SUNDAY BASEBALL THIRTEEN MAJORITY

The polls were open Tuesday to the voters of Wayne on the proposition: "Shall the city of Wayne, Neb., permit the game of baseball to be played within the corporate limits of Wayne, Neb., on Sundays?" Agitation of this question has been going on for some time, ever since the day of May, 1911, when citizens decided, the question by a majority of thirteen in favor of the proposition. The votes in the wards were cast as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Ward, For, Against. First Ward: 18 For, 15 Against. Second ward: 31 For, 16 Against. Third ward: 63 For, 49 Against. Total: 112 For, 80 Against.

CARNIVAL BRINGS RAIN AND COLD WEATHER. LOCAL ATTRACTIONS DRAW CROWDS.

The carnival this year held the usual attractions: merry-go-round with the "lovers' tub," Ferris wheel, fat lady, peep arcade, shooting gallery, hamburger and hot-foot wienies, and the well-known "hot" lady with four hands and four feet. The daily street performances were all well attended, and by the applause it was evident that the hours were appreciated by a few as were the Flying Monks, consisting of four men and one woman, who were the attraction of the day. As usual, the carnival brought rain and cold weather, but the people of Wayne are so accustomed to this that it did not detract from the attendance.

PROFESSOR LEAVENS GOES TO BETTER JOB

The school board of Dakota City has extended a call to Professor H. G. Leavens, a member of the faculty of the local high school, to accept the superintendency of the schools of that place. As the salary is larger than that received here, it is understood that Mr. Leavens will be likely to go to Dakota City. During the two years that Mr. Leavens has spent in Wayne, he and his excellent wife have greatly endeared themselves to the people here. Professor Leavens has proven himself not only a thorough teacher, but a strong influence as well among the young men of the high school for clean and manly living. He has coupled the usual duties of the school with the duties of the athletic teams and has set an example of fairness and love for clean sport that will leave their mark. It is with much regret that this community will lose Mr. and Mrs. Leavens, and all will wish them the utmost success in the new field to which they go.

After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served to the relatives and friends. The groom is a prosperous young farmer, living since his marriage to Marie Kelly, daughter of Michael Kelly, of Charles Oak, Ia. but for the past two years has made his home in Wayne. The many friends of the young couple wish them a long and happy married life.

FAULTY ROW SHOWS BIG IMPROVEMENTS

The completion of the homes of Professors Coleman and House will be a notable addition to the improvements on H. Street. Three years ago a stranger walking toward the Normal on this street was obliged to step for three blocks on ashes or bare ground. From the brow of the hill south of the Normal, standing on the east side of the street, and facing west, a ragged bank twelve feet high met the view. No one was not obliged to do so, used this street as a highway to the Normal. The students chose to go down Main street. Now this same street has come to be a favorite place for the afternoon stroll. Residents seldom fail to bring their guests here before leaving town. What has made the change?

DAMAGE AT BLOOMFIELD.

Bloomfield, Neb., May 14.—A storm yesterday morning which approached a cloudburst, was followed by a flood here that caused a loss of between $35,000 and $40,000. The water entered a score of residences and flooded a number of business houses. The situation was so serious that the mayor has appointed a relief committee to aid those who were caught by the flood. The storm came early in the morning, and about four inches of rain fell in a short time, accompanied by hail and wind. The stream here rose until it was over its banks and was flooding the town. All the houses in the lower part of the town are flooded. Sand bags of the people were still unable to go back to their homes in the afternoon. No trains ran into here yesterday.

THE GENERAL MERCHANDISE STORE OF B. Y. HIGH WAS ONE OF THOSE FLOODED AND DAMAGED TO THE EXTENT OF $30,000.

John W. Evans & Son, piano tuners and repairers, will be in Wayne in about one week. Leave orders at Jones' Book Store. M1614A

TWO ACCIDENTS.

Elvin Johnson, the partner of N. C. Williford in the Wayne monument works, lost a finger Saturday afternoon in an accident while at the Logan Valley cemetery north of town. Miss Ethel Perry met to Sioux City Friday afternoon to do some shopping, returning Sunday. C. I. Ireland and John Beckwell went to Sioux City Friday afternoon to attend the Omaha-Sioux City high school debate.

Upon the invitation of Professor Holman, Dr. R. N. Donahay gave an interesting and instructive talk to the class in school hygiene last Wednesday morning.

Ernest Samuelson, class of 1913, has received notice of his election to the office of factor of manual training in the Oronville, Minn., high school at a salary of $85 per month.

The Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. held a union meeting in the chapel Sunday afternoon. Dr. House addressed the meeting on the subject, "The Power and Demerits of Socialism."

Mr. W. A. Johns at Weoley, E. D., was a caller at the Normal Tuesday. Mr. Johns graduated from the Nebraska Normal college in the class of 1895 and is now engaged in the practice of law at Weoley.

The occupants of Terrace Hall were awakened early Tuesday morning by the crashing of a window blind. This was followed by another similar sound. Considerable excitement, lots of fresh air which was blowing and rain water got into the hall but no great damage was done.

Miss Nina Hanahan closed a most successful term of school Friday, May 9, with a picnic and program at her home. Dinner was served on the lawn, after which an excellent program was enjoyed, not saying anything about the rain. Miss Hanahan will attend the Wayne Normal this summer.—Cortridge Blade.

Miss Pauline Branger, recently school at a position in the Wayne high school will spend the summer in the rural work at the Normal. Under the rules of the board, relative to graduates of the Nebraska Normal College, Miss Branger will be able to secure a diploma and certificate at the end of the summer.

The pupils of Miss Betcher's department of the model school at the State Normal gave an interesting demonstration of the results of new methods of instruction before the assembled students of the Normal at the Wayne graduation. Before the program was preliminary, that the children had themselves arranged their reading lessons in dramatic form, and discussed among themselves each place and the part to be played. Thus, the little folks had had opportunity to make any suggestions and to develop original modes of work. They then read various lessons from their readers, each taking his part in turn and acting out the characters as they occurred in the story. Daniel Webster, First Gays, Who Will Kill the Cat, and various other favorite selections were rendered with much zest. That the children took a deep interest in the performance was very evident from their eager faces and shining eyes, and they certainly did not mind their own neglect of credit on themselves and their teacher. Less machine work and more personality are the need in school work generally and Miss Betcher is securing this result in her pupils.

NORMAL DEFEATS WINDSIBS. In Saturday afternoon the Normal ball team defeated a picked team from Windsib, by a score of 7 to 6. The Windsib team was made up chiefly of the high school boys, reinforced by Gress, Stockham and Lee. The Windsib boys batted Cox and Moore out of the box, but they could not do better. The feature of the game was the hitting by Moore of a line drive to center field, that looked like a sure hit. Batteries: Windsib—Stockham and Lee; Wayne—Shillington and Cox; Moore, Clough.

Considerable sympathy has been aroused in this community over the case of a lady teacher who, awakened each morning at 4 o'clock by the plicking of the lawn mower of George Porter, tried to endure the discomfort, but when Editor Huse began clumping over the cement walks on his way to his office at 8:30 a. m., felt that she must move. Their many friends in Wayne county regret to see them leave.

Although not an ideal circus day, Yankee Robinson put up a clean, and in some respects a very interesting show.

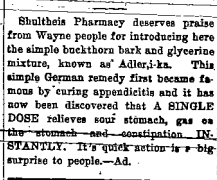

The Big tent was about two-thirds filled with a crowd dressed in winter attire, and with no desire for the customary ice cream, lemonade and fans. The program although rather short, had some very good features. The trained bulls, trained dogs and acrobatic performance were all especially good, but the Juniors and Seniors of Wayne State Normal could pull off a more hair-raising-blood-curdling stunt which would seem more characteristic of the wild west than was put on by Arizona Bull. But it all went in to make up the day of days for the children who were granted a half holiday by the school board who had not forgotten that they were once travelers of the steam entlelope.

The evening performance was not a grand financial success, as there were only three boxes paid admission, which would amount to purchase the eleventh square meal. Savidge's theatre show the crowd for the evening.

Edison's Masterpiece

AT JONES' BOOKSTORE

The EDISON DISC PHONOGRAPH, shown for the first time, a successful culmination of thirty-five years spent by Mr. Edison in his endeavor to perfectly reproduce sound.

In 1878, Mr. Edison invented and patented the first disc phonograph, but not until 1913 has the great master permitted a disc phonograph to be offered to the public in his name.

Mr. Edison has discovered the secret of recording and reproducing tones and tones colors, a new and superior method of recording only known to the Edison Recording Laboratory.

Until now the delicate beauties of music have baffled reproduction as they were either lost—recording—or so weakly reproduced as to be entirely lost in the noise common to disc records.

This wonderful musical instrument can be heard at

Come in and listen. You can not help to marvel, applaud. Mr. Edison said: "Let the public ear decide."

D., where he had been on real estate business. Henry C. Paulson of Carroll was in Wayne Saturday, and while here he informed the Herald that he and his wife expect to start for Germany Friday to spend the summer. Mr. Paulson says he left Germany thirty years ago, and has lived on one farm in Wayne county for twenty-two years. His son Gus is now managing the place. The absence of lights on the streets immediately after the show Friday night was very annoying. The rules of a town like Wayne in regard to lights ought not to work with the provision of natural law. When a crowd of strangers is being entertained in Wayne a little leeway should be indulged in rather than their lodging places without inconvenience.

superior rather than inferior to ordinary teaching. In the first place, the general notion is that the practice teaching is done by inexperienced teachers. But this is not true. We have many experienced teachers in the Normal school. Out of twenty-two Normalers, six have had experience enough to receive a life certificate; others have taught one or two years. In the second place, the practice teacher has had thorough preparation for this kind of work. During the Junior year, one semester is devoted to the study of psychology as it applies to teaching, one semester to observation and special methods and one to theory of education. In observation and special methods, the students observe the work of the different grades as demonstrated by the critic-teachers. Besides the observation of the entire work of this school, special methods of teaching are studied and discussed. Each subject is taken up separately, the best authorities on teaching it read, and the best methods of instruction emphasized. In theory of education, nine weeks are devoted to the learning process, which is really applied psychology, and nine weeks more to the teaching process, which supplements the work in observation and special methods. Besides all this, some take-child study for one semester. In this, the child is seen through different stages of development. Others take school hygiene or school management. All this work is to prepare the Senior for his practice teaching. But before there can be any teaching, there is first a most careful preparation of the lesson to be taught. Careful planning is required on the part of the practice teacher. He must prepare a lesson plan for each lesson he teaches. In this lesson plan he gives the teacher's problem or what the teacher wishes to bring out in the lesson; the pupil's problem, or some problem which the pupil is to think out and solve; the subject matter and the method of procedure, telling just how the lesson is to be taken up and the points which are to be discussed. All during the first semester, or until the practice-teachers have their work well in hand, these plans are handed to Dean Hahn who criticizes them on the theory side and then they go to the supervisor who criticizes them on the practice side. If the plan is approved, the lesson is taught in that manner; if not satisfactory, corrections are made. Through this careful planning, each lesson is thoroughly prepared and carefully taught. Besides we must keep in mind that while the student is doing the practice teaching, a critic teacher is always present to supervise the work. Thus the student-teacher has every advantage for doing superior work. Another advantage of practice teaching in the training school is that the practice teacher plans but one or two lessons, while the ordinary teacher plans from fifteen to sixteen. Then, too, we must not forget that much of the teaching is done by the critic teachers, though we are competent and experienced in the work. The pupils of the training school also have the advantages of manual training in our well equipped shops, under the supervision of Professor Hanger; sewing and the instruction of Miss Pettit, the domestic science department under the supervision of Mrs. Coleman, and drawing under Miss Kilgus. Such, in brief, is the work of the Wayne State Normal training school. HISTORY OF WAYNE NORMAL. When Wayne had a population of 1,000, the citizens became interested in a plan to found an academy in the town under the auspices of the Lutheran church. In 1888 such institution was actually started and for two years carried on its work in temporary quarters. Funds were subscribed for a building and a site was chosen. Trouble arose over the funds and as a consequence the school was closed and the scheme abandoned. The summer of 1893 was notable in the history of the settlement in that it witnessed the coming of Professor J. M. Pile, the founder of the Nebraska Normal college, which later became the Wayne State Normal. For ten weeks that summer, Professor Pile, with the assistance of the county superintendent of schools and the principal of the city schools, conducted a summer normal. The success of the enterprise and the inspiring personality of Professor Pile gave the people courage to support Professor Pile in planting the institution that has come to mean so much to the community and the entire state. The present site of the Normal was selected, and after a year spent in a small building, down town, which is now used to house the City Library, the institution moved into its new quarters on Normal Hill. The entire property was given to President Zins last year for five years, and at the expiration of the time it was to be deeded to him in case he had a son not fewer than two hundred students. Long before the time was elaped the attendance was many times more than two hundred. Until his death in 1909, Pres. Pile and his wife labored in season and out of season for the success of the institution and it is the testimony of hundreds of young people in this and other states that their lives were transformed by the influence of the school during those years. At various times new buildings were added to the equipment until quite a little city graced the summit of the Hill. A bill providing for the purchase of the Nebraska Normal college, for a state normal school was introduced in the house of representatives by Hon. Adam Pilger of Stanton, January 23, 1909. It was placed on final passage by the house March 26, 1909, and was signed by the governor April 6, 1909. The board of education purchased the property, consisting of the college building-auditorium, five dormitories, president's residence, power and heating plant-library and science equipment, and thirteen acres of land known as the college campus, paying $70,000. When the board of education met, it was natural that the choice of a former should fall upon U. S. Conn, a former instructor in the Nebraska Normal college, superintendent of the schools of Columbus, Neb., and later superintendent at Columbus, Neb. In the faculty of the new normal are found four who formerly taught in the Nebraska Normal college-Professor and Mrs. G. H. Bright, Professor Hunter and Miss Kingsbury. Mrs. Bright was a member of the first faculty of the institution. Professor Bright is a graduate of the old school. Of the prosperity of the Normal under state control mention is made in another column. One suggestion should be urged upon this community. The old laundry building, in which the school opened in the fall of 1891, should be purchased and preserved. Its sentimental value is beyond estimation and will wax with the years. By all means it should not be allowed to be lost.-GRACE E. ASH.

EARLY ACTIVITIES OF NORMAL

Work in the literary society—for in the early days of the institution there was only one society—was the main student activity. For a number of years equipment of the literary course was that each member give an oration at the close of each eight-week term.

Then, as now, the boys took delight in playing jokes on new students. One boy was told that every time he entered the building he must go to the office and shake hands with the president. The president then had the pleasure of shaking hands with his emissaries at least three times a day. Once, as the head of the institution clasped the boy's hand, he asked: "Alman, have you your grammar lesson? Well, as long as you have your grammar lesson, it will not be necessary for you to come and see me every day." And the boy was none the wiser.

One student well advanced in years asked at the office if he might exchange gloves for civies, as he didn't like to write to a woman.

The president often used to sit in the shade of the building with a group of boys about him, a knife in one hand and a stick of wood in the other. Through his talks on such occasions he influenced fellows who might get little good from class room work.

It was the scientific class of the old Normal that put the colors of the tennis boys on the field. The inscriptions "T. T. C. headquarters." The training class was, of course, much put out, and the result was a general smashup with the training class coming out victors.

The new building had just been finished and the main building newly varnished. The classes of 1907 and 1908 were having their annual class scrap. Their excitement got the better of them, and they rushed in on the newly varnished floors of course causing considerable damage to the floor.

They were so excited that they did not get up until they had paid $100 which covered the cost of damage.

In bygone days the boys' dormitory was in the top of what is now called the old building. One evening Mr. LeCron donned his new suit and went out on a pleasure jaunt. He spent the evening with one of his friends and time passed all too quickly. About 12 o'clock he came home and as the doors were locked, he must needs enter the building by means of the fire escape.

Mr. LeCron, now in the office, was asked to play a practical joke on his friend who was the first part of the evening but far on the fire escape. It is needless to say that Mr. LeCron's suit was spoiled, but it is not recorded what he did to get even with Mr. Abern.

Although the spring season has been very backward and there has been very little display of tennis enthusiasm, the warm days this week have brought out the players and Wayne promises to have as strong a bunch of racket players as in any year in the past.

Among the younger generation of players perhaps none has shown greater improvement during the last year than Paul Mines and Harry Gilliland. But Paul is one of a number of others that are sure to be in the first class of the veteran class, we have all the old ones with the exception of Charles Beebe and Fred Pile, and the latter will be with us after the first of June. James Miller who has been seen but little here in the last two seasons, now has this territory for a change tea and coffee company, and will be a help considerably.

It is hoped that before the week is over the tennis association will hold a meeting and elect officers and lay complete plans for keeping up the courts. We've should get out a very strong representative to stand to the North-east Nebraska tournament which will be held at Norfolk this year, probably during the month of July. If it is also expected that several players will go down to the State's tournament which will be held at Lincoln August 4 to 9.

The real treat, though, of the year in the tennis world so far as Wayne is concerned, is the National City Court tournament which will be held at the Omaha Field club during the week of July 21. This, as the name implies, is a national tournament and one will be able to see some of the best men in the country in action, and any one interested in the game should not miss being present a day or two, at least. As a special inducement to get Nebraska players to enter this tourney, the management will offer a silver cup to be played for by the tennis players of Nebraska, outside of Omaha.

DIFFERENCE IN MANAGEMENT OF ATHLETICS UNDER THE "OLD SCHOOL" AND PRESENT STATE NORMAL

When Professor E. J. Hunter came to the Wayne Normal, the athletic activities consisted entirely of baseball and there was scarcely any management. Shortly after his arrival, an athletic association was organized. The officers of this association were a president, three vice presidents, a secretary and a treasurer, who were all students. These five boys, with the assistance of Professor Hunter, assumed the entire task of management of all activities pertaining to athletics.

A few of fifty cents per semester were charged all boys who wished to take part in either football, basketball, baseball, tennis or track work, or military drill. The fund, which was quite up of the 50-cent fee, could be used only for the purchase of new equipment. Practically all of the athletic equipment of the present institution was furnished from this fund.

The girls could take part in any activities using the boys' equipment, except tennis, without paying the fee. Miss Jennie Bellows and Miss Carroll were in charge of the girls activities.

The Students' and Faculty's Co-operative association now has charge of all school activities including athletics, entertainments, debates and the school publication, the "Goldboard." This association is managed by a board of control, consisting of six members of the faculty, two students elected from the Senior Class, two from the Junior class, one from each of the Sophomore and Freshmen classes. A program is arranged for the entire year by the board of control, and season tickets are sold admitting the holder to all the Professor Hunter, on being asked concerning the "spirit" shown by the students of the "old school" said: "I believe I can truthfully say the student body as a whole at that time were more willing to fight for the N. N. C. than the present student body 4 to 1 to fight for the W. S. N. This, I believe is due in part to the fact that although we had no gymnasium and very meagre equipment, we were thankful for small favors, while now we are not satisfied and are continually crying for more."

Democrats Keep Tariff Program Since Civil War.

While this paper has always been, and is now, republican, the editing of this section of this week's edition has been placed in the hands of one who is an admirer of the democratic administration, and who is disposed to give deserved praise. We believe the present administration of President Woodrow Wilson deserves the unanimous approval of the American people and American press.

For months before the administration came into power, republican newspapers and other newspapers, which since last fall have become political, non-descript, have forecast dire things for the democratic party. They have said the democratic party would be defeated if Wilson dared name Bryan as secretary of state and that it would be a divided party if he did not, but Bryan and the rest of the Wilson cabinet were appointed without noise, with

Those who would hinder progressive legislation by threats of panic have been warned that retribution may be swift and sure. And last but not least, Wilson has restored American simplicity and sobriety to Washington, and political life has made it reflect the ideals of plain honest people who

AFTERMATH OF THE DEBATE AT KEARNEY

Dr. J. T. House received the following communication from Mr. W. L. Locke, an editorial writer for the Nebraska State Journal, who acted as one of the judges in the Wayne-Kearney debates.

Professor J. T. House, Wayne, Neb.: My Dear Mr. House: I note with interest that your team lost on the affirmative of the minimum wage-debate as did both others. You did not hear the debate, of course, but have doubtless had it fully described to you. I would be interested in any analysis of the result, as you have been able to get at the facts. The fact that the negative won in all three contests makes me suspect the infallibility of judges. Looks as if there is something in the negative aspect of the case that impressed the judges unconsciously, ending decisions to run that way, somewhat regardless of the quality of the presentation by the debaters. Surely it did not happen that each school picked its strongest team for the negative. Or is it the practice to pick the strongest team for the debate away from home? As I remember, all the teams won the affirmative of the initiative and referendum triangular debate last year. My doubt as to the value of decisions in debates gives me an interest in this matter, and I would like to know your opinion.

Yours very truly, W. L. LOCKE. Mr. House's reply follows:

Wayne, Neb., May 17, 1913.

My Dear Mr. Locke: I, too, suspect the infallibility of judges. In fact, I am pretty sure that there is no science of judging debate. If I am right in my notions of debating-the decision at Kearney was right. However, I am sure that one must go farther into the consciousness of the average intelligent American to get a living wage than the minimum wage that against it. Theoretically this ought not to be true. A debate is a game and the question is who does the best job of handling available materials. As to the debate here, I think our affirmative was fully as strong a team as our negative. But we took a different view of the question from that used on the affirmative by either of our opponents. We held that the question could only mean the acceptance of the principle to be applied whenever a considerable number of wage earners were getting less than a living wage. We had some excellent authority, John R. Commons among others; for our interpretation, but did not devote enough time to making it clear to the judges that this is the only reasonable interpretation.

Our people thought we had won. The opposing team, feeling that we had lost, thought our more would have won for the affirmative here, though I do not see how it could have reversed things at Kearney. A flat minimum for the whole country seems to me absurd. A reasonable program of acceptance of the principle with careful application ought to have had a chance. I think our people failed to make this point clear. As to delivery, etc., of course I do not know—the merits of the Pro team. I would like to see the two Wayne teams debate this question before judges who were not local. I am not at all sure what the result would be. I recall with much pleasure our trip to Lincoln, and shall anticipate with relish a renewal of the acquaintance when you come here to make an address.

Cordially yours, J. T. HOUSE.

HE CHARGES IT TO PRESIDENT WILSON

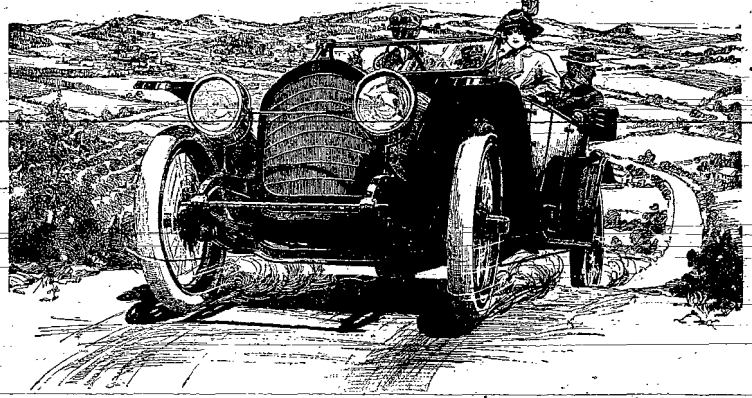

A Young Republican Ecceciates the Tariff Bill.

Last week, the Woodrow Wilson tariff bill was passed in the house by an almost strictly party vote. Two republicans and five democrats voted against the bill while five democrats voted against it. Four of the democrats were from Louisiana, and opposed the bill because of its probable evil effects upon the sugar industry.

The peculiar feature of the bill is that results hoped for will come, if at all, at the expense of the farmers and stock raisers and not the manufacturer. Thus the provision whereby the tariff is taken from wool merely enables the manufacturer to pay the farmer a lower price for the product of his labor. The provision that takes the tariff from sugar according to Senator Smith of Michigan, will give the American Sugar Refining company and the Federal Sugar Refining company a control with which they will be able to force the best sugar industry out of business in Michigan and in other states. The bill is the best sugar industry will be affected. How many people in Nebraska and Colorado who raise sugar crops will have their means of livelihood taken from them? The republican minority in the house

A Car of Character-Beauty that is Rare

IN the Cross Country the public finds an expression of your own good taste. There is in this car a certain something which gives it character beyond outward grace.

To the eye it presents a pleasing picture of straight flowing lines and graceful curves. Rarely does it pass without remark. Long, low and balanced perfectly, its silent dignity of movement, so much admired on the boulevard, may be attributed to those same qualities which make possible its sturdy performance on the road.

Like a fine horse, it inspires the owner's pride and gives him rank in his neighborhood as a man whose taste is to be admired.

The radiator is high and distinctive in design. The large electric front and flush electric dash lamps make it a car easily distinguished among many. Trimmed in nickel, with body, fenders and fillers of black enamel, its appearance is striking.

The Cross Country, $1,875

The fenders are broad, strong and sturdy. The doors are wide and the compartments large enough to accommodate the family. Long and low hung, you can whip this car around the corner in a jiffy and the rear wheels hug the road.

It's a car to delight a woman's eye. To her rare good taste will appeal its perfect proportions and its superb finish. To this we may attribute the greatest pleasure in its ownership.

A beautiful four-color reproduction of the Cross Country, from an oil painting by R. Philip Brinard, is ready for mailing. See the Cross Country by all means, at any Jeffery branch or dealer's display room, but send for the picture anyway.

has done its duty to the country with respect to the Woodrow Wilson tariff bill. Under the leadership of James R. Mann of Illinois, it has worked in an intelligent and resolute manner. Unhampered by the weight of the majority against it, they fought bravely. They have opposed knowledge and scientific investigation to ignorance and regard for the people's prosperity to reckless meddling with the fundamentals of the people's general industries.

Every proposal made by the republicans, however rational and consistent with industrial and commercial facts, has been rejected by a majority, largely composed of men in the house for the first time.

The republicans have failed to amend the bill is nothing to their discredit. It is to their credit that, knowing the odds against them, they have not fought to the end regardless of those odds. They have fought to prevent this radical dealing with the business of the nation upon which millions of American lives depend.

The bill passed by the house is as it was when it came from Woodrow Wilson and the democratic secret caucus. The greatest change is that which excludes the residents of Porto Rico and the Philippines from the income tax. However, the tax remains on all citizens who have insured their lives, no matter how far below $1,000 their year-

A GOOD YEAR FOR STATE NORMAL

$65,000 Building Completed.

Both the school and the town are proud of the new library and science hall which has been built in this last biennium. Though the building has been used since last June it was not entirely completed until recently.

The library occupies the first floor; biology and agriculture departments the second; domestic science and physical education the third. The building is of brick, is modern and has been built for beauty as well as for use.

Attendance Much Increased.

The enrollment during the first semester of the school, the fall of 1910 was 285. Just two years later, during the first semester of this school year the enrollment reached the 400 mark.

In 1911 there were three graduates and one to receive a teacher's certificate. In 1912 there was a graduating class of twenty-three and a junior class of about the same size. This year there are only twenty-five graduates, but there are more than forty in the junior class. Next year there will probably be fifty graduates. Many will receive junior certificates and teachers' certificates from the Normal this year.

Larger Faculty This Year.

The school opened in 1910 with a faculty of eighteen. Now there are twenty-six faculty members. Miss Pettit, who has charge of Domestic Science, and Miss Anthony, who teaches shorthand and typewriting, have been added to the teaching corps this year; also, Miss Bettcher, the intermediate arithmetic teacher. During the football season last fall a coach was secured. His only work was that of directing the physical training of the young men. Miss Bethel, who is well known to the Wayne people, has been elected to take the position of second primary-eristic teacher. Next year, Miss Beeschel will study in the east, probably at Columbia, and will return to take up her work in Wayne in 1914. HAZEL RAND.

For months Herald readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Dean's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. What other remedy ever preceded such convincing proof of merit? Mrs. Joseph Schmalzweig, Wayne, Nebraska, says: "It gives me pleasure to confirm the public statement I gave in 1907, endorsing Dean's Kidney Pills. It was troubled by a heavy dull ache through my kidneys and back and I also had dizzy spells and headaches. The secretions were excessive and plainly showed that my kidneys needed attention. Dean's Kidney Pills drove away the pain in my back and toned up my system. Since then, whenever I have any ailment of a kidney nature, I have taken Dean's Kidney Pills and they have relieved me." PICTURE SIGNATURES

Difficult to Find, Sometimes and Not Many of the works of the old masters are not signed. Experts rarely rely on signatures alone in determining the authenticity of an object, but trust rather to their knowledge of the painter's technique. The circumstances can be easily detected. Spirits of wine or turpentine will usually remove a name of later date than the painting. In the course of time a special varnish has become difficult to find. Painted originally in a shade slightly lighter than the ground, perhaps they sink in, darken and become more prominent as they are almost rubbed away by successive cleanings. Recognizable only in a special light, these marks will not be visible again for weeks. Experts speak of "will-o'-the-wisp" signatures, and many collectors have encountered accidental strokes and cracks that fantastically suggest a signature, though it can never be made definite. On the other hand, there have been many cases where the marks, after careful study, revealing themselves into a famous name. Sometimes the painter's name is most conspicuous, for instance, to Raphael's "Sposalia" at Milan. Proud of having surpassed his master, the young artist had written his name at the very center of the canvas "Raphael Urbinate". Reginald Hardy ever signed his pictures, and the artist's portrait of Mrs. Siddons at the "Tragic Muse" he wrote his name large on the gold embroidery of her dress. He was unable to hold up to the temptation of sending my name to posterity on the hem of your garment. With reference to unsigned paintings there is to be an amusing story. Achenbach, the German artist, enjoyed a vogue about ten years ago. He was a native of Berlin, and through an art dealer a marriage contract was signed with a genuine Achenbach. Afterward it was pronounced to be a copy. The art dealer, who had been deceived, was declaring that his picture was genuine and the other was a copy. Achenbach, who was summoned by the court to testify which was which, Amazed at the similarity of the two paintings, the artist gazed at them for some time, and then he turned front and back and then he frankly admitted that he could not tell which was the original and which the copy. Harper's Weekly. Bear's Grass. In a recent volume of reminiscences the writer tells of his childhood. It touches more common than in his early days and ascribes our loss of hair to the decrease in the use of "bear's grass." This product is made principally of hard-colored and scented, but "hairdressers" many of whom call themselves "profession" have advertised the hair of one of their "other bears," exhibiting, particularly in the Walworth road a canvas of "bear's grass." This product is a brownish substance, and the proprietors expiring in a sea of gore. "London Standard." Sunset and the Flag. A stalwart sergeant in an artillery regiment stationed in one of the harbor forts walked into a store in New York and demanded of the storekeeper the reason for having the stars and stripes displayed after sunset. "That's all right, sergeant," asked the bewildered tradesman. "It's not a general," said the big soldier, "but it isn't all right to keep the flag on the flag displayed at night, and judging from your business, I don't think you can be under siege." Corlett, early settlers of Wayne county, left this morning for Philadelphia and other eastern points for a prolonged visit. Mr. Corlett was born in Philadelphia, having left his home there twenty years ago. Since that time he has been in the west coasting nearly every part for a few days when he visits his old home some twenty years since. The couple anticipate an enjoyable time visiting old scenes and re-creating old associations. THE FIELD OF VISION. Even Persons With Normal Eyes Are Afflicted. The various tests for color blindness have come into practical use in the examination of railroad engineers and pilots. It is necessary, so that these tests are no longer peculiar to the laboratory. But it is not generally known outside the laboratory that color blindness is not only a defect of the eye, but is in certain parts of the field of vision. The most normal individual can see all the colors of the visible spectrum at once. If looked at from an angle of about fifteen degrees red and green can no longer be seen, but in dark places will appear shades of yellow or blue. This region of the eye is known as the "yellow-blue zone." If the field of vision is extended to the left the yellow and blue will disappear and only gray can be seen. This region is known as the zone of complete color blindness. An interesting theory in regard to these zones is that every normal eye represents three stages of evolution. The highest stage of evolution is in the lowest vertebrate and appears in such animals as the frog, whose vision is known as shadow vision. The blue-yellow zone is one step higher in the scale, although not clearly marked off in the natural kingdom. And the appearance of the red-green zone is the highest stage of evolution. Causes of color blindness are, according to this theory, a lack of development beyond the early stage in the individual. -L. H. Britton, in Popular Magazine. Holy One a Medicine. Holy One proved an important part in domestic medicine. The berries are "violently purgative and emetic" and were swallowed ten at a time by a child who had been given "syrups," "sputer" and other mysterious malades. Some years ago prominent French physicians pronounced a child the highest stage of evolution from the bark called "hellebore" and superior to quinine as a tonic and to turpentine as a cathartic. And other dignitaries have been cured with "hellebore" no longer figures in the British Pharmacopoeia. -London Express. Curious Effects of Frost. An egg expands when it is frozen so much that the eggshell cracks and breaks the shell. Apples, on the contrary, contract to such an extent that a full barrel will shrink until the top layer of ice is frozen. If you freeze a barrel of fruit the frost has been tested and carefully drawn out they again assume their normal size and appearance. Apples can be frozen and still be good and "hellebore" no longer figures in the British Pharmacopoeia. -London Express. A Damper. "A. You don't seem to have any life in you. Is there nothing or nobody over-which you can outbust? B. Nothing. I have no comparative advantage over somebody, and a short time afterward she became my wife. That was a warning to me to avoid enthusiasm." -Pearson's Weekly. A Feminine View. "I was young, my dear girl, were not allowed to sit up late with young men." "Then, papa, why do you allow me to do so now? It would be so much more interesting, if you would only forbid it." -Judge. Griefed. "Got up today I hope that is, in there now that I may. ### HOME LIFE TODAY ON WAYNE COUNTY FARM

The farming land to the east and south of Wayne is composed of a very rich black loam, with a clay subsoil. The subsoil is of the right material to insure a crop against drought. With a small amount of rain in the spring or even with an ordinary winter, fair crops could be raised, because the clay holds that moisture fast. But, in the history of the community, there has been no actual danger of poor crops from lack of moisture, because of the healthy Wayne is situated in a district where the glaciers left deposits sufficiently rich to insure abundant moisture.

Because of this fact, the farmers have prospered. Those who have been here since pioneer days have every modern convenience, both in farming material and in houses. A survey of the homes shows that they are mostly modern and well equipped. Some of them have acetylene gas lights and furnaces. This type of home makes work easy and life enjoyable. Each party interviewed was a subscriber to many leading magazines and papers. These are of four different kinds—namely the religious, historical and educational, travel and newspaper, but found in every home. The rural free delivery system of the United States postal department delivers these papers at the farm but a few hours later than they are received in town. This service pleases the farmer in a relation to heavy all hardships of the winter, and such is about proving that it cannot be laid aside for a short time to allow the farmer to discuss some important current event with a neighbor or a stranger. In the most modern homes, the correspondent found furnishings to be of the best material. Electric and pianos are a noticeable feature in the homes where there is no member of the family capable of playing the piano, mechanical piano players are in evidence. In some instances, photographs are also used for banquets and amusement at night and on Sundays. We find that most owners who have old houses are planning on building new homes in the near future. The outbuildings are not always the best, but in some instances they are entirely modern. The new barn is invariably painted the same color as the house. The old plan of always painting the barn red is rapidly passing away. In two instances, gas lights were noticed in the barn. This does away with carrying a lantern and outdaring the stroke by fire. Every home visited had a grove to the north-west of the house as a protection against snow and wind. Orchards are numerous and are generally composed of apple, plum and cherry trees. The apple crop is the most profitable as apple trees blossom late, and are not likely to be killed by frost. Cherries are second in importance, and are about equal to the apple crop. Plums, however, do not seem to be a profitable fruit, as worms generally spoil what fruit defies the weather.

Fifty per cent of the farms in this county are filled by their owners. The buildings on these farms are usually in excellent condition. Orchards and groves planted by early settlers have matured so as to furnish fruit and shade. Occasionally outbuildings are too close to the dwelling to furnish the best health conditions, and animals are allowed to run loose in the yard. In some parts of the county little of the land is tilled by its owners. The buildings on these tilled farms are often not in good condition and sometimes sanitation is almost wholly neglected. It is also true that the rented farm often does not produce as well as the one tended by the owner.

Roads.
Perhaps the greatest need of our people in a material way is good roads. From the beginning of history, transportation and civilization have developed together. Only a few of the farmers drag the roads, and highways in Wayne are only good for a short distance from town.

The Country Schools.
The rural schools are progressing on for the efficient care of Mrs. Elsie Little, county superintendent. But there is need of improvement. Many of the school houses are located on bleak hills tops with no trees in sight. Two of them are up to the standard of government set by the State Board, and many others would be if proper lighting were had. Dr. Henry Curtis, president of the American Playgrounds association, made many excellent suggestions at the county institute last summer and his plans are being followed in the installation of play apparatus. Private drinking cups have been placed in most of the schools.

The attendance is good, but better in some parts of the county than in others. It seems difficult for some parents to learn that the success of their children will be under the constant direction upon school through all the years of childhood.

HISTORY OF WAYNE AND WAYNE COUNTY

The first white man to settle in Wayne county was B. F. Whitten. Mr. Whitten built the first house, in April, 1869. Soon after, a colony from Illinois settled in the eastern part of the county. In 1870, the first census showed a population of 189.

The territory now comprising Wayne county was under the jurisdiction of Dixon county for judicial purposes, a few years. In 1870, a petition was circulated through the county, signed and presented to Hon. David Butler, then governor of Nebraska, who in accordance with law, ordered an election, which was held at the house of George Scott, on Coon creek, in the eastern part of the county, on May 5, 1870, and the following were elected as officers: County commissioners, W. E. Durig, M. T. Sperry, and Isaac Miner; county clerk, E. Hunter; treasurer, B. P. Witten; sheriff, A. D. Allison; probate judge, A. Fletcher; coroner, William G. Yoman; superintendent public instruction, R. B. Crawford; coroner, Nathan Allen. Judges of election, Messrs. George Hunter, Miner and Crawford. Clerk of election, Frank Hunter and George Scott.

A building 18 by 24 feet, was erected near the present site of LaPorte to be used for the court house until a better building could be built. The cost of the building was $350. In 1874, bonds to the amount of $1,000 were voted. Before the end of that year, a new brick court house was built on the site of the old one at a cost of $11,000. At present this building is used as a county poor house. The first town site of LaPorte was laid out May 22, 1871, on his own farm, by Solomon Bevis. LaPorte has the distinction of being not only the first county seat of Wayne county, but the first settlement was made at LaPorte. It was expected that the railroad would be laid near there. However, when the survey was finally made it was several miles north of the county seat. The settlers thought best to move nearer to the railroad, so part of the buildings were moved to the present site of Wayne, and part to Washfield.

Wayne in 1881.
At first the county seat was called Brookdale, but that name not being sufficiently metropolitan, it was changed to Wayne. The county was organized in 1881. The county officers held their transactions in a store building located on the corner east of where the Baptist church now stands. This building was one of those moved from LaPorte and answered the purpose of a court house until 1888 when the present building was erected.

One rainy day in October, 1881, Dr. Lawson and James Britton saw a smoke east of town. They walked out in that direction to see what it was. As they went around the bend by Evans' lake they saw the cause of the smoke—the construction train. The road was completed to Norfolk in November of that year and the passenger trains were now passing through Wayne. In the spring of '81, many miles of track were washed out by the melting of snow. It is said that fourteen feet of snow fell during that winter.

First Business History.
The first newspaper in the county was edited by Hunter & Childs. The name of the paper was the Wayne Review. Soon after the town was moved to Wayne, a press was purchased by Bob Taylor, T. J. Steele and James Britton and the Wayne County Banner was published. Mr. Hunter, the father of the present editor of the Herald, was the editor and C. E. Hunter the reporter.

The first general store was started by Captain Merriam, on the corner now occupied by Dr. & Morris. Britton, Hardenburg & Johnson established a general store in the building now occupied by John Lewis' harness shop. Morris & Steele had a hardware store where Craven's hardware stands, and Maxwell started a hardware business, now conducted by Barrett & Dally. J. P. Gaertner opened a furniture store in 1882. S. D. Rayns and R. S. Olmsted kept the first restaurant on the corner where Vibber's cafe stands. L. C. Dearborn owned the first drug store. Dressler & Dearborn started the Wayne Cuggy bank. W. A. Love was the first physician in Wayne, but was soon followed by J. C. Brown, J. S. Sutherland and R. B. Crawford.

Items of Interest.
Edna Wayne Britton Stewart has the honor of being the first child born in Wayne, and Chancery Childs that of the first boy. Both were born in 1881.

The first house was built in Wayne by Mr. Maxwell, in 1881. It stood on the northeast corner of the high school block. The lumber was hauled from Emerson.

The first sermon preached in Wayne was conducted by Mrs. Brigham and M. S. Devine, who is the book and music business in 1882.

Mrs. W. B. Weatherbee taught the first school in the Lutheran chapel, which stood on the corner east of the old Rayburn property.

The first couple married in Wayne were John G. Mersethaler to Mrs. Julia Phillips, in 1873. The wedding was at the home of J. E. Harmon by Ira Durin, justice of the peace. Mr. Harmon then lived on Logan creek, near the steel bridge.

The first couple married in the county were M. T. Sperry to Sarah Ann Ayres, May 9, 1871, by A. A. Fletcher, probate judge.

Judge Britton was Wayne's first postoffice. The postoffice was in one end of the store. There were no regular mails. They merely came whenever they could and from wherever they could.

TALKS OF OLD DAYS.

Mrs. James Britton tells a dramatic story of the terrible prairie fire October 18, 1873. The neighborhood, now Mrs. James Miller, was six weeks old. Miss Sadie Hunter, now Mrs. Meritt of Washfield, was staying with the family and Mr. LaFontaine Jones, now a merchant at Grand Rapids, Mich., at that time clerk in Mr. Britton's store, was standing at the Britton home. Mr. Britton had gone to Norfolk. Miss Hunter remarked early in the day concerning the fire that seemed to be approaching from the southwest. At dinner time young Jones failed to appear for the noon meal. Miss Hunter then went to the house as usual, but back springing: "Oh! I know something terrible has happened! Everything is shut up and the men are all away fighting fire. Everything is going to go." The heavy cloud of smoke and the stifling heat that kept rolling in from the prairie hid their ominous testimony to the truth of her words. "A great fire, nearly scene, the safest refuge. So Mrs. Britton wrapped the baby in white quilts, she and Miss Hunter put on all the clothing they could wear, took what money was at hand, and, expecting the house to be burned to the ground, went to the nearest neighbor, Mr. Hardenburg, whose home bordered on the plowed field. It was now well toward evening and the men were returning to their homes, bringing with them the tale of the tragic death in the flames of Mrs. Durin and her family and the assembled neighbors to watch from an upper window and if the fire leaped Coon creek, three miles west, to race for the plowed field. Anxious minutes passed, but soon the lookout cried the joyful news that the fire brigade had checked the flames and the fire had been extinguished.

In May, 1870, occurred the first murder in Wayne county. John T. Dressler tells how on a fateful Sabbath morning, while he was visiting at the home of a neighbor, near his claim in the southwest part of the county, Jake Schriver came hurrying along with the news that he had found the heinous body of O. S. Munson lying in a field nearby. The dead was discovered in a badger hole. Five young Winnebago Indians, among them White Breast, the son of the chief of the tribe, had killed Munson, apparently by reason of the influence of the Medicine Man. The young man was convicted of the crime, and all died in the penitentiary.

Twenty-one years ago there were in the Nebraska Normal two young Germans trying to prepare themselves for better citizenship. They were not far enough advanced to take work in the mine, class of President Ekin, always willing to do something for all earnest inquirers, placed them in charge of a student-teacher. They began in the second reader and elementary arithmetic. They did not complete a course in the school.

One day, however, the former young man rolled into Wayne with his family, and they had a large toning car. A son of perhaps eighteen years presided at the wheel with confidence and dignity. Both of these men are prosperous, and what is better still, are all-around good citizens of their community and of the nation.

When the reporter saw this family coming into town, the personification of happiness and contentment, he recalled with vividness having many times seen this father and his brother go into the clock room under the old bell tower of what was then the only building of the Nebraska Normal college, there to recite their daily lessons to their earnest, enthusiastic student teacher.

While they did not graduate from the school, they are doing an important part in the world's work and are doing it creditably.

In old LaPorte, in the years before the flood, Judge Britton ran a store. In 1868 Judge Britton had this place of business and retail the local gossip. It was the custom of the generous proprietor to provide the lady with pipe and tobacco, set her upon the counter and use her talents to attract customers. On one occasion, she was retelling a story of the theft of some swine from the pen on her back lot, she suddenly took her pipe in her hand, gestured violently at the on-lookers and said: "An' gittensien, if I was as sure of gain' to heaven as I am that that Blackey Blank stole my haves, I'd never go to church again in me life."

Back in the sixties, an Irishman used to freight through this county to the Black Hills. Once, when of the western plains of the state, he quarreled with a young fellow who was accompanying him in the capacity of hired man. "You're fired," said the Irish freighter. "So off wit it. I never wants see your face again." "That's pay me," was the indignity reply. "That's pay me." "Don't have to pay you." "An' I couldn't be after rooming around wit a hole clear through me around I'd, for a paathry thirteen dollars!"

Why Not Raise Mules?

Mules should be raised on the farms of Nebraska and other states because they are the best thing to cash. I never heard of a mule being injured. They don't have colic. Thousands of horses die annually from colic and founder. You will see many mules on the farm. You will see one hundred blind horses to one blind mule and you will see one hundred dead horses to one dead mule. I don't know what becomes of them, but they don't often die. They are the farmer's friend and helper. The farmers that raise mules are all making money. Raise the good kind and they are sure to make money. One team of mules will replace two teams of horses. Being in your mares and raise good mules.

I have a good jack, but to raise the best kind of mules, you must have a good mare.
