JUNIORS TENDER TO SENIORS RECEPTION

TOASTS FOLLOW BANQUET

Ray Hickman, Officer as Toastmaster—Interesting Series of Speeches.

On last Saturday evening in Library and Science hall the juniors tendered a delightful reception to the class of 1914. The invitations included the faculty and their wives in addition to members of the senior class. At 6:30 the guests assembled and were ushered into the east room of the library, which had been converted into a beautiful banquet hall. The decorations were simple but effective, purple and gold, the senior class colors, being in evidence. The favors were carnations and roses. The place cards were hand-painted by members of the advanced class in drawing. The music was furnished by the Normal orchestra, and during the evening delightful vocal selections were rendered by Miss Marjorie Kohl and Miss Ina Hughes. The serving was in charge of the Freshman class, and the service was prompt and efficient.

Mr. Ray Hickman, a resident of the junior class, made a capital toastmaster, and was most happy in his introduction of the non-senior speakers that appeared on the program. At the end of the first course on the menu card the intellectual feast was appropriately opened when the toastmaster introduced Miss Louise McGraw, a junior, who made good use of the subject "Who's Who." She was followed by Martha J. Wooley, responding wittily and in season to the toast "Goin' Home." After profusing his remarks with some whimsical "Dean Hahn" type of suggestions by "The Inside of the Cup." The subject "Juniors vs. Seniors" furnished for R. B. Berrie an opportunity to make some good-natured comparisons between the two vital classes, and senior class at the close of his talk the advantage seemed to be with the first named class.

"A Weaver of Dreams" by John Rockwell, a senior, and "Cat Tails and the Bachelor" by Eugene Hansen, a junior, were each ably presented and the goodnatured thrusts of the former and the happy rejoinder of the latter were greatly enjoyed by the listeners. Wm. J. Van Camp, senior class president, made a very witty response to the toast "The Crisis," and Miss Sara J. Killen, Junior Adviser, spoke feelingly of the work and loyalty of the juniors during the past year. "Thursday Evening" by Eugene Hansen, and the toast "The Bachelor" assigned to W. D. Redmond, and President Conn was called upon to close the program with "A Last Word," a program unusually bright with thought and sparkling wit.

Close of Lecture Courses.
The last number of the Normal lecture and entertainment course for the second semester closed on Thursday evening with a concert given by the Normal male quartet, assisted by Ensign Young, pianist, and an illustrated lecture by Professor Keeckley.

In addition to the student body, a large number from town were present, and the opinion has been very generally expressed that it was the best number of the year. The quartet, always popular with a Wayne audience, appeared at its best, and the illustrated lecture presented introduced in the second part of the program, made a great hit with the audience.

Professor Keeckley gave a most interesting lecture on Yellowstone park, the pictures thrown upon the screen being from a cinematograph he had secured in his trip through the park several years ago.

Those present found it an evening of much pleasure and profit and the members of the occasion have been urged to return to the program during the next session.

DEATH OF MRS. LEU.

Alvina Holz Leu was born June 5, 1845, at Wismar, Naggard, Pommern, Germany, and died at her late home in Wayne, May 12, 1914, at 9:30 in the evening, aged 68 years, 24 days.

Deceased was united in marriage to William Leu in 1868 in Germany and immigrated to America in 1870, settling with her family in Wisconsin. In 1875 she and her husband settled on a farm in the vicinity of Norfolk, where they lived until 1903, when they moved to Wayne. Mrs. Leu is survived by her husband, and five sisters, all of whom live in Nebraska.

Deceased was an earnest and consistent church worker, a devoted wife and loyal friend to her neighbors and acquaintances.

Funeral services will be conducted at the German Lutheran church on Friday morning at 8:30, and services will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. Moehring. The remains will be taken to Norfolk at 10 o'clock for interment in the Lutheran cemetery. The remains of her ten children.

OBITUARY.

(Contributed.)
Minnie Johanna Reihman was born near Windsor, Neb., February 9, 1892, and died May 5. She was married to Luther Miliken Express Co. 3, 1913. Words fail to express the loss that is felt through Mrs. Miliken's death. Not only the bereaved young husband, and other relatives, but neighbors and friends sincerely mourn for one who was loved by all who knew her. Mrs. Miliken was not one of the many who have moved into the neighborhood, made a few fleeting acquaintances and moved again. Her friends are life-long friends.

Most beautiful was waiting to reward one who was a most sincere christian.

The host of sympathizing friends, and the many beautiful flowers show the esteem in which she was held. The funeral services held May 7, were conducted by Rev. Witte of Norfolk, the same minister who only eight short months ago united Minnie Reihman and Luther Miliken in marriage. Besides the young husband left to mourn her sudden death, she leaves her father and mother and one sister, Amelia.

HOSKINS MAN FINED ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Sometimes a whole week passes without anything happening at Hoskins to invite the attention of court circles. Last week might have been such an exception to the rule if one, Robert Blair, hadn't been extra impulsive in greeting Edna, former marshal of the town, and who figured conspicuously in a court case several weeks ago in an official career. It appears that Blair let fly his right arm in an ungracious manner and permitted it to hit Dana on his cranial observatory. Dana caused Blair to be arrested and brought to court by Judge E. C. Randall at Wayne where he pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs. Another complaint charging Blair with carrying concealed weapons, was filed, and he will be given a hearing in the county court May 19.

PUBLIC INVITED TO THE SCHOOL EXHIBIT

The schools will hold an exhibit in the school building next week on Tuesday and Wednesday. Work done in all the departments in the past year will be on exhibition and every one is invited and urged to come and see the exhibit. Manual training, domestic science, art, drawing, craft composition, penmanship, weaving etc., will all be shown and ought to interest every person. The exhibit will be placed in the southwest room of the basement and teachers will be in charge. The primary children will entertain the visitors with music.

SHOWS INCUBATOR.

Louis Porter of Ponca, was in Wayne for a few days this week in an endeavor to interest local parties in an incubator which he wishes to manufacture at this point.

SAVIDGE CARNIVAL.

The Savidge carnival opens the season in Wayne May 27. Full attendance is invited and urged to come. Mr. Savidge has engaged an aeroplane and other new attractions.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

Grant S. Mears has filed as a republican candidate for state representative in the next year. He is a resident of Norfolk, and was sheriff of Wayne county, having been succeeded in that office by the present incumbent, Geo. T. Porter. Mr. Mears is well known, and is considered a very successful vote getter.

LIVELY RUNAWAY.

A team delivering oil for the Gasoline Supply company, and in charge of James Steele, ran away Saturday morning and caused some excitement. The team, a pair of horses, one was hurt, but the wheels, of three vehicles which happened to be in the path of the dashing steeds were wrecked.

RETURN FROM COAST.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Bohner arrived home last evening from a two months' trip in the west—En route, they spent some time at Houston and College Port, Tex., where Mr. Bohner owns land. From Texas they went to California where they visited friends at different points, including Los Angeles and San Francisco. Their next stop was in Oregon, where they spent several weeks, and relatives in Medford, Oregon City and Portland. In Washington they spent some time at Seattle and Spokane. On their return they visited at St. Lake City, Utah, and at Denver, Colo., where they were met by Mrs. Bohner's brother at Lincoln. In report a most delightful time, and that their western trip proved far more enjoyable than their trip abroad some years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Bohner will go to housekeeping in Lincoln, they can be seen at their home in Wayne.

GIANT HAIL STONES FALL NEAR HOSKINS

Damaging hail is reported to have fallen southwest of Hoskins during Sunday night's storm. On the farm of Oliver Clocker, one half stone that was picked up, is said to have measured seven and one half inches by one and one half inches across. The hail killed three little pigs belonging to Mr. Clocker. The hail storm was also severe in Hoskins. In the residence of R. R. Rhoeks, three windows were reported broken by the hail. Trees and crops, and foliage and gardens were considerably damaged.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

(Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.)
The church and education will be the subject of the sermon at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning. The Presbyterian church has always stood for education and for an educated ministry and an educated citizenship. The end of education is the acquisition of truth—the cultivation of the mind, and the ennobling of the character. An ignorant Christian is better than a highly educated pagan. An ignorant Christian is the ideal Christian is the ideal citizen.

In the impressive series of installation as prescribed by the constitution of the church, Mr. A. J. Ferguson was installed as a ruling elder in the church on last Sunday morning. The church is proud to have this office by the vote of the membership of the church at the annual church meeting. After his installation Mr. Ferguson made a brief address, thanking the church for the honor conferred upon him and promising to discharge the duties of the office as efficiently as he could.

The present session of the church is composed of Mr. David Cunningham, Mr. W. H. Gildersleeve, Mr. W. A. Keedy, Mr. F. G. Pharo, Mr. F. H. Jones and Mr. A. J. Ferguson. There will be no evening services at the church next Sunday as the congregation will unite with the other churches in a union baccalaureate service at the Baptist church. ### THE WEEK WITH THE CHURCHES

First Baptist Church

(Rev. H. P. Richardson, Pastor.)
We had a splendid service on Mother's Day. Our church was well filled, and every part of the service united in paying honor to motherhood. The young people of the Sunday school provided cantations for all the mothers present. Towards the close of the service two young ladies and two young men came forward bearing cantations, and presented one to each mother present. A few cantations being left, they were sent to some of the "shut-in" mothers of the church.

A nation, whose children reverence parenthood, will be rich in the highest qualities of manhood and womanhood. Our age is not known as an age of reverence. We need to cultivate a higher spirit of reverence for old people, old institutions and divine things.

"The Death of Christ" will be the subject of the sermon Sunday morning. The text gives the gospel truth in a nutshell. "Christ died for our sins." This sermon will be a sort of continuation of our Sunday evening's subject.

In the evening, at our church the high school baccalaureate services will be held. Rev. Myers will be the preacher. This is an occasion of interest to all of the parents of Wayne.

A committee is planning for a get-together occasion of the Sunday school as a result of the contest that is now drawing to a close. Detailed announcement will soon be made.

In our prayer meetings this month we are following different aspects of Christ's life. Next week our subject will be "Jesus and Worship". Would be glad to have you come.

Our young people meet at 7 o'clock Sunday evening. These meetings are most helpful.

St. Mary's Catholic Church.
(Rev. William Kearns, Pastor.)
Mass in Wayne Sunday morning at 8:30 and at Carroll at 10:30. Catechism Saturday and Sunday at 7:30 Sunday evening.

Methodist Church

(Rev. C. L. Myers, Pastor.)
Sunday morning class meeting was a great success. A large number were present and a goodly number took part in the exercises. A larger number than usual were present at public worship in the morning. The sermons both morning and evening were in keeping with Mothers' day.

The primary department is growing. Parents should visit occasionally and see their children at work in the Sunday school. Always welcome.

Junior church services at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The piano solo by Miss Bessie Crockett was enjoyed by all. Every service is a special number. Crayon work was the "Door of Opportunity."

Miss Fisher led the songs and an interesting study was made of some of the vital problems which confront the church today. Forrest Hughes leads next week.

You will find our Wednesday evening study of the bible very helpful. "More things are wrought by prayer than this old world dreamed of."

Over a hundred people attended the social given by the children's missionary society. Not only was the program good, but the time in the basement was great.

Monday, May 18, the Sunday school board will meet. Very important. Let each member be present.

The Sunday school convention, May 28 and 29, will be directed by Rev. H. C. Wilson of Chicago, Ill., efficiency expert; Rev. E. A. Miller, Cleveland, O., director of religious education; Rev. O. G. Drecht, Des Moines, Ia., state superintendent of Sunday schools.

Prof. Joy is spending the week at Cozad, Neb.
W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Wm. House Friday at 2:30.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church

(Rev. F. E. Blessing, Pastor.)
Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. We would be glad to have more of the parents attend Sunday school. We need your assistance. It may be an effort to get up early enough to get the children ready for Sunday school, but it pays. Good things come high and you can not have the joy and satisfaction which come from a well raised child except at great cost.

Morning service at 11 o'clock. The subject of the sermon will be "The Victorious Life." John 5:4-5. We are accustomed to call men who have won the favor and honor of their fellowmen, as Napoleon, or men who have amassed a great fortune as Alexander T. Stewart, men who have had victorious lives.

True, they have gained victories over the many obstacles which have hindered their progress. But after removing the obstacles and gaining the victories, what have they? Only that which passed away. But John in referring to the victorious life, refers to that which does not pass away. He says, "For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world."

There will be union meeting in the evening.

Choir rehearsal every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, in the church. The Ladies' Aid society will meet at the home of Mrs. Rogers on Thursday next.

The ladies are planning to serve dinner and supper Decoration day in the basement of the Baptist church.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to worship with us.

German Evangelical Lutheran Church

(Rev. R. Moehring, Pastor.)

The northern conference of the German Nebraska district convenes in Wayne today with an attendance of about twenty visiting ministers. The opening services will be this evening at 7:30, and will continue until Sunday. Devotional services at 8:30 every morning, followed by a business session at 9 to 11:30 a. m., and from 2 to 5 p. m. Services for the public every evening at 7:30.

The annual missionsfest will be celebrated Sunday. In the morning services will commence promptly at 10:30, and in the afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock.

At noon, dinner will be provided for the ministers and all those who wish to remain for the afternoon service.

A special collection will be taken to be used for mission purposes.

Following the services, Sunday morning, holy communion will be administered.

CITY COUNCIL

20 Reasons Why You Should Buy a Chalmers "Light Six"--$1800

- 1 Beautiful Design and Finish—Stream-line body, long sloping hood; tapered motor bonnet; clean running boards; finest coach finish; attractive color.
- 2 Molded Oval Fenders—Original Chalmers design; graceful appearance; full protection from dust and mud.
- 3 Big Power; Small Motor—Genuine T-head long stroke motor; 3 1/2 inch bore, 3 1/2 inch stroke; 30 to 30 horsepower.
- 4 Flexibility—Practically unnecessary to shift gears; widest range of speeds; "on high," such flexibility found only in a "six."
- 5 Silence—All valve mechanism fully enclosed; large oval cam; large bearings surfaces and perfect lubrication eliminate noises of operation.
- 6 Road-Ability—The "Light Six" hangs well on any road; concentric torque tube assures perfect alignment of driving wheels; no side sway; no skidding.
- 7 Absence of Vibration—Perfectly balanced moving parts; steady pull due to long stroke motor; smooth running reduces tire and axle wear.
- 8 Tuning Steel Valves—Highest priced, most efficient valves made; will not warp nor pit; almost never need regrinding.
- 9 Chalmers Oiling System—Feeds oil under pressure directly to all working parts; oil pressure gauge on dash.
- 10 Chalmers Extra Electric Starter—Proved in actual tests the simplest, most rapid and surest starter built; no automatic devices; built complete in Chalmers shops.
- 11 Non-Stallable Motor—Starter always positively engaged with motor; won't let engine stop; greatest factor of safety ever invented.
- 12 Powerful Electric Lights—Headlights have two lamps—24 candlepower for touring.

- 13 Extra Tires Carried in Rear—Absolutely uncluttered running boards; easy entrance or exit from either side of car; distributes weight equally over chassis.
- 14 Medium Weight—Heavy enough to be safe and comfortable; light enough to be economical. Scientifically tested for a four-fold margin of safety. No flimsiness; no unnecessary weight.
- 15 Easy Riding—Long flexible springs have main leaf of Vandium steel; rear springs underking.

A majority of the judges selected to pass judgment on the essays entered in the Herald's contest, inviting discussion of the question, "Should a Farmer Marry a City Girl?" favored the production of Mrs. Eli Laughlin, and to her awarded the prize of $5. The judges did not know the names of the contestants, and considered the productions without consulting one another. Four essays were entered, all were written by ladies, excepting No. 3, which was contributed by a young man. As will be noted the three ladies support the policy of farmers marrying city girls, while the man argues against such a course.

Following are the four essays, numbered as turned over to the judges:

NO. 1.

Unfortunately the method of mating has been or perhaps ever will be so satisfactory that many will not be unhelpfully wed. The harmonious unity of taste and temperament is a fundamental essential. Without this unity no wedded pair can ever reach its greatest usefulness.

The possibility of this unity must, of course rest with the young people themselves, if it is attained the father and his wife from the small town or city may not only live happily, but achieve that higher aim, a life of maximum usefulness.

Such a union would be beneficial to the community. The social life of a girl from a town or city is usually quite well developed. It would be quite possible for her in the average rural neighborhood, to render valuable assistance to her neighbors, and in doing so to break the monotony found in the lives of two many-wives-and-daughters of farmers.

By conducting herself in such a manner as to win respect and admiration, she would be able to inspire her neighbors to educate their children to a higher degree than they would otherwise do, that the children may in turn become leaders in the community.

Both city and country life in this way would tend to lessen the tide of young life to our cities. It would make farm life appear more attractive. To the young, coming in contact with town and city life in an intimate way through visits with relatives, the glamour of the unfamiliar would be lost, and they could weigh values less partially.

The town would also be benefited, by increasing the kinship between the country folk and unity will develop, which will cause the farmer to desire the welfare of the town community to a greater extent.

He will increase his patronage of home merchants and doctors, and contribute to the building of public institutions for public benefit, and if those of the town show an equal interest in his welfare a unity of interest between those of the city and country will be established.

The lives of the individuals entering into the marriage contract will be broadened and sweetened.

The man will have a wider view of life's responsibilities. Also his self respect will be increased, by having won the woman of his choice, and having as a wife, one who forms a distinct unity in the life of the community.

Through the agencies of modern devices for lightening burdens, courses of agriculture taught in our schools, and with the helpful suggestions and ready assistance of a husband to whom rural life is not new, the young wife need not find her farm life an insurmountable barrier, nor her time so completely occupied with housework that she shall have no time for self-improvement.

With a conveyance at her disposal, she need not be more of a shut-in than her city sister who was not so fortunate as to marry a farmer.

NO. 2.

Should a Farmer Marry a City Girl? Why should not a farmer marry a city girl if he chooses? In many instances the city girl makes the better helpmate, for she comes to her new environment with all the pleasure anticipation that each one feels upon entering new fields of labor.

She may not be acquainted with the details of farm life, but any girl who has decided to marry must have had enough knowledge of house-keeping and home building or she is a failure whether farmer's wife or banker's wife.

Having acquired a knowledge of house-keeping, she will soon learn to manage a household as well as her own. She will take the lead in interest in country life, glory in her work and be contented and happy in her quiet, peaceful surroundings. Her girlhood has been spent in the noise and tumult of the city; she has grown from the inside while the country girl sees it from a distance and dreams of the city life as something far better than that of her quiet country home.

Should the farmer marry a country girl, she will look forward to a continuation of the same life in which she has little interest, either because she has been taught only the drudgery of the work, or because she has been educated away from the farm.

Too many mothers on the farm let Mary wash the dishes while she attends to the chickens, instead of making Mary her partner in the business, and allowing her to share the profits. "Mary is not interested in the chickens. She won't help attend to them when she is told." Of course not. She has no interest if they mean nothing to her. The dairy work is conducted in the same way. Mary washes the separator or does other uninteresting tasks, and thus acquires a dislike for the work.

This girl is no better prepared to be a farmer's wife than the city girl.

In other instances the girl from the farm when she has completed the course in the country school is sent to the city to complete education. Her high school course takes her away from home the greater part of the time for four years—those years when impressions are made which have so much effect on the life of the girl. She gets city ideas, but she does not see the struggle city people are making for her people are not in it. She does not see the interest there is on the farm for she is not a part of the every day life of the farm.

Her high school course completed she enters a university for a four-years course.

During these eight years she has lost most of her interest in farm life and sees only the monotony of it.

There are many good arguments on both sides of the question but it does not depend so much upon where the girl has been reared as how.

Let a man select a girl with good common sense, sound judgment and a healthy, happy disposition and she will make him the companion and helpmate he wishes his wife to be, whether she comes from city, town or country.

NO. 3.

Should a farmer marry a city girl?

We will suppose that the farmer is a young man, a beginner, and therefore as a general rule, has his fortune yet to make. Then what kind of a wife will he need to succeed in accumulating this competency or even to make a living?

There let us pause and consider why any man should marry.

Our oldest and highest authority, the Bible, tells us why, and also the purpose for which woman was created. Genesis 2:18 reads—"And the Lord God said, it is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an helpmeet for him." Therefore the question—"Should a farmer marry a city girl?" must be decided by her training or lack of training in her accepted occupation as his helpmeet. Can she help him, if she knows little or nothing about the work? Is the average city girl of today trained for the work she must do as a farmer's wife? It is a psychological fact that a mind trained up to maturity to do certain things, tends to do the same through life.

The average city girl that has wealthy parents is not taught to manage a household, but she is given time studying languages, music, art or something else that will not fit her equally well to be a farmer's wife. If in poor parents, she must work in some factory, store or shop from morning until night, with no opportunity to learn proper methods of house keeping.

In order to be an intelligent and sympathetic companion for a farmer the wife must know something of the work in general.

She should know horses from cows, or sheep from pigs; also oats from corn, hay from straw or a complainer from a mowing-machine. Real city girls do not know the value of a bushel of wheat.

Also as city girls have been reared in entirely different environments from farmers, their ideals and desires will be so opposite as to cause constant friction. The city girl will readily miss the privileges of social affairs, and the change will be for her to bear alone, while her husband goes on enjoying his usual surroundings.

Is it better to take her from city privileges to a life entirely new and which may cause unhappiness for both parties?

Although there are exceptions to all rules, we must in advising a farmer to marry a city girl judge by the general average rule. We doubt she could gradually learn new habits or he could at first hire household help. But at the beginning it's just when he needs trained help, and also has no money to hire help.

With all these obstacles and more to overcome, should a farmer marry a city girl? I say no. If he uses ordinary horse sense he will choose a girl trained from childhood in a farm home, one fitted by actual experience to be an intelligent and sympathetic sharer of his joys and sorrows.

NO. 4.

Should a country lad marry a city girl or a girl raised in town. Why not? If the man is a keen-observer and loves the girl, and she returns love, I say yes. But he must observe if she is a girl who goes to extremes in dress and tries at all times to look like a walking fashion picture and is vain and selfish, cares nothing for home and duties to an over worked mother and father who regret that she is going to have the beautiful things she desires. An observing mind and eye will soon tell all this, if he is thrown many times in her company, especially in her own home. In selecting a wife one should try to see the girl in her own home as much as possible. It is here that she asserts herself. If she tires of your company, look out; she will not do it. If she is agreeable at all times and delights in your company, it is doubtful around her and does not show the selfish disposition, seeks to make the home attractive, looks after the welfare of the younger members of the family, and is a good, plain, sensible girl and you know she truly loves you, she is worth winning for a wife.

But she should show that she has some business in her make-up and a love for nature, and the country—a little humor, thrift and hospitality mixed in will about fit the bill for the man who is seeking a helpmate and companion of sterling worth to help over the rough places down the path of life. Should I tell you that I was raised in the city, taught school for years, married a farmer and I am not a failure. I took hold of farm life with a zest and determined to make the best of the life I had chosen, and the business end of it applied to me. I delight in raising chickens, turkeys, pigs, to, and in less than twenty years of married life I made and marketed ten thousand dollars worth of butter at no more than twenty-cents a pound—more than a business and a woman should think about this before marriage, as she must be the head of the home and look well to her part in the grand drama of life.

A man should study the disposition and general make-up of the girl he is about to marry and judge for himself. No one can help him in this matter of choice—good common sense in each forms an equality and there is no room for mistakes.

Should I tell you that my dear old father-in-law was dead set against his son marrying a city girl, a school marm at that? He would not look towards the little house where we lived, when he passed by and we lived only a short distance from the old home. But I worked and sang, went to see the dear old mother-in-law as often as possible, spoke kindly to the father-in-law. When I happened to meet him, and he was not talking and he thought the city girl was not half so bad as he expected, and perhaps was a good addition to the family. One day I was surprised to meet him at my-door with the kind look and expression on his face, he invited me to come and help at the big watermelon he had raised which I gladly did. So you see all is well that ends well.

Why Should We Carry Accident and Health Insurance?

Because no one is immune from accident or sickness. They are no respecter of persons. Accidents of the most serious character often arise from the most trivial causes, causes that can not be averted. They lurk in every footstep. Our 20th century improvements have accidents more numerous and naturally accident and health insurance is becoming popular and a necessity of the thinking man. Sometimes it is inevitable and the only time to provide against sickness is when we are in good health. If you wish to see the best in accident and health insurance, something to prevent your income from stopping when most in need see

THE WEEK WITH THE CHURCHES

St. Mary's Catholic Church. (Rev. William Kearns, Pastor.) Mass in Wayne Sunday morning at 8:30 and at Carroll at 10:30. Catechism Saturday and Sunday at 4 p. m. Benediction in Wayne at 7:30 Sunday evening.

Methodist Church. (Rev. C. L. Myers, Pastor.) Sunday morning class meeting was a great success. A large number were present and a goodly number took part in the exercises.

A larger number than usual were present at public worship in the morning. The sermons both morning and evening were in keeping with Mothers' day.

The primary department is growing. Parents should visit occasionally and see their children at work in the Sunday school. Always welcome.

Junior church services at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The piano solo by Miss Bessie Crockett was enjoyed by all. Every service is a special feature. Cayton work was the "Door of Opportunity."

Miss Fisher led the league and an interesting study was made of some of the vital problems which confront the church today. Forrest Hughes leads next week.

You will find our Wednesday evening study of the bible very helpful. "More things are wrought by prayer than this world ever dreamed of."

Over a hundred people attended the social given by the children's missionary society. Not only was the program good, but the time in the basement was great.

Monday, May 18, the Sunday school board will meet. Very important. Let each member be present.

The Sunday school convention, May 28 and 29, will be directed by Rev. H. C. Wilson of Chicago, Ill., efficiency expert. Rev. E. A. Miller, Cleveland, O., director of religious education; Rev. O. G. Orcutt, Des Moines, Io., state superintendent of Sunday schools.

Prof. Joy is spending the week at Cozad, Neb. W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Wm. Houise Friday at 2:30.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church. (Rev. F. E. Blessing, Pastor.) Sunday school opens Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. We would be glad to have more of the parents attend Sunday school. We need your assistance. It may be an effort to get up early enough to get the children ready for Sunday school, but it pays.

Good things come high and you can not have the joy and satisfaction which come from a well raised child except at great cost.

Morning service at 11 o'clock. The subject of the sermon will be "The Victorious Life," 1 John 5:4. We are accustomed to call men who have won the favor and honor of their fellowmen, as Napoleon, or men who have amassed a great fortune as Alexander T. Stewart, men who have lived victorious lives.

True, they have gained victories over the many obstacles which have hindered their progress. But after removing the obstacles and gaining the victories, what have they? Only that which passed away. But John in referring to the victorious life, refers to that which does not pass away. He says, "For whatsoever is born of God overcometh all things."

There will be union meeting in the evening. Choir rehearsal every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, in the church. The Ladies' Aid society will meet at the home of Mrs. Rogers on Thursday next.

The ladies are planning to serve dinner and supper Decoration day in the basement of the Baptist church.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to worship with us.

German Evangelical Lutheran Church. (Rev. R. Moehring, Pastor.) The members conference of the German Nebraska district convenes in Wayne today with an attendance of about twenty visiting ministers. The opening services will be this evening at 7:30, and will continue until Sunday. Devotional services at 8:30 every morning, followed by a business session from 9 to 11:30 a. m., and from 2 to 5 p. m. Services for the public every evening at 7:30.

The annual missionsfest will be celebrated Sunday. In the morning services will commence promptly at 10:30, and in the afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock.

At noon, dinner will be provided for the ministers and all others who wish to remain for the afternoon service.

A special collection will be taken to use for mission purposes. Following the services, Sunday morning, holy communion will be administered.

CITY COUNCIL. Wayne, Neb., May 12, 1914. The city council of the city of Wayne, met at the city hall in regular meeting, there being present: Mayor C. A. Chace, Councilmen L. C. Gilderleeve, G. A. Lamberson, Frank Powers, Herman Lundberg, J. G. W. Lewis and W. O. Hansen.

The minutes of the last regular and special meetings were read and approved.

"SHOULD A FARMER MARRY A CITY GIRL?"

A majority of the judges selected for judgment on the essays entered in our contest, have had a long discussion of the question, "Should a Farmer Marry a City Girl?" favored No. 1, the production of Mrs. Elvi Laughlin, and to her awarded the prize of $5. The judges did not know the names of the contestants, and considered the productions without consulting one another. Four essays were entered. All were written by ladies, excepting No. 3, which was contributed by a young man who will be the third lady marrying city girls, while the man argues against such a course.

Unfortunately no method of marriage has been, or perhaps ever will be, satisfactory. For many will not be happily wed. The harmonious unity of taste and temperament is a fundamental essential, and without this unity no wedded pair can ever reach its greatest ease.

The possibility of this unity must of course rest with the young people themselves, but if it is attained the farmer and his wife from the small town or city may not only live a life of comparative comfort, but a life of maximum usefulness. Such a union would be beneficial to the rural community. The social life of a girl from a town or city is usually quite well developed, and she is able to render valuable assistance to those who are endeavoring to break the monotony found in the lives of too many wives and daughters of farmers.

By conducting herself in such a manner as to win respect and admiration, she would be able to inspire her neighbors to educate their children to a higher degree than the average rural people. Her children may in turn become leaders in the community. Fusing city and country life in this way would tend to lessen the tide of young life to our cities. It would make the country more attractive. To the young, coming in contact with town and city life in an intimate way through visits with relatives, the glamour of the unfamiliar would be lost, and they could view the life of the country with a more realistic attitude. The town would also be benefited by increasing the kinship between rural and country folk a unity will develop which will cause the farmer to desire the welfare of the town community to a greater extent. He will increase his patronage of home merchants and doctors, and contribute of his means to build institutions for public benefit and if those of the town show an interest in the welfare of a unity of interest between those of the city and country will be established which will be of mutual benefit.

The lives of the individuals entering into the marriage contract will be broadened and enriched. The man will have a wider view of life's responsibilities. Also his self respect will be increased by having won the woman of his choice, and having as a wife, one who brings a desire to assist in the life of the community. Through the agencies of modern devices for lightening housework courses of agriculture taught in our schools, and with the helpful suggestions of the city sister, the husband to whom rural life is not new, the young wife need not find her ignorance an insurmountable barrier, nor her time so completely occupied with housework that she has no time for self-improvement. With a conveyance at her disposal she need not be more of a shut-in than her city sister who was not so fortunate as to marry a farmer.

NO. 2.
Should a Farmer Marry a City Girl? Why a city girl? If he chooses? For any instance, she makes the better helpmate, for she comes in her new environment with all the pleasure of anticipation that each one feels upon entering new fields of labor. She may not be acquainted with the details of farm life, but any girl who has decided to marry must have thorough knowledge of house-keeping and home building or she is a failure whether farmer's wife or banker's wife. Having acquired a knowledge of house-keeping, she will soon learn the other work required of a farmer's wife. She will take the keenest interest in country life, glory in her work, and be contented and happy in the quiet, peaceful surroundings. Her girlhood has been spent in the noise and tumult of the city; she knows the city from the inside while the country girl sees it from a distance and dreams of the city life as something far better than that of her quiet country home.

Should the farmer marry a country girl she only looks forward to a continuation of the same life in which she has little interest, either because she has been taught the drudgery of the work, or because she has been educated away from the farm.

Too many mothers on the farm do not wash the dishes while she attends to the chickens, instead of making Mary her partner in the business, and allowing her to share the profits; mother says, "Mary is not interested in the chickens. She is just half-hearted about them. She has no interest if they mean nothing to her. The dairy work is conducted much the same way. Mary washes the separator or does other uninteresting tasks, and thus acquires a dislike for the work."

This girl is no better prepared to be a farmer's wife than the city girl.

In other instances the girl from the city when she has completed the course in the country school is sent to the city to complete education. Her high school course takes her away from home the greater part of the time for four years—three years when impressions are made which have so much effect on the life of the girl. She gets city ideas, but she does not see the struggle city people are making for her people are not in it. She does not see the interest there is on the farm for she is not a part of the every day life of the farm.

Her high school course completed, she enters a university for a four-year course.

During these eight years she has lost most of her interest in farm life and sees only the monotony of it.

There are many good arguments on both sides of the question but it all depends on the circumstances where the girl has been reared as how.

Let a man select a girl with good common sense, sound judgment and a healthy, happy disposition and she will make him the companion, the helpmate, he wishes his wife to be whether she comes from city, town or country.

NO. 3.
Should a farmer marry a city girl? We will suppose that the farmer is a young man, a beginner, and has fortune as a general rule, has his fortune yet to make. Then what kind of a wife would be the best? One of accumulating this competency or even to make a living? Here let us pause and consider why any man should marry.

Our oldest and highest authority, the Bible, tells us why, and all to the purpose for which woman was created. Genesis 2:18 reads—"And the Lord God said, It is not good that the man should be alone: I will make him an helpmeet for him." "Should a farmer marry a city girl?"

Should be decided by her training or lack of training in her accepted occupation as his helpmeet. Can she help him, if she knows little or nothing about the tasks of the average city girl of today trained for the work she must do as a farmer's wife? It is a physiological fact that a mind trained up to maturity to do certain things, tends to do the same things through life. The average city girl that has wealthy parents is not taught to manage a household, but spends her time studying languages, music, art or something else that will not fit her equally well as the farmer's wife. If of poor parents, she must work in some factory, store or shop from morning until night, with no opportunity to learn proper methods of house-keeping.

In order to be an intelligent and sympathetic companion for a farmer the wife must know something of his work in general. She should know horses from cows, or sheep from pigs; also oats from corn, but she does not know the complainer from a mowing machine. Real city girls do not know such simple things. Also as city girls have been reared in entirely different environments from farmers, their ideas and desires will be so opposite as to cause constant friction. The city girl will sadly miss city privileges and social affairs, and the change will be for her to bear alone, while her husband goes on enjoying his usual surroundings. Is it right to take her from city privileges to a life entirely new and which may cause unhappiness for both parties?

Although there are exceptions to all rules, we must in advising a farmer to marry a city girl judge by the general or safest rule. No doubt she could gradually learn new habits or he could at first hire household help. But as the beginning is just when he needs trained help, and also has no money to hire a domestic.

With all these obstacles and more to overcome, should a farmer marry to a city girl? I say no. It is an ordinary horse sense he will choose a girl trained from childhood in a farm home, one fitted by actual experience to be an intelligent and sympathetic sharer of his joys and sorrows.

NO. 4.
Should a country lad marry a city girl or a girl raised in a town. Why not? If the girl is a town-bred, and loves the girl, and she returns love, I say yes. But he must observe if she is a girl who goes to extremes in dress and tries at all times to look like a walking fashion picture and is vain and self-willed, nothing for home and duties to an over-worked mother and father who toil daily that she may have the beautiful things she desires. An observing mind and eye will soon tell all this, if he has thrown many times in her company, especially in her own home. In selecting a wife one should try to be with the girl in her own home as much as possible. It is here that she asserts herself. If she tires of your company, look out; she will not do. If she is agreeable at all times and delights in your company, is kind to those around her and does not show the selfish disposition, seeks to make the home attractive, looks after the welfare of the younger members of the family, and is a good, plain, sensible girl and you know she truly loves you, she is worth winning for a wife.

But she should show that she has some business in her make-up and a love for nature, and the country—a little humor, thrift and hospitality mixed in will about fill the bill for the man who is seeking a helpmate and companion in life. She should help over the rough places down the path of life. Shall I tell you that I was raised in the city, taught school for years, married a farmer and I am not a failure. I took hold of the farm life with a zest and determined to make the best of the life I had chosen, and the farmer's contentment appealed to me. I delight in raising chickens, turkeys, pigs, too, and in less than twenty years of married life I raised and marketed ten thousand dollars worth of butter at more than twenty cents a pound—farming is a business and a woman should think about this before marriage, as she must be the head of the household as well to her part in the grand drama of life.

A man should study the disposition and general make-up of the girl he is about to marry and judge for himself. No one can help him in the matter of choice—good common sense in each form an equality and there is no room for mistakes.

Shall I tell you that my dear old father-in-law was dead set against his son marrying a city girl, a girl who was a good deal better than I look towards the little house where we lived, when he passed by and we lived only a short distance from the old home. But I worked and sang, went to see the dear old mother-in-law as often as possible, spoke kindly to the father-in-law, and when I happened to meet him, and it was not long until he came to think the city girl was not half so bad as he expected, and "perhaps—was a good deal better to be married to." I was surprised to meet him at my door with the kind look and extended hand and the invitation to come and help eat the big watermelon he had raised which I gladly did. So you see all is well that ends well.

Why Should We Carry Accident and Health Insurance?

Because no one is immune from accident or sickness. They are no respecter of persons. Accidents of the most serious character oftentimes arise from the most trivial causes, causes that can not be avoided. They lurk in every footstep. Our 20th century improvements have accidents more numerous and naturally accident and health insurance is becoming popular—and a necessity of the thinking man. Sometimes it is inevitable and the only time to provide against sickness is when we are in good health. If you wish to see the best in accident and health insurance, something to prevent your income from stopping when most in need see. A23

PLAIN AND FANCY EATING.

Employees of Uncle Sam Who Get Paid For Doing It.

It sounds like the long job when one hears of nothing paid for eating, but there are two in the United States who enjoy who draw their salaries mainly because of this, and this will vouch for the fact that such a position is by no means simple. Little thing that a person might suppose. Of course they do not think thus. They investigate a subject in every way possible and other things that a layman could not explain. But they get paid for eating as well.

Who are they? Dr. C. F. Langworthy, chief and Dr. Robert Miller, assistant in the bureau of food hygiene of the department of agriculture. These two men have a number of assistants who, like themselves, are required to do plain and fancy eating. Occasionally a subject is brought in, and the assistants of each man, and he is called in a conference with him, and he is put in a police station and is fed, and then he has to eat flowers in a made as to the effect that the food had on him.

Not long ago a cheese investigation was made. Every day of the week they ate cheese, crumbly cheese, cheese that was address and cheese that was not address. They ate it in every way possible. Mr. Miller was brought into the office to eat a piece of cheese, and he ate it and cut out a generous slab, "everybody try some," he urged, "but take care of the work as you go." For a week the office ate cheese, plain cheese, baked cheese, cheese pudding, cheese, cheese, cheese, fried cheese, and so on.

The point was to determine whether cheese could be assimilated. The office decided that it could, and, inasmuch as they had to eat the work as they go, it was a day without suffering the slightest ailment, the office seemed to be right—Washington Star.

A CATHEDRAL IN DANGER.

St. Paul's, in London, So Shaky That It Repairs Are Imperative.

London's Great Cathedral, St. Paul's, is in a shaky condition, and the authorities, alarmed for its safety, have appointed to the public for funds to repair the cathedral. It is estimated that if the structure is to be preserved, these repairs will cost about $300,000.

The danger of an accident owing to the present condition of the structure is a source of constant anxiety. The danger is that the cathedral will collapse. The danger is that the cathedral will collapse. The danger is that the cathedral will collapse.

The foundation is said to be almost the worst that could be found, and the pillars, which are made of Portland stone, are very thin shells. The weight of the huge dome overburdens these pillars.

One Child Families in France.

Germany's Women Students.

During the last six years the number of women students in Germany has nearly quadrupled. In the winter of 1908, when the doors of German universities were first thrown open to women, there were only 2,000 women taking regular courses and as many more who are attending part-time courses.

Veils Under the Microscope.

It is now possible to put the voice "under the microscope." The invention of Thomas A. Edison, and is the first of the great singers are sending records of their voices every year for Mr. Edison to discover the best method of recording them. It is the overtones that the richness of a voice depends on, and in one famous tenor's record he has noted a "b" note that overtones wear off.

A WIMP OF MANCHURIA.

Its Wind Whipped Manchuria and its Empty Green Wastes.

Manchuria means an interminable brown plain—dry, stony, endless, empty furrows to be tilled by and by. It is a land of a desolate, wretched, and a few green patches, high and higher, in which but many years ago the Japanese child world armies.

Today it is the emptiest, most silent spot in Asia. It spreads out flat and blank in the distance, and the wind blows down here and there out of a deep, unbroken field of turquoise blue. The air is biting cold. A sudden breath of it is like a slap. A great tingling follows and a sense of extraordinary loneliness, one feels compelled to laugh, to shout, to strike out, to do violent things. To sleep or sit with folded hands would drive one mad. There is that in the air which compels the "normalities."

Over this brown waste, sheltering a million seedlings, trails an endless line of native life—a dull blue, curiously black outline—wheathereave man and sprouting legs and arms wide outstretched, coolies with bamboo poles slung across their shoulders, numbingly mule, chafed, and a few straggled and studded jirds and beedpotes, donkeys picking little steps with litters on their backs, with wide tapping loads, with native coolies, straggling far back upon their tiny bodies.

These Manchus people are a big, bold, blue-eyed, white-skinned, and a few dull red by the northern winds. Sober, less bold of them, heads pulled over their ears, stand at the stations and stomp their feet, and the white men watch the trains come in. A straggling line of native soldiers in bungling blue uniforms, their heads bowed tightly to their chests, their hands tucked under their forearms, are seen in the distance, their feet clattering across their breasts, present arms pulled, with bayonets fixed on the train poles in and draws out.

FLOWER FIRE.

Sans-Plants Will Emit a Mysterious Radiance at Night.

The most wonderful—It might almost be said spiritual—attribute of flowers is their ability to emit a certain glow or radiance at night. This glow is not due to their fragrance, but, strangely enough, a mysterious radiance that sometimes surrounds them, writes J. Carter Best in a recent issue of the "Gardeners' Magazine."

The glow is so little known and so seldom noticed.

The glow is so little known and so seldom noticed.

The Omnipresent Rose.

Every continent on the globe, with the exception of Australia, produces wild roses. There can be little doubt that the rose is one of the oldest flowers in the world, perhaps having been the wild bushes seeds in paradise. In Egypt it is depicted on numbers of early bas-reliefs, dating from 3000 to 6000 B. C. The rose, of the species rose, is mentioned by Homer in the "Iliad," and the flower is spoken of in the "Proverbs of Solomon."

Our Work.

We must not think of work in a conventional and unimmaculate manner, independently from whether we hope to become angels some time in the future or believe that we are to be made like some time in the past—John Ruskin.

Sure it is.

A Little West One Hundred and Forty-ninth street tailoring shop has the following hand written placed in the window:

We press your pants for $1.00. It's a new idea for New York.

Science Can Make One, but Can't Explain the Change in the Metal.

Getting the magnetism into the steel as that it will stay there permanently is a long and intricate process, as Professor Silvanus Phillips Thompson describes it in the Journal of the Institution of Electrical Engineers.

First of all you have to pick your steel. It must have from 5 to 8 per cent of carbon, and the rest must be iron. It must have not more than 25 per cent of chromium, but it must not have any manganese, titanium, cobalt, or nickel. The steel must be heated with an little working of the material as possible and at as low a temperature as convenient. After forging it must be annealed in a furnace at a temperature of 750 degrees C. This annealing for a time and then cooled off. This "normalizes" it.

To harden it it is raised to 950 degrees C. for not more than five minutes, then lowered to about 700 degrees C. and held there for a time and then cooled off. This "normalizes" it.

To harden it it is raised to 950 degrees C. for not more than five minutes, then lowered to about 700 degrees C. and held there for a time and then cooled off. This "normalizes" it.

Then it is "magnetized" by boiling or steaming it for ten or twelve hours by heating it to 60 degrees C. for twenty hours. It is alternately heated and allowed to cool of general dimensions.

Now the steel is ready to be magnetized. It is a bar a magnetizing coil is used; if a horseshoe, then an electromagnet will give a better magnetized to the highest degree possible, and there is some advantage in reversing its magnetism a few times. The result depends upon the quantity magnetizing force and not on the duration of the application. The current is shut off suddenly, but is gradually reduced to zero while under the influence of the current the magnet is struck with a brass hammer.

DEVILED MUTTON

Cut the cold mutton in rather thick slices, dip each in a "deviled" mixture of vinegar, French mustard, salt, pepper and a dash of sugar. Turn over the slices in the same several times; dip in a rather thick batter and fry as you would steaks.

LIVE BALLS

Fry the liver in minutes in butter; press through a sieve; add one-half teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley, salt and pepper and one egg yolk. Shape in very small balls. Egg and crumb them and fry in deep fat.

 bers, also several readings. This program surely holds the promise of an enjoyable evening for any lover of good music and those taking part would certainly be greatly encouraged by a liberal attendance.

Mr. L. Koeningstein of Norfolk will give a musicale at the M. E. church on Tuesday evening, May 19, beginning at 8 o'clock sharp.
