REPORT OF DEATH OF DR. W. S. LEWIS DENIED

It appears the report that Dr. W. S. Lewis had been shot and killed in Mexico, is not true. His son, C. L. Lewis, living at Gregory, S. D., has forwarded to John S. Lewis, jr., of Wayne, a letter from Secretary of State Bryan, saying assurance had been given by a representative of this government in Mexico that both Dr. and Mrs. Lewis were alive. How the report started is not known.

OMAHA HAS INCREASED CHURCH ATTENDANCE

Omaha, March 30.—According to figures furnished by the pastors of the several churches in greater Omaha, 88,651 persons attended divine services at one or another of the churches yesterday. This is an increase over the normal attendance of 14,961. This increase in attendance, due to the "go-to-church" movement, is reported entirely by the Protestant churches, the Catholic churches retaining normal attendance figures with no showing of additional devotion due to the day's special purpose. The Protestant churches give their normal Sunday morning attendance at 13,266 and the morning attendance for yesterday at 22,275, a gain for the day of 8,988. For the evening service the normal figures are 8,914, and the special service figures are 15,066, a gain for Sunday evening of 6,142.

The bride and groom responded, feelingly expressing their appreciation of this token of friendship. Miss Bernice Moler, then appropriately sang "Silver Threads Among the Gold." After this, an elaborate four-course wedding dinner was served by the granddaughters. It was now realized that something had been overlooked. It was the ceremony. This was elaborately performed, using silver, gold, and all the paraphernalia of the occasion, and some quibbling about having no license and no fee, Mr. and Mrs. Moler were ready to receive the congratulations of friends. It was a delightful occasion, and a privilege enjoyed by all who could be "in the way." Then did He continue on his way, with a great multitude following Him; up and over the ridge, then gradually down the slope swept the long procession. Before them in all their beauty and grandeur lay the fair city of Jerusalem. From the city there came a great multitude to welcome the Christ. Thus, amid a great throng, was the lowly Nazarene ushered into the city in triumph.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY MEETING A SUCCESS

(By Miss M. M. White.) The twenty-seventh annual meeting of the Presbyterial Women's Missionary society met in the Presbyterian church at Wakefield March 26 and 27.

The Wakefield church was beautifully decorated with blooming plants for the occasion.

The praise service was conducted by Miss Bernice Hunting, one of our missionaries of Syria, who is home now on a furlough. After a hymn by one of our young ladies and a solo solo by Mr. Birman, a young business man of Wakefield, Miss Hunting gave us a most interesting talk about evangelistic work in northern Syria.

Friday morning, after an executive meeting and devotions, Miss Haskell of Wakefield, expressed cordial greetings. We then listened to reports of officers from local societies, which gave us a good idea of the prosperous condition of our society.

Mrs. Angell of Valentine, showed on a map of the world the station of each missionary whom we are supporting. She also talked briefly.

The Wakefield ladies had prepared in the afternoon session following devotional services, was devoted first to hearing reports of committees and election of officers, and then to a talk by Miss Hunting who explained educational work in Syria.

A paper by Mrs. Elliott, for years superintendent of literature of our society, was read. She emphasized the importance of prayer and the reading of literature that will lead one to pray intelligently. An excellent report of the synodical meeting by Mrs. Lloyd Cunningham was read.

A meeting of delegates representing the C. E. was held separately.

At the evening session, following music, Rev. Farmer of Madison gave a pleasing address on "The Triumph of Christianity."

The sessions were presided over in an able manner by our new president, Mrs. J. G. Mines of Wayne.

The hospitality of the Wakefield homes was of course spontaneous and cordial.

ELECTIONS IN IOWA CITIES ON TUESDAY

Sioux City, Ia., March 31.—Mayor A. V. Smith was re-elected for a third term over Jonathan W. Brown in one of the hottest municipal campaigns in the history of the municipal plan of government in Sioux City. Smith polled 4534 votes; Brown 4125. Rudolph Hecron and Elmer Wickley were selected to the council by safe margins. John Dineen, a former chief of police of Sioux City, and J. M. Lewis won the other places on the aldermanic ticket. By the use of voting machines, the result was known an hour after the polls closed.

Bluffs Mayor Defeated.

Council Bluffs, Io., March 31.—M. B. Snyder, republican candidate for mayor of Council Bluffs, defeated Mayor Thomas J. Maloney, who was running for his fourth term, in the city election yesterday by a majority of 180. Dr. Snyder is a successful practicing physician who has lived in Council Bluffs for thirty-five years. He is a brother of Dr. J. L. Snyder, president of the Michigan Agricultural college at Lansing.

Des Moines Votes Confused.

Des Moines, Ia., March 31.—Confusion of voters over the ballot used in the municipal waterworks election yesterday was given as a reason for the defeat of the measure by its friends today. It seemed almost certain that the bond issue had lost, even though the people had voted "yes" on the question of municipal ownership by a substantial majority. The ballot contained two questions after it had been announced yesterday morning that only one proposition would have to be voted upon.

Verification of the vote of candidates for mayor and city council early today showed that Mayor James R. Hanna had been reelected to his third term by almost a two to one vote over Zell G. Roe, the former police commissioner. Jacob M. Leonard, the labor candidate for council, who appeared to have been beaten in early returns last night, was successful according to the verified count by nearly 150 votes. The other commissioners were J. I. Myers (reelected), Fred German and W. F. Mitchell.

REPUBLICANS PLAN TO HOLD CONVENTION

Lincoln, March 31.—One convention to be called by two committees is the net outcome of the conference between the two factions of the republican party, as represented by their committees in Lincoln yesterday.

Agreement on this course was reached late yesterday afternoon. It was decided upon in order that no question might be raised as to the legality of the call. The convention is to be held on July the executive committee was the result of an agreement between Chairman Currier of the straight republican committee and Chairman Epperson of the "progressive" republican committee.

WAYNE STUDENT WINS IN HUMOROUS CLASS

TEACHERS' BIG MEETING Mrs. Littell Elected Secretary—H. Kemp Boomed for State Superintendent.

The attendance at the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Omaha Nebraska Teachers' association at Norfolk last week was unprecedented, the number of teachers and others present exceeding five hundred. Wayne teachers who attended pronounced the meeting the best ever held.

In the declamatory contest Thursday night, Russell Myers, student of the Wayne high school, and son of Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Myers of this place, won first prize in the humorous, and Wayne people are pleased over the successful effort of the young man. A year ago, another Wayne student, Hays Main, won a first place in the declamatory contest. Following is a list of the prize winners:

- Oratorical class: First—Roy Carson, Madison, "A Plea for Cuba." Second—Ethyle Beckford, Okada, "Spartacus to the Gladiator." Dramatic class: First—Grant McFarland, Stanton, "The Shepherd's Story." Second—George Cross, Wisner, "The Death Disc."

Honorous class: First—Russell Myers, Wayne, "In the Foot of the Emery." Second—Vera Carson, Pilger, "The Debaring Society."

In the election of officers, Mrs. Elsie Littell, county superintendent of Wayne county, was chosen secretary. Following is the list: President, Supt. E. S. Cowan, Albion.

Vice President, Supt. L. J. Knoll, Randolph. Secretary, County Superintendent Elsie Littell, Wayne.

Treasurer, County Superintendent N. A. Housel, Madison.

The members of the Wayne high school orchestra furnishing the music for the convention did exceedingly well and were commended on every hand for their playing.

During the convention, a good-sized boom was started by the teachers of the association for Supt. J. H. Kemp of Wayne, for state superintendent. Opinion that the Wayne man ought to get into the job was freely expressed and stoutly supported. It was pointed out in favor of Mr. Kemp that as a democrat he would have an opportunity not usually presented in the nomination that Mr. DeWolf and Mr. Kemp would fight to a finish in the primary for the republican nomination, and that as a result the victor would go into the election with diminished party support. It also pointed out that north of Omaha there is a candidate. Mr. Kemp has not decided as yet whether he will be a candidate or not.

COUPLAND CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED HIMSELF

George Coupland of Elgin, has announced his candidacy for regent of the state university to succeed himself. While he favors university consolidation with the agricultural college, he wishes to follow the traces. Covering that point in his statement, he says:

"After a most exhaustive study of the question of consolidation, I am led to the firm conviction that for the state's best interests, both economically and educationally, and especially for the interest of the student body it would be a wise thing to put the university's several activities all together upon the campus."

"I am most thoroughly convinced that it would be greatly to the detriment of the agricultural college and its student body as well as its teaching force to physically separate this college from the other colleges of the university, and I am also convinced that there would be a general benefit to the whole student body should the voters determine consolidation upon one campus to be the policy for future university development. Should the people of the state decide to separate the agricultural college from the main university and develop it by itself upon the state farm and extend the downtown campus and the other colleges here, I shall again extend to assist in a wise and judicious use of the money now voted, and give to the university, whether united or divided, my most hearty support and service. The university has forty years of history behind it and the centuries ahead of it."

More fortunate for the partner, he did not sink so deep into the snow, and after six hours of struggling was able to release himself. Though the snow had thawed and settled, a great deal of the remains were covered to a depth of eight feet. To Mr. Stegemier was entrusted the sad mission of conveying the young man's body to the anxious and heartbroken mother at Minneapolis.

THE EGG-PANIC

Lincoln Journal. Terrible tales of an impending flood of eggs come now to the poultryman's ears. China is getting ready to flood the country with the fruit of its hens. The tariff bars are down, and eggs are to rush in like water through a crevasse in a Mississippi levee. Let the producer of eggs prepare to be ware.

If we were an egg producer we should not quit the business just yet, spite of these terrors. The reason is, these Chinese eggs are as yet only talk. True, one case of the same has appeared in Lincoln, but it was not allowed to glut the local market. It was exhibited for the benefit of the curious and then passed on for exhibition in other cities. Stage eggs will never drive the American hen off the perch. That will take eggs for eating and lots of them. It is yet to be proved that all China has enough eggs to spare to make one square Easter for the United States.

An egg producer should construe this further fact before wringing the necks of his hens. The removal of the tariff on eggs last October did not fill the foreign world with eggs. Canadian, Chinese, Indian, Siberian, and Australian hens laid approximately the same number of eggs last March that they are laying this March. If now a rush of eggs develops from those countries to this it is because they can get a higher price here than they have been getting there. But our eggs have already been selling in the markets of the world in competition with those eggs, and necessarily at the same price, quality for quality. Are the Chinese likely to sell their eggs here for less than we are getting for eggs in our England? We should not think so. Water does not often run up hill. But even supposing a broadside of eggs from China. Who has been having all the eggs he wanted? Few of us. The demand for eggs is highly elastic. Let the price go lower and we return to the ancient practice of eating two pieces for breakfast, whereas recently only millionaires could afford more than one. That will stop the sag in price in short order. In a world by no means overfed we cannot imagine a surfeit of that best of foods, eggs, and a corresponding panic to that best of friends, the poultryman. This, too, the poultrymen would do well coldly to observe. We are now at the beginning of the season when the cold storage men buy eggs. Naturally the cold storage men would like to buy their supply cheap. Anything that scares the poultryman into expecting cheap eggs helps to make eggs cheap. And cold storage men are human, just as human as the bulls who get a army worm scares in the Chicago wheat pit. Devilmint is frequently disguised as discipline. No one can chase the neighbor's chickens in a dignified manner.

Probably the best advice in the world is this: Ignore your enemies. Often there isn't much difference between a selfish interest and a heartfelt conviction. When a man goes out looking for revenge, it is hard to satisfy him with something just as good. When a man's wife begins sweeping around him, he is apt to develop a grouse which is constitutional government. In winter a man is always ready for spring, and in summer he is always ready for winter. A man is twice as contrary as a mule. Only another Mere Personal opinion said out loud: Why will a man insist that church is dull, and then attend lodge six nights in a week?

Candidates for county and legislative offices may be expected to come to the surface and announce themselves before long.

Slushing around in the mud on Main street this week emphasizes the need of paving. The improvement would increase the value of business buildings and make them more desirable and more eagerly sought. The Commercial club committee might well arouse renewed effort in that direction.

Church Howe has taken a position in favor of granting the electoral franchise to women in Nebraska. As toastmaster at the recent legislative banquet he said this in the course of his words of welcome to the delegation of ladies: "I believe the mothers, wives and daughters of Nebraska have as much intelligent interest in Nebraska affairs as the fathers and sons have. So I welcome you here at the threshold of your full enjoyment of all the privileges we have as Americans and Nebraskans."

The street car company at Lincoln has been asked to lower car steps to accommodate women whose tight skirts make it impossible to get on and off with decency and embarrassment, and it looks as though the company intended to do it. It would seem easier to have a derrick attachment to each car for the purpose of hoisting women on and off as long as the tan skirts remain in style. The derrick could be made detachable, and easily removed when trousers are decreed and come into general fashion.

Increased business over a year ago seems to be the rule. Also the prospect for lively trade appears encouraging. Local business houses are stocked up heavily, and are prepared to meet an enlarged volume of business. One thing: People should pay cash as often as possible. The extra five per cent discounts to run beyond a month. The cash habit keeps a man posted as to how he stands with the world, and enables the dealer to meet his obligations promptly. Every one should follow as nearly a cash policy as possible. It is better for the seller and better for the buyer. The advantage is mutual.

It is announced that Governor Morehead will not be a candidate to succeed himself, but instead will make an effort for the shoes filled by Congressman Maquire. Several democrats have their eyes on the governorship. George W. Berg of Lincoln, is already an avowed candidate, having issued a platform on which he has planted his boom or boomlet. Charles Bryan of Lincoln, and W. H. Thompson of Grand Island, are other democrats spoken of as likely to enter the race for governor. It promises to be a merry fight for the nomination. On the republican side, State Treasurer George F. Broken Bow, and Dan Keller of Beatrice are mentioned as probable candidates for governor.

Will M. Maupin of Lincoln, takes issue with Congressman Dan V. Stephens over his primary plan. Maupin thinks the newspapers should have been rewarded with postoffice appointments, and the congressman apparently thinks that way of dealing out appointments would be virtually buying support. Maupin thinks that an editor is not overly popular in his community and is not apt to win in a primary, but he holds that an editor helps materially in keeping the political organization together and that his efforts in that direction deserve something more substantial than kind words. Anyway, editors who have been defeated in the primaries appear uniformly and manifestly sore, and there seems little likelihood that they can be persuaded to forgive and forget.

A lengthy article contributed to last week's Wakefield Republican makes some startling statements regarding the young men of that town. It states that an investigation shows that out of sixty-six unmarried young men over 16 years of age, five of them indulge in intoxicating drinks. The fact that Wakefield has had no saloons for many years makes the statement all the more surprising and inconceivable. The article also states that forty-one of the sixty-six young men investigated are addicted to gambling. If the report is true, it presents a condition which may well stir citizens to earnest effort to find more useful and healthful aims for young energy and ambition. If the report does not represent the young men correctly, it does them a serious injustice.

BRANCH OF KELLEY'S ARMY HITS LINCOLN

Lincoln, April 1.—Thirty members of the original Kelley's army of California arrived in Lincoln last night from Hastings. Thirty officers of the "army" were met by Sheriff Myers on the outskirts of the city and taken to the county jail where the sheriff provided them with a bountiful supper and supplied them with enough to feed the privates. The men said they would show their appreciation of the good treatment by moving on.

their intended destination being Omaha where a junction might be effected with the branch of the army which left Denver over the Union Pacific railway while they came on the Burlington. They did not intend to go to Washington, they said.

Up in a certain part of the Fagel soul country the average rainfall in a year is 72 inches. It rains almost all the time. A missionary came among the Indians in that section and began preaching to them. He held the interest of the inhabitants until one day when he preached to them about the flood. He told them it rained forty days and forty nights and that the world was punished, describing the adventures of Noah and the Ark. He was much distressed when his congregation rose and left the place while he was yet telling about the flood.

"What's the matter?" he asked one of them. "Why did they all go out before I had finished my sermon?"

"Rubbish!" said the Indian. "No one here has been 100 days and 100 nights and no good yet!" Saturday Evening Post.

CAN YOU DOUBT IT?

When the Proof Can Be So Easily Investigated.

When so many grateful citizens of Wayne testify to benefit derived from Doan's Kidney Pills, you doubt the evidence? The proof is not far away—it is almost at your door. Read what a resident of Wayne says about Doan's Kidney Pills. Can you demand more convincing testimony?

Mrs. Ira Hoshorn, Wayne, Neb. says: "About a year ago, I was confined to my bed for several weeks by an attack of lagraisse and on recovering found that my kidneys were badly disordered. I suffered intensely from sharp, darting pains across the small of my back, and there was much lameness through my joints. I did not rest well and the kidney secretions were unnatural. After taking Doan's Kidney Pills a few days, I felt better, and in about three weeks, all symptoms of the trouble disappeared. I have never had a return-attack."

From the Ponca Journal, April 4, 1884:

The river broke up opposite this place Saturday. A gorge one mile above here caused an overflow for a few hours Saturday afternoon, and people in the upper bottom began moving to the high lands, but soon the water receded and they returned to their homes. The ice was now all melted. A ferry boat that came down with the ice is lodged on a bar near Bartzley's mill, probably from Vermillion, as the one at that place was taken out with the break-up.

The case which is attracting the most attention, and taking the most time of the court—is the action brought by James Crawford against the village of Ponca for $3,000 damages, on account of two broken ribs and other injuries received in fall from a sidewalk in this place in 1879. The trial which was commenced Wednesday morning, has been going on since, and will probably be given to the jury this afternoon. L. S. Fawcett of Sioux City, La. R. Payne of this place, are attorneys for the plaintiff, and Gantt & Norris are for the defendant.

The train which left this place for Sioux City Wednesday morning met with an accident at Brady's Crossing, six miles from here, by spreading of the rails. The train was made up of several freight cars and a passenger coach. At the place of the accident was a soft piece of track, which was passed over by the engine and the freight, but when the coach struck it, she went off the rails, and after bumping along on the ties about a mile length turned over on her side in the mud. There was nearly a car full of passengers, and strange to say all right up to the accident only receiving a slightly bruised hand. That part of the train which was not derailed went on to Covington and extra was sent on to get upon the rails again at about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Nothing was broken, not even a car link.

From the Ponca Journal, April 8, 1880:

The town election came off on Tuesday, and resulted in the election of Messrs. Stough and Gamble and Keys, Wheeler, Schuur and Smith, by the largest majority ever received in this place. There were two other tickets brought into the field in the morning, the candidates on which were all good and reliable men, yet shortly after the polls opened, a man lately from Dakota territory procured tickets to be printed on which were the names of Messrs. Stough and Gamble, and the reverend gentlemen above mentioned.

Note of these gentlemen, excepting Mr. Stough, who was on all the tickets, having been suggested for the office of trustee by anybody else than the Dakota territory man, and such candidates themselves being utterly ignorant of the municipal affairs which he was apparently seeking to thrust upon them, many of our citizens, without respect to party, considered that his action was designed, not so much to elect them, as to cast a causeless and gratuitous slur on worthy gentlemen who never had officiously interfered with the management of town affairs.

Accordingly, to rebuke an act which in the beginning appeared so needlessly abusive, our voters at once abandoned the other tickets, and turning the business vote into the correct reality, triumphantly elected the men who, without their consent, had been dragged into the field by the witty and sagacious citizen from Dakota.

The whole number of votes cast, 105, of which John Stough received 104, S. Gamble received 77, Rev. Mr. Schuur received 73, Rev. Mr. Wheeler received 72, and Rev. Mr. Smith received 71.

The above named successful candidates are well known and respected citizens, and of the strictest temperance men in principle and practice. We understand they will accept the offices conferred on them.

EXTRACTS FROM THE HERALD EXCHANGES

The Hartington commercial club is having gravel put on one of the roads leading to town.

Farmers in the vicinity of Randolph are planning to establish a cooperative elevator at that place.

Prof. H. C. Leavens, formerly of the Wayne high school faculty, has been selected principal of the Dakota City schools.

At the coming municipal election, Hartington will vote on a proposition to permit Sunday baseball within its corporate limits.

The village board of Laurel has let a contract to M. A. Camery of Harlan, Ia., for the construction of a sewer system, work to be commenced early this month.

An Iowa farmer says that four crops in 1895 would not pay for land at $30 per acre, but that four crops in 1914 will more than pay for it at $200 an acre. He maintains that an industrious man can now buy land at $200 an acre, and pay for it from the products of the soil.

Laurel Advocate: L. F. Holtz of Minneapolis, has been appointed auctioneer at public sale, and expressed himself to the newspapers as well satisfied with the prices he received, and believes that the auction will be the method of selling properties in the near future.

Laurel Advocate: Hartington is so well pleased with the idea of the merchants uniting and putting out only one calendar, that the same thing will be done again next year. A large sum of money is saved in this way, and that is expected on fixing roads leading into town.

Arthur Brisbane: The publisher of a county newspaper is the national policeman, the man who fights for politics and industrial honesty in his corner of the republic. Every man who spends a thousand dollars with a country newspaper contributes a thousand dollars to the cause of good government.

Randolph Times: L. F. Holtz and wife were surprised Tuesday night by a company of friends and neighbors. Mr. and Mrs. Holtz were invited to the home of Paul Buel, where all was quiet and the shades drawn. As they entered the room, the guests gave a shout of welcome. After a social evening, ice cream and cake were served, and Mrs. Holtz was presented a piece of silverware in memory of Randolph friends. Mr. Holtz and family came here about thirteen years ago, and have made many warm friends who will wish them all happiness and prosperity in their new home in the west.

Pierce Call: The recent death of W. H. Powers leaves a vacancy in the office of court reporter in this district, and the many friends of R. M. Powers of this city, are heartily endorsing his candidacy to fill the vacancy. These endorsements are not confined solely to this county where he is so well known, but extend to every county in this judicial district. Mr. Powers has been acting as court reporter for Judge Welch ever since the former reporter was taken ill, and his work has been very satisfactory. The Call sincerely hopes he will receive the appointment at the hands of Judge Welch.

Farm, Stock and Home: Maintain the club meetings. As spring's works come on the temptation is strong to stay away from the gatherings of the local farmers' club. Rather than hold "runny" meetings, let F. S. and H. would prefer to see the clubs adjourn their sessions during the rush of seeding, but where it is decided to hold them, every member should make it a point to be present.

The material. Two or three hours, at the most, cover that item. It means quitting at four o'clock instead of six. It means a lunch supper for the family, clean clothes, and a rest from the season's grind. It means to get in touch with others, and to realize that the farm family is living for something besides eternal hard work. This talk of being too busy to occasionally wash one's soul free from the feeling of poverty is unbecomingly richer reward so rushed by the season's work that it cannot afford, as often as one week, to straighten up its shoulders and talk over with its neighbors the business of living.

More will be accomplished by so doing, and life itself will hold a richer reward to the family that takes time, as Emerson expressed it, "To invite its soul."

Ben Finney sulked thoughtfully at the lowering sky. Although the grass of the plains was green and lush with many summer rains, the gathering clouds gave promise of more water.

"I'd hate to get these glad rags all dampened up," muttered Ben regretfully as he glanced down at his gain attire.

He made a hasty figure. Indeed, as he sat on his big black horse. He wore a well-worn, faded, navy blue and snow white Alaska chaps, a white silk shirt with a blue silk handkerchief tucked about his strong brown throat and a green dollar hat on top of his fair, curly hair.

"All on account of a girl who would not look twice at me if I was all best dressed with gold here, like that army fellow that's been staying there," sighed Ben as he patted the black horse on his hindquarters.

The horse hunched down the trail and Ben Finney, riding like a centaur, turned his thoughts from the impending disaster of rain which all best clothes and meditated upon his chances of hitting Betty Danglefield at home.

Old man Danglefield, as he was locally known, was pending out the gate when Ben approached the house.

"Another good for nothing cowpuncher!" snorted Danglefield fiercely as they passed.

Ben laughed lightly. They were all accustomed to Danglefield's insults when his reputation was more wrenching than usual.

But the big hearted cowboy of thatle country would have risked more than Danglefield's words for a smile and a word from lovely Betty, his pretty daughter and keeper of his wild, roving household.

Betty was sitting in the front porch now, demurely sewing a seam, as a housewife should.

"Wha Ching, the Chinese cock, peered into his kitchen window and plumping Betty's maid attire, cackled shrilly: "Hill-come, alee wamee," yelled she, his gas, chop-chop, well, hill, alee soon, soon, mittered.

In truth, while Ben Finney looked very fine and brave, his heart was hammering painfully before it made one last drop into his shifting boots.

To dream about Betty Danglefield when he was a dozen miles away was tantamount to look into Betty's eyes - now gray, now brown, now green - was another proposition.

He detected mirth and admiration in Mrs. Finney's eyes when she returned. He banished the admiration as reflections, and he remembered the quickly expressed mirth, and he heard found relief in the splendid boots.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Finney," dimpled Betty as she came forward with her faded hand and carefully lowered lashes.

Ben dropped from the saddle and held her hand in his own big brown palm for an instant. Then the delicious second was over, and he was sitting on the steps, one knee clasped in his hands and his eyes devouring her sweet face.

He didn't know what to say. The heart that might have prompted him, having departed from his accustomed place under the pocket of his white silk shirt, was gone.

"Father has come over to River Bend," he volunteered after they had discussed the weather.

"I met him," said Ben; then, with sudden inspiration he added, "What do you think he said, Mrs. Betty?"

"Something awful, I am afraid," laughed Betty. "Daddy's rheumatism is bothering him a lot just now - poor dear. What did he say, Mr. Finney?"

Ben turned brick red, but he kept on doggedly.

"He said, 'There goes another good for nothing cowpuncher!'" explained Ben.

It was Betty's turn to blush, and she did it most becomingly.

"How horrid of daddy! I must apologize for him. I am sure he is very fond of all his neighbors. You know his rheumatism is very painful!"

"Not only that at all," interrupted Ben. "I'm just what he could have expressed in a different way. If I instead of saying 'another cowpuncher' he had said, 'There goes that good for nothing cowpuncher,' meaning me alone, that would have suited me down to the ground."

"Why?" asked Betty, amazed.

"Because it would have wiped out all the others, showing there was only one cowpuncher coming here, and - oh, you understand, Betty, that I'd like to be that one!" In this manner Ben Finney's heart leaped up for a moment's heroic act and prompted his tongue to bold speech.

"Oh, Mr. Finney - Ben - I'm so sorry," began Betty in a panic stricken tone as she started up from her rocking chair, "but -"

Ben's heart went back to his heels. He arose and put out a protesting hand.

"Never mind, Miss Betty. Don't mind me. I've got a nerve to think of you, you know, with that swell army chap around, only - well, forget it, you know. I must be going. Good afternoon!"

"How do you know she's a pirate?" asked Bill of Charlie.

"Charlie could not speak enough English to make a reply, and even if he could have replied he could not have explained what he knew simply by intuition or experience.

The two boys had Bill been kicked into that he had become accustomed as soon as he rolled into one to set his thinking apparatus to work to discover how to get out. No matter what he was convinced that Charlie was right than he got down below the gunwale to his eyes and told the others to do the same.

"There's no use in their learning how many of us there are, what is our condition or anything else we can help their knowing all they can get us." The three men watched the approaching craft, one of them, and one only, Bill, reviving his brain different plans for escape.

"There's only one hope for us," he said presently. "If we can hide they won't think the boat attacked. What they'll do then nobody knows. We'll have to take what comes. Perhaps, not finding anything of value aboard, they'll go away."

"Idle!" exclaimed Tom. "Where have you got to 'ide'?"

"There's only one place - the furnace. If they don't look in there, we're all right. If they do it's all up with us." All three, stooping as they went, shuffled down the companionway to the furnace room, where they hid behind the door and went in first. Tom and Bill stood each waiting for the other. It was not long before that caused one of the pirates to enter, but quiet. Each wished to be the last to shut the door.

"Go on!" snarled Tom.

"Reading book hard a Briton is to move, Bill yielded. Tom entered last and pulled the door to behind him.

"You mustn't be afraid, Bill. What did you do that for? We're pinned in. We can't open the door from the inside."

"But if we'd left the door unlatched they'd've got us," replied Tom.

There was no use arguing the point. If they were not discovered by the pirates they might possibly be hoarded by someone who would release them. It was not long before they heard a babel of voices on deck and knew the Siren was being searched for loot.

After exploring the upper part of the boat they came down into the engine room. Only Charlie understood what they said, and the others dared not ask him. When the boarders had discussed the matter of finding the Siren deserted they all ran upstairs together.

After awhile a sound was heard that destroyed hope - the sound of an auger boring. The pirates were scouting the ship.

Whoever was doing the job was some time about it. Gradually the sounds above ceased, and it was evident that most of the pirates had gone, leaving the man below to finish the scuttling. All became still except the sound of the boring.

"Charlie!" said Bill.

"What?"

"You bawl out that one of your headstuds is in here, but if the spike doesn't light out well be struck dead."

Charlie did as required. The man addressed, as soon as he heard a voice coming from the levels of the ship, ran upstairs.

There he talked excitedly with another man, and the two came part way down to the furnace room at the order of Bill.

Bill ordered Charlie to that he was the guest for a while of the Chinese gods and if they did not let him out he would visit them and their with the and sword to the tenth generation. This produced the effect desired, and the door was opened. Bill started out and found one of the Chinamen, while Tom followed the other nearly to the deck. Both were soiled and lousy.

The longest now was that the pirates had not left for the scuttling and return. The auger had been left in the hole it had been making, and there was nothing to fear from that. Bill went up the companionway, keeping out of sight, to re-examine. Tom (what he saw was a boat the pirates had left for the men who were to sink the floor, the second was the pirate craft moving away under full sail, and the third was a Chinese grocer with a police boat chasing her.

Bill shouted the good news to Tom and Charlie, who came running up the companionway to see for themselves. The surprise escape from drowning looked in the furnace room was turned to examination at watching the police boat chase the pirates. The Chinese having left the hole, Bill went to the latter having stowed, the flame was a short one. The police quickly overhauled the engine, and as soon as it was found out a lettered United States flag and hoisted it, upon down, as a signal of defiance, when the police boat came up alongside.

The two pirates aboard the Siren were put on the police boat, and the other two were taken to the police boat. All started for Peking. Reaching that city, the outlaws were turned over to the proper authorities, and on the day following were taken to the British territory, where they were held for a while, and then sent to the job done.

Somers, in narrating the adventure says that it was the worst hole fate ever kicked him into, and he doesn't see how there can be a worse one. When he started from Peking again he had found an opportunity to see the Siren for a profit, and after paying the price agreed on to the astonished mortals, he went on rolling down into the British territory, where he forested his equity and, striking a good thing, instead of rolling further, accumulated a small fortune.

With the words tumbling off his lips, Ben Finney clapped on his broad brimmed hat, leaped into his saddle, plunged his spurs into the satin fanks of the black horse and tore away through the gate and out of the vicinity of the Danglefield domain.

Betty stared after him with amazed eyes, while behind an open window in the parlor the gold faced form of the young army officer shook with silent laughter.

In the kitchen Wha Ching rattled the supper dishes and grained cheerfully.

"How to stay supper? Golly! I see um come, I see um go skeddadle. Tee hee!"

Ben Finney was not in a laughing mood as he dashed wildly across the green ranges in a light rain.

He was not thinking of the sopping letter of his spoiled hat, nor of the soaked silk shirt which clung to his broad shoulders and showed every muscle, nor of the drooping plumes of the Alaska chaps.

Poor Ben saw nothing save Betty's startled glance at his declaration of love - surprise because he dared to declare his heart. He choked with resentment.

"What shall I do?" asked Ben hoarsely, and there came no answer to the question of what a man must do with his life if he cannot get the woman he loves. All the fever of life seemed gone without that evanescent hope that some day he might wake up and find that Betty Danglefield loved him.

He told himself that he had been a fool to cherish hope so long. He ought to have spoken long ago and allowed her to put him out of his misery.

Ben Finney laughed bitterly at the thought.

"Oh, Ben, why do you laugh like that?" asked a timid voice at his elbow.

"I am dreaming," said Ben, turning his head slowly around to find that the voice was not that of a dream girl. It was the voice of Betty Danglefield herself. She was riding her pony, and the rush of the torrents had drowned the hoof beats.

Her kilted habit was soaking wet, that minnieous clung to the red-poll tendrils of her uncurled hair. The

REPORT OF AFFAIRS
AMONG RAILROADS

Washington, March 31.—A decrease in net operating income of $51,026,935 or 22.51 percent, of the eastern railroads, was described in a statement submitted to the interstate commerce commission yesterday at the resumption of hearings in the advance rate case, covering a period of seven months ended Jan. 31, 1914, as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

The statement was presented on behalf of the railroads by George Patterson, general counsel for the Pennsylvania railroad, who had advised the commission that the figures had been tabulated from reports made by the railroads.

The figures indicated a decrease in total freight revenues of $16,900,330; an increase of passenger revenues of $7,734,227; an increase of $2,269,574 in other sources of income and a decrease in total operating revenues of $6,996,550 or 15 percent. The total operating expenses showed an increase of $39,210,213 or 63 percent.

Washington, March 31.—All new tariffs filed by the railroads eliminating allowances to industrial railroads were suspended today by the interstate commerce commission until July 3 with the exception of those affecting the United States steel corporation and other iron and steel companies which were permitted to stand.

To facilitate consideration of the advance rate case, Chairman Harlan announced today that the interstate commerce commission had decided to grant the request of the railroads to hear their concluding testimony today and Thursday.

Erie Railroad Reretraining.
 New York, March 31.—The Erie railroad, through A. J. Stone, general manager, today announced the enforcement of a general reretraining order including a reduction in the clerical force, wage cuts and lessening of working hours, and, according to the statement, in effecting decreasing revenues. About 6,000 men have been laid off since December.

"Usually at this time of the year we decrease our maintenance force gradually until we get the maximum in the middle of summer but we will not do that this year," Mr. Stone said.

"We now have about 8,000 fewer men at work than at the height of our maintenance work last summer. While we are anxiously hoping for an increase in rates the reretraining in progress is due to quiet business."

Pennsylvania Cancers Trains.
 Pittsburg, March 31.—Reretraining in Pennsylvania lines west was extended today with the announcement that ten passenger trains were to be taken off the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad next Sunday, six of them suburban trains. The shop forces are also being reduced.

Prayerful people are frequently inclined to consider the Lord more liberal than they would be under the same circumstances.

When one is in the hospital especially during stormy weather, when his whiskers are heavy with icicles, a man feels like boldly singing his name to a card like this: "I am not an angel, and never claim to be or to have been. I have done many things in the past that were hardly ethical, and I don't suppose my conduct in the future will be exceptional. But I am satisfied with my averages, and my critics can try to somewhere if they want to. I'm indifferent, and nothing that critics or gossips might say will change my plans.

Further findings in the pessimist's unbridled: Apology—an insincere effort to end the row when defeat seems certain; almost the same meaning applies to arbitration.

Book agent—A diplomat working out of his regular field, or taking a little rest, the plain people are so easily fooled. Snob—Anyone who doesn't pay as much attention to you as you think he should. Bore—Anyone who talks a good deal when he has nothing to say, as an after-dinner speaker. Higwayman—A toothy fellow who wears a gun where mining stock would work more effectively. Harmony—The first essential to music and the last resort in politics.

Found a Cure for Rheumatism.
 "I suffered with rheumatism for two years and could not get my right hand to my mouth for that length of time," writes Lee L. Chapman, Mapleton, Iowa. "I suffered terribly. I was so stiff I could not sleep or the still at night. Five years ago I began using Chamberlain's Liniment and in two months I was well and have not suffered with rheumatism since." BETTY'S ANSWER with the one of that a resolute effort to her clear skin, and line-changing eyes were pools of mysterious shadows.

"Is this Betty?" gasped Ben Finney, staring at her. "Something has happened to your father?"

Betty shook her head. "What is it, father?" she said gravely. "But something has happened to me."

Ben writhed about, his hand on his forehead. "Happened to you?" he cried. "Tell me quickly so I can do something."

"It's not you," said Betty with steady eyes, "but it is his. He's hurt. He's ill. That is why I followed you here. Ben Finney, because you can help me. Will you?"

"With my life!" promised Ben grimly.

"It's about a man," began Betty, and her dimples deepened as Ben lightened his hand on his gun—"a man of whom I'm fond. Well, I—love him, Ben." Her eyes fell, and she did not see the agony that came into the handsome face under the dripping sombrero.

"You," gritted Ben between his teeth, "you love him—and tell me the rest!"

"He came and asked me to marry him, and then—then" Betty faltered. "And then" thundered Ben.

"He rode away as fast as he could," confessed Betty. "And so I ran after him."

"Well, what did he say?" demanded Ben, who was deathly white.

Betty looked up and saw the agony in his strong face. "Oh, Ben!" she cried. "What are you going to say?"

Ben stared. "Me? You don't mean me, Betty? Is it me you love?"

"Of course, goose!" sobbed Betty as she slipped from her saddle into his arms.

"But why didn't you tell me, then? You said you were little, and I thought—" Betty's little hand stilled the words on his lips.

"I couldn't, dear, because Captain Beatty, the army officer, who is thinking of buying some of daddy's horses for the post, was sitting right behind us in the parlor, and I was afraid he would hear."

"Oh!" cried Ben as he held her closer. "Then the sun came out and shone over the rain-drenched world like a smile on a tearful face."

"I say," said Ben happily, "that's just the way I thought it wouldn't happen."

And Betty never even asked her lover to explain this cryptic remark. There were so many important things to talk about.

Plays.

Alas, how soon the hours are over
 Counted us out to play the lover!
 And how much narrower is the stage
 Allocated us to play the singer!

But when we play the fool how wide
 The theater expands! Beside,
 How long the audience sits before us
 How many prompts! What a chorus!
 —Walter Savage Landor.

Paid Before He Dined.

"When I lived in my young days in the 'Latin quarter,'" said Robert Heart, the painter, of New York, "I had some friends from Philadelphia who used to frequent a stay restaurant off the town. The first time at this restaurant was pay before you eat."

"The only dish served there was a thin but very palatable broth, priced at ten cents."

"Well, a young Philadelphian took offense one day at the suspicion and even indignantly remonstrated with the waiter before you eat before you eat, and he resolved to break it."

"Accordingly," he said, "he placed the water placed his great, deep bowl of soup before him, he fell to with a vengeance."

"Day before you eat!" cried the waiter, who was standing by.

"Not it!" the Philadelphian retorted, taking a large gulp of soup, "I have to eat with both hands."

"But a snake!" said the waiter, "he flashed his tongue, and—presto!—his bowl was empty, and the triumphant waiter stood flourishing a vast syringe."

"Pay before you eat, monsieur!" "Oh, very well, grumbled the Philadelphian, and he laid his 2 cents on the table reluctantly, and the waiter squirted his soup back from the syringe into his bowl again."

Uncle Walt The Poet Philosopher

THE TOWN ROW. We had an ancient, vicious fray, at Punktown-on-the-Heights, and people raised Old Ned by day, and filled with strife the nights.

THE SILVER LINING. Last summer, when the hot winds blew, and whirled things on every head, and when the sun, in skies of blue, shone down and blistered all the land, we mortals raised a bitter wail, and cried, "In this there is no sense, for all our cherished crops are all but gone, and the trees are all here hence!"

THE LADY'S MAN. Young Jinkson took the ribbons of girls, and after them kept running, and all the beryls, diamonds and pearls, just think he is too cunning. He warbles love songs by his bowlers, and he's a peach, they reason; he hands them costly wreaths of flowers, and he never loves a lass, they say.

OUTWARD SIGNS. A man may be a great physician, and have no handgones on his face, although for ages, fool tradition kept smooth-faced doctors in veneration. The sawbones had to wear long spinach when he prescribed for fussy cranks, or he would shortly see his finish, and go to join the has-been ranks.

Famer Brown is ragged out with it, and that's all the world gets out of it, and he's judged by what they do; no more the grandstand advertiser can come and put his coarse work through.

JOY ON THE FARM. I'd like to be a farmer when spring is at the door, and fill the horse's manger with cheap excelsior. I'd gambol like the dickens, on fleet and tireless limb, I'd gladly feed the chickens, and teach the calves to swim, and carry them their swill, the calves—the calves are corks—would have of milk their fill. I'd work to beat the tinkers, without a sigh or groan; the mules and mares are tinkers—I'd rub down till they shone. I'd toll while I was able to navigate my legs, and underneath the stable I'd crawl to get the eggs. But we who live in cities no springtime pleasures know: it is a thousand pities, and that's the fact, for here we do no sowing, except in crowded lots, we do not see things growing, unless they grow in pots. We do not hear the cackle of hens upon the lawn; we do not have to tackle the milking job at dawn. We do not see the daybreak, refreshing, calm and cool; we do not see the joy break his club upon a mule. Among our weary neighbors, penned in by lofty walls, we do our round of labors, and rest in gloomy straits.

PUTTLE-FOOLISH SWEARING. Fremont Tribune: "The most profane nation on earth," Dr. M. S. Weiss, collector of the United States in a recent lecture in Detroit, Mich.

The phrase may or may not be deserved. At any rate, foreigners must "go some" to beat us. Whether we hold the unenviable distinction of an unswearing nation, or other country does not matter much so long as profanity is as widespread here as it is. "The habit as we know it today," said the Detroit man, is decidedly a modern thing. The Jews of the former time is said not to have known the real name of his God, so sacredly did he guard it. The best biblical scholars today are not certain what the word was. Whenever an Indian wants to swear, he has to resort to the language of chickens. The Indian language has no swear word in it.

"Yet this bold age goes kicking the name of our God about in criminal carelessness, even coupling it constantly with the vulgar and the obscene. What we think of as swearing, is a reaction against it. It began in the days when the Bible was written." Swearing, with all respect to Dr. Rice, while still common enough to merit attention, is not so common as it was years ago: There has been a reaction against it. It began in the days when the Bible was written. Swearing, with all respect to Dr. Rice, while still common enough to merit attention, is not so common as it was years ago: There has been a reaction against it. AN INDEPENDENT PRESS. (Specially in Lincoln Journal.) The subject of the subject Mr. Maguire overlooked on his trip to Des Moines. The need of our common country is an independent press, fearless and furious as occasion may demand. If a newspaper does not justify its existence, as any other business enterprise, it is better for all concerned that it cease to be. If the postoffice is passed out as a reward of party-service, it may justly be claimed by newspaper men who have done much for the ones who have not had a fair distribution of patronage. But that sort of thing has its dangers. It encourages a standpoint which all good citizens have come to look upon as a menace to civilization. The man who swears that he will not be loyal to the power that made him postmaster, and he at once assumes a let-well-enough-alone attitude and his paper ceases to be a power for good in the community. Naturally, too, the editor who swears that he will not be troubled to express any after he gets busy distributing letters and sorting up parcels for rural delivery, are discounted by the public which is keen to intercept and comprehend the influence that shape and modify our political convictions. No use of talking the newspaper man, to be independent and "fearful" as he ought to be, must still political ambition, and stick to the career he has mapped out for himself.

The field of independent thought. Please let me range sans leading strings: I accept the slavery it brings.

I would rather starve and freeze. My head the earth, my food a crust. And wish the opinions that I dample. Than have to grovel in the dust.

Before a saphead, office-draft, Republican or democrat, Who votes for that old mileage graft, And such atrocities as that.

The thing I ask is right of way. To tread the earth while I have breath; To think my thoughts, to have my say. To live my life and die my death.

My destinies I will not link With politicians—heaven bless! The people who are free to think; We need an independent press.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

About noon Saturday John Loebbeck, a resident here, was driving to town with a load of cobs. As we understand it, the team got on a bank, and tipped the spring seat and Mr. Loebbeck over, which frightened the team, causing them to run and break out on the distant. He managed to get the team quieted and walked into the street without help, and walked into William Fletcher's near where the accident took place. Mr. Loebbeck was in town Wednesday with a broken arm as the only sign of the mishap.

MEET AT WINSIDE, NEXT.

H. E. Siman, C. W. Reed and B. M. McIntyre, the three delegates chosen by the Winside M. E. A. to attend the county convention, went to Wayne Wednesday, where the county camp was held, instead of at Sholes, as first planned, on account of the roads would not permit of cross county travel.

H. E. Siman was elected as a delegate from Wayne county to the state camp. An invitation was extended to the delegates to hold the next county camp at Winside, which was accepted. Wayne camp entertained the delegates of whom there were seventeen, at supper at the Union hotel, and a smoker.

WOMAN'S CLUB.

The members of the woman's club entertained their husbands at a 6 o'clock dinner Tuesday evening. That is, it would have been a 6 o'clock dinner if E. W. Cullen and Dr. McIntyre hadn't forgotten that their wives were society ladies and by the time their respective wives had hunted them up, and they got into their party clothes, the dinner was some late, but decidedly good, and enjoyed by all.

After the dinner, the gentlemen took their wives or somebody else's to the show. Owing to the illness of Mrs. Reed, C. W. was unable to attend, and is lamenting the fact that he had to miss a good dinner. He says he knows it was a good one, because he could smell good "cats" all afternoon, as the Neely home, where the guests were entertained, is just across the street from his home.

At a meeting of the Commercial club Monday evening it was voted to appoint a committee of five to investigate the feasibility and advisability of establishing a civic center for the young men.
