WAYNE COMPOSER RECOGNIZED
Mark's Goldsmith Co., the well known Washington, D. C. music publishers, has just issued a song by L. L. Alexander of Wayne, which will doubtless be heard in many drawing rooms and parlors throughout the country. 'I Know the Way' of the Will Blush Corkey and Clyde Oman, of Wayne, who were present, also joined in the debate. The audience decided by a rising vote in favor of the affirmative side of the question.

At the close of the debate Rev. Alexander Corkey addressed the meeting as 'Present Day Standards,' illustrating his remarks with several characteristic stories and giving some good advice on the secret of success, and on the importance of forming a character which will meet the high demands of our time. The society will meet again in two weeks when a musical program will be given. An organ has recently been placed in the schoolhouse for use during the Sunday services and at the special meetings.

Friday evening, December 12, the society will discuss the question: 'Resolved, that war has caused more misery than liquor.'

LAND PRICE BEARS RECORD NEAR WAYNE
On Monday, Edward Perry sold forty acres, located three fourths of a mile from Wayne, to Joe Baird for $200 an acre. The tract is known as the Ramsey forty, and was sold to Mr. Perry by Charles & Beale eighteen months ago. The land was not for sale, but when Mr. Perry was asked what he would take for it and accordingly fixed the price, the land was promptly made. Mr. Perry raised two good crops from the forty, and sells at an advance which tops the price for farm land in the Wayne vicinity.

I would have had coughing spells, and my lungs were so sore and inflamed I began to be seriously alarmed. A friend recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, saying she had used it for years. I bought a bottle and it relieved my cough the first night and the next week I was rid of the cold and soreness of my lungs.' writes Miss Marie Corley, Sausalito, Cal. For sale by all druggists.

Last Friday evening, the Central Literature club met in the McEachern schoolhouse. There was a large attendance of the members of the society, and of friends. Fred Withner presided over the meeting, and introduced the speaker on the debate. The subject debated was: 'Resolved, that ownership in land in the corn belt should be limited to 100 acres.' Lee Smith opened the debate for the affirmative, setting forth as reasons for this limitation in land ownership, the benefits which would come to present owners of large tracts

WALLACE BRUCE AMSBARY

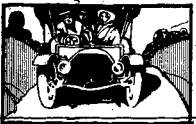

The worth and beauty of the "Three Phases of Life" are very recent years, were left unmentioned and missing. The Epigone and Cable and Hilly and Field came to teach the world that poetry and romance might be found among simple folk, living plain, honest lives, away from the "maddening crowd," which hitherto had furnished inspiration for song and story.

It is in the interpretation of the class of literature that Mr. AmSBary has excelled for himself a place where he stands absolutely alone and unsurpassable. Mr. AmSBary sets aside the adoration, "There is nothing new under the sun," for his programs are made up of selections entirely novel and drawn from sources hitherto neglected.

AN AUTHOR AS WELL AS AN INTERPRETER.

Wallace Bruce AmSBary, author of those inimitable verses, "The Ballades of Bourbonnais," is a rare poet, and a truly great lecturer. In the splendid simplicity of his interpretations and in the quiet charm of perfect prose, he presents many characters that linger long in the memory of his hearers.

EDWARD ROE Richard has to go to jail, with his assets with other lums, string grub and larding thimble. When the weather throws a fit, Richard and his crewers, sail, calm and in the jug, snag as inserts in a rug; three a day the jainor comes, bringing bread and shrodded plums; coffee, bacon; things like those for the bunch of Richard Roe. And the men outdoors, who work—mason, painter, baker, clerk—must supply the rest and means for the gray and greasy heads. Men who work—some their lives to support their kids and wives, must contribute of the rocks that they earn by grievous knocks, to supply the beef and fat to the jokers in the jail. When their country's managed right, such things won't distress the sight. There will be some better plan, and the idle, worthless man will not be a stifling weight on the ones who pay the freight. Man must give his money's worth, or be banished off the earth.

Then I told Jones in casual tones about those figs, let's see, and he told Brown who went through town, distributing the false information, and he went on with, told Black and White and Green and they told Dick and he, methinks, told Tom or seventeen. And so those figs I bought from Grover kicked up a furious fuss, and people cried: "That blamed old man will get no coin from us!" Now, here my rebel! Each crooked deal gets just that kind of fame; all little fraud is spread abroad, till people hear your name. NEBRASKA'S OUTPUT MORE THAN LAST YEAR

Omaha, Neb., December 3.—Despite drought conditions, which materially affected the corn yield in Nebraska this summer, the state's combined output of corn, oats, hay and barley ex-ceeded that of last year by more than a half million dollars.

Such a record cannot be surpassed. Nebraska is one of the few states that have succeeded in showing an increase in production this year. As a conse-quence, business has been active all through the state, and in Omaha, the activity is more than that of last year by 20 per cent.

Commodity prices have been materi-ally higher, the average receiving freight to 20 per cent more for their stuff than last year. Omaha, through whose activities those of the state are reflected, is one of the few cities in the country to show an increase in business over last year. The same gen-eral optimistic condition is reported from all part of the state.

To overcome a loss in its corn crop, Omaha, Nebraska, is a tribute to the state which every farmer has to her reputation as the best state in the union.

SHORTSIGHTED POLICY

The policy of being penny wise and pound foolish is emphasized by an editorial in the September number of the Ladies' Home Journal. In part, the editorial says:

A husband came home one evening, and told his wife that he had been in-ferminently "stark off" from his job owing to "stark work" and "keen competition." He had earned forty dollars a week; his record was excel-lent, but "business had gone off," and, with it "picked up" the factory and to run with one half of its force, the wife suddenly found herself with- out a penny's income and three chil-dren to support.

The wife went to see her husband's employer, to see if something could be done. The employer told the wife that there was absolutely no fault to be found with her husband's work, but that they were feeling compulsion of cheaper goods, and they simply had to "lay off" hands.

"Why didn't you meet that compen-sation?" asked the wife.

"We can only do it by paying lower wages than people can live on," said the employer, "using cheaper materials that are not good, and putting an article on the market that would not be fair to the buyer."

"Is that what Smith, your competitor, does?" asked the wife.

"He does. He has told me so him-self. But he doesn't care," answered the employer. "The man who has the same job in his place that some one else had had with us, gets twenty-three dollars a week; we pay your husband forty dollars. Mrs. Gordon," said the employer, "let me ask you; whose goods have you been buying for your children or your husband?"

The wife colored. "Smith's," she said.

"Why?" asked the employer. "Do you think his were as good as ours?"

"None," answered the wife, "but they were cheaper in price. I thought they were good enough for us, and I felt I had to buy where I could get the most for my money. I have always had the idea that your goods were more expensive, but you're not so far off as I was once."

The employer smiled. "Well," he said, "you see how it works. You have helped Smith to build up his business. He can produce a good article any time that I can. He has told me so frankly. But he catches your trade by using poorer materials, by paying lower wages, by keeping his people liv-ing in the hands that they go. Of course, the one with a cheaper price."

"We have never felt that this meth-od was right. We bought the best ma-terials that go into our goods at the lowest price, so as to give you, the high class, very best quality. The cheapest in the long run article that we count. We paid our people good living wages so that they could live well, and so work well. We sold that article at the lowest price possible."

"Now," continued the employer, "instead of helping us by buying our goods, behind which there is a standard and a principle, you practically said to us: 'I don't believe in the standards of good material and principle of de-cent wages,' and you said to Smith, 'I believe in you.' For the only way we have to tell how women think is how they buy."

"I've perfectly frank with you, Mrs. Gordon, you are one of the women who have made it necessary for us to 'lay off' some of our help. You have helped to discharge your own hand."

Bixby in Lincoln Journal—The irony of fate! The highest-priced Thanksgiving in the history of America follows the success of a political party dedicated to the noble cause of reducing the high cost of living. In our civilization a failure!

Governor Morehead expresses himself in opposition to the present primary system, favoring the old convention plan as a surer means of securing competent public officials. He says a good man, no matter how well fitted, cannot win a state office, while a man of wealth, even though ill-qualified, can advertise himself and win.

The city electric plant was shut down for two hours on Thanksgiving day—from 12 o'clock until 2 o'clock. Granting that employees at the power plant ought to be allowed off duty on a holiday, provision should be made for a substitute, thus avoiding interruption of service. By shutting down the plant, consumers are greatly inconvenienced.

The movement to promote those who do not make a practice of going to church, to attend in general over the United States. For two Sundays, a united special effort will be made to get people out to divine worship. The object is to bring to the churches a new attendance by changing the habits of people who usually remain away. All churches are working in harmony, which is to be commended. In time, there will be a revival of fewer and stronger religious organizations.

The Herald has seen a copy of a late issue of the Kansas Mirror, published by Moses Warner. The editorial portion of the number is devoted to three articles, giving praise to Dan Stephens. Though of course unflattering by personal admission, it is interesting to know that Moses is a candidate for the Lyons office, and that his manifested admiration for the congressman makes him especially deserving and well fitted for the office.

The small town is its hands full making progress without cultivating or tolerating factional strife. A town cannot stand still, and its course, either forward or backward, depends on the attitude and effort of its citizens. It needs a united pull to ahead. Petty jealousy and strife are poisonous around the municipal neck. Personal animosities must be kept aside to unify action and insure headway. Every man should be with a dollar invested in a town is vitally interested in making steady and substantial progress, and cooperation from town strife is the only policy that will gain desired results.

At a meeting of the Commercial club of Emerson recently, the members took a decided stand in favor of rearranging the boundary lines of certain north-west Nebraska counties. The object declared by Emerson is about the same as they announced by Lincoln, that is, to divide a single a few years ago. To change county boundaries, it would be necessary to petition the county board in each county to ratify the question on the part of the voters. It is believed that there would be a voice in determining results. The proposition for reduction would have to be made fair and satisfactory to each county involved. In order to do so, the Herald has proposed making Wayne, Dixon, Thurston and Dakota counties into three counties. Wayne county could take Logan and Wakefield townships from Dixon county, and Dakota county could be divided between Dixon and Thurston counties. The Herald suggests that the Wayne Commercial club take up the proposition and push it along.

CHRISTMAS COMMENTS

The "painted" man is flattered when his little son presents him with a hairbrush.

Soldiers are never so poor at Christmas as the first that they do not present arms.

The true Christmas present any man should buy is a set of received bills from himself for all his creditors.

The proper kind of holiday presents for men in responsible positions where money and patience are tried to the utmost advantage of the giver.

Beginning with the old New Year, the dime museum hope to have an exhibition the man who never gave a Christmas present from a sense of duty.

The crabbled bachelor member of the party with a spirit of generosity purchased for his children the long-remembered Christmas bonus will have soon completed the task of kicking himself out of the house.

A few weeks ago a woman wrote a letter to a newspaper, in which she said: "If I could get money how I would like to see the people have joy!" A rich uncle presented her with $100 on Christmas day, and the said lady said she bought with the money many of the people's hearts bound with envy.

CHRISTMASIDE IN MEXICO.

A Feast That is Celebrated For Two Weeks.

In feast-loving Mexico—Christmas is celebrated for two weeks, beginning with the 25th of December and extending until New Year's day. The principal features of the celebration are "posadas" and "pinitas," both very quaint and picturesque customs, and entirely peculiar to Mexico.

"Posada" in Spanish means "lodging place" or "inn" and in Mexico is applied to the nightly celebrations and entirely July performances which in the houses of all Mexicans find from the 25th of December to the 6th of January.

These celebrations are called "posadas" because they are in commemoration of that night when the holy family of Joseph, Mary and the infant Jesus, fled to a place, sought refuge in the stable where the child was born.

At an early hour, on account of the chanting children, the signal is given for the pinita breaking, and all the guests do it with their hands in the hollow of the crown, with the servants and small boys congregated in the background. When the assembly is complete, the children are allowed to play a big, glittering toy as it swings from the iron in the ceiling. One of the children is blindfolded and placed in the center of the ring, just under the pinita; a long, light pole is banded to her, and she is told to strike carefully and with her right hand with quick force in the direction of the pinita.

Good nature demands that all of the children first have an opportunity to break the pinita. As there are always never side by side, the "winning" is a tough little individual, the feat of the game—comes next. One by one they are blindfolded and about three times and then permitted to "strike out."

And approval from the elders and wild yells from the children the pinita is finally broken and struck at vigils. When "hey presto!" the poor show's red, white and red and the white is sent from top to bottom, the big "camborio" is sent flying across the room, and down upon your devoted head comes a shower of soft, unbreakable presents and all conceivable kinds of dainties and good things to eat.

Appropriate Christmas Presents.

"Have you received your presents for the boys' yet?" asked Mr. Haddock after the kids had left the breakfast table for school.

"No, I have not," said the father. "Well, that they shall all be given something useful. There is no use in wasting money on useless toys for them to break. And by the way, I need a new rug for the parlor and a dozen wallpapers."

"Ah, well, you just get the rug for George and give the wallpaper to John."

MY LONELY CHRISTMAS

Is there—can there be—a man more lonely than one returned from a colony who has been out of his home for twenty years and has come back when his parents are dead, his old friends dispersed and the old nest has passed to other occupants? And can his loneliness be more emphasized than when his return—syncopically—coincides with Christmas?

"That was my condition when I re-visited my old home," I was told—out of some far I had in mind. My heart began to fall, my spirits to decline, when I reached the little cottage town near which I was born. I was indeed depressed. I would hasten to the rooms I had taken in a house in the town and spend my Christmas there with a wife and six children. I had done well in the big world and had returned not a rich man, but with a competence. It had been my wish, my ambition, to settle in the village about which clung all my sweetest and holiest thoughts. But now—could it be? As I walked back to my lodgings through the street and by the market place—folks were hurrying in all directions, and the very atmosphere was filled with the spirit of Christmas.

As I pursued my way I saw a tall, thin girl walking before me with a basket on her arm. I noticed that the basket had come out and that the contents were falling on the pavement. Of this she was unaware. I stopped, picked up a little wicker lamb, then something wrapped in paper—a silver matchbox.

Gathering them together, I ran after the girl and stopped her. "Excuse me," said I. "Are you a female hop of my thumb, dropping to know whereby your track may be known?"

I showed what I had collected. She looked at them and said: "Please—return them to my husband's daughter. You must allow me to tie my handkerchief around the basket and to carry it for you. I believe we will find some way to do it."

"You are very good," she replied. "We are about to have a Christmas tree for the children this evening, and I have been so busy that I have not had time to do so."

"THIS," SAID THE BOY, "IS FOR MR. WHAT'S-HIS-NAME."

I have been making some grilling puns about my brothers and sisters and for jokes and mistime. Then we proceeded on our way, and when we went in the house she received my basket from me and again thanked me.

"I shall you be dining out tomorrow," I asked the girl.

"Yes, yes, yes. I have no one to dine with. I know no one here."

"And this evening—shall you be going anywhere?"

"No, I have no where to go. So we parted. I went to my room. I had done with my papers. I sat before the fire in my study, and my little hand never and ever again."

"The door opened, and I saw some little hands outside, with golden curls and merry voices, and I cried out: 'Please, Mr. What's-your-name, will you come to my three downstairs?'"

"As I hesitated, the child said: 'Please—Annie told us to ask you.'"

"So I descended and was witness of the delight of the little ones over their presents, when to my surprise one of the children and plucked from the tree the silver matchbox."

"Annie," said the boy, "is for Mr. What's-his-name. Sister Annie said it was for him."

I was moved more than I can say. So some had been thinking of me, though I was only a lodger. "Look here, sir," said the father. "You're a stranger to England, and at young men and women, who go about from house to house for that purpose, being everywhere heartily welcomed and rewarded with money and gifts, I can give you a good plan, and for it is Annie's making."

All was hushed. I was a stranger, and they took me in. I was lonely, and I found a home in a little girl. AB, if the old home were some place that I could build one that was new? I need no longer live in the past, but look to the future, and the Christmas gift of food, I would not be alone that is, if Annie told I cannot say) will consent to put an end to my loneliness and keep my little lamb."

From Ponca Journal, December 16, 1880: Last spring still continues to rage throughout the west. In the meantime, those who have no wood, burn corn or hay.

The Wayne County Review says that the month of November, 1880, goes on record as the coldest November in the existence of the present generation.

Professor Wallbeck, formerly the principal of the Ponca school, was today appointed by the commissioners to the office of county assessor.

The instruction in place of Mr. Palmer resigned.

Last Saturday, Mr. McDonald was a subject of the vicissitudes of the out-of-door fortune while crossing the Missouri ice between Corning and Sioux City. The ice was covered with water to the depth of six inches, and was exceedingly slippery, and under him his foot moved out from under him, and he sat down with a crash.

Way to the river, had not the 6-inch film of water received him gently like a cushion. As it was his evening appearance was unimpaired, and his presence was his back to a cloud.

The coal miners are slowly and carefully probing their way downward. On Friday of last week they struck a small vein of coal which was a little over a foot thick. It was forty feet below the 412-foot vein.

The rocks and formation below the 412-foot vein coincide exactly with the rocks below the vein of same thickness at Fort Dodge, Ia., at which place, forty-three feet below the 412-foot vein, a vein of coal and one-half feet thick and which corresponds very nearly with the small vein found last Friday. Taking the Fort Dodge rocks as a guide, we shall strike a 6-foot vein of coal at a distance of thirty-five feet below the small vein. That this is a certainty is believed by Professor Angeyer. Today the miners are within eighteen feet of the vein they are seeking to reach the large coal bed. Within a week more, it will probably be reached.

From the Ponca Journal, December 16, 1880: The miners at the Ponca, Carl and Mining company some time ago rammed a 100-foot hole into the ground in pursuit of a coal bed, and the additional interesting fact certified to by Professor Angeyer, viz: that the company by so doing had discovered not only coal, but various valuable minerals, among which were gold-bearing quartz, and kerosene oil, has excited much attention among the scientific world. And again, lately, we are notified by the Wakefield field that similar deposits of gold, oil and coal have been discovered at a short depth below the surface in the southern part of the county.

Instigated by the flattering reports of these discoveries, the well known scientist, Professor Ousewin J. Bumble, of Water Hill observatory, Tompkins county, arrived last Monday by the evening train, for the purpose of making a thorough examination of the coal company's hole. He brought with him a number of costly and valuable scientific implements, prominent among which was the celebrated electrical theodolite, an astonishing instrument, being a combination of theodolite, concave mirrors and electric light, with which he expected to be able to light up the hole to its greatest depth.

On Tuesday morning, the professor started for the coal company's works to commence operations. He was accompanied by a number of savants, prominent among whom were Professor George C. Adams, the geologist, geologist and "intellebrian" investigator, Professor Ferrigno, the geologist, Dr. W. B. Douthitt, the well known author of medical books, and Prof. James Rockwell of Wayne, the former post laureate of Dixon county.

This congress of experts proceeded to the coal hole about a mile west of town, and immediately began operations. On uncovering the hole, it was found to be full of all the elements, the walls being made of water. Professor Bumble, assisted by Professors Brewer and Ferrigno, inserted an explorer's discovery tool to the end of which was attached a duplex electric light, and as the tool advanced the water was driven to its bottom, and that the walls were instant.

This important fact being shown, the discovery tool was withdrawn, and a 100-foot shaft was sunk, comprising one hundred feet of the hole, which instantly, from top to bottom became brilliantly illuminated as by the sun.

The microscopic and telescopic attachments of the theodolite were then adjusted, and a survey of the walls of the hole was commenced. To a distance of seventy-six feet below the surface, nothing but clay, sylvanite, a hard and porous material, rewarded the explorers.

At that distance, however, shaly rock appeared, which became more compact as they descended. At eighty-four feet, the first layer of coal was met. This was a three and one-half foot bed, and directly below it a thin layer of coaly substance was revealed, about four inches thick. By attaching Professor Bumble's electro-miscal-pickler to the discovery tool, the explorers were enabled to reach in and break off several fragments of the coal and bring them to the surface. The specimens thus obtained were of a good kind of bit coal, rather finely and irregularly fractured, with lustrous sheen.

Immediately below this layer of coal, an unusually large quantity of fine clay proved that there was nearly a much greater coal deposit than the first section. Below this, the explorers came first to the foot of blue clay and sandstone, then to an immensely thick mass of red sandstone which Professor Bumble pronounced as belonging to the Dakota.

At 175 feet there was a change in the rock. It became lighter in color and more porous, with occasional thin layers of sandstone. At 200 feet, carbonaceous sand, shaly pudding stone, and fragments of slate began to appear, and from 242 to 255 feet, small pieces of coal of a fine quality were seen.

At 260 feet, below this, came in regular order calcareous shales, layers of lime sand rock, magnesian limestone, gneiss, quartz crystals, zinc blende, horn blende and iron pyrites, to a depth of 310 feet.

At 310 feet, the exciting display of buried riches burst upon the eyes of the explorers. A thickness of twelve feet of gneiss was sparkled in the light as though the hole for that distance had been illuminated with electricity. The mineral pickler was again brought into requisition and this brilliant discovery was investigated. A great number of fragments were broken off and brought up, and after thorough examination Professor Bumble announced (and his decision was corroborated by Professor Brewer, Ferrigno and Rockwell) that there was a 30-foot layer of gold-bearing quartz, worth per ton $100,000.

At 340 feet, the depth of the hole was 340 feet, and the walls were 340 feet thick. The walls were 340 feet thick, and the walls were 340 feet thick.

Mr. and Mrs. Brubaker were hosts to their many friends at a house-warming party on last Saturday evening.

Mrs. Phil Hill, wife of Miss Bertha Moritz is ill at her home in Norfolk, with an attack of pneumonia.

Thanksgiving services were held at the German Lutheran church at the regular morning hour, by Rev. Mr. Aron.

It was a very joyful event when the German Lutheran congregation dedicated their church in the Melvin school district, Sunday, November 23.

This is the second church this congregation has built within a few years, as the first one proved to be too small for the steadily growing congregation.

The church is a fine building, equipped with all modern improvements. It is situated in a beautiful location, and the church was filled with hearers to its utmost capacity.

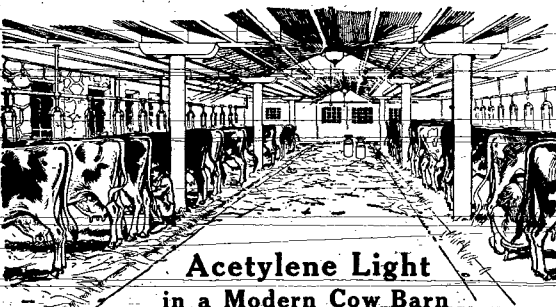

Three hundred dollars were collected during the three services. And the ladies of the congregation would by no means stand back, but had prepared a very elaborate dinner and supper for the enormous crowd. The choir of the Melvin church rendered two selections well adapted for the occasion. Also the choir from Rev. Muller's church in Norfolk, participated in the celebration.

We hope the Melvin church will prosper under the Lord's protection, as has done thus far, and we give full credit to the members for their activities.

Acetylene Light in a Modern Cow Barn

WE sell a great many Pilot Acetylene lighting plants in our date farms. Because every farmer gets even more out of an Acetylene installation than anybody else.

Our dairy farmer patrons make these Acetylene plants the double pay. They run an extra line of pipe to each barn—and sometimes to other outbuildings. In these buildings they fasten the great balls of Acetylene light to the ceiling.

They also equip these lights with ignition devices to make them light with the pull of a chain without matches. Two of these Acetylene barn lights will make a big dairy barn as light as day. They will give more light than a dozen lanterns—and unlike lanterns, they cannot be tipped over.

The same is true of Acetylene house lights. They burn in handsome stationary bronze or brass fixtures securely fastened to ceilings or walls.

You can tell one of these Acetylene lighted dairy barns from the road—a quarter of a mile away. The light is extremely brilliant. It is also soft and white in color—so nearly like sunlight that scientists have used it with success to grow plants on an extensive scale.

These glowing make a cheerful light. Inexpensive it helps to keep the whole household happy and content. They are yellow, lights on the other hand, just as surely tend to make people dull, spiritless and gloomy.

That is why we say: Acetylene light is a mighty big help towards keeping the country boys and girls from drifting to the city. Acetylene is too a boon to the women folks in another way. It enables to be the light it brings to the country home a great convenience in the gas cooking stove.

For acetylene can be and is used in gas cooking ranges in thousands of country homes, just as its cousin, city gas is used in millions of city homes.

In every one of these homes the gas range has shortened cooking hours and has done entirely away with the drudgery of handling coal, wood and ashes.

You will be intensely interested in the simple mechanism of the Pilot which makes it different from all other in principle.

Its patent safety features have made it quite "trouble proof." They have given such perfect satisfaction that we have been able to sell no less than sixty thousand Pilot plants in fifteen years.

With these sixty thousand plants working incessantly in country homes, undergoing all kinds of misadventure and abuse, we have only heard of two accidents. During the period there has been over one hundred thousand accidents charged to other illuminants.

For this reason the Engineers of the National Board of Fire Underwriters called Acetylene safer than any illuminant it commonly displaces.

We would very much like to give you a free demonstration of the Pilot plant. For the purpose we have a portable plant which we can bring to your home. Or if you wish we will be pleased to mail you our advertising book containing the whole story of Acetylene. Just drop a card to:

Regardless of Cost

We have been in business in Wayne ten years and would be as long again if it were not for failing health. We appreciate past patronage and urge our old customers as well as the new to attend this farewell sale.

THE WEEK WITH THE CHURCHES.

German Evangelical Lutheran Church (Rev. R. Moehring, Pastor). There will be no services at Wayne next Sunday, as the pastor will hold services in Wisnola.

St. Mary's Catholic Church (Rev. William Keenan, Pastor). Mass in Wayne next Sunday at 8:30, and at Carroll at 10:30. Communion at Carroll at 11:30. Benediction in Wayne at 7:30.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH (Rev. E. P. Richardson, Pastor). Our people are getting into the spirit of the meetings in a splendid way. In spite of the unfavorable weather, their faithfulness in being manifest in various ways. Our special home services are in progress. In this series of meetings, three words ought to characterize the spirit of each one of our members: Openness, Responsibility and Obligation. When this three-fold spirit lives in each of us, we may expect glorious results. Three things, on our part, are absolutely requisite for successful meetings, viz., devout prayer, love to house visitation, and the contact of Christians with other people. We can each do our part here.

The meetings will continue each evening except Saturday, on through the coming week. We look for each meeting to be stronger and better than the preceding one. Have you been busy in inviting people to attend? If you live east of Main street, call on Mrs. C. M. Christensen, as to where the afternoon paper meeting will be held. If on the west side, phone Mrs. M. Norton for this information.

The next two Sundays have been designated as "church" Sundays. The united effort is to get the men and women in Wayne and vicinity to attend these church, on those two Sundays. This united appeal ought to interest all of us.

One of the greatest things are often accomplished through individuals who believe this thing is worth while. Do you have such a belief regarding evangelistic services? The regular communion service for next Sunday will be postponed until after the meetings.

For us try to connect the young people in a meeting with our special services.

Methodist Church (Rev. C. L. Myers, Pastor). The five turns.

The revival has begun. Where were you the first night? Being amazing, give something and take something away with you. You are always needed more on a bad day than on any other time.

The more you sacrifice, the more you get. Let the man who discovered that the more he gave away, the more he had.

The Ladies Aid society has added fifty-eight to its membership in the recent contest. A 4-piece orchestra will furnish music next Sunday, both morning and evening.

Music has always been associated with religion, and has had a prominent place in Methodism. Come and sing at special meetings.

America shuts the bible out of her public schools, but China has it in her regular course. The book should be known by all. Our Sunday school at 10:30 is a splendid opportunity for study of that particular book.

Colonel Bain spoke in the Methodist church Sunday evening to only a fair sized audience. The address was of great interest. It was full of wit, sharpness, and facts, which if made use of, would make the world better. He should have had a crowded house.

The members of the Epworth league should be present every night during special services as the journey of life is before them. Equip yourself for the voyage.

A very interesting league topic was studied last Sunday evening by the leaguers in the basement under the direction of Brother Marsteller.

The Ladies Aid banquet has been postponed until December 10. All members and especially the new ones are cordially invited.

The text Sunday morning is "For the people had a mind to work, and in the evening, 'Cease to do evil, and learn to do well.'"

St. Paul's Lutheran Church (Rev. F. E. Hissang, Pastor). Sunday school at 10 o'clock. We are making some changes in our Sunday school, which are proving to be profitable. We are very much pleased to note the gradual increase in attendance and interest.

Morning service at 11 o'clock. The subject of the sermon will be "The Value of the Great Salvation," Heb. 11:14. When thundering and lightning were heard on Mount Sinai, the mountain seemed on fire, because God had descended upon it, it was then that Moses received the law, with the power. For we read that "Every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward." But after many centuries had passed, a savior was given to the world through the only begotten son of God. This was a direct revelation, the great salvation offered.

Evening services at 7:30. The subject will be "The Lukewarm Church," Rev. J. M. Caldwell.

Though last Sunday was a little disagreeable, the communion services were attended very well. We were glad to see into church fellowship six new members.

Remember the two special church-going Sundays, December 7 and 14. The Ladies' Aid society met at the home of Mrs. H. Lundberg Tuesday afternoon, and a most pleasant and profitable afternoon was spent. The ladies have been working for some time for their bazaar, which they decided several months ago would be held on December 6. They have many useful articles for sale. A supper will be given in connection with the bazaar. The bazaar and supper will be given next Saturday afternoon, at Mrs. Ball's millinery store.

The Teachers' Bible Study class meets every Wednesday evening at the parsonage. All are invited to attend. Catholic school, Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

Presbyterian Church (Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor). "What We Christian Churches Preach" will be the subject of the sermon at the Presbyterian church in Wayne on Wayne's first "church Sabbath." All non-church-going members of the community are especially invited to this service.

There is a reason why so many of the leading citizens in every Christian community go to church on Sabbath, and this reason will be set forth in this sermon. In the evening, the subject will be "Christ's Estimate of a Really Great Man." The special meetings held in the church this week are in the interest of the church membership, looking upon each member as a possible "soldier of Jesus Christ." The Christian's warfare, his armor, weapons, enemies, etc., will be discussed. The meetings are designed also to acquaint the church members with one another.

Sabbath, December 13, will be observed as communion Sabbath at the Presbyterian church, but a welcome service will be given to all, as the communion service is an open one. There will also be a reception of new members into the fellowship of the church. Rev. J. M. Caldwell, moderator of the synod of Nebraska, preached in the place of the pastor. Dr. Caldwell set forth the teachings of the bible in regard to tithing incomes, and the giving of one tenth of the annual income to God. The sermon was given close attention by the congregation. There are not many titheers in Nebraska, considered the number of Presbyterians in the state, but many of the "liberal" and wealthy members of the church give one tenth and more every year to benevolent work. The tithe is commended as scriptural, systematic, and efficient, tending to the best interests both of the church and of the church member vitally.

Church Sabbath and Sunday following have been set apart as the Wayne "church Sabbath," and the church people in all the Christian churches in Wayne are inviting the entire community to go to some one of the six Christian churches in our city. There is absolutely no bigotry in the movement. Methodists are working for Baptists, and Presbyterians are working for Methodists, and all are working together for each, as the churches are not rival.

ing the community to attend any particular church, but only some one of the six. The movement shows the unity of the religious life of our community, and emphasizes the common work which every Christian church is doing, which is simply the building up of Christian faith and character.

This church Sunday movement is one which the progressive communities in all parts of the country are observing, and it heralds a new day in church work. Churches are beginning to realize that they are all only different regiments in the vast army of God which is working to instill the faith of Christ into the hearts of men. Separated and fighting one another, these regiments are a sad spectacle, but united, as they are in Wayne, they present an imposing sight, showing the power of the truth and the influence of Jesus Christ. In the interests of the moral and religious life of our community every good citizen is asked to show his respect for religion next Sunday by attending divine worship in some one of our six Christian churches.
