

HUSE BECOMES SOLE HERALD PROPRIETOR

WILL DISSOLVE CORPORATION JOHN T. REESLER Sells His Interest in Wayne Herald to the Editor and Manager.

W. H. Huse who has been editor and manager of the Herald since August, 1909, has sold the Herald, all the stock, will be sole proprietor of the plant on March 1, buying the half interest hitherto belonging to John T. Reesler. Of course this deal means no change in the management or policies of the paper. The business firm of which the Herald is a part, the Herald Publishing Co., as a corporation, will accordingly be dissolved. When the Herald manager became interested in the plant and took charge of it in 1909, he was a very young man, but the future amply justified the investment, and it would now be impossible to operate without it. In addition to the linotype, a folding machine, Jobber, electric motors, mangle machines, press and a great variety of new type and other things to facilitate the handling of business were added. The last payment on equipment was made in 1910, and it is possible through the fair and considerate dealing made by Mr. Reesler, for the editor to become sole owner of the plant. A very moderate return on his investment proved satisfactory to him, and the Herald editor acknowledges with gratitude his generous favor. During the life of the corporation which soon ends, Mr. Reesler never sought to influence the management of the paper in any respect. Satisfied in the judgment and ability of the editor he has been a source of great satisfaction. The Herald editor hopes to build still bigger and better on the substantial foundation now laid. As soon as possible in March, the former post office building adjoining the Herald on the east, will be added to present quarters. More room has long been needed and will soon be supplied. With larger quarters, work will be made easier. The rooms will be improved, front porches and windows washed, all which will make the institution more inviting and pleasing.

THE BLEACHED FLOUR CASE FOR RETRIAL

Washington, Feb. 24.—The supreme court today sent the so-called bleached flour case back to the district court for a new trial. The case was sent back with instructions that the law was that foods not containing enough questionable ingredients to injure health were not condemned. The decision indirectly reaches out to thousands of articles of food. In effect the court held that the government cannot condemn food unless it can show that enough poisonous ingredients have been added to cause injury to health. The government had sought to establish that the law was violated if the presence of any amount of poisonous substance was found in food. It was contended by other interpretation would make unwholesome that section of the law prohibiting the adding of any poisonous or other deleterious ingredients to articles which might render food injurious to health. The case was tried in the federal court for the western district of Missouri. In announcing the decision of the court Justice Day pointed out that the government only complained that 1.8 parts to 1,000,000 of a poisonous chemical was added by bleaching. He held that every word of the pure food law prohibiting in interstate commerce a food if it contained "any added poisonous or other added deleterious ingredient which may render such article injurious to health" must be construed to the latter part of the law. "If it cannot by any possibility, when the facts are reasonably considered, injure the health of any consumer," said the justice, "such food, though having a small addition of poisons or deleterious ingredients, may not be deemed to be injurious to health."

Department of Agriculture officials were not prepared to say tonight what action they would take as a result of the court's decision. When a copy of the complete decision is in their hands, they will file the latter part of the week, there will be a consultation between Secretary Houston, principal officer, and the editor of the Herald, Dr. O. H. Anderson, who has been in charge of the Herald since the death of Mr. Huse.

JUNIOR CLASS PLAY ATTRACTS BIG CROWD

BY STATE NORMAL STUDENTS The Play Entitled 'The Weaker Sex' Presents Series of Interesting Situations.

The title of the play given by the Junior class of the State Normal last night, "The Weaker Sex," suggests a serious study of the question of woman's relation to society. As a matter of fact, the woman's rights feature was rather a pleasing illusion than actual, merely furnishing an atmosphere for a pretty little play of sentiment and romance. Each character was distinctly individual, and that is a most praise for the play. The folks were all real folks, and the parts were interpreted by the players so as to make just for the heart. The heroine, Gladys Lynch, whose old lover, it now turned out by her daughter, was married by her father, the daughter being Gladys, very young, very pretty, very sincere. The climax of the play occurred when the lover of the daughter proved to be the longest sweet heart of the mother, would give a thrill to even hardened play-goers. Paul Becker rendered the part of the lover in a very acceptable style, while Charles Meeker, who ultimately won Gladys Lynch for his bride, appeared as well as the long faithful, conscientious savior who is finally rewarded. One of the best characters was that of the suffragist who mistakes the proposal of a member of parliament for the offer of his daughter as an offer to himself. This part, which was played by Mr. W. J. Williams, was well done, and furnished much amusement, while her neglected, petulant daughter, Carrie Weinandt, was a favorite.

HISTORY OF CASE

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 24.—The Lexington Mill and Elevator company was found guilty in the federal district court here four years ago of violation of the pure food laws by the process of adding bleaching flour. The case against the Lexington company was a test case, the decision in which affected scores of millers who shipped bleached flour in interstate commerce. The government laboratory and expert chemists engaged an expert assistant to conduct an experiment in an attempt to show that the bleaching method used constituted a poison into the flour. Had not the verdict of the lower court been set aside the artificial $500 fine would have been levied on the inventor of the process that started the litigation flour was bleached by the long and tedious method of storing.

WAYNE PAPERS WILL ISSUE BIG SOUVENIR

SPECIALIST HAS WORK IN HAND Will Appear in Magazine Form About Middle of April—Endorsed by Commercial Club.

The Wayne Herald and Nebraska Democrat have made arrangements to issue a high class souvenir publication about the middle of April, and have employed to handle it a specialist, A. C. Gant, who has had successful experience in the business. He will prepare the historical sketches, and other writings, and solicit the necessary advertising matter. The souvenir will appear in magazine form, about the size of the Ladies' Home Journal, and will be neatly printed on good quality of paper. The purpose is to print 6,000 copies, and see that they are generally circulated.

MEMBERS OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE COMMERCIAL CLUB

The members of the executive committee of the Commercial club of Wayne, appreciating the value of a souvenir publication, emphasizing and heralding the rich resources and great possibilities of Wayne county, would give hearty approval to the enterprise of the two Wayne papers in assuming such a task. The importance of appealing to the people in a more direct and convincing manner, and the advantages of Wayne county lands and towns to stimulate the influx of new settlers and new capital, is apparent, and thus we would commend the undertaking to people in all parts of the county whose support will be necessary to make the edition reach high expectations and yield large returns.

A large grain bed, said to be valuable, is reported to have been discovered near Ponca. It is pronounced the best kind of gravel for railroad beds. People thought Ponca had gone out of the discovering business. At one time it had what was heralded as an active bed of lignite in the river bluff. In another bluff the fossils remained of an ancient sea serpent, the plesiosaurus, was unearthed, and exhibited to a curious world. Numerous coal discoveries were made, but the product was always a poor grade of lignite which was worthless because, when set on fire, its penetrating smell spread to the four corners and ascended to heaven. A substance suitable for making lime was found and a lime kiln flourished for a time. Now comes a discovery of gravel, which it is hoped will meet expectaions and cause a big and permanent boom.

EVENTS OF UNUSUAL LOCAL IMPORTANCE

Two events of unusual importance will take place in Wayne this year—the meeting of the district bankers association April 23, and the state tennis tournament some time in July. Last year the bankers met at Wakefield, and the tournament was held at Lincoln. The accession of these two notable gatherings will help materially in extending Wayne's reputation as a live center. Improvements in the way of clearing yards, alleys and streets and using new paint on buildings should be made early to show off to advantage when the bankers meet. Visitors should be impressed with Wayne's good quality and made to feel the city's cordial welcome.

ANOTHER GOLD WAVE HITS THIS SECTION

The closing week of February was opened by another of the gold waves of the winter. Snow began falling Saturday night and continued the next day, driven by a brisk wind from the northeast. The mercury sank to a few degrees below zero, and caused a number of water pipes to freeze. The storm was general over the middle-west. A second ice harvest was assured.

Of the storm, Monday's Norfolk Daily News had this to say:

A blizzard held north, Nebraska and southern South Dakota in its grasp Sunday and Sunday night. Temperatures fell to 10 to 15 degrees below zero in some places. In Norfolk it was 5 below.

Two to three inches of snow fell throughout north Nebraska and South Dakota. The heavy wind drifted the snow badly and a snow plow was sent from North Platte train No. 2 in the Black Hills division. This train was two hours late on this account. Train No. 3 was late at Long Pine because of engine trouble.

In the Black Hills section the temperatures dropped to 18 degrees below zero. At Winner it was 11; Long Pine 8; West Point 8 below.

In Norfolk the storm began early Saturday night. A cold wind blew from the east and before 11 degrees below zero in some places. In Norfolk it was 5 below.

Two to three inches of snow fell throughout north Nebraska and South Dakota. The heavy wind drifted the snow badly and a snow plow was sent from North Platte train No. 2 in the Black Hills division. This train

DEFENDS MAN'S MORALITY.

Hartington Herald: Whenever we hear a woman speak lightly of man's morality, as if that were a thing it would not be possible for him to possess, we object to the false generalization. It is true that there are immoral men, as there are immoral women, but it is not true that all nor the majority of men are immoral any more than it is true that all nor the majority of women are immoral. There are thousands of men in all walks of life whose virtue is just as unimpeachable as that of the most virtuous woman who ever lived. Hence, the generalization quite often made against men to the effect that they are immoral and unprincipled is entirely wrong. There are thousands of men whose innocence and virtue is just as true. The worst crime against men is to be who doubt the virtue of all women. But strange as it may seem, this is the common thing that good and virtuous woman to disparage the rectitude of men.

HARDY TUSCAN WOMEN.

One Vigorous Old Dame Who Acted as a Mountain Guide.

Illustrative of the hardness of women in Tuscany, Sir Francis Value writes in "Waves and People in Tuscany" the experience of two English ladies who were traveling in Italy.

"On we tramped, she always ahead, walking with a fine military swing like a Republican might have envied. The path was difficult and could not be used by vehicles.

"We here had the wonderful intention of sending the old woman back an intention, however, she very strongly opposed. It was an only effort to get to some few miles farther on that we could induce her to leave us before had seen us safely to the end of the journey."

A WILL AND A WAY.

How a Great Sculptor Insisted Upon Getting Recognition.

While still an unknown, struggling student, Carpeaux, the famous sculptor, determined to get his work and his name before the public.

"The subject he had chosen was 'The Sufferer of Abel' Kader to Napoleon III." He labored so hard over the work that he fell ill.

"Rah!" he replied. "An uninteresting piece, the work of a student." The emperor passed on.

"Indignant, Carpeaux repeated his work and set off for Lille. There the collapse of the hall room put a stop to the feverish work of the emperor's visit.

"The emperor, deep in thought, entered the church without glancing to right or left. Again 'Abel' Kader had failed to attract Napoleon's attention.

"The next day the emperor, with his usual retinue, visited a local exhibition. They were examining some paintings when suddenly a young man pushed forward and halted before Napoleon.

"The emperor, deep in thought, entered the church without glancing to right or left. Again 'Abel' Kader had failed to attract Napoleon's attention.

Uncle Walt The Poet Philosopher

The suffrage dames who play their games just like the whiskered fella, they just like the whistler and the SUPPRAGRISTS, men demands for SUPPRAGRISTS votes, are city dwellers. The squawky ones behind the pens have homes that need attention; they run outdoors, neglecting chores too numerous to mention. The city-wife, the life of society and club is hard; no more she smokes the ginger cakes, no more she dunks the kneed; she pulls with vim her husband's limb for rhino for her spending, and spoils her days in useless ways, in fowling schemes upending. The farmers' traws have leas and coas to keep them safe and busy; they fix the coops nor give three whoops for movements vain and dizzy. They sell their ducks and earn some bucks to buy ten yards of gingham; they beatruff sell and husband will the money with a bang some. The farmer's wives lead useful lives, and not an hour is wasted; the city ways, the slothful days, they have not learned or tasted. They drive to town in modest gags behind old Prince and Polly, with cash to spare, and do not care for votes, or other folly.

The Spring is coming—let her come, the bees will soon begin to hum, and buzz around on gauzy SPARKING wings, and join us with their POETRY rethot stings. The boy who is too tired and worn to help the old man, please come a corn, will be found for a fortnight or more, get good supply of tan. The women who, more arise, the lights of bottle in their eyes, and clean the house, from roof to room, with mop and duster, rag and broom, while patient husbands seek the barn, and say such words as "Gee" and "Darn." The Spring is coming—let her come! The hole leads the city, to roam through country fields and bogs, and dodge the same old farmers' dogs. The agent, rested, full of zeal, comes forth with his impassioned spiel, with specious wiles and nerve to turn, and sell his patent safety churn. And now, by almost every mail, seed catalogues come by the bale, and men, who deal in rump outs, come forth and bear away our goats. Such lists the vernal months will bring, and yet we're hating for the Spring! For many skies and budding fields soft winds and plain and fancy showers! For warbling birds and growing grass, and hops of nice fresh green sass!

There are many Willing Workers down among the unemployed, and their lives are spent in idleness. WILLING the and in hardship, their WORKERS loved. And they cry, "It's rank injustice that we men of willing hands, must be classed with bums and hobos, with the non-productive bands. Here we stand and not for labor, but for work and beg in vain, and there's surely some thing rotten with the nation's heart of brain. We are little Willing Workers, and no labor would we shirk, but you make us down and out, for you will not give us work." I have hired some Willing Workers, although not many, and they are surely working like blazes—but they always did things wrong. Oh, no odds what job they tackled, they would do it wappery, whether they were herding chickens or just stading up the soil, when they were doing fences or repairing hogchests, they were willing with their muscles, but they never used their heads. And always had to follow, follow early in their track, being all their labor done, while a good pain in their

SPARING wild, or his heart was THE ROD hard and cold. It was a cruel and church, long ago, that every dad should equip himself with birch and assault the growing lad. In the olden foolish days boys were shipped for every lapse, and it only seemed to raise mutiny to many a home. So the boys for love in vain; and as pirates they would roam up and down the Spanish Main. Or they leaned to lie and sneak in their fear of oak and stove, and with punishment on the cheek, fought for us, patiently game. I would rather that I had portion in the bromstone fire than be parent to a lad who could fear and love his sire. And no boy his dad can love if his heart with fear is sore, of the edged poison above, and the whip behind the door. Spare the child and spoil the no—put the darned thing in the fire—and the son will see a God in the person of his sire.

SECURITY CALF FOOD
We wish to call your attention to Security Calf Food, a food especially prepared for calves. Young calves require proper food (and just as much
so) as young babies require proper food. Security Calf Food is put up to take the place of "Mother's Milk,"
for young calves, as "Baby's Food" are put up to take the place of "Mother's Milk" for babies.
Security Calf Food replaces the whole milk from the time the calf is three days old, and at the cost of less than two cents per day. Your calf requires from eight to ten or twelve quarts of whole milk a day. This is worth from two to three cents a quart, and it will cost you from twenty to thirty cents a day to feed your calf with whole milk, while you can raise or fatten your calf on Security Calf Food for less than two cents per day and still raise just as good a calf.
Security Calf Food does not have to be cooked or bothered with; just mix
a measureful (you will find a measure in each pail or package) with water or skimmed milk; stir up well. There is no danger from indigestion or scours from using Security Calf Food, and the calves like it. We guarantee that you can raise a good, fat, and healthy calf on Security Calf Food as on whole fresh milk.
We guarantee to refund in cash for every pail or package of Security Calf Food that does not give perfect satisfaction.—Ralph Rundell.
MAY STEWART COMING
The theatergoers of Wayne and neighboring towns anticipate with great pleasure the engagement of the distinguished young artist, May Stewart, and her excellent company for two performances, Wednesday and Thursday nights, March 4 and 5, presencing Victor Hugo's powerful drama,
"Lucrezia Borgia," and Shakespeare's greatest play, "Romeo and Juliet." Miss Stewart rarely plays more than one night stands, but owing to a change in route from the south, the company has a few open dates, which are being placed in northern Nebraska, and a few three-night stands are being made to fill in the open time.
Attractions of this class, and stars of Miss Stewart's ability are rare, as she comes heralded as the most expressive dramatic star that has ever appeared here, and no doubt many citizens outside of dramatic circles will avail themselves of this opportunity.
"Lucrezia Borgia," the offering on Wednesday night, as well as "Romeo and Juliet," to be presented on Thursday night, offers Miss Stewart a great opportunity to display her wonderful emotional powers, and a crowded house may be expected. The play has been Sarah Bernhardt's greatest success and this is the first time a Wayne audience will have the pleasure of seeing Hugo's wonderful play. The story of the play is easily followed, and will appeal to everybody.

as the 1870's. Mr. Gamble hung to it. He would under no circumstances part with it, and although his mind first for it, and he dreamed of it night, and thought of it constantly by day, his courage and resolution upheld him in the temptation which beset him.

The first day only appeared to him about a month long, but soon started on the long starting the first week he had lived an eternity. As he reflected back to the period, when, in the prehistoric age, he had had a chew of tobacco, and contemplated that he would still have to exist for so long and delightful enjoyment during the many billions of future years, he was appalled at the prospect.

The sight of a tobacco box drove him into a frenzy, but still he hung to his grip. He threw away his red-stained, and bitter roots and herbs, he ate plain and hoarse ball, but while they exercised the jaws they did not touch the spot, and the desire for tobacco increased.

These two organizations belong to the W. H. M. S. and W. F. M. S. and even, if you don't believe in missions (which is unthinkable) you should come and encourage the children. Prof. Alexander will begin Wednesday night to prepare for the Easter program. He is very much interested in the large number of the young people for the program. Prosbyterian Church. (Rev. Alexander Kerker, Pastor.) "A Real Good Woman," or "She's Got the Enigma of God" will be the subject of the evening sermon at the Presbyterian church next Sunday. This is the fourth sermon on the "Women and Girls of the Bible."
The concert by the Southland Jubilee quartet on last Friday evening was a success in every way. There was a good attendance, and the music of the colored singers was greatly enjoyed, especially the distinct songs and readings by Mr. Drayton, and the piano selections by Prof. Barbour. On Sunday evening a large congregation gathered in spite of the blizzard to enjoy the sacred concert, songs coming from the country through the storm, to hear the singers for the second time. The sacred concert was also highly appreciated, and the hymns, anthems, and accompanying melodies were rendered in a most effective manner. Paul Lawrence sang his pathetic and sacred poem "When Matilda Stays," was beautifully recited by Mr. Drayton. At the close of the service a number in the congregation came forward to greet the singers and they were treated to an informal reception. This week, under the auspices of the O. E. union of Sioux City, they will give a full concert at the First Presbyterian church of Sioux City, after which they visit a number of Iowa towns.
During the Lenten season appropriate services will be held at the Presbyterian church, commencing at 7:30 o'clock of special meetings at which Rev. S. McComb, D. D., of Sioux City, will preach. The Presbyterian church here is in a Lenten period that lasts 365 days in the year, but is glad to advance the day. They are glad to advance real religion, only regretting that all the churches do not keep Lent all the year around.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church. (Rev. R. Moehring, Pastor.) Sunday school every Sunday morning at 9:30. The attendance has been the good attendance has Sunday in spite of the storm. Regular preaching services Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The subject of the sermon for next Sunday morning is "The Hand of Fellowship."

COLORADO'S ULTIMATUM.

For a While It Made Napoleon III. Sit and Take Notice. The man who sent the first private message over the Atlantic cable was commemorated by a recent Carlini Magazine. According to that magazine, it was William Gilpin, who was appointed, governor of Colorado by President Lincoln in 1861.

The line was ready for business on Aug. 3, 1861. At that time Napoleon III was in the plenitude of his power. His every movement was eagerly watched from both hemispheres. He was believed to have his eye on Bonaparte.

Mr. Gilpin was a man of humor, and it occurred to him that it would be a good joke to hand to the agents of the Atlantic cable this message for the French emperor:

"Denver, Colo., Aug. 4, 1861. To Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, Emperor, Tuilleries, Paris, France: Please leave Bohemia alone. No interference will be tolerated by this messenger."

Mr. Gilpin wrote his dispatch merely in the exuberance of humor. The cable could pay the bill, forwarded it. It was duly delivered at the Tuilleries and for awhile startled and mystified the emperor.

The freak cost Mr. Gilpin $30, and all he got for his money was the reputation of inaugurating the Atlantic cable and the satisfaction of playing a joke on the French emperor.

Cherthlessness. Mirth is like a flash of lightning that breaks through a gloom of clouds and glitters for a moment; cherthlessness seems up a kind of daylight in the mind and fills it with a steady and perpetual serenity.—Addison.

Very Telling. Ella, the faithful maid, was arranging her mistress' hair one afternoon when she mentioned that she had heard Miss Allen sing in the parlor the evening before.

King Alfonso's Joke. King Alfonso told President Poincare's snoring party at Rambouillet an amusing story of a trick he played once on his minister in Spain.

MISSED AS USUAL. A rabbit moving slowly through the grass, about fifteen yards away. It fired both barrels and missed as usual, but the rabbit still remained in sight. Once more the minister fired. He fired in all thirteen cartridges and at just about that moment—

REFUNDED THE SURPLUS.

A Financial Scheme That Carried a Surplus With it. A story about some members of the Epworth league in Brooklyn has been suppressed up to now, but "murder" by the young ladies of the league decided to give an entertainment and reception. The entertainment was planned to cost a little money for music and incidentals, but it had to be given as an accompaniment of the reception at the church. Well just divide the $180 up and send it back to those who contributed. "Well, said one young committee woman. "That's just what we'll do and we'll do it right away," said another member of the committee.

Only a Misunderstanding. Several years ago in a well known wholesale house in a big manufacturing town an old bachelor bookkeeper, who had been many years with the firm, suddenly announced that he was to be married.

TEACHING JOURNALISM

On the Wayne Herald.—An old newspaper man who has been suggested as a professor to teach journalism in a university makes the complaint that while his class is largely made up of men and women who are "college-bred," who can translate Latin and Greek and speak two or three modern languages, they cannot write good English and he is greatly troubled over the matter. He says that if his pupils are really trying to get a vocational education and leave his class prepared to do newspaper work they must know how to write terse, correctly punctuated and paragraphed items in the English language. He says that the spelling is not of so much importance, for the linotype man or the proofreader will correct that, but those patient toilers can do nothing with badly constructed sentences, mixed metaphors and split infinitives.
He has encountered another difficulty. He says that these pupils of his know a great deal about Homer, Shakespeare, Cicero, Dante and many other persons of that type, but they know nothing about court room, a legislative hall, a political convention, improvement clubs, or anything else that they will be required to write about if they get a place on a newspaper. He says he looks upon his work as that of a strict disciplinarian who is to prepare his pupils for actual work in life, he does not know where to begin with them. He therefore concludes that "teaching journalism" to college-bred men and women is a very difficult task.

My foundation stock of sows were the best I could get—from such herds as O. N. Remington, Tom Miller, L. C. Loneragan, Rob't A. Schug and others. Come to this sale and see for yourself. I know you will find something that will suit you. Sows all guaranteed to be with pig; if not so, satisfactory settlement will be made.
