

CONTESTANTS HAVE A VERY EVEN START ONLY FOUR CONTESTANTS

Miss Elsie Podoll Takes the Lead in Votes, but Has Three Strong Competitors.
Who will own the Ford touring car which the Herald is giving away under the subscription contest is over? That is the question now in the minds of a good many people in Wayne county. From all appearances at the present time, the race is going to be between four contestants. This is a very small number of contestants to have in the field, and the contest will not be given away, but each of these contestants is starting out with a great deal of enthusiasm and the race will no doubt be an exciting one before the end is reached. The votes show that the race is starting off very evenly. A glance at the standing will reveal this fact. Miss Elsie Podoll of Hoskins, takes the lead, but she is not so far in the lead but that any one of the other contestants can easily be at the top of the list next week. Mrs. Herb Jenkins of Carroll, is a close second, while Miss Clara Wischoff of Wayne, holds third place, and her votes show that she is meeting with success. Mrs. Grace Lyons, who lives north of Wayne, is at the foot of the class, but it would only have taken the votes of four more combination subscriptions to have placed her up with the highest contestant. Mrs. Elsie Podoll is asking for her support and help her gain the top. This is about as even as any race could possibly be started. No one can tell who will be in the lead when the votes are counted next week. The contest will not be getting their campaign outlined for the real work that will be effective. In a campaign of this kind each one must organize her friends into a body of workers so the work can be carried on with a system. It is just like running for office, and the contestant who can organize the most effective campaign and who has the largest number of assistants will be successful. The votes cast in the ballot box this week show the standing to be as follows:
Elsie Podoll, Hoskins, 9,225
Mrs. Herb Jenkins, Carroll, 8,500
Clara Wischoff, City, 5,300
Grace Lyons, Route 1, Wayne, 500

COUNCIL PLANS NEW STANDPIPE FOR CITY

Having found it impractical to build an addition to the present standpipe as originally planned, the city council is now figuring on putting up an entirely new one. In making the improvement, it is proposed to secure a new site, and negotiations have been started for use of the ward school grounds. As understood, it is planned to erect a standpipe, one hundred feet high, on huge legs, thus, giving greater height and greater pressure. The building of a new standpipe seems to be the only feasible course to pursue, and the selection of a new site is being removed from Main street an eyecore and an inconvenience to travel. It is figured that extending the present standpipe, if possible, would perpetuate it in Main street. The proposed new standpipe would serve every demand for many years, and would be a permanent and generally satisfactory improvement.

BOYS PLEAD GUILTY TO SIMPLE ASSAULT

The four young men, Carl Willis, True Duncan, Everett Hoguewood, and James Crawford, who were charged with assault and unlawful assembly for the purpose of violating the law against the carrying of firearms, Tuesday afternoon and pleaded guilty to simple assault on agreement of the complainant, Prof. Charles H. Bright, to waive the balance of the complaint. Accordingly, the court set Willis, Duncan, and Crawford $1 each and costs. It seems that the young men charged with disturbing State Normal students in their picnic were four of a dozen of boys who were in the offending crowd. Dangers threatened by the kind of conduct which caused the arrest of the boys were pointed out to them, and they were admonished to deport themselves with more circumspection in the future. It is understood an effort is to be made to detect the other members of the intruding party.

One of the most interesting and instructive experiences of the year was that of listening to Shikanyo Obata, a young Japanese student, recently graduated from the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Obata spoke Thursday afternoon at the invitation of Professor Lewis to the theme of recent bereavement, and at conclusion Friday morning. The theme of the former address was that of the relations of Japan to other nations, while at chapel the speaker dwelt on the variety of points of view that tend to produce misunderstandings among nations.

SAVIDGE AMUSEMENT COMPANY COMES BACK

Walter Savidge arrived at his Wayne headquarters Saturday with his carnival company and equipment, having closed the most successful season in his experience. Mr. Savidge had planned to tour the south during the winter, but when he reached Missouri he changed his mind and decided to return to Wayne to put up for the winter. The condition of the cotton market in the south, causing a scarcity of money, led him to abandon his contemplated southern trip. He had done some of the best business in Arkansas, but cancelled them. The young people of the Baptist church are making much of the social life among themselves. Sociables of different sorts are being arranged for. Last Tuesday evening thirty young people had a hayrick ride of considerable length and ending with a "wicker" roast. Leaving the church about 8 o'clock, they enjoyed the pleasant evening ride until 9:30, when they stopped at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rimeel, and had a most delightful dinner. The length of sandwiches and "wicker" doughnuts, and coffee, and roasted marshmallows. Evenings of innocent pleasure together develop fine qualities of the mind and character. There is no social life between parents and their children.

Emil Weber, formerly of Wayne, where he was engaged with his brothers, W. B. and W. H. Mr. Weber was in Wayne Tuesday. Get a nice box of Lowney's at Felber's. Mrs. S. H. McCaw and Mrs. L. S. Needham of Norfolk were in Wayne Tuesday in the interest of woman suffrage. The local organization held a meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. H. Bright, and plans were discussed for making a vigorous campaign in this district before election in November. Dr. Anna Howard Shaw will speak at Norfolk afternoon and evening, on Saturday, October 24. The Nebraska Suffrage association feels fortunate in being able to secure Dr. Shaw for several speeches in the state, and as Norfolk is the only town in this district at which she will speak, many Wayne people will go to hear her.

THESE ARE THE "INSIDES" of the Round Oak stove. Notice that the grate is higher in the center than around the outside. When this grate is shaken, all the ashes pass to the outside and drop off the edge, consequently no clinkers ever form on the grate. The grates and fire pots of the ROUND OAK all come out thru the feed door, so that they can be easily replaced at any time without the trouble and expense of taking the stove apart. THE WEEK WITH THE CHURCHES

St. Mary's Catholic Church.
 (Rev. William Keates, Pastor.)
 Mass in Wayne next Sunday morning at 10:15. Catechism after mass. Benediction in the evening at 7:30.

German Lutheran Church.
 (Rev. R. Meehring, Pastor.)
 There will be no church services or Sunday school next Sunday, as the pastor will be at a missionfest at Papillion.

Methodist Church.
 (Rev. A. S. Buell, Pastor.)
 Efficiency is the watchword for the new year for all departments of the church life. The finances are being completely reorganized and new and approved plans for the church and benevolent interests are being adopted for this year. The choir is rendering splendid service under the efficient leadership of Prof. J. J. Coleman. The Sunday school and Epworth league are both adopting aggressive programs. We will be greatly pleased to welcome you to our services next Sunday. The sermon topic at the hour of the morning worship will be "God, Our Father." In the evening, the pastor will speak on the "True and the False Standards of Life." The Class meeting at 10 o'clock Sunday morning and mid-week prayer service on Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Our regular choir practice will be held on Friday evening at 8 o'clock until the pastor's subject for Sunday morning's sermon. As a good preparation, read Matt. xxv, 14-30, before you leave home.

The pastor appreciated the hearty response to the convention report last Sunday. One privilege and duty we all have is to share the good things we receive. "If you have a kindness shown, pass it on."

Dr. J. T. House of the State Normal gave a splendid address to the young people last Sunday evening on the subject of temperance. He is very hopeful of the ultimate overthrow of the saloon and its kindred evils. We, too, believe that day will come though not without some-thing, hard work.

The missionary committee will have charge of the young people's service. We hope at this meeting to have a full report from those who attended the young people's session of the convention.

The pastor will preach at 7:30 on the subject, "Morality Without Religion."

We trust we may have some new faces at prayer-meeting Wednesday evening. It will be our covenant meeting.

And Mrs. George Wadsworth have the sympathy of the church on account of the sudden death of their little son, Don. In such experiences, our faith in a heavenly father means much to one.

Let our purpose be to live helpful lives as we pass through life.

From the Ponca Journal, October 31, 1884:
 Last week a tragedy took place in Cedar county, the particulars of which, as near as we can obtain them, are substantially as follows:
 On Friday morning, word was brought to St. Helena that a man who had been working for Sheriff Ashre on his farm near West Bow church, and who had been recently discharged, was burning the sheriff's hay and grain stacks. A warrant was immediately taken out and Sheriff Ashre and Deputy Sheriff Phillips, accompanied by a posse, started for the scene of action to arrest the man. They found him in the road near Ashre's farm and ordered him to surrender. Instead of doing so, he drew a revolver and opened fire which was returned by the capturing party. It is said that not less than fifty shots were fired by both sides, only one of which took effect, and that caused only a slight wound in the head of Sheriff Phillips. After the revolver had all been emptied, the man ran into the house of Mr. Marks and crawled under a bed. During the time, he shipped another cartridge into his revolver. His pursuers came in attacking him and the first, hitting Deputy Sheriff Phillips, the hall striking him in the side and passing entirely through him. The remainder of the party then, after a desperate struggle with him in which a gun was broken over his head, captured him. Mr. Phillips was supposed to be fatally wounded, and physicians were immediately sent for. The prisoner was put into a wagon and taken to St. Helena and lodged in jail. The probable fatal shooting at Cedar county Phillips raised great excitement. Captain Phillips is most favorable knight in Cedar county. He is an old soldier and is a brave, generous true hearted man, and his friends felt unconquerable indignation against his assassin.

Friday night, a party of disguised men broke into the jail, took out the prisoner and hung him. The prisoner came last spring from Dakota territory. He was a Dane, but his name was not known. He was a desperado of the most reckless character, and had, so it was reported, killed three men while in Dakota.

After hanging him, the crowd quietly dispersed. The body was cut down on Saturday by order of the coroner.

Captain Phillips has since then been lingering between life and death. It was at first supposed that his wounds would be fatal, but of late it has been thought that he might recover.

When the average man gets drunk he recalls that he doesn't owe anyone a cent, and then he goes about telling everyone that he isn't under obligations to anyone and that this is a free country. And sometimes freedom is a joke.

SCIENTIFIC EYE EXAMINATION

Circumstances may indicate that possibly you need eye-glasses in order to give you better and more comfortable vision, and to relieve a strain which you notice in reading or doing close work of any kind. The approach of eye-strain is hardly noticed, however, in its earlier stages. Some persons frown, wrinkle the eyebrows, squint or have other nervous habits, which are among the first indications of eye-strain. In such instances, the person's eyes are likely to tire easily. This is the best time to call for an examination by an exclusive eye man in order to ascertain whether or not glasses should be worn. I do nothing but test eyes and make glasses.

FOREIGN NAMES.

Those awful names of foreign towns where, in the blood-soaked hand-me-downs, the warriors of Europe scrap—such names should dislocate the map! I'd like to lay my work aside and to the corner drug store slide, and there discuss, with sundry friends, the war, actual and bloodless ends. But every time I bid to start to yawn I strike a name that bids me stop, that makes me feeble in the knees, until I catch my breath and sneeze. What sense is there, consequently, in making names of O sacred aunts, in making names of a night and stick to read about some fight, wherein ten thousand men were slain: the housewife lists as though in pain; the children gather round my chair, to hear story of despair, and giddy, so she's sure to read, inserts a trumpet in her ear. I read perhaps a dozen lines, of forts besieged, exploding mines, and then I quit—the stuff is off—I'm up against "Pzplizschblibblit!" I murmur, "I can read no more; I'll roll awhile upon the floor, and bite some plaster from the wall, and kick the stowaways till they fall, and maybe when I've got my breath, I'll try again that tale of death."

DREAMS.

The dreams of youth are most enticing, they take him where all nature smiles, and birds of paradise are glancing along romantic woodland isles. And when he wakes, and lies recalling the visions of that fairy shore, the moonlight on its vistas falling, he frowns, and sneezes, and says, "The dream of youth is fierce and tracking, and wear away the old man's lives; in dreams red men my steps are tracking, with tomahawks and scalping knives. Or I'm tied upon a stretcher, a locomotive, it is so hard to find—the tales live drawing near, no matter how I strain and wrestle, I can't escape my doom. I fear, or forty-seven bulls pursue me. I hear them thunder at my heels, they push their big long antlers through me—how comfortable all that feels? Or I am from an airship falling, and know that every bone will break; the pangs I feel are most appalling, and I'm still falling when I wake. I never sleep but that disaster comes to me in some tragic form; I'm swimming in a lake of plaster, or torn to fragments by a storm. And when I wake I'm so exhausted, to walk I scarcely have the steam; then by some youth I am accosted, who tells me of his glowing steam.

WASTED MEN.

The war goes on. There is no sign of peace; no see can say when gory strife shall cease; no gifted prophet in his spangled robe, can send a dove around the weary globe; the guns still roar, the captains march on slay, men's lives, like threshed-out chaff, are thrown away. The young men die in battle, speed, and rout; who knows what genius has been blotted out? Perhaps a Shakespeare lies among the slain, and to the no, says, and born, alas, in vain! Full many a youth, with bright splendid dreams, gives his warm blood to moisten the crimson streams which swell Europe till their mists arise, and spread a veil of red across the skies. The youth and genius of the warring lands, with foolish weapons in their artist hands, are carving flesh, who should be carving stone, are wielding swords, when brushes are their own. Alas, what waste, what sinful waste of men, to prove the sword is mightier than the pen!

SOME OF THE POOR.

So many have no roofs or doors, no sheets to cuddle under. You hire some men to do your chores, and then you cease to wonder. Alas, it is so hard to find—the tales much pursuing—the worker who will keep his mind on what he has to be doing. I hire a man to saw some sticks, to keep the fire a-going, and he discusses politics, in language smooth and flowing, the saw grows rusty while he stands, the workman shrinks and totters, as he with swinging jaws and hands, denounces Wall street politics. When I get home, as dusk grows dense, I hear his windy rages, and kick him fairly through the fence, when I have paid his wages. I hire a man to paint the churn and hoe the morning-glories, and when at evening I return he's busy telling stories. "That toiler is no good, I fear," remarks the hamstraw, "and I beat him gently by the ear and lead him to the alley. I hire a man the stove to black, and fix the kitchen bath, and when at evening I come back, he's sleeping in the stable. And thus we go, till one ends the other's vain endeavor; we do not wonder that the poor are with us here forever.

POLITENESS.

I kicked an actor from my porch but did it so nicely he handed me a ten-cent torch, and said I acted rightly. With bows and becks and wretched smiles all working well together, I handed him some forty states at alligator leather, and he thanked me when I lit the torch, and rolled upon it, and gathered up his peddling kit, and went away, doggone it. And thus a smile will take the sting from each unpleasant action: instead of rousing ire, by kicking you're giving satisfaction. It's easy, friend, to make a foe—you'll make a new one hourly, if you insist on saying "No" abruptly, sternly, sourly. It's just as easy, when a guy comes to borrow, to greet him with a twinkling eye, and answer, "To my sorrow, old Dobbin has a feathered ear, and also yellow janders, and he has symptoms too, I fear, of chickenpox and glanders." "Thank you, please no to accommodate, and let you have my charger, if he were fit to pull his freight—just ask me something larger." And then he'll leave you feeling good, and say you are a dandy: "I know he'd help me if he could," he'll tell his wife Miranda.

WISHES.

The blacksmith labors at his forge, and mutters now and then: "By George, I'd like to be a banker, and ask to see a sledge, and manufacture iron wedge, and fashion plow and anchor. The banker sits around and gloats over piles of bonds and stocks and notes, attired in princely raiment, while I must strain my weary thighs to meet with Sons of Milo dues, or make some other payment. The banker's girls are wearing gems, his wife has priceless diadems, all girls the kind goods bring em; but my good wife and girls, alas, have only brooches of plate glass, and they are wearing kimonas. The banker, shy of brown and path, admires the mighty stalwart smith, all full of red muscles; he sighs, "Oh, chee, I'd give my wealth to have that man's abundant health, his giant bones and muscles! I do not doubt that he can eat a side of mutton and reheat, and feel no indigestion; his stomach takes what it receives, and never balks and never hiccups, and never asks a question. But if I eat a crumb of cake, I have twelve kinds of stomach ache, my works will be corroded; a sirloin steak would knock me cold—so what's the use of all the good with which they say I'm loaded?" Complaining mortal, be content, and envy not the other gent, whose lot seems so much better. He also sighs for some relief; he has his share of care and grief, as sure as donnerwetter.

THE RURAL SCHOOLS OF WAYNE COUNTY

The County Superintendent, J. E. Brown, No. 41, near Hoskins, has made many improvements in the last two years. Just recently, kindergarten tables and chairs were purchased. Miss Edith Duhan of Wayne is serving her third year in the district.

The schools at Hoskins and at Sholes have been approved as two-year high schools of the second class.

Greene has added two more classes this year, and hopes to be approved for a four-year high school of the first class. The three teachers in the high school department are working at some disadvantage until the new building is completed. There are in one big room with a recreation room separated from the rest by curtains. The superintendent, Mr. Jones, hears a recitation in his corner of the room; Miss Johnson, the assistant, hears one in her corner.

While Miss Hamilton is given the privilege of the curriculum in the recreation room. There are no desks in the room for the girls. They are accommodated at four long tables for each grade. There are thirteen pupils in the ninth grade, twelve in the tenth, twelve in the eleventh, and seven in the twelfth grade. When the school can occupy the new building it will be one of the strongest schools in the county.

There have been three resignations from rural schools since the work started in September. Miss Gertrude Allen of Wayne takes the place of Miss Martha Weber in No. 22, south of Randolph. Miss Eva Burruss of Carroll, and Miss Birgland of Pierce, have taken the schools in Nos. 64 and 34 respectively. These two schools are south of Wayne and were being Telephone users should realize that every time they use the line for idle and foolish conversation, someone may be waiting for the line with a death message or a fire or accident. The telephone should be used only when necessary, and then as briefly as possible. Some women spend hours of the phone gossiping with neighbors, and one even told us that she had almost got up when the call came that a doctor in a great hurry; perhaps they want to talk assistance because of a fire or a burglar. Telephone messages are trifling as a rule but no one can tell when the call may be one of the greatest importance. It is the height of impoliteness and unfairness to use the telephone for long and foolish conversations.

To tie up a telephone line with idle gossip or empty vapors is little less than criminal in view of exigencies liable to arise at any time. A good rule is to say what need to be said in as few words as possible and release the line. Writing for the Atchison Globe, Ed Howe says: "This actually happened in the Potato Hill neighborhood: A woman called central on the telephone and asked for a number. The telephone girl replied that the line was busy. In a few minutes the woman called again, and again the girl replied that the line was busy. Then the woman burst out crying and said, 'I wish you could get the number for me; our house is on fire. I am alone and must have help.' The woman then got the

What Would You Do? There are many times when one man questions another's actions and motives. Men act differently under different circumstances. The question is, what would you do right now if you had a severe cold? Could you do better than to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy? It is highly recommended by people who have used it for years and know its value. Mrs. O. E. Sargent, Peru, Ind., says, "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is worth its weight in gold, and I take pleasure in recommending it." For sale by all dealers.—Ad.

Who Takes the Chance?

When you buy a stove or range that "is just as good" as the Majestic, you or the man who sells it to you? Be honest now, who takes the chance? The man who sells it to you may be in business or out of business in a week or a year. You paid for the "just as good" kind in good money. If it doesn't prove to be "just as good," in fact turns out to be a "fako," who stands the loss, you or the fellow who sold it to you? Who pays for the "frills" and the scores of "nice things" that are put on it for the smooth-tongued salesman to talk about, but not one of which has anything to do with cooking a meal or doing a baking. Just remember that the Great Majestic has been made and sold for nigh on thirty years. Its value was proved years and years ago. Its popularity and sales have increased year by year, not because some glib salesman talked about its geegaws, but because it was always built right and worked right. Limited for years, but never equalled for practical purposes and has no equal today.

Mr. H. Reese who is a candidate for re-election to the supreme court, is one of the ablest members of the court, and lawyers regard his legal opinions with the highest respect. He is careful and sound in the interpretation of the law, and his retention on the bench would seem an act of wisdom.

Representative Gardner of Massachusetts blew off a cargo of steam in a speech on the floor of the house recently. He bawled about the unpreparedness of the United States for war and shouted for greater armaments. The assurance of avoiding trouble largely with strength to avoid inopportune speeches like that let loose by the bellicose Massachusetts congressman.

The Oakland Independent which was sold recently by Eric Morrell to C. C. Carlton, coming from Iowa, has been shorn of its bullmoose propensities and has become a republican newspaper. There is such manifest lack of excuse for supporting the bullmoose party, that an editor, thoughtlessly led into espousing the cause, and later seeing the folly of the move, must feel huge relief in selling out.

The publisher of the Pender Review has been sued for $10,000 by Thurston county attorney of Thurston county, the action having grown out of attacks made by that paper on him. The Republic editor says he has been threatened with other suits, and that he is not afraid of the outcome. The bitterness manifested in the politics of Thurston county is most unfortunate.

A prominent Aurora man, writing the Republican of that place, insists that an attractive name for a town is an essential in making it grow, and urges that "Aurora" ought to be replaced with something more catchy. If there is anything in a name, Wayne ought to move along with vigor. Wayne city got its name from Wayne county—best county in the state—and Wayne county was named after Anthony Wayne who was a live wire in the Revolutionary period.

The office of congressman is distinctly partisan. It figures directly in carrying out party principles. Congressman David V. Stephens is the candidate of the democratic party for re-election. O. S. Spillman of Pierce, is the nominee of the republican party. They represent different public policies. Stephens asks for an endorsement of the national administration and his course in congress. On the other hand, Spillman believes people of this district have tired of the administration's experiments and are ready to elect a republican to congress. Thus, voters who are satisfied with conditions will generally support Stephens, while those who are ready for a change will vote for Spillman.

COLUMN ADVOCATING WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE

The "Unanswerable Argument" Answered.

(Furnished by Local Committee.)

(By Mrs. Lida Calvert Obenchain, (Eliza Calvert Hall.)

The Woman's World: It is asserted that "the average good American woman's indifference to woman suffrage" is an unanswerable argument against the movement.

If it be true, there is an unanswerable argument against every good work and every reform movement of the present day, or of any past day, for it is a fact that "the average good American woman and her brother, "the average good American man," are shamefully indifferent to the things that make for the public good.

A knowledge of sanitary science is a good thing. The average American woman living in a town without a drainage system will permit the cook to throw dish water and kitchen garbage into the back yard, and the average American man, unless deterred by laws, does not hesitate to excrete on the public pavement and the floors of public buildings. Is this indifference to sanitary precautions an unanswerable argument against sanitary science?

The men and women who are working to abolish child labor encounter a vast indifference to this subject on the part of legislators and the people at large. Is this indifference an unanswerable argument in favor of child labor?

Seventy-five years ago, women did not go to college. When the agitation for the higher education of women began, the indifference of the average American citizen arrayed itself against education for women. Was this indifference an unanswerable argument in favor of illiteracy for women?

There was a time when a married woman could not make a will, and a married woman's wages belonged to her husband. So indifferent were the average men and women to this injustice that it was years before married women obtained property rights. Was this indifference an unanswerable argument against granting women the right to dispose of her own possessions by will, and to collect and spend the wages earned by her own toil?

But why go further in citing parallel cases? There are two classes of people in the world. In the women of one class, a keen sense of justice is developed. In the other class, the sense of justice is so undeveloped that women belonging to this do not object to a condition of disfranchisement that reduces them to the political level of the idiot, lunatic, the felon, the minor, and the illiterate negro of the south.

This large class of women is well described as "average," and by mere force of numbers these average women may continue for a long while to have things their own way. But human progress means the setting aside of the opinions and wishes of average people, and in the long run the world is governed by the small first class, the men and women who love justice, who know what justice is, and who, by this love and knowledge, are raised above the average.

NATIONAL REPUTATION.

Lincoln Trade Review: Iowa is a great corn state. It alternates with Illinois yearly in standing at the head of the list of corn producing states in the union or of corn producing sections in the civilized world.

Black Hawk county has for its county seat, Waterloo; it is one of Iowa's best counties, as Waterloo is one of the state's most progressive cities, and one institution in Waterloo proposes to make a national reputation for Black Hawk county as a corn growing county through a corn contest that is on this year.

The Leavitt & Johnson National bank of Waterloo has organized a contest covering every precinct in the county and has single-handed and alone, put up prizes totaling $1,300 in cash that will be paid to the farmers producing the largest corn yield on a single acre. There are 557 contestants enrolled and from the very beginning last winter until the corn is gathered and weighed, the contest has been on directly on these special acres, indirectly on bettering corn production in entire fields in the county.

One of the officers of the bank has given his entire time through the season in developing the plans and working out the features of this contest; when the husking time comes, there will be an immense amount of work in looking after the entire 557 contestants and seeing that everything is done square and fair before the prizes are awarded.

Black Hawk county as a great corn-producing county, will certainly achieve more than statewide reputation for this contest; where the average acre will produce 100 bushels of corn, the financial expenditure on the part of the bank and the personal work that has gone into the undertaking? In discussing this, the official of the bank in charge of the contest, says: "The average acre will produce 100 bushels; here and there were places that produced one hundred bushels to the acre. It

A FALSE BATTLE CRY.

Freeman Tribune: "Let us uphold the hands of President Wilson." This is the campaign slogan of the democrats of the state. It is being used for the purpose of rallying voters to the support of the ticket as well as the democratic ticket. But what President Wilson has to do with the state campaign we are unable to perceive. It is certain that his purely domestic record, whatever that may be, and his administration has related to industrial affairs, was under condemnation among the people of Nebraska three months ago. Then, by the operation of the new tariff, wheat and corn and oats and other farm products were on the toboggan. Wheat would now undoubtedly be less than fifty cents a bushel had a foreign war not broken out. Unquestionably, if the state had come in August, Nebraska would have gone overwhelmingly republican. It was a piece of political good fortune for the democrats that war broke out. But that is no reason why republicans should vote for Morehead and the rest of the democratic ticket in charge of the business affairs of Nebraska.

Mr. Metcalf has deserted his $100,000 job to come to Nebraska to make the battle cry to stand up for Wilson. Dan Stephens has put out a campaign card to the same effect, arguing against "swapping horses in the middle of the stream." The other democratic congressmen of the state are feeling the same way about it. They seem to regard themselves as the "horses" that are pulling us through a foreign war. President Wilson is to remain in the White House two years more. If a republican congress is elected this year, it will embarrass him in the delicate adjustment of our foreign relations. In war times, the republicans have shown themselves quite as competent to govern as have the democrats. It was so in the sixties. It was also true during the Spanish-American conflict. We also recall that there was no necessity for going into Mexico until the Wilson administration came into power. To say that Wilson's foreign policies must be upheld by electing a democratic congress is all bosh. That is a question of patriotism, and when have republicans not stood up for our democrats? A republican who will be won away from the support of his party's nominee for congress on this sort of balderdash, may not subject himself to the challenge of being unpatriotic, but his discernment will be under suspicion.

No, the question of upholding Wilson is not involved. It is a question of the relative patriotism of democrats and republicans.

is certain if some acres will produce one hundred bushels, certainly the majority of the others will produce more than thirty-five or forty. If the 100,000 acres of the corn area in the county could be made to raise a five-bushel increase, there would be an added corn production of 500,000 bushels for one year. This would, at a conservative estimate, increase the wealth of the county three hundred thousand dollars. This added wealth realized would be scattered in every time of business activity in the county. Every line of business would get its share and the Leavitt & Johnson National bank assures the public that it is willing to assume the risk of getting its portion.

Here is a touch of enterprise on the part of a financial institution in one Iowa county that will make wonderfully for an increase of crop production and wealth in that locality. What if the plan were worked out in every one hundred counties in that state? Millions of dollars would be added to the productive wealth of the state in a single year to say nothing of the influence on corn production in future years. What if some prosperous enterprising bank in one county in Nebraska put on a similar contest in that state? There are fifty counties in the state, anyone of which could make a record along with the lowest county in better corn production. What if one county increased its corn production to the value of $300,000 in a year? Would it not be a good investment for the bank itself as well as the community? And what if fifty or more Nebraska counties following out the same plan increased the value of its corn crop in such proportions? What would it not mean to this state in added wealth going into every line of business? Sure the Iowa bank that is making an effort to establish a national reputation for its locality in corn production, will not only do this, but, in addition, it will set an example for all other counties in its state and for wide awake communities in surrounding states. It is a work worthy of commendation all around.

Accidents will happen, but the best regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Ecodic in for such emergencies. Two sizes, 25 and 50 cents at all drug stores.—Ad.

Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, is calling the attention of those most interested to our need of more submarines and intra-coastal canals rather than of more battleships; as one of the lessons of the European war. The great navies of England, France and Japan, even with the assistance of Russia have thus far accomplished little of practical results aside from capturing or sinking a few merchant vessels. But one of the German submarines has sunk three English warships and returned to its port unharmed.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one cured disease that science has been unable to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh is a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It is cured by destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and restoring nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in their cure, that they offer One Hundred Dollars to any person who can cure a case of Catarrh that they offer to cure. Send for full of testimonials.

Again, without argument, the question of weights would be like some of our political questions—rather indefinite.

Magliabochi Was Too Busy With His Books to Draw His Salary.

The most picturesque figure in the annals of Italian librarianship is undoubtedly Magliabochi. While his official position as librarian to Cosmo III, grand duke of Tuscany, gave him considerable prominence, he is remembered more especially for his personal characteristics and his vast store of self-acquired learning.

Perhaps the most extraordinary librarianship was that enjoyed by Diderot, who about 1768 decided to sell his library in order to provide a dowry for his daughter.

RESULTS TELL.

There Can Be No Doubt about the Results in Wayne.

Results tell the tale.

All doubt is removed.

The testimony of a Wayne citizen can be easily investigated.

What better proof can be had?

W. H. Hoguewood, Wayne, says:

"About a year ago, my back was so painful and lame that I could scarcely get up after sitting. I had other symptoms of kidney trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in our home for a similar complaint and had given such great benefit that I finally decided to try them.

UGLY DRIVER ANTS

All Living Creatures Fly Before These African Terrors.

THEY BUILD LIVING BRIDGES.

When an Army of These Formidable and Ferocious Insects Want to Cross a River a Suspension Tube of Their Own Bodies Provides the Way.

Why should driver ants cross rivers? The suits of our own words have no such meaning; every busy citizen is too much engaged in the practical task of finding and storing food to have any vacillates of this sort.

The great driver or fashioning ant, however, has nothing, peaceable in his conduct; his is a constant and aggressive and spiteful; neither is he contented in the great forests of Africa these insects multiply to an alarming extent.

Myriads of these insects are seized with a restless desire for change. Owing some mysterious instinct or following the summons of their queen they set out upon their travels, and were the man or beast that crosses their path.

When the vast army of ants arrives on the bank of a river, halt is called. They have no idea of turning back, but to cross that river they must have a bridge, and the making of this bridge is the work of the engineers of the army have to burdle up to the front.

The making of an ant bridge is one of the most wonderful things in the world. The ants swarm on a tree, choosing one which overhangs the river. Upon the bough which reaches farthest over the stream they mass themselves and begin to form a thick rope of their own bodies.

By and by the floating chain is carried to the bank of the river, and the other side where probably grass and great reeds spring out of the water. The foremost ants set upon the first obstructions and get one step and foothold to another they climb until at last they reach land.

Do Challin, in his African travels, had an opportunity of observing one of these bridges, and he declares that it is made with a hollow center, the living bodies of the ants forming the walls of a tunnel, through which the main body of ants travel safely over the water.

ONE WAY THE TOWN OF WAYNE GOT ITS START

(Contributed.)

The pastor of the little Presbyterian church in northern New Jersey, within almost a stone's throw of one of Washington's headquarters, must have felt quite elated when he came home from Freshy and in torned Elizabeth that he had been elected a commissioner to the general assembly to meet in St. Louis, in May, 1865.

"To St. Louis! How in the world will you get away out there in the far west? and what sort of entertainment can you expect for easterners in that faroff French settlement?" said Elizabeth.

"Why, St. Louis is not so distant, only about twice as far as I went to Georgia for my health," replied the minister. "The trip will be fine!" By boat and rail to Philadelphia. By car to Pittsburg, and by boat down the Ohio and up the Mississippi. Oh, it will be a grand trip! Probably nearly two thousand miles. Only wish you could go along, Bessie," continued the young dominie.

"Well, sir, you can go, but I do not care to share the perils and hardships of a trip away out there," replied the lady.

II

As usual at gatherings of the assembly on the Sabbath of its meetings, the ministers were scattered over the neighboring region, to preach, and our Jerseyman was sent to one of the largest towns in Illinois.

III

One day in the year 1870, a man might have been seen riding over the beautiful hills and plains of northern Nebraska, selecting some of the fine land of that locality as a patrimony for his two daughters, and the Rev. George Ives went over to Dakota City and entered his choice of the best of Nebraska's fertile acres.

It was not long thereafter that the good man, seeking temporary relief in the Crescent City of the South, passed to the house not made with hands, and the wife and girls were left in Illinois.

IV

Both daughters had married and one had lost her husband by that fell destroyer, consumption. So this one thought she must seek a better home for her children. What wonder that the land where her paternal acres lay should allure her, and offer health to her children.

Then they took up their abode to a beautiful city of Nebraska, from which Elizabeth, now a grandmother—her fear of the west overcome—wrote back east of all the attractiveness of this new home, in a region scarcely inhabited by the whites at the time she sat by the Mississippi and cried.

But the birds fly out from the nest, and the boys and girls, so one Elizabeth's granddaughter found her mate in the Nebraska city, and the young people thought it would be a grand scheme to go up into the "land of rivers," toward the land of the Osjways and the Dakotas, and make them a home on the land the Jersey preacher had selected for his children.

So they came and built their lodge—a pretty and large one by the bank of the Logan; soon children came to them also, and this was one of the ways that a city called Wayne had some of its development in life and activities and improvements.

These pictures of father and mother—quaint in their old-fashioned clothes, are all the more precious because they recall the father and mother of your childhood.

Some day your photograph will be just as precious to others. And the present-day photographer is well equipped, both in skill and in the tools of his profession, to pay the obligation that this generation owes to the next.

This is YOUR Davenport

Do you know that more davenports are sold than any other kind of furniture?

They are made now to look like a beautiful, upholstered couch in the day time and open with one motion into a fine, comfortable bed at night.

You really have an extra room when company comes by having one of these bed-couches.

They add immensely to the furnishings of your living room or library, and only a trifle to the cost.

Your friends nearly all have one. Why should you do without? Come in and see the new styles and designs now.
