Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury... A household remedy of the French country, consisting of pure vegetable oil and said to possess wonderful powers in the treatment of stomach, liver and intestinal troubles, has been introduced in this country by George H. Mays, who for twenty years has been one of the leading druggists in the West. He has used this ointment for himself and who himself was cured by its use so quick and effective in its action that a single dose is usually enough to bring pronounced relief in the most stubborn cases and many who have had it tried declare they never had any of anything to produce such remarkable results in so short a time. WHAT IS AMORTIZATION?

The Method of Providing for the Redemption of a Loan. Every now and then the plain man who has saved a little money and wants to invest it so that he will get a reasonable and safe return, runs against a nest of terms which are bewildering and all but meaningless.

Amortization means simply the method of providing for the redemption of a loan. If you lend me $10,000, which I promise to repay in ten years, you have a right to be interested in my plans for meeting the demand for the $10,000 which you expect to make upon me ten years hence.

Navajos Fear the Dead. Hence They Get Rid of Their Bodies as Quickly as Possible. One practice of the Navajos that promotes health among them, however repugnant it may be for us, is their disposition of the dead.

The Judge Who Didn't Joke. The funny sayings of a Judge who never joked are found in "Arabian Nights" a selection of the diet of Benjamin William Arabin, who sat as Judge at the Old Bailey in London from 1830 to 1838.

Of one of London. The sense of smell which enables an engine driver to avoid a collision or a fall is to be envied by us. In the least cultivated of our senses, but with a properly equipped nose and the practice we ought to be able to tell when we are himself.

It is estimated that the life of the average horse is approximately twenty-five years. The wild horse's age is about thirty-eight years.

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.

From the Wayne Herald, June 21, 1888: Born, June 18, to Henry Joyner and wife of Chapin precinct, a daughter.

William House brought in 300 head of cattle from Iowa, June 15. Died, at his residence two miles north of Wayne, Tuesday, June 19, Adam Henry Miller, sr., aged 75 years.

Judge and Mrs. W. F. Norris and daughter, Miss Ethel, arrived in Wayne Monday from the Philippine Islands.

From Ponca Journal, June 17, 1880: Mr. E. Boller informs us that he has a herder living in Webster county, in the extreme southern part of this state, who wrote him on the 7th inst. that everything was literally burning up in that country, having had no rain since last summer.

Wayne county Review, June 11, 1884: Wm. Huse, the veteran editor of the Northern Nebraska Journal, took in Logan City one day last week, and gives our neighbors over there a vast amount of taffy, which will be found in another column, but he failed to get over to LaPorte to see us, for which offense he is hereby fined one bottle of Tolu. He is rather hard on the inhabitants when he says "two years ago his leading inhabitants were Indians, coyotes and prairie dogs."

From Ponca Journal, June 27, 1884: Lieut. Norris this week received an invitation to deliver an oration at Elk Point on the Fourth, but as he had previously accepted an invitation to go to Wayne, he was compelled to decline the one from over the river.

The three headed woman which travels with the circus is not the only three headed thing in the world. Mr. Stephens of this place has a hen which lately hatched from an egg a wonderful three headed chicken. In addition, the well known and intelligent dog Cerberus, which was under the training of Mr. Hercules, an eastern gentleman, some years since, had three well developed heads.

MOCK BIRDS. Slice the mutton evenly, trim each piece, make a highly seasoned and crumb stuffing, put a spoonful of this on each slice and fasten through holes, or "birds," fasten securely with little wooden skewers; put them all into a hot frying pan add a little gravy; cover, simmer very slowly till they are steamed through, but do not let them boil. Have ready some squares of buttered toast; lay them on this on a hot plate, pour the gravy over, and garnish with sprigs of parsley.

KNOWN AT PIERCE

Pierce Leader: Miss Mamie E. Wallace is a candidate for the nomination of county superintendent of Wayne county on the democratic ticket. This intelligent lady is well known to Pierce people, having taught here in the public schools for four years several years ago.

"PAINTING" BERTHA.

"Painting" Bertha who visited Wayne and other north Nebraska towns while she was being reformed and who fell from grace some months ago, was sentenced to one year in the county jail at Council Bluffs, but the judge suspended the sentence long enough to give the offending individual time to get out of town.

BIGGEST WHEAT CROP.

Lincoln Journal: Eastern Nebraska has been more thoroughly soaked than has been desirable while the western end of the state has for some time been in need of additional moisture. The storm that has so sweetly watered the central Nebraska spoiled a little extra rain in this neighborhood but on the whole the storm leaves the state with a large profit. No more rain is now needed to make Nebraska's contribution to the great wheat crop of 1914 the largest that it has ever produced. The government crop report makes the winter wheat the largest the country has ever had in sight on June 1. Spring wheat is also in excellent condition. Some optimistic statisticians are now saying that with normal conditions from now until August the total wheat crop over the United States will approach 1,000,000,000 bushels.

COUNTRY THEATERS.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: In our big cities "little" theaters have become an established feature. Their independence, their modesty, their simplicity, their intimate relation with their audiences give them certain advantages and a special function in the dramatic sphere. But are not little theaters even more desirable for the country? Would they not contribute to the solution of the problem of making rural life more attractive and of checking the drift to the city?

The Agricultural college of Fargo, N. D. has opened what might be the first country theater in the United States. The performances are to be given by students, former students and neighbors. Interesting, significant, short plays, American and European, are to be produced in this theater, and the successful pieces are to be taken "on the road" and given in other towns and villages in the state.

That this will promote neighborliness, true community life, social intercourse and wholesome recreation hardly needs emphasizing. Fargo may be proud of its idea, its example. There are few rural communities in which a little enterprise and cooperation, with perhaps a little aid from the extension department of the state university, could not make life pleasanter and give it zest, variety and new meaning.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Sioux City Tribune: Matt Savidge, of the Savidge Brothers' aviation school, with headquarters at the Sioux City speedway, furnished the people of Crofton, Neb., unexpected thrills last night and narrowly escaped a serious accident. F. H. Waugh, representative of the school, returned today from Crofton. The Savidges have been trying to fly for three days, but have been unable to do so because of light winds. He told the following story of young Savidge's narrow escape. The wind showed some signs of dying out last night, and at about 5 o'clock, Matt Savidge, who is the young aviator who sailed beautifully over this city some time ago, ascended in his machine. At a height of 400 feet, he was caught by a sharp and high wind and it was necessary for him to go about five miles into the country to land. Upon landing, however, he was caught by a sharp wind, approaching wind cloud and immediately started into the air again, to return to Crofton before the storm. He raced for five miles, just a little in advance of the threatening cloud, which was funnel shaped, but high in the air. His spectacular flight back to Crofton in advance of the cloud was witnessed by the entire town. Members of the school watching the flight were greatly relieved when his machine was placed safely in a barn, less than three minutes before the storm broke.

The solicitude of ambitious demagogues over the state for the bull moose party is really affecting.

Mark W. Murray of the Peoria Times, has distinguished himself as the first editor in the Third congressional district to win a postmaster ship through the primary.

Government ownership of the telephone system may be a pleasing theory, but it reports from countries having it are not so glowing.

Ideal government cannot be attained by one bound as the active imaginations of overworked theorists would have one believe.

Practical theories, if adopted, would prove burdensome and unsatisfactory. People should investigate conditions having government ownership, and not jump to conclusions without full possession of the facts.

The following note by Ross L. Freeman, gubernatorial candidate for the publican nomination for governor, shows fine qualities of mind which will be appreciated.

It should be understood that the two wings of the republican party which drifted apart two years ago have reunited and will work together in the forthcoming campaign.

MADRID'S ARID SITE.

Parched and Dusty Now, It Was Once a Watered Garden Spot. Travelers find it hard to believe that Madrid ever abounded with water.

The modern towns on both sides of the arid and arid an embankment, its surrounding area in early spring, are so parched and dusty and the water-peddlers carry "sagu" (sagu) in so great and ubiquitous one fancies Madrid must have been thrifty from the beginning.

This device was emblematic only of the city and its only busy before Charles V. had started it on his long career of greatness merely because he credited his climate with having carried him a ferret.

At that time Madrid was a small town embowered in gardens and woods and meadows and with springs and the water supply by the Manzanares, now a melancholy, meager stream, was of a measurable depth.

But with the appointing of Henry VIII, the king and his nobles for the royal impingement and the cutting down of the trees to swell the royal treasury the inevitable flood of the water was cut off.

The study begins with the opening chapter, and from this it slips to the last. The last part is the most learned, then the last two, and so on in inverted order, ending finally with the second chapter.

How the Message Was Carried

A Story For Independence Day

By EUNICE BLAKE

"Grandpa, tell us a story," said one of a group of children. "What kind of a story?" "Why, a Fourth of July story, of course. We'd like that best!"

"When Washington first went to New Jersey he took position at Hackensack, north of the army, leaving the other half on the other side of the Hudson north of New York city. Under command of General Charles Lee, Washington, being convinced that General Howe, commanding the British forces in New Jersey, was intending to march southward through New Jersey, decided to order Lee to take the Hudson and join him that he might oppose Howe's move with a united force."

"My grandfather was a sergeant in the ranks of Washington's army. He had done some successful scouting for the commander during the fighting on Long Island and afterward on Manhattan Island and by his daring and astuteness had gained the general's confidence as a good person to carry a message to General Lee."

"There was a twist-up on the stairs. Abner took his paper pill from his ear, where he had carried it, and holding it between his thumb and finger, held it to Deborah as she rushed in to her room. He had only done so when her father came down the staircase. On seeing Abner and noting his garbled speech, he was rushing into her room, and the replies he received made him at once suspicious. Knowing that Abner was a soldier in Washington's army, that he was traveling in a direct line between the American forces in New Jersey and New York, he was sure that he was carrying a message from the one to the other."

"The REAL RUSSIA. It is Confined to a Very Small Section of the West Empire. In 'The Russian Empire, Today and Yesterday,' Nevil O. Winter says: 'It is a strict name, real-Russia covers only a portion of the more than 2,000,000 square miles that lie within the borders of the continent. This narrower definition would certainly eliminate Finland, Poland, the Baltic provinces, Bessarabia and the Caucasus and probably a part of the land of the Don Cossacks, the Crimea and the sections bordering on the Arctic ocean and the lower Volga. In other words, the real Russia has developed within this narrower section, and whatever of Russian characteristics appear in the unattached sections have simply been imported by the conquerors upon a people alien by birth and language.'"

"In our school histories all about this?" "Well, my dear," said the old man, "that's about as far as I have been brought on the way. No one knew it except himself, and he only told him he got to be a very old man!"
