How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; how can I avoid them unless they are named?" asks a housekeeper.

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that if the powder contains alum that fact must be there stated. If you find one of the ingredients named alum, or sulfate of aluminum, you have found an alum baking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.

Next week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the ladies of Wayne and vicinity are going to have an opportunity to select their furs from an fine assortment of furs, as in the package stores. Our fur house is going to send us a trunk of furs for a special sale for those three days, and if you will be the best opportunity you will have this season to buy your fur. You will make a substantial saving in price during this sale, because we are at little expense in handling furs this way.

If you are not ready to buy your fur, you can anyway and select them, and we will lay them aside and hold them for you until any time up to Christmas day.—Advert.

Former Governor Patrick Knott of Kentucky used to tell a story of a test case who appeared as a witness in a mountain murder trial where Knott was attorney. The mountain lawyer took the stand, chewing tobacco, and gave his name, his age and his place of residence. Then one of the lawyers asked him to describe his first meeting with a certain person who figured in the case.

"Well," drawled the native, "the first through-our-pace astraddle of a dun-colored critter a-blowin' of a fox hunt in 'horn and a-wentin' of a bearskin present, and he was hot weather."

The transit of Venus will take place next week Friday, a very important phenomenon for astronomers throughout the United States have been requested to pray next Sunday that Friday may be a clear day, so the transit can be seen. In this part of the country, judging the future by the past, the sky will be clear even if no prayer is offered for it.

From the Ponca Journal, December 1, 1882.

The late important discovery of the foot vein of coal here brings to mind the many former efforts which have been made in this place and vicinity to find a paying vein.

Over twenty years ago, a number of the first settlers, among whom may be mentioned the Strach brothers, made efforts to work the vein in the bluffs east of the river. This vein, which is about eight inches thick, is of a very inferior kind of coal, but in the absence of a better quality, was very well for fuel. Yet the vein is so thin that it will not pay to work it. This vein, though and some others discovered to work the vein by drifting into it, and at one time by sinking shaft with the view of striking coal farther back under the rocks, where it was expected it would be found thicker and of a better quality. The lack of success in finding any such improvement in the coal after considerable time and money had been expended caused the work to be abandoned.

On consulting with the noted geologists, Professors Aughey and Hayden, both of whom visited the place, the coal explorers were informed that the upper vein was not properly speaking, coal, although in the same strata it would become so after 300,000 years or thereabouts. It is safe to say that our explorers did not feel inclined to wait that length of time to make a paying coal business, and hence they concluded to engage in other pursuits which had a nearer profit.

But the lack of coal and the rapid disappearance of timber in this place, has since then often induced persons, notwithstanding the adverse verdict of Professors Aughey and Hayden, to try their hands at making a coal discovery among the bluffs. About five years ago, the celebrated Joseph Brewer, who had gained an immortal fame by discovering the pterossaurus, which afterwards was exhibited through an adjoining country by Father Martin, announced that he had struck a vein of coal in the bluffs. Immediately, an excited crowd went down to see what had been found. They found Mr. Brewer proceeding into the same old vein, which had been so far forgotten, about a year before. He had drifted in about twenty feet, and had found a thickness of from fifteen to twenty inches. What little he and his boys were enabled to get out at a ready rate at $5 per ton, but at $5 per ton, the miners could barely earn enough to keep kame at bay, and hence they too gave out, flung up the sponge, and retired from the coal business.

In the spring following, several other enthusiastic parties formed a company with intent to open a hole into the bluffs. Of the members of this company, the most conspicuous was Professor Vermeant, who claimed to be a geological scientist and expert of great renown. He having worked nearly all his life among coal. His labors had been, as we have here learned, of a practical nature, and he claimed to be a geologist, as his experience had been previously confined to handling a pick at $1.50 a day, in an old coal bank. But what he lacked in knowledge of geology, he more than made up in common sense. Professor Vermeant, who drifted from Professor Aughey and Hayden, and said the vein would grow thicker as it extended back under the bluff. Another of the company was Mr. Schlander, who resided in Sioux City, and who was an enthusiast on the subject of coal. The other members were Mr. Brown and the writer of this article. Hence, you see we had a company which was admirably adapted to the work in hand. Thus, Professor Vermeant furnished the science, although like scientific men often, he had no money. Mr. Schlander, in geological knowledge and experience, had no money, but he had plenty of muscle, and the writer hereof had neither money, experience nor muscle, but was enabled to go the windward of the enterprise, perhaps, than any other man in the country.

Accordingly, this company commenced work. They first leased from various parties, about 200 acres of land. Then Professor Vermeant, diligently examined to find a good place to commence, and then, with appropriate ceremonies, began on the same old vein to drift his way under the bluff. The Professor said Mr. Brown labored for weeks, and finally drifted in a thickness of about six inches, six feet high and six feet wide. As they penetrated, the layer of coal was found to slope at an angle of ten degrees to the southeast. In all that distance of 100 feet, they were never able to get under solid rock, nor did the vein become thicker and of better quality. Hence, it looked, after all, as though Professors Aughey and Hayden might be right, and Professor Vermeant was wrong.

After getting in 125 feet, the company took a new departure. It had been planned by Professor Aughey that at a depth of several hundred feet a good vein of coal would be found. The company, however, decided to drift down to it. In accordance with this plan, Professor Vermeant commenced at the end of the hole and drilled to the bottom of the vein. When his rope and cables had been run out, and his scientific labors were brought to a close, in going down the ninety-five feet, he struck three layers of coal respectively four, five and fourteen inches in thickness. Then, as before stated, he quit, and in consequence the best of our pillar in experience, but not in money, than when we commenced. And of all that company, the writer is the only one left to tell the tale.

Immediately after Mr. Bishop commenced to open the vein on his land, he and his men worked diligently, and drifted in over 100 feet. But, like Professor Vermeant, he found no improvement in the coal. He got out a substantial, however, which was sold for fuel. The sulphurous smell of it is representative of a certain noted locality, where sulphur is one of the principal productions and where most of it is used to carry on the work of the lead and silver smelters to burn out the ore before it is smelted. One day, while Mr. Bishop was laboring in this mine, the roof fell upon him and crushed him badly. Not fully recovered from the effects of this accident, he was several months before he could get around again. This incident, dampened his enthusiasm in the coal business, and he took part in the various explorations and investigations, who had gone before him.

Thus the coal business rested until the Ponca Coal and Mining company made a start about two years ago. And now, since the company have had triumphant success in their efforts, it will be safe to look over the many coal disappointments of former years. But it was no laughing matter at the time.

THE WEEK WITH THE CHURCHES.

German Evangelical Lutheran Church (Rev. R. Moehring, Pastor). Services and Sunday school in Wayne as usual next Sabbath.

St. Mary's Catholic Church. (Rev. William Kravus, Pastor). Mass in Wayne Sunday morning at 7:30. The Sunday school room will be the place of study.

First Baptist Church. (Rev. H. E. Ringard, Pastor). "What We Owe to Our Country," will be our subject Sunday morning. This will continue our discussion of the great beliefs of our faith. Many have spoken with appreciation of this series of sermons.

"The King Who Lost His Crown," will be the subject Sunday evening. There is no letter way to understand the power of an life, or the work of grace in a soul, than by studying individual characters. No man ever loses his crown except through sin.

Sunday is the beginning of our evangelistic campaign. This special effort will mean work, activity, and perhaps sacrifice on the part of our church people. We believe they are ready to follow Christ. The good we shall do will be measured by the spirit of devotion that we possess. There is a great need confronting us. There are enough of us to meet that need. Let all of us respond.

Tomorrow (Friday) afternoon, the Missionary society will meet at the home of Mrs. Arthur Norton. This evening, at 7:30, the union Thanksgiving service will be held at our church.

The missionary committee will have charge of the young people's meeting Sunday evening. It will be a study of the needs of the immigrants.

Last Sunday morning and evening, Brother Clarence Lutos preached at the Norfolk Baptist church. In the afternoon the pastor preached at the Wilbur school-house.

Back of some of the wisest people of the United States is published from week to week, names of people in its pages who, through long and hard work, recommended Doan's Kidney Pills for kidney lachache, weak kidneys, bladder troubles and urinary disorders. This mass of proof includes over 30,000 recommendations and is beyond question. Here is one of the Wayne cases: Mrs. Joseph Schmalstieg, (Wayne, Neb.), says: "I was troubled by a heavy dull ache through my kidneys and back, and I also had dizzy spells and weakness. The kidney sections were natural, and plainly showed that my kidneys needed attention. Doan's Kidney Pills drove away the pains in my back, and I feel up, my appetite is good, and whenever I have felt in need of a kidney medicine, I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills, and they have relieved me. It gives me pleasure to confirm the public statement I gave before, endorsing Doan's Kidney Pills."

NEBRASKA BOY TO OREGON PEN
PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 25.—Edward T. Ayres, a hanger of Dakota City, Neb., is sending his son, Edward Ayres, Jr., to Oregon to serve five years in the penitentiary, according to a telegram received by District Attorney Brantley today. Young Ayres came here three years ago and passed forged checks on several merchants. He was arrested and pleaded guilty. His father came to Portland, and pleaded before Circuit Judge Cavanaugh to take the boy home. The court, however, Young Ayres was sentenced to five years' imprisonment and paroled. A few days ago, Judge Cavanaugh was notified by the father that the son had again forged checks, and permission was asked to send him on a long cruise. This was refused and yesterday, the youth started for Oregon in custody.

MUST PAY CHURCH OBLIGATION
ORD, Neb., Nov. 25.—The second week of the November term of the district court closed with a trial of a jury case wherein the Methodist Episcopal church of Ord sued William W. Haskell for a $100 contribution promised to the building fund of the church and which he refused to pay. The jury held that on the strength of the oral agreement, the church and Haskell were contractually bound, and that he had no right arbitrarily to annul his obligations.

SERIES OF MUSICAL TREATS.
The Choral union of Wayne has planned a series of musical treats for the public, the first attraction being scheduled for some date in December. The entertainment will be given at the Wayne churches, the first one at the Presbyterian church. Following talent has been engaged: Barbara Waite, contralto; Marion Green, baritone, and George H. Haskell, tenor. The program for two of the five entertainments. Music-lovers will welcome the prospect with delight.

EPIDEMIC OF STEALING.
Omaha, Neb., Nov. 25.—It was not many years ago that in Omaha and vicinity there were hanged for stealing a horse the value of which was often less than $100. During the last thirty days, twenty-six animals have been stolen, and a single person was so much as given a jail sentence. Unless a car is offered for sale in a state other than the one from which it is stolen, a charge of grand larceny cannot be laid against the thief, so the authorities have the slight punishment when a car thief is caught, which is not often.

JEWETT NOT GUILTY.
Blair, Neb., Nov. 25.—George S. Jewett, who Saturday night was declared not guilty of killing his 2-day-old baby by throwing it from a train at Wellington, will return to his old home in Freighton and to his old job within a few weeks. After the verdict was returned, he said he would go to Lodge Pole, Neb., and then to Denver, where he will remain until after the first of the year. Then he will go back to Freighton to resume his work as traveling salesman for the Ginnery Fruit company.

Sampling Mother's Doughnuts

HUNGRY kids are sampling them today just as they did in your doughnut days. Our artist has taken the old-fashioned story and brought it up to date. He has given Mother a modern up to date Acetylene cooking range. It may surprise you to learn that such ranges are actually being used by the women, folks in over two hundred thousand country homes. As you will note from the picture, they are duplicates of city gas ranges used throughout the world. They furnish and all other modern features. If you feel that your folks would appreciate the convenience of gas for lighting and cooking—if you feel that they have battled long enough with kerosene, oil, coal, ashes and soot, you should without delay look into my home made Acetylene proposition.

For these reasons you should not judge Acetylene until you have seen it made by a Pilot plant. The Pilot is the one plant that is mechanically perfect. This is proven by the fact that there are over sixty thousand of them in actual use today. At your convenience I can call at your home with a portable demonstrating plant and show you how the Pilot works—how it generates home made Acetylene—how it automatically mixes the Union Carbide and water to make this gas. I can show you also how this home made Acetylene is used to produce the most brilliant and beautiful light known—how it is used in cooking ranges which do away with the work and bother of handling fuel and ashes. If you wish, I can send you also the Orweld Acetylene Company's advertising books. These books tell how Acetylene is used for over a hundred different purposes—how the government uses Acetylene machines, on account of their reliability, to light the coast of Alaska and the whole Panama canal.
