AN EMERGENCY CALL URGED AS DEFENSE

Complaint was filed against Dr. A. McFarlane by Marshal George Miller the first of the week charging him with exceeding the speed limit with his automobile. The doctor contended that he was answering an emergency call in his profession as his family was being held under the law, the speed be- traved. Tuesday afternoon, before I. W. After, police judge, the case was con- sidered, Fred S. Berry representing the city, and A. E. Davis appearing for the defendant. Whether a sufficient emergency existed to justify exceeding the speed limit was the question dis- cussed. As a result, the judge assessed a fine of $5 and costs, committing the fine and collecting the costs, which lat- ter amounted to $4.50.

KEEN INTEREST IN LOCAL TOURNAMENT

A great deal of interest is being shown in the local handicap doubles tournament now being played. The teams are all very evenly matched and some close and interesting matches have been played. On account of the absence of some of the players from town this week, the tournament will not be finished until some time next week. In the semifinals of the championship singles, J. G. Miller defeated Frank Mings 6, 10-8. Mr. Miller plays Frank Mings in the finals for the city championship. The doubles semi- final tennis will be shown in this match: Mr. Morgan holds the cup at the present time, and Mr. Miller was the winner in 1911. At the conclusion of the doubles handicap tournament, it is the intention of the local tennis associa- tion to hold a singles handicap tourna- ment. The following matches have been played in the doubles tournament: First round: Ringland and Miller de- feated Kiplinger and Gamble, 3-6, 6-0, 8-1. Second round: J. G. Matus and B. Fisher defeated Paul Mings and Mor- gan, 3-6, 8-6. Third round: Matus de- feated G. M. Graves and Francis Jones, 2-6, 8-6; Fred Pile and W. Hahn de- feated Alfred Lewis and H. Gilder- steve, 7-5, 4-8, 8-1. Third round: Fred Pile and W. Hahn defeated Blair and Mings, 6-2, 6-3.

THE WEEK WITH THE CHURCHES.

Methodist Episcopal Church.
(Rev. P. R. Gloffroy, Pastor.)
Meetings Sunday, August 10. Class meeting 10 a. m., preaching 10:30, Sunday school 12 noon, lawn service at courthouse 7 p. m. Epworth league Friday, August 8, 8 p. m. Ladies' mission society meets Friday, August 9, at 2:30 with Mrs. Hannah Bresler.

The boys of the Sunday school Scouts play the Carroll Sunday school boys a return game of baseball Friday afternoon at the Normal grounds at 5 p. m. The fourth quarterly conference August 18 at 8 p. m. This concludes on the nearness of the year's end. Let each plan to do his part of the closing up of the year's work early. Splendid testing weather. This Glad to see so many faithful to all the services. Let us strive to be faithful even in the least.

First Baptist Church.
The congregation on last Sunday morning was not permitted to hear Brother Elmer Rogers, as had been announced, owing to the fact that he was hospital at Sioux City for an operation. In his absence, the church was organized from the effects of which we are glad to learn he is recovering as fast as could be expected. Prof. J. G. W. Lewis of the State Normal kindly filled the pulpit instead, and it is with pleasure we announce that he has consented to speak for us again next Sunday morning. Prayer meeting and Sunday school will be held at the usual hours, all joining in the union evening service on the courthouse lawn.

Life of today. At enormous cost, pictures were taken, and the scenes represented in Bible lands are reproduced exactly from life as the films were made in Palestine. There will be exhibitions of the pictures—shown after noon and evening. The tickets for admission will be one cent. It is suggested that either the gospel of Mark or the gospel of Luke be read through before seeing the pictures as a fresh reading of the wonderful life of the man who is transforming himself into a man who is making the movies intensely realistic. The sale of the tickets will be under the direction of Francis Jones.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church.
(Rev. Floyd Blessing, Pastor.)
Sunday school at 10 o'clock. Services at 11 o'clock. The subject will be "Sowing and Reaping," Gal. vi, 7. As the ages have passed we have learned that there is an analogy in the laws of the natural world and the spiritual world. If a man sows good seed in his natural garden, he will have a good harvest. Likewise, if he sows good thoughts in his spiritual garden, he will reap a good harvest. Thus do the laws of the natural world and the spiritual world reveal a similarity.

DEATH OF REV. KUHN.
Atchison, Kas., Globe: After a short illness of a serious nature, Rev. Josiah Kuhn, a retired Lutheran minister, died last night at his home at 1302 South Third street. Being of an affable disposition, and at the same time an earnest man, his sudden demise was a shock in Midland college and English Lutheran circles. Although he had suffered from nephritis for thirteen or more years, his condition did not become alarming until Sunday night. All day yesterday he suffered intensely, and death came about 7:30 o'clock last night. He was 58 years of age, and is survived by his wife and three grown children, Rozelle, Esther and Leola. The funeral services will be conducted in St. Mark's Lutheran church Wednesday afternoon at 2:30, by Dr. R. B. Peery, president of Midland college.

Presbyterian Church.
(Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.)
"Showers of Blessing," will be the subject of the sermon at the Presbyterian church next Sabbath morning. In the evening, the congregation will unite in the union meeting on the courthouse lawn at 7 o'clock. The Sunday school meets at 12 o'clock, following the morning service. The young people of the church meet at 8 p. m. The church and Sunday school picnic was held last Thursday in Bressler's grove. The day was ideal and a good time was reported by all. There will be no more preaching services until August 25, as the pastor will be away on his vacation.

HON. NELSON S. DARLING.

HON. NELSON S. DARLING, the business man orator, will tell Chautauque patrons of the extent to which they depend upon each other in the business of a community. He is a big factor in the business world and talks from experience rather than theory. Business people should hear him. Buyers of merchandise will get much valuable information—He tells into the pocketbook and his hand. His services are eagerly sought by big commercial conventions, and his speaking to Chautauque means much. It is worth real money to see Darling.

REMARKABLE CURE OF DYSENTERY.

"I was attacked with dysentery about July 15, and used the doctor's medicine and other remedies with no relief, only getting worse all the time. I was unable to do anything, and my weight dropped from 145 to 125 pounds. I suffered for about two months, when I was advised to use Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I used two bottles of it and it gave me complete relief," writes B. W. Hill of Snow Hill, N. C. For sale by all dealers.—Ad.

Prophets, the Witch-Finder.
Though some people still believe in witches, there is no longer any use for the witch finder. Engagements of early generations gave this person abundant employment, sometimes fetching the real expert enormous distances to cleanse an afflicted town. In 1649, for instance, the magistrates of Newcastle sent into Scotland for one who could find witches, agreeing to pay 20 shillings ($1.50) a head for all that he convicted. His particular method consisted in pricking the suspect with pins, and fifteen old women were duly executed as the result of his work. The most notorious of which Andrew, one Hopkins, was finally executed a year and a half after trial by one of the more painful of his own many cleverly devised tests.

For the longest sentence to record we must go to the French. In "Les Miserables" Victor Hugo has one sentence that runs through a hundred lines, and earlier in the book, in one of the chapters descriptive of Waterloo, there are over fifty lines without a full stop. English records read under official patronage, for it would appear to be the seventh section of the foreign edictment act, which does not stop until it has very nearly reached its six hundredth word.—London Chronicle.

Elizabeth's "Excellent Wash."
Good Queen Elizabeth did not die and had to have it. Wherever she went there the mad to go also—strong ale. Great were the trials of her host, the Earl of Leicester, as expressed in a letter from Hatfield to Lord Burleigh: "There was not one drop of good drink for her here. We were fain to send her to London and Kenilworth and divers other places where she was. Her own beer was so strong as there was no man able to drink it." And one quart of this "excellent wash" of good strong ale for breakfast. We are told, pit the queen in good spirits for the start of the day's work.—London Chronicle.

FOUND ITS GOLDEN HEAD.

Riddle of a Marble Column in Italy Read by a Beggar.

Near the monastery of San Vito, in the province of Udine, Italy, had been erected by an eccentric Frenchman about the beginning of the last century. On it were written in French the following enigmatic words: "On May 1 every year I have a golden head." The inscription sorely puzzled the inhabitants of Naples. On May 1 the year after the erection of the column a great crowd came to it in the hope of finding the top covered with gold pieces. Needless to say, they went home with their pockets as empty as when they were when they came. For several years people came to the promised wonder and went away disappointed. At last the authorities had the column taken down in the belief that treasure would be found beneath it. Nothing but earth was found, and so the column was set up again. Obviously the words had a mystic meaning, but no one was clever enough to guess it, and for years the riddle remained unsolved. Finally in 1841 a ragged beggar named Anacleto Tosti noticed the inscription. He stood looking at it for a long time, while his companions remained silent. Then suddenly the solution of the puzzle flashed into his mind. He waited patiently until May 1 before he tested the accuracy of his interpretation of the mystic words. On the day mentioned in the inscription Tosti, bearing a pick and shovel, went out at daybreak for the column. He arrived before any chance visitors, and as soon as the monastery's bells tolled 6 he started digging in the ground covered by the shadow of the top of the column. He had not dug long before he came on a sacred tablet containing 50,000 francs. The inscription was a riddle—the head of the column was the golden treasure every year on May 1. Anacleto Tosti, the beggar whose sharp guess had given him comparative wealth, became a landowner near Mantua. He died in the year of his forty-four. Youth's Companion.

EXTRACTS FROM THE HERALD EXCHANGES

The Burlington railroad proposes to build a line next year from Omaha to Fremont. Why not also built from Omaha to Belden via Wayne? Omaha merchants have adopted a rule to close their stores at 6 o'clock Saturday evenings. Between 3,000 and 4,000 employes are thus relieved.

SUNDAY'S ELEMENTS ARE BLISTERING HOT

According to William Welch who keeps close watch of weather conditions, Sunday was one of the hottest days of the year in Wayne, Tuesday, July 8, when the mercury went up to 108, was one degree hotter than Sunday, when 107 degrees were registered. Such record was indicated about 3 o'clock, and then the mercury began to descend. The night was cool and comfortable, followed by cooler weather Monday.

Monday's Norfolk Daily News: Nebraska and the west sweltered yesterday under record-breaking temperatures. In Norfolk the thermometer rose to 104, which is the highest since 1904, when it went to 105. These are official government figures. Reports from other north Nebraska towns indicate that the heat wave was well spread.

NEARLY A THOUSAND WITNESS BALL GAMES

Wayne's ball park was taxed to its full capacity last Sunday to take care of the large crowd gathered to witness the two ball games played on that day. It is estimated that 1,000 were present. The first game was to have been a word exhibition of the national pastime, and the second contest one of the worst played games ever staged on Wayne diamond. A special train of 500 cars was packed with spectators to the "fair" from different towns on the branch line, the greater part of them coming from Bloomfield and Randolph.

On the Omaha grain market Friday corn closed around sixty-eight to sixty-nine cents and about one-half cent and one-half cent higher this morning, finishing another cent before the close of the day. The advance, which was held all through the session, was brought about by reports from Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and Nebraska that there was an upward trend in the crop.

START EARLY Talk Number 1 on the CHAUTAUQUA

THIS Chautauqua that you are to have here this summer is a new kind of Chautauqua. What interest have you in Greek mythology?

None. But you ARE interested in the business and social life of 1913—in the vital issues that affect your well-being today—and will affect it tomorrow.

And you need the inspiration of music that stirs every note of enthusiasm in you and that puts a new incentive into the work of every day.

Then you will like this Chautauqua built on vastly new lines for the man fighting TODAY'S struggles and facing TOMORROW'S.

It is a grand, splendid program. You will be timid about getting into the Chautauqua habit the first day. The last night, you'll be clamoring for seats and wishing there were more Chautauqua days to come.

Get started on the opening day and you'll be glad to have missed none of it.

W. After, loaded abstracter, Wayne, superior to fancy work. There can be no greater saddle or more provoking experience in the course of all human events, according to an Atchison young man, than one is up against a pig. He will be willing to pay for anything on a diamond engagement ring for the next eight months, although the girl he bought it for has already broken her engagement to him and has already landed another real steady. The most shocking part of the blow is the fact that the young lady did not return the ring when she gave the young man the grand bounce.

Once upon a time a Gay Grad thrust his diploma in his Norfolk and went forth to Accept a Situation. He was saturated with knowledge and full of High Purpose, and the process of wrestling a living and other ornaments from the Big-World looked like a pipe. He flashed the uncashed check on several employers of High Finance and told the Main Gazabos a little of what he knew. He had been well schooled and knew a little of everything. But he was disappointed in not being told to name his own figures. He drew several polite refusals before a situation. Finally, when his family finances had reached a point which made him regard a three-cent sign and his frat pals as a means of a meal ticket, he abandoned the situation and took a job, consulting him. With the thought that all the Big Boys began at the bottom and Worked Up. Moral: You can read the forego sign again and tell why they call it a pre-employment sign.

CAN HOG CHOLERA BE PREVENTED?

Successful Farming. The serum inoculation for cholera was given a very careful test in Clinton county, Iowa, and observations taken in seventy-seven herds. Records were kept of herds given the single and double treatment, both by local and outside veterinarians. The agricultural adviser of that county sums up the matter in the following words: 1. Where good serum is used by a competent veterinarian, the serum treatment is very valuable as a preventive of hog cholera. 2. If disease appears in the herd, the double treatment is more effective than the single treatment. 3. With the likelihood of getting good serum as uncertain as it is, one runs considerable risk in having the double treatment given as a preventive where no disease is apparent in the herd. 4. If the double treatment is given as a preventive, it should be only by a local veterinarian who is known to have had uniform success with his work and who has a local reputation as a stalker. If any treatment is to be given, it is safer to employ a local veterinarian who has a reputation at least than to secure the services of a stranger, no matter how highly recommended the outsider may come.

FACT—LOCAL EVIDENCE

Evidence that can be verified. Fact is what we want. Opinion is not enough. Opinions differ. Here is a Wayne fact: You see Don't it? Mrs. D. S. McVicker, Wayne, Neb., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills a few years ago, when I was suffering from dull pain across the small of my back and a burning-down feeling in my joints. This remedy cured me and at that time I publicly told of my experience. I am now willing to confirm my former statement."

A mountain lake or river. After people get over rough mountain roads for fifty miles, sleep on pine boughs and are peppered by mosquitoes for a few weeks they feel such a sense of relief when they get home again that a few weeks of camping out in the coast states are reminded by the growing habit of taking vacations in this country. In every walk of life we find an increasing number of people who think they can't get through the year comfortably without a few weeks off for rest and recreation. Whether the vacation is more than a week or not, they are usually glad to get back to the accustomed grind.

Time to Fire Him. A taxicab driver attempting to cross Madison avenue near Madison Square Garden while the engine was playing there ran directly into the rear end of one of the Barbuca & Bellows' taxicabs. The big animal was not half as much jarred as the machine, but showed the displeasure by sitting down on the engine and front wheels into a mass of wreckage.

AN ELEPHANT WAS ON THE HOOD - The machine was dragged to the garage and the taxicab driver was called on the carpet by the superintendent. "How did this accident occur?" he demanded. "An elephant sat on the hood," explained the chauffeur. "An elephant sat on the hood, did he?" repeated the superintendent. "Surely, I've known that you've been driving heavy cars for the past three weeks, but I didn't think you were doing that kind of a thing. You let an elephant sit on the hood, did he? Well, you're dead!" - New York World.

Your Ideal. Have we not all amid life's petty strife some rare ideal of noble life? That once seemed possible? Did we not then hear himself say: The fatter it is this daily and for me. And just within our reach? It was, and we look it in this daily and for me. And now live in a vague regret. But still our life is a regret. And it will wait.

An Editorial for Chautauqua Patrons.

What One Paper in a Chautauqua Town Said Last Year is Good This.

One newspaper in a Nebraska Chautauqua town published a first-page editorial just before the opening of the Chautauqua last year that was as good if it is given here. The paper was the Winfield Times and here is the editorial, as written by Editor Dudgeon:

You ever see a straight-laced, stiff-backed fellow settle down in his chair at a public entertainment, with an expression on his face of "Make me laugh if you can!"

Such a person will not get his money's worth no matter how good the performance. He goes with a determination not to be pleased and shows the whole audience that he is not willing to do his own part. An audience of such persons will "kill" the best program ever put on the boards.

Public entertainers are human and appreciate sympathy and co-operation. Give them an indication that you appreciate their work and they will spare no effort to please you. The audience has fully as great a responsibility in the success of a production as the person before the footlights, with perhaps the greater advantage.

Just think of this next week at the Chautauqua, and when an entertainer appears on the platform, unbend enough to give him a hearty ovation; fumble up enough to give him a few generous hand-claps and note the marvellous effect, not only upon the entertainer but upon yourself. Give the person or company before you to understand that you are pleased to see him and will appreciate his effort and you will get the best he has. Be generous in your applause stimulate it with your applause. It will oftentimes work wonders. After the program is ended don't hesitate to go forward and tell the participants how you enjoyed it. It will be to them like hot biscuits and honey and the evidence of their appreciation will repay you.

Let's send these people away with a warm spot in their hearts for our town, so that they will be glad of a chance to return here will commend us to those who follow. Let's fire them with enthusiasm that will cause them to speak of this place in glowing terms as they go from town to town during the summer. Let's give as well as receive and in giving get our money's worth with a little profit.

100 Acres In Western New York

on a well Improved, Fertile farm MEANS Comfort and content'm't.

What Can A Man Do On 100 Acres?

The answer to that question depends on the man and the land, doesn't it? There are men who would starve to death on 100 acres of good soil and others who can make a fortune on five acres. How are you going to answer the question?

When you go hunting or fishing, you usually go where there is the most game; where you are most sure to "bring home the bacon"; as Jack Johnson once told his mother. If you don't know the best place yourself, you ask some successful hunter or fisherman. Well, when you are looking for a farm, ask Uncle Samuel; he knows. Here is what he says 100 acres will do in an average of ten years in New York State, quoted from the 1911 Year Book, the last one published.

Table with 2 columns: Crop/Quantity and Value. Includes rows for 29 acres corn at 31.0 bushels, 20 acres oats at 31.3 bushels, 20 acres wheat at 17.4 bushels, 40 acres hay at 1.22 tons, 100 acres, 190 acres, etc.

Illinois is a pretty good state, but just compare the following table of production and returns, and see if you can deny that the Empire State has it "over her like a tent."

Table with 2 columns: Crop/Quantity and Value. Includes rows for 20 acres of corn at 34.5 bushels, 20 acres of oats at 31.2 bushels, 20 acres of wheat at 17.4 bushels, 40 acres of hay at 1.25 tons, 100 acres, etc.

Observe the difference between New York and Illinois in the average return per acre - $9.57. This return on 100 acres represents the same profit to you as though you clipped the last crop coupons on $100,000 worth of United States Gold Bonds. Yet Illinois farms are selling for almost double those in New York.

When you talk about corn, oats, wheat and hay, Iowa will clamor for consideration. She deserves it, too, but see what her sons can do on 100 acres.

Table with 2 columns: Crop/Quantity and Value. Includes rows for 30 acres of corn at 35.2 bushels, 30 acres of oats at 29.5 bushels, 30 acres of wheat at 17.4 bushels, 40 acres of hay at 1.25 tons, 100 acres, etc.

Look at the difference here between New York and Iowa - $5.42 per acre. Enough on 100 acres to buy you a fine team of horses.

But what about Nebraska? She must not be overlooked for she is a wealthy farming state with high priced land, yet see what this farm will return you in cash in Nebraska. 30 acres of corn at 27.4 bushels, 30 acres of oats at 20.4 bushels, 30 acres of wheat at 17.5 bushels, 40 acres of hay at 1.55 tons.

See the big difference between New York and Nebraska - $6.52 per acre. The total is enough to buy you a Ford runabout.

Are't you surprised? Do you wonder that western men are enthusiastic over New York? These figures are taken from a reliable and unbiased source. Are they not enough to make you gasp and take action?

We began this story by talking of fishing, but there is nothing fishy about these figures. They are all taken from the Year Book of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for 1911 and, if there is any doubt in your mind as to their accuracy, we cheerfully invite your inspection of this report.

If you take into consideration the fact that nearly every New York farm has an orchard, you will find a still more marked difference in the total figures given above. Let us reduce the hay, grain and pasture to 100 acres of orchard. It ought to average you a return of $200 per acre every year in New York. It might do that well six years out of ten in Iowa and Nebraska, and possibly five-out-of-ten in Nebraska. Fruit is practically a certain crop in New York, but is by no means certain in the other three states.

But don't take these figures for granted. Come down and see for yourself what the conditions are here, and, if you will do that, your doubts will all take wings and fly away.

Mr. Clay was visiting Fort Hill, the Calhoun home, and during a breakfast he and Mr. Calhoun as usual began a heated argument on one of the points which they did not agree upon. DR. LUTGEN, PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. CALLS ANSWERED DAY OR NIGHT.

George O. Van Camp, district manager of the Prime of Life Insurance association of Omaha, Neb., has been in Wayne the past week arranging for a local representative. Mr. F. H. Bushoff, an experienced insurance man, has accepted the agency.

"The policy written by the Prime of Life association," said Mr. Van Camp, "is essentially different from the usual old standard policy, in that it is a slight insurance with a minimum amount for the expense of doing business. We write a contract policy with a stipulated premium that cannot be raised, with no membership fees, examination fees, lodge dues, or assessments charged the policy holder who may be of either sex, between the ages of sixteen and fifty."

"We believe that most people would prefer to leave property and a reputation for success behind them," he continued, "rather than a mere insurance policy, and with that in view, we do not demand that every policy holder invest from thirty to forty dollars for insurance."

"The Prime of Life association writes but two policies, whole life and fifty-year terminating insurance. One can carry $30,000 whole life and $20,000 terminating insurance in the Prime of Life at about the rate it would cost for $3,000 old line insurance," Mr. Van Camp stated.

Mr. Van Camp laid the responsibility of the high car insurance to the high death rate after the age of fifty. He declared that the Prime of Life association can write a policy terminating at that age at about one-half the ordinary rate, thus giving protection during the time when one is in need of all their spare money in their business, or if men with families, while their children are dependent or attending school, or until their business becomes established.

The fire was discovered about fifteen minutes after leaving Norfolk. After desperate efforts, the car was unloaded from the engine and isolated on the track. CONFECTIONERY.
Centurie Art Vain a Part of the Art of the Apothecary.

Curiously enough, the making of confectionery originated in a way which the apothecaries about 200 years ago. It was then that sugar was first imported into England, and it was then that confectionery began to be made.

For a long time the apothecaries used the newly imported sugar as a means of mitigating the bitterness of their doses. In other words, they mixed their drugs with it and therein lay the origin of many of the sweets and medicated candies of the ancients of our tough drops and lozenges. The cost of sugar was far too high, and most people were far too poor to permit of its being eaten for its own sake alone and as a mere luxury.

It was only a couple of centuries ago that there began to appear a new phase of the apothecary's art. Confectionery began to be made more or less apart from any medicinal purpose and because people liked them, and eventually the confectioner's business became quite distinct from that of the apothecary.

Although the confectioner's trade may be said to be about 200 years old, it is not only within the past century or so that it has become a real and extensive industry. At first sugar was heavily taxed, and the confectioner's trade was pursued upon very elementary principles.

For a long time everything was done by hand. Implements were of the very simplest—candy kettles heated on small fires, pestles and mortars, and rolling pins and cutters, etc. The output was very small, and comparatively speaking, sweets of all sorts were expensive and frequently unobtainable.

All this has been changed, and now, thanks to the most improved machinery, sweets are made in great quantities, the most delicate and attractive sweets. Muscles have been superseded by engines, pestles and mortars and rolling pins and cutters have given place to revolving pans and steam pans, and mechanism for beating and kneading and mixing, for cutting and slicing and stamping, for rolling and grating and stamping, for crushing ice and freezing cream and other processes.

While many of the best and most attractive candies are still very largely made by hand processes, by far the greater mass of sweets is produced by machinery.—Harper's Weekly.

Dickering For Talent.
"My wife has adopted a scheme used by these baseball managers."

"How now?"
"She is carrying on negotiations with one of our ball players, Mrs. Winifred."

"About what?"
"My wife wants to trade our trousers for a couple of brownies for Mr. Wombat's star cook, but Mrs. Wombat wants a bonus."—Pittsburgh Post.

THE STROLLERS MALE QUARTETTE.

The opening feature of the Chautauque will be the Strollers Male Quartette, a male quartette that sings. There is said to be an abundance of action in their work to give it life and set, not all their work is characterized by the actual in it. They present one sketch which the picture illustrates, and further than that, their work is voice work. The Strollers Quartette is the same organization sent out four years ago and no change has been made in the personnel in that time.

Scouting the Clothes.
Mrs. Robinson had a new domestic named Agnes.

"Agnes," said the mistress, "did you put the clothes in soak?"
"Oh, did not," answered the girl.

"Why, certainly," was the reply.
"Very well, then," said Agnes.

"About two hours later Agnes presented herself to her mistress.
"Oh, her put the clothes in soak, miss," she said.

"What is his distinguishing feature?" asked the superintendent.
"A large Roman nose," she answered.
"Then he won't be good," emphatically exclaimed a policeman, "for a nose of that kind never turns up."—Pearson's Weekly.

Hard to Find.
"Don't get down in the mouth, old man," said the optimist. "Look on the bright side of things."

"I'm sorry," said the pessimist, "I've just filled the sufferer," but what, that is, is the bright side of a gumboot?—Philadelphia Ledger.
