COMMERCIAL CLUB COMMITTEE AWAKE

MEETS AFTER LONG SLUMBER Plans to Finish Administration, Hitherto Inert, With Action and Accomplishment.

The executive committee of the Commercial club has issued from its state of suspended animation, and actively proposes to make a whirlwind finish of its administration. A meeting was held Tuesday evening, in reviewing its record the past ten months, the committee found it had practiced economy in the management of affairs. It found no possible ground for regret or criticism over what it had done. Some criticism was reported over what it had not done. It was pointed out that when anything needed to be done, it was done, and it was deplored that such demands for effort, aside from those assigned to tornadoes, had not happened often enough to make the committee meet so conspicuously and vitally active. It was pointed out that one of the first and possibly few acts of the committee was to eliminate the musical appendage begotten by a former administration, time getting along without a brass band and saving money.

But the committee is anxious and anxious to do some things. It has already made a start. It has solicited money for the Omaha tornado sufferers and added $50 from the club's treasury to the fund. It is pushing a movement for the building of a new, modern hotel. It proposes to stimulate commercial unity by having an occasional banquet. It plans to advertise the city's advantages.

The business receiving attention at Tuesday night's meeting is detailed in the following minutes furnished for publication by Secretary L. A. Kiplinger.

Wayne, Neb., April 1, 1913.

Meeting was called to order by the president and minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The following bills were allowed in order to be paid: ... $14.50 Davis and Berry, attorneys for the city in depot cases, for professional services, $51.00

A. B. Smith, electrician, $3.65 A. E. Smith and J. W. Gallion for use of opera house, $10.00

Mr. J. H. ... $2.00 Or & Morris, ... $2.00

A financial statement of the club showed a balance on hand of $282.15 after all bills to date had been paid. The committee to solicit money for the tornado sufferers reported $175.00 collected. A motion was carried to appoint a committee of five to solicit money for the tornado sufferers.

On motion the chair appointed Mr. Fred Phillips, Frank Gambie and C. M. Christensen a committee to prepare a pamphlet advertising Wayne, the proposed pamphlet to show views of the club and asking him to submit a definite plan and indicate any co-operation and help that he may wish from the Commercial club.

A motion was carried to the effect that a banquet be held once every quarter in which the business men of the city shall be invited to attend, the purpose of which is to bring business men in closest personal touch with each other and to inspire greater activity in action in promoting the city's interests.

On motion the date of the first banquet was set for 6:30 o'clock, Tuesday evening, April 22, 1913, and C. W. Hixcox, Roxane Theobald and Lambert Rose were appointed to arrange for such banquet to procure the hall or other suitable place and to solicit the business men for sale of banquet tickets at the price of fifty cents each.

On motion W. D. Redmond, E. W. Huse and J. H. Kate were appointed as a program committee for the proposed banquet to secure speakers from the business men of the city to present their ideas and plans for municipal improvement. It was also decided to invite Mr. Hecker to attend the banquet and present his hotel project in detail.

The meeting adjourned to meet in two weeks, on April 16, at 8 o'clock in the offices of G. M. Christensen and L. A. Kiplinger. L. A. KIPLINGER, Secretary.

WORDS OF APPRECIATION.

The library board wish to thank the ladies of the Country club for the clock they gave to the library and Mr. George Goodland for the donation of $10 in shrimbery to beautify the grounds. Just as suggestion to clubs or persons who wish to make presents to the library, a few good statues and pictures would be acceptable. Secretary.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Sara Graves and George MacLean entered the second grade this week. A number of out-of-town teachers visited the Wayne schools last Thursday en route to Norfolk to attend the teachers' association.

Miss Main of the high school won first place in the oratorical class of the elementary contest held at Norfolk last week. Hays is now entitled to enter the state contest.

Truck work has begun and from the interest shown a good team is promised.

The weather is getting too warm for much outdoor exercise, so the grade pupils are having their games on the school grounds-mostly baseball.

Miss Jones, a representative of the Palmer Penmanship people, spent Monday and Tuesday in the Wayne schools, assisting the teachers and instructing them in the Palmer method. The teachers are enthusiastic and thought results have been very gratifying this year.

Miss Jones' visit will undoubtedly prove very helpful, and even better results may now be expected.

Read This. The art and industrial exhibit which the Wayne schools had at Norfolk last week will be on exhibition at C. A. Berry's store next Saturday, April 6. It is hoped that the patrons of the schools and the general public will avail themselves of the opportunity to view this little exhibit which is representative of the work done in the schools in these lines.

It is exceedingly kind of Mr. Barry to give the space in his store for this exhibit and he merits and has the thanks of the schools and the public for his kindness.

BASE BALL SEASON WILL SOON BE HERE

As the season advances and the weather warms up, there is renewed interest in base ball. Though no definite plans have been made as yet for a team in Wayne, one will be doubt be organized before long and the season's games commenced. There is talk of voting on a proposition for Sunday base ball in accordance with the new state law.

FALLS UNDER WHEELS OF TRAIN AT EMERSON

W. J. WHITE KILLED INSTANTLY On His Return to Wayne to Reunite Sister and Children Live Here - Obituary by Pastor.

W. J. White who lived for nearly years in Wayne county and was well known here, fell under the wheels of a moving train at Emerson Saturday evening and received injuries which caused almost instant death. He was on his return home from South Dakota where he had proven up on a homestead, and got off the train at Emerson to get a lunch, served in the depot building, intending to resume the journey. When he saw the train start he ran to catch it but got aboard. He reached the train but in trying to climb on the platform, he slipped and fell under the wheels.

Both legs were cut off, and he was otherwise crushed and injured. Dr. A. Naffziger who happened to be on the train, made an examination as soon as possible and found no sign of life. The remains were taken in charge by the undertaker at Emerson, and were brought to Wayne Sunday evening. Funeral services were held at the Presbyterian church Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock with interment in Greenwood cemetery. A large number of people attended to manifest their respect for the dead and sympathy for the surviving relatives. Mr. White was a member of the A. O. U. W., which order had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Obituary.

(By the Pastor.) W. J. White was born at Shaysburg, a suburb of Pittsburgh, Pa., on July 20, 1849, and departed this life on March 29, 1913, at Emerson, Neb., aged 63 years, 8 months and 9 days. He grew up in Pennsylvania and in 1869 removed with his parents and sisters to Iowa, where he resided for a number of years. He was married at Walnut, Ia., on April 14, 1880, to Alice M. Tubor, and from the union were born five children, Max, Helen, Margie, Ruth and Edith, all of whom were present at the funeral. He also leaves one sister, Miss Charlotte M. White, and a number of nephews and nieces, as well as a wide circle of friends. In the fall of 1880-81 he moved to Wayne county and made his home on a farm southwest of town. His wife died on December 17, 1902. During the past five years he has been in South Dakota most of the time, making a long visit to his family last winter. He was returning to Wayne, after proving up on a homestead, to make his home here at the time when the fatal accident at Emerson occurred.

The sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved children and to the sister in their sad affliction. Mr. White was a kindly man, easily making loyal friends, essentially a lovable man, and the family had been looking forward to his return to Wayne with great expectation, but it was not to be. Doping before the providence of God we can only say: My Jesus—be Thou with me; O may Thy will be mine; Into Thy hand of love I would my all resign; Through sorrow and through joy Conduct me as Thine own, And help me still to say: My Lord, Thy will be done.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Stewart and daughter who visited Mrs. Stewart's parents, Judge and Mrs. James Britton, left yesterday for their home in Minneapolis, Minn.

Frank Morgan and Harry Fisher returned yesterday from the reservation where they spent the day hunting ducks and geese. They bagged nineteen of the former and four of the latter.

Mrs. Mary Wallace who had been spending the winter with the family of her daughter, Mrs. E. O. Gardner, left Monday for Omaha. After a few days' visit in that city, she went to Nebraska City.

The weather has become so warm and springlike this week that farmers have been able to make headway with their work, and few people have turned attention to cleaning up their yards and lawns and getting ready for garden work and flower beds. If there are any reminders by the weather of the importance of ridding their premises of the winter's accumulation of rubbish and filth, they will no doubt in due time be reminded by the authorities.

A PROPOSITION FOR NEW HOTEL IN WAYNE

MODERN STRUCTURE IN VIEW. Town Man of Long Experience in Business, Would Invest in Such Wayne Enterprise.

H. C. Hecker, brother of Dr. T. B. Hecker of Wayne, has sold his hotel at Missouri Valley and in relocating has Wayne in view as a desirable place for a new, modern hotel, if substantial local interest in such a proposition can be aroused. Mr. Hecker talked to a number of business men while here, and all expressed interest in the proposed improvement. He has in mind a building that would cost about $200,000, with 100 rooms, exclusive of the city. He would have forty rooms, and everything modern and first-class. He would expect to organize a company, with a portion of the stock subscribed by local people.

Mr. Hecker left for Missouri Valley the first of the week with the intention of preparing plans and estimates for a suitable hotel in Wayne, together with a proposition to the Commercial club for necessary co-operation. It has been suggested that in a new hotel block be included an opera-house. Such combination has been worked successfully at Beatrice. Mr. Hecker has had long experience in the hotel business, and is a man of sound judgment. It is his opinion that a new, modern hotel would not only be an advantage to Wayne, but would be a profitable investment.

Phillips, Miss Edith Beech, Miss Lillian Jewell, Miss Elizabeth Bettecher, Mrs. Donia, Miss Albin, Mrs. M. M. Mamm Wallace, Mrs. Pearl Sewell, Miss Hattie Shulteis and Mrs. L. Murrel. Speaking of the new hotel, the Laurel Advocate says that on one side is the "framed figure of an elephant at one time the king of this entire country."

the history of great catastrophes has not yet been developed in such a short time. Within less than forty-eight hours after the destruction, permanent relief stations were established throughout the district, and hundreds of families were supplied daily. Omaha is making a grand effort to handle the situation. Her business men have rallied to the city and have given of their time and money. Plans are being made for the restoration and rehabilitation of the district. A company will be formed which will finance all cases where assistance is needed and in less than six months the entire torn-down district will be replaced by better homes than those which featured the district. The path was about four blocks wide and four miles long and over 1700 homes were either completely destroyed or badly weakened. The known dead now totals 136 in Omaha and immediate suburbs. It is possible that this is the total list. The injured number 402, many being minor Especially gratifying has been the outpouring of assistance from the various towns and cities of the state. The generous attitude of the people of Nebraska has been the subject of many complimentary resolutions by the Citizens Relief committee, composed of C. C. Kesner, J. P. Denison, John H. Ryker, J. M. Guib, T. J. Mahoney, Dan B. Butler, Father John Williams, and Thomas Byrne. This committee has absolute charge of all details and has evolved a wonderful system. Contributions from all cities in the state are being gratefully received and are being distributed where they will do the most good. The permanent restoration of the city will be taken up in detail by a committee composed of W. H. Buckholz, Casper Yost, John L. Kennedy, Harry Tukey and other members of the commercial club. In my "stories" so far given, I have tried to give some facts concerning the effects of diseases of the eye, nose and throat. Before I give more let me say a few words concerning my "plan." I do all kinds of office work. I make a special study of the eye, throat or glasses, on nose and sinuses and the contents of the nose. I use fine medicines from the eye, use medicine, electricity, massage, vibration, surgery and all modern, rational methods of treatment. Surgical fees according to the case, but always agreed upon before the work is done. I make no contracts to cure, no treatments by the month. My work is put upon its own merits. Judge James Britton reports that the business of his court has shown improvement under the influence of the Wilson administration. Two of the three months of the first quarter of the year were during the old administration, but he says the influence of the present regime was anticipated and proved satisfactory. For improvement during the three months of this year, he finds that business exceeded the showing of the first quarter of last year by exactly thirty cents. This encouraging increase is believed to fore shadow still greater growth without necessarily augmenting the mortality rate. Mr. Brockman stated that he had sold 100 April and May pigs and were run on pasture just summer and put on full feed of straight corn and water the past five months. Next Monday is the opening date of the extra session of Congress. It is hoped the members will tackle the task in hand promptly and finish in time to spend the summer with their constituents.

The ordinance designed to make a new division of the wards of the city, extending the First ward by accessions from the Second and Third, moved along smoothly until the final vote for passage, and then met defeat in short order. The fact that the First ward is considerably short of the others in population, will likely keep the question before the council until a fair re-arrangement is effected.

Mr. Bryan is not troubled over the management of his official affairs, but over the anxious multitude seeking his approval for appointive places under the new administration. He personally knows so many democrats who come to him for friendly boosts, that he is besieged from every side. He expressed himself in this way recently: "I am not troubled by fear for my department, but by the fear that I cannot give every deserving man an office. If all of you could be cabinet officers, it would be none too much. The number of recent applications has shown me how willing the democrats are to make whatever sacrifice is necessary in order that they may serve their country."

President Wilson proposes to devote some time each week to a frank discussion of public affairs with Washington newspaper correspondents, making known his intentions and indicating when plans should be made public. A policy of candor in dealing with those who can be trusted, is advantageous to an executive as it is for one in the private walks of life. The president has shown tact in taking the newspaper correspondents into his confidence. They stand between the executive head and the public, and it is infinitely better for him to be free and frank with them, and thus indirectly with the public, rather than holding himself aloof and making the quest for information a species of surgery.

J. C. Ecker has sold the Winside Tribune and will remove to Oregon, and the leaving of Mr. Ecker removes another of the few remaining old-time newspaper men of northeastern Nebraska. He has been associated with the business in this part of the state for many years, and knows how to write in an interesting style. The good wishes of an army of friends will accompany him to his new home beyond the Cascades. He will find much to interest him there.

As the spexy from the dashing Wilhelms and Umpqua dimpen the tangled websters of the first others, he will listen, with some amazement, to the stories of crossing the plains in '49, and how immigration is now encroaching and disturbing them. He will be amazed at the old-timer's aversion to change or improvement. But he will get used to the sluggish and the washing spirit, usually imported, he will no doubt find predominating.

We note with pleasure in a dispatch to the World-Herald from Boston, Mass., that S. M. Rinalder of Beatrice, Neb., a third year student in the Harvard law school, has joined hands with two dozen fellow students in a movement to protect the poor people of Cambridge from the craft of unscrupulous lawyers. The dispatch explains that the Harvard men will open a legal bureau, giving advice, drawing up papers, and even appearing in court when necessary, all free of charge.

The Harvard men, in inaugurating this new venture, so unique in the college world, base their efforts on justice rather than charity, and will protest in recent districts from masses of crooked lawyers. Young Binkler, son of a well known Beatrice lawyer of highest standing, shows his fine character in taking up the work proposed. That there are lawyers who impose on the credulity of unsuspecting clients, is unfortunately true. The movement is started by law to protect people against unscrupulous practices, important and commendable. In it is seen the hand of real reform.

We can do your optical work satisfactorily and reasonably at Fank's.

TONGUES OF BIRDS.

That of the Humming Bird is About the Most Curious of All.

A German naturalist has gathered some curious data with reference to the tongues of birds. As he points out, many persons suppose that woodpeckers use their sharp pointed tongues as darts with which to transfuse their prey. It is true that the woodpecker uses its hummingbird-like tongue to catch its prey, not to pierce it. For the purpose of holding the captured victim the woodpecker's tongue is furnished with sticky secretion.

Inasmuch as it possesses the power of imitating speech, it is not surprising to learn that the parrot's tongue resembles that of man more closely than any other bird's tongue does. It is not because the parrot is more intelligent than many other birds, but because its tongue is better suited for articulation, than theirs that it is able to imitate us with its mimicry.

In some respects the hummingbird's tongue is the most remarkable of all. It is capable of being drawn out and held so that the little creature is able to grasp its insect prey very much as if its mouth were furnished with a pair of tongs.—Harper's Weekly.

Gardens of the Bosporus.

The gardens of the Bosporus are one of the most characteristic features of the city of Constantinople. They have, moreover, a definite character of their own. This is largely prescribed to them by the nature of the soil on which they are laid out. The banks of the Bosporus slope sharply back to a height of some 400 feet and are broken by valleys penetrating more gradually into the rolling tablelands of Thracia and Asia Minor. Part of these houses, therefore, do not enjoy some view of the water and the opposite shore, rarely more than a mile or two away. The houses on the houses are accordingly laid out with reference to those views and are determined in form by the steepness of the hillside on which they lie. They are terraces, that is, one of them at each level, in the size of the garden.—Scribner's

Pender, Neb., March 28.—Dick Borchers, living near Thurston, in this county, walked into a machinery warehouse and blacksmith shop at Pender at about 3:30 o'clock this afternoon and shot himself while the attention of the men in the shop was directed elsewhere. The man entered the shop and then came out at the right side near the eye. Death ensued almost instantly. A physician was called at once, but life was extinct when he arrived. The sheriff took charge of the body. No cause is known for the deed. It is said Borchers had been drinking. He leaves a wife and several children. Fried Salt Herring. When Kipling wrote about east and west never meeting he might, with almost equal truth, have made it north and south. Fried and smoked herring are their own national dishes, particularly about cookery and they won't mix. North of the Tweed it is rare in the extreme to find a man or woman who will eat east and south of it herring has never succeeded in making itself a popular dish. Then there is salt herring. I heard lately of an English lady resident in Glasgow who went home to London on a holiday, taking with her, as a distinctive Scottish delicacy, a keg of Loch Fyne herring. To please her the Londoners tried to eat their herring as they ought to eat it, but it was no good. They wouldn't go down. So after that they had them fried, and I understand the keg was finished.—Glasgow News.

SPLENDORS OF SPACE. THE HUMAN SPINE.

Milky Beauty of the Milky Way as Seen in a Telescope.

The Milky Way, or galaxy, is an appearing extending entirely round the circumference of stars visible in the largest telescope. It is composed of suns in literal millions. They are so remote that as seen from the earth, they appear to be close to each other, while really they are separated by millions and billions of miles. To the eye the belt of soft light looks like a continuous band of stars of great brightness. This separates the Milky Way into many millions of galaxies but minute points on the black background of space. At a distance forest trees seem to be close together, but as they are approached they separate and stand alone. It is next to impossible to describe the mindless beauty of the Milky Way as seen in a telescope of great power. Carpet a large room with black velvet. Hang the many electric lights in the ceiling. Throw down and scatter all over the black floor a bushel of minute diamonds, rubies, pearls, emeralds, sapphires, opals and other gems. Then turn on the light. You would have a faint imitation of the spectral splendor of the galactic hoofs. For the appalling depths of space look black in our great telescopes. In places these suns look by perspective as though they were arranged in piles, heaps and banks, or built up into colossal windows, or castled into spirals, or dashed into wisps and cosmic spray. In some places the concentration is so great and dense that only the most powerful telescopes on earth can magnify enough to bring out details. A few clusters exist that have not so far been resolved into these needle points. And the height of human imagination to watch these vast congeries of distant suns in a huge telescope. George Wharton James in National Geographic.

Science Says It is Imperfect Because Man Walks Upright.

According to the osteopath, you do not have a perfectly formed spinal column. For he is firmly convinced that no person in the world has a back that is perfect. His ideal is a spine of a perfect curve, whose twenty-four bones are at equal distances from the same formation on both sides and equally distant from the sides of the body. The child's spine is much nearer now and far straighter than the adult's and the society woman who does no work is more likely to have a back whose curve comes nearer the ideal than the college athlete. The spines of strong men, such as the laborer or athlete, are most defective, for the reason that moment-pull-and-strain on the spinal column accentuate its weaknesses. The laborers, strong as they are, have weaker and more crooked spines than civilized men. The spines of lower animals are stronger and more normal than ours and consequently are not so readily affected by disease. If man had decided to walk on all fours his spine might be just as good as his cat's or dog's. Spinal trouble started when our ancestors determined to walk upright, and even after antediluvianial it seems that the human spine has not thoroughly adjusted itself to our method of going about. Spencer wrote: "That all important organ, the vertebral column, is as yet but incompletely adapted to the upright posture. Only while the vigor is considerable can there be maintained without appreciable effort those muscular contractions which produce the S like figure and bring the lumber portion into such a position that the line of direction falls within it."—New York Sun.

AGGRESSIVE REPTILES.

King Cobras and Mambas Are the Worst of the Snake Tribe.

The majority of snakes are not, as most people suppose, aggressive. In their habits they are more timid, rather more anxious to get out of the way of the human intruder than into it. But there are a few famous, or infamous, exceptions and the number one of the largest of the cobras and a native of Africa—is said to be the most dangerous reptile in the world. It will bite anything and anything goes out of its way to pick a quarrel with every passerby and has even been known to come down from a tree where it was resting, apparently fast asleep, to take offense with a man armed with a gun. The only snake that at all approaches the mamba in ferocity is the great king cobra or ferocious cobra, which is a native of India. It is said to be a swift footed animal with any chance of escape. The poison of both these snakes is so deadly that it is fatal in a few minutes. In an examination paper on reptiles, the scientist who writes by either of these ferocious creatures ceases to be interested in the rest of the world for a few minutes. Among the Australian cobras, the pit vipers of America and the great West African vipers, there are certain species that treat the offensive of the defensive method. And in most cases it is the aggressive varieties that carry the most poisonous fangs.—London Globe.

TURNED INTO STONE.

Petrified Objects Are Common in Regions With Limestone Reservoirs.

Petrified objects are found in many sections of the world, most of them in sections where limestone is prevalent. Petrified wood is quite common. Bits of wood pieces of bark and small twigs are the more common, but in some places whole logs are found, and these are so well petrified as to show the bark, pith and even the veins as they were growing. Different kinds of wood petrify. It depends more on the amount of time than on the quality of the wood. In Arizona whole trees are petrified, and in fact, whole forests have been turned into stone, and some wonderful specimens are to be found there. The petrified trees are sometimes cut up and converted into various articles of value.

Petrified Moss Is Found in Many Places.

Petrified moss is found in many places. It is very beautiful. Petrified grasses, leaves or twigs and petrified nuts and fruits have been discovered in many places. Petrified reptiles and small animals have also been found. Petrified ferns have been removed, more rather curious petrifications. One of the most curious found is that of a piece of honeycomb. It is a solid stone, but showing every honey cell perfectly shaped and equally distributed just as the honey had been built. If the comb had contained honey the water had dissolved that, for the cells were empty.

Petrified human remains are not uncommon. In some of the cemeteries in sections of Louisiana, peculiar abundance bodies have been lifted to move them to other cemeteries, and they were found to be turned to stone.—Harper's Weekly.

In Private.

As he strolled out with the basket of ashes he walked into a clothes line that was stretched across the yard. When he had picked himself out of the ash pile and recovered his hat he stood in the back yard and relieved his feelings.

"What?" called his wife.

"Well?" he snapped.

"Don't stand out there to do it. Come straight into the house and tell me that it's all my fault."—Detroit Free Press.

Two Gifts.

They both had sections of the paper. "This is a New York man giving his wife a diamond necklace," said she. "Nothing like that ever happens to me."

"Well," said he, "there's a Chicago man giving his wife a black eye. Nothing like that ever happens to you or either, my dear."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Oval Moon.

According to a discovery made by Professor Castañedo of Portugal, the moon is not round, but oval. Cinematograph pictures, taken during an eclipse of the sun, show a difference of three miles between the greatest and least breadth.

LOTS OF RUSSIAN NOBLES.

Their Blood May Not Be Blue, but They Have White Bones.

In reference to an analog prodigality of Russian titles Rothery Reynolds in "My Russian Year" says: "In Russia all the descendants of a hereditary nobleman are noble, and all the descendants of princes, counts and barons enjoy the right to use these titles. Hence there are rich princes and poor princes, princes with distinguished manners and princes with no manners, elegant princes and princes you could not possibly be seen walking down a city street with. In princes and princes in general, princes who are desirable Paris and princes who advertise in the newspapers for wives with money.

"A glance at the St. Petersburg directory and a rough calculation show that there are some 200 men, women and children in the capital alone who all belong to the same princely family and bear the same name and exalted title. "The first prince I met in St. Petersburg was the head waiter of the Hotel de France. He had an incomparable right to the title and was an excellent servant. His very lowliest servant had to be cited as an instance of the decadence of the nobility, for he was a Tartar from a part of the Caucasus, where princes were so abundant that when Russia acquired it only those who could produce a certain number of sheep were granted the legal right to preserve the title. Many borrowed sheep for the purpose and princes are so common at the present day that beggar boys in Paris give the title to each other.

"Russian nobles do not have blue bones. Most of them have white bones. Common people have black bones. In spite of the leveling of society by the decadence of the nobility great importance is attached to the possession of the white bones."
