

PRISONER ATTACKS FORMER WAYNE BOY

Dempster McKee Stabbed Man Whom He Prosecuted as Attorney, Made Bold Effort to Kill Him.

A dispatch in Tuesday's dailies gives news of the attempt on the life of Dempster McKee at San Diego, Calif., where the prisoner whom he had prosecuted as assistant district attorney, made a mad rush for him with a weapon fashioned from a spoon. He was stabbed in the back, but the report does not indicate that he was seriously hurt.

Dempster McKee is well known in Wayne where he lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. U. McKee, and where he attended the Wayne high school. He took his law course at Ann Arbor, Mich., and then located in California. He has done well as a practicing lawyer. He is a grandson of the late J. D. King who moved with his family to San Diego several years ago.

Following is the San Diego report: San Diego, Cal., April 6.—Grievous assault attended the closing scene of the murder trial of Paul Aubain, aged 40, in the superior court here this afternoon when the prisoner, immediately after being pronounced guilty by the jury led over a railing and stabbed Assistant District Attorney Dempster McKee with an improvised weapon fashioned from a spoon.

Aubain aimed a blow at McKee's back while the attorney was leaning over a table. The weapon struck a dancing blow on the shoulder blade, sinking an inch in the flesh. Spectators jumped on Aubain and overpowered him. More than fifty Italians, friends of the alleged mad firebrand, rushed for the assailant and it required the combined efforts of court attaches, attorneys and newspaper men to protect the prisoner.

JUDGES' REPORT IN THE CANAL CONTEST

First National Bank's Enterprise Attracts Large Crowd of Contestants.

The judges selected by the First National bank to name the winners in the essay contest, describing the Panama Canal, have made their report, declaring winners as follows: First prize $10, Clara Maden; second prize $5, J. M. Smith; third prize $3, Owen Rees; ten honorable mentions, $1 each, Leland Holtz, Amelia Kree, Anna Mohr, Verma Powers, Russell Prescott, Lynetta Stennick, Madge Rippon, Charles Stallmish, Jessie Watson, Madge Winterstein.

The fortunate winners can get their prizes by calling at the bank. The contest has proven very interesting and profitable. It has been educational and thus beneficial, and the bank deserves to be commended for its enterprise. The winning essays will be published from week to week, beginning next week.

Following is the judges' report: "The committee appointed to determine the winners of the Panama Canal essay contest, organized by the First National Bank of Wayne, has completed its labors only after an exhaustive review and comparison of the productions of the contestants."

"We were gratified in the examination of the papers as a whole, to find the care and application shown by the school children participating. A perusal of the prize winning essays to be published, will indicate to the adult mind the careful study and preparation of the school children participating in the contest. A number of very able essays could not be considered by the judges in awarding prizes, for the reason that these papers exceeded the word limit, in some instances by as much as one hundred words, and in fairness to the contestants keeping within the word limit, such papers were eliminated from the contest. In only a comparatively few instances did the essays show any of the qualities of individual effort. The committee desires to express its appreciation of the individual effort and originality of the several writers, and to suggest to the contestants the importance of further increasing individual effort and originality in mastering the various problems and subjects of student life."—W. D. Redmond, J. W. Ziegler, A. R. Davis, Committee."

CO-OPERATION

The good results to be gained through co-operation between farmers and townsmen as members of the Commercial club in Blair.

Of such co-operation, an article in Sunday's Omaha World-Herald has this to say: One of the most valuable home institutions in Blair is its Commercial club. The club has a membership of 200. The peculiar thing about this club is that one-half of the members are farmers who live near Blair, and they, it is said, are among the best boosters for Blair. The president of the club is George Doolittle. The secretary is the only member of the club who is paid a salary. When the regular meetings of the Commercial club are held there are as many farmers in attendance as there are town people. The idea of taking farmers into the club is unique and has proven a great success. The farmer members realize that whatever is done for the good of Blair is directly benefit to them as well as to the development of the town enhances the value of their farms. While the town people are interested in keeping the streets in good condition for their pleasure and business, the farmers look after the roads in the country tributary to Blair. The result of this combined action gives to Blair the honor of having as good roads leading into the town as can be found in the world. Then if there is money to be raised to build up institutions in Blair the farmer members are not backward about coming to the front with their financial aid.

Mrs. William Meeks went to Sioux City this morning, returning to Blair this evening accompanied by her three grandsons.

That one reaps what he sows and that if a person expects to be a success he must have an ambition to be and do right.

MAYORALTY OFFICE DEVELOPS CONTEST

RIVALRY STARTS AS JOKE

Young Men Start Campaign for D. H. Cunningham Without His Knowledge.

Most people thought the city election would amount to no more than a confirmation of the nominations of the city mass convention, and therefore the vote was very light. But unknown to D. H. Cunningham that young men was given a boost for the mayoralty, and would have been elected if a dozen parties voting had not failed to make crosses after name written on the ballot. It is believed voting for Mr. Cunningham was started as a joke by some of the young men of the city, and A. Chace, the nominee of the convention, would have been defeated if interest had not been aroused in his behalf toward evening. Mr. Cunningham did not know he was running for mayor until nearly time for the polls to close. He is well pleased that the campaign, launched without his knowledge, was not successful. Ignorant of any contest, a high majority of the people did not take the trouble to vote. The rumor that C. A. Chace would be mayor has no foundation as the Herald is assured. Thirty-nine votes were cast in the First Ward, and Cunningham received a majority of two. In the Second ward eighty-five votes were cast, and Chace received a majority of one. In the Third ward, seventy-eight votes were cast, and Chace received a majority of ten. About a dozen ballots were rejected, mostly in the Second ward.

Those elected: C. A. Chace, mayor; J. M. Cherry, clerk; H. S. Ringland, treasurer; W. O. Hansen and Frank Powers, councilmen, First ward; Geo. Lamberson, councilman, Second ward; L. C. Glider, councilman, Third ward; E. H. Kohl and T. W. Moran, members of school board.

One of the bargain features every spring in the large city department stores is a tree and shrub sale. Plants which usually cost from 30 cents to 75 cents are sold for as low as 10 cents at a greatly reduced price. These special sales have grown in popularity from year to year and are eagerly awaited for every spring not only on account of the extremely low price at which those shrubs, bushes and trees are sold, but also because people have found out that the goods give the same satisfaction as those for which they used to pay higher prices. Wayne will have one of these sales at the Wayne Variety beginning Saturday, next, April 11.

NORFOLK MAN TAKES AIR THROUGH A TUBE

HAS GROWTH IN WINDPIPE

Herman Sattler Undergoes Novel Operation at Hands of Baltimore Surgeon.

Baltimore, April 4.—Drawing his breath only through a silver tube inserted in his windpipe and projecting through the outside of his throat, Herman Sattler, a wealthy citizen of Norfolk, Neb., will leave Baltimore early next week for his home. He came here to have a malignant growth removed from his larynx, received three treatments of radium at the hands of Dr. Howard Kelly, the radium king of America, and will now return home uncured. He expects to return in June for further treatment.

Some of the physicians who have worked on the case say they are doubtful whether the growth in the man's larynx, that has closed up the windpipe, can be removed by the use of a knife.

Sattler came here with his wife about January 1. He had a close call from death before he arrived in Baltimore, for the peculiar growth in the larynx had almost closed up the windpipe, thus threatening to cut off his breath entirely. He went to St. Joseph's hospital here.

An incision was made in the windpipe below the section that was closed by the swollen larynx and a tracheotomy tube was inserted. The tube's course then continued through the outside of the throat, which made the patient breathe through the side of his throat instead of his nostrils and mouth. Then the radium treatment was begun.

The patient was sent to Dr. Kelly's sanatorium where $1,000 worth of radium was applied on the outside of the throat directly over the growth. The rays played on the inside growth for an hour and a half.

Mr. Sattler and his wife are going to return to their home next week. The tracheotomy tube will remain in his throat and through this the sufferer will breathe until he returns to Baltimore next June. He will then take up another course of radium treatment.

Later acquaintance with the Women who reject him probably affords a bachelor considerable consolation in his hour of loneliness.

Dean Hahn reports a most excellent meeting of the west Iowa teachers' association, which session he addressed at Council Bluffs last Saturday. There is a vacancy in the grammar department at Lynch, and in writing this institution for a teacher to fill the place, the secretary said: "I wish you could send us another teacher like Clifford Penn." This week the candidates for graduation are filling out application blanks and the names of the members of the class of 1914 will be presented to the board at a meeting to be held at Lincoln on April 14. BLAIR PAPER BARRED FROM MAIL

Blair Neb., April 7.—It now begins to look as if Charles Otto Loeb, made a mistake when he did not follow Dan Stephens' example and hold a primary to determine who should have the official shoes of brother-in-law, Wes Cook. When Thomas Osterman was suggested to Postmaster Burleson by Congress, Loeb was the proper person to succeed Postmaster Cook. Editor Hilton of the Blair Enterprise thought the matter a fit topic for comment. He referred to the proceeding in a couple of paragraphs in his paper, without mentioning names and sent his sheet to press. Before the Enterprise was off of the Blair postoffice which is still presided over by Postmaster Cook, Editor Hilton notified that his paper was excluded from the mails under the postoffice rules and regulations, section 486 and 487 and that the matter had been referred to the assistant attorney general for action. Editor Hilton has referred to the postoffice department "himself" and has likewise asked for other assistance at Washington to the end that it be determined whether a postmaster has a right to sit as censor on the editorial columns of a weekly newspaper, said paper containing no forbidden advertisements, no matter that is scurrilous or obscene, nor any paragraph that would be actionable under the law of Nebraska. The Herrick System Of Dry Air Circulation

Insures a Dry, Sanitary storage compartment. The air circulation and the insulating of a refrigerator are the two factors which most determine its efficiency.

In both these points the Herrick has repeatedly won recognition of superiority by receiving Highest Awards at expositions, and most valuable of all, by PROOF in actual comparative tests with other makes.

In point of circulation especially does the Herrick rank supreme. Upon this essential point rests most of the distinction won and maintained by the Herrick since its first introduction to the public over twenty-one years ago.

There are plenty of pretty refrigerators with Handsome Boxes and bright enameled and nickelled interiors, but there is only one refrigerator with a perfect air circulation, and that one is the Herrick.

In addition to getting fully one-third more cooling space in a Herrick over that of any other make, you get a refrigerator that consumes less (ask the electrician) on account of an elaborate system of insulation you find the Herrick, and don't find in any other make of refrigerator. A9

THE WEEK WITH THE CHURCHES

Presbyterian Church.

(Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor). Easter day will be observed at the Presbyterian church with a sun-rise prayer-meeting held at 6:30 o'clock. The Christians of all the Wayne churches are cordially invited to this morning service which will remind us of that first Easter Sunday when the "disciples" arose early in the morning and came to the sepulchre to find that the tomb was empty and that the Lord had risen indeed, even as He said.

The morning worship will begin at 10:45, and the Sunday school and church will hold a combined service. The program for this morning service will be held at 10 o'clock. The subject of the pastor's Easter sermon will be "The Resurrection of Christ and its Results."

In the evening the C. E. prayer meeting will be appropriate to the day of joy and Christian triumph, this service beginning at 7 o'clock. The evening service of song and praise will be held at 8 o'clock. The sermon of the pastor will be from the text, "The hour cometh and now is when they that are in the graves shall hear the voice of the Son of Man" and they that hear shall live."

The special meetings at the Presbyterian church which have been held in connection with Passion week will close tomorrow, Friday evening when Dr. Samuel McComb of Sioux City, who has been assisting the pastor, will preach his closing sermon. After the sermon there will be a reception of new members and a special meeting on the subject of the Lord's supper, which will be held at 7:30 o'clock.

The Ladies' Aid society will serve the banquet for the visiting bankers who will be in Wayne on Arbor Day, April 22, attending their annual convention. Preparations are being made to serve two hundred guests. Dr. Samuel McComb, who is in the city this week, is the father of the well-known author and Boston clergyman, Dr. Samuel McComb. Dr. McComb, of Boston, attained nation-wide fame in connection with the Emmanuel movement.

First Baptist Church.

(Rev. B. P. Richards, Pastor). This morning (Thursday) at 7:30 the service will be under the direction of the young people, but will be for everybody. Rev. J. S. Harris, pastor of First Baptist church of Norfolk, will speak. We hope a large number of our people shall hear Bro. Harris.

There will be appropriate services on Easter. Special musical numbers will be rendered at both the morning and evening worship. The pastor will preach in the morning on "Easter Religion." At the evening his subject will be "The Great Conqueror." The young people's rally, last Sunday was a decided success, in spite of the disagreeable weather. Some splendid talks were made by our young people. The meeting was helpful in every way. We wish more of our old people might have been present. No service is filled with greater helpfulness, than the meetings of the young people, when rightly prepared for. Let us make every Sunday evening a rally time. The special meeting last Thursday evening, preceding the practice was especially good. A splendid interest and an increased number were present. We wish many of our young people could take this special course.

Last week at the home of Mrs. Kellogg, the Ladies' Union had a delightful meeting. An excellent luncheon was provided for them by Mrs. Kellogg and Mrs. Grinstead. We were especially pleased to see many of our country ladies present. We wish it were possible for all our members, in the country, to enjoy the privileges of our various meetings.

Remember our special Easter service, and endeavor to be present tonight.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

(Rev. F. E. Blessing, Pastor). Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Regular divine worship at 11 o'clock. The subject of the sermon next Sunday morning will be "The Risen Lord," Mark 16:1-8. We are privileged once more to contemplate a special man upon the stage in the life of Christ which means so much to man. Over that life, to which a testimony had been given, "Thou art the Christ the Son of the living God," there had been cast a veil of darkness. Upon a cross he was given up to die with the meaning words "It is finished." From the cross he was taken and placed in the tomb of Joseph of Arimathea, which was sealed and guarded. But this dark veil was not to hide the appointed man from man, for on the appointed morn, and the powers of heaven were shaken; an angel of God descended; the guards shrunk back from the terror of his presence and fell prostrate on the ground, his raiment was white as snow; he rolled the stone from the door of the sepulchre, and sat on it. But who is it that cometh from the tomb, with dyed garments from the bed of death? It is thy Prince and Redeemer, Jesus Christ. As he is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept."

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the members of the catechetical class will be confirmed. This class consists of twenty-five young people who have given up their lives to be ever-impresive. After the confirmation services, the Lord's supper will be celebrated. Keep in mind the services this week. As this is Holy week, may we observe it properly.

The Easter program will be rendered by the Sunday school in the evening at half past seven. A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to worship with us.

Methodist Church.

(Rev. C. L. Myers, Pastor). Don't miss the cantata, next Sunday evening, "The Triumph of David" by Dudley Buck, to be given by the choir under the direction of Prof. Alexander.

Mrs. E. S. Blair tendered a delightful solo Sunday evening.

You can't afford to miss the mid-week prayer meeting. What you get out of it will depend upon what you put in.

The time of the monthly board meeting has been changed; official board on the second Tuesday and the Sunday school board on the third Monday.

No Epworth League service next Sunday evening.

The Women's Missionary societies will hold their regular monthly session with Mrs. J. E. Marsteller Friday, April 10, at 2:30 p. m.

Program by the children's missionary society next Sunday afternoon.

Ladies' Aid will give "Tea and Talk" at the home of Mrs. Clyde Oman Thursday afternoon.

The facts of last Sunday morning's address were gathered from such sources of information as the Bible, Eckman, Wheeden and Clark.

Wanted, some efficient, willing, consecrated workers for permanent positions in the Methodist church of Wayne. Apply to the pastor.

For classes during the past month, 500 credits during the past month. Don't forget the board meetings. They are just as important to the church as a meeting of the directors of a bank are to it. We count on you being present.

The German Evangelical Lutheran Church.

(Rev. R. Moehring, Pastor). There will be no Sunday school next Sunday. Services will commence promptly at 10:30. Following the services appropriate for Easter, holy communion will be administered.

On Good Friday, the pastor will hold services in the afternoon, commencing at 3:15.

There was a large attendance in the German Evangelical Lutheran church last Sunday, when the following young people were confirmed and vowed to be faithful to God and his church. Louis Krei, Misses Hattie Broschiet, Elise Biegler, Wayne; Miss Irene Bruelckner, Hoskins and Miss Elsie Holdorf, Concord. The church was beautifully decorated in the colors of pink and white. The altar was banked with ferns and blooming plants.

St. Mary's Church.

(Rev. Wm. Kearns, Pastor). Next Sunday will be the joyful feast of Easter, on which day we commemorate the resurrection of Christ, and as in spirit during Lent we followed Him in his sufferings and sorrows, so, on this happy day, it is fitting that we rejoice with Him in His victory over sin and death. Hence there will be two masses on next Sunday at 8:30 and 10:30 with benediction of the Blessed Sacrament in the evening at 7:30.

INCREASE IN LIST OF DRY TOWNS IN STATE

EMERSON IN DRY COLUMN

Seventeen Change From Wet to Dry and Nine From Dry to Wet.

Yesterday's Omaha Bee: Local option elections over Nebraska, according to reports received last night, resulted in seventeen changes from wet to dry and nine changes from dry to wet in 140 towns reporting.

The wets made the gain of Ord, Greeley Center, Comstock, Republican City, Alma, Wilcox, St. Paul, Albion and Roca.

The dries gained Arapahoe, Bancroft, Rushville, Cullaway, Emerson, Falls City, Humboldt, Hickman, Irving, Lexington, Ogallala, Red Cloud, Superior, Silver Creek, Thurston, Wolbach and Wahoo.

A noticeable feature of the change recorded was that Harlan county towns were recorded in the wet column with victory in the fights waged in St. Paul, Greeley Center and Albion. In many instances the majorities were small.

The dry forces secured some large places on their list, a number of which had not been there before in years. Falls City, where there is a brewery, and which has not been dry in forty-five years went dry by seventy-three votes. Wahoo turned over to the dry column after a bitter contest. Superior was dry by one vote and Red Cloud went dry by a narrow margin. The turnover at Emerson was not expected by the opposition nor was the change at Ogallala. Hickman in Lancaster county voted out saloons, but Roca, four miles nearer Lincoln, voted them in. Elwood has a wet board, but litigation is promised that will attempt to prevent introduction of saloons.

At Ponca.

Ponca, Neb., April 7.—G. L. Wood, republican, was elected mayor over Walter Heyden, democrat, by a majority of twenty-four. A. N. Porter, republican, was elected clerk; O. M. Kneil, republican, treasurer, and C. W. Walter, independent, police judge. Councilmen elected were: Frank Egan, J. P. Feydon, Lars Nelson and A. D. Townsend. The victorious ticket is opposed to saloons. Mr. Woods, the new mayor, is a representative in the Nebraska legislature.

Randolph in Dry Column.

Randolph, Neb., April 7.—The license issue featured today. The result was dry by majority. O. O. Reed, mayor, was reelected.

Emerson Votes Dry.

Emerson, Neb., April 7.—Emerson went dry for the first time in the history of the town by a vote of 97 to 94. This means the removal of four saloons which have been in business here for twenty years. A tax levy for a Carnegie library was defeated, 128 to 45. Guy Leman, Henry Jensen and William Daugherty were elected as village trustees.

For Sunday Pictures.

Norfolk, Neb., April 7.—Sunday baseball carried by 427 majority and Sunday moving pictures by a majority of 195. Four councilmen and two members of the school board were elected.

No Saloons at Wausa.

Wausa, Neb., April 7.—In the village election held today with two tickets in the field, the Wausa progressives and people's temperance, a good vote was polled, 114 in all. The election was the closest ever held in Wausa. The progressives elected two of their three candidates for trustee: Ezra Copeland and S. J. Larson. A. J. Coleson, people's party candidate, was high man, with 68 votes. On the license question the vote stood 19 for and 74 against.

A Merry Evening.

The near sighted man watches his friend restore to a party a dog with a ridiculous little head bag that he had dropped as he sailed past their corner of the room. "I wish," he said plaintively "that woman would learn not to drop things. My wife got me into a ridiculous scrape the other night by not being under the seat in her belongings."

How was that?

"How was that?" his friend inquired. "It was at the opera," continued the speaker, "and in the middle of the first act Carrie let her opera glasses slip off her lap. She asked me to get them. I looked down and thought I saw things under the seat in front of her. I grabbed them, but they didn't come at once, and there was a squeal from the woman in front. It was the heels of her two little slippers I had grabbed and nearly tipped her over her seat. She got hysterics and had to go out until she calmed down. Oh, I had a merry evening."

Boothed His Nerves.

Hans von Bulow, the famous leader and composer, was one of the most eccentric members of a profession wherein eccentricity is common. It is related that one day, while walking the streets of Vienna, Bulow came upon a recital band on its way to the castle. Immediately he ran to the middle of the street and joined the small boys about the drummer. Following the band, he kept hooting to the surprised drummer, applauding him at almost every beat.

"That is rhythm! Excellent! That's the way I like to beat it!" he continued to ejaculate, to the surprise of all and to the great delight of the small boys.

Persons in the street began to recognize the famous pianist and joined the procession, so that the band had one of the largest audiences to which it had ever played.

Bulow listened attentively to the end of the last piece and then made a deep bow before the drummer and his instrument.

"Thank you," he said. "That was refreshing! That puts my nerves in good condition again."

It is said that when the drummer learned who his strange admirer was, he was the proudest man in the regiment.

EDWARD H. CARROLL DIES AT 82

Randolph Times: Edward H. Carroll, a well known and highly respected citizen of Randolph, passed away at 5:06 p.m. on the morning of Saturday, March 28, aged 82 years and 8 months. For a day or two before the vital spark was known that the vital spark was glowing but feebly, and the hearts of our people were sad. His family surrounding his bedside in deep grief because of the pain of the parting, Mr. Carroll peacefully went to sleep, firm in the faith of a risen Savior and with the peace and blessing of the sacraments of the Catholic church.

His illness was of long duration. He sought for health at Rochester, Minn., in an operation, and later insisted upon another operation, but to no avail. His brave struggle against disease was the fight of a courageous man against odds. He became resigned and was at peace. Edward H. Carroll was born July 19, 1831, at Cresco, Howard county, Iowa. He was married to Cynthia Hannegan, in Harrison county, Iowa, in 1853. They moved to Wayne county 27 years ago, settling near Carroll on a farm and living there until three years ago when the family moved to the L. E. Taylor farm about 4 miles north of Randolph which Mr. Carroll purchased. In 1899 he was elected commissioner of Wayne county on the democratic ticket, serving acceptably. In 1912 he was elected commissioner of Cedar county, the meaning of the state law being in doubt to commissioners holding over, he took up the matter in the courts and won out. He served about four months and resigned last December because of failing health.

Ed Carroll was a man whose word was as good as his bond. By operations he acquired a competence. He was quiet and thoughtful in manner, well informed on every day, a progressive man in thought and ideas, a neighbor and friend who was lived and a citizen any community would desire. His death in the prime of his years is a distinct loss to the community.

Deceased is survived by his faithful wife, and nine children: Miss Margaret of Sioux City; Chas. Geddes, S. D., Dan, Boyd, Leo, Paul, John, Dorothy and Frances of Randolph. He also leaves four brothers and four sisters.

The funeral was one of the largest ever seen in Randolph, and was held at St. Frances Catholic church Monday morning, Charles Peitz officiating in the Requiem mass. The church was crowded to the doors and friends and old neighbors came from Carroll, Sholes and Harrington to pay the last tribute of respect to one they esteemed so highly. As a mark of respect the business houses were closed one hour. Father Peitz delivered an excellent funeral sermon and paid a high tribute to Mr. Carroll as a citizen.

REUNITED REPUBLICANS.

Fre蒙特 Tribune: Paraphrasing a familiar phrase, they are political benefactors who make only one republican state convention grow wiser as they grow before.

The get-together plan of the state committees that in 1912 worked one for Roosevelt and the other for Taft paves the way for a successful reuniting of the Nebraska republican forces. The two committees will join in a call for one convention. This will the old scar be healed.

The two committees recognized, as the rank and file of the party plainly do, that the differences between the two factions are past, that with these, which were of candidates rather than of party principles, eliminated there is no valid reason why the committees or the factions should remain apart. Indeed it were utterly folly to remain in a position where it would forever be impossible to put in force the party principles for which both contend.

In 1912, notwithstanding the division on presidential candidates, the rank and file elected a state ticket below government. It being possible then in the heat of great strife to fight side by side for state officers it will be much easier to do so this year. An excellent start has been made and it may be confidently expected that victory will be with Nebraska republicans in this year's campaign.

POSTMASTERSHIP AT HOSKINS IN THE AIR

(Norfolk Daily News.)
The turning over of the Hoskins postoffice to Harry E. Ruhlow, editor of the Headlight, has been delayed by charges which have been filed in Washington and are now being looked into by the department.

One inspector has already made a report but a second one has been ordered to investigate. The charge is made by a Hoskins young woman who says, in an affidavit sent to Washington that Ruhlow attacked her about five years ago. Ruhlow is now 22 years old.

Mr. Ruhlow was in Norfolk yesterday and he declared the charges were false and were made for the purpose of keeping him out of the office. He says the girl accused another young man of the offense at the time it happened and that he, Ruhlow, appeared as a witness in the case and testified that he saw the accused young man at hand practice at the time of the alleged assault. Ruhlow says he himself was at hand practice at the time.

Ruhlow says he is not pessimistic over the outcome of the investigation. Washington authorities, however, started. He had expected to take charge of the postoffice on April 1.

Frank Pender, the postmaster who resigned, is still in charge of the office. He expects to go into business in Hoskins when Mr. Ruhlow receives him.

Wayne has lately had an opportunity to get a greenhouse, and it is believed the man contemplating the enterprise has delayed coming here because of lack of information. He asks no pecuniary inducement, but needs the urging inspired by popular desire for new industries. The Commercial club should send a few live wires after such a prospect.

Distributing postoffices is no soft snap. The old system, still in vogue outside of this district, is not free from its troubles. At Blair, in the second district, a frightful row over the postmastership has developed. The selection of postmasters is a distressing business whatever the method of procedure. Congressman Stephens has a rather more severe and trying experience than those not following the primary plan because party leaders who helped him through former campaigns have often been left in the cold as a result of people's votes. Leaders think he ought to have bravely dealt out the offices according to the system which seeks to reward those active in perpetuating party organization.

The failure of Omaha to be awarded a regional bank is charged to petty politics. As the gateway to the west, and the commercial center of a great and growing territory, it looks as though Nebraska's metropolis should have been chosen in preference to one of the comparatively unimportant points selected. It is reasonable to presume that Mr. Bryan's influence could have landed one of the desired banks in Omaha, and even though unfriendly to that city, it would seem that he should have brushed aside personal or political prejudice in the interest of his home state which would have been benefited.

The Herald understands that a plan is proposed to separate the industrial activities of the Nebraska normal schools to the extent of giving one line to one institution exclusively, and another to another, and so on. Under the proposed scheme, a student would be required to attend a certain school if he wanted to take a course in agriculture; another school if he wanted to study manual training, and so on. The plan would reduce the capacity and usefulness of each institution, and discourage many students possessing educational ambition. It looks like the crazy notion of some one who is prompted merely by an itch to do something new.

John O. Yeiser of Omaha, has announced his candidacy for governor of Nebraska on the republican ticket and has issued a preliminary declaration of principles. He says:

I have no personal appointment, I possess no special privilege, I have no greenbacks and supported Roosevelt and don't apologize for any of it. But I know, from experience, we haven't the time and can't get the money to organize a new party which will be any better than the old republican party. Fighting is easier and quicker than organizing. He goes on to say that he will enforce existing laws, and then explains new laws that he will favor. He is very much opposed to the death penalty which he regards as a survival of barbarism and a violation of the teachings of christianity.

The last Wakefield Republican contains a retraction of the article making wholesale charges of liquor drinking and gambling against a majority of the young men of that town. Over the names of a committee of three, this statement is made: "The article which appeared in the Wakefield Republican Thursday, March 26, 1914, under the heading of 'The Social Problem of Wakefield,' giving an estimate of the number of young men of this village who used intoxicating liquors and gambled, has been recalled by the committee responsible for its publication, as they are unable to furnish proof of its truthfulness, and admit that it was published without due consideration." The Herald is informed that the charges contained in the article above referred to were made in the course of proceedings at the late teachers' meeting at Norfolk, and that the reputation of Wakefield's boys—or a majority of them—was further damaged. It is at least reprehensible to besmirch a town's good name unless proven facts fully warrant charges and good results can be accomplished through exposure. The faulty judgment of the committee in offering the damaging report for publication would have been defeated if the editor of the Republican had been able to exercise sense of discrimination.

A few months ago the Herald advertised for a fairly good night operator for its linotype, and as a result the office was flooded with applications. Some of them did not wait to write—called by 'phone and expressed anxiety to nail the job, being satisfied by very moderate wages. A few days ago the Herald again advertised for a man—not a man of fair ability, but one who is high class—one who can get advertisements and jobs neatly and rapidly, and who does not use cigarettes nor worship at the shrine of Bacchus. Good wages and a permanent position were promised the right man. Have we been bombarded with applications? No, not one. The position of less requirements and less pay was quickly sought by twenty different men in Nebraska and Iowa. The position offered today, requiring greater accomplishments, but carrying the larger salary, fails to attract one applicant. The place is still open to a man who can make good. It is no opportunity for one seeking a soft snap. This condition shows that there is still room at the top, and that the demand for highest skill and highest efficiency is not supplied. Too many people are satisfied to rattle around in mediocrity. They lack the ambition and determination to make the most of themselves. They are looking for easy berths, and are usually out of jobs.

WISHES.

If wishes were but horses, the bigger folk would ride, and they'd be free divorcees for people badly tied. We'd all be packing monies till spavined in the knees, if wishes were but ponies, and troubles grew on trees. "I wish," says little Willie, "if with I had a million I'd show 'em!" I was silly, and have all kinds of fun. "And then he starts a-wishing he had a patent pole, so he could do some fishing down by the swimming hole. And he might have in plenty the things he wants so hard, if he would work like twenty young beavers in the yard. His father says, 'There's many a chore, my lad, you shirk; and I'd pay you a penny for every day you work.' This Willie might be raking in lots of dough, my dears; by saving all he's making for ten or seven years, he'd have his gun and tackle, from all incumbrance free; and he might sing and cackle in perfect ecstasy. 'Tis thus with every growup, as 'tis with every boy; the truth we'd better own up to, that work alone brings joy. We think we'd chirp like robins, and strangers be to pain, if wishes were but Dobbins, and money fell like rain; but grief would then enmesh us, and hurt us through the years; for things are only precious that cost us toil and tears.

MR. HORSE.

The good old horse, of sterling worth, has not yet fallen off the earth. I notice by the trade prints that steeds of all the standard tints, strawberry roan, claybank and bay, buff cochin, black and dappled gray, bring just as much as horses brought before your motor cars were sprung. When something new has come to pass, some engine-driven thing of brass, some car that cuts up gasoline instead of browsing on the green, the prophets say, "This spells the end of Dobbins, man's old trusty friend!" This gives the last, the final hit, to every gelding, mare and colt. The equine tribe might just as well sit quiet while we talk its knell. For traveling, the motor car, that any horse is better far; and when it comes to heavy freight the motor truck can hit the gait; so there's no place on earth, indeed, for any half-faced sorrel steed! And yet the steeds refuse to creep, heart-broken, to the rubbish heap. Their heads and tails are high in air, and they are wanted everywhere. They caper, beautiful and nice, command attention, and prices-bidding makers can't afford to purchase samples from the horde.

THE CIRCUS.

They grease the circus wagons now, and exercise the spotted horses, and carry down the sacred cow—and this a harbinger of course. In training are the acrobats, those dauntless, neck-and-shoulder riskers; the clowns invest in steeple hats, and sacrifice their winter whiskers. Fill 5500 to an ox and only show will set forth from its winter quarters, and we shall to the big tent go, and take our wives and aunts and darters. I've lived on earth a hundred years, and most things weary me and bore me; but every time the show appears, a glad vacation travels for me. I'll never be so beastly old that I unmoved can see the circus—with chariots of red and gold, and diamond geni who deftly work us. I like to watch the lion-tack around his hair in furie-rages, see the camel and the yak, the bighouse monkeys in their cages. I like to see the hippo swim like mermaid, in the dirty water, then turn a foudr admiring glim upon the warthog and the otter. Without the circus going spring with be a tame and senseless story, so come, oh circuses, and bring red lemonade and peanuts hoary.

BERTHA M. CLAY.

Poor Bertha's gone to glory; she died a month ago, no more she'll write the story for teachers; long and woe, the story sweet and tender of maids and wedding rings, for now, in realms of splendor she's trying out her wings. I thought she was a maiden with old style coxswain curls, with beads and pearls laden, like other ancient girls; but now the truth is printed since Bertha home was called; her nose was crimson tinted, and she was slightly bald! Upon her face and body high life had left its scars, for Bertha liked to toddle, and Bertha smoked cigars! On earth, no human gazer beheld her in a gown, she used a safety razor to keep her whiskers down. With other mild carousers she liked a quiet game, and Bertha's chums wore trousers, and Bertha did the same. The novelist of promise pursued deceitful plan; her given name was Thomas,—and Bertha was a man! With this fact as a starter we will not show surprise on learning that Nick Carter is grandma in disguise!

THE TOBACCO HABIT.

Oh, Clarence, do not learn to use those foulest weeds that grow; the foolish youth who smokes or chews is storing up future woe. For years I've spent my hard-earned wheels to keep my briar fed; I always smoked save when at meals, or in my truckle-bed. And 'other day the sawbones came, and took my works apart, and said, while pawing over my name, "You had a calabage herb. It's fierce," he said; "I never seed such wild, spasmodic thumps; unless you quit the noxious weed you'll surely bump the bumps." And now I've quit; life's on the blink, the weeds is in dream friends; and I can only sit and think of fancy Turkish blends. My nervous system is a scream, the tears stream down my cheek, and in my fevered sleep I dream of barley and perique. My agony is so intense to be let me be hugged; I feel like twenty-seven cents, and every penny plugged. So, Clarence, do not learn to smoke, and keep no pipes about; believe me, son, it is no joke when you must quit it out.

SPRING REMEDIES.

"This is the time," the doctors say, "when people need our bitters; the sunny, languid, vernal day is hard on human critters. They're always feeling tired—and stale—their nerves are thrifty, sluggish, and so they ought to blow their kale for pills and potions druggish." And, being told we're in a plight, we swallow dope in rivers, to get our kidneys acting right, and jack up rusty livers. We pour down tea of saffra, as ordered by the sawbones, and chewing predigested grass, we exercise our jawbones. We swallow pints of purple pills, and fool with costly drenches, to drive away imagined ills and pipe-dream aches and wrenches. And if we're only taking the snide, and dig the fertile gumbo; the ghost of sickness would be laid, and we'd be strong as Jumbo. Of perfect health, that precious boon, we'd have refreshing glimpses, if we would toil each afternoon where the timonion grows. There's medicine in azure skies, and sunshine is a wonder; more cures are wrought by exercise than by all bottled thunder. So let's forsake the closed up room, and hoe weeds, cockle-burrish, where chlosterly bushes bloom, and just herbicidally flourish.

Scrap Book

It Works Up. J. B. Benton, a veteran engineer and mechanic, who was associated with Thomas A. Edison a generation ago, at the time when the photograph was just beginning to evolve as a commercial proposition, recalls with a chuckle, the following historic incident to the memory of the "Wizard."

One of the first machines that went out of the laboratory was delivered to Charles Cheever, son of a well known belt-making manufacturer. Charles couldn't make it work and finally sent for Edison. The inventor himself worked over the photograph, receding "Mary had a little lamb" into it distinctly for nearly an hour without result. At last he lost patience and slammed the thing down with a jolt, exclaiming: "Talk, blast you! Why in blazes don't you talk?" Then suddenly the photograph broke its long silence and squeaked out: "Hast you? Why in blazes don't you talk?"

HAD A SURE THING.

Device of a Canny Scot For Trapping Unwary Motorists.

While he was on the other side Dr. Joseph P. McNulty, a New York specialist, who has just returned from abroad, heard of a new device of the canny Scot for raising the wail.
A friend of his was making a motor trip through the lowlands, driving his own car. As he neared a small stone cottage standing close to the road he saw a man with a gun in his hand. He immediately stopped, and the man stepped forward, and the motorist tumbled headlong out of the cottage door and several hundred yards across the road. Before the American could check his speed two men lay quivering in death in the dust, and the survivors had retreated back indoors.
Then magically appeared the owner of the deceased, a severe and whiskered old Scot. He threatened arrest and prosecution for reckless driving. The automobilist protested that he had sounded his horn in warning. The stranger declared he had heard no horn, and his son, who had arrived meantime from behind a hedge, backed up his father. The tourist complained by paying half a crown apiece for the killed chickens, about twice their value, and, having no use for them, he bestowed the carcasses on the old man.

Thus they parted, but as he reached the crest of a hill beyond the American halted his car to enjoy the view, and chancing to look back he beheld a strange but illuminating panorama.
The son stationed himself behind the hedge on the opposite side of the road from the cottage, holding under his arm a battered automobile horn.
The father scattered grain in the middle of the road and withdrew. The son nooted the horn. The chickens rushed out.—Saturday Evening Post.

No man prospered in this world by luck unless it be the luck of getting up early, working hard and maintaining honor and integrity.—Beecher.

Over His Head.
Mr. H. was in the habit of stopping at a quiet, conservative Fifth avenue hotel during his frequent visits of his family. On one of these occasions he observed during dinner that the waiter when serving the coffee produced the coffee spoon from his waistcoat pocket.
Mr. H. did not use the spoon. Instead, he sent for the head waiter and told him what he had seen. That he did not mind and gratefully assured him:
"Oh, that's all right, Mr. H. They've searched before they've laid the horse, nor know."—New York Sun.

It seemed as though that Paris one at the moment when the world was beginning to notice the productions of Ziem, and the English Vene- tian, hearing of the French Venetian, decided to call upon him. This he did, and so much admired one of the Frenchman's pictures that he bought it, paying the price of the picture and some. Some years later Ziem and his friend were strolling through a gallery of pictures that were about to be sold at auction. "Look at that," suddenly said the friend, "there is your picture, and it is signed 'Turner'."
"Yes, it is mine," returned Ziem, studying the work. "But after a minute's examination he looked up and said: "But let it pass as a Turner. It's a poor Ziem."
Lure and Mice.
For horses suffering from inflammation of the lungs a good prescription was a mixture of shot and powder milk. This has even been applied to human beings. In "Idlehours" mention is made of narrow shot fired on a dog, to be taken twice a day, as a remedy for "brown kites," which is believed by the English farm laborers to cure the disease. "Let the dog term for lungs rising up the windpipe. The shot is supposed to weight them down in their rightful place. Success, therefore, is the result."
It was a Sussex woman who was ordered by the doctor to put some ice in a bag and bind it on the temples of her sick boy. In the afternoon of the next day, the physician received the reply: "Oh, Tommy's better, but the ice is all dead."

ANOTHER CHAPTER IN HOSKINS' CONTEST

On page five of this paper appears an article from Saturday's Norfolk Daily News regarding the Hoskins postoffice contest. Another chapter from another viewpoint appeared in Tuesday's News as follows:
The lattle for possession of the Hoskins postoffice has not abated. Miss Marguerite Parthen, the former assistant postmaster, is in possession of the office and Frank S. Bowser who resigned, is turning his attention toward other business in the little town. Harry E. Rulow, editor of the Hoskins Headlight, who was appointed postmaster, but who has not been able to get possession yet, is said to be circulating a petition directed to the postmaster general. Miss Parthen's friends have been doing the same.
Rulow was in Norfolk a few days ago and declared that he was being held out of office because of charges made by a Hoskins young woman who he alleged, charged him with attacking her five years ago.

Girl Tells of Charge.
Miss Lizzie Deck, accompanied by her sister, Miss Martha Deck, came to Norfolk Monday and declared that she was the young lady Rulow refers to. She denies that she ever made charges of attack. She also denies that she appeared in court against a man at a trial during which Rulow claimed he was a witness. Miss Deck declares she is aiding Miss Parthen in her efforts to keep possession of the postoffice. She said she was one of twenty signers of a petition circulated by Judge Parthen, the assistant postmistress' father, which remonstrated against Rulow's appointment and charged him with interfering with the mails by locking the postoffice door with a skeleton key while the young postmistress was at work.

Affidavit by Miss Deck.
She is the young lady Rulow refers to. She denies that she ever made charges of attack. She also denies that she appeared in court against a man at a trial during which Rulow claimed he was a witness. Miss Deck declares she is aiding Miss Parthen in her efforts to keep possession of the postoffice. Business transaction my father was having with another Hoskins man. This occurred five years ago during the Hoskins saloon trouble. There never was any charge of attack or assault and I wish to deny Mr. Rulow's statement."

RESTORED HIS COURAGE.

The Incident Took the Fright Out of the Raw Recruit.

An old soldier, telling how nervous he was before his first battle, said: "I was scared through and through, and besides that, I was scared for fear somebody else would die it. I was nineteen, and I've often thought that if it hadn't been for a little thing that happened to distract my mind while we were on the march, my legs never would have carried me to the front. We were in camp and just getting ready to leave our digger, when orders came to us to hurry forward and join a brigade that was to engage the enemy. So we had to gobble down a cold snack and start. Having my first battle now up before me sudden I felt that I couldn't eat much of anything and I didn't have much stomach for fighting. At first I was looking round for a haystack to squat for and hide in, but after a time I began to get interested in the left hand converted pocket of Piper, the man in front of me."
"I thought my life as if there was something very much alive in that pocket. Every now and then Piper would clap his hand over it and I could hear stifled noises from the depths of the pocket that made me suspicious. The lieutenant heard them, too, for twice he turned round and looked fierce enough to eat us."
"By and by, when Piper was off his pump, the thing poked its head out far enough to stretch 'cut! Cut! Cut! Cut!' and I could see the lieutenant's eyes and he looked round and shouted, 'Silence in the ranks there!'"
"The men near Piper sneezed, but nothing more happened till the order came down the line to shift our guns to the right shoulder. Then, of course, Piper had to use both hands, and the minute he let go of his pocket out scrambled as hard as a puling man ever saw, and when he'd flopped on the ground she scurried away, screaming, 'Cut! cut! cut! cut!' at the top of her lungs. Well, the captain didn't help hearing that, and naturally he looked back to see what the row was, and when he saw what had happened he sung out at the top of his voice:
"Corporal Davis, take three men and bring back that deserter!"
"That made everybody feel something cheerful, but those who knew where the deserter was, and a real good laugh when Piper put his hand into his pocket and pulled out a new laid egg. Honestly, I forgot all about being afraid after that."—Youth's Companion.

The late Lord Grimthorpe drew up the will of Lord Bent, the great London watchmaker. He had named Dent in designing "Big Ben" and had advanced him money to aid him in his scientific work. This was to be repaid by will, but his reluctant treasurer of his drafting led to litigation on Dent's death in 1853, when the facts came out in court. A little while afterward Dent was named in a will as executor of a well known engineer who showed too much confidence in the witness box. "I don't suppose," said the barrister earnestly, "you can make anything."
"No," was the reply; "there are two things I can't make. One is a clock; the other is my will."—London Opinion.

Quay Features.
Baron Knyvort, at one time lord chief justice of England, loved to hear himself talk, and his summings up were at times extraordinary examples of flamboyant speech. Here is a specimen taken from "Law and Language."
"Addressing a butter convicted of stealing his master's wife, Lord Kenyon once said:
"Witnesser of the bar, you stand convicted on the most conclusive evidence of a crime of the heaviest atrocity—a crime that defiles the sacred springs of domestic confidence and is calculated to strike alarm into the breast of every Englishman who invests his money in the shares of companies of southern Europe. Like the serpent of old you have stung the hand of your protector. Fortunate in having a generous employer you might without discovery have continued to supply your wretched wife and children with the comforts of sufficient property and even with some of the luxuries of life, but defiled by every stain of natural affection and blind to your own real interest, you burst through all the restraints of religion and morality and have for many years been feathering your nest with your master's bottles."
The Ruling Passion.
Two worthy Scots, followers of the royal and excellent game of golf, were in the habit of daily playing together. In the course of time one lost his wife, and on hearing the sad news his friend of the links paid him the following morning a call to express his sincere sympathy. Condolence having been declared, second nature manifested itself.
"You'll not be going to the golf?"
"There was a pause ere the answer came:
"Well, I'll tak' ma cleeck an' we'll play in or two holes. Anywa', she died yesterday."
