GRANT S. MEARS GOES AFTER BOLD BURGLAR

Grant S. Mears does not often get up early mornings. Once occurred in the realm of dreams, he stays there until he feels like coming to and getting up, which he did not. But Tuesday morning, his habits of sleep were given a violent jolt. At 3 o'clock, when he was snoring at the rate of twenty knots an hour, he was aroused and informed that a burglar had entered the basement, and was carrying out stores of valuable provender. Stimulated by thought of losing six months' growing crops, he hurried into an adequate supply of clothes to issue forth for the fray and capture. During such preliminary operations, he recalled on the preparation he should make. Should he arm himself with his trusty gun? This suggestion led him to feel sorry for the burglar, and he decided to leave the burglary behind. As he reached the stairs and into the open, he picked up a carpet beater. He decided that no burglar of reputable bravery would expect him to repeat on the scene with a less dangerous implement of authority. And an accident in the outside opening in the basement with the intention of giving the burglar a swipe over the cranial anatomy with the carpet beater as he issued from the subterranean stockpiles with an armful of valuables. Finding the burglar in the basement, Mr. Mears found it closed, and going into it, found the interior stores undisturbed and intact. The burglar was wholly imaginary. Mr. Mears was soon again revolving in sleep which he proposed to make up for lost time.

THEODORE DOCKENDORF

Theodore Dockendorf, aged about 70 years, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. E. Sprague, in Wayne, Pa., Friday, November 7. He was born in Germany, October 29, 1838, and came to America at the age of 21. He was married to Miss Louisa Bullock of Lockport, Ill., in 1858. Of four sons and two daughters, three sons and one daughter survive him. He is buried at Sheldon, Mo., in 1885, and resided there until the death of his wife a few years ago. Since then, he has made his home with the family of his daughter, Mrs. C. E. Sprague. Funeral services were conducted at the German home Sunday afternoon by Rev. B. P. Richardson of the Baptist church, and the remains were taken to Sheldon, Mo., Monday for interment.

OBITUARY

(By the Pastor.) Mr. Dockendorf belonged to that class of immigrants who brought with them a rich and varied life which has enriched American life with many noble contributions. That sturdy manhood, rugged character, indomitable persistence was the type of man our country needs today. To such men we today owe a debt of profound gratitude for the pioneer, foundation work in the development of our new country. We today are enjoying the fruits of struggle, toil, sacrifice on the part of the fathers who came before us. There is something calling forth our strong admiration for such lives as this one which has just departed.

Mr. Dockendorf was a man of high ideals, very sympathetic, strong convictions and noble character. His life was heroic was written in the furrows of his brow. Manhood of sturdy work was revealed in his words and deeds. Naturally of a jovial disposition, he enjoyed a hearty laugh, and always greeted his friends in such a way that one believed he meant what he said. 'Til' until a short time of his going, his hearty greetings, characteristic of his life, were a tonic to others, as they were a tonic to him. He died of the result of his suffering was concealed from others, because he looked on the bright side of things. He knew his time had come some days before his call came.

For long some of the friends that were his friends would be gone, and he would then go. Having lived to a ripe old age, his letting go of life was as natural and gradual as the loosening and falling of the leaves in autumn. His genial and kindly presence will be missed by many. His influence, through the lives of those left behind who knew him well will live on and on, and though he be dead, yet shall he speak and live in the lives of others.

IMPERSONATION OF FACULTY AT CHAPEL

NOTABLE EVENT AT NORMAL Policy at Wayne Adopted by State Board for Other Normals—Other State—Normal Notes. Last Friday morning at "convention," the members of the faculty of the colleges and colleges of the normal, and the faculty carried out the usual order of business by impersonating the various members of the faculty. Harold Weber made a most excellent president of the normal, and the faculty advice he delivered was most timely and well-should, if properly heeded, be reflected in their general conduct; Conrad Johnson uttered gems of wisdom reminding some of the educational theories of Dean Hiram Crosby. The normal was happy in his "take-off" of Dr. House; and in the matter of leading the singing Professor Coleman was there in a delightful impersonation by J. E. Beach. It is said that the lady-members of the faculty were especially pleased by the array of youth and beauty that represented them. The performance was arranged without any definite plan or practice, but it was successfully done, and will make Friday, November 7, a memorable chapel event of this school year.

The resolution adopted by the board of education relating to the duties of the president and registrars of the various normal schools of the state will require little, if any, change in the management of affairs at Wayne. While there has been a uniformity in the varied office matters in the different schools, the duties of registrars have varied quite materially in each of the four institutions. At Kearney, the work of the registrar has been entirely with registration and grade records. The handling of the institution cash and the keeping of the appropriate fund-records had the personal attention of the president. The intent of the resolution adopted at the last meeting of the board was to free the president, as far as possible, from minor details of office management, and to allow him to give more time and attention to educational matters, virtually the same policy that has been pursued at Wayne since the organization of the school.

An enjoyable event of the meeting held at Omaha last week was the 6 o'clock dinner at the Carlton hotel by the alumni and other friends of the Wayne State Normal school. Among the prominent school graduates who were present were: Deputy State Superintendent R. I. Elliott, Lincoln; Supt. F. E. Bicknell, St. Edward; Supt. A. M. Vance, Emerson; Supt. Mattie A. Switzer, Wayne; Supt. J. H. Welch, West Point; Supt. J. H. Welch, Stanton; Supt. E. O. Blackstone, Battle Creek; Supt. C. L. Wright, Boomer; Supt. J. H. Kemp, Wayne; Supt. H. C. Leavenworth, Dakota City; Supt. Fred Fisher, Lincoln; County Superintendent A. L. Burnham of Stanton, Elsie Littell of Wayne, Fred S. Leora of Plattine, J. M. Matson of Dodge, and A. P. Dugger of Katonka.

The game of football will believe college on the home field next Friday afternoon will be the big game of the season. The school greatly appreciates the action of the business men of the town in their agreement to close all places of business from 3 to 5 o'clock on the afternoon of November 14. Five members of the Normal team live in Wayne, and a great attendance from town will be a great encouragement to the boys when they meet the strongest team from Omaha next Friday.

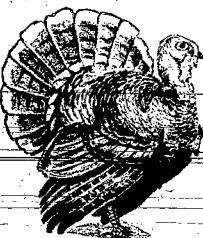

The number of advanced electives in the normal is increasing every year. Four members of the senior class are preparing along electric lines in order to enter as juniors in the University of Nebraska. They are Misses Tracy Kohl, Harold Weber, and Herbert Welch.

Plans for the issuance of a senior annual have now been completed, and the senior class met on Thursday evening of last week and elected the following to constitute the editorial staff: Editor-in-Chief, Harold Weber; associate editor, Gladys Kling; business manager, Tracy Kohl.

The debating club met last Monday evening and discussed the Mexican situation. At the next meeting, the question for discussion is resolved. That the president of the United States should be elected for six years, and should be ineligible for reelection.

The October issue of the Goldenrod has just been received. It is a very excellent number, and Miss Schomel, the editor-in-chief, and the other members of the staff, are to be congratulated in their efforts to make this publication a live school paper.

Olga E. Hickman, class of 1913, and present principal of the Normal school, has been made happy by the completion of a fine high school building.

THOMAS QUILTS HEAD OF KEARNEY NORMAL

Kearney, Nov. 12.—Dr. A. O. Thomas resigned his position as head of the state normal school in this city yesterday, giving the same by telephone to President Viels of the state board. The announcement was made to the students by Dr. Thomas yesterday afternoon, with the request that they attend to their studies as if nothing had happened, and that they should act as would best serve the future of the school.

At a mass meeting held by the students a letter of regret was adopted for presentation to President Thomas. The action of Dr. Thomas was commended by the citizens' committee who were fighting in his behalf, and at the directors' request they will drop the matter. It is anticipated, however, that other action will be taken within a few days. Dean M. B. Snodgrass has been named acting president, and will have charge of the school until orders are received by the state board.

Thomas Resigns Public

Dr. Thomas said last night that he had nothing in view for the present but to give up his position. He would not have taken the time for himself before going into any other position. The two reasons Dr. Thomas gives for staying in his position at the school until this time are: First, to give the state board information relative to his future plans for the school, and to be present at the time of checking up the books. Second, because he wanted a hearing before the board.

BAZAR IN WAYNE

The Ladies' Aid society of the Presbyterian church are planning to hold a bazaar on December 5 and 6 in the old postoffice building adjoining the office of the Herald Publishing company. A large assortment of useful articles will be offered for sale. Full announcement will be made later.

Wayne with its church steeples towering heavenward, broad streets, new depot, State Normal, and shade trees, is destined last but not least, to be the metropolis of northeast Nebraska. Farmers come to our town to trade within a radius of twenty miles, when there is a cabbage car on track selling at two dollars fifty cents per hundred. That's what brings them to Wayne.

Our cabbage is strictly pure and wholesome. Come to the car and buy now, while you have an opportunity to buy at two and one-half cents per pound. After we leave, you'll pay five cents.

EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION

To our christian brethren and many friends who came so graciously to our assistance in 700 hour of need, during the siege of typhoid with which my children and myself were seized, seven of us in all, and though small and feeble—these few words may seem as a means of expressing to you, one and all, our gratitude for the way you displayed your whole-souled brotherliness and friendship to us, yet we can say this: that we owe our recovery and return to health and strength not only to the watchfulness and care from physician, nurses, and wife and mother, but to your prayers, generosity and watchfulness of our every need, and we can only say in the words of our Lord: "Inasmuch as ye did unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye did it unto me." And may ye richly reward you all. Sincerely your friends, Mr. and Mrs. C. Chase and family.

Our cabbage is strictly pure and wholesome. Come to the car and buy now, while you have an opportunity to buy at two and one-half cents per pound. After we leave, you'll pay five cents.

The Herald is pleased to see Wayne men handling their own evangelistic meetings. No imported evangelists have shown the ability possessed by local pastors, and any money devoted to evangelistic service ought to go to the latter, who, if like the best of us, did it, and could use it advantage.

If congress would dispose of its business and adjourn, it would materially help the country. It is not so much that congress actually does as the reality of what it will do that disturbs business. It ought to know enough to get through and quit. The country is taxed to support an institution that congress—this phrase—keeps until it does more harm than good.

The London Times suggests prayer as a means of preventing extreme measures of dress by women. The Times declares that the average woman keeps on decreasing the quantity of their wearing apparel, and proposes to react to prayer to avert what it counts as an approaching calamity. Personally, I do not believe that prayer will regulate women's fashions. We shall devote our prayers to other and more important subjects than things people wear. Women can dress as they like, so long as they do not dress as if they were in the forest and do not dress in a manner that is not proper for the department will not exercise one way or the other.

A married woman often forgets that a successful partnership requires the same careful and economical management of home affairs on her part as demands in the handling of the details of the revenue-earning business on that of the breadwinner. She should be cooperative in the matter of avoiding waste and curtailing expenses. As a man in business may exceed in loss through careless management all his wife's, so the latter, heedless of her duties from day to day, in her buying and saving in using—may nullify results of careful management on the part of the source of income. To do exact justice, a successful man must share credit with his wife, no less than a farmer, a merchant, or a manufacturer. A man may succeed in spite of his wife's management at home, or a woman may prosper in her business in spite of her husband's mismanagement at home.

Rosary Prices

If it is a pity that any religious goods should be made the occasion of taking too much money from trusting people, but so it is with rosaries. Nothing is worse. As much as $5 is taken for rosaries worth $2.

What does it mean to be worth $2? It means that the cost of the thing, including fair pay for selling it, is $2.

We sell rosaries so. The Vatti rosary, worth $2, we sell for $2, and if the buyer is not entirely satisfied with it, we return the money in full. And we keep it in perfect order for 20 years.

...the duties of the partnership. But the... which both sides give strict attention to their respective duties—the man not required to give his energy in managing the details of home affairs, and the woman not content to devote thought to devising ways to increase earnings. Often, the energy each is compelled to use in the other's business would, if properly directed or invested, produce success for anyone, but it is not so efficient as the man for that purpose. He is to do so to the best of his ability, and the way to remedy it is to get down to brass tacks, get at the facts, to some thinking, learn the course that ought to be followed, and follow it. THE AERONAUTS How a Girl Went Up in the Air and How She Came Down

By MARION ATWATER

"By the love, Mrs. Grosvenor," said Mrs. Edgingham, "your nephew, Jack Kenworthy, comes to your home—does he not?"

"In a week from today," "How nice to be coming of age and into a splendid property at the same time!"

"Jack will not enjoy his inheritance long."

"Not enjoy it long? Why, what do you mean?"

"Jack, like other wealthy young men, has been incoined with the aviation fever. For the past year he has been thinking of nothing else. He has made a number of trips and learned all about aeroplanes and how to fly them. He has ordered one himself and says that he has been produced to make for him. It is finished, and he is only waiting for his estate to be turned over to him to get ready to start."

"Has no one any influence over him to show that death is the inevitable end to his flights if he persists in them?"

"I am his only living relative. I have pleaded this in vain to dissuade him, to study a profession, to induce him to live rather than to take measures for death. I have not persuaded him. If mother were here, she would not think that you could set him married his wife might accomplish that in which you have failed."

"I've thought of that, but Jack is not a ladies' man at all. He won't consent to any introduction into a woman's life, he won't have a woman in his house. Several women who have got the aviation craze have begged me to intercede with Jack to take them for a ride in the air. I have refused them. Do you suppose he says to me, 'I'm going to take up a woman to lose his mind at the slightest sign of a woman's presence and land me a mass of pulp on the earth hundreds of feet high?' Not me."

"Does he take men up with him?"

"Only such as he is sure will not get hurt."

With Edgingham, aged nineteen, was sitting on a window seat concealed by curtains, with a novel on her lap, listening to this dialogue. She had caught the gist of the conversation and was glad to see that Miss Edgingham, who was sitting in the air, was not interested in this Mr. Kenworthy, who skinned about in the air at the risk of his life, who disliked girls and who was not to be seen in a woman's house. There he was a combination better calculated to impress a girl in her teens than when we consider that Miss Edgingham was destined to be married to him. The clouds herself have conditions that are likely to produce results.

"Good gracious, Edith, what do you think of that?" said Mrs. Grosvenor, who had been sitting in the window seat.

"I was sitting in the window seat when you and his aunt were talking about him and heard all that was said."

"I don't care to do that when he won't take a girl up with him?"

"Why do you wish to see him?"

"For curiosity's sake."

Marion advised to get her entrance on a young man; her mother is not the person to be trusted.

In her way, Mrs. Grosvenor was in a hurry to dine with her nephew with her. Since she had brought him up on a box on Wednesdays had sufficient influence to induce him to accept of a young man, Mrs. Edgingham's suggestion, prompted by Edith, Mrs. Grosvenor told Jack that there were no other things that he should do but to get on with his flying. She said that she would be glad to see him when he came home, but that she would not be able to do so until she had seen him. She said that she would be glad to see him when he came home, but that she would not be able to do so until she had seen him.

A Scientific Experiment

With a View to Demonstrating the Nature of Love

By F. A. MITCHELL

Notwithstanding that every effort has been made to prevent a scientific investigation of the nature of love, its application, from being known to the public, it has leaked out and is producing a great deal of talk...

my into the problem... Various plans have suggested themselves for accomplishing our object... To change the impressions on Tom's mind from one who is dead to one who is still living...

"The other alternative is to find a woman not unlike his dead love, give an artist a likeness of both the dead and the living, have him paint a number of portraits showing a gradual transition of the features of the dead to those of the living and substitute these pictures, one after another, in place of the one through which you were looking..."

"Solved," exclaimed Mr. Higginbotham, grasping the scientist's hand gratefully... "Not so fast. You must remember that it is not a favor or favor that alone produces love; there are many idiosyncrasies that combine to fit each other..."

"We may at least make the experiment," "Yes, we may do that, and there is a reasonable expectation that if we are successful in effecting the substitution of physical features in your son's brain, you may feel in the other influences under the influence of another mental faculty..."

"The imagination," "Yes, let your son once be introduced to the pictures of whose features through the portraits have replaced on his brain those of the dead, and he will be so pleased that he will imagine the living woman as the woman which he admired in the dead..."

"Professor," exclaimed Mr. Higginbotham, "I have read of many scientific victories published to the world, but I never thought that I should be the humble instrument of drawing forth one of the most remarkable of them all..."

"You are showing the importance of one of the faculties I have mentioned," remarked the doctor coolly... "What one?"

"The imagination. No sooner do I suggest a method of procedure than you imagine the work to be accomplished. You may overcome the obstacles that are to be expected, but I fear you will not..."

"Let that be to me, I shall leave you alone undisturbed to accomplish my purpose. I shall proceed with all the care and conscientiousness that you scientists practice in your own experiments..."

Grasping Dr. Carrelton's hand and expressing in a few words the scientist's wish to join him, the enthusiastic Higginbotham took his departure...

It was not long after this that Albert Higginbotham, standing before the picture of his dead love, noticed a slight change. It being fresher looking than the picture he spoke to him...

"The picture is better than that which he had sought to please his son by calling in a picture cleaner to take the dirt off it. Occasionally the doctor Albert fancied he saw some change in his picture, but was not sure..."

During a year a dozen pictures were substituted. In the length little consisted of the features of the dead. Indeed, it was a portrait of Miss Anna Seawald, a living person...

Mr. Higginbotham, Sr., had found this young woman somewhat resembling his son's dead love after a long search. He had interested her in his plan concerning his son, and she had consented to lend herself for the experiment. But she did not consent if it were suggested to marry Albert...

She was well off in her own right and disposed to marry only for love. After her own portrait had taken the place of the one destroyed by former Higginbotham, one day when he was at home she called on his father ostensibly on a matter of business. Albert saw her as she passed out and was surprised with astonishment. Hastening to his father, he inquired who she was and, taking him to the supposed picture of the girl he had lost, exclaimed: "Can it be possible?"

"What there was some mistake that Edith lives." "No, my dear boy. This young lady is not Edith. She is Miss Seawald, a very ordinary girl, but she is Edith's sister. Where can I and her?"

"Do you wish to know her?" "Indeed, I do." "Indeed, well. We will have her to dinner." "Tomorrow?"

"Tomorrow if she is disposed." Dr. Carrelton thereafter received a visit from Mr. Higginbotham, who took the doctor in his arms in a bear hug and nearly crushed the life out of him.

"Success!" "Success?" "Yes, my son has seen the living woman, and she will also see him tomorrow. You must come to the wedding." "If it takes place?"

"It will take place, within a few weeks." Albert Higginbotham married Anna Seawald, and the match turned out to be a very happy one. They readily the first law by which the material constitution of love has been scientifically proved: "Persons who are in love with each other are making unforfeitable marriage should be encouraged to hope that their children's unions may be guided scientifically..."

Dealing With a Curate

In front of the Church house Mr. Thomas More had a garden and gate-house, and as there was a pleasant view from the summit of the gate-house, he used frequently to sit there, accompanied only by his dog. Here it was that he was found one afternoon by some wandering gnomes, who recognized that and saw the feeble old man doing...

"Leap, Tom, leap!" he cried, and at the same time tried to throw him over the battlements. More had but physical strength enough to resist, but he had the wit to say: "Let us first throw this little dog over."

The man immediately threw down the dog. "Pretty sport," said the lord chancellor. "Now, go down and bring him over on the top again."

While the tradesman went down for the dog More made fast the door behind him and so managed to hold the fort until deliverance came.

The Earth's Journey

Our world's journey in space is a long one. If we are to accept the conclusions of Dr. Turner, the university observatory of Oxford and Professor H. C. Plummer, royal astronomer of Ireland, recent astronomical work suggests that the sun and its planets travel a single unit in a vast system; the stars in which, though separated by immense distances, have a common center of gravity, and in response to gravitation all move in unison like a stupendous machine. The paths of these stars, instead of being straight circles, like those of the planets around the sun, are much like the oscillations of a pendulum. The calculations show that on the elongated course our sun must travel 400,000 years before completing a revolution and that it passed near the center less than a billion years ago. It is estimated that 300,000 years ago and is now on the outward stretch.

Bernay Barnato's Comedy

In the journal South Africa the late Sutton Vane, the dramatist, once told this story of Bernay Barnato: "He was the best amateur melodramatic actor I ever met. A little roughness in a diamond, but the fire is there. He played 'The Great Truth' in Victoria splendidly. I played 'Omnium' made the burlesque with him. In the great scene on the 'painted' Dr. Carrelton threw the doctor (Proflo) into the street. Mr. Barnato reacted vigorously. He seized me by my hand, which came off in his hand. He then addressed me with a few sentences. He shook his hat at me and then, with a quiet smile, threw the bump from the cabinet roof. Looked over, he exclaimed, 'I'll be here tomorrow. I have killed a professional! Tremendous round of applause from the audience.'"

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.

From the Wayne Gazette, December 11, 1885:
The Catholic church in Wayne near completion.
Died, at his home in this county, December 8, James Nelson.
Dick Hagella leaves for Sioux City to undergo a surgical operation.
The folks of the M. T. church celebrate holding a corn festival.
Dr. R. B. Crawford leaves with his family for Tennessee to spend the winter.
John Kuebel and Chris Nelson leave for a visit to their old home in Denmark.
Born, December 9, to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wallace, a son; December 3, to Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Chaffee, a son; December 9, to Mr. and Mrs. John B. Goehres, a daughter.

From the Wayne Herald, November 15, 1913:
Mrs. Nelson Grimsley returns from a visit at Denver.
Born, November 8, to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kuebler, a daughter.
Mrs. George L. Miner and Miss Lolo Cunningham become seriously ill as the result of ptomaine poisoning.
Dr. Huse of Wilkesbarre, Pa., is in Wayne looking for a location to engage in the practice of his profession.
The high school football team accompanied by Professor Bantz, go to West Point to play with the team of that place, and are defeated.
Dr. W. D. Hammond, veterinary surgeon, is severely cut and bruised about the face by being thrown by a horse while attempting to lasso some colts for S. B. Kravac.

From the Wayne Herald, December 1, 1914:
Born, November 23, to Mr. and Mrs. August Jacobson, a son; December 1, to Mr. and Mrs. James Luckey, a son; Mr. E. G. Gamble sells out his property at Bloomfield to Dr. M. S. Elliott of Grand City, S. D., and returns to Wayne to engage in practice.

Married, November 24, in Wayne, Mr. Ralph Taylor of Carroll, to Miss Emma O'Spennell of this place.
Died, November 29, Mrs. Astor Lerner, aged 40 years; November 23, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Miller.
Rev. Mr. Mantufel, pastor of the German church northeast of Wayne, leaves with his family for Wyoming to locate.
Wayne market: Wheat, 85 cents; corn, 30 cents; oats, 23 cents; barley, 24 cents; butter, 14 cents; eggs, 18 cents; hogs, 94; cattle, $4.75.

From Ponca Journal, November 10, 1913:
Judge Barres is this week holding his last term of court for this year, at St. Pierre, Wayne county.
William Wheeler, who came here some time since on a visit to his brother, the Rev. R. L. Wheeler, has accepted a position in the office of Treasurer Knapp, and will probably remain the greater part of the winter.
The thunder and lightning on Friday night made an uncommon display in that line for this time of the year.
Squire Barres says that thunder in the fall indicates that warm weather will shortly follow.
The sidewalks and cross walks in town have for the most part been made over, pine taking the place of cottonwood, and along several streets, ten feet wide instead of six. The streets have also been resurfaced and greatly improved, and now, for good looks and comfortable traveling, are in tip-top shape.

From Ponca Journal, November 25, 1913:
A reporter of the Chicago Inter Ocean, the first eastern paper to announce the discovery of oil at Ponca, is here investigating and writing up the coal and oil prospects of this vicinity. He will remain several days, and until the arrival of Professor Anghey.
The price of land in northern Nebraska has steadily advanced during the past year. Especially is this the case in Dixon and Wayne counties. In the Logan valley, good farming lands readily sell for double the price asked per acre last winter. Next year will have no equally as great an advance.
The tide of immigration which has set this way is increasing rapidly, and the demand for farms is every day growing greater.

In speaking of the suggestion of this paper relative to repealing the laws of the last legislature, the Wayne County Review says: "So say we, all of us—But don't stop at a few laws. Peter go the whole hog or none. Repeal the statutes of 1879 in toto, and let the lawmakers, if they can find anything worth preserving in the trash passed by the aforesaid 'convocation of blockheads,' re-enact it in intelligible English, unless they intend to make us did their predecessors, Bohemian and Choctaw the official languages of the state. Repeal the laws of 1879."

DECLARE WAR ON COLDS.

A crusade of education which aims "that common colds may become uncommon within the next generation" has been begun by prominent New York physicians. Here is a list of the "don'ts" which the doctors say will prevent the annual visitation of the cold:
"Don't sit in a drafty car."
"Don't sleep in hot rooms."
"Don't allow the fresh air."
"Don't stuff yourself at meal time."
Overeating reduces your resistance.
"Of which we would note when you take a cold get rid of it as quickly as possible. To accomplish that, you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy most excellent. Sold by all dealers. Ad.

S. Roberts, storm sewer 308.25 On motion license was granted to Henry Harnell to operate a shooting gallery in the building on E. 10th street, of the original town of Wayne, for the fiscal year ending May 6, 1914.

A petition by A. M. Heit and others praying for the formation of a sewer district comprising blocks 2 and 7 of the original town of Wayne, Nebraska, and blocks 2 and 15 of the original town of Wayne, Nebraska, and the construction of main and lateral sewers therein was read and ordered filed.

Ordinance No. 225, an ordinance creating a sewer district No. 2, was read the first time, and after such reading the same was passed and ordered published. On motion, the city engineer was ordered to survey and prepare plans, maps and specifications for sewer district No. 2, together with his estimate of the cost of constructing same. The mayor and city council of the city of Wayne hereby call upon the citizens of Wayne to cooperate in the work of keeping our streets and alleys clear of obstruction, and in a sanitary and slightly different from the fall and winter months now approaching.

Citizens are reminded that there is a city ordinance forbidding the throwing of ashes and other refuse in the streets and alleys, which ordinance has the usual penalties attached. There are also ordinances and provisions for securing the prompt removal of snow from sidewalks of property and the removal of winter refuse. However, the mayor will request that the desired results can better be secured by the cooperation of the citizens, and this cooperation is earnestly requested.

It is suggested that each party having ashes, or other refuse to dispose of provide suitable ash pits or other receptacles for receiving the same. It is also suggested that citizens contribute to the general maintenance and convenience of the public by keeping the sidewalks of their office and residence clean and free from obstructions. It is the purpose of the mayor and council to put forth their best efforts to secure the conditions contemplated by the city ordinance on the above matters.

bank of England salaries. To cover the services of the Bank of England a candidate must be nominated by a director, be of good moral character, pass a qualifying test competitive examination and be between eighteen and twenty-two years old. The first year his salary is $300, and then it rises at the rate of $1 a year. At the end of the first year he receives the fourth $100, and so on leaves the service of the bank. According to figures furnished by one of the bank's officials, the average pay at the end of ten years is $1100. At fifteen years it is $1300, twenty years $1545, thirty years $1847, after that time for clerks past to $2100. The staff and special posts, numbering about 100, are won by competitive service. The highest salary is paid the chief cashier and is $15,000. The chief accountant draws $12,500 and there are several appointments ranging from $1,500 to $3,500. Agents of branches receive up to $12,000. There is a pension system to which the clerk does not contribute, but for which he is qualified after ten years' service. - Moody's Magazine.

Didn't Wait For "Thank You." John Bull, the scene painter, tells a story of an occasion when he delivered some scenery for an entertainment in the city. He was very busy and his men getting the stuff in when it began to rain. A big man with a pleasant smile appeared and offered to help. They got on famously. Mr. Bull and his volunteer were just setting down the last load when an attendant arrived, caught the big man a tree, mopped the side of the head and sent him sprawling on his back. Mr. Bull was speechless with indignation at this attack, but the victim got up, smiling more than ever, and walked away. "You can thank your stars I've been watching you," the attendant explained. "I suppose when you had the last lot in you'd have said, 'Thank you; I'm much obliged.' Well, that's this fellow's trouble, sir. The moment you say, 'Thank you,' you'll wring your neck." - London Standard.

Placing the Goat. An anecdote of President Hayes is told by an "Englishman" who formed one of a party of his acquaintance to the president and his family were at Clark's ranch, near Yosemite. The two parties were assembled in the rustic kitchen awaiting the coming meal. A certain stiffness prevailed at first. At last a master of the ceremonies and introducer appeared in the shape of a small, round-eyed, round-faced man, by a family pet, which trotted into the kitchen to be caressed. A lady of the English party gently stroked its stem, the head of the stem. Presently the goat, about the center of the animal, and the interchange of a few remarks became inevitable. "This is a very pretty goat," from the English lady. "My end is antelope, madam," from the president. "I need scarcely be said that both ends were antelope, but the reply was very neat.

The Brave Soldier. Here is an incident out of King Solomon: One day a butterfly sat on the king's temple and boasted to his wife. "If I chose I could fly my wings and deliver this kingdom to the ground," he swaggered. Solomon, overhearing him for the hostler. "How dare you?" he thundered. The butterfly groveled, and said to certain my wife has pleaded. The great monarch was instantly appeased and let him go. "What did Solomon say to you?" gasped a soldier standing by. "He said, 'Oh, he begged me not to do it,' said the butterfly airily. And Solomon, again overhearing, smiled.
