WHY THE COST OF OPERATING RAILROADS HAS BEEN INCREASED.

STRUGGLING AGAINST INCREASED COST OF LABOR, SUPPLIES, ETC., ON ONE HAND—REDUCED RATES ON THE OTHER.

During the last few years the advocates of government ownership of railroads have been somewhat persistent in the public press and the matter is referred to here, not with any idea of repeating this propaganda, but merely to state that the people may briefly see both sides of the picture. So long as a lot of men welcome the wrecking of the railroads on the theory that the government will take them over and that such a state of affairs would be preferable to private ownership, it will be impossible to obtain from them a fair judgment of the latter system which now prevails in the United States. It is impossible to go into this great question at any length at this time, but here are a few things worth thinking about. Much has been said in recent years about the "water" contained in American railroad securities, and, in this connection, the situation of the government owned railroads of Europe is very interesting. In Germany, the state owned roads are valued at $114.48 per mile, in Austria at $120,692, in Hungary at $69,210, in Italy at $126,886, in Belgium at $194,000, in France at $162,950, in Rumania at $90,113, in Japan at $88,104, and in South Wales at $17,391, while the privately owned lines of the United States, regardless of what water may have been forced into them in specific instances, are valued at only $63.944 per mile. Whatever inflation may therefore have been put into their properties in the past, the fact remains that their present valuation is much lower than that of the government owned railroads of Europe, and what is still more important, the rates charged are the lowest and the service rendered admittedly the best in the world. It is also pertinent to remember that the cost of water and electric power all can be made against but very few American railroads—the lion's share of them having been managed without a breath of scandal or criticism.

In this connection, a statement contained in the last annual report of the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, which has a paid-up capital and reserve fund of $75,000,000 is interesting. "American railroads need higher rates. The present rates are the lowest in the world—representing a 50 per cent. discount on the English way rates for instance—and this in the face of the fact that wages in the United States on the average are fully twice as high as in Europe." Certainly this view of the private owners of the United States coming from Germany which was the most successful state owned system of transportation in the world, is worthy of grave consideration.

In further confirmation of this statement, we quote the following: "The average cost of freight in the United States is 2.33 cents, in France 1.41 cents, and in Germany 1.42 cents. The average cost of freight in the English way rates is paid to American railroad employees is $2.23 in England it is $1.35, in France 88 cents, and in Germany 81 cents. Are American railroads therefore entitled to the wholesale abuse and discrimination which has been heaped upon them from all sides in recent years?"

Letting Well Enough Alone.
In view of these facts, the average citizen may well ask himself whether it is not best to let well enough alone rather than invite other ills we know not of—whether it is not wiser to cure such defects as they appear in the present system rather than run the danger of plunging this mighty industry into the whirlpool of party politics for all time, with its attendant opportunity for evil which the history of forty years of party rule in this young country, and in many sections only partially developed. Many new lines and extensions are needed here and there to give a wide opportunity to expanding agriculture and commerce, and nothing could be more unfortunate or disastrous than that these favors could be withheld by the dominant political factions which will reign at the national contrary, in many instances, compelled to lower them.

Big Increased Cost of Labor.
To give the reader an exact idea of how the cost of labor has advanced in the operation of railroads we quote the following increase in the daily wages from 1903 to 1914: a period of only fourteen years. In the case of engineers it increased from $3.68 per day to $7.76, or an increase of 56 per cent; firemen from $2.21 to $3.62, or 64 per cent; conductors from $3.31 to $4.81, or 45 per cent; station agents from $1.98 to $2.16, or 9 per cent; other station men from $1.62 to $1.90, or 17 per cent; ordinary trainmen from $1.92 to $3.36, or 70 per cent; machinists from $2.72 to $3.52, or 29 per cent; carpenters from $2.31 to $2.59, or 12 per cent; other shopmen from $1.93 to $2.20, or 14 per cent; section foremen from $1.57 to $1.83, or 17 per cent; trackmen from $1.15 to $1.52, or 32 per cent; telegraph operators and dispatchers from $2.25 to $2.65, or 17 per cent. This means a general average increase in wages of 32.20 per cent—and all other classes of railroad operatives and employees a more or less similar degree. While these advances have proven a great boon to the nearly two million men employed in the railway service and increased their capacity to buy from merchant and farmer, they have costed the nation millions annually from the railroads themselves—all of which made the general public richer, but the roads poorer. In 1900 the railroads paid $144 per ton for coal. Now they pay $181. Then they paid 38 cents for ties. Now they pay 52 cents.

Other Increased Costs.
But there are many other items which have enormously increased the cost of railroad operation which we cannot go into here for lack of space. The public is constantly demanding a more efficient and a safer service, and hence the railroads have had to spend vast sums in installing block signals, steel passenger cars, doing away with grade crossings, straightening lines, heavier locomotives, better roadbeds, and supplying many other precautions protecting both their operatives and the public—all things very necessary yet very costly. So, too, numerous states have passed "Full Crew" laws, without benefiting the public, have compelled the railroads to pay a toll of millions to useless employees.

Now while labor, farm products, and merchandise and manufactures and supplies of all kinds have steadily increased in price, the railroads, as stated before, have been compelled to reduce their rates in the face of this avalanche of ever-advancing cost of operation—that all the most powerful lines find themselves in an exceedingly critical condition is not to be wondered at. The farmer, the merchant, the manufacturer and the laborer justly insist that they would not be able to get along on the prices they received ten or fifteen years ago. How, then, can the railroads, which are the largest employers of labor and buyers of material in the United States, be expected to exist on less than they received ten or fifteen years ago? In view of these facts, it is no wonder that President Wilson and other patriotic and careful students of the situation are speaking words of kindly admonition to the American public, to the end that the railroads, through whose giant arteries flows the very life blood of the nation, may not be wrecked and destroyed.

The Public and the Manager.
On the one hand, for the last twenty-five years, the public has demanded the best and highest efficiency in service and lower rates in one and the same breath. On the other hand stand the thousands of men and women who have invested their money in railroad securities and who, in common with the farmer, the manufacturer and the merchant, believe they are entitled to a fair profit. Then come the hundreds of thousands of employees who are continually clamoring for an increase in wages, as well as the cost of all manner of railroad supplies which is constantly advancing—and between them, as arbiters, stand the managers of the railroads—the big "hired men," struggling with might and main to reconcile all these conflicting interests in the face of reduced rates upon every hand. That they have at last reached a point where they can come to the unequal struggle no longer should not be a matter of wonder—and in face of the harsh and unfriendly criticism which has descended upon their heads from every quarter they find themselves in the very midst of the fiddler in the western mining camp when he yelled out: "Please don't shogt, boys, I am doing the best I can!"—(Paid advertisement. To be continued next week.)

Active employment relies worry. Troubles—real or imaginary—cannot monopolize attention if one is kept busy and is producing good results.

Municipal Christmas trees were attractions in a number of towns this year, and we would suggest that the plan be investigated and if found successful and satisfactory, be tried in Wayne next year.

Judge Wilbur F. Bryant proposes a change in the law in the interest of more economical settlement of estates in probate courts. He would provide for the appointment of a permanent administrator, fully qualified and bonded, to look after all estates. He contends that administrators are often incompetent and useless so far as settling valuable service.

Let us begin the new year by taking a more just view. Let us be fair to the other fellow. He is not all bad. He has some good qualities which you have not tried to find. You don't know him. If you are enough interested in him to give a fair hearing, you will probably see if knowledge at short range will not bring to view attributes deserving respect and appreciation.

Why don't the railroads utilize our rich soil for the production of crops? Miles of fertile land remain idle along railroad tracks and it would seem should be used to increase agricultural wealth. The railroads ought to turn some attention to farming and thereby create the double purpose of meeting the demand for more farm products and the demand for increased revenues.

The problem of how to raise children has been solved triumphantly by self, but not by neighbors. It is easy to see defects in others' children and say how they ought to be, but are not—trained and made to deport themselves. It is also easy to see the superior qualities in one's own children, and note their excellent behavior. This biased view is a provision of nature which makes living more comfortable.

When Congressman Dan V. Stevenson voted to deny people the chance to say whether they want national prohibition or not, didn't he reverse his policy seeking to allow people to rule, and practiced in the enforcement of his postoffice plan? While he would be warranted in voting against prohibition if he deemed it inefficient and inadvisable, it would seem that he should, to be consistent, vote to grant people the right to express themselves on any public question.

LOOKING BACK AND AHEAD. On the threshold of another year it is proper to reflect on progress made the past twelve months and resolve to build bigger and better in the future. The year which steps down and out tonight, giving place to its new, untired successor, will not generally be remembered as one of usual prosperity. Times have been hard in many sections of the United States, and the army of unemployed has largely increased. Some parts have been favored above others, however. North Nebraska has suffered little, if any. While crops were not up to the customary standards, prices have been high and returns in cash usually as great as those in more productive years. Therefore, people here have had money, and have not hesitated to spend it to maintain a high plane of living. How much influence the European war has had on business is not easy to determine. Certainly it has had a depressing effect on American sensibilities, and has been a source of extreme regret.

For an off year Wayne has witnessed considerable improving, especially to municipal utilities, to residence districts and State Normal grounds. Business houses report an increased volume of sales and have been deservedly prosperous. Entering the new year, people should plan to build stronger along all lines. They should make improvements consistent with need and sound judgment. Dealers should be determined to serve the public better, push their business harder and merit increased trade.

As one of Wayne's industrial institutions, the Herald has made satisfactory headway the last year. During the year, its floor space has been doubled, new machines and other equipment have been added, an increased office force has been employed, its circle of readers has been largely extended, and all lines of its business have grown. In the four years of the present management, the subscription list has considerably more than doubled, and the weekly payroll is nearly four times greater. Improved facilities and improved service have brought an increased volume of business.

In the future, as in the past, more improvement will mean more business, and we hope at the end of the coming year the Herald will be able to show even greater growth than it has made during 1914.

That he paid said tax of $2.50 and interest amounting to $2.75 under protest, and filed the receipt with the affidavit attached within the thirty days after the law, covering that he has served his time as volunteer fireman and is not subject to tax. Thereupon the board after considering the same, orders the treasurer to refund the sum of $2.75; tax and interest.
Comes now C. M. Craven and says that for the year 1914 he was charged with a poll tax, which was certified up by the city clerk of Wayne to the county clerk to be spread on the tax list. That he paid said tax under protest for the reason that he had served his time as fireman, which exempted him from poll tax. That he filed his receipt and affidavit within the time required by law and asks that the treasurer be ordered to refund to the said C. M. Craven the sum of $2.50. The board after deliberation orders treasurer to refund the sum of $2.50 poll tax so paid under protest.
Whereupon the board adjourned to January 6, 1915.

first class. He also intimates that this is not a good stock country—that terrible blizzards, ravage and roar, and that the cattle having only a barbed wire fence to protect them from the storms of winter, turn up their toes before spring. On reading the trade of the gentleman from Indiana, one might think he was drunk if he had not shown so much good temperance solicitude about the quality and quantity of the water. Perhaps, however, it was the morning after when he wrote, and felt thirsty as a mill race. From his remarks it appears that the supposed to be established facts, viz: that this country was well adapted to stock, that every acre would yield three tons of grass, and that every quarter section had an abundant supply of water—all these heretofore admitted facts, certified to by every man who ever came here before the arrival of the Indiana scribe, are kicked over by him in his letter.

Speaking of the state of society in this country, he says, "there has not been a man killed for three days, and people are becoming anxious for something to happen." The full richness of such remarks will be seen when it is considered that the letter was written at Wakefield, a town as noted for good morals and abundant conduct as the gentleman's native state is for whiskey and fever and ague. He also goes on to say: "The sheriff had two young cubs chained together at our dinner table today. They had killed a Dutchman one day last week just for fun. The cowboys keep everybody uneasy. It often occurs that a man needs a revolver worse than he does a bible in this part of the United States." In view of the fact that this country is noted for its moral and law-abiding citizens, that a murder has been unheard of for years, that there it not one of the typical cowboys within 200 miles and that revolvers are as scarce as truths in the Indiana man's letter, it must appear that he was mistaken in his remarks.

And yet it is possible the Indiana scribe did not intend to lie. Very likely there were those, who, for amusement, took advantage of his credulity, and filled him up with knee-quaking stories. Those who thus scare a poor devil who had never done them any harm, and just for the fun of frightening him, ought to be ashamed of themselves. That they actually frightened him out of the country is evident—indeed, he says in his letter that he was en route to Yankton.

Me thinks we see him now, scooting for that place, with hair up-standing, with eyes out-sticking, his legs a-tremble, and moist with the sweat of anxiety, and frantically glaring over his shoulder at an imaginary pursuing array of blood-thirsty cowboys and Indian savages with scalping knives, double-barreled shotguns, war clubs, barbed fence wire, revolvers, blizzards, tornadoes and tomahawks, and the ghosts of the great drove of bulls, cows, heifers, and calves which had starved to death on these prairies. Poor fellow, he had it bad. Let him go in peace, and swear off in future.

DOING THEIR DUTY.

Scores of Wayne Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty. When they fail to do this, the kidneys are weak. Backache and other kidney ills may follow.

Help the kidneys do their work. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—the tested kidney remedy.

Prove it for their worth in the following:

S. M. Anderson, retired farmer, Wakefield, Neb., says: "When I was suffering from pains in my back and other symptoms of kidney complaint, someone told me to take Doan's Kidney Pills. After I used two boxes, I was convinced of their merit. They went to the root of the trouble; strengthening my kidneys and toning up my system. I hope that my statement will be the means of bringing relief to other kidney sufferers."

Price 50 cents at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Anderson had. Foster Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Ad.

Never can tell when you'll mash a finger or suffer a cut, bruise, burn or scald. Be prepared. Thousands rely on Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Your druggist sells it in 25 and 50 cent bottles.—Ad.

MARCUS KROGER

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.

From the Wayne Herald, January 14, 1892:

Fine sleighing. Wayne is not behind in anything. Seventy-six marriage-licenses were issued during the year 1891.

Married, at the residence of the bride's parents, in Garfield precinct, Tuesday, January 12, 1892, David James to Mary James, Rev. Hughes officiating.

About 5 o'clock Sunday evening, an alarm of fire was sounded and in a few minutes a large number of people had gathered at the City hotel, the roof of which was discovered to be on fire, having caught from a defective flue. Holes were chopped in the roof, and the bucket brigade soon extinguished the fire. About 10 o'clock the city zens were again startled by an alarm, and the roof was again found to be in flames, the fire having gained such headway that it was impossible to put it out, and by midnight nothing remained but a pile of ashes to mark the spot where the old hotel stood. It was one of the first buildings erected in Wayne, having been constructed by one of the early pioneers, W. G. Vroman.

From Ponca Journal, December 28, 1883:

Recently, an unsophisticated blackhead, hailing from the hoop-pole state, visited Dixon and Cedar counties, and after being stuffed with stories of blizzards, murders, Indians, and cowboys, wrote a letter to the Garrett Herald (Indiana), in which he claimed to give a true account of this part of northern Nebraska and its people. His letter which was sent from Wakefield, informs credulous eastern people that this country does not have plenty of water and what it does have is not Sick Headache.

Sick headache is nearly always caused by disorders of the stomach. Correct them, and the periodic attacks of sick headache will disappear. Mrs. John Bishop of Roseville, O., writes: "About a year ago, I was troubled with indigestion and had sick headache that lasted for two or three days at a time. I doctored and tried a number of remedies, but nothing helped me until during one of those sick spells a friend advised me to take Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This medicine relieved me in a short time." For sale by all dealers.—Ad.
