

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR LATE DR. CORKEY

HONORED BY LARGE CROWD

Speakers Review Christian Character of Deceased Presbyterian Pastor.

At the Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon, memory of the late Dr. Alexander Corkey who was closely identified with the life of this community, was honored by a large audience gathered for that purpose. All denominations were represented, and all felt the loss of a Christian leader of superior worth.

Rev. H. P. Richardson of the Baptist church, who had been most intimately associated with Dr. Corkey, had charge of the services. He said it was not to be a service of mourning, but one of rejoicing over the fact that one so strong and useful had lived here, to leave the impress of his noble influence. He said people should honor his memory, not so much by expressing sorrow as by consecrating their lives to the ideals for which he lived.

Rev. E. E. Blessing of the English Lutheran church spoke very tenderly of his association with Dr. Corkey, and told how his greeting and presence always inspired him. He expressed assurance that Dr. Corkey had been promoted to a higher life.

Rev. A. S. Buell of the Methodist church, told of his occasional meeting with Dr. Corkey, and said he recognized in him the true noble man. He said the fruit of the life of the departed pastor could be found in those who had been influenced by him; that the best way to honor his memory was to carry out the ideals to which he had devoted his life.

A. R. Davis spoke of Dr. Corkey as one to the community. He said the community to which he belonged, was a large one. He touched many lives through his books and lectures. The life of a good man is a great asset and an abiding inspiration to any community.

W. D. Redmond of the State Normal, spoke of the high place Dr. Corkey occupied in the estimation of that institution; how he was at all ways willing and glad to be in any way. He had inspired many students to enter the country.

Of special heart interest were the words of David Cunningham, member of the session of the Presbyterian church. Mr. Cunningham said many times in the country with Dr. Corkey. It was a great treat to me to take him out into the country to visit. I always enjoyed visiting with him, and especially in the country. I suppose one reason for this was that he was a native in the country. The first six years, or more, of my life were spent on a farm. Dr. Corkey enjoyed the country very much, and we always had a pleasant time to gether on those visits. We talked a great deal about the country, and about the christian home on the farm, what a power for good it had been and would continue to be in our civilization and government; what the christian home means to the children and to the nation. He often would talk of his home in Ireland, how dear it was to him and to the whole family.

"Dr. Corkey told me of going away from home to work and how his father went with him some distance to see how he switched his car just as far as he could see him after he started for home again, and how glad he was to see him coming to meet him on his return. And he told me about his mother, and sisters and brothers, and I often think of how he switched his car in such a family, in such a home, by such good and noble parents!

"Another feature about visiting in the homes around Wayne was the appreciation shown by the people. I never visited a home where he was not gladly welcomed and made to feel that members of the household were glad to have him visit them. Old and young, rich and poor, all seemed pleased to have him come, and the same spirit was manifested at the schools which he visited when they were in session. His presence seemed to be an inspiration wherever he went, and an inspiration for better living and better living. He left a noble example for us to follow. He was a man who was doing his best to bring the best of his life to the community. His winning, genial way had a good influence on all who came in contact with him.

he came in contact with. "The Old Boys" were delighted to meet him and have a talk with him, and he was just as glad to meet them, and when they wanted a speech, they generally wanted Dr. Corkey to make it for them, which he delighted to do. And no one who ever heard him was any the worse for it.

Dr. Corkey was a great admirer of Abraham Lincoln, and he never tired of talking about him, and the great work he did for our country. The meetings of our church session were most delightful, the best spirit always prevailing. We were led to do the things that would lead to the better life and growth of the church almost unconsciously.

"Dr. Corkey was a leader, and led in the right direction always. Blessed is the church and the community that has such a leader. I have heard a good many wonder why he was called away in the midst of his life, and of his useful life. That is an old question that has been asked in many cases in the past. Some time, when the mist has cleared away, it will no longer be a mystery.

The service was most appropriate evidence of the esteem of one whose life had been intimately related to the church and the community at large. His memory will be held sacred by a host of people here and elsewhere.

FIVE WEEKS MORE OF THE VOTING CONTEST

CLARA WISCHHOFF IN LEAD Complete Change in the Relative Standing of Contestants This Week.

In the contest this week, the contestant who was at the foot of the list last week makes a big jump and goes to the top; the contestant who held third place last week comes up to second, and the one who held first place last week drops to third, and the contestant who held second last week drops back to the foot of the list this week. There has been a general change in the relative standing of the contestants, and while all have made a good gain the race still remains very even.

The special offer of 2,500 notes each for five cents. Herald subscriptions will close next Wednesday. New subscriptions have been coming in lively the past week, and many more are expected by next Wednesday. Each contestant should bear in mind that by taking advantage of this special offer, he will receive double the number of his subscriptions, and as this is the only offer of this kind that will be made, it is well for each one to do her best for the new business.

Statistics for November 12 is the date the management has set for the contest to close. It is believed that by that time the contestants can thoroughly canvass the country for subscriptions, but in order to do so they will need to keep going a great deal of the time. Those who have promised to help the different contestants before the contest closes will save contestants a great deal of extra work, if they will send their subscriptions direct to the Herald office with instructions for casting the votes.

The votes cast in the ballot box may not show the exact standing, for some of the contestants may be holding back some of their votes, for all the management knows. Only the exact cast in the ballot box are published. The votes this week show the standing to be as follows:

- Clara Wischhoff, City 33,600
- Elsie Podell, Hoskins 32,425
- Mrs. Herb Jenkins, Carroll 28,800
- Grace Lyons, Route 1 27,650

PRIZE WINNING CORN.

Roggenbach Brothers of this county were awarded first and second premiums in the world's best-stakes class for the best ten-car samples of corn at the International Farming Congress and Soil Products exposition at Wichita, Kan., October 7 to 17. ### MOREHEAD ELECTED BY LARGE MAJORITY

RETURNS ARE INCOMPLETE

Most of Republican Ticket Elected. Women's suffrage probably defeated.

Late election news indicates that Governor Morehead has been re-elected by a majority over R. B. Howell of ten to fifteen thousand votes. The state ticket appears to be very close and while the returns are incomplete, there is not much doubt as to a number of the state officers. For secretary of state, the complete returns from thirteen counties and the incomplete returns from five counties show Pool, democrat, to be in the lead over Wait, republican, by 587 votes. The chances are that the Pool is elected. The indications are that the republicans have elected the rest of the state ticket.

The following congressmen have been elected: First district, C. F. Heavis; republican; Second district, C. O. Lohr, democrat; Third district, Dan V. Stephens, democrat; Fourth district, Charles H. Sloan, republican; Sixth district, Moses P. Kinkaid, republican. The race between Shallenberger and Barton in the Fifth district is yet in doubt. While there is little information to be had on the vote on women's suffrage, the indications are that it has been defeated.

BUNKOED BY A PRINTER.

The help problem in the Herald office was further aggravated this morning when a printer, imported from Omaha Monday night, failed to appear for work this morning, having evidently disappeared during the night. Out of cash and pleading need of advanced money, he was accommodated. Besides "working" the Herald for railroad fare to Wayne and advanced money, he left unpaid bills for board and lodging. The way this printer acted almost convinces us that there is a literal hell for the ultimate reception of those who could not otherwise be adequately punished.

WAYNE HERALD GIVEN HIGH RANK AS WEEKLY

AMONG BEST FIFTY-TWO

Oregon University Picks Local Paper as One of Leaders in Rural Journalism.

It will interest the people of Wayne county to know that the Wayne Herald has been selected as one of the fifty-two best weekly publications in the United States by the University of Oregon as the result of an investigation made by that institution. It is well in this connection to know that the 1913 newspaper directory shows 17,285 weekly publications in the United States. Of 543 weekly papers in Nebraska, only two, the Herald and the Geneva Signal, are included in the class of fifty-two. It is interesting to know that only one paper in New York and one in Massachusetts are mentioned. The following letter received from the university explains the object of the inquiry:

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON. Courses in Journalism.

Eugene, Ore., Oct. 26, 1914. Mr. E. W. Huse, Editor Herald, Wayne, Nebraska.

Dear Sir: A questionnaire recently sent out by the department of Journalism of the University of Oregon, among the newspaper men of the United States resulted in the selection by these newspaper men of fifty-two county newspapers as "among the best." Your newspaper is one of the fifty-two. It is interesting to know that out of the fifty-two papers selected by them, and the illuminating comments upon country journalism which many of them contributed, will be published as a bulletin by this department of Journalism soon after January 1, 1915.

We desire to go further than this, however: we want this publication to be an authoritative statement on country journalism in the United States. We know no persons so well qualified to make such a statement as the editors of the fifty-two papers selected as types of the finest there is among the rural press.

We are asking you, therefore, to write for us from 200 to 500 words that will suggest concisely your personal views on present-day country journalism; how to succeed in it; how it can best serve the community; what the departments of journalism may aim to accomplish in this particular field, and what evils they should guard against. We prefer signed statements, but will omit your name if asked.

We realize that the successful country editor is a very busy man, and it is only in the knowledge that he is also public spirited that we venture to ask you to take part in this symposium. An answer to the question, "What is country journalism today? what ought it to be? and what can it become?" would be a really valuable contribution to knowledge. We believe this matter has never been treated with the consideration it deserves, and that a statement of the case from a selected group of notably able country editors would go far toward starting a general discussion that would prove very useful.

Most of our schools of journalism have started their work with a consideration of the metropolitan paper. Will you aid us in making a sound start toward a consideration of the country paper.

Thanking you for any trouble you may take in this connection.

Yours very truly, Eric W. Allen.

P. S. We inclose a list of those papers which are being asked to participate in this undertaking.

*FARM SALE. Will sell at public auction, 160-acre farm, well improved, December 2, 1914. Located five miles west and one mile south of Colfax, four and one half miles south of Shubert. Watch for terms of sale in paper later on - W. E. Bellows, Dan Martin. *Miss Ed Tom Steele, former well known Wayne property, was elected to county board of education, level 1, 1914. Mrs. John Carpenter of Dayton, Ind., arrived Monday afternoon for a few days' visit with her father, M. H. Barry. She had been visiting at Creighton, and was on her way to her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Lindsay of southwest of town, went to Sioux City Saturday for an over Sunday visit with Mrs. Lindsay's mother, Mrs. Hannah Brigham who is in a Sioux City hospital.

Mrs. M. M. Walker of North Bend, Neb., arrived Friday for a visit with her sister, Miss Edith Stocking. Mrs. Walker left for home Monday morning, intending to stop at Fremont on the way.

As a greater safeguard against contagious diseases, the school board requires pupils absent from school to secure certificates of health from the local board of health before returning to school.

We desire to thank the friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of our beloved husband and son—Mrs. C. E. Sellers, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sellers, Mr. and Mrs. H. Giese.

Mrs. J. E. Carson and her daughter, Mrs. R. V. Johnson of Bloomfield, visited Wayne friends between trains Tuesday. They were on their way to Norfolk for a short visit. Mrs. Johnson was formerly a resident of Wayne.

Walter Savidge is building a steel covered building 18 by 150 feet, to accommodate his cars while in winter quarters. He now owns two Pullman cars and expects to buy two more before the opening of the next carnival season.

Beverly Strahan, Harry Fisher, Perry Hughes, Sam Davies, and Misses Mary Meister, Katherine Van Gilder, Helen McNeal, and Florence Welch were in Norfolk Monday evening to attend the Norfolk minstrel entertainment.

The school in district No. 29, taught by Fred Gildersleeve, will have a box social Saturday evening, November 14. A short program, consisting of a lecture and vocal solo by Prof. E. E. Lackey, and a whistling solo by George Wilcox, will be carried out. Everybody will be welcome.

Miss Frances H. Arnold of Philadelphia, was in Wayne Monday demonstrating at the State Normal and at the high school, the educational value of the Victrola in the schools. She demonstrated in the intermediate grades in the high school, and to the senior class at the State Normal. She believes the Victrola can be made of great educational value in the public schools.

Edison Diamond Disc Phonographs

We all know with what infinite pains every detail of a Stradivarius violin was made; how much the wood and varnish contribute to its excellence. In like manner the tone quality of a phonograph depends upon the diaphragm—upon its contour, its texture, and the skill with which all its parts are fashioned and adjusted. It must be exceedingly sensitive; it must catch the overtones and as faithfully reproduce them.

To the solution of the baffling problems of acoustics, which stood so long in the way of attainment of his ideals, Mr. Edison, with characteristic patience and tenacity of purpose, applied himself. Something like two thousand three hundred different kinds of reproducers, recorders and diaphragms were experimented with and rejected before he found the secret of true tone reproduction. In the reproducer of the Edison Disc Phonograph is the realization of his ideal. The reproducer part, being a genuine diamond, specially selected for this purpose, highly polished to a perfect surface and a perfect fit under the microscope, and skillfully mounted, neither wears the record nor is worn itself. The result is that the playing of the Edison Disc requires no changing of needles and the disc itself remains unimpaired, however often it is played. Together these particulars insure the life of the record and the always faithful reproduction of it.

upstairs were removed and suffered some damage in that way.

Rally day was observed at the Methodist Sunday school last Sunday by a Rally day program in which pupils of the school took part and by the bringing of gifts for a Christmas ship, for European children. Almost without exception every pupil belonging to the school put a gift into the "boat" which was upon the platform. The Y. W. C. A. girls of the State Normal gave the largest gift. Their donation was almost entirely warm clothing made by themselves. The adult members of the school largely contributed money. One feature of the program was the singing of several songs by a chorus of young people.

It is evident that farmers and stockmen of northeast Nebraska are alive to the necessity of procuring and keeping on their farms the best of live stock as is plainly demonstrated by the eagerness they display in their purchases of breeding stock. Last Friday, at the Church Hill & Greenwood sale of pure bred Shorthorns at Hartington, forty-four head of animals of all ages and both sexes sold for a total of $6,822.50, an average of $157.87 per head. These figures seem to be good, but the men who purchased the animals knew what they were doing—and fully realized that, in order to make the high-priced lands of Nebraska return the proper dividends, only the best of live stock can be grown and that the day of scrubby gas gone, never to return. Nebraska farmers are hard-headed business men, and as such, are anxious to make their investments in a businesslike manner.

What happens after it lights?

The fact that a match lights only on a box does not make it a safe match.

Does it "spark" or fly? Does the head drop off? Does the stick break?

What happens when it lights and after it lights? That is what counts.

Does it "spark" or fly? Does the head drop off? Does the stick break?

A match that does any of these things is dangerous. You cannot afford to use it.

Safe Home Matches are absolutely safe.

They light not only on the box, but also on any ordinary abrasive surface. They burn evenly. They are non-poisonous. When you blow one out, it goes out and it stays out—there is no after-glow.

Mrs. Burlington Walker of North Bend, Neb., visited over the Sabbath with her sister, Miss Edith Stocking. Miss Eva Graves was called to her home in Butte, Friday, October 30, by the sudden death of her grandfather. Word has been received here that Herbert Welch of the class of 1914 who is attending Williams college, played in the Williams-Princeton football game which was won by Princeton by a very narrow margin. A college English club was organized Saturday for the purpose of doing comprehensive reading of fiction, poetry, drama, essay, and oratory. The following officers were selected: President, John Blaser; vice president, Grace Heald; secretary, Ruth Bracken; advisers, J. T. House and Miss Pipher. The cooking class entertained the faculty Thursday afternoon at a Halloween party. The guests were entertained in various manners—the men bobbing for apples, their wives hunting for fruit, the spinsters seeking their fate. Ghosts served the visitors to pumpkin pie and coffee and the kitchen was invaded for the consumption of scones and jelly. Miss Hancock and her class are pleasing hostesses. The kindergarten practice teachers carried out a very interesting program at the ward school building Saturday evening, the guests being the girls who are preparing to do practice teaching next year. The room was decorated with black cats, owls, witches, and jack-o'-lanterns. Folk games, stories, and popping of corn and tossing of marshmallows made the teachers forget that they were no longer children. Later, dressed as Halloween characters, they visited the girls' dormitories, a few homes, and stopped in the yard of Professor Bright, where the Juniors were enjoying a social evening. Professor and Mrs. C. H. Bright entertained the Juniors Saturday evening. After a pleasant evening spent in games and the consumption of dainty refreshments, the class dispersed to their homes with "kiss" for Professor and Mrs. Bright who so often and so charmingly enter into the life of the students of the school. The return game between the Normal football team and Trinity college was won by the local team by a score of 14 to 0. This makes the third successive victory and the students are much encouraged. A large number were present at the depot to greet the gridiron warriors on their return.

BIBLE STUDY CIRCLE.

The Girls Bible Study circle met Saturday evening with Mrs. A. S. Buch and a pleasant and profitable hour was spent. The circle will meet next Saturday evening with Mrs. William Beckenbaugh. The Union Bible Study circle met at the home of Mrs. C. Clasen Tuesday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. E. B. Young, the meeting was conducted by Mrs. J. G. W. Lewis. The lesson study was led by Mrs. Noakes. The discussion was heartily entered into by those present. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Rickabaugh, south of the high school.

NEWS OF THE WAYNE SCHOOLS FOR WEEK

(Prepared by Mary Lewis, Senior)

Recent visitors were Mrs. T. W. Moran, Mrs. C. J. Hess, Mrs. S. Ringland, and Mrs. C. McConnell, and Misses Nelle Gustafson and Henrietta Moler.

The kindergarten is sorry to lose Elsie Smith who has moved with her parents to North Platte.

The quarterly examinations have been given and the report cards will be out next week. The parents are asked to look these over carefully.

The Freshmen gave their offering program Thursday morning. Recitation, Harry McIntosh; reading, Ralph Porter; recitation, Are Ellison; reading, Magdalene Barrett.

The faculty is attending the meeting of the State Teachers' association at Omaha this week, school having been dismissed Wednesday noon.

The fastest workers in arts and crafts are ready for the third problem. Russell Frost, of the Fremont school class deserves special mention for his good workmanship.

Girls are becoming quite skillful in the use of the crochet hook and will soon be able to do individual work from directions. Different kinds of buttonholes are being made by the sewing class.

A letter and card were received from Mary Myers of Red Cloud, Neb. Each of the fifth grade pupils answered her letter so that she will receive all Wayne news.

Those neither absent nor tardy in the kindergarten during the month of October were: Gay Bonawitz, Elsie Mae Carhart, Lela Cox, Effie Hanson, Laura Hurstad, Esther Lewis, Gertrude Myers, Mary Alice Ley, Carl Clasen, Kermit Crozier, Walter Hansen, Walter Krei, and Emil Leuders.

The fifth grade challenged the sixth grade to a jumping match last Friday morning during the gymnasium period. On account of more practice, the fifth grade boys won in the running jump and standing jump, but the sixth grade girls won over the fifth grade girls in the running jump.

The following memorial program for the late Dr. Alexander Corkey was given Tuesday morning: Paper, "Dr. Corkey as a Citizen," Frances Strickland; "Dr. Corkey as a Author," Hallie Lambertson. Songs appropriate for the occasion were sung by the high school.

The following resolutions were adopted by the high school: "Inasmuch as it has been the Father's will to call from us one so dearly loved by all—Dr. Corkey—one who was a friend to all when he met, one whose very presence shed sunshine and happiness; one whose writings are a spiritual uplift to all who read them; one whose life was an open book upon whose pages were written the better way to live; one who felt and displayed so much interest in us as a student body, especially through his many morning talks so full of mirth, happiness, and good will, yet ever pointing upward to higher ideals; one whose memory shall ever be to us; Be it resolved that these few lines of appreciation and our deepest sympathy be sent to his bereaved wife, Mrs. Corkey, and his daughter Lucile, our classmate."

Miss Dayton, Miss Lewis, Pearl Madden, Max Ash, Committee."

THE WEEK WITH THE CHURCHES

German Evangelical Lutheran.

(Rev. R. Moehring, Pastor)

Sermons begin next Sunday with Sunday school at 9:45. "Reformation festival," services at 10:30. The holy communion will be administered.

Presbyterian Church.

(Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor)

Did you attend church somewhere last Sunday? Weren't you glad you were there?

There are 168 hours in a week. To spend two or three of these hours at church will be the best investment of your life.

Duty never conflicts with duty. Yes, it does often conflict with comfort, with convenience, and with personal inclinations. Follow after duty.

That which makes a life great is character. Character grows according to reformed laws. The growth is from within. Great truths build strong characters. The greater truths are found in Christ. The church is the only institution that represents Christ in the world.

"The Practice of Brotherhood" will be the subject of Sunday morning's sermon.

The young people's session will be led by Miss Belle McGee; the subject, "Getting Out of the Ruts."

There will be no preaching service at the church next Sunday evening as we will join in a union service at the Methodist church. At this meeting, a national secretary of the students' Y. M. C. A. will have charge. He is a man of strong power especially among young men.

In order to create a wide interest in our prayer meeting, some new features will be introduced for a while. On Wednesday evening, an entire book of the bible will be studied; another Wednesday evening, some great doctrine will be considered; another will be for the crybaby, led by a layman; while another meeting will be held by some department of the church. Next Wednesday evening, we shall study the book of Genesis.

Watch the paper for announcement from the ladies' union. This is very important.

Mrs. Ed. Forbes of Rihlander Wis., arrived here Friday to visit her mother, Mrs. Robt. Armstrong, and many friends, Mrs. Forbes was formerly Miss Bertha Armstrong.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church. (Rev. F. E. Blessing, Pastor.) Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The subject of the lesson will be "Sowing and Reaping," Gal. vi, 1-10. We wish to remind you of the importance of the Sunday school. There is not a power more important in forming noble young men and women than spiritual power. In the Sunday school, the child gets in contact with the power. Send your children to Sunday school each Sunday. Come yourself and encourage them.

Services Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The subject will be "The Liberty Bell." Gal. vi, 1-10. Liberty has been the cry of men for ages. The immortal words of Patrick Henry still sound upon the air in this century: "There is no retreat, but in its submission and slavery. Forbid it almighty God! I will not have this wretched liberty, but give me death." The iron voice of "Liberty Bell" still sounds in our ears. But though the voice of Henry cried for political freedom and the bell of liberty heralded our dawn, still the great power back of it and compelling motives, was a deeper spirit of freedom, that of Christian freedom, or freedom of the soul.

There will be no evening services as we meet in a union meeting at Parents whose children are not in these societies are earnestly urged to send their children to the regular meetings on the first Sunday afternoon of each month. This is a splendid way to begin the missionary training of the children.

The members and friends of the Methodist Episcopal church wish to express their heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Corkey and daughter, and to the Presbyterian congregation in the untimely death of Dr. Corkey. We feel that what is their loss is also our loss, and the loss of the entire community. We thank God for so noble a life.

We greatly appreciated the presence of the visiting friends in the congregation last Sunday and extend a cordial invitation to come again.

The Sunday school rally was a decided success. The feature of loading the Christmas ship was novel and very touching. The giving was in the real Christmas spirit. Let us thank God in America that the Christ spirit is in a line like this.

Did you hear the sermon on "The Character of God?" Of course you will hear the one next Sabbath morning on "The Kingdom of God."

In the evening the various churches unite in a union service in Wallace during the campaign, and visiting her friend, Mrs. F. H. Jones, went to Omaha Wednesday. She will attend the teachers' state convention before leaving for the south, where she will spend the winter.

The following teachers of the Wayne schools left Wednesday afternoon for Omaha to be present at the teachers' state convention: Mrs. M. A. Phillips, Miss Emma Hughes, Miss Belva Nickel, Miss Della Abbott, Miss Alwine Meyer, Mrs. Homer Seace, Miss Mabel Dayton, and A. E. Nordgren.

"The King's Heralds and Little Light Beams" under the efficient leadership of Mrs. William Beckenbauer, are planning to give an evening's entertainment in the near Methodist church under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The state and national secretaries of student work are to be present. Doubtless the program will be of unusual interest, and a large attendance is expected.

On Monday evening of this week, about seventy young people of the Epworth league were present at the parsonage to attend a Halloween social in spite of the tempest. It was a low-down gathering ever. The guests presented themselves at the front door, where a small ghost—little Robert Buell—met them and led the way to the rear of the house. Entering by the basement door, they passed through dimly lighted basement rooms, then through the darkened kitchen, and finally to the cloak rooms on the second floor. The house was fittingly decorated in true Halloween fashion. The young people expressed their delight over the evening's entertainment.

THE same reliable GREAT MAJESTIC RANGE on malleable legs.

The MAJESTIC is the only range built strong enough to support itself on four malleable legs without the assistance of a large base that usually takes up half the clearance underneath. It's the same MAJESTIC, built of malleable and charcoal iron—materials that resist rust and are unbreakable. The MAJESTIC is hand-riveted practically air tight. It holds the heat, uses very little fuel and bakes just perfectly. It's the range for your kitchen. Let us show you why it's the cheapest range you can buy.

Uncle Walt The Poet Philosopher

LAMENTATION.

The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year; our bank accounts are OUT OF FURNISHINGS and all we buy is dear. I take down my large green roll, to wound a leafy foe, but when I've bought my winter coal, I find that I am broke. I seek my uncle's squalid den, where my greataunt in Briner, alas, when I come out again, an empty purse in mine. In tears that from my eyes leak, my whiskers are awash; it takes the wages of a week to buy a Hubbard squash. When to the butcher's shop I slope, for nice lean pork to fry, I always need a microscope to find the meat I buy. I draw good wages for a dub, but, by my halidome, when I have bought my daily grub, I haven't carfare home. In summer man himself can garb in cheap and flimsy clothes, and he can get the juicy yarb that in his garden grows, and he has small desire for meat, he lives on corn and grass, and he has no expense for fere, for kerosene or gas. But Autumn's nipping, eager air increases all his bills, and he has grief till in despair he kicks and breaks the thills. The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year, when all the prices skyward him and things are double dear.

SIGNS AND TOKENS.

The Autumn days will soon be over, the winter tempests soon will roar; among the flowers and in the clover, the busy bees are seen no more. Out in the woods the nuts are dropping; the coal is poured in yawning bins, and we should haste to do our shopping before the Christmas rush begins. Across the seas the cannon thunder. Death's harvesting a mighty crop; today we see one martyr under, tomorrow it may be on top. But here at home no shells are popping, there is no struggle born of hate, and we can do our Christmas shopping before it is too doggone late. In Mexico, all things seem quiet, but quiet there's a thing of doubt, for any hour may bring a riot, to turn the country into one. The generals are always swiping their threats of death, with ugly leer, but we may do our early shopping, and none will dare to interfere. The fall is with us, gentle reader, the crops are garnered on the farm, the turkey hunts the highest cedar, the goose is viewing with alarm; the football coach is wildly hopping, his victims hear him roar all rate; and we should do our Christmas shopping before it is too all-fired late.

A POOR INVESTMENT.

Don't buy a headache with the plunk for which you toiled today; a headache is the poorest junk on which to waste your pay. You drift into the lounge hazy, when leisure hours have come, and lean against the shining bar, and call for beer or rum; for ruined nerves your coin you waste, for bleared and blood-shot eye, for headache and for dark brown taster—those things are what you buy. A headache, when you get it free, is looked on as a curse; but when you buy it—bully cheer—I know of nothing worse. A man who's feeling well and hale, and happy as a horse, goes forth and blows his hard-earned kate for headaches and remorse; he spends his money, earned in sweat, for misery and pain, for suffering and sorrow, yet he thinks that he is sane! If you must waste weekly wages, oh, rash, imprudent man, then buy a rootback in a cage, or moonshine in a can. Oh, buy a monkey made of brass, that climbs a concrete tree.

THE NEW EDISON DIAMOND DISC PHONOGRAPH

but don't buy headaches in a glass, for you can get them free!

MINE OWN.

My concertina sobs and shakes, for it's in poor repair, and neighbors say the noise it makes would cause a saint to swear. My neighbors come on protest beat, when I on it perform. "Why don't you buy an instrument that's up to date?" they storm. "Pianos now are in the reach of 'em the poorest man, and you might go and buy a peach on the installment plan. Pipe organs, too, on easy terms, are sold most everywhere. Why play a thing that squeaks and spurns and murders every air?" "Because," I answer, "it's mine own, all paid for long ago, and though it has a beastly tone that fills the town with woe, I'd rather hear its music sad, that keeps me in a sweat, than own the fairest sweetest Strad for which I'd gone in debt. I'd rather it should make me sore with discords, every day, than have collectors at the door, demanding instant pay. The humble whistler, built of tin, by local plumber made, beats organ, flute or violin for which you haven't paid. My concertina seems a crime to folks like you, and yet

I find that music most sublime which doesn't hint of debt."

HUMILITY.

Oh, who he swollen up and chesty, because, forsooth, we're half-way great? And why he moanin' and teary with people of a low estate? A little fame, a little honor, is nought than some cheap men can stand, a little taffy from the tin, and they'll swell up to beat the band. Look back, my friend, on your generation, and note the great who flourished then, believing in self-admiration; they far outlasted their tel-lowment; a little while we saw them truttin', the heroes of a passing day, and now they're dead and all forgotten, their grave stones falling in decay. A little while in awe we wondered, a little while they gaped and thundered, and then they died—and no one cared. We stand beside the marble shutter that hides the dead, once bold and free: "Here sleeps the mighty Jones," we mutter, and someone answers, "Who was he?" Ah, many a fellow, fairly clever, is ruined by slightly pride; he thinks the fickle world forever will cherish and adore his name, and so in majesty he poses, until the people, sick and tired, start throwing rocks instead of roses, and see him through the transtorm freed.

TWO CITIZENS.

"Oh, yes, I'm feeling fine and dandy," says Jimpson, as he goes his way; "this good old world is sweet as candy, and it grows better every day." Equanimity, but never showy, he goes his joyous journey here, and though his head is getting snowed, he's growing younger every year. And how the people like to greet him, this man who never learned to

Here is Good News for Stomach Victims

Some very remarkable results are being obtained by treating stomach, liver and intestinal troubles with pure vegetable oils, which exert a cleansing, soothing and purifying action upon the bowels, removing the obstructions of poisonous fecal matter and gases and bringing their absorption by the blood. This done, the food is allowed free passage from the stomach, fermentation ceases and stomach troubles quickly disappear.
George H. Mayr, for twenty years a leading Chicago druggist, cured himself and many of his friends of stomach, liver and intestinal troubles of years' standing by this treatment, and so successful was the remedy he devised that it has since been placed in the hands of druggists all over the country, who have sold thousands of bottles.
"Though absolutely harmless, the effect of the medicine is sufficient to convince any one of its remarkable effectiveness, and within 24 hours the sufferer feels like a new person. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is now sold here by

Among the accounts of marvelous vegetable productions, it should be recorded that Seymour Stark reports that he has on his place a squash vine which is seventy-one feet long.
We have in our museum of curiosities, a rattlesnake skin which Frank Long brought from Fort Peck Indian agency a few weeks ago. The varmint's hide was carefully embalmed and prepared by the Indians who killed him. Before he was killed, it bit a man's arm, and was the cause of Yanktonia, causing his (the Indian's) death, and also causing his own death, for the bystanding Indians immediately pounced upon his snakeship and knocked him in the head. The snake was fully six feet long and when alive shook a tremendous tail of rattles, sixteen in number.

THE KAISER AT HOME.

How He Feels His Mind to His Daught...
English Government.

Many interesting facts bearing upon the Kaiser as a family man and also as the proud ruler of an empire are given in "The Kaiser at Home," by Miss Anne Topham, who was for some time English teacher to the monarch's only daughter, now the Duchess of Brunswick. From this book we learn that the Kaiser was wont to make jokes with his family at the breakfast table and even to indulge in punning.

Miss Topham and the Kaiser frequently held conversations on the subject of England, and upon one occasion her imperial master remarked:

"You English people, you drink those awful thin spirits—horrible stuff—whisky, brandy, what not. How can you imbibe such quantities of poisonous liquid, ruining your constitutions, stupefying your brains, and so on, everywhere? No, it's awful! I tasted it once—like liquid fire—ugh! Your drinking habits are fearful!"

Though professing great admiration of English everyday life, the Kaiser had a profound contempt for English politics and politicians.

"Not one of our ministers," he said to me on one occasion, "can tell how many miles of the line you run in your navy! I can tell him—he can tell me. And your minister for war can't even ride. I offered him a mount and every opportunity to see the maneuvers. Thanks very much for your majesty's gracious offer. Sorry can't accept it. I'm an horseman, unfortunately! A minister of war, and can't ride! Unthinkable!"

During his visits to England he evidently took great interest in the relics and mementos of bygone ages, and after one of these visits he thus expressed his thoughts:

"Ah, you have never had a Napoleon to plunder and burn your country house! Your Reynolds and Gainsborough, whose would they have been if Napoleon's marshals or his soldiers lost. "These are some my wife gave me for a birthday present. Help yourself. Let me give you a little!"

Every man present said he had won on smoking.

Why did you tell a lie about those cigars John?" asked his wife after the gentlemen had gone. "You know I don't drink them to you for a birthday present."

"You just keep quiet, Mary. That best of Mrs. Givens cost me just $10 and I can't afford to give any of them away."

Her Advantage.
"If you say on my side you'll soon know as much as your teacher," said the minister patronizingly.

"Huh!" exclaimed Willie. "I'd know as much as she does if I looked at the book all the time like she does!"

OUR MEDAL OF HONOR.
More Difficult to Win Than Any Foreign Military Decoration.

American of average forgetfulness know about the Victoria Cross, the Iron Cross, the Cross of the Legion of Honor. These are rewards of heroism which would mark a man above his fellows even in this foreign land. But how many Americans know what a medal of honor is?

How many Americans know that the modern American soldiers who wear the medal of honor wear a decoration that is among the rarest and most difficult to win among military honors?

The Cross of the Legion of Honor, established by Napoleon in 1802, which founded to signalize deeds of special daring in such of those countries for civil distinctions. Nearly 40,000 German soldiers were decorated with the Iron Cross in the seven months of the Franco-Prussian war, while in the more than half century since the creation of our honor roll only 3,088 have been granted, and of these nearly 900 were given under a mistaken conviction of the law.

The holder of the medal of honor must have "distinguished himself conspicuously by gallantry and intrepidity, at the risk of his life, beyond the call of duty." This standard, which bars out action however brave, in the course of duty and includes only acts of daring which a man might refuse or avoid without rebuke is said to be unequalled—Chicago Tribune.

Blissmark's Story on Elzeverson.

Corrie of the Telephone the Best Pooled Person in Town.

In the American Magazine George Fitch, the Illinois humorist, writes on "The Homecoming Telephone Exchange," in which he describes the telephone in a small village. In the following of Corrie he explains why Corrie, the telephone operator, knows more than any one else in town.

"When my wife wants to know if hats are being worn at an afternoon reception she asks Corrie. Tom to one Corrie has written a script of conversation over the line and knows. But if she hasn't she will call up and find out. When a doctor leaves his office to make a call he calls up Corrie and she faithfully pursues him through town and country all day, if necessary. When we are preparing for a dinner we do not go down to the depot until we have called up Corrie and have found out if the train is on time. And when our babies wander away we no longer run frantically up and down the street hunting for them. We ask Corrie to advertise for us, but child never needs high and wearing a four-hour-old face wash and within five minutes she has called up the doctor in the far parts of the town and has discovered that said child is playing Indian in some back yard a few blocks away."

"Corrie is a person. I hate to think of the number of things Corrie knows. Prowling into our lines while we are talking, as she does in search of connections to take down, she overhears enough gossip to turn Homebuck into a hotbed of anarchy if she were not our confidant."

"But she doesn't. Corrie keeps all the secrets that a thousand other women while we are talking, as she does in search of connections to take down, she overhears enough gossip to turn Homebuck into a hotbed of anarchy if she were not our confidant."

Being the time when festive hobgoblins hold high carnival, the hands of members of the Minerva club were appropriately assigned the duty of planning and executing the annual Halloween entertainment for that organization.

The work place Friday night and the committee in charge began unrelenting the series of events at the spacious home of Professor and Mrs. E. E. Lackey. Preparatory to being ushered into the parlors, the guests were directed to find their way through a subterranean purgatory, fraught with many devils and other dangers. Winding through dark caverns, made weird and diabolical by "the swishing of bats" and the hissing of concealed imps, the guests, somewhat disarranged, finally emerged, and were welcomed to the upper rooms which had been decorated and lighted in a befitting fashion to receive them.

After a light refreshment and containing-the-essence of all the Minervas and their correlative entities, the committee invited them to spend an hour at the Crystal theatre, where an excellent program of moving pictures and music was enjoyed. Then came a rich spread at A. G. Bohner's Coliseum cafe.

During disappearance of the eatables, Prof. J. J. Coleman's orchestra discoursed inspiring music. Following the repast, Fred S. Berry, commanding officer, called for a number of speeches. The speakers did not make the usual plea of lack of preparation which was manifestly unnecessary, and their impromptu efforts were good, considering frequent lack of preparation.

In the course of the festivities, an avalanche of ghosts slid through the dining hall. In conclusion, Mrs. F. S. Berry, president of the Minerva club, in behalf of the members, thanked the committee for their entertainment. Then the crowd, full of eatables and joy, dispersed.

CROFTON EDITOR IS DROWNED IN RIVER.

Yankton, S. D., Nov. 4.—Two men are charged with two narrowly escaped deaths when the auto in which they were riding ran off the pontoon bridge over the Missouri near Yankton about 2 o'clock this morning.

Editor H. W. Cooley of the Crofton News Journal, O. W. Calk, a druggist of Crofton, were drowned and D. Salley, a barber, and L. S. Ross, a jeweler, both of Crofton, had a narrow escape.

The car, which belonged to Cass, had almost reached the Nebraska shore when the driver who was speeding up, lost control.

All are prominent Crofton business men. "Editor Cooley was an active Mason."

The expression "back and bush" (comedy and tragedy) had its origin in the fact that the shoes of the low back worn by the ancient comic actor, the boubin, a contraction of the French word bouffon, comedy actor, was made of a material which would not hold when the actor's feet were stepped on to increase their height. The comedian was to be back, the boubin to the knee.

These pictures of father and mother—quaint in their old-fashioned clothes, are all the more precious because they recall the father and mother of your childhood. Some day your photograph will be just as precious to others. And the present-day photographer is well equipped, both in skill and in the tools of his profession, to pay the obligation that this generation owes to the past.

WONDERS OF JAVA

A Glimpse of the Most Beautiful Island in the World.

WAS ONCE A MIGHTY EMPIRE

Only the Architectural Ruins of the Ancient Civilization Now Remain. Its Royal Prisoners and the National Sport of Tiger Fighting.

The island of Java has been called by more than one traveler the most beautiful island in the world. It is a shape much like Cuba. It is long and narrow, about 700 miles one way and less than 100 the other. Some of the mountains are 10,000 or 12,000 feet high, but there are no snow-capped peaks. They are all clothed to the summit with the richest tropical vegetation, for they are almost directly under the equator. There are at least thirty or forty volcanoes in the island, many of them still active.

The island was controlled by the Dutch. About the time the pilgrim fathers sailed from Holland to land on Plymouth rock another expedition from the same country carried the Dutch flag to the other side of the world, and Dutch governors have ruled in Java for about 200 years. But the Dutch architectural remains in the interior bear testimony to the exact civilization of a mighty empire once enthroned upon this island and of an ancient religion that was supplanted by Buddhism.

Although the Dutch are complete masters, there are still in Java in the island, the emperor and sultan, who are allowed to retain their lofty titles and live surrounded with an imperial etiquette, although they are in reality little better than state prisoners. The emperor lives in his "kraton," a large inclosure in which is the palace. Before the palace stretches the so-called "Aion-Aion," a broad, open space, often divided on one side by a mosque, and this is the arena for the tiger fights, which are the favorite diversion of monarch and subject alike.

For these combats hunters trap tigers in the mountains—magnificent beasts, not born in a cage and half wild by long confinement, but real kings of the forest—mature and grown and with their strength increased by rage at their captivity.

Sometimes the fight is with a bull or a buffalo, but more often with trained fighters of the human race, and a striking peculiarity of the combat is that not infrequently the combaters themselves are forced to take part in the performance.

Within the "kraton" a great square or ring is marked off, and along its sides the mass of the spectators take their places, the men armed with spears of different lengths. Those with the shorter spears kneel in the front rank, while those with the longer weapons stand behind them, so that together they present a close hedge of bristling spear-points.

If the tiger tries to break through the ring of spectators he must, the spears are truly held, innude himself on either the longer or the shorter ones, while the men on either side can easily cut him through with their lances. That means that each individual in the wide circle must be dexterous in the use of the spear and also know something of the habits and disposition of the tiger.

The leading role is naturally taken by professional tiger-fighters. The big wooden cage in which the fierce beast has been confined is dragged into the middle of the arena, and as it is opened an unarmed man, the tiger-fighter advances toward it and with a certain measure of ceremony and even of politeness challenges the tiger to come forth.

Suddenly realizing its freedom, the beast usually starts in wild flight toward the ring of spectators, but is held before the impenetrable array of gleaming spears. From side to side of the ring it bounds, always met by the same impenetrable barrier, until finally the real tiger-fighters, each armed only with a lance, enter the ring. Usually there are two or three, but only one of the first rank dare to encounter the enraged animal unsupported and alone.

They watch the moment in which the tiger crouches for its spring and kneel, with a tense grasp of the spear, which they point toward the tiger to avoid any chance of being impaled himself on it. Besides the courage that the moment calls for, the fighter must have the skill and the dash of the Spanish torreador; are the various child-like tricks for the charge of the great beast may be so fierce that it knocks the lance aside and then charges upon the spears of the other men to save the tiger-fighter from being killed and mangled by the angry creature.

at Wayne Sale Pavilion

SATURDAY Nov. 7

Beginning sharp at NOON so that outside bidders may get away on the afternoon train if desired.

This offering of 50 Hampshires is the best that has been seen in any one sale in the history of the Nebraska sales, barring none. In breeding, they are of the best strains; so individuals they take no back seat. Large, strong back and heavy boned can be found in any Hampshire herd, some of the offering April farrows weighing above the 200 mark. This is the herd which I won 198 ribbons in state and interstate fairs this fall, 64 champions and grand champions and 48 firsts. That tells what others think of the herd, and some of the prize winners are in the sale.

My noted sires are Champ 10767, the winner of first at Nebraska and Kansas fairs and first and grand champion at Sioux City; Tatro's Messenger 14359 carried off all of the first prizes at four state fairs last year. In this sale there will also be the get of the following boars: Messenger Boy 6179, fifteen times grand champion, and five times grand champion over all breeds. Dr. Scott, now weighing 800 pounds; Cherokee Lad 9069, champion at Indiana state fair this fall, and selling for $750 in June.

I am securing the best posted men obtainable to assist in conducting this sale. H. S. Duncan, one of the greatest auctioneers; F. C. Steyer, secretary of the American Hampshire Swine Association, and president of the Illinois Breeders' Association, and one of the best judges of hogs in this land, who will give addresses. For terms of sale, catalogues, etc., address.

DRAGON FLIES AT SEA.

The Puzzle That Came With Them and a Squall Later On.

In describing a voyage from Hongkong to Shanghai some years ago Admiral Fitzgibbon relates in his book, "Memories of the Sea," a peculiar experience:

"One afternoon when we were lying at anchor out of sight of land, the weather being very close and sultry, we saw a great cloud approaching the ship from the direction of the shore, which was about fifty miles off. The cloud came slowly nearer and nearer. It did not look like rain, and presently, as it enveloped the ship, we saw it was composed of dragon flies, and very big ones. They evidently made for the ship to get a resting place, but many missed and fell exhausted in the calm sea.

"The mast, the yards, the rigging and all the ropes in the ship were crisscrossed with them. It was a very sultry evening, and about 6 o'clock we all bathed. I remember the strange experience of diving into a sea of dragon flies, which stuck to our arms and shoulders, got into our hair and quite spoiled our swim. A light air then came off from the land, so we weighed anchor and made sail to the westward, and at midnight, just as the watch was changing, we were struck by a terrific squall, which laid the old ship nearly on her beam ends.

"We wondered whether the visitation of dragon flies was connected in any way with the squall. But if they were blown fifty miles off the land, where they certainly did not want to go, why did we not get the wind for six hours afterward?"

Dependancy Due to Indigestion.

It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs. Blanche Bowers, Indiana. Po.: "For years my digestion was so poor that I could only eat the lightest foods. I tried everything that I heard of to get relief, but not until about a year ago, when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them, did I find the right treatment. I soon began to improve, and since taking a few bottles of them, my digestion is fine." For sale by all dealers.—Ad.

For exterminating worms in hogs and preventing cholera, he thinks it has no equal, if you feed Columbian Stock Powder and the use of dip to give them the protection. You know how the dose prescribed for worms should be fed in soaked or dampened oats every ten days or two weeks and also keeping the dry powder in a self-feed or trough before them. Try it. ## POWER OF COTTON.

It Reaches All People and Round the Whole World.

MAN'S MASTER AND SERVANT.

This Staple is the Basis of High Explosives and Smokeless Powder and Without It Not a Modern Big Gun Could Be Fired—Its Numerous Uses.

Cotton reaches all around the world and is the master and the servant of all the people. Without cotton not a modern gun could be fired. Cotton is the basis of high explosives and of smokeless powder, and the warships carried relatively more cotton than was used by the fringe of a country ago with all its sails. The Hottentot wears a film of cotton cloth across a few poles to keep out the sun's heat. The Arctic explorer finds his dog suit with cotton and finds it warmer and lighter than fur.

It is evident, therefore, that cotton touches all the world, and its uses are manifold. Clothing is only one of the many points of contact. Did you ever touch your suit with a cotton coat? Yes, you did, for cotton is nothing but cotton treated with acids. All those useful celluloid things would be an absurdity if it were not for cotton.

Cotton even has its uses in the automobile. Some of those soft cushions are cotton felt covered with more cotton that looks like leather. Without cotton there could be no great office buildings, for fireproofing would be impracticable. Besides, the cotton coat is the one that gets the most comment in the sport without the bags that consume 150,000,000 yards of cotton cloth every year in the C. I. factory.

Has drawn up some interesting figures regarding the use of cotton which are drawn upon here.

Imagine your pile and think them over, but as the smoke rolls up to the emerald ceiling remember that the foundation of that emerald is cotton and wool.

The largest individual contract for cotton goods in the world is the one placed annually by the greatest of the harvester machine companies. It calls for millions of yards of cotton duck, the consumption of which is the ruling machine industry being estimated at above 50,000,000 yards of duck yearly.

In normal times the New York market alone consumes 40,000,000 pounds of yarn weekly for the electrical industry. It is necessary for insulation.

Cotton bags have displaced barrels to a large extent. For example, one of the greatest sugar companies announced that in the future cotton bags would be used exclusively. With cotton it is cheaper than barrels, and it takes about 15,000,000 yards of cotton duck annually for coal bags for delivering the coal where the chute cannot be employed. Cotton duck is used extensively for ventilating chutes in coal mines. Tar-paulins have replaced other covers for rail cars, vans and wagons. In South Africa the cotton blanket has driven out the woolen one.

Fully 20,000,000 yards annually of cotton duck are consumed in the Canadian northwest for overcoats, replacing fur. With a padding of cotton between layers of duck, these garments are lighter and warmer than fur. Cotton cloth has taken the place of wall paper in thousands of modern houses. Buckram, made of cotton, covers books. For example, it uses millions of yards of army duck annually for squeezing water out of clay. The government uses 4,000,000 yards of cotton duck per year for cot-bags. It takes 2,000,000 yards of cotton duck annually to make feed bags to hang over the noses of horses. Duck is used for filtering oil—millions of yards of it every year.

It takes more than 50,000,000 yards of great strength ducking for rubber belting and rubber hoses. The substance is used for stiffening the gunnaths of gloves and leggings, tennis and expansion shoe canopies. The shoemaker's thumb, where rubber forms is used, and the covering of trunks and telephones. About 4,000,000 yards annually are used for draining mines.

Wood pulp paper mills and other paper mills use cotton duck for driers. Cotton drills and duck to the extent of millions of yards annually are used for wagon tops, cushions and waterproof coats. Mattresses of cotton felt rival hair mattresses.

This is the age of cotton. The world has achieved its greatest progress since Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin. Cotton is the basis of the new storage of spindles and looms would be but a trifle compared with the paralysis that would visit countless other industries.

Unless a man works he cannot find what he is able to do.—Bawthorn

AN OLD NORMAN CUSTOM.

The "Cry for Justice" Still Survives in the Channel Islands.

A curious and somewhat medieval survival of an ancient Norman custom occurred at Guernsey not long ago when Daniel Sebire, jurat, justice clerk of Albury, whose election to that post was annulled because he had been sentenced to a term of imprisonment some years ago, petitioned a chamber de baro, or a cry for justice, against a fresh election by Kuebling baroneted at the entrance of the court-house and exclaiming: "Haro! Haro! Haro, a fidei non sumus, on one but for us (help me, my prince). They do me wrong!"

The chamber de baro, an ancient Norman custom, still survives in the Channel Islands. The applicant must, on his knees and before witnesses, raise the cry that acts as an injunction until the alleged tort or trespass has been allowed out by the court. If the trespasser continues he is liable to arrest and punishment. Although the chamber is still legal in the Channel Islands, recourse to it is very rare, and there has been no instance of it in Alderney for two centuries. It is, however, a very effective procedure.

The derivation usually ascribed to the form of the plea is curious. "Haro" is first thought to be an abbreviation of "Ha, Hele!" a rude appeal to Hele, the first Duke of Normandy, and the cry is thus traced back to the days when there were no courts and justice was personally meted out by princes. It is, however, more probable that "haro" is simply an exclamation to attract attention.

A similar custom, applicable only in criminal cases, was the Saxon clamor violente, which existed at the time of the Norman invasion.—Youth's Companion.

He Probably Did.

The young author, reading a false animal story to the attentive editor, said: "Whereupon the woodcock laughed softly to himself."

"Yes," remarked the editor, "I suppose he is indiged in a woodchuck."

—St. Louis Republic.

It Recalled.

"My hand," said Polly, holding it out admiringly, "is a good deal smaller than yours."

"Yes," said Esther, "I can see that at a glance. That ring Leslie gave you was always too tight for me!"

—London Telegraph.

Sarcasm.

Mr. Solly—Here's somebody propose to kill all idiots in their childhood. Miss Pert—Presidential idea. They are not enough men to go around as it is.—Exchange.

BIG GUN CHARGES

Handling Shells and Powder at a Naval Ammunition Base.

SAFETY FIRST IS THE RULE.

All Workmen on Iona Island, Ocean's Station in the Hudson River, Wear White Serge Suits and Moccasins, and Copper Tools Are Used.

When White Serge Suits and Moccasins, and Copper Tools Are Used.

ammunition base in the Hudson river, covers 110 acres. Within its limits are stored about 3,000,000 pounds of smokeless powder and over 1,000,000 pounds of black powder, besides many thousands of shells. This war material is kept in large brick and stone powder magazines and shell houses.

The powder magazines all have four separate fireproof walls and are divided up into compartments in order to prevent a fire or an explosion from reaching or destroying the entire contents. The loaded shells are kept separately from the empty projectiles and are stored in two fixed ammunition magazines. Each shell is weighed and numbered before being put away. The weight is recorded in chalk on the shell.

Magazine attendants inspect the shell houses and powder magazines many times during the day and night. At night each visit is recorded on the clock of the magnetic clock in the administration building. The temperature in the shell houses and powder magazines is kept between 85 and 90 degrees.

Just how many shells for the big battleships are stored away at Iona Island is a secret, but there are lots of them. They are expensive. Thus the fourteen inch shells, weighing 1,000 pounds and requiring a charge of nearly 400 pounds of powder, cost about $600 each.

One of the principal activities at Iona Island is the manipulation of smokeless powder for charges for the large and small guns of the navy and of black powder for bursting charges for the shells. The powder filling houses are situated at widely separated points. They are small one story wooden structures, isolated owing to the possibility of an explosion.

The men working in them are required to wear white serge suits and moccasins; no metal or other articles are allowed in their pockets, which might set a fire, or cause a spark.

All the tools, funnels, measuring cups, scales and other appliances used are made of copper, save the screws and somewhat dangerous balances of weighing on the various smokeless powder charges is carried on. The weighing has to be done very carefully. At the Indian Head proving grounds the initial output experts by tests determine the powder charges best adapted for the various guns, and the annual target practice the results as to range and velocity of the various charges are recorded. Then slight changes in the composition of the powder lead to changes in the weight of the charges.

Each morning the dry's supply of powder is brought from the magazine to the filling houses in lead colored wooden bins. These are then filled and air tight. The boxes of powder are emptied into a long wooden trough and with a conveyor belt the powder is dipped out, accurately weighed and tied up in quarter, half and full charges in bags of white manila.

These bags have several wire strainers for fastening them, and each is tagged with the date of filling and the amount of powder contained. A small lubrication charge of oil is then placed in the bottom of each bag. The bags when piled on top of one another reach to the top of a man's head and present a formidable sight of bottled up destruction.

One of the important operations performed in the magazine houses is loading the projectiles with their bursting charges. For the fourteen inch shells fifty pounds of black powder is used and about thirty pounds for twelve inch shells. To hold the shell steady and to get at the core of the shell a steel mallet—some of them weighing 1,000 pounds—they are roped in a sling and hoisted clear of the floor by a pulley and chain. The core is then lowered a foot or so into a stout wooden frame with an opening a trifle larger than the shell.

As the measured amount of black powder is poured through a funnel into the shell. Some fifty of these huge projectiles can be loaded in a day. Several of the smaller filling houses are used to assemble the cartridge cases and the bursting charges of the three-inch rapid fire shells.—New York Sun.
