Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The relative percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

- Bread made with Royal Cream of Tartar Powder: 100 Per Cent. Digested
- Bread made with phosphate powder: 68 1/2 Per Cent. Digested
- Bread made with alum powder: 67 3/4 Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

Two errors in last week's paper have been called to the attention of the Herald. One was a mistake in the statement of the State Bank of Wayne, and to omission of a capital and exponent on the part of the president. The statement, corrected, is republished in this paper. The other error was omission of the name of John T. Melton from the published list of soldiers dead buried in the Wayne cemetery.

Such omission was due to unintentional oversight on the part of the one furnishing copy to the Herald. In the rush of getting out newspaper, the closest attention to details sometimes fails to keep out mistakes which are always a source of keen regret to the publisher. OBITUARY J. M. ROSS

Last Wednesday, shortly after noon, our brother, J. M. Ross, quietly passed away, after intense suffering for many months. Death came to him as a kind messenger, relieving him of almost unbearable pain and agony.

Mr. Ross was born at Butler, Richland county, O., August 22, 1845, and so had passed the span of life allotted to man, by a few months. Growing up to manhood before the civil war...

About eighteen months ago his present trouble began to manifest itself. After some months of unsatisfactory treatment, its real nature revealed itself...

He bore his awful suffering patiently and submissively. He knew that the outcome would be not long after death. He did his best to conquer. His last words to me about it all were these: 'It is a hard way, but I seem God's will, that it is his way.'

DECORATION DAY IS PROPERLY OBSERVED

DEAN H. H. HAHN MAKES SPEECH

Impressive Ritualistic Service at Cemetery - Graves Decorated with Flowers

Flags and bunting attested to the Memorial day spirit in Wayne-Friday, and a large crowd came from the surrounding country to attend the annual services.

Following the program at the opera house, a line of march was formed for the cemetery. The twenty-something soldiers in attendance were conveyed in automobiles, and were followed by a column of flower girls and flag boys.

In the course of his address Mr. Hahn said the following in substance:

'Memorial day celebration was at first principally a military celebration, but as death is depleting the ranks of the veterans of the civil war, it is obvious that others must come to take their place and the responsibilities of the day.'

Decorating graves of our soldiers and sailors is a noble and patriotic activity. We must appreciate the blessings which we know our life. A sacrifice of at least half a million human lives, to say nothing of the thousands who returned to their homes with broken bodies and shattered nerves...

'One means at our disposal is to dedicate ourselves each Memorial day, to the task of telling the story of the heroism of the civil war to our boys and girls as they grow into active citizenship that they, too, may appreciate the untold blessings the civil war brought us as a nation.'

'But we need to inspire and stimulate not only national patriotism, but local patriotism as well. The spirit of social service and community cooperation is fundamental to the success of our civic duty.'

on the formation of habits of civic and patriotic conduct. The civil war veterans know as no others can know all patriotic words and patriotic emotional attitudes could be counted for nothing in battle...

'Do we need an active citizenship today? Yes, if ever we needed it in the past. We need a citizenship that is active in promoting relations of good fellowship between nations.'

'We need an active citizenship in behalf of our national welfare. The enormous development of our economic and industrial life has brought about selfish, inane, socially inefficient situations that threaten times more dangerous than it could possibly have been fifty years ago.'

'How are we to get the citizen who is vigorously active for the common good? We must change the emphasis in education from the learning of facts to the forming of habits...

'The formation of habits of civic duty is a preparation for adult life, for the remote future, and not for child life of the immediate present. It is conducted now and not at a remote future that we must work for.'

NOT SCIENTIFIC.

It is perhaps not necessary to reply to the charges of the age of inference that are common in the speeches of the pleasant gentlemen who adorn our lecture platform, but when attempt is made to defend and to increase our credulity by statements based on alleged scientific data, it is at least desirable to examine the data, lest we and our children be steadily increasing matters of grave public moment. The statement recently made in this community in the intermingling of races the best is lost and the worst survives, and the further claim that from cross-breeding among Jews, yell low, black and white, steadily follows, rest upon no established scientific certainty, such as was claimed by the speaker.

On this general theme, no greater authority exists than Prof. Bos of Columbia. In one of his works, published in 1911, he states that the scientific belief in the existence of "gifted races" and of others less favorably endowed, is supported by little evidence. Further, he says: "Hardly any evidence could be adduced to show that the ancestral characteristics of the races possessing the highest civilization were phylogenetically more advanced than those of lower grades of culture." Again, he notes that the "history of Europe proves that there has been no racial purity anywhere for exceedingly long periods of time." He also notes the intermixture of European types show any degrading effect upon European nationalities. "I could multiply testimony not only from Bos but from other sources, but will add only this further statement: 'Bos: "I feel that it behooves us to be most cautious in our reasoning, and particularly to refrain from all sensational formulations of the problem that are liable to add to the prevalent lack of calmness in its consideration." Specifically, the statement given by the speaker is not established as true. The community need not take it seriously.—T. Housa.

CLEANED FROM THE HERALD'S EXCHANGES

Pierre Leader: We had always thought that Pender had the oldest chief of police in point of service, with 25 years to his credit, but now comes the chief of Wayne with a record of 25 years. That is surely a long time to serve in any one office.

Friday's Sheriff Deputy, William Pigg, the Dixon county farmer who is charged with the murder of his sister, is no longer employed in Norfolk following his assault upon Mrs. Caddie Welch, near Homer, Neb., was taken from the county jail to Pender, and immediately sentenced, upon a plea of guilty, to serve eighteen years in the penitentiary. Davis admitted the crime and professed to have been under the influence of "dope," which he declared he had used for ten years. Davis was sentenced for four years ago to five years imprisonment for highway robbery. He was paroled recently.

Miss Lillian Randa, living at Niobrara, accidentally killed herself Thursday with a revolver which she did not know was loaded. She was aged 19.

Pierson City: The newspapers of the Sixth district tell the following story of a merchant out there—During the good times, when everybody had money, this merchant quietly went to work to collect a list of the patrons of the mail order houses. He used several methods to secure them and succeeded in getting a pretty complete list, which he filed away for future reference. Last year, the crops—all burned up, money was scarce and many people were needing credit. When a man, stepped in the store and asked for credit, the merchant hunted up his list, and if the man's name was there he told him to go ask for credit where he spent his cash. "The revenge is tough, but really, you can't blame him much."

Pender has arranged to have a chautauque, beginning Saturday, June 21, and lasting five days.

Hartington Herald: The Crystal theatre was sold this week by A. D. Jones to W. A. Marx of Sac City, Ia., who will take immediate possession. The new proprietor is a married man and will move here with his family and make his home. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will probably move to Wayne.

The Name of Jeffery and what it Stands for

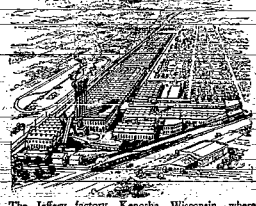

Ask your banker what the name of Jeffery stands for in the motor car industry. Look it up in Dun or Bradstreet. You will find that the name represents a rare stability and integrity based upon the following things: Forty years of manufacturing experience and fair dealing with the public—twenty-eight years in the bicycle business and twelve in the motor car industry.

A factory equipment valued at millions of dollars, by means of which ninety-six per cent of all parts are produced.

A concern notably conservative and absolutely independent of alliances with other makers. A company that recognizes the customer as a partner in its success—therefore guarding the quality of its product with the same caution it exercises in maintaining its unexcelled standing with the banks.

It is a harder work to celebrate Memorial day than it used to be. A half century of time away from the activities of the civil war makes a great difference; and a half century of time added to the years of the men enlisted for the war makes a difference with them.

Such gigantic catastrophe as the clash of two suns, each perhaps millions of miles in diameter, rushing at each other at the rate of twenty or thirty or even more miles per second would result, so the mathematicians tell us, in a very splitting explosion exactly as if each were composed of billions of billions of tons of gunpowder, and as when gunpowder explodes nothing is left but the smoke and the debris of the original explosion.

Some of these would sooner or later attain a condition of temperature suitable for the support of life and so the centuries passed would become peopled with sentient beings. Gradually the world grew and man appeared to exist and finally become frigid, cold, dark stars once more.
