TRIBUTE BY MISS WHITE. When Ella True Connor passed away March 10, there ceased the life of a woman gifted along more lines than any one with whom I was ever intimately acquainted. She was a pupil of mine during her fifteenth and sixteenth years. At that time, with only the training received in the common school, and a refined home, she could draw correctly anything that she saw, and she could play and sing an ordinary piece of music without study. She wrote brilliantly at that time and all through her life, when moved by joy or sorrow, either her own or that of her friends, one might say she burst into song, and only ill health kept her from being widely known in the literary world. But her intimate friends will think these were the least of her accomplishments, as her sunny, loving disposition endeared her to all people, and was especially the friend of old people, and was never so busy that she neglected them. O heart, sore tried, thou hast the best That heaven itself could give thee—rest. How many a lone heart's blessing went With thee beneath the low green tent— Whose curtain never outward swings. —Charlotte M. White.

The "INTERNATIONAL" Commercial Car

Has Made Its Way by the Way It's Made.

A Simple One-Lever Control. Double System of Ignition. Constant Pressure Feed System of Lubrication. Only a few of the Distinctive Features of the International Commercial car.

Every man knows from experience the simpler a machine is the easier it is to care for, the less likely it is to get out of order, and the more cheaply it is repaired if it should get out of order. This is just as true of a motor as any other machine. It does not necessarily mean that a simple motor will do the work satisfactorily, but it is a proven fact that the simpler a motor is constructed and still does the work, the more desirable it is, and the better service it will give its owner. In purchasing a motor truck, it pays to look well to the motor. Upon the motor depends to a large extent the efficiency of the car. There are many little things that add to the appearance of a car which should not be overlooked, but the motor is the vital part. Its reputation and performance are the most important to the prospective customer. The requirements of a motor in a commercial vehicle are much more exacting than in a pleasure car. A business man will overlook delay and mishaps in a pleasure car that he cannot and will not tolerate in a commercial vehicle. The motor in a commercial car must be designed for commercial work, if it is to give the owner satisfactory service. The International motor is the type of motor used for heavy duty service for years. It is exceedingly simple in construction. It is of the two-cylinder opposed, four-cycle type. Having only two cylinders means less work to look after than a larger number, besides doing away with extra valves, springs, spark plugs and wiring, all of which add materially to the complication of the motor. The cylinders being opposed, one offsets the vibration of the other, so the motor runs smoothly. The different parts of the International motor are simply made, and all ordinary work that may be necessary can be done by the driver without the assistance of an expert mechanic. The valves are readily accessible. They can be taken out without breaking gaskets or removing the cylinder head. Spark plugs, carburetor, magneto, in fact, all parts of the motor are easily reached. Convenient doors in the body give access to every part. All adjustments can be made without removing the body or disturbing the load. The motor in the International Commercial Car has gone through six seasons of the hardest kind of tests, which proves that it is the right type of motor for commercial work. The type of motor has been unchanged from the beginning, the only changes being in the way of refinements which add to its durability and efficiency, and make it simpler and easier to operate. The International motor is built complete by the International Harvester company. The material is thoroughly analyzed by their chemists. As a result, we know absolutely what goes into every International motor—the material and workmanship are the very best.

BRIDGE AFFAIRS AS REPORTED IN DIXON

ACTION IN ADJOINING COUNTY

Committee Appointed to Investigate Bridge Building—Attorney Barry's Report.

The committee named in the following article from the Eastern Enterprise, met in Emerson Monday, with Attorney Fred S. Berry of Wayne, in attendance. The committee decided to meet with the county commissioners and limit that no more funds be transferred from the general fund to the bridge fund, and that no part of a certain sum of money claimed by the Standard Bridge company be owing by Dixon county be paid until an investigation had been made to determine whether or not the liability...

(Emerson Enterprise.) Gus A. Iensburg who is elected chairman of the meeting of the taxpayers held here two weeks ago yesterday has not been idle, and after a careful investigation has appointed the following committee—two from each precinct—to further investigate the bridge proposition and other transactions of county supervisors of Dixon county: G. L. Wood, William Scott, Ed Wilkerson, Cliff Gibbs, Van Donald, Charles L. Wood, E. C. McDaniel, F. C. Kavanaugh, H. S. Collins, Henry Kohler, Walter Hart, Herman Schultz, Pat McGuire, and John Bartleson.

For the benefit of the taxpayers who were not at the meeting held here two weeks ago, we publish below the summary secured by Attorney Barry, and read at the meeting.

Statement Regarding Bridge Affairs in Dixon County.

Property valuations for year 1913, $4,600,810.00.

A four-mill levy was made for bridge purposes which would raise the sum of about $18,000.

From August 7, 1912, to June 12, 1913, warrants were issued by the county to the Standard Bridge company, and paid, which amounted to the sum of $46,657.77, which was paid for bridge work done in the year 1912 under the 1912 contracts.

The above sum paid to the Standard Bridge company does not include considerable repair work done on bridges by other parties in the different road districts, which the county clerk in charge to be believed would amount to at least $5,000. This would make the total cost for the 1912 bridges and repair work $51,657.77.

The bills on file in the county clerk's office by the Standard Bridge company show that the total cost of bridges during the year 1913 amounted to $37,272.50. This is the amount charged for thirty-two new bridges and repair work on twenty-one other bridges.

On September 16, 1913, the county board audited an estimate bill of the Standard Bridge company for $5,000; this was filed in the county clerk's office on September 16, 1913, and was paid on February 7, 1914, by warrant number 1864.

On November 12, 1913, warrant number 1931 was issued to the Standard Bridge company and paid on said date. On January 7, 1914, warrant number 1980, was issued to the Standard Bridge company for $2,272.50, and this warrant has been paid. This makes a total amount of $12,272.50, which has already been paid to the Standard Bridge company for work done during the year 1913.

On August 14, 1913, ten warrants of $1,000 each and numbering from 2272 to 2289 inclusive were issued to the Standard Bridge company. These warrants are still outstanding and unpaid and we understand have been sold by the Standard Bridge company to a loan and trust company in Chicago, Ill.

On September 16, 1913, the Standard Bridge company filed an estimate claim which is in no way itemized, for $5,600. This claim was acknowledged in writing on the claim to be correct by the county commissioners, and on September 17, 1913, the claim was sold and transferred to the Bank of Dixon county at Ponca.

On September 16, 1913, a second claim or estimate was filed by the bridge company for $5,000 which was also certified to as correct, and this claim has been sold to the Bank of Dixon County.

On December 18, 1913, the Standard Bridge company filed another estimate claim for $5,000 which was certified to as being correct by the county commissioners, and this claim on December 19, 1913, was also assigned to the Bank of Dixon county, making a total indebtedness of $25,000 claimed by the bridge company to still be due and owing to it from the county.

In addition to the above, we understand that as much as $5,000 for repair work and culvert work was paid to the First Dodge Culvert company and others for work during the year 1913, which would make the total cost of bridges and repair work for the year 1913 $42,272.50.

On November 12, 1913, the board passed a resolution to the effect that twenty-three other bridges to be built and repaired under the 1912 contract.

On December 19, 1913, the bridge contract for the year 1914 was awarded to the Standard Bridge company; the contract in behalf of the county being signed by all members of the board.

Transfers of money from the general fund to the bridge fund:

SPECIAL MEETING OF THE MEN OF CHURCH

The brotherhood of the Presbyterian church held its successful social meeting last Friday evening at the home of L. A. Kiplinger. The meeting was presided over by F. G. Philles, who introduced Supt. J. H. Kemp as the first speaker of the evening. Mr. Kemp gave a most instructive and interesting review of the book of Proverbs, well called "The Business Man's Best Manual." He spoke of the writer and compilation of the book, and described the nature of the book's teachings, and commended it as a book which sets forth the practical side of the religious life in the clearest manner. A paper was next read by Dr. C. T. Igham on "Hygiene in the City and on the Farm" which was listened to most attentively as it dealt with the prevention of disease and pointed out common ways in which the average person helps on the progress of typhoid among men and cholera among bugs. In the discussion which followed the paper, the uncovered city stand-pipe came in for censure.

The program was finished with an interesting discussion on "How to Live Up a Community on the Side of the Right." A number took part in the debate, the general opinion being that just at present the consistent Christian needed above all else to win over the careless and selfish citizens to Christianity, as a larger number of active Christians is the crying need of the average community in upholding social ideals, and destroying evil institutions which hinder moral progress.

During the program classic selections of "Imported music" were rendered by a "Victor" loaned to the brotherhood for the evening by F. H. Jones. Before separating, the company was served with light refreshments prepared by Mrs. C. C. Kiplinger, assisted by Mrs. Corley and Lucile Corley. The refreshments were served by Messrs. F. E. Gamble and L. A. Kiplinger, who proved themselves accomplished waiters. The next social meeting will be held in a few weeks and will consist of a "program" given to the brotherhood by the president.

HERALD EXCHANGE GLEANINGS OF WEEK

Allen News: The two Wayne papers are making preparations to issue booster editions, and the proposition is being financially backed by the Commercial club, business men and farmers of the community. Several thousand copies are to be printed and sent out throughout the country advertising Wayne county. Randolph Times: The auction sale of the L. F. Holtz property last Friday afternoon brought out quite a nice crowd and numerous bidders. The residence property was sold to John Miller at $3,200—a very reasonable price indeed for this splendid and well located property. Mr. Miller does not expect to occupy the place for at least a year. The vacant lots were sold to E. E. Ballard at $347.50 each. These are desirable. The auction plan for real estate selling has not been used much here, but elsewhere has been found a good means of selling.

Harrington Herald: The Lydick harness shop was the center of considerable excitement yesterday afternoon, when Sheriff McFadden and Marshal Wallace backed a dray up to the door and commenced to load it with goods. The enraged proprietor undertook to defend his stock with a long knife, and the sheriff was compelled to seize the goods at the point of a gun. Great excitement prevailed, and a crowd quickly gathered. This move was the outcome of an attachment suit brought by Iranselon Bros. against the Lydicks for damages on account of an alleged breach of contract. The case will be tried on April 16. The Lydicks have retained Attorney Burkett, and will seek to "repeal" the goods which are now in the possession of the Iranselon boys. The amount of the attachment suit is about $300. The following paragraph from the West Point Democrat refers to a ge...

man who is known here, and whose daughter, Miss Emma, used to be a teacher in the Wayne public schools. Rev. Mr. Schwarm of Holden, returned recently from Rochester, Minn., where he consulted the famous Mayo Brothers in regard to his stomach trouble. They pronounced his ailment an ulcer of the stomach, which may yield to treatment without the necessity of a surgical operation. Mrs. Edwell mentioned in the following from the West Point Democrat is the father of Mrs. John Soules of Wayne, and used to live here. The G. H. Cadwell family sold their household goods on auction on the street last Saturday, Tuesday morning, they departed for Prairie Grove, Ark., where they will make their home.

Barrington has for several years followed a practice in the matter of buying chickens that might well be adopted by other towns. A committee is chosen to select one calculator for each business man, and the result seems to give satisfaction as well as reduce the cost.

Dakota county has taken steps to employ a farm demonstrator. As the Herald understands, the purpose is to promote more scientific and more intensive farming, and thus increase production. Seven other counties have farm demonstrators. Wayne county should not be behind in a movement which will add to its agricultural wealth. If a farm demonstrator is desirable, we should have one. There is no other county in agriculture in the state than Wayne. Let it give every possible advantage to make it better.

Leaders of the two factions of the republican party are making an effort to get together, and have only one set of candidates in the field in this year's campaign. Union would seem to be for the only hope of defeating dem.

crats. If party leaders and office seekers are willing to sacrifice possible victory because of stubborn regard for imaginary differences, the masses in either wing should not suffer loss of sleep over results. It is to be assumed that democrats—especially those yearning for offices—would be well pleased to have division continue in the ranks of the opposition.

OBITUARY

(By Her Pastor)
FRUITA M. E. JOHNSON THARP was born May 22, 1842, in De Kalb county, Ill., where she resided with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Johnson, until she reached her young womanhood. On December 28, 1859, she was united in marriage to Leta Robert Tharp, of which union were raised eight children, Franklin Tharp and Eva I. Wagner (both now deceased), Harry Grant Tharp of Pueblo, Colo., George Leslie Tharp of Spencer, Neb., Mary Alta Killinger of Omaha, Neb., with whom she resided at her death, Ellen Gemmill of Carroll, Neb., Roy N. Tharp of Wayne, and Frederick Arthur Tharp of Bayard, Neb.

At an early age, she became a member of the Baptist church, and lived a consistent christian all her life, being at the time of her death a member of the Baptist church at Wayne, Neb. In the early '70's, she removed with her husband and family to Shenandoah, Ia., where she resided until 1896, when she again removed with her husband and family to Pierce, Neb., where she resided for a short time, but finally settled at Carroll, and later came to the city of Wayne, where she lived until after the death of her husband. In October, 1913, she went to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. George Killinger, at Iman, Neb., where she lived as a patient sufferer, keeping to her bed most of the time, until death claimed her on the twenty-first of March, 1914, at 11 o'clock a. m., she being 71 years, 9 months and 30 days of age.

Mrs. Tharp lived to round out a life full of good deeds, and usefulness. She was a consistent christian, a devoted wife, a true mother, and a kind and gracious neighbor and friend, always ready and willing to use her influence on the side of righteousness. She lived in the pioneer days of her country, raised a large family, and contributed much to the communities wherein her life was cast, and the world bettered because she lived.

Mrs. Tharp had some beautiful qualities as a christian and church member. She loved the services of the church. So long as she was able, she habitually met at the hours of worship. Her testimony at our mid-week prayer meetings was always characterized by a spirit of love, devotion, humility, and trust. Her presence never failed to add to the spirit of the meetings. Another thing—neglecting her life work was that until her eyesight failed she faithfully studied her bible. She knew its promises; she recognized its teachings, and she rested her life upon its hope and saviour. After she could no longer read its pages, her meditations were centered around its precious truths.

One of the difficult experiences of her life was when through poor health she was compelled to put aside her church privileges and duties. When she recognized this, she did a most gracious thing, trusting her love for the church. Of her limited estate, in making her bequests, she left a nice gift to the church, as her farewell offering to her Lord and saviour. Her memory lives among the people as one who sincerely and faithfully endeavored to please her Lord.

Mrs. Tharp now rests from her labors. She has put off the veil, put aside earthly limitations, and has been ushered into that eternal, perfect, painless, limitless life, and her works do follow after her.

A short religious service was held at her home at the residence of Mr. George Killinger at Iman, conducted by Mrs. Killinger's pastor, Rev. A. L. Norvick, Methodist minister, after which the body was taken to Wayne, where funeral services were had in the Baptist church, conducted by Rev. Richardson, the Baptist minister, after which her remains were interred beside those of her husband in the family lot in Greenwood cemetery.

From Wayne Herald, March 31, 1904: About 140 citizens attended a mass meeting to protest against the reckless driving of automobiles and endorsed resolutions condemning the way the new-fangled vehicles are operated.

From Ponce Journal, March 28, 1884: An account is given in the Evening Item, of a peculiar freak of nature which exists in the northern part of Holt county. The Item says that when wells are dug a great amount of thumping, thrashing, roaring and blowing takes place underground, frequently of so alarming a nature that well diggers abandon their work altogether, and drive shafts instead. It is claimed by some that they see a connection between the phenomenon and the Dixon county volcanic phenomenon at Ionia.

They do not know, they do not respect, they do not share the gentle usage, on the milk the sand-dreg, STATESMEN cow; they do not build, they do not till, they toil not in the waxy-milk-ner guide the milk-draw plow. We've found them, tell us—are grand, black and young ones are though just made and shipped last Friday. And every living critter feels the influence of youth within it, and in the air it kicks its heels, and yells with rapture every minute.

From Ponce Journal, April 1, 1880: A large number of prairie schooners pass through town, bound west, every day, with families, cattle, horses, furniture, and everything necessary to settle up the country. It is reported that Dakota City is to have a new newspaper to be edited by Father Martin. Father Martin is an excellent writer, and it is to be hoped that he will now finish in the newspaper, the admirable tale in real life. "The conflict: love or money," the publication of which was interrupted a year ago.

Thunder and lightning entwined the scene Tuesday evening. A few sprinkles of rain, sufficient to moisten a mosquito's back. The town of Pomeroy, near Covington, which eventually will take the place of Covington, is not growing very rapidly this spring. It will no doubt sprout out after a while.

Uncle Walt The Poet Philosopher

If man enjoys his daily vintages, he is a happy nib; he need not care if Fortuna whirls a stick

THE GOOD APPETITE APPEARS TO profit his ribs. In times of stress and grim disaster, if appetites survive, then men just throw in the towel. No woe or troubles can kerkulmism the men who like to eat, who are equipped with mad stomachs that simply can't be beat. Should Fate, that grim and grisly spinner of grief, camp on my trail, if I can have a good-sauce dinner, her buffets won't avail. The men who bow before disaster, who tremble and repent, to whom we stick to like a plaster, are those who do not eat. Napoleon, to good fighters partial, once combed his scented wool, and said, "Men can't be brave and martial unless their tanks are full." Eat me but eat a roasted turkey, well stuffed, in farmhouse style, and though the outlook's dark and murky, I still shall sing and smile. I may be victim of abuse, and woes may come in troops, but let me eat a pair of geese, and I don't care three whoops.

The horses shed their winter hair until the stable's full of whiskers; the house E. handmen repair their HARBINGERS cultivators and their diskers. The fireplace now has lost its charm, the rocking chair has lost its splendor, and every spring upon the E. is rupturing with best expenditure. The hens are cackling every day, with optimism glad and sunny—the same fool hens that wouldn't lay in winter time, when eggs cost money. The farmer has ten thousand chores, and bumps with energy and surprising, and everywhere, all out of doors, the glad sounds of spring are rising. The joyous robins and the wrens are warbling in the trees like singers, and 'er the dippy guinea hens, imagine they are concert singers. The old gray male, who has no voice (although the blamed best never knew), attempts to make the world rejoice by imitating Brer Caruso. Old Winter's day at last is 'er—it's a sort of sob-and-sigh day; the world, seemt break and young ones are though just made and shipped last Friday.

more than fifty hens could rear. She ought to rest her scratching legs, get down to tactics and lay some eggs, which bring the valued bucks; but in her vain perversity and she says, "I'm derved if I will lay," and bands out foolish clucks. And many one are just the same; they play some idle, trifling game, and think they're raving wood; they hate the work that's demanded, the jobs that count they cannot stand, and all their toil's no good.

Of all fried days this is the best, for men who earnestly have toiled; it would'n't have a keener FRIDAY REST! REST! If it was demanded or stewed or boiled. For now the week draws to its close, and we, who worked to gain the prize, look forward to the sweet repose the Sabbath brings to weary guys. Pull down the wages we have earned with come to us, the plunks, the rocks; and will those wages then be burned, or thrown at owls and chicken-hawks? Shall we go forth and blow the coals, to gather which we sprained our thews, and distorted back and loins, and tore the half-soles from our shoes? Ah, no! The passing years have brought some wisdom, and we're frugal now; each man will toddle to his cot, and hand the bullock to the frau. On Friday, with reward in sight, the cheerful toiler turns his crank, and thinks of how with same delight, he'll place three dollars ($3) in the bank. The week grows old, 'twill soon be sped, and ye have rocks who for them chased; but those who point the village road have nothing but a dark green taste.

To Saturday it would be hard to hand too much of honest praise; it certainly inspires the bard to SATURDAY put up fifty-seven lays.

All day are the workers who their household ways, each announced with his man. It's nothing makes us more serene than knowing we have bravely wrought to earn the package of long green which to the wives and kids we've brought. And when the week and whistles blow, I announce with his man. It's nothing makes us more serene than knowing we have bravely wrought to earn the package of long green which to the wives and kids we've brought. And when the week and whistles blow, I announce with his man. It's nothing makes us more serene than knowing we have bravely wrought to earn the package of long green which to the wives and kids we've brought.
