REPUBLICANS HOLD STATE CONVENTION MANIFEST PARTY HARMONY

Resolutions Agreeable to All Factions—Speeches Predict Party Victory.

Lincoln, July 29.—At the state republican convention here yesterday, post differences were buried, and disagreements smoothed over by the united desire of the delegates to work out a platform upon which the republican candidates can go before the people with certainty of success.

State Chairman Epperson and Currie vied with each other in working for the common interest.

Chairman King of the convention in his opening speech indicted the national administration and that of the state as well.

Primary Clause Stricken.—When the convention had listened to the speeches from four gubernatorial candidates, the committee on resolutions reported, and the work of the day began.

While waiting for the committee on resolutions to report candidates for the republican nomination were invited to address the convention.

What Platform Contains.—The platform contains: Recommendation for economy in state government.

Calis voters' attention to constitutional amendment on revenue.

Favors submission of constitutional amendment for constitutional convention.

For reformation of legislative procedure and laws pertaining to court procedure.

Proper regulation of water privileges for best good of water users and cooperation of government to that end.

Encouragement of legitimate business enterprises, especially power projects and interurban lines, good road laws.

Adequate support of agricultural experiment station.

DEMOCRATS AT COLUMBUS Columbus, Neb., July 29.—The democrats, in their state convention adopted their platform just before midnight, after a six hours session.

After a fight through most of the day whether to endorse United States Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, a mild endorsement of his "ability and integrity of purpose," was included, while avoiding open endorsement of his principal opponent in the senate in the last two years.

Bryan Claims Victory.—"It's a victory for our side," said Charles W. Bryan. "Both the selection of the resolutions committee and the platform itself is a victory."

Following the mild Hitchcock resolution in the platform comes a resolution that unequivocally endorses Congressman Dan Stephens, C. O. Lebeck, and John A. McElaine on the fidelity of purpose and constant support of democratic principles and pledges that have marked their services in congress. It took until night to name the resolutions committee and decide the preliminaries. The committee was made up of Dr. P. L. Hall of Lincoln, chairman; Thomas S. Allen of Lincoln, first district; Harry B. Fielhart, Omaha, second district; John C. Byrne, Columbus, third district; J. J. Thomas, Seward, fourth; J.

CANDIDATE TO SPEAK HERE

R. B. Howell, candidate for governor, will, in the course of an automobile tour of the Third congressional district, next week, be in Wayne Tuesday evening, August 3, at 8 o'clock to give a short address on the street.

Mrs. Earl Lewis and children went to Thurston Saturday morning to visit her mother, Mr. Lewis joined her Sunday morning to spend the day. They returned home Sunday evening, accompanied by Miss Millie Metz of South Sioux City, who is spending the week at the Lewis home.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Lewis left yesterday for a visit with their daughter, Tuesday evening, August 3, to visit Mrs. E. F. Jones at Gettysburg, S. D., and the latter to visit Mrs. Minnie Lebeck at McDonald, Kan. Mr. Lewis has gone at this time especially to help his son-in-law harvest an immense crop.

CHIROPRACTOR HELD TO DISTRICT COURT RESULT OF EXAMINATION

Charged With Violating Nebraska Statute Regulating Practice of Medicine.

A. D. Lewis, chiropractor, was given a hearing in the county court last Thursday afternoon on the charge of violating the Nebraska law regulating the practice of medicine and surgery. Mrs. Mahel L. Chantland osteopath being the complainant and as a result the defendant was bound over to the district court with bond fixed at $300 which he furnished.

Attorney L. A. Kiplinger and Attorney A. R. Davis and H. E. Sman appeared for the state and Attorney Fred S. Berry looked after the interests of the defendant.

Each of the three attorneys made a speech to the court. In the course of his address, Attorney Davis read this section of the Nebraska statute defining the practice of medicine: "Any person shall be regarded as practicing medicine, within the meaning of this act, who shall operate on, profess to heal or prescribe for, or otherwise treat any physical or mental ailment, not to the administration of ordinary household remedies."

INCUBATOR FACTORY TO BE ESTABLISHED BUILDING BOUGHT FOR IT

Phil H. Kohl and John E. Hufford Behind the Enterprise—Soon to Be Ready for Work.

Phil H. Kohl and John E. Hufford have bought the patent for manufacturing the Radio Roud incubator, heretofore manufactured at Council Bluffs, and will establish a factory in Wayne. They have bought the property of William House, situated south of the depot, and will at once remodel and enlarge the building for the purpose of making the machines. The lot on which the building is located, adjoins the railroad right-of-way, and such proximity will greatly facilitate the shipping of the factory's product.

Mr. Hufford went to Council Bluffs Monday to arrange for shipping the equipment to this place. He expects to return here tomorrow. The factory will be ready for operation within a short time.

The Radio Roud incubator is said to be one of the very best machines on the market, and it is believed the demand for it will grow rapidly. The industry is an important one for Wayne, and citizens will rejoice to welcome and encourage it.

WALKING TYPHOID. Wendell Baker who lives in the southwestern part of the city, is reported suffering from walking typhoid fever. A trained nurse arrived last evening to care for him, and within a private will which the family has been using, will be analyzed.

INTERESTING EXHIBIT. E. J. Hunter had on display yesterday at the State Normal a time exhibit of work done in the county in the department of agriculture and training school. It attracted a great deal of attention throughout the day, and was viewed by most of the students and faculty.

FRIENDLY NEIGHBORS. Charles Gildersleeve, living in Plum Creek precinct, ten miles southeast of Wayne, says his neighbors gathered at his place recently and cut and shocked seventy-five acres of grain. He thinks no neighborhood is better or more accommodating than that of Plum Creek.

WILL GO ABOARD. De. E. A. Miner arrived Tuesday evening from Independence, Kan., to visit his father and other relatives. He leaves tomorrow evening for Chicago, where he will meet his wife who has been visiting friends in Kansas City. From Chicago, he will go to New York, where they sail for Paris. While abroad, the doctor will study in Germany. They expect to remain abroad several months.

ENJOYABLE SOCIABLE. The ice cream social given by the C. E. society of the Presbyterian church on the main lawn Friday evening was a very enjoyable affair. The State Normal band entertained the occasion with music, and Rev. Robert Corkey gave a very interesting talk on Ireland. He quoted the words of the attending physician, that no new cases is developing. He says the sick child is improving steadily and will soon be well again. He thinks there is no reason to fear spread of the disease.

PROMPTLY QUARANTINED. The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Norman who came to Wayne from Sioux City last week, and who is staying with the family of J. J. Courtwright, developed a mild case of diphtheria last Tuesday. The family was immediately placed under quarantine. The mother had been sick with the disease in Sioux City. Antitoxin was administered to the sick child and to other members of the family, and it is the firm belief of Dr. E. B. Biss, the attending physician, that no new cases will develop. He says the sick child is improving steadily and will soon be well again. He thinks there is no reason to fear spread of the disease.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ott who have been visiting Wayne the past week, left this morning for their home at Burkett. They will be joined at Winside by Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Roush who are also returning to Burkett.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Halliday were Sunday visitors at the J. L. Kelley home.

WAYNE CROWD HEARS CANDIDATE BERGE "George W. Berge, candidate for the democratic nomination for governor at the coming primaries, was in Wayne last Saturday afternoon, and addressed a crowd of voters on the street. In a ten-minute address in his position he emphasized his opposition to extravagance in state government which he endeavored to show to be unnecessarily large by quoting from legislative appropriations. Among his statements was that while the population has increased twenty per cent in the last twenty years, expenses of the state have become 270 per cent greater. He pointed out many of the items of expense that might be reduced, among them those due to district messengers, doorkeepers, and custodians and janitors employed for the convenience of the legislature. Mr. Berge has a pleasing personality, and is a forceful speaker.

Gertrude Sonner and daughter, Mr. Cabl, Mr. L. Cabl, and Miss Minnie Cabl, Mrs. B. J. Sixes entertained a party of sixteen young ladies at a Kensington at her home Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Jane Arnold, who was given a miscellaneous shower. The hours were happily spent in social conversation, and a dainty course luncheon was served on the screened porch. R. Lauman was quite seriously injured Tuesday afternoon by a fall from a grain stack. He had just finished the stack, and in descending missed the ladder and fell to the ground, breaking two ribs and severely wrenching his back. At last reports, he was doing well. He is under the care of Dr. G. J. Hess. Publication of the three proposed amendments to the constitution is projected-on at the general election in November will begin next week in each

JONES BROS. AND WILSON'S SHOWS. At Wayne, August 11, 1914. Unlike any other show ever presented, is Jones Bros' and Wilson's Trained Wild Animal Show, embracing the idea used by Hagenback's wonder zoo this winter in the Olympic at London, with such wonderful success, combined with a number of high class European aerial, acrobatic, and equine performances, staged under canvas on the style of an American circus. Two rings, an elevated stage, and a large steel arena will be used for the presentation of these performances. The performances will run to trained animal acts; both wild and domestic, including Peter Taylor and his $50,000 group of performing lions. This is said to be the largest and most sensational act of its kind before the public today. ADMIRING AUDIENCE HEARS MALE QUARTET

NOVEL PROGRAM RENDERED

Enjoyed Notwithstanding Intense Heat of Evening—Other State Normal News.

On last Monday evening, a gasping and admiring audience greeted the Wayne State Normal quartette and Professor Keckley, and forgot the height of the mercury in absorbed attention to the entertaining and decidedly novel program.

The first selections by the quartette were beautifully rendered, the voices harmonizing better than ever before. These numbers were "March Onward," Geibel; "Moonlight on the Lake," White; "The Morning Freshly Breaking," Giff; and Ferris' serenade, "Silent and Night."

Mr. Keckley's reading, "Danny," charmed all in the combination of the tender and the humorous, and his later rendition of selections in the Italian dialect displayed talents in a new field, and were received with great enthusiasm.

Mr. Rogers' inimitable qualities as an entertainer were displayed in his character solos, "They're After Me" and "He's With the Angels Now." Another character song was rendered by Messrs. Dugan and Rogers, entitled "The Upper Ten and Lower Five."

The very dramatic musical sketch, "Farmer Snow," with the animated background was a circus in itself, but the climax of interest was reached in the songs illustrated by the reflectoscope pictures, wherein, after views of the southland, Mr. Redmond was shown in bodily presence. "With the Angels (I) Now," and post cards of Professor Lackey's children in water colors beautifully illustrated the song. "When the Little Ones Say Goodnight."

STATE NORMAL NOTES.

The board of education will meet at Lincoln on August 12. The July issue of the Goldenrod, recently put out by the staff, is one of the best numbers of the year. Miss Irah B. Olson of Norfolk spent Tuesday at the Normal, and while here she was a guest of Mrs. Bowen. Supt. N. M. Waggoner of South Omaha, secretary of the board of examiners for life certificates, met members of the graduating classes now in school, last Tuesday.

Special features in the chapel programs this week were: Vocal solos by Miss Reba Nangle and Mrs. Anna Gamble Johnson, and addresses by Dr. House, Dean Hahn, and Professor Wright.

Thursday and Friday of this week will be given over entirely to examinations, and the work of all departments of the school will close until September 14.

The deep sympathy of the Normal is extended to Miss Alta McCrady in the recent loss of her mother, and to Katie Fitzgerald in the loss of a baby sister.

KLINGLER TOUCHES CHIROPRACTOR CASE

Since the preliminary hearing in the prosecution of A. D. Lewis, chiropractor, it seems that I have been fiercely criticized because a number of friends signed their names to the fact that Dr. H. W. Shum had been employed by me at the county's expense, to assist in that prosecution, and because they considered the employment of these attorneys an unnecessary expense to the county. I feel that I cannot let this criticism go unanswered, because it is based on a misunderstanding of the facts. Mr. Davis and Mr. Siman were employed by private persons to appear in the above mentioned case, and they will receive no compensation from the county. At the time since I have been county attorney has private counsel ever been employed at the county's expense to assist in a criminal prosecution.

I permitted a complaint to be filed against Mr. Lewis because I believed he was practicing in violation of the statutes of Nebraska. I do not make the laws of this state and, whether the law is right or wrong, it is my duty to enforce it, and if I refused, I could be compelled to do so.

permit a complaint to be filed whenever an offense against the law has been committed, and there is sufficient evidence to prove it. And I will never refuse the assistance of private counsel in a criminal prosecution whenever a citizen or any number of citizens care to employ it.

I trust this explanation of my position and conduct in the case of Mr. Lewis will relieve any misunderstanding that has been kept in the master.—L. A. Klingler.

HERALD EXCHANGE GLEANINGS OF WEEK

Scottsburg, Ind., Journal: Frank H. Toombs has shown us a souvenir edition of the Wayne Herald, of Wayne, Neb. It contains sixty-two pages, and is full of interesting news about the city of Wayne and Nebraska. A niece of Mr. Toombs, Mrs. M. A. Phillips, daughter of the late Wesley Toombs, is the city editor of this paper. She is also the principal of the high school, a position which she has held for six years. Her ability and energy is another testimonial of Scott county grit and enterprise.

Laurel Advocate: The souvenir booster edition issued by the Wayne papers recently is the finest special edition ever brought forth from a country office in Nebraska. The workmanship on it will rank up to many of the best magazines. The two Wayne papers are to be congratulated on their enterprise and the brotherly spirit shown in going together and getting out such a creditable souvenir.

Omaha Nebraskan: Senator Phil Kohl of Wayne, was down—the other day to see a few of the boys and to get lunch at Ed Mauers'. He had about settled himself when Governor Morehead came in and sidled up to Phil to talk politics. Those seated near Philip saw the crimson streak to his cheeks and heard him speak real firmly to the governor, winding up by saying that he would see him in hell first, or words to that effect. Phil seldom forgets.

Dixon Journal: The annual harvest picnic in Dixon this year promises to draw one of the largest crowds ever attending a picnic here. All arrangements for sports and street attractions will probably be completed by another week, and it is the desire of all the sports committers to be able to announce one of the best programs ever gotten together for the picnic festivities. Prepare to come, and bring the family. Plenty of shade and water will be provided, and a big day is in store for all who come.

According to a report in Sunday's Sioux City Journal, smallpox has broken out at Hartington, three families in town and one in the country having been quarantined.

Norfolk Daily News, July 24: The report that Otto A. Voget, the Norfolk musician, had been a victim of confidence men in New York and was robbed of $500 in travelers' checks, is partly confirmed by a postal card received from Mr. Voget by his sister, Miss Erna Voget, who has charge of the conservatory during her brother's absence. Mr. Voget says that he was robbed, but that the men did not get all of his money. He does not give particulars.

Randolph Enterprise: The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Meyers was drowned Tuesday at her home twelve miles southeast of Randolph. While playing near a tank of water, she fell in and was dead when found.

Pender Times: The Times overlooked the special edition of the Wayne Democrat and Wayne Herald. It is one of the best booster editions we have seen, and is especially entitled to mention for its typographical appearance. An edition of this character pays big dividends to the people of a community.

JUNIOR BIBLE CIRCLE.

Contributed: The Junior Bible circle which was entertained at the home of Mrs. Miles, was well attended by many of the college girls, there being over thirty in all present at the meeting. Last Monday, Mrs. Young entertained the girls at an afternoon reception for the girls who would leave soon. Miss Tenney Henderson made a picture of the girls, after which we went into the house and were favored by a solo rendered by Miss Collins, one of the normal girls. Dainty refreshments were served and after a few words from Mrs. Young, and another member of the circle, the guests returned to their homes. The Bible circle will meet with Misses Pearl and Iva Lasse. We encourage the attendance and interest of all the Wayne girls.

The harmony and enthusiasm in the late republican state convention augur well for the future of the party.

The war spirit just broken out in Europe does not indicate the advancement in civilization that many people supposed had been made.

The bullmoose state convention having declared for prohibition, it looks as though it might have saved the trouble of organizing by joining the prohibition party if the latter had been willing.

What the bullmooses in convention at Lincoln lacked in numbers they made up in noise. They denounced the old parties with fiery vigor, and crammed into their platform everything they thought would catch votes.

The game laws of France appear to have open seasons for the killing of editors as shown by the exonerated Madame Henriette Caillaux who shot Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro.

A typographical error in the platform of Ross L. Hammond, candidate for governor, as published in last week's Herald, conveyed an impression exactly contrary to the one intended.

Speculations as to the outcome of the contest for the governorship are many and interesting. It is believed that either Ross L. Hammond or J. H. Kemp will win the republican nomination, and that either will defeat Governor Murchison.

greeted on first thought by manifestations of approval.
George W. Berg, candidate for governor is making his campaign on the strength of claims of extravagance in the conduct of the state's business, not restricting his charges to the hands of any one political party. While there may be ground for complaint, would his election furnish an effectual remedy? As governor, could he do anything to curtail expenses? While granting expenditures for public improvements and for operating the state's affairs have been longer than suggested, yet they will not seem so great when growing needs and increased expenses along all lines are taken into consideration. Many public improvements have been made because they were needed, but because it was believed the state could afford to make them. In comparing the state's expenditures in late years with those of twenty years ago, the increase shown is probably proportionately less than would be the case if that comparison would show in the affairs of an individual. Hasn't the average farmer made the bulk of his improvements the last few years? And doesn't it cost the individual to live more than twice what it did twenty years ago? Thus, while there is likely extravagance which should be discouraged, there is still no doubt need for largely increased expenditures in the requirements in both operation and permanent improvements.

It seems almost useless to point out to girls the importance of circumspection in their behavior. It seems useless because the ones who would be most benefited are not reached by it. However, we have been asked to call attention to a few things in the hope of giving benefit to those who are careless, and giving renewed courage and strength to those who are occupying high ground.

It is almost needless to say that the former is a conspicuous minority. The little girl with pink cheeks, fluffy hair and abbreviated costume, seeking and reveling in the attentions of boy companions, should be made to understand the fact that her course is not only out of the element of respectability, but hinders character building and healthy brain growth, and invites evil—evil that may mean endless regret and misery.

The boy-stuck girl, ambitious for attention, should be made to understand the fact that her course is not only out of the element of respectability, but hinders character building and healthy brain growth, and invites evil—evil that may mean endless regret and misery.

It is believed that either Ross L. Hammond or J. H. Kemp will win the republican nomination, and that either will defeat Governor Murchison.

The Scrap Book

Barre Facts.

Representative Allan B. Walsh of the native industry of genius be abundantly public. Hardy was he induced to publish the following little gem:
Observe, he is poet of the art (the critics call a "genre" artist), while publishing a small boy, un-kempt, unshining, and full of the spirit of the times, and flourishes a and glorify him with the divine fire of his genius. And it takes genius to find my poetry in a small boy.
Still, argues Mr. Walsh, either poets have sung, exclaiming the bird bursting forth from the earth in the gladsome springtime. The poet, who is not the small boy peeping forth from his pants?
"Aye, marry! Why not?" exclaims Mr. Walsh so he has the poem:
Two ladies met a barefoot boy whose legs were brier scratched.
They laughed and looked the kid about "the way his pants were patched."
"You stretch your legs with us, will you do. Why don't you patch with black ink?"
The small boy grinned and touched the spot; his face lit up with gladness. "As an artist," he says, "I don't do no patch—that's me!"
The plot of this poem, Mr. Walsh states, is founded on facts—bare facts—Washington Star.

Real Appreciation.
The impulsiveness of great men often has led to amusing incidents. In "Reminiscences of My Life" Henry Holiday tells, among other anecdotes, of the Pro-Rap-Scallies, this story of the Boston, who was an ardent lover of rare and beautiful china.

Remember, I don't mind evening with friends who had married from the top of china collecting. The dinner was served beautifully, and the wine was of various sorts of a better dish.
"This wine is set out on an especially precious dish. When the cover was removed Rossett started, having got to extending the dish, took it in both hands and turned it upside down to see the marks on the back. The salmon, of course, fell out on the tablecloth, but Rossett paid no attention and only exclaimed, "The very dish I wanted and was going to get to-morrow." The lady was so elated at having got the dish ahead of her guest that she quite forgave the irreverent treatment of her salmon and of her tablecloth.

His Pious Wish.
When Irvin Cobb was writing man for the New York Evening World he left the office one night, highly incensed at some of the articles of Charles Chapin, the city editor. He returned the next morning, still ruffled, to find that Chapin was gone.
"Where's the old man?" he inquired. An assistant informed him that Chapin was ill.
"Oh, my!" said Cobb, with concern. "I hope it's nothing trivial." "Everybody's."

Put Both Feet in it.
For two or three days on one occasion Speaker Lowther was away from town. On one of these days a Liberal walked into a west end club and there met Mr. Gully, the vice of the late speaker. "I'm glad to see you," said Gully, "but you're the best speaker we've ever had."
Too late he realized his faux pas. But now he came to an adjoining room he met Mr. Peck. "Oh," he exclaimed, "I've just said such a stupid thing. I met young Gully and forgetting his name, said that you were the best speaker we ever had."
Now, Mr. Peck was also the son of a previous speaker. "I'm glad," he replied to the unhappy Liberal, "that if you ever get outside and walked down the street you might meet one of the Brands." Mr. Speaker Peck—London Critic.

A Kansas Comeback.
Merle Thorpe, who is at the head of the department of agriculture in the University of Kansas, presents this bit of the quick as a fish come back.
An old time Kansas editor was sitting at a restaurant eating a pickled pig's foot or a pig's pickled foot. The case he had just been given to him, saw the editor and exclaimed, "Get out of the way, you! I'm the old wild cat!"
"I'm eating one of your piglets," said the waiter. "I'm eating one of your piglets," said the waiter.

TOO MUCH HONOR.

William Collier, the actor, has a twelve-year-old son on a long island. One day in the spring the youngster came to him and said that he had just been elected captain-manager of his ball club, and in view of the honor conferred upon him he desired to show his appreciation in a substantial manner. He thought it would be rather a graceful thing if he presented his teammates with a treat under which might hold their business sessions and might cut campaigns against the rival claims of the members.

Collier senior donated the tent and a table and a dozen camp chairs for formality and provided a site for the back of the tent and hid there, with his bow in a crack. In order to hear and see how the boys conducted their meeting. He arrived just in time to hear his son say: "I'm so glad to move we elect him an honorary member."
The motion was carried unanimously and the boys proceeded to elect Mr. Manager as captain.

Time.
Know the true value of time. Snatch it and enjoy every moment of it, no idleness, no laziness, no procrastination. Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today.—Earl of Chesterfield.

Wanted More Letters.
Annoyed by the injury done to one of his trees by the driver of the local bus, Mr. Kipling wrote a notice of complaint to the bus owner, who is also landlord of an inn. The landlord sold the letter for a trifling price, and a second and stronger letter followed, and this also found a purchaser. This time at £1, as against five shillings the first time.

Spelled the Scene.
Sam Sothorn says the worst moment of his stage career was passing in a state of mental paralysis owing to a trick played on him by another actor.

Dr. Mareschall-Richter, the famous antiquarian, writing in the Pall Mall Magazine on the ancient civilization of Cyprus, describes the chance discovery of a vase of the fourth century B. C. which ranks as one of the finest examples of ancient art ever found.

Java's Teak Forests.
Teak forests in Java cover 1,489,000 acres, and in the area referred to, is two and a half times as large as the area felled in a given time, this magnificent stock of timber is continually increasing. A pest of the Java teak is directly in charge of a superintendent. In order to prevent the incursion of this pest, as being too expensive, the superintendent is to be seen in the tea fields, between the rows of teak seedlings. This chokes the young, keeps the soil clean and enriches it, and keeps the ground dry, and ultimately disappears with the increase of the forest cover.

Uncle Sam's Mistake.
The various cities of the United States are located as follows: New Orleans, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Denver and Carson City. Being mist taken in charge of a superintendent, the whole system being looked after by a board of directors, who are responsible to the federal government.

clock struck the alarm very carefully and set it upon a sideboard upon the stage.
"At the very moment I opened my mouth," the comedian says, "it went off. I stood before the footlights literally quaking, while that infernal bell rang and rang and thrummed and clanged through an electric key. It was a nightmare! I wanted to run and could not. I wanted to speak and could not. Suddenly from the gallery a voice called out, 'That's the bell, boys! It's a great secret, and I mustn't tell!'"

BARTLETT PEARS

By all means secure during the next week. California Pears are two weeks early and scarcely more than half a crop. I will have an abundant supply all next week in bushel boxes at $2.75 to $2.85. The season will be short. Secure your pears while they are the best—not overripe. The price will not be less.

Elberta Peaches

are in the market at about 90c per box. The best peaches (Colorado) Elbertas, will be on the market in abundance about September 1st. Our best advices are to wait until this date to order peaches. I will have a car load on this market at that time at prices which will sound good. The weather will be cooler and the quality the very best. I now have orders for over half a car.

A PLAYGROUND EXPERT

Dr. W. B. Dickinson, Chautauqua Lecturer, Believes in Play.

IS SECRETARY OF NATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

Will Deliver an Address on Second Day of Chautauqua and Meet of All Recreation Enthusiasts.

Equipped and supervised playgrounds will be discussed at the Chautauqua this summer by Dr. W. B. Dickinson, assistant secretary of the Playground and Recreation Association of America. He is one of the Chautauqua's practical lecturers, working "to get things done."

DR. W. B. DICKINSON.

He has addressed many cities in the establishment of equipped playgrounds and is said to be one of the greatest authorities on playground work and outdoor recreation for children in the country.

CHAUTAUQUA NOTES.

Don't let the heat drive you away. The Riser Sisters will furnish both music and entertainment on the fifth day of the Chautauqua. They have made over 300 Chautauqua appearances.

Lang's Symphony Orchestra of Kansas City will be the big feature in music at the Chautauqua. They will play afternoon and evening of the fourth day.

Ralph B. Fane of the Mashley-Pare Recitals, who comes to the Chautauqua on the second day, is a Kansas City native, who is winning his way to national fame. He has sung three years for the Kansas City Grand Opera Company.

The Chautauqua Quartet

THIS quartet, which sings here on the third day of the Chautauqua, is a product of the Chautauqua. Their program has been especially designed to meet the peculiar requirements of hot weather entertainment.

Educator Says Efficiency Is Needed More Than Languages.

WILL SPEAK HERE CHAUTAUQUA WEEK.

Uel W. Lamkin, Believes Character Building a School Duty—Would Teach Boy to 'Stick to His Job.'

Uel W. Lamkin, Missouri educator, who is to speak here Chautauqua week on "The People and the Public School," says it used to be believed that a boy should be sent to school to be educated "so he wouldn't have to work."

"Nowadays a man is educated who is 'on to his job.'" "In his view of education he doesn't care how many languages a boy can speak, nor would he have his study subjects in school for the 'mental discipline.'"

"This is the way he puts it: 'An engineer, machinist, farmer, lawyer, any skilled laborer, is really educated if he can do his work well—if he is efficient.'"

"It is the business of the schools to train for efficiency, no matter what the later vocation may be, and courses of study must be arranged so that efficient citizens will be trained. "What we need is less stress on a would be scholarship and more stress on efficiency in citizenship. "I believe that the entire school plant should be used for the largest benefit of the school district. It should be open for public meetings of all kinds, for high class entertainments, lecture courses, etc. Its laboratories should be used for making such tests as would be of benefit to those who the school serves. Its library should be open for the use of the general public, under the proper restrictions, of course. "The present position of Germany commercially is due to her system of vocational training. Her plan is to have no untrained men. "Play is an important part of the modern system of education. Well directed play will aid school work. "Mr. Lamkin believes that no system of education will ever be devised that will replace the school of the responsibility of training children in true character building and that the first lesson the boy should learn is to "stick to his job."

Mr. Lamkin is one of the most progressive school men in the west. He has served as inspector of high schools in his own state and is the only "country school man" ever to be elected to the presidency of the State Teachers' association. He is a member of the National Educational association and of the National Society For the Promotion of Industrial Education. He will speak at the Chautauqua on the afternoon of the fifth day.

TO DELIVER FAMES MESSAGE, "A SOWER."

Known the World Over as the Dean of the American Platform and the Country's Greatest Orator.

Among the great men who will be on our Chautauqua program this summer none of them stands out more prominently than John G. Woolley, dean of the American platform, and known for many years as a "great orator in America."

This phrase, "greatest orator in America," has been repeated many times and always when it is heard by some one who knows John G. Woolley's work that one says, "He certainly is the greatest orator in America."

He has probably influenced more men than any living lecturer. He has been a power for good since the age of twenty.

age man of today was only a boy. As a temperance lecturer he has won fame. However, his Chautauqua lecture will not be along temperance lines. He made a tour of the world ten years ago that was probably the most notable lecture tour ever known. His Chautauqua subject is "A Sower."

It will be a rare privilege to hear this grand man of the platform and a privilege of which every person who hears him will always be proud. He will deliver his world famous lectures on the evening of the fifth day of Chautauqua week.

KATHERINE OLIVER-MCOY, DEAN OF SCOTCH READERS.

Katherine Oliver-McCoy's interpretation of "The Little Minister," "Drum-tucky Folk" and "That Lass of Lowrie's" made her famous as a Chautauqua and Lyceum reader. James K. Barrie, the author, heard her give his "Little Minister" at his home in London and said it was excellent. She read

"The Sky-Pilot" before its author, Ralph Connor, and he said, "I am glad my children are in your hands." "Lately," Mrs. McCoy has come out with a new program, Percy Mackaye's "Tomorrow," which she may give in her appearance here Chautauqua week. Her work is thoroughly artistic, and she ranks among the best of the readers on the platform today.

ORCHESTRA ON 4TH DAY

Chautauqua Announces Coming of Michelinio Lenge With Seventeen Artists.

The big end in music at the Chautauqua which comes soon is Lenge's Symphony Orchestra, with Michelinio Lenge, conductor. They will be here on the fourth day of the Chautauqua.

The famous orchestra is known all over the world and is best known in the United States. It is said to have in it such a percentage of second-class artists as any orchestra that could be found. "This orchestra is almost without doubt. They can play any piece of music you like and they will not hesitate to do so before any audience. "Review of the selections which they will play for their Chautauqua program are by Michelinio Lenge's own compositions. It is believed that Lenge's Orchestra, coming so with a strictly high grade program, will actually raise the standard of Chautauqua music. They have since given engagements in twenty years, or an average of ten engagements a week. "The seven splendid musical geniuses on the Chautauqua program. The orchestra replaces the Italian band. DeBaltor-Horner have been conducting the Chautauqua orchestra for a number of years."

This change is explained by Mr. Horner as follows: "I have just been using a band as our big feature in music on all our circuits for several years. These come to us through a New York organizer, and many of the men were brought over each year from Italy to fill these places."

"This year, however, there has been evidence of a strong demand for an orchestra on our large circuit, and I am glad to be able to get the one we have. "Mr. Lenge I know personally, and I know the work his orchestra has been doing so many years in Kansas City. "He has promised to bring to our Chautauqua the best musical program he has and I am honestly expecting a big treat. "I hope Chautauqua patrons over this entire circuit who are as much pleased as I am with the arrangement, and I am sure they will be."

WORKED HIS WEAK POINTS.

Mr. Ape Had No Memory, but Lots of Curiosity and Cowardice. "Cautiously and cowardly," said the one-legged veteran, "are the chief characteristics of my monkey and the most seen. I worked in a zoo after the war. I was the keeper of the monkey house. My biggest charge was an ape who was a two-year-old boy and it was through his curiosity and cowardice that I used to manage him. "We exercised this ape in the big room every day, but when we wanted him to go back to his cage he'd climb up to the roof of the big room, and even with food you couldn't tempt him down. "So I would go to Jack Lovel and take him gently by the arm and direct his attention to a quiet, mysterious entrance to the dark passage under the steam pipes. "It pays and I very day tipped to the pipes. "We present to prisoners to each other some horrible, unknown creature in the passage, and we'd say: 'Look out, here he is! There he is!'—and we had one of a twelve-year-old boy and order and proceed into the darkness we'd hear very soon the delicate patter of small, active feet. The ape's curiosity got the best of him and he'd creep into the passage. He crunched behind his feet, and we'd see into the dark passage. "Then suddenly Lovel would shout: 'Look out, here's coming out! Here's coming out!' and we'd scamper away in the direction of the ape's house. But the ape would be ahead of us. He'd creep into the passage, and he'd look up at us and he'd look very toothy. "So I would go to Jack Lovel and take him gently by the arm and direct his attention to a quiet, mysterious entrance to the dark passage under the steam pipes. "It pays and I very day tipped to the pipes."

MANFORD SCHOOVER.

The Welsh-Homes, Chautauqua, that made good all the way down the line. He is the teacher of the largest Sunday school class in the state of Kansas. He has a host of friends all over the state and is known in many of the cities in the seven states he will visit on this Chautauqua tour this summer. "The better he is known, the greater interest in his coming and the larger the attendance is on Schoover day. He will speak at our Chautauqua on the evening of the fourth day. "Nearly 800 cities will have Redpath Home Chautauqua this summer."

Masters of Music Who Had Nice Tempers of Their Own. "Even in the presence of his royal highness Handel was sometimes fly into most violent passions. "You forget yourself, Mr. Handel," a court attendant said reproachfully on one such occasion. "You should be more respect to her royal highness!" "Royal highness" asserted the musician contemptuously. "Bab! De re spect is due to me! There are many princesses, but only one Handel!" On another occasion, when George I sent a message summoning him to an interview, he returned the answer: "Dell his majesty he bust wall. By this is bore inbordant dan him!" "Viotti, the famous French musician of the eighteenth century, had an equal contempt for royalty and an exaggerated opinion of himself, as the following story shows: One day he was summoned to Versailles to play before Marie Antoinette and the court. The performance had begun; the opening bars of his favorite solo commenced; his breathless attention, when a cry was heard: "Place for Mgr. de Comte d'Artois, second annual World's annual industry ceased playing, cast an indignant glance at his audience, walked his violin under his arm and walked out of the place. "When Marie Antoinette once inquired of Gluck how his new opera was progressing he answered, "Madame, it is nearly finished and I assure you it will be superb," a conceit which was replied by that of the queen, who, when a friend declared that if any artist could be composed than one of his rival operas he would thank on his head, answered, "If that is so I should advise you to start practicing at once, for I have four compositors and the fourth act of 'The Huguenots'!" Even Haydn, usually the most modest of men, showed at times that he was not free from the same quality. He once wrote some overtures as any of his admirers. On one occasion, when a friend said to him of one of his "twelve" symphonies: "It is a very strong opinion that you will never surpass these wonderful symphonies," he answered placidly, "I never mean to attempt the impossible."

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

The biggest joke is a spring rooster's first attempt at crowing. "When a man is in trouble he is apt to find tobacco a greater consolation than sympathy. "A gentleman's agreement usually means that the third gentleman is going to get stuck. "We are less interested in the world's greatest poet than in the one who pleases us most. "Blamed few men like their work so well they long to hurry up and get their vacation over with. "What has become of the old-fashioned smart creak who said he didn't chew his tobacco twice? "The membership of the Keopic club is growing larger. That is the name of the girls who dress like Cupid. "The Palm Beach suits the men are wearing are so thin that one man says he will not wear his without wearing at least one skin."

His platform in brief:

— Favor greater economy in state's expenditures; it is getting too little for its money. Favor policies that will develop manufacturing in Nebraska to the end that our agricultural products may be converted into finished material, and cost of unnecessary transportation and all superfluous costs and profits eliminated. Favor every practical method of advancing farm interests. Favor expansion of public school system that rural communities may have equal facilities enjoyed by the towns. Favor strict regulation of public service corporations, but not so drastic as to forbid investment. Favor enforcement of all laws. Favor the paramount duty of a chief executive. Favor every method of equalizing advantages between capital and labor. Have paid one million dollars to labor in highest wages. Favor restoration of credit on farm products. Dedicated to every service promising to make Nebraska a better place in which to live.

ESKIMO WHALE DANCE.

When Arctic Natives Feast and Pick Their Life Mates.

A very primitive custom of the natives of the Bering and arctic coasts is the dance of the Eskimos. It is passed down from generations of savage ancestors, is the annual celebration of the whale dance, when the Eskimos select their wives.

When the sun moves southward at the end of the short summer season and the ice closes up the northern coast the whalers come down to open water. Then, in celebration of the season's catch, the ice dweller assemble for the whale dance, which lasts two or three days.

The great dance circle is prepared, and in the center the dancers, both male and female, perform the most curious of evolutions and motions to the accompaniment of rhythmic beating of the tautums and wild chanting. The dance songs tell of the progress of the hunters and of the history of the tribe. The movements of the women are surprisingly graceful, and they must be shown in the dance that, as daughters of a great people, they are possessed of all the qualities such women should have.

The men execute picturesque evolutions of the hunt and go through all the motions of the kill. They spear the ice bear, slay the walrus and seal and, finally, with extraordinary dexterity, vanquish the mighty walrus.

During the last days of the feast, when the time arrives for the selection of husbands and wives, the man who forms his mate dance before the woman he has picked out. In pantomime he promises to provide her generously with the fruit of the hunt, both food and fur. If she is pleased with him she walks out and dances her acceptance and shows how she will "roar" after the whale. When the man dances before each other they are married after the custom of the tribe, and she leads her off to his walrus hide lodge.

During the dance they feast on whale. The skin of the balen whale is not much thicker than the hide of a rubber. The solid bladder between it and the true flesh is usually about four inches thick. The black skin and the bladder, the latter cut into strips, are the most palatable. It is a favor something like that of chestnuts—Yout's Companion.

Prime Numbers. It might appear at first that every number can be divided by some number besides itself and one, but many numbers cannot, and if they cannot they are known as prime numbers. Of all the numbers having a value of less than 1,000, there are 168 such prime numbers. Of these twenty-six are smaller than 100, twenty-one appear between 100 and 200, sixteen between 200 and 300, sixteen between 300 and 400, seventeen between 400 and 500, fourteen between 500 and 600, sixteen between 600 and 700, fourteen between 700 and 800, thirteen between 800 and 900, and fourteen between 900 and 1,000.

His Vacation. A woman had a negro cleaning her yard for her. His wife had been dead for several months, and he had just secured a favorable moment and proceeded to sound him. "John," she said, "you're a good fellow, and I wish you would be glad to have you. Why don't you get a wife?" "John," she said, "you're a good fellow, and I wish you would be glad to have you. Why don't you get a wife?"

Natural Objection. "Why won't that rich old circus-goer let his young wife act in amateur theatricals?" "Because the last time she took part everybody raved about the way she acted a merry widow part."—Baltimore American.

CURE FOR OLD AGE

Easy and Pleasant and Costs but a Little to Try It.

A GOOD WAY TO CHEAT DEATH.

The Prescription is to Mix Open Air and a Hobby, Shake Well and Take as Many Hours a Day or Night as Possible—The Cure in Real Life.

Old age can be cured. The prescription is a simple one: Mix open air and a hobby, shake well and take as many hours a day as possible. No one begins to age until he is bored, and the first gray hair comes when a man suddenly thinks to himself, "What's the use?" Then is the time when a hobby makes life interesting again.

There was an official on one of our great railroads who was retired at seventy. "I'll die now," said his friends kindly. But he didn't. Instead, he became interested in the wild flowers, and now he is too busy in looking for the rarer and rarer and trying to find a new station for the herb's tongue fern and tramping around in the woods and fields in all kinds of weather even to think of dying. Anyway, he would not have time until he's finished his monograph on the willows of the United States.

There is a woman in Baltimore, seventy-two years old, who years ago sought to forget a great sorrow by reading the histories. Her city home has become a rendezvous for ethnologists all over the world and her collection is famous. While her contemporaries are doing their three-wraps caps and easy chairs she spends her summers in the mountains and her winters in Florida with a butterfly net. Her hobby has saved her from death, her contribution to the lepidoptera, and she plans to live until the last goal of an entomologist is reached—the raising of her single tailer species.

An octet of men in Philadelphia, all well past their threescore years, some in business and some foot loose, belong to the same ornithological society. They are adeid every day of the year, rain or shine, to watch the ever changing bird life. In the winter they prepare inkprint sheets showing the arrivals of the hundred odd migrants that pass through every place every year. They are as great strivers as to who shall score the most warblers or identify the largest number of birds in one day. At present writing the oldest of them is seventy-eight years old, and he is one to grow wiser every day.

A man in North Carolina by the sudden death of two of his family was left alone with but little money and few friends and the cheering dictum from his doctor that he had only a year to live. To while away the few months still left he took up as well as his own household expenses he took up the study of "edible mushrooms." At the close of a year in the open he notified his indignant physician that he had become too much interested in his hobby to confirm his diagnosis. In ten years he has discovered, classified and listed 170 kinds of edible mushrooms and has published a book which is one of the standard authorities for mushroom eaters of the world.

Another septuagenarian attributes his long life to the stars. Confined to business during the day, he sought the open air at night and began to study the changing constellations and the perplexing planets. Then he found that with an opera glass he could detect their colors and revealed in their blue light of Vega, the green glare of Sirius, the rose red of Aldebaran, the flame color of Betelgeuse, and the strange shades of other gleaming sky kings. Finally he bought a small telescope. For, as he says, he has published a monograph on the double stars, besides a quaint little star guide that has interested thousands in his hobby.

None of the science studies requires much money or time. A cheap illustrated guidebook, an opera glass and, if possible, some walls and talks in an expert, and you will learn almost immediately to identify a score or more of flowers, or birds, or constellations, and you will have found a hobby on which you may ride away from death.

"Try it, young men, lest you grow old. Try it, and you will be better equipped to escape into the open from these narrow indoor days and learn the way to where the wild folk dwell. In their and you will find the best of the hills and hope wide as the world, and strength, and youth, and happiness."—Samuel Scoville, Jr., in Lippincott's.

Across the Atlantic. The narrowest part of the Atlantic between Brazil and Guinea, where the ocean is only about 1,800 miles wide. From Newfoundland to Ireland, the narrowest breadth of the ocean, is nearly twice as far. From New York to the nearest point of France is nearly three times as far.

The Lesser Evil. "It's Mr. Borelight. I think I'll send him word I'm out." "Won't the still, small voice reproach you?" "Oh, yes, but I'd rather listen to the still, small voice than to Mr. Borelight's."—Boston Transcript.

The most deadly foe to success in the future is the inertia which springs from dissatisfaction in the success of the past.

The Labeled Children of Old Canton. The crowded water front of the old Canton of a century ago, with its thronging sampans alive from stem to stern with swarming children, is vividly pictured in the "Memoirs of William Hickey." In his account of the innumerable boats that covered the river for miles after mile Mr. Hickey is pictured as a novel device of protecting the children of the distant city from the dangers of the water. Each child wore a large vegetable something like a gourd or pumpkin fastened to its back. The vegetable was buoyant, of course, and, if the infant fell overboard, floated it until the child was picked up by his parents or the occupants of any other sampan that happened to be near. This vegetable life preserver had the name and station of the sampan to which it belonged cut in Chinese characters upon it, and by that means the rescuers could at once identify the child; otherwise in such a multitude of boats great confusion would have arisen. It scarcely ever happened that any one was drowned.

Hindulism. In "Myths of the Hindus and Buddhists" says the account of the origin of Hindulism: "Hindulism is, in fact, an immense synthesis, deriving its elements from Hinduism, Buddhism, and incorporating every conceivable motive of religion. The motives of religion are manifold. Earth worship, honor paid to heroes and ancestors, another worship, father worship, prayers for the dead, the mystic association of certain plants and animals—all these and more are included within Hindulism. And each marks a step since the days of the primitive characteristic conglomeration or invasion of races formerly alien to one another. They are all welded together now to form a single system. But it is possible to determine what were some of the influences that have entered into its making."

Guarded Himself Pretty Well. Not many people guard their health so carefully as did Sir Tatton Sykes, who in his youth was a very sportsman when out riding and shied some of them as he became warmer. Prince Potkin, however, took even stronger precautions against illness. If there was a touch of cold in the air he had free lighted in his grounds before venturing into them. One day he was riding in a shower he sheltered himself with an umbrella nearly two feet wide, which came down below his waist and was held up by two long poles. In a very hot weather the prince wore boots coated with oil as a protection against the sun, and he carried a large quantity of vasoline in his shirt front to ward off unpleasant smells.

Too Quiet a Fire. A fire at Colonge is described with true American spirit in "Europe After Sixty." "It was in a feed store near my hotel, and I got there before the firemen. When they came at last, in their tin pot hats, they got out half a dozen big squirts and started spraying the building with them. Then, when it was out, they put the squirts back into their little express wagon and drove away. You never saw and never will see—not a line of hose run out, not an engine puffing, not a gong heard, not a soul lighting up a whoop. It was more like a Sunday school picnic than a fire. I guess if these people ever did have a civilized fire it would scare them to death. But the cover up is all right. Well, what can you expect? A country where all the charwomen are men and all the garbage men are women."

Lincoln's Appearance. Senator Dawes, describing Lincoln's appearance on his morning in his arrival in Washington, told us of his first inauguration, wrote: "I never saw a man so unkempt. His hair was disheveled and his clothes were the ones he had worn on the steamer from Springfield. He was long and angular. It seemed as though his body was made up of component parts of other men's bodies—as though his head were not in the right place. Rough and uncouth, he was a typical backwoodsman. But he was not so. He was something more in his face, something unfathomable."

She Knew Tommy. Mr. Finley, who has been an astronomer since he was a boy, has another story beyond Neptune, which is the most distant of all the planets in our system. "Pluto," he says, "is not so far, nor so faint, if our boy Tommie had you talking about it he'll want to—Tonkers Statesman."

Her Qualification. Father—Now, look here, you girls—you grow up one of you that be able to speak French to her mother German. Brenda—All right, dad, and Marjell had better learn German because she can gargle best—London Standard.

Yes, She Was in a Hurry. Husband—Why did that woman keep you standing at the door for all an hour? Gargolius—Yes—She said she couldn't find the time to come in—London Standard.

"Fervent, my dear, is a diagnosis." "I know that; but, on the other hand, you know it's nothing to brag about either."—Detroit Free Press.

Candidate for Democratic Nomination for County Commissioner for the Third District.

If chosen to serve on the county board, he will use his best judgment in looking after the county's affairs.

Itching piles provoke profanity, but profanity won't remove them. Doan's Ointment is recommended for itching, bleeding or protruding piles. Get it at any drug store.

Candidate for the republican nomination for Governor.

His platform in brief:

— Favor greater economy in state's expenditures; it is getting too little for its money. Favor policies that will develop manufacturing in Nebraska to the end that our agricultural products may be converted into finished material, and cost of unnecessary transportation and all superfluous costs and profits eliminated. Favor every practical method of advancing farm interests. Favor expansion of public school system that rural communities may have equal facilities enjoyed by the towns. Favor strict regulation of public service corporations, but not so drastic as to forbid investment. Favor enforcement of all laws. Favor the paramount duty of a chief executive. Favor every method of equalizing advantages between capital and labor. Have paid one million dollars to labor in highest wages. Favor restoration of credit on farm products. Dedicated to every service promising to make Nebraska a better place in which to live.

THE WEEK WITH THE CHURCHES

St. Paul's Lutheran Church
(Rev. F. E. Blessing, Pastor)
Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The subject of the lesson will be "The Triumphal Entry," Mark 21:1-11.

Episcopal Church
Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The subject of the sermon will be "The Five and Take of Life," Job 1:21. We often hear the question asked: "What is life? What is man's real and deeper life?" This is the question, this the mystery for which man has ever been seeking a satisfying answer. He has tried to search out the mystery of life at its fountain; he has tried to apprehend it in its ultimate destiny; he has tried to fathom its present meaning and significance. To his questioning science and philosophy have given definitions of more or less value; but it the christian religion and word of God which have offered really sufficient and satisfying conceptions of life. Job has given us an insight into life. He makes us see that all of life is not to receive, but there is a give, and as we give so shall we receive. Life is a great bank of deposit; whatever you put in, and the amount put in will determine what you get out. "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away." The evening services will be held on the courthouse lawn.

Those who have not returned their appointment envelopes, please do so as soon as you can. The Sunday school has received the new hymnals, and finds them a great help. The Ladies Aid society will meet at the home of Mrs. Harry McMillan on August 5. A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to worship with us.

First Baptist Church
(Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor)
During the entire past month, our audiences have been large, the warm weather making no noticeable difference. Last Sunday one auto loaded from Norfolk and another from Hartington. We are always pleased to greet visitors, whether from afar or near.

There were about eighty at the special service Sunday evening. As the young people spoke of the worth of the christian college and the power of christian inspiration, all felt the spirit of earnestness in the words. It was a meeting of inspiration and interest. Brother Clarence Linton will preach next Sunday morning in the absence of the pastor. After the union lawn service, the young people will hold their regular meeting. Miss Rue Rickabaugh will have charge of the meeting.

needful class arrangements in her department of the Sunday school. We feel sure more effective work can be done in that part of the school after this change has been made. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening.

German Lutheran Church
(Rev. Rudolph Moehring, Pastor)
No preaching services on Sunday school next Sunday.

Presbyterian Church
(Rev. Alexander Cook, Pastor)
Morning service at 10:30. Sunday school at 12 noon. Dr. Robert Corkey of Monaghan, Ireland, will preach. All are welcome to these services.

Catholic Church
(Rev. William Kearns, Pastor)
Mass Sunday morning at 10:30. Catechism after mass. Benediction at 7:30 p. m.

Methodist Church
(Rev. C. L. Meyers, Pastor)
There will be no services at the Methodist church until August 9, and in the meantime, the church will be thoroughly renovated.

Speaker of the House of Commons.
With all his authority the speaker of the house of commons respects the house and the house respects the speaker. That is the very essence of order in the institution which has won the title of the mother of parliaments. In his book, "The Speaker of the House," Michael Macdonogh describes the origin and romantic history of the speakership. This office, which holds no many pitfalls, is treated as one of great honor and dignity. A salary of $5,000 ($25,000 a year, a palatial residence and a retiring pension of $4,000 ($20,000 a year, with a pension, are the distinctions the nation bestows on the first commoner in England. During the parliamentary session the speaker gives two full dress levees and seven full dress dinners. Of the many student quotations of the office only two, Mr. Macdonogh tells us, survive. A buck and doe killed in the royal preserve at Windsor are annually sent to him, and the Cloth Workers' company of London presents him at Christmas with a generous width of the best broadcloth.

Winter Sleepers.
The bat, tortoise and dormouse are counted among the best winter sleepers. So deep is the lethargy of a dormouse that if this little creature is awakened suddenly and put near a fire his paws begin so slowly that he is lifeless in a few minutes. While asleep he is kept alive by the surplus food which he has eaten in the autumn. Frogs and toads are even sounder sleepers and sleep nearer to a lifeless condition in sleep than any other animal life except certain fish. For in them the heart stops beating and breathing in the ordinary way is impossible. During this time the torpor is carried on through the pores of the skin. These strange cases of torpor are also caused by lack of food during bitter cold. For in countries where excessive heat and drought prevail there are numerous instances of torpor that are quite as profound as that exhibited by the winter sleepers.

Her French Failed.
Mrs. Smith had been a hard student for months and finally concluded that "she knew a little French," she called forth from the hotel in Paris to post a letter. "A poste," she exclaimed triumphantly to the first policeman she met. "Bien, madame. Par ici." He politely conducted her into an office, but to her dismay it was a police station. Rendered speechless by fright and confusion, she could do was to pull her letter out of her pocket and read it. "A la poste," cried the commisaire laughing, and he instructed the officer to take her to the nearest post office. Going along poor, disconcerted Mrs. Smith muttered to herself: "Oh, bother genders! Who'd have thought a police station was a gentleman and a postoffice a lady?"—London Standard.

A Doubtful Compliment.
London Bond, the noted musician, tells the following story against himself: "I went into my club one day, looked into the reading room and saw a great friend of mine talking to one of the ugliest men I have ever seen in my life. My friend called me over and, much to my regret, as I dislike ugly things in life, introduced me to the man in question. He turned out to be quite a decent fellow and put me the usual silly compliments which all professionals receive. I conversed with him about five minutes, and when I had had enough he reiterated the sentiment that he was delighted to have met me, being one of my greatest admirers, and added, 'In any case, Mr. Bond, I was most anxious to know you because I am always being mistaken for you!'—London Globe.

It Was a Savage Animal.
Mr. Fred Ginnett, the English showman, who declares that there is no cruelty involved in the training of performing animals, tells an amusing story of the lion and the lamb that Lord George Sanger trained to appear together. "When the sale of the old showman's menagerie took place the two animals were put up together and were bought by Mr. Ginnett, though by this time the 'lamb,' to say the least of it, was getting rather elderly. A few days after the sale an acquaintance asked Mr. Ginnett how the happy pair were getting on and if they were still fulfilling the Bible phrase about 'lying down together.' "I wish I'd never seen them," said Mr. Ginnett gloomily. "But," remarked the other, "Is he savage?" "Savage isn't the word for it," replied Mr. Ginnett. "But," remarked his friend, "I thought he looked such a mild old lion." "That," interrupted Mr. Ginnett, "lion be blower! It's the lamb I mean. He butts like a battering ram."

THE OLD WAY.
The old time way was sane and simple; when we were sick we took some pills, and cured the rheumatism or pimple, and meagre were our doctor bills. We did not blame the microbe critters for all our ailments, pains and aches; we simply took a dose of bitters, and then we whipped our weight in snakes. My granny, in an old poke bonnet, her form attired in ancient garb, would seek the meadowland, and on it would hunt and find the healing yarb. All noxious weeds that smelled and tasted like something that had long been dead, were much too precious to be wasted; they hung in bunches in the shed. Full often I have had a log on, of bone-set tea, skunk root or sage; my granny brewed the catclan, and I must drink it, or she'd rage. In those old times folks kept on living until they shrunk and blew away; their womenfolk were always giving them cups of yarb tea, day by day. The father lived till he was ninety, nor heard of germs, his long years through; when he was feeling tough, a pint he of bone-set drank, and solace knew. In these modern days microbe, diseases are expensive things: from stomach ache to hydrophobia, they run up doctor bills, by jings.

THE CROOKS.
The people who beat you, horn-swaggle and cheat you, don't profit long from the kale; for folks who are tricky find Nemesis sticky, and never abandons their trail. Two often been cheared; the trick's been repeated so often I can't keep tab; but ne'er has the duffer who thus made me suffer been much better off for his grab. It pays not to swindle; dishonest folk dwindles like snow when exposed to the sun; like feathers in Tophet is burned up the froth of cheating, the crooked man's moon. The people who sting me unknowingly bring me philosophy fresh, by the crate; I don't get cecid; my wrongs will be righted by Nemesis, Fortune or Fate. I know that the stringers—they think they are dingers, and gloat o'er the coin they don't earn—I know they'll be busted, and sick and disgusted, while I still have riches to burn. I'd rather be hollow with hunger than follow the course that the tricksters pursue; I'd rather be "easy" than do as the brazen and consciousness gentlemen do. Far better the shilling you've earned by the sifting of soil than the harder than bricks; then my old-dollar—you manage to collar by crooked and devious tricks.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON.
It's curving and twisty, the pitching of Christy, it bothers the artists who stand at the plate; the ideal of fandom ne'er pitches at random, he uses his brains and he keeps them on straight. The outlook is misty for men facing Christy, and teams hunting pennants get goose eggs instead; for Christy, the clinker, is sudent and thinker; he uses his nose, and also his head. The blue ribbon's his'n—you see how he's risen—his fame has extended from Rutland to Rome; he is the Old Master, who dodges disaster, because when he's working he uses his arm. "Phonons" we've plenty, we're eighteen or twenty, each season, dispensing a big line of talk; but Christy, the clever, it with us forever, because he's the pitcher who uses his block. We can't all be pitchers, for some must be ditchers, and "Phonons" we're scarce—what our jobs, were we sure to be rising to summits surprising, it-always.

Severe Attack of Colic Cured.
E. E. Cross, who travels in Virginia and other Southern States, was taken suddenly and severely with colic. At the first stage he came to the merchant recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it cured him.—No one should leave home on a journey without a bottle of this preparation. For sale by all dealers.

The publisher of the Field's State Gazette, at Wynnewood, Okla., writes us the following letter and permits the publication of same in this grandstand: "The Zensal Co., Oklahoma City, Okla. Gentlemen: At the age of 3 months my little grandson's face and when working, we're using our knobs.

A LOST LAND MARK.
The country editor is passed who used to deftly flay, and wither, with a wordy blast, his rival o'er the way. Gone are the adjectives he piled. We've long been out of print—the adjectives that scared the hide, and had a crimson tint. When I was young, all printers felt that warfare helped their towns; year after year they used to pelt each other with their points. Then "top-cared lepers" were so thick we couldn't call them freaks; and if you chanced to throw a brick, you'd hit six "mangy sneaks. Oh, how "ye printer" ripped and tore in happy days gone by! And off the village Greely wore a head-ache on his eyes. Then printers got along in peace, and loved each other well, and smiling butchers dished the grease and things they had to sell; the tailor didn't waste away, 'cause other tailors sewed; the baker didn't long to have his butter down the road. But how ye printer's heart would bleed because another sheet was run by sway-backed, swivel-kneed, cheap pirates up the street. But now the country editors are quiet, safe and sane; they do not seek for foolery, or swing their clubs in vain. Upon Ye Tripods, day by day, Ye Trenchant Pens they wield; the calm politeness they display would jar Lord Chesterfield.

THE SOREHEAD.
When Grouch goes home, at close of day, from sawing wood or shucking hay, he's in a frame of mind; he roasts the work he has to do, he roasts the housewife, good and true, and says things most unkind. He roasts the grub he has to eat, he roasts the milk for being sweet, the slaw for being sour; and when the meal is done he sits in gloomy state, and throws some fits, and growls hour after hour. The children hush their laughter glad, for if they worry poor old dad, he knows where there's a club; the wife goes round with weary tread, and wishes she had never wed that sort of dismal dud. A wiser man is Billiam Bunn, who, when the long day's work is done, goes home in cheery mood; he chortles, and he cries, "Gee whiz! How good this nifty supper is," as he throws in the food. The children greet him with a yell; they love their daddy passing well, and he loves them some more; his wife sits waiting for a while to give him welcome, and her smile is wider than the door. The humble home where gladness dwells, where kind eyes smile and laughter swells, is heaven, simmered down; but home is like the other place if on disgruntled father's face there hangs a chronic frown.

THE OLD PRAYER.
When the evening shadows fall, oftentimes do I recall other evenings, far away, when, awery of my play, I would climb on granny's knee (long since gone to sleep has she), clasped my hands and bow my head, while the simple lines I said, "Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep." Journeyed long have I since then, in this sad, gray world of men; I have seen with aching heart, comrades to their rest depart; friends have left me, one by one, for the shores beyond the sun. Still the Youth enraptured sings, and the world with gladness rings, but the faces I have known are all gone, and I'm alone. All alone, and the throng, I, who've lived and journeyed long. Loneliness and sighs and tears are the wages of the years. Who would dread the journey's end, when he lives without a friend? Now the sun his life sinks low, in a little while I'll go where my friends and comrades wait for me by the Jasper gate. Though the way be cold and stark, I shall murmur, "I pray, 'Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep.'"

SHUT OFF YOUR WATER; THE STRANDEE IS

Until further notice, water may be used for sprinkling from 5 to 8 in the morning, and from 6 to 8 in the evening.

A special policeman will be put on, and will shut off every one who does not comply with this rule. We are doing the best we can with the old pump, pumping twenty-four hours a day, still there are a lot of people who can't get water for cooking purposes, and WE ARE WITH-OUT FIRE PROTECTION.

It was never intended that the water was to be used for irrigating purposes, or that you should use a hose without a nozzle.

If your plumbing is leaking, have it fixed at once, and so help us to help you. The fire whistle will blow tonight. Don't get caught with your water running, and don't kick if you do.

By order of the council,
J. M. CHERAY,
Water Commissioner.

Safe Home Matches
In the Morning Post, published in London, in 1788, appeared this, the first match advertisement ever published.

In the 125 years that have slipped by since this advertisement was printed, extraordinary changes have taken place in the manufacture of matches.

The last word in matches is the Safe Home brand. These matches conform with the new Federal law, designed to protect match factory employees, and remove a poison from the reach of children in American homes.

Safe Home Matches don't spark or sputter. Old-fashioned matches did both.
Safe Home Matches burn evenly. Old-fashioned matches burn fitfully—or not at all.
