $10,000 because it published announcement of the death of a person who wasn't dead, has been acquitted and relieved of responsibility by the appellate division of the supreme court at Brooklyn. Thus, a newspaper which has a subscriber whose long delinquency gives reason for the belief that he is dead, is safe and fully warranted in publishing his obituary.

A Washington special quotes some would-be political savant as saying that if the republican party is ever to be rebuilt, Colonel Roosevelt must be the architect. Granting that there is no one on earth right now, excepting Roosevelt, capable of reconstructing the party, isn't there still hope? Isn't it likely—anyway possible—that some one some time will be born, equal to Roosevelt, and capable of leading the republican party back to power and usefulness?

The democrats are getting ready to tackle the tariff. They should approach the task fearful of consequences. It is a complicated subject, and one that should be passed on by a competent, non-partisan board, rather than by a bunch of politicians who know little about the tariff, and each of whom, in considering the subject, thinks more of gaining advantage for his particular district than he does of a scientific revision that would be fair and equitable to all sections of the country.

The religious view which contemplates two places—a locality called heaven for the reception of the repentant and another called hell for the eternal abode of the unrepentant or so-called lost seems quite as materialistic as the unbelief which refuses to recognize spiritual life or anticipate survival of the soul. Either virtually opposes a spiritual interpretation of the scriptures, and both do violence to the logic of many who want to live again, and who earnestly strive to think right thoughts and live right lives in order to heighten their spiritual condition. The spiritual conception, which happily obtains in most churches today, and is voiced from pulpits by most ministers, encourages imitation of the Christ life, gives reward or punishment here and hereafter according to merit or demerit, and leads away from material considerations to the contemplation of noble and generous thoughts and deeds. For every man, it provides a just heaven and a just hell, and through this life and the one to come he gets exactly what is coming to him. The spiritual idea, following the Christ life, appeals to the reason of an increasing number of people.

A CHRISTMAS TREE THAT WALKS

It would surprise most children if a Christmas tree came walking out of the next room on Christmas eve—surprise them even more than to see Santa Claus hop out of the chimney, for most children rather expect to see Santa Claus, but they do not expect to see a Christmas tree that can walk around. Such a one can be contrived, and this is a story of the way to do it. First it is necessary to have a living person on the inside, whom we will call the "angel" of the tree. She should be quite a tall girl.

From dark green undressed cambric cut a long, plain cloak that will reach from neck to feet. Make a peaked hat, like a large cornucopia, out of lightweight cardboard. Cover the hat with some of the green cambric, allowing a cape of the material to fall from hat to shoulders at the back.

Get three pieces of moss green tissue paper. Cut into strips six inches wide and cut each strip into a rather coarse fringe, leaving a heading at the top two and a half inches wide.

Beginning at the bottom, sew the fringe around the cloak, allowing it to reach just to the edge of the cloth.

Above the first row of fringe and overlapping it sew the second row, bringing its lower edge within two inches of the bottom edge of the first row.

In this way put on row after row of fringe, always overlapping it, until the cloak is entirely covered. Then cut the hat and its cape in the same manner.

Take a light wooden hoop, one of those that are rolled on the payments in hoop time, and, turning the edge of the cloak up once, fit the hoop in the fold and bend the edge over it. This will hold the cloak out firmly at the bottom, and it should hang smooth and straight from the shoulders, with a generous lap where it closes in front. Sew the fronts together, leaving an opening only large enough to slip over the head.

and suspend from the hooks the glass ornaments and presents. Put the peaked hat on her head, and the Living Christmas Tree will be ready for her first appearance.

THE DOLL DOCTOR.

He's Almost as Busy as Dear Old Santa Claus. Dolls have ever so many things happen to them. Sometimes little brothers break off their heads and sometimes their "mother's" let them fall and break an arm, a leg or a nose. Then their hair comes off, and a baldheaded dollie certainly is not beautiful. Altogether dolls have more accidents and diseases than really truly people.

And that is where the doll doctor comes in. Did you ever hear of the doll doctor? Well, he is a very nice man who fixes up all the broken dollies and makes them as good as new. If you should ever visit the doll doctor you would find him with all sorts of battered, maimed and disabled dollies lying around him, some with eyes gouged out, some with legs or arms gone, some with broken fingers and others with only paint scratched from their faces. The doctor looks after them all. He is a very busy man—almost as busy as Santa Claus.

"SCRATCHED ROCKS."

They Mark the Course of Glaciers. Adown Our Continent. Throughout the northern United States, from the Atlantic coast to the far northwest and as far south as Kentucky, huge bowlders are found scattered in hundreds. The rocks and ledges are smoothed and marked with scratches varying from faint lines to broad grooves two feet deep. Some of these bowlders, weighing many tons, are so balanced on a ledge that a slight touch will rock them. The Indians used them as "alarm bells."

The grooves or scratches on these rocks are generally parallel to each other, north and south. South of the above mentioned area neither bowlders nor scratched rocks can be found.

How came the bowlders in their positions? What scratched the rocks? Agassiz, familiar with the glaciers of the Alps, probably gave the true answer. He showed that a similar state of things is found today by the glaciers of Switzerland. These streams of ice creep slowly down from the lofty summits of the Alps through the valleys and over the plains. They bear on their surface huge rocks fallen from surrounding cliffs. The stones frozen in the bottom of the glacier, pressed down by the enormous weight of ice above them, scratch and groove the rocks beneath, as the tool of a carpenter gouges out a piece of wood.

What was the condition of America when similar effects were produced? Instead of local glaciers scattered in the valleys, the whole surface now covered with bowlders must have been like a single immense sheet of ice. Judging from the marks on the rocks, the sheet moved from the north toward the south, carrying with it masses of rock.—Harper's Weekly.

Expectancy of Life. All insurance is calculated upon the probable length of time a person has to live. This is called the average expectancy. Many elaborate tables have been made up by the insurance companies, some based upon one set of facts, and upon another, and consequently they vary slightly. The British life annuity tables, a fair calculation, show that a man of fifty has a natural expectancy of living 21.2 years, a woman of the same age 22.8 years; at sixty his expectancy is 14.8 years, hers is 17 years; at seventy his is 9.5 years, hers 10.9 years.

She Saw. "Why is Mrs. Wombat wearing such dowdy clothes lately? She spends half her husband's income on dress, but why is she wearing such mean looking clothes just now?" "Her husband's mother is visiting her just now. See that?" "The other woman, saw.—Pittsburgh Post.

WHEN SANTA WAS A BOY.

When Santa was a little boy, The same as me of you, I wonder where did Santa live And what did Santa do? I wonder who his home up north, Close by the cold north pole? Did Santa have to chop the wood? And carry all the coal? Did Santa have to clean the paths And rake things from the stoop? Did Santa have to mind the kids And scold the baby's room? Did Santa have to stay indoors And work on horrid snow, Instead of going out to skate Or coasting with his chums? No matter what he said or did, Did grown folks sternly say, "Behave, and be a better boy." "Twill soon be Christmas day!" No wonder, then, with luck like this, That to a saint he grew And knew at Christmas time just what Boys like to have and do.

THE WEEK WITH THE CHURCHES.

German Evangelical Lutheran.
 Services Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The new pastor, Rev. Moshing, will occupy the pulpit. Sunday school at 10 o'clock.

St. Mary's Catholic Church.
 (Rev. William Kearns, Pastor.)
 Mass Sunday morning at 10:15 and catechetical instruction at 3:30 in the afternoon. Benediction at 7:30 in the evening.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church.
 (Rev. J. Kahn, Pastor.)
 Sunday school at 10 a. m. Preaching services at 11 a. m. every Sunday. It is very much desired that all members of our Sunday school be in attendance next Sunday. The school is busy this week in their preparations for Christmas. We trust that all will lend a helping hand that this may be one of the best Christmas entertainments.

 The pastor desires especially that every family of our church be at the preaching services on next Sunday. He has an interesting message for each one.
 Although our services are quite well attended, yet there are many who fail to be present.
 To have a successful church everyone should be at his post of duty, and ready to service. Let every one strive to get the church-going habit. Thus will the church be enabled to fulfill her mission and be a blessing to all.
 The subject of sermon for next Sunday is, "A Noble Decision, or the Best Thing for the Home."

First Baptist Church.
 (Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor.)
 The special meetings being over, we shall now renew our regular church activities. As yet, we are unable to tabulate, in full, the results of the meetings, but we are sure that those who were privileged to attend, feel strengthened and encouraged in the work. Mr. Lingren impressed all with his spirit of earnestness and sincerity, Sunday morning at 10:45 the pastor preaches on the subject, "Life in a Large Place." The sermon is especially suited to those who have lately become Christians. The evening sermon will be evangelistic upon the theme, "The Christian's Challenge."

The classes in the Sunday school are all doing splendid work. We still are anxious for all our men, who can possibly do so, to attend the men's class, taught by Professor Lewis.

The Christmas cantata under the direction of a committee, Miss Pearl Hughes, chairman, is well under way. The theme of the cantata is very fine, and we speak well for its presentation by the school. Let every one who has a part respond to every call.

We very much desire that our prayer meetings will maintain a rich, spiritual tone. We all need this. We cordially invite the young Christians to attend this. Young people's meeting at 6:30 p. m. Sunday.

Presbyterian Church.
 (Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.)
 The regular Sunday services will be resumed in the Presbyterian church next Sabbath, and the pastor will preach on the following subjects: Morning, "The Blighted Hope of a Parent;" evening, "Responsibility, Where Shall We Place It?"
 The preaching services are at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. The Sunday school meets at 12 noon, at the close of the morning service. The C. E. prayer meeting meets at 6:30.
 The subject of the C. E. meeting will be "Spiritual Help Gained from the Lingren Meetings." Mr. Clason will lead.
 Next Wednesday evening the prayer meeting will consider practical methods of making Christmas season a real time of Christian joy.

On Friday evening of this week Rev. Alexander Corkey will give his lecture, "The Truth About Ireland," at the McEachern school house. The lecture is given under the auspices of the literary society, and there will be a charge of 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children. A number of chairs have been provided and a large attendance can be accommodated.
 A picture in the "Lynchburg Herald," the official paper of the Presbyterian church in America, shows a mission study class of Presbyterian young people at Storm Lake, Ia. Prominent in the picture is the photo of Miss Bernice Moler who was a delegate to this conference last summer.

FACT—LOGAL EVIDENCE.
 Evidence that can be verified.
 Fact is what we want.
 Opinion is not enough.
 Opinions differ.
 Here's a Wayne fact.
 You can test it.
 Mrs. D. S. McVicker, Wayne, Neb., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills a few years ago when I was suffering from dull pains across the small of my back and a bearing-down feeling in my loins. This remedy cured me and at that time I publicly told of my experience. I am now willing to confirm my former statement."

 If your back aches, if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for Doan's Kidney Pills—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50 cents at all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y., Adv.
 Doubtless Americans are funny to many of those "furriners" whom we say have no sense of humor. Also women, marked low on the s. of h. scale, may regard the men as something of a joke.

Save Letter Writing--
Telephone Your Friend

Who doesn't hate to write letters—but who doesn't get real joy out of telephoning?

Then there is something cold and bloodless about a letter—it lacks the human touch. The telephone permits you to hear the living, laughing voice of your distant friends.

To be remembered by a long distance call brings one pleasure not found in mere paper and ink.

Remember your Bell Telephone is a long distance station from which you may talk to nearby towns or to distant places anywhere.

Telephoning doesn't cost much. Ask "Long Distance."

Press, and the large concourse of people which followed her to the grave fittingly demonstrated the esteem in which she was held by her acquaintances.

On Friday evening the Juniors entertained the high school pupils and teachers in the basement of the school building. The basement room is an ideal place for such entertainment. The evening was spent in playing games, after which popcorn, apples and candy were served by the boys of the Junior class, who were aprons of the class colors, green and bronze. Considerable class spirit was manifest, the freshmen being particularly enthusiastic.

The Sons of Herman held their regular annual election last Tuesday night at their hall and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Gust A. Mittlestadt, president; Carl Bronstanski, vice president; John Dimmell, secretary; Henry Trautman, treasurer, and Adolph Rohlf, Henry Fahn and August Damm, trustees. They decided to hold their annual mask ball in January.

The gun club of Carroll held their regular Tuesday to have a clay pigeon contest with the Winside team. The day was very hot and they might have done better had the weather been more favorable. From twenty-five birds each the result was as follows:

Winside—Nelson 16, Manion, J. Gaebler 12, Sharpnack 11, Miller 11, Gaebler 10, Manion 9, Sharpnack 9, Total 92.

Carroll—Fry 13, Linn 10, Kesteron 10, Trautwein 8, Francis 8, Hughes 7, Baizer 3, Olmstead 3, Total 62.

The firemen met last week and elected the following officers: Eric chief, Charles Unger; first assistant, Chris Nelson; second assistant, Julius Schmoed; captain, William Heyer; second captain, Gust Wendt; secretary, Lloyd Holcomb; treasurer, Henry Woker. Gust Wendt and Theodore Milder were taken as new members. The firemen's ball will be held on the evening of December 31. They will dance the old year out and the new year in. It is the wish of the management that all the men in town buy a ticket to help the boys along. They do lots of hard work for very little pay. All buy a ticket at one dollar each.

Believes Knuff was Murdered.

On receipt of a telegram from Long Pine, Neb., stating that his son John had been killed, Frank Knuff left his home in Minnesota and reached the scene of the murder in time to be present at the coroner's inquest and ordered a post-mortem examination, which proved that his son had been murdered instead of killed in a runaway as first reported. Mr. Knuff returned to Winside last Sunday and states he believes that John was killed by being struck on the back of the head with a wire stretcher in the hands of his father-in-law. The father-in-law was immediately arrested and placed in jail. Mr. Knuff also states that this is not the first crime the man has committed as will be disclosed before the trial is ended.

On Friday evening the Juniors entertained the high school pupils and teachers in the basement of the school building. The basement room is an ideal place for such entertainment. The evening was spent in playing games, after which popcorn, apples and candy were served by the boys of the Junior class, who were aprons of the class colors, green and bronze. Considerable class spirit was manifest, the freshmen being particularly enthusiastic.

On receipt of a telegram from Long Pine, Neb., stating that his son John had been killed, Frank Knuff left his home in Minnesota and reached the scene of the murder in time to be present at the coroner's inquest and ordered a post-mortem examination, which proved that his son had been murdered instead of killed in a runaway as first reported. Mr. Knuff returned to Winside last Sunday and states he believes that John was killed by being struck on the back of the head with a wire stretcher in the hands of his father-in-law. THE LIBRARY BOARD HEARS COMMITTEE

The city library board met in regular session Tuesday evening, and among other business heard the report of the building committee. The committee reported that completion of the Carnegie library building had been put off by unexpected delay in securing the mill work. It is now expected the building will be ready to turn over to the public about the first of the year.

Everything in connection with the building has been provided for with the exception of seats for the assembly room, and it was announced at the board meeting that a number of ladies of the city are planning to supply the one remaining want. Then the building will be furnished throughout.

First Methodist Church. (Rev. William Gorst, Pastor). The first quarterly conference held

Monday evening was well attended and found the conditions of the work hopeful and prosperous in practically every department of our work.

Attend the prayer meeting every Wednesday evening at 7:45. Every member should look at the spiritual thermometer of the church at least once a week. The prayer meeting is that thermometer.

Next Sunday morning the pastor will administer the Holy Communion which will be preceded by a very brief address on the eucharist as the sacrament of atonement. This talk will be given as the counterpart of a similar address to be given the following Sunday, December 22, on Baptism as the Sacrament of the Holy Spirit, at which time the sacrament of Baptism will be administered and people received into church membership both by certificate and on profession of faith. Next Sunday evening the services will be evangelistic.

The Woman's Missionary societies will meet with Mrs. A. P. Gestard Friday, December 13 at 2:30 p. m. All women of the congregation are urged to attend this last meeting for 1912. It means a good time.

THE EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS CONCLUDED

(Contributed.) The evangelistic meetings were fairly well attended and at times were of great interest and power. About forty people were converted and will unite with the various churches. But the number of converts is only a part of the great results of the campaign. Evangelist Lingren is an able expounder of all those scriptures practically which pertain to the ethical, practical and spiritual life and conduct of Christians; and through the word preached many earnest servants of Christ got new and far reaching visions of Christian service that will add much to their usefulness, while others were stirred to activity and a noble service who were before inactive. The people evidenced their interest in the evangelist and their appreciation of his work by contributing $298 last Sunday as their free will offering to his support.

The services from beginning to ending were highly appreciated. Pastors and people of the various churches worked together in such charm of cooperation and confidence as to truly evidence the oneness of the church. When the last word had been said on Sunday evening everybody was glad Mr. Lingren had been here and sorry to see him go.

It is a matter of much moment and sincere congratulation that the unity of effort and purpose with prevailing good will throughout leaves the way wide open and similar meetings in the future whenever it may seem best to undertake them.

Those who have not done so should plan to call at the kindergarten room and see the work that is being done by Miss Luns and the children from 9 to 11:15 every day.

MAN WHO KILLED HIS WIFE KNOWN IN WAYNE

SOLD FURNITURE POLISH HERE

Prompted by Jealousy, He Shoots and Kills His Wife While She is in Bed at Cedar Rapids.

Charles Higby who killed his wife at Cedar Rapids, Ia., Tuesday morning, was in Wayne last week selling furniture polish, and will be remembered by a number of people here. He was accompanied by his wife. The following account of the tragedy appeared in yesterday's Sioux City Journal:

Cedar Rapids, Ia., December 10.—Failing to effect a reconciliation with his pretty young wife, of whom he was jealous and whom he accused of choosing bad company, Charles Higby, a gambler, went to the place where his wife was staying this morning and shot and killed her as she lay in bed beside another girl. His wife, who was a clerk in a local department store, had attended a dance last night. Higby was arrested while on his way to the police station to give himself up.

Charles Higby who killed his wife this morning, expressed the hope that the court would sentence him to be hanged. He says he prefers death to prison.

Higby says he bought the gun with the intention of threatening to commit suicide to win back his wife's love.

Higby was a salesman for a furniture polish house when he came to Cedar Rapids from Sheffield, Ill., a few months ago, where his mother resides. He is 28 and his wife was 23.

The Poet Philosopher

Hard times will come ere very long, some prophets do affirm; some things will all be going wrong, and grief will make us squim. The seers may all be off their base, as they have been before; they like to sear the human race and make us sad and sore. And then, again, they may be right, their guesses may come true; if panics put us in a plight, 'twould be a marvel. So let's be hoping for the best while fixing for the worst, and do our daily stunts with zest till our suspensers burst. Let's put in brine the useful seeds for which we work with haste, economize as did our dads, and cut on foolish waste. It will not hurt us to believe that panics will arrive; the more we saving we will have, the more we all will thrive. And if the panics do not come, but better times instead, if things keep up their busy hum, we'll be that much ahead. I sometimes think when I am sane, free from my keeper's care, a panic would not be in vain, e'en though it brought despair. For in those fast and golden years we cease to value cash; we go in debt up to our ears for every kind of trash. We buy a thousand foolish things, we are such easy marks; the dollars that we earn have wings and fly to beat the larks. Perhaps we'll learn to value wealth and try to save the price, if Panic came on us by stealth and slugged us once or twice.

"Remember—" cried King Charles, unglanted, as on the block he laid his head; and men with doubt have since been haunted. "REMEMBER!" concerning what he would have said. The headsman, in too great a hurry, cut off the sentence at its start; what message meant that man whose sorry had not subdued his kindly heart? His farewell message to the people we'll never know till we are dust, and every British tower and steeple are crumbled into drifting dust. But we must guess, and grope and ponder, and wonder what the monarch meant, while he, among the bright stars yonder, is looking down in calm content. Some kind advice, some admonition, he meant by dying words to be, to help his stricken land's condition, and set its wearied people free. "Remember—" cried King Charles, the martyr; then fell the ax with awful thud, and Cromwell won, who learned to barter for honors in the martyr's blood. "Remember—" and admonish the ages, allments of the royal cause; the statesmen, soldiers, writers, sages, will wonder what the message was. "Remember—" through his ringlets curly the broad shore his life away, "to do your Christmas shopping early." Was doubtless what he meant to say.

When Woodrow, statesman good and great, takes up the round of White House chores, he'll long for former low estate, for book and school house floors. The White House lawn will then be filled with men who in the recent past put up with talk that thrilled, and who'll demand a good fat place. They will not leave the chief alone, they'll raise eternal howls; they'll call him up by telephone and hallow down the kitchen floor. When he steps out to smoke a torch, some grimy office-seeking chap will crawl from underneath the porch and clasp for a public snap. And when at night he lays his head upon the yellow slip, he'll hear a voice beneath the bed, demanding a post-mastership. And every man he sees betwixt the White House and the river's shore, e'en though he is already fixed, will hold his talons out for more. And Woodrow oft will long to be a pedagogue, as he was planned, a kid in a cap, on his legs, a good class sagging in his hand! With yearning oft, his heart oft will swell, when office hunters block his way, to hear again the schoolhouse bell that calls the students from their play. And some day when his stout hair cracks, and he is wearied of his job, I doubt not he will take an ax and mow a pathway through the mob. Poor old lady! He's marked for slaughter, 'neath his load his shoulders bend, and we sadly watch him totter feebly to his destined end. Soon, 1912, as soon he will be sicking where Time's sextons dig and delve: he is near there at this writing—poor old warty Nineteen Twelve! Recently so strong and lurchy, now we see him weak, decayed, while we do our shopping early in the busy haunts of trade. Soon Time's funeral director this old lady's eyes will shut, and he'll be as dead as Hector—poor old crippled Nineteen Twelve! And it brings us some what nearer to our own appointed end; and we see now somewhat clearer, shadows of the dusk descend; and our locks, once bright and curly, now begin to thin and fade, as we do our shopping early in the changing marts of trade. Now our eyes are somewhat dimmer, and we long to wear a wig, and our legs are somewhat slumber, while our shafts are twice as big, and our brain tears are dropping as we view our double chins, while we wisely do our shopping ere the Christmas rush begins. Let us therefore live correctly, being fair and just to all, doing all things circumspicuously, ready for the end, and let for us may fly off the surface as an axe flies from its heave and be planted where the turf is like the old year Nineteen Twelve.

I dreamed last night that I had flown far from this world of grief and gloom, that I had long despaired, and found that heaven was a land of ecstacy, supremely grand, as good as advertised. The angels round me played their lyres and on the piper sculls the fires of changed sunrise gleamed and joyous anthems filled the air, and swaying wings and massions fair—thus happily I dreamed. And then a statesman from below got through the gate—how, I don't know—and got his choice of crowns, and ere an hour he there had sport I noticed signs of discontent; the seraphim wore frowns. He skinned around among the bliss and told them that they were oppressed, and had them peevish soon; their crowns were bargain counter things, they all deserved much better wings, their harps were out of tune. "Your heaven here was good enough; progressive measures are the stuff, and we will have them here, with old age pensions for the boys, who've grown too old to play their harps, and always played by ear, with sorrow and dismay I note the fabled angels do not vote—no wonder they feel galled; St. Peter's held his job too long and all his policies are wrong, and he will be recalled." Thus spake the statesman, and the sky was ringing with the seraphs' cry, of discontent of their yoke, their gentle souls with rest to be won, and they were bound to have return—just then your uncle woke.

A Remedy That Rids Your Flock of Worms

Save your lambs; save your profits; put your flock in condition to gain fast and get the good of what you feed them. Every sheep feeder and breeder knows how worms cut down his profits. Some try to dose the worst cases with quinine, tobacco, and other disagreeable mixtures. But the great worm destroyer, SAL-VET, that don't get rid of all the worms. That's not your biggest loss. Here is a better way.

SAL-VET will positively rid every animal on your place of deadly stomach and free intestinal worms and keep them so. No pay if it fails. SAL-VET is a medicated salt—the sheep like it. All you need to do is to let them run to freely—they will doctor themselves. They'll grow better fleeces. SAL-VET is a sheep feeder and breeder knows how to use it. Buy in large quantities. We carry 25¢ and 5¢ sizes of packages from 75¢ up to $7.00.

FROM DEPUTY STATE FIRE COMMISSIONER

C. A. Randall, chief deputy fire commissioner, has issued a circular letter urging care in arrangements for Christmas entertainments to avoid fires.

Mr. Randall says this among other things:

"Do not decorate your Christmas tree with paper, cotton, celluloid or any other inflammable material. Use metallic tinsel and other non-inflammable decorations only and set the tree securely so that it cannot tip over. Do not use cotton to represent snow if you must have snow use substitute fiber."

"If there is any other possible way to light the tree do not use candles. The tree itself is very inflammable and will burn when the needles become dry. Where electric lights can be obtained small bulbs of different colors can be strung around over the tree, but use work should not be done on the tree thoroughly understanding electricity. Large lamps with reflectors so arranged as to throw the light on the tree will give the tree a beautiful appearance and will not endanger the lives of those in attendance. Do not permit Santa Claus to wear an inflammable beard or wig. Usually the presents that are placed upon the Christmas tree are done up in tissue paper that is very inflammable and flaxen-headed dolls and Teddy bears and such presents are inflammable and a spark from one of the little candles is liable to start a fire and there is always one present ready to scream 'Fire,' and then the trouble takes place. A rush is made for the door and there are enough grown life out of the little children who are present and who are filled with expectancy at receiving the gifts that are on the tree, but instead of receiving a present they are liable to receive either painful or fatal injuries and an occasion of mourning will be found in the morning. All aisles and exits should be kept absolutely clear so that if an accident should happen all of the occupants can retire from the building quickly and unimpeded."

TO TRESPASSERS.

Notice is hereby given that unless hunters and others quit trespassing on my land they will be prosecuted—A. M. Jacobs. D182 Ad.

COUNTY TEACHERS IN FIRST MEETING

CONSIDER SCHOOL PROBLEMS

Chief Feature of Program is Address by Dr. J. T. House of State Normal Officers Elected.

About seventy Wayne county teachers gathered in the court room on last Saturday afternoon to take part in the first county teachers' meeting of the year. Mr. Clifford Ferns presided.

Principal Leo Vernon of Carroll, and Miss Ruth Sterling of Hoskins, led in the study of the first four chapters of McKim's "Personality of the Teacher." Many good points were made concerning the "tone" of the school and the "traits" of a real teacher. The question whether a child should ever be punished unless self-invited and if, self-invited, he ever really needs punishment, was raised and discussed. Several unique devices were presented in the five-minute talks by Miss Paulina Morgen and Miss Edith Porter.

The special feature of the program, was the address by Dr. J. T. House on the subject, "Were I Again a Country School Teacher." He handled the subject in its broadest sense giving glimpses of the wide influence that a teacher may exert in her community, if she so minded. He said in part, that the object of all teaching is to make people good and defined "being good" as being social—to properly function in all one's relations to life. "One's problem should not be how to make a living, but how to make a life; that boys should be taught how to raise more and better corn, not to get more money, but to enable the family to live better, the home to be more efficient, letter equipped, etc.

Dr. House spoke of certain false ideals that are sometimes placed before young people and the harm they do. A teacher should instill into the pupils the ideal that living a life, helpful, happy, efficient in one's own community is greater glory than occupying high positions.

No teacher could bear the address without being sobered a little by the glimpses of her possibilities and the thought that perhaps she was not functioning as she should in her district.

A short business meeting followed the regular program in which officers of the association for the year were elected. Superintendent Gerald Cress of Winslow, was made president; Principal Moritz Brakemeyer of Sholes, vice president, and Miss Ruth Sterling of Hoskins, secretary.

Most men are judged by their misdeeds, and not by their good deeds.

By Wireless on Christmas Eve

A Yuletide
Fantasy

By EARLE HOOKER EATON

Copyright, 1912, by American
Press Association

Oh, pretty queen of Christmastide, I know your winsome wiles!
You're wreathed in greens and mistletoe, and also wreathed in smiles.
I got a wireless call from you—a C Q D you sent.
I heard the spark coil P D Q and to the rescue went!

THE PHILOSOPHY OF TOYS.

In olden times—and not so very old at that—playthings were regarded as a weakness to be indulged, not a need to be supplied. Science has changed all that. Today toys are recognized as a necessary part of the child's education. The doll answers to the mother lullaby in the heart of the little girl and helps to develop the mother side of her nature. Toys are as essential in the child's training as books. By careful selection they can be made to direct his activities. The heart must be educated as well as the mind.

HOW TO BUY THE CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

The wise shopper will keep last year's list so that he or she may know what was given before and avoid duplications. Another good method is to jot down in a little book any chance hints from friends as to what they want. If this plan is followed throughout the year presents can be bought intelligently that will really be appreciated.

Christmas in France.
The celebration of Christmas varies in different countries and even in different parts of the same country. Of old days it was different in France and England. More recently the French are adopting the American and English Santa Claus and are even introducing the mistletoe.

"I DARE YOU!"

Christmas Trees.
The growing of Christmas trees is quite an industry in parts of the country. In the northern pine forests it is a practice to cut the tops out of the trees or even branches. This does not injure the parent tree. Great shipments of these branches and tops come across the great lakes early each winter to be distributed for the Christmas trade.

Radium Christmas Gifts.
A few years ago, when radium was a newly discovered wonder, it was a fad of society women in London and some other cities to give tiny bits of the metal as Christmas presents. These cost from $10 to $50, although the speck of radium was hardly large enough to be seen with the naked eye. It was mounted in a spectroscope, which is a cross between a microscope and a telescope. Seen through this, the tiny point of radium shot out flashes of constantly varying light, like miniature fireworks.

THE MISTLETOE TRADITION.

In olden days there existed in many places a belief that the girl who was not kissed under the mistletoe during the Christmas season would not be married during the succeeding year. In such localities kissing a girl would be a positive kindness. There is a story of one damsel who, to make sure, wore mistletoe on her hat.

Walking Dolls.
Most children are familiar with the dolls that say "mamma" or open and close their eyes, but how many children know there are dolls that walk, wink, roll their eyes, say "mamma," "papa" and other words and act so lifelike that they seem almost unquiver. All this action is produced by clockwork. The key is inserted at the waist line. Dolls of this sort are manufactured in Paris and are naturally expensive, ranging from $15 up.

BE GOOD TO THE LONELY.
On Christmas nobody must be lonely. The spirit of the day is essentially social. Every brother and sister should have an invitation to Christmas dinner. If you know any, be sure he or she gets an invitation in time so that it will not seem an afterthought. Every childless couple should invite all the old bachelors and old maids in the vicinity. Give them a few social hours at least. It will do them good and make you happy.

"Smoke Up, Papa!" (A Christmas Poem.)

MA gave pa some Christmas cigars,
And he smoked one by and by
When it smelled like a feather
We couldn't tell whether
He wanted to laugh or cry!

Send Your Heart With It.
Don't give presents because others expect you to. Give because you love to. If you cannot send your heart with the gift keep the gift.

OBITUARY.

(Contributed.)
 Evan H. Edwards, son of Hugh and Katherine Edwards (Bodurog) was born in Bethesda, North Wales, February 17, 1842, and came with his parents to Welsh Prairie, Wis., at three and one-half years of age, and there grew to manhood. He had three brothers and four sisters, all having preceded him. He spent some years in Iowa and Minnesota. In 1880 he moved to Gage county, Neb., and in 1884 to Brown county, Neb., and to Wayne county in the fall of 1899. He was married to Ellen Thomas at Manokato, Minn., in the year of 1872. She died at Ainsworth, Neb., November 30, 1900. He was left alone to care for a family of four young children. Having met with many trials he had not gathered up a big store of worldly goods. But he has always been a firm believer in God and had stored for himself treasures in heaven.

During the last years of his life he made his home with his youngest son, Hugh. He was taken sick Wednesday evening, December 4, and at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, December 7, 1912, he passed quietly away. This is a brief history of a life dearly loved by his children. He leaves to grieve his departure two sons, Charles and Hugh, and one daughter, Mrs. Ruth Morris. His second son, John H., died in this community January 24, 1908.

The funeral of Mr. Evan Edwards was held Tuesday afternoon, December 10, from the home of his son, Hugh, and, captioned at the Welsh C. M. church, and his remains were interred in the Welsh cemetery. Rev. J. F. Davies conducted the service, assisted by Rev. D. T. Davies, and William M. Williams.

Christmas Bells.
 Ring the glad tidings, the Saviour is born!
 Ring it, ye bells, on this glorious morn!
 And perch'd on the branch of my Christmas tree
 A motley assemblage of maidens see.
 Know you what tale to their ear there
 Your loud merry clanging, ye Christmas bells?

Then list! To proud Maud looking tenderly down
 On jewels that flash on her silken gown,
 To long braided tresses, content with her share
 Of chains, though not gold, yet of saucy nature rare.
 Your chiming waves sweetest and fairest of mounds
 Bears whippers prophetic of "wedding bells."

All sweetly as out rings your warbling tongue
 His sweetheart gets ready the tea for Ah
 Lung.
 And throb Choe of Fifth avenue—south-in welcoming smiles spreads her generous mouth.
 Far different to them is the treat it foretells
 Your meaning, precise, just "dinner bells."
 Silence in tune shakes her gay tambourine
 And lightly to church trips demure Angeline
 Bestowing no look to the left nor the right.
 Though noting full well the admirer in sight.
 But soon a sweet smile all his doubting dispels,
 And gaily your chiming betwixt "mishmish."

The children run out longed for gifts to receive.
 And all the world full is of joy, I believe,
 For northward and southward, to east and to west,
 The bells peal out plainly what each one likes best.
 Then ring ye and swing ye, ye gay Christmas bells,
 Your chiming the fairest of messages tell.

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.

From the Wayne Herald-Tribune, December 10, 1885: The first zero weather of the winter is reported...

From the Wayne Herald, December 18, 1891: Thermometers registered ten below zero. Edward Fehrs undergoes an operation performed by Dr. Leisenring.

From the Wayne Herald, December 10, 1903: Died, of scarlet fever, the 12-year-old son of Mr. Bruggeman.

Born, December 1, 1903, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Milo Koenig. A marriage license was issued to Edward Shirts and Miss Cora Washburn.

Following officers were elected by the A. O. U. W.: A. G. Parker, M. W.; A. Jett, foreman; William Fisher, orator; I. W. Altig, recorder; E. Hunter, financial; L. C. Gibeaux, secretary; S. H. Richards, guide; G. A. Gronowey, or. I. W.; Peter Henkel, O. W.; J. G. Mines, trustee; Drs. Blair and Nieman, medical examiners.

The G. A. R. elected the following officers at its meeting last Saturday: E. Hunter, commander; James Harmon, senior vice commander; Am. Lewis, junior vice commander; B. F. Feathe, quartermaster; Lawrence Frason, officer of the day; A. Anson, officer of the guard; G. W. Culler, chaplain; C. A. Baggart, sergeant; A. J. Ferguson, delegate to the state encampment next May; James Harmon, alternate to the state encampment.

From the Journal, December 14, 1913: The railroad train which is advertised to arrive about a quarter before six in the evening, generally loses its balance somewhere on the route, and hence comes frisking into town an hour or two behind time.

A postal card from T. Hoy, Newcastle, states that on Monday night, Mr. Carl Hanson was drowned while trying to cross the river opposite Vermillion.

McKELVIE'S BARGAIN OFFER: There is only one Real farm paper in Nebraska, and that is The Nebraska Farmer, published at Lincoln by S. R. McKelvie. The Nebraska Farmer is a weekly farm paper, over fifty years old. During a single year it contains over 1,200 pages, and is edited by a man who has spent a lifetime in connection with Nebraska farming. It is the only farm paper in Nebraska that is not a subscription price for one year. That beautiful number will be sent to all who accept this December offer. McKelvie says the only way to run a farm paper is to keep it clean and reliable, stop it when the time is out, give no premiums, and sell the paper at the lowest possible price. That is his policy with The Nebraska Farmer. A copy of this Real farm paper, you will be sure to subscribe. The local representative will make you this same rate.

THEY ALWAYS HELP ELDERLY PEOPLE: Foley Kidney Pills give just the help elderly people need to keep and strengthen their kidneys and bladder and regulate their action. John McFadden, Streator, Ill., says: 'I feel better and stronger than I have for many years, and Foley Kidney Pills did it.' Shultheis Pharmacy. -Adv.

BOYS GROWING GOOD CORN. The results of the Nebraska boys' corn growing contests inaugurated last spring by the university department of agricultural extension are beginning to materialize in the form of splendid corn specimens arriving at the stock yard's offices daily. The Union Stock Yards company, with a view to stimulating interest among the boys of Nebraska in growing good corn last spring, as a follow-up to the seed corn campaign, placed $700 at the disposal of Professor Pugsley's department to be awarded in county and state prizes to the boys of Nebraska showing the highest yields of corn from acre plots. In order that the boys of less favored districts of Nebraska might not be at a disadvantage in competition with the boys in the eastern part of the state a provision was made in the state prizes, so that $125 is to be awarded in the western division and the same amount in the eastern division. The awards will be made at the state farm at Lincoln in January during institute week.

From Ponca Journal, December 13, 1913: The time on the mail-route between this place and LaPorte has been changed. It will hereafter have Ponca on Tuesdays and Fridays, instead of Mondays and Thursdays. This change in time will be much more convenient than it has been heretofore.

Speaking of the results of the earthquake in Dixon county, the Chicago Journal says: 'Is not here a home study for the American naturalist? Two to three miles from the seashore, in the interior of the American continent, there is actually a scene of volcanic eruption. * * * Other changes quite as marked as any yet mentioned have come over the face of northern Nebraska since the earthquake shock, all going to make up an interesting and new problem for the scientist, and proving that the crust between mankind and the fire which is supposed to be consuming the vitals of Mother Earth is at places awfully thin, even in so called a northern land as the northern section of the United States. Several gentlemen familiar with the study of natural science are already preparing for a full investigation of the very curious locality under discussion in this article, regarding which more may be expected anon.'

The train volcano has a rival down in Stanton county. The Lincoln Journal states that a small mountain in that section recently gave way and tumbled into the river and that 'the ground became level and low, save in two places, where immense crevices and depressions had been made. In one of these depressions through which a crevice ran, the ground became level and packed in the course of time everything in the shape of vegetation became dried up and finally killed out. The sides of the deep crevice became perfectly white from the intense heat and constant baking. In the coldest days of winter the ground is perfectly dry and warm, and any time during winter or summer, potatoes can be baked or roasted in this place in fifty minutes. Professor Anghey has examined the locality and pronounces it a wonderful freak of nature.'

THE FINAL SETTLEMENT. Portraying the grave consequences that sometimes follow the sudden acquisition of wealth and power. 'The Final Settlement' will be the attraction at an opera house on Monday, December 16. Many problems of great social interest are contained in the production and a strong moral lesson is pointed out. The reaction of it does the rise of a young man, who though humble is both brilliant and ambitious. From a position of obscurity he rises through his own efforts to the presidency of a great iron trust. In this exalted position of opulence and power, the allurements of social life in which he moves prove too much for him, and he declines his office, a woman of conservative, homely tastes, who despise her husband's position, still retains her orthodox conceptions of life. The man, after securing his divorce, married a beautiful actress, thinking that her talents and charms would enable him to obtain the social leadership so much desired. The ambitious disintegrates and ruins, and ultimate reason in which his former wife takes an active part, forming the basis of the drama. Seats on sale at Shultheis Pharmacy.

WE BELIEVE MEN WERE MADE TO BE HAPPY, but somehow, very few of them get that way. It probably is their own fault. Most men are too prone to let their kin worry them. A Des Moines man had an attack of muscular rheumatism in his shoulder. A friend advised him to go to Hot Springs. That meant an expense of $150.00 or more. He sought for a cheaper way to cure it and found it in Chamberlain's Linctament. Three days after the first application of this liniment he was well. For sale by all dealers. -Adv.

TO PETITION LEGISLATURE.
Omaha, December 10.—After one of the most successful and best attended meetings ever held, the Nebraska Woman Suffrage Association came to a close on Friday morning, December 6. Just twice as many delegates were registered this year as the previous one, there being sixty-two besides the state officers.

A resolution of thanks to the Omaha committee and the Bureau of Publicity of the Omaha Commercial club was drawn up by the association, for the gracious hospitality and excellent work done preceding the convention.

The association pledged itself to initiate a petition under the initiative law to be presented to the Secretary of State and to also petition the present legislature.

The individuals of the different societies which make up the state association pledged $2,700.00 to defray expenses for the work of the coming year.

The officers elected for the coming year are: Mrs. Draper Smith, Omaha, president; Mrs. Mary Kovanda, Table Rock, vice president; Miss Mary Williams, Kenesaw, corresponding secretary; Miss Daisy Hoans, Omaha, recording secretary; and Mrs. Will E. Hardy, Lincoln, treasurer. Two auditors comprise the state board, Mrs. Hyland H. Wheeler, Lincoln, and Mrs. M. M. Clafflin, University Place, being elected to these offices. Dr. Iruex C. Philbrick of Lincoln, Neb., the retiring president, was made honorary president as is also Miss Hayward of Chadron.

There are a great many instructive books that will never be read by most people who feel they can't afford an education.

Preparing For Christmas.

"There was a man sent from God... The English of it could not be more simple or direct. One sees in a vision the man of the wilderness, clothed in a garment of camel's hair, face that of an ascetic, eyes of fire—the man who fed the locusts and wild honey. And then we stop there. "There was a man sent from God"—that is all. Some of us perhaps who know his story follow him a little further in our mental vision as he went about proclaiming his tidings. Some of us perhaps wonder what the next picture will be. Some of us say over, "There was a man sent from God," with considerable accent on the smallest word, and mentally remark, "What of it?" But does it not occur to you that more than one has been "sent"—that for some reason or other every living soul has a mission here and therefore that you and I have one, too, and, if we wish, we can accept it. Not for the mere sending, as we like to believe. If we were sent there was a purpose in it. There are "tidings" for our spread.

ing, just as there were in those days of long ago, and to work for us to do. Are we doing it, or are we so occupied with our own lives and hopes and ambitions and pleasures that we have quite forgotten life was given us for something besides eating and drinking, sleeping and working and general enjoyment? If this is what we have been doing there is no better season in all the year for starting afresh on a right basis to do the work and carry the messages of happiness to others, for which we were sent.

Somehow Christmas, with all its poetry, has a most practical side. There is so much work to be done. Are we preparing our Christmas gifts thoughtfully, giving only to those from whom we expect gifts in return, or are we planning to do a bit of the work for which we were sent—planning to make Christmas a happy time for some of the less favored ones of earth?

And are you doing your utmost? Are you giving what we can in our Christmas gifts, or are we giving for the Christ's sake whatever happens to be left over after we have bought expensive gifts for our friends which they do not need, luxuries for ourselves that we could do without, leaving for him the leftover nickels and pennies? No matter what Christmas has been to us in past years, let us this year give for the sake of the giving, for the sake of those who need it, for the sake of the reason for which we were sent.

No matter how small the offering if it be our best. No matter how poor it seems nor how insignificant, it is yours to bring Christmas tidings, yours to tell Christmas happiness to someone. Let us prepare our gifts in the right spirit—a spirit to prove that we want to do our part and enjoy doing it. In giving far and wide the joy and the happiness which Christmas day typifies—joy and happiness which have been sent to make real to some heart that perhaps knows, but does not feel because of its suffering or bitterness or poverty.—Boston Traveler.

A Christmas Song.
O rest ye well, kynde gentlemen;
O rest ye well tonight,
Ye moon shyne in an saun sky;
Ye eastern star has risen on high;
O rest ye well tonight.
O sleepe ye sweete, fayre gentle maides;
O sleepe ye sweete tonight,
Ye snowe lies white, ye wynde doe moane,
Ye mischiev' lyes on ye candle blown,
O sleepe ye sweete tonight.
O rest ye alle, kynde gentle folk;
O rest ye alle tonight,
May in your hearts the Christ Child's face
Fynde love for alle and give you grace,
O rest ye well tonight.

"Mr. Arfur's" Christmas Gift

HELENETTA, by the fireplace was absorbed in the faking up of all Etudella's articles of wearing apparel and putting them on again. When the last garment had been adjusted she found time to look at "Mr. Arfur," who sat by the window, a picture of doldrums.

"What do you want for Kwismas?" she inquired.
"Something I am afraid I can never have in all this wide world, Helenetta." The child gazed at him curiously.
"It's a heart of fine gold that I want, Mr. Arfur, and only one person can give it to me, and if she won't, girlie!"
"Is she a fairy?" Helenetta's tone was reverential.

"The queen of them all."
"And has a crown on?"
"Yes, a crown of her own golden hair, and her eyes are like brown velvet, and she has the sweetest red lips, Helenetta, but yesterday I met her, and she hurried by, scarcely speaking, and all because—you wouldn't have believed such a queen of a girl would care so much because she didn't get the prize at the masquerade, would you now?"

"Why" ejaculated Helenetta, but her next eager question was cut short by "Mr. Arfur's" springing to his feet. "Sister Rose" had entered the room, and Helenetta, knowing that she was decidedly de trop when they were together, went reluctantly back to Evangelina and the fireplace.

"Good morning," said Sister Rose, her tone suggestive of a flurry of snow. "I have an engagement." But she sat down.
"Oh, I am sorry; then I will go," he said gently, but he also sat down.
"I am sorry that you are angry," he began when the silence was getting tense. "Try to realize my position, Rose. I sat there an unwilling judge—my duty awarding prizes to the best sustained characters in the masquerade. Among the maskers was one to whom my heart went out. A slender little figure, whose white satin gown, caught loosely around the waist with a silken girdle, fell in straight folds to her tiny feet. The chrysanthemum girl was the loveliest sight in the room, but she was not the best sustained character, so—"

"I hope you don't think I care because you awarded the prize to Grace Herford," interrupted the girl scornfully, "and please don't for a minute think I am angry at anything. I am only disappointed in you."
"Will you kindly explain?" added Arthur.

"I had always been so proud of your strength of character. And now to find out that you are nothing but a charlatan, after all that I have said. The other day when Auntie was talking about the sin of wasting your time in dancing you said that you agreed with her that when there was work to do folks ought to do it. You said you were not going to the masquerade for that very reason."

"We didn't intend"—
"You said you had several hours' work at the office that night. Then Grace Herford came along and asked you to go, and you went."
"Miss Herford had nothing to do with it, Rose," he said gently. "I went to work as I said. About 9 Mr. Jones came in and said that if I could find Elsson and get his signature to a certain paper and get back by 11 o'clock he would make it worth my while. I had an idea that Elsson was masquerading, and that's where I found him. He buttonholed me at once to be judge of the concern and wouldn't sign the paper unless I agreed. I saw I could get back by 11, so I stayed."
"And had plenty of time to dance with Miss Herford?" supplemented Rose.

"I looked for the chrysanthemum girl first and couldn't find her," he said truthfully. "I danced only once. But what made you think Miss Herford asked me to go?"
"She said she would wager she could get you to go and that you would dance with her first, so I went to see

"Xmas Greetings"

To the Woman who Bakes the family's Bread

It is very important to have good bread. WHITE, SWEET AND WHOLESOME. You certainly must have good flour because you can accomplish your object. One pound of good flour costing less than 4c has more food value than a pound of meat (begging the butcher's pardon) therefore you must get a good brand of flour to make a loaf of good bread. Insist on WAYNE Flour when ordering from your grocer.

If I didn't think you would when you said you wouldn't, but—

"I see," said the young man quietly. An indignant cry of "wammunk!" kept him from telling Rose that just as he had started away Miss Herford had run to him, exclaiming that as he was so kind to award her the prize she certainly must reward him with the first dance, etc. With a sudden impulse he took Rose's little hand in his.

She sprung up and started for the door, but he held her gently back. "Listen," he whispered.
On the glowing coals smoked Evangelina, and on the rug, with eyes turned to the ceiling, knelt Helenetta.
"O God," she was saying, "now I lay me down to sleep. I give my precious doll, so you will make the fairy queen wiv the crown of her golden hair to bring Mr. Arfur the little heart he wants for Kwismas. That's all, God, only please let me see her when she comes. Amen."

"Grace Herford has black hair," observed Rose inconsequently.
"I wonder if God will," Helenetta was murmuring.
Rose went over to the fireplace and kissed her small sister. "I think God will," she said reverently. Then she went back to radiant "Mr. Arfur."—

The Crowded Way.
"The late general Booth," said a Salvation Army captain of Philadelphia, "used to admit freely that the bad man had more fun—at least while carrying out his duties—than the good man."
"Stroking his white beard, he put the matter in a neat epigram one night in New York."
"They say the way of the transgressor is hard," he said. "At any rate it certainly isn't lousy."
