The regular session of district court which was expected to begin Monday with the aid of a jury was abruptly called off in advance on a motion of the decision of Fred and Paul Bruckner, two defaultants in suits, to allow their appeals and pay fines and costs imposed by the county court.
After they had been ordered to discontinue their cases, the necessity for a jury term disappeared. They were charged with assault and resisting an officer, and the total fines and costs amounted to $2140, which they paid. The men left for the Hastings territory.
Accordingly, the clerk of the district court was instructed to notify jurors that their services would not be required. As it costs about $10 a day to run the district court with a jury, the ending of the suits proves profitable to the county.
On Saturday the district court ordered a dome disconnecting the property of A. P. CITY CONVENTION NAMES CANDIDATES PLANNING FOR NEW NORMAL BUILDING

MAYOR CHACB RENOMINATED OLD STRUCTURE TO BE WRECKED
Inadequate Pumping Facilities Discussed at Meeting—Motion Proposing Bond Issue.

At a citizens' mass convention held in the city hall Friday evening, the following candidates, all present in person, were nominated for re-election...

Later at ward caucuses, these nominations were made: Councilmen, First ward, W. O. Hansen and Frank-Powers; councilman, Second ward, G. A. Lamheron; councilman, third ward, L. C. Gilderleeve.

After the nominations at the mass meeting, Mayor Chace was called for a speech, and he took advantage of the occasion to explain the inadequacy of present pumping facilities.

A general discussion of the condition needed and how it should be remedied was introduced asking the council to take steps to submit the question of bonds at the coming election for the purpose of improving the power plant as proposed.

When Napoleon was a young cadet he was asked the necessary conditions to the council: C. M. Craven, Belle W. Joy and J. G. Miles.

On being requested to retire, the candidate, enraged at the refusal, drew his sword and, sitting the balloon in several places, destroyed the apparatus which had been constructed with his labor and industry.

Such was Napoleon's first and last attempt to ascend in a balloon.

In one of the old Greek cities there stood long ago a statue. Every trace of it has long since passed away. But there is still in existence an epigram which gives an excellent description of it, and as we read of the words we can almost discover the form which this famous old Greek statue had. The statue should stand in every person's mind.

S. R. THEOBALD & CO. "THE RUBBER"

THE COMING BREAK

Lincoln Journal: A week before he made his address to congress on the tolls question the president had no intention of taking this step. The announcement that the address would be delivered came only after Congressman Underwood, the house leader, let it be known that he would not only vote against a bill to repeat the exemption but that he would speak against it from the floor of the house.

Congressmen Underwood is the big man of the house, and his sway there has thus far not been disputed. He has not been on the losing side of an important vote in the house since he assumed the leadership. For his sake the house once from floundered Mr. Bryan. He was the president's right hand man in the tariff struggle and did not permit the way of the currency bill. To have such a man clash with the president is a serious matter for the majority and for the question in dispute. That the president talks it is not indicated by the action he took.

Everybody knows that it is only a question of time till the present apparent solidarity of the majority party in congress disappears. The Washington correspondent of the New York Times says:

"Predictions have just been looking about the president's nomination of the minorities at both ends of the capital would end in the second year of his term. Most of his patronage would have been distributed. It was said that first flush of his victory at the polls would have faded, and congressmen, confronted by their own campaigns for reelection, would find it necessary to pay more attention to the demands of their constituents than to the broad policies of the president."

"While there is a feeling that the president will be victorious in his struggle for equal canal tolls, it is certain that the struggle in the senate, as in the house, will be severe. Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, chairman of the committee on military affairs, is opposed in any occasion to Great Britain. Senator O'Gorman of New York, chairman of the committee on intercommerce canals, which will handle the repeal proposition, said today that congress will face a similar struggle with fiscal ratification, which would authorize their opinion to repeal."

"The 'Congressman' Underwood the man to lead the breakaway from the president is as good a guess as a prophet can make at this time. The senate favors the material for a strong anti-Wilson leader. It lacks strong material for a Wilson leader for that matter, but Wilson himself can supply that lack. For want of a man to lead the hostile forces, the senate is likely to stand by the president longer than the house. But Underwood is a powerful, able leader and he is not able to grasp and appreciate the motive and principles governing the president. There seems to be no doubt that he is honest. He simply is not of the idealistic type of Wilson. He is the material of which honest stampeters are made, and when the break comes he will, in all probability be found leading the stampot democracy. His presidential aspirations make him the more likely candidate away from Wilson and liquid up a support of his own."

The canal tolls struggle will probably not precipitate the break that is bound to come. It looks as if this would be the starting point, however. The president must know that sooner or later he will lose his grip on the conservative wing of his party in congress and out. No doubt he is giving proper attention to bringing matters to pass in such a way that he will have his choice of battlefields.

Prof. March 9, 1901, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hightshier, milk and a half southeast of town.

Mention is made of the sixtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Cutler, aged respectively 92 and 90 years.

From Ponca Journal, March 14, 1884:
The Avenue broke up this place Wednesday with a boom that sent it out of its banks. The ice was nearly three feet thick.

The weather this week has been decidedly Marchy. Monday was a warm and beautiful day ending with a warm rain in the evening, which turned into a snow Tuesday morning, and a blizzard later in the day. Wednesday opened warm and pleasant again, and so continued during the day. Yesterday morning another Dakota freezer struck us, which concluded at noon, and the day closed with a thaw.

From Ponca Journal, March 18, 1889:
Another fine coat of snow was laid on the ground last night, which brings out all the sleighs and sleigh bells in the country this morning.

It is said that Covington is not leaving very rapidly, and that soon as the new town of Popony gets under full headway, it will swallow up what little has been left of Covington by the river.

On Monday morning there was a thin film of ice on the river at this point, over which two venturesome individuals crossed, and made their perilous journey with safety to the surprise of everybody.

Rev. J. A. Smith returned from a trip to St. James on Tuesday, and he reports that diptheria and measles are raging in that vicinity to an alarming extent. The measles have visited four families, with two or three cases in each.

Martinsburg is a fine little town and the most desirable location. It is situated very near the geographical center of the county, and at the intersection of the rich and beautiful valleys of Daily and South creeks, and in the nature of things, it will become a large and prosperous place. Especially will this be the case if the railroad be built up South creek. In that event, and in view of the fact that the southern part of the county is settling up very rapidly, it would not be surprising if Martinsburg should at no distant day become the county seat of this county.
