HOSKINS MAN GIVES BOND Claim Against Deck Estate Heard—Coroner Executes Order in Replevin Suit.

In response to a peace warrant issued at the instance of Edwin Hoskins, Paul Deck, at that place, appeared in the county court Nov. 7, and availed himself of his statutory right by entering into a peace bond for $500.

The claim of Paul Deck against the estate of the late August Deck for services rendered was heard in the county court November 6, 7, and 10, and resulted in allowance of a judgment of $500. An appeal has been taken.

Thursday, November 5, Mr. W. J. Olson and Mrs. M. Longest, both of Winslow, were united in marriage by Judge James Britton.

To satisfy a judgment for $450 in the district court secured by Carl Hubbert against Dr. A. Texley of Carroll, re-asserted an order from that court, took possession of forty head of hogs which he supposed belonged to Dr. Texley. The hogs were immediately replevined as the property of Cora J. Texley. The action in replevin was necessarily asserted by Dr. J. A. Williams, coroner, whose duty it is to act when the sheriff becomes a defendant in a suit. And the doctor did not especially relish the duty, involved in this mishap, which requires him to manage a herd of live, energetic hogs. He is accustomed to the more quiet and less animated branches of the coroner's business.

To this union six children were born, the eldest, Ethel, having preceded her father to the spirit world in May, 1910. The other children, with their mother, two brothers, one sister, and parents, remain to mourn his loss.

NOTABLE CHANGE IN THE STANDING

Standing of the Contestants Will Be Published Only Two More Times.

The special offer allowing extra votes on each club of five new Herald subscriptions closed Wednesday. As a result, a large number of the subscribers were turned in, and the contestants increased their number of votes. Every one of the contestants is doing fine work and meeting with splendid success.

Miss Podoll of Hoskins, takes the lead this week but substantial margin. Miss Grace Lyons makes a jump and comes to second place. Clara Wischhof who held first place last week, drops to third this week. Mrs. Jenkins made a good gain, but is fourth place.

As stated before, the votes published in the paper may not show the exact standing for some of the contestants may be holding some of their votes in reserve to cast on the last day of the contest. It therefore is to the interest of each contestant to do her best regardless of the position she holds with her votes published in the paper as she may need more votes to win the automobile.

The contest closing date is Saturday, December 12. Only four weeks more after this week. The standing of the contestants will be announced only two more times during the contest. After the count is made on November 25, the management will not make another count until after the contest closes, and no one will know how favorite contestants stand during the last two days of the contest. This will be fair to all interested.

On another page we are publishing the pictures of the contestants together with the prizes they are working for. Turn to that page and take a look at the contestants, and if you have not yet made up your mind to pay your subscription and help one of the contestants secure a nice prize.

Next Saturday, the Jones Book Store is going to give a concert on the piano, and the same was awarded as second prize in the contest. The concert is free and Mr. Jones has some new music especially for this concert. The program for this concert will be found on another page of this paper.

Parents whose children are sick should see that they are kept out of school and away from other children when there is the least danger of developing contagious disease. The possibility of spreading disease would be greatly reduced if parents would keep on the alert and exercise due care. Parents should not assume that they have no responsibility or care in keeping down or eradicating contagion. They should not lean wholly on teachers and boards of health who are not experts in sanitary or long-distance mind reading.

First Baptist Church.
(Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor).
Last Sunday morning was a splendid day for us. It has been some time since so deep an interest has manifested. Three people, one young man and two young ladies, publicly professed faith in Christ. Nothing else so stirs our hearts as to see people give themselves to Jesus Christ.

The far reaching results of a single decision are beyond our power to measure. And no other decision is so latent in possibilities as is the decision made by those young people last Sunday morning.
"The Forgiving Father" will be the subject of next Sunday morning's sermon. It will be based on another great parable of Jesus: "The Effects of a Single Decision" will be the theme of the evening's sermon. A decision is a turning point. It sometimes brings far reaching consequences.

There was a deep interest in the young people's meeting Sunday evening. We feel that they are starting into an aggressive, useful campaign for the winter.
The ladies are so busy that they meet every Thursday. They are working hard, preparing for something worth while. Keep your ear opened for their announcement.
You will be glad if you are pres-

If the prayer meeting helps you, it will help your neighbor. Bring him or her or both of them with you next Wednesday evening.
The Lord needs more faithfulness than he does genius in his work. It is more honorable to be faithful than to be brilliant.

Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The subject will be, "Jesus and Peter." Mark xiv, 27-31. President Wilson has said: "No study is more important to a child than the bible, and the truths it teaches, and there is no more effective agency for such study than the Sunday school."
Services every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, and in the evening at 7:45 o'clock.

The subject of Sunday morning's sermon will be, "The Supreme Choice of the Soul," Psalm xvi, 8. Our lives are mostly paltry and little. We go about filled with little vanities and ambitions, aiming at little ends, content with little results, and choosing little things. Often under the guise of humility, our larger aims are mostly of a depraved or secular sort. What a great desire there is to choose wealth, and as a Shylock of old, bend every effort to get it, or what a desire for social position, where valuable energies are spent in vain. Neither is it uncommon for men to choose fame, on the battlefield, in the senate, or in literature. But to "have the Lord always before us" is the real lasting greatness. This is the supreme choice of the soul.

The subject of the evening sermon will be, "A Standard Life," Dan. vi, 22.
The Luther league will meet at 7:45 o'clock. Let all of the young people of the church be present and enjoy the hour.
The Ladies' Aid society met on last Thursday with Mrs. E. Lewis. It was a very pleasant and profitable meeting. The attendance was very good. The next meeting will be held on the 19th of November, at the parsonage.
The ladies are planning for their bazaar, which will be held on the 12th of December.

Next Sunday morning, the Lord's Supper will be celebrated. It is very important that every member be present at this time.
Catechetical class began its work last Saturday afternoon at 2:30. If there are any who have not entered the class and wish to do so, we would be glad to welcome you.
A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to worship with us.

A DISTRICT SHORT COURSE AT NORFOLK

The Norfolk District Boys' and Girls' Short Course is a new study in agriculture and domestic science, held by the University of Nebraska in connection with the county superintendents of Madison, Pierce, Stanton and Wayne counties. SELECT YOUR FAVORITE CONTESTANT AND HELP HER WIN ONE OF THE PRIZES THAT WILL BE AWARDED IN THE HERALD AND NEBRASKA FARMER CONTEST

The election on the third of November was of no more importance to the candidates running for governor and the different state offices than the election that will be held at the Herald office on December 12 is to the four contestants who are working for the prizes to be awarded in our subscription contest. It took votes to decide who the officeholders would be, and just so it will take votes to decide the winners of the various prizes we are going to award. There is one difference, however, and that is that in the state election each person was limited to one vote, and in the election to decide the winners for the contest prizes, the number of votes any one person may cast is only limited by the amount of subscription they pay.

In order that all of our readers may become better acquainted with the four worthy ladies who are working for these prizes, and may know the quality of the prizes they are working for, we are publishing the pictures of the prizes and the four contestants.

Mr. Jones has ordered some special records for this occasion, and will render the following program:

Third Prize
Purchased from J. G. Mines, the Leading Jeweler

Mr. Mines carries a large assortment of high grade watches, as well as other jewelry and silverware. When we went to him to buy a watch to award as third prize, we found that his prices on high grade watches were very reasonable, and we made arrangements for one of the best. The contestant who secures third place will go to Mr. Mines' store and select her choice from a number of beautifully engraved, twenty-year Crown cases and have fitted in it a fifteen-jewel Elgin or Waltham movement.

Fourth Prize

The contestant securing fourth place will be paid a cash commission on all subscriptions she turns in. In this way, all contestants will be paid for the work they do.

SUBSCRIPTIONS COUNT FOR VOTES

Every subscription, whether new or renewal, will count for votes in this contest. The price of the Herald is $1.50 per year, and it is worth the money. It is recognized as one of the leading weekly papers of the state. Each year paid on subscription to the Herald counts 500 votes in the contest. The Nebraska Farmer is one of the leading agricultural papers. Each year paid on subscription to that paper counts for 500 votes in the contest. Both the Herald and Nebraska Farmer can be had during the contest for $2.00, and the combination subscription will count for 1000 votes. All wishing to help one of these contestants secure a prize can do so by paying a year or more on subscription to one or both of the papers. Each contestant is working hard to secure the best prize possible, and will appreciate all the support she can get from her friends. Be sure your subscription is paid before the contest closes, as it will cost no more than to wait until later.

Some curious things have been proposed to be done. Thus it was agreed by Jo Crain, betting on Blaine, and Bart Doyle, betting on Cleveland, that whichever won, should be carried by the other from the courthouse to the bridge. It appears from the result in New York that Mr. Crain will have to be the ridden party, and Mr. Doyle the rider. Also, a bet was made between Irving Orr, democrat, and Charles Drager, republican, whereby it was agreed that in case Blaine was elected, Mr. Orr should wheel Mr. Drager twice around the block in a wheelbarrow. And in case Cleveland came out ahead, Mr. Drager should, in like manner, trundle Mr. Orr in a wheelbarrow twice around the aforesaid block. It looks to a man in a tree that Mr. Orr will have to be wheeled, and Mr. Drager will be the one to spit on his hands and wrestle with the wheelbarrow handles.

Such is the way of the world. One man triumphs, and another goeth under. The one rideth in ease and comfort, and the other bendeth his back to the burden. The dire penalties imposed upon Messrs. Crain and Drager will be executed on Saturday of next week, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At that awful hour, the procession will form, and Mr. Crain will shoulder Mr. Doyle and wheel him to the bridge. At the same time, Mr. Drager will take his wheelbarrow in hand, and Mr. Orr will get in, and be wheeled twice around the block. And the band of music will be there, and banners will float, and shouters will shout, and whistles will be blown. Thus will the bet be fulfilled. Everybody had better be on hand to see the fun.

Matches? Pooh! They Were Too Small to Bother About. The first phosphorus match was made in 1812. Then, for a hundred years, man forgot about matches. He invented the telegraph, the telephone, the wireless, the turbine engine, the ocean liner, the flying machine. He gridironed the surface of the earth with railroads. But matches? Pooh! They seemed too small to bother about.

And yet, if there is one thing more than another that this country has needed, it is a better match—a match that will strike anywhere and yet be safe—a match that won't spark or sputter, or break easily—a match that will burn evenly and is non-poisonous.

It wouldn't have taken many voters in each county to have changed the result if Ross Hammond had been nominated for governor.

Returns of the late election show an unusual number of voters who didn't vote. Winning candidates will have received less votes than were won by losers two years ago.

On good reason Phil H. Kohl is a desirable man in the senate is expressed by the Lincoln Journal in the course of editorial comment on the personnel of the next legislature. The Journal says: "And look out for Kohl of Wayne. If Nebraska isn't watchful, Kohl will announce it, both in breeches, to the Wayne Normal."

The way people voted at the late election showed unusual indifference to party lines in tilting offices not influenced by party principles. On the one hand, republicans were elected by big majorities, while on the other hand, democrats were elected by long leads. The power of party over voters concerning of future national public policies, is apparently fast passing.

In the late election, the democratic party suffered reverses generally in the north outside of Nebraska, and while the party retains control of congress, it does so by a greatly reduced majority. The plea to uphold the hands of the president by electing democratic congressmen, seems to have been influential here. In less prosperous sections, where money is scarce, people are out of employment, and business is stagnant, voters evidently did not feel like sustaining the administration.

It is plain that Congressman Dan V. Stephens' primary and caucusing postmasters did not militate against his reelection as some defeated aspirants for postmasterships predicted and hoped. Those who sought election to postoffice jobs merely to get office, must conceal the fact if he wishes to be successful in that direction. Many selfish politicians are in all parties, but they can't get far in popular favor if they hoist personal ambition into public view and above desire to perpetuate party policies. This was manifestly done by deflated postoffice candidates who turned against Stephens—a branch of their courted administration.

The printer who skulked out of town between days the middle of last week and faded in the direction of the Lord knows where, leaving unfinished work, unsatisfied obligations and a string of baseless imitations, is an example of mental perversion and depravity which young men should spurn as they would a poisonous snake. The diseased and distorted condition of mind which leads one to violate his word with utter abandon, and work hard to get something for nothing that would be necessary to earn his way, is such an insuperable barrier to success and popular respect that the least tendency manifested in that direction in early youth ought to be the signal for the greatest corrective skill and arousal of all possible self-resistance. The consummate fraud, practicing piracy in any line of endeavor, slyly snatching gain without returning value in service, as an earnest growth which process an increasing burden and injury to society. Boys inclined to "get the best" of one another, disposed through cunning to reap without sowing, should be appalled at the quality to which heretofore or lack of training of both mind and body of human bipeds. These examples of worse than failure should spur the weakest youth to honorable effort.

The late elections would seem to have put Colonel Roosevelt on the shelf. The progressive party which he urged on voters, was overwhelmed. Where he fought the hardest,—notably in New York,—his defeat was the greatest. People have sensed Roosevelt's game of revenge and personal ambition, and have quietly and resolutely registered their disapproval. What he will do next he probably doesn't know at this time himself. He would seem to be dead politically. Whether he is effectually so or not remains to be seen. His defeat at the St. Louis Globe Democrat, a republican paper, has this to say, among other things: "The results in New York have a manifold meaning. They show that New York is not putting in its time 'Thanking God for Wilson' any more than the rest of the country is. It means that Colonel Roosevelt's influence in political affairs is gone. So long as he stood for principles, or was supposed to stand for them, he had a large following. But when his purpose became clearly one of revenge, mingled with the furtherance of a future personal ambition, he was treated as he deserved to be. If, after his return from South America, he had followed the course which, shrewd observers predicted he would, in spite of the proclamation from Oyster Bay, and declared that the chief issue before the country was the election of an anti-imperialist, it would have become a formidable candidate for the republican nomination for the presidency in 1916. His candidacy now is impossible. He not only embittered republicans by his activity, which all sensible people realized could benefit nobody except the democrats, but he has succeeded in demonstrating that it is not really necessary to take him into account in future political speculations."

November 5.

On account of the funeral services of the late Dr. Corkey in Sioux City last Thursday, only seven members of the H. H. S. spent the day with Mrs. A. E. Halladay. Mrs. Adolph Meyer and Miss Etta Thun were invited guests. After the 1 o'clock dinner, the time was devoted to piecing quilt blocks and in different costumes, the prize winners were Mrs. Alex Jeffrey, Mrs. Jens Anderson and Mrs. W. G. Echtenkamp. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Jeffrey.

A successful Halloween party was given at the William Watson home Saturday night when the ladies of the Helping Hand society entertained their husbands and families and several invited guests. A delicious supper of oysters, sandwiches, pickles, cake, coffee, and fruit was served to eighty people. The decorations were in the shape of Halloween—jack-o'-lanterns, black cats, witches, etc. Supper was followed by a short program, and then came different games and contests in which Rev. E. P. Richardson, Albert Watson, Thomas Beckman, Will Butcher, Jr., and Florence and Jamie Grier carried off the honors. The jolly crowd dispersed at a late hour, all hoping to meet again at the same time next year.

It's "Tip-Top" and "Kleen Maid." Its wholesome, delicious flavor is an everlasting memory of its goodness. Nothing but the purest ingredients enter into the making of "Tip-Top" and "Kleen Maid" bread. They are selling more every day. Why? Because they arrive fresh daily, and each loaf is full one and two pounds, net weight, and selling at the same old price—5 cents a loaf, six for 25 cents for the one-pound "Tip-Top," and "Kleen Maid," and 10 cents a loaf, three for 25 cents, for the large two-pound "Tip-Top" and "Kleen Maid." This means six pounds of the best bread that ever came out of the oven to your table, for 25 cents, which is more than you can buy at any store.

PRAYERS FOR HELP.

"God bless our army and our navy, and help us knock the blooming gray from Graustark, 'o' z the way." Thus prays the king of Zenda nightly, then takes his gory ax politely, and mingles in the fray. The King of Graustark, worn and bloody, kneels gravely in his royal study, and prays for aid divine: "I should, hear a monarch pleading, and send the be'llets we are needing, along our batt' line. Send us a raft of swords and lances, if you multiply our chances to whip that sinful crew: Oh, send us guns and smokeless powder, and send my starving soldiers chowder, and batten them P. D. Q." The God of Battles must be weary; through all the ages, long and dreary, he's heard that tale of woe; and he is surely sick of seeing the riven souls of soldiers fleeing from blood red fields below. He must be sick of King and Colonel, of ruin, wreck, and waste infernal of charge, and shock and thud; of Butcher Caesars and of Neros, of praying kings and braying heroes, the captains drunk with blood. Oh, not on crimson fields distressing will God bestow his sovereign blessing, and not on gory armies; but it will come when soldiers wander back from the strife and horror yonder, back to their homes and farms.

END OF THE SEASON.

Once more the baseball season's ended, the fans dispersed—it seems a shame; the magnates sit in grandeur splendid, and wonder why they've lost the game. And for their trouble they have reason, the grand old game has seen a slump; it's been a dark and dreary season, with all things headed for the dump. I long have been among the stayers, the fans who never missed a game; but I've grown tired of chesty players who hanker less for honest fame, than for the stipend, big and bulky, who haggle for all coin in sight, and taik that, get sour and sulky, and break their contracts, right and left. I'm weary of the famous pitcher, who puts a fortune in his jeans, and then, to make himself still richer, writes twaddle for the magazines. I'm tired of all the human factors who constitute our baseball game, and wonder why the tinhorn actors, with monologues which give bad dreams. They all seem crazy for the shilling, the pound, the kroner, and the yen, and baseball won't be gay and thrilling, till we get back old ways again. I care not for soft-heartedners, who sing their glory till it's static, nor care to see a squad of misers performing for a roll of kale.

THE UNHAPPY HOME.

Tired father to his home returns, all jaded by the stress and fray, to have the rest for which he yearns throughout the long and toilsome day. His supper's ready on the board, as good a meal as e'er was sprung, a meal no worker could afford in oiden times, when we were young. He looks around with frowning brow and sighs, "Ah what a lot of junk!" This butter never knew a cow, the coffee is extremely punk. You know I like potatoes boiled, and so, of course, you dish them fried, this poor old beefsteak has been broiled until it's tough as water hide. It beats me, Susan, where you find such doughnuts, which resemble rock; these biscuits you no doubt designed to act as weights for yonder clock. You couldn't fracture with a club the kind of spunk that you dish, was for dear old mother's grub throughout my days I vainly wish!" Then Susan, burdened with her cares, worn and jaded, sad and weak, sits beneath the cellar stairs, and sighs, "Alas, the poor, unhappy soul, whose maden dreams are all a wreck! She ought to take a ten-foot pole and prod her husband in the neck."

HORRORS OF WAR.

They are still fighting over there, through Europe armies leave their tracks; and Uncle Sam, to make things square, will soon impose a special tax. It's not for us to boldly trek o'er sodden fields, with life-blood damp, but every time we write a check we'll have to use a two-cent stamp! So let us rise, an angry horde, and call upon the scrapping kings to throw away the gun and sword, and let the White Dove wave its wings. We cannot only view war's wreck, the dying soldiers in their camp, when every time we write a check, we have to use a two-cent stamp. We thrill with horror when we read of legions

FALL MUSINGS.
The summer is over, retired is the plow; the millet and clover are safe in the mow; the cornfield is yellow, in sunshine awash; the pumpkin is mellow, and so is the squash; and so is the singer, who warbles with zest, to Autumn, the bringer of coolness and rest. She brings us a number of ardent delights, including a slumber unbroken at nights. How our snore, when Autumn is keeping her watch at the door. No good novel by H. Rider Doyle, while round my cheap hovel the storm makes turmoil. But soon I am yawning and bedward I creep and then till the dawn- ing like thunder I sleep, and rise in the morning as good as when new, when cook sounds the warning that sinkers are due! How sweet is the season of frost and of squall; we surely have reason to stand up for Fall.

How About Your Hogs?

The local agent, W. E. Roggenbach of Altona, has sold almost three tons of Columbian Stock Powder during the last year, and that it gives good satisfaction is proved by the fact that his patrons order it over and over again. For exterminating worms in hogs and preventing cholera, he thinks it has no equal, if you feed Columbian Stock Powder and the use of dip to give them the protection. You know how the dose prescribed for worms should be fed in soaked or dampened oats every ten days or two weeks and also keeping the dry powder in a self-feed or trough before them. It is. He always has fresh powder on hand. One mile southwest of Altona, or phone Wisner, 1708.

The Postoffice and the Telephone

You expect to be able to send a letter anywhere. You can—nearly. But you can send a long distance telephone message to 12,000 more places in this country than you can send a letter.

According to the Postmaster General's figures, there are 58,000 places that have postoffices. There are 70,000 places reached by long distance lines of the Bell Telephone System.

There are 50 per cent more telephone messages than letters sent in this country. In Europe, where the governments own and operate nearly all of the telephones, there is only about one-third as many telephone messages sent as letters.

Private enterprise in America has made telephone service so efficient and given the service at so low rates that nearly everybody uses the telephone.

The United States, which has but 6 per cent of the world's population, has 64 per cent of all the world's telephones.

On January 1st last year there were 8,729,592 telephones in the United States and only 4,821,332 in all the rest of the world.
