

LITERARY STUDY TO BE MADE PRACTICAL

CORRECT USE OF ENGLISH High School and State Normal Organize Classes to Raise Literary Standard.

Mrs. M. A. Phillips, principal of the high school, and in charge of the department of literature, has inaugurated a system for practical learning along literary lines.

The plan is so successful and manifestly helpful that the Wayne State Normal will follow the high school's lead.

The teacher experiences much difficulty in developing correct English, and the expression of ideas in clear pointed style.

CHURCH PROGRAM

Following special program will be carried out at the Baptist church Sunday evening, October 11.

LINING UP FOR BIG SUBSCRIPTION RACE

SEVERAL ACTIVE WORKERS Herald-Nebraska Raiser Campaign Starts Off With Promise of Great Success.

Contestants are now entering the race for the Ford touring car and other valuable prizes to be given away in the Herald subscription campaign.

The Ford touring car is the most attractive and most sought prize, but some say they would be perfectly satisfied with the $75 Victoria which will be awarded as second prize.

Not so many are entering the contest as active contestants as the management would like to enter.

Some who have become contestants have the appearance of making strong workers, but not enough have yet entered to thoroughly swell the country for subscriptions.

Why Not Have a Real Home?

You mustn't view a well furnished home as a luxury. It isn't that at all, but a necessity. You spend more hours in your home than in any other place. If it is gloomy, poorly furnished—without any cozy spots or comfortable places to rest, it is not a real home.

We can furnish your home throughout and make it cost you so little that you will scarcely notice it.

We buy good furniture in large quantities. We sell it at a small per cent of profit. We have generous selling plans that enable us to give you anything you need and pay for it as suits your circumstances.

We are right here to protect your purchases and save you against defective material in any of our merchandise. Anything you buy here is good—because we make it good.

New Yorkers ain't what you would call neighborly." Mrs. Bates summed up her friend, Mary Abby Thomas, at the end of a dramatic account of her ten days' sojourn in Manhattan. "No, nor even humanly accommodating a poor lunatic to another," she added, "but they're 'wain' stingy."

"How so?" inquired Mrs. Abby with eager interest.

"It was worse than that, but one day Mrs. Bates, mused with indignity, her long, thin cheeks flushing as with some poignant recollection. "The last morning of one before we left for home and I was starting out for the day he noticed a spot on the front of my gray skirt. You know how particular he is and I expected he'd send me back to the hotel. But he didn't. He suggested to have a quick idea near I could make out from his face and manner, that he was sure I had not done it. He stepped up to a public chauffeur, pulled up at the sidewalk in a big automobile. "We'd seen him lots of times and noticed that he favored our Albee's. Frankly, and there was no reason why he shouldn't have recognized us. Besides, he ought to have known we ain't the borrowing kind of folks, but meant by it."

"Young man," Flynn says to him, "you ain't got a bit more of that gasoline?" My wife got a greasy spot on her dress."

"What's his? No it wasn't a question, he understood what I said well; enough, for he began to sulkier, and before I could pull it off—his "it" I said, "it was my Albee's." Flynn with an air of farmhanding a fresh interpretation of character. "It wouldn't have been more than a drop or two of his old gasoline."

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH IT?

They were pale, ghoulish white, with streaks of yellow. We thought it very kind of the proprietor to furnish them for us and each of us took one and ate it like a piece of cake.

"The waiters glanced at us in surprise, but it was nothing to the sensation we created when we rose to go out of the dining room. We had judged each other and stared at us. Of the French maid who came to unfasten my dress I asked: "Do we seem very fat?"

"No, indeed," she replied: "I should have taken Madame's for a French girl's; and she wears her hair loose on her head."

"Then why did the people in the dining room stare at us?"

"You know, Madame, I have heard about it. It is the French Madame's is wearing."

"What is the matter with it?"

"Nothing, except that it is not a flower; it is a vegetable, called celery."

Jack Herkimer was a very pleasant fellow. He was popular with both men and women. Flaxen haired, blue eyed, a boyish face on a massive figure, good natured and full of vitality, he could feel the feelings of others, he drew about him so many friends that he found it difficult to avoid desecrating them from an inability to accept and return all the favors he lay under.

One day Jack was sitting in a street car when a young lady got in. She sat for a few moments oblivious to the fact that the persons are not expected to ride in street cars for nothing, then she took a note for her permanent use, supposed to be contained in the bag she carried. There was a succession of deaths, each more apologetic than the last; then she arose and started to return the article to her conductor.

Jack interposed, "Pardon me," he said, placing himself in front of her, "but your bag is falling off and I'm afraid of its contents." He was talking to her in a friendly, but not smiling, way; "I'm afraid of its contents," he said, "I'm afraid of its contents."

"I'm afraid of its contents," he said, "I'm afraid of its contents."

"I'm afraid of its contents," he said, "I'm afraid of its contents."

"I'm afraid of its contents," he said, "I'm afraid of its contents."

"I'm afraid of its contents," he said, "I'm afraid of its contents."

Miss Brown is giving an elaborate description of a blacking, preparation of a touching, and confounding to be first grade class. "Now, children, we are going to learn a poem today about some one who works very hard. He is very busy, and has great arduous that can lift such heavy things. His face is blackened with soot that comes from the smoking of his pipe. He wears a black apron, and his blouse gets all gray so red, and whenever he makes anything he must use this fire. And the sparks fly about him like he beats it. Now, which little boy or girl can tell me what I have been describing?"

Room at the Top.

There's a crew in the valley. For the lowly, it's the highest. The more it grows of the smaller minds That seek out their selfish ends. With others you'll be thrown. And the sparks fly about him like he beats it. Must travel the heights alone.

He must make for himself a pathway Where no other path we tread. Till he grows complete in contentment above.

As I learn to walk with God, There's no sleep upon the mountain. For the more I work the more I find. Yet the radiant burst of dawn falls Like a blowing rose on the peak.

Then dare the paths of the mountain. O spirit with godlike fire, The more I work the more I find. Till he grows complete in contentment above.

Do not struggle and to aspire! Do not contend with the sluggard. In the valley of life to stop. Do not be afraid of the eagle who flies. There's always room at the top. -J. A. Edgerston.

She Admitted It.

The conversation at a recent social affair turned to frank admissions when Miss Joseph H. Gask of Mount Holly related an incident that happened in Camden.

A short time ago, the judge said, a party given by Mrs. Gask at the Worcester Camden bazaar, when she was prevailed upon to assist at a bazaar. The duty assigned her was to arrange seats in the candy booth. Eventually two young men rambled in that direction.

"How much is this candy?" asked one of the men, pointing to a box on the booth.

"One dollar," was the prompt reply of the Venonah girl. "If you'll pay for that we have some for 99 cents."

"Ray, aren't you a little dear?" asked the young man.

"Yes," he obstinately replied the pretty one, "that's what all the Venonah boys say."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

A Writing Witness.

Judge William Hammond of Atlanta, Ga., was one at the bar when two men, one of whom was a lawyer, attempted him to help prosecute "one really bad man, Ching Lee." After looking at the man, he turned to Mr. Hammond and inquired what Ching Lee had done.

"He's a very bad man," the willing spokesman replied, "Ching Lee, he has a very bad character. He's a very bad man—my brother—both look out window 'dosa stable, see Ching Lee stable write. She lie light away." He lun.

"Certainly," Mr. Hammond replied obligingly. "But you must tell the police just what you tell me now."

"Ching Lee will write—they began again, but the attorney interrupted: "Yes, yes, I know, but when you first saw Ching Lee was the knife up high or low?"

"Blow yeh goyamen soon fah gong gong yeh yoo!"—the Chinaman began jabbering and singing at each other when Mr. Hammond again interrupted.

"I want a truthful answer. Stop counting on me. Was the knife up high or down low?"

The Chinaman who had been acting as principal spokesman wore a puzzled look. He wanted to answer, however, to consult his brother again, he turned a guileless stare on Mr. Hammond and asked, "Which-way, then, best?"—New York American.

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.

From the Wayne Herald, October 18, 1888: Born to Mr. and Mrs. C. B. French, Jr., Sunday, October 14, 1888, a daughter.

The Wayne hand plays for the republican rally at Wakefield. On Saturday, October 13, Mr. Wilhelm Forks of Wayne county, and Miss Anna Forks of Deuel county, were married by Rev. J. F. Mueller, in Wayne.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Durich October 16, 1888, a son. Street Commissioner Snell has nearly finished the work on the streets for the season.

John T. Bressler and James Britton were in Norfolk assisting in the organization of a Commandery at that place.

The ladies of the Monday club are arranging for a three days' fair for the benefit of the club library.

The republican central committee announces a mass meeting to be held in Wayne, November 5.

The republican representative convention meets in Wayne this week. The nomination is conceded to Stanton county this year, and as the Stanton delegates are instructed for A. Axen, his nomination is in all probability assured.

Sylvester Taylor is building a new residence. J. E. Hanson has bought a quarter section adjoining his farm and is building a house on it.

W. P. Agler recently received insurance of $400 to pay for loss sustained from fire.

Market prices for the week: Wheat, 75 cents; oats, 10 to 15 cents; flax, $1.13; barley, 25 to 40 cents; corn, 26 cents.

J. S. French reported the following: N. Duncan of Harlan, Ia., is building a house and barn section 32-27-2, and will move out in the spring.

James W. Nichols of Shelby, Ia., will move onto section 12-27-3; Ira Taylor of Harlan, will occupy the southeast quarter of section 12-27-3; Philip Most of Salina, Ia., has bought the southeast quarter of section 19-28-3, just in the edge of Cedar county, and will move here next spring.

William Bradley of Henderson county, Ill., has bought 120 acres in section 15-27-2, and will be the next spring to stay; and Thomas Hill of Cherokee, Ia., will move upon and improve the southwest quarter of 11-25-4.

From Ponca Journal, October 24, 1884: The internal sound about ways of the mails continues to lead to many justifiable complaints.

It often takes a week for a letter or paper to go from Ponca to Logansport. Three or four days at least are used to send a letter to Hawkeye, Springbank or South Creek.

The same carelessness attends nearly every other mail route leading from this place.

Last Saturday, J. C. Heald sold a bull to John Roden, and in trying to corral him, he became wild and broke down all the fences in his reach, and finally got into Mr. Roden's corn field.

Then the crowd which had assembled, viz. Messrs. Roden, Bandt, Eagen (who is a traveling man from Chicago), Havel, Lowe, and a large number of boys, tried to drive the obstreperous bull out of the field, and he crept into the creek and got stuck in the mud, and would have sunk to China had not his body been bigger than his legs.

They boosted him out of the mud, and then he tackled the whole crowd. His wrath seemed especially directed against Mr. Eagen, for what reason no one knows excepting that Mr. Eagen is a strong Blaine man, and the bull, fully developed as he was about the neck, was evidently a man after Cleveland's own heart.

He crept through the mud and ran him into a treetop. He then turned his attention to Mr. Roden and ran him also up a tree. The uproarious bovine then went towards Mr. Heald, who ran as fast as he could, but he caught his foot in a grapevine and fell to the ground, and then crawled several hundred yards on his hands and knees, and finally hid behind a corn shock.

The bull then took after a short-legged man, but was surprised when the short-legged man outran him, so he gave up in disgust, and permitted himself to be put in the barn, where he will be apt to stay the remainder of his natural life.

The Women's Missionary society meets this week on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. J. H. Felber, Reporter on the finances of the society will be heard and arrangements for the work of the coming winter months will be completed. Mrs. J. G. Mace is the president of the society.

The midweek services have been resumed and will be held each week on Wednesday evening at 7:30. The general subject of prayer will be considered, and for several weeks the various services of the midweek service will be studied.

Peace Sunday at the Presbyterian Church.

The kindness with the proclamation of President Woodrow Wilson, a special "peace service" was held at the Presbyterian church last Sunday evening, the pastor delivering a sermon on the subject of international peace. Taking as his text, Romans 12:18, "Be perfect as we follow after the love which make for peace." Dr. Corkey began his discourse by reading the proclamation in which President Wilson called on all God-bearing peoples to observe peace Sunday by special services in the interests of peace and in which he pointed out that it was both "the privilege and duty of America at this critical time to ask the help of Almighty God."

After declaring that America, had always been a peace-loving nation, and had never gloried in military exploits, the preacher set forth the things which are making for lasting peace among civilized men. Among these he mentioned the knowledge of what war is. The European slaughter which is smothering humanity today tells us how horrible barbarity war is; how criminal, how savage; how irrational.

Another thing which is going to make for peace in the world is the spread of popular government. When civilized nations abolish monarchies, as America has done, and follow the wise leadership of the United States, will be rare indeed. Unless the people rule, if there is war, the men who get killed are the men responsible for the war. In Europe, about twenty four men are responsible for this war, and not one of them has been killed yet, or suffered any great financial loss. The poor soldiers have been killed and maimed and impoverished, but the rulers who brought on the war keep at a safe distance from danger. If it had been necessary for the twenty-four men causing the war in Europe to give up their lives and property before anyone else lost life or property in the struggle, the war would never have begun, not in a thousand years.

Another thing that makes for peace is a true philosophy of life. Peace is a true philosophy of life. Nations are prospered by sister nations becoming prosperous as the whole human race is one vast society, and every nation is ordained of God to contribute to the general welfare. Humanity is one organic whole, and like the human body, when one part suffers, the whole race suffers.

At this point, Dr. Corkey gave il-last night," writes a Philadelphia man.

"I was in the men's cafe of the Hotel. A few tables away, and close to a window, was a rather rough-looking man of about fifty.

He took a cigar out of his pocket, bit off the end, put the cigar in his mouth, took a match out of the match box, and tried to light his cigar.

The match broke in two. He took another. The wind blew it out. With the third, fourth—up to the sixth—he had similar mishaps. By that time, I had become tired of the spectacle, so I walked over to him, handed him a Safe Home Match and said: 'Here! Try this! It's a REAL match!'

He lit it and, in spite of the fact that the wind was coming in the window as hard as ever, lit his cigar."

Now the question is this: If one Safe Home Match will do what six ordinary matches failed to do, what is the relative value of Safe Home Matches and ordinary matches? The price is the same. But what is the relative value?

Illustrations of the hardships which the barbarism of war becomes intolerable. It changes institutions of government, and promotes everywhere the overthrow of autocracy and monarchy, and encourages government of the people, by the people, and for the people. The gospel causes men to have the true philosophy of life and of society, and makes humane brotherhood a fact. It alone can teach us how to pray as christians, and it is only the christian prayer which God can hear. In the thunders of war and the booming of cannon, God is calling the world to the cross of Christ, and war's message is "Acquaint thyself with God, and be at peace; thereby good shall come to thee."

In concluding the preacher said: "The gospel of Jesus Christ is the only real effective means of abolishing war among men. The gospel alone promotes these things which work effectually for peace. The gos-

Kemp and the program committee are arranging for appropriate exercises, and the attendance and interest in the Sunday school are expected to greatly stimulated. The Sunday school meets at 12 o'clock immediately following the morning service. Next Sunday morning, a congregational meeting will be held, after the morning service, to take action on the question of sending a commissioner to the meeting of the presbytery, which will be held at Madison in connection with the synod meeting so that representation may unite with Dr. Corkey in a request that his pastorate in Wayne be continued. When the announcement of this meeting was made in the church last Sunday, the congregation were informed that their old-new pastor with the chautauqua salute as a kindly indication of their

The world is plastered with signs to save your money and not be a tightwad. Which substantiates the theory that one can usually find the sort of advice he seeks.

A boy doesn't wish to boast, but he secretly feels that the ostrich would have no great advantage over him in an endurance contest of stomachs.

STOMACH SUFFERERS! READ THIS!
 So many stomach sufferers have been benefited by a simple prescription of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, that it is a fact that a Chicago druggist of chronic stomach, liver and intestinal trouble of years standing, has found you surely as it is removed. It is known as MARY'S Wonderful Stomach Remedy. One dose will convince you. It usually gives wonderful relief within 24 hours—even in the most stubborn cases. MARY'S Wonderful Stomach Remedy is now sold here by FELBER'S PHARMACY and Druggists Everywhere.

 The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one cured case of Catarrh that science has only been able to cure in the medicine. Haile's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Haile's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the germ, curing the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the system. PURE BRED HOGS.
 V. L. Dayton makes a trip to Tecumseh, Neb., last week to see the grand champion hog of Nebraska sold, but the owners had the misfortune to lose the hog just before the sale. Mr. Dayton purchased four head: a sow sired by Grand Model, the grand champion of Iowa, and bred to Echo's Crimson Wonder, the grand champion of Nebraska; a young boar of J. Am Golden Model 2nd, and out of Ohio Queen, who has produced two grand champions, High Model, W. M. Shont's $730 boar being one of them. The other two were richly bred animals, one of them out of a Colonel Gano sow, the other out of a full sister to the grand champion sow of Nebraska in 1910; that sold for $205.

CHURCHES.

before, the others being received by letter. This sets a good ideal before us for the coming year. We should expect conversions and additions continually.

The new church year opens most encouragingly along most lines. The every member canvass created an interest and a response in practically every home.

Baptist Church.
 Saturday evening the first session of the state convention will convene with the Calvary church, Omaha. At this time, delegates representing all the Baptist churches in the state will be gathered there. Sunday will be Baptist day in all the churches. The pastor will preach at a Presbyterian church in the morning, and at a Methodist church in the evening. Our church will send its representatives to this gathering. It is a great privilege to mingle with a company of enthusiastic workers for the kingdom.

The young people's meeting will be held by Miss Laura Conover. Wednesday evening, at 7:30, the prayer meeting will be held. Start the new year right by resolving to meet with the church on this evening.

Sunday evening, at 7:30, instead of the preaching service, there will be a musicale, given by Professor Davis and his choir. A full program is given elsewhere in this paper. It will be deserving of a full house.

OUTSIDE ADVERTISING.
 Omaha Trade Exhibit: There has always been a discussion among newspaper men as to whether or not they should carry ads in their papers for concerns outside their own town that are in direct competition for the trade of the local merchants.

We could never see where the local retailers or other business had any kick coming if the newspaper carried the ads of legitimate, responsible concerns who would deliver the goods exactly according to the advertisements. We don't believe there is a retailer in a hundred who would really object for the local paper to carry all the advertising they can get providing it is all square and fair.

It is a mistaken idea for the local paper to refuse some such advertising and then complain that the home men for whom he makes the sacrifice do not appreciate it by buying his space themselves.

The merchants who buy such a series of discussion along this line as is shown by the following clippings and we believe it is all worse than useless for the newspapers:

The Herald has refused three foreign advertisements the past week in order to protect the local dealers. One of the three insisted that it could not be legally discriminated against, and proposed to fight for equal rights. The Democrat finally decided to run the advertisement. It is interesting to note how foreign advertisers fight for space in the Wayne papers, whereas local dealers, whom the papers seek to protect, are not only welcome to the columns every week, but are urged to use them.—Wayne Herald.

"Did anyone ever hear of any other business man who would refuse paying business for the good of the town? Every good local paper could secure a good line of advertising from the mail order houses. As indicated above, it may be that they will be forced by law to accept the business. As a newspaper, like a hotel, is a public institution, and undoubtedly can be forced to accept unobjectionable advertisements from any who tender payment for the same."—Albion News.

The Omaha Trade Exhibit makes this closing comment: "While it is true that a newspaper is a public institution and must treat all alike, it is also true that it is a business first to its local public. It is hard, though, for a newspaper man to refuse profitable advertising contracts from outside people when local dealers in the same line refuse to use his space. As a matter of fact, it is likely that a newspaper could be excluded from the mails for refusing legitimate advertising. When a publisher is granted the second class privilege he has to make affidavit that any responsible advertiser can use his columns. Our notion is that an advertiser who is turned down need not go to the courts; all he would have to do would be to refer the matter to the postoffice department. This is a trick that every publisher takes when he refuses mail order advertising.

Spilled His Chance.
 "Why don't you propose to that girl? You like her, and I'm sure she would love you."
 "All right, but there is an insuperable obstacle between us."
 "All family or religious objections can be overcome."
 "Nothing like that. I got a little too gay when I first met her and told her I was getting $30 a week whereas I am getting only $25."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WINSIDE.

MRS. B. M. WIRTH... Editor of the Winside paper... Mrs. Henry Ausvius of Pender, Neb., is spending a few days visiting with relatives and friends.

Car home, returned to her home in Pilger, Neb., Monday morning. L. A. Kiplinger, democratic candidate for reelection to the office of county attorney, called on Mrs. Kiplinger Saturday, calling on his friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Dean, and Mrs. George Patterson left for Omaha Wednesday for the Ak-Sar-Ben. Miss Glandt of Tudley Creek, Neb., arrived in Winside Tuesday afternoon, and will be a guest in the John Glandt home for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Danne and baby of Lorton, Neb., having visited with her mother, Mrs. Danne, northeast of Winside, and numerous other relatives, for several weeks, left for her home Wednesday morning. The congregation of the M. E. church planned and carried out a "pound social" at the church last Thursday evening, to show their pleasure at having Mr. Connell and his family with them another year.

John Mettlen, Johnny McKinney, Magnus and Anton Jensen, and Ada Merton have been absent since last week. The following examinations have been given since last report: Ninth grade, Latin and English; eleventh grade, German.

Looks as though we would have to stay in the field for a while on account of the new uprising across the border. The commanding officer is surely intent upon getting the men here in good condition. We have to drill four hours every morning five days a week. On Saturdays, we have inspection of all equipment.
