

NEW LINE OF WORK AT WAYNE STATE NORMAL

SERIES OF TALKS LISTED Lectures Along Practical Lines—Medical Profession Handled

The Wayne State Normal is offering a new line of work this semester, which bids fair to become one of the principal features of the school year. The purpose of the course is two-fold: (1) to arouse and cultivate a bidding interest in industrial activities; and (2) to give the students an appreciation of some of the opportunities the world offers to young men and young women.

The Building Trades and Their Opportunities. The Child in Industry. The Law and Its Opportunities. The Potter Industry. Ready-made Garment Industry.

Medicine and Its Opportunities. Choosing a Vocation. Dentistry and Its Opportunities. Mercantile Business and Its Opportunities. Salesmanship and Its Opportunities.

Teaching and Its Opportunities. Other subjects may be added to the list from time to time. Some of the lectures will be given during the regular chapel period, others in the afternoon, and still others in the evening, to suit the convenience of the lecturers.

The first number of the course was given Friday morning by Dr. E. S. Blair on the subject, "Medicine and Its Opportunities." Nearly the entire audience was present.

travel, of definite work and regular pay. There are opportunities in the medical profession for men who like the study of medicine, but do not care to practice, and these opportunities are rapidly increasing.

NORMAL BALL TEAM IN THREE ENGAGEMENTS

Coach C. U. Keeley and the first basketball team returned Tuesday evening of last week after filling a three-engagement basketball schedule with other institutions of the state.

The following morning the team left for Lincoln. The game of the evening was played with Colorado university at Bethany, Nebraska, five miles from Lincoln.

The game was a close one, but the boys were victorious. Saturday night Omaha university was played at Omaha. Omaha university has a good team. Their gym is very large and this coupled with the kind of an "intercollegiate rules" and the fact that our boys felt the effects of two hard games on as many nights just prior to this, gave the game to Omaha.

THE EXPERIENCE ON A MABOONED TRAIN

Saturday evening, February 13, the Bloomfield train left Wayne at 8 o'clock, about the usual time, and reached Bloomfield Tuesday night, February 16. Between these dates the passengers and train men had a very interesting experience.

and when in the daylight it was seen that they were not far from a farm house, they were offered a warm meal. They were welcomed and enjoyed their breakfast, returning with provisions, a few blankets and lap robes to the car. On Monday "brakeman" walked to Wausa, returning in the evening with a sled holding a ham, a few dozen eggs and other food.

Monday, as always, was washday and though the difficulties were great, the task of washing handkerchiefs was accomplished. The one thing that is most desired is always that which is not to be had, so those people wanted to work more, than they wanted any other thing on earth.

Help came Tuesday afternoon—a snowing train and snow plow, and it was a delighted group of people that were finally taken back to Wausa.

When the train at last left with the assurance that they would reach Bloomfield, the weary train arrived at Omaha about 11 o'clock.

COUNTY TEACHERS HOLD FIRST MEETING HINDERED BY BAD ROADS

Attendance Not So Large as Usual—Program Interesting and Instructive.

The first meeting of the Wayne county teachers for the year was held in the district court room Saturday, Feb. 20. Owing to the almost impassable condition of the roads, the attendance was not so large as it otherwise would have been.

After the invocation by Rev. A. S. Buel, a young ladies' quartet consisting of Misses Fernie and Frances Oman, Miss Helen Main and Miss Iretta Johnson favored the audience with a selection, followed by a reading by Miss Marie James of Carroll.

Miss Clara Burson then read a thoughtful paper in which she emphasized the advantages of co-operation of parents and teachers.

Superintendent Gerald Cross followed with a talk on the topic "Are Our Children Eighth Grade Pupils Fitted for High School Work?" Mr. Cross expressed the opinion that most rural students are deficient in English and are thus hampered in high school.

Dean H. H. Hahn of the Wayne State Normal discussed the subject, "Social Demands Upon Classroom Methods." In the course of his remarks, he said that the chief aim of classroom work in any subject should be to create in the minds of pupils a desire to know more about their subject.

Superintendent O. R. Bowen spoke of some of the difficulties in school discipline, and suggested methods of meeting them.

In the afternoon, A. V. Ford, rural inspector, addressed the association on the subject, "Sunshine in the Teaching Profession," in which he stressed the importance of being "the subject." Moving Picture Shows and Our Children, was ably handled by Mrs. J. G. Mines. She pointed out instances in which educators have appropriated moving pictures, resulting in a violation of the principle that if moving pictures are to be made educational it will be because of a demand on the part of the public.

In the absence of Superintendent A. S. Bower of Sholes, Rev. S. X. Cross of Wayne, gave a few timely criticisms on the public school system as he sees it, and made some valuable suggestions for its improvement.

Miss Mable Dayton discussed "Efficiency in School Work." From a study of opinions expressed by parents and educators, and her own observations, she made the conclusion that the great need is that of making work of the school practical. She also made some valuable suggestions as to how some features of school work can be vitalized.

The program was sponsored by a vocal solo by Donald Gildersleeve, music by the fourth grade of the Wayne high school and a reading by Miss Edna McVicker.

Bright of the State Normal went to Genoa Wednesday to deliver an address at a patrons' meeting. Miss Ruby Hughes, who teaches at Wakefield, came to her home at Wayne Monday evening, returning Tuesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Curran of Randolph, were in Wayne between trains Tuesday on their way to their home from Sioux City. Mrs. Frank Davis, who spent a few days with her sister, Miss Pearl Sewell, at Wayne, returned Tuesday to her home at Carroll.

Conrad Jacobson, formerly of Wayne, now principal of the Dakota City schools, has been elected principal of the Beaman schools for next year, succeeding Ben Robinson, formerly at the head of the Sholes schools, this county. It is understood that Mr. Robinson will quit teaching and go to farming. Mrs. W. M. Orr who was called to Albion on account of the illness of her daughter, Miss Neva, reports that her condition is improving. Miss Orr teaches at Albion, and was taken sick last week, threatened with pneumonia. Friends will be pleased to know that she is now on the way to recovery.

Harvey Ringland, the advisability and practicability of building a parish house was discussed. The church is in urgent need of a suitable place in which to hold the various social gatherings. The subject of the morning sermon next Sunday will be "Walking With God." The evening theme will be "The First Institution." The public is cordially invited to attend any or all of the services of the church. Announcement will be made next Sunday evening in regard to a series of meetings which we hope to be able to begin about March 28. The first number of the new church bulletin will be ready for you by next Sunday morning. The bulletin, "Remember," is in the shape of a neat little folder which can be mailed in an ordinary envelope. There will be 200 for distributheme will be "Palm Sunday—the Day of Triumph." The theme for the evening message will be "Winning the Fight Against Drink." The Sunday school and church services have been well attended considering the inclement weather. We are expecting a decided increase in all departments, however, as soon as the weather permits. The new financial plan adopted by the church for this year is working splendidly so far. We hope that even the bad roads will not prevent the contributors from sending in their contributions, thereby enabling the church to meet all bills as they become due. The cash basis is a splendid business principle even for a church. Brother C. A. Grothe is the newly elected secretary and treasurer of the church benevolence. Some new song books with music arranged for male voices have recently been added to the collection of church music, and we will expect to hear some good things from the men occasionally. The Epworth Leaguers have decided to hold their bible study class on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Anyone desiring to do so is invited to join the class next Sunday. This course selected is "Studies in the life of Christ," as outlined by Rev. Prof. J. H. Ingram in "The Prince of the House of David." Luther League at 6:45 p. m. Evening worship at 7:45. The subject for the sermon for Sunday morning will be "Faith that Overcomes," Matt. xv, 21-28. One of the most interesting scenes in the life of Christ, is the one which took place near the coasts of Tyre and Sidon: when the woman of Canaan came to Him asking for mercy. Though there were a great many things standing between this woman and the God of mercy, yet she did not hesitate to come; she was not discouraged. Her faith was strong and by her great faith she overcame." The subject of the evening sermon will be "Satan's Old Saw," Job ii. "There will be special music at both services. This special season of the church year—Lent—should be one very dear to the heart of every Christian, for it is during this season that we are privileged to conduct in a special manner, the great feast of our Kingdom—Easter. We earnestly and tenderly welcome this season of prayer and meditation. It is a time of getting closer to Him, who is our Redeemer. During this season every church member should be more active for the People's Society of Christ and Church, for certainly we are in need of more men and women in His work and serving Him. We are planning to close this season with a week of meetings, from Palm Sunday until Easter Sunday. The Young People's Society is taking definite steps to secure a new organ for the church. Help them in their efforts. The catechetical class will meet in the study of the church on Saturday afternoon at 2.30. Choir rehearsal Thursday evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to worship with us.

There will be no Sunday school. MEXICAN DESPERADO IS KILLED BY POSSE Scribner, Neb., Feb. 20.—Ignacio Gonzales, Mexican desperado, who murdered Detective Tom Ring in a rooming house at 401 North Fifteenth street as the latter was about to arrest him on February 10, was shot to death by a posse a mile and a half southeast of this place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Gonzales had used up all his ammunition and arose from behind a log to surrender, when a bullet caught him in the breast and lodged him over backwards. Detective Charles VanDusen, running mate of the man whom the Mexican had slain, was closest to him at the time and was ready to take him prisoner when the steel-jacketed ball beat him "charley" over the top. The hunted desperado was saying when the bullet came. VanDusen had him covered with a rifle suspecting treachery when the end came. The Mexican died, as he was being put on the wagon headed for this place. BILLY SUNDAY.

"His language jars the world's soul; his methods split some sects and cuts, he springs a slangy rigmarole—but Billy Sunday gets results. He uses club and monkey wrench to knock the sinners off their pins; he drags them to the minister's bench and makes them shake their soiled sins. This Sunday isn't orthodox," the old line clergyman declares, "for like an auctioneer he talks, and mixes argot with his prayers. He is ladylike at all, and his success is due, I talk to empty pews while he makes legions with his knee." Still Billy follows up his plan, with Peter's business undimmed, he talks to you as man to man, and speaks the language of the street. At least his voice, like a trumpet ring—and know while truths around you whiz, religion is a vital thing, that you are needing in his biz. "No doubt you go to hear and scoff, or while some idle hours waste, but when he reels his sermons off, you join the push and snarl and pray. Perhaps he isn't so refined as you would like, but what's the odds? He makes old Satan get behind, and makes men tired of phoney gods."

INCOME TAX.

"Gosh! I'll have to make report of my earnings, every cent, to the cold official clam who collects for Uncle Sam. And my nerves are on the blink, as I fill my pen with ink, and prepare to fill the blank with some scribble from the banks; for I hear the Preacher say, "Be as honest as the day! In your age or in your youth, never jump upon the truth! Though temptations you beset, Truth is still the one best bet! You would profit by a lie, it will wing you by and by! When your falsehoods are unloosed, they will home-ward come to roost! Tell the truth, whatever the cost! Falsehood always is a frost." So I sit here in my den, and I sadly chew my pen, for I know not what to do—does that trouble trouble you? I could beat old Uncle Sam, fond of fiction as I am; I could fill this blooming blank with some figures lean and lank, which would scarcely represent more than thirty-nine per cent of the coin I have earned in the good old year that's passed. But the Preacher says, he's "From the taradiddle fiddle! Do not stoop to tell a lie—it will wear you to and by!" What's a weary soul to do—does this trouble trouble you?"

WAR EVERLASTING.

The daily papers tell about the war, give all the news—that's what they're printed for. They're full of tales of dramatic, stern and sad, and lists of dead from this or that, or they tell how French has wisely won his troops, or how the Turks, defeated, leave their coops. All news that's fresh the daily papers yield, for if they take o'er every every crimson field, there come the news, with their stories, their high-winded, written, thrashing ancient straw; the yarns with which the daily prints are through, are re-arranged and handed us as news. And when the news is staled as last year's beans, it's worn again by monthly magazines, and now all authors, in their cozy dens, oil their machines and fill their fountain pens, and write of war, and all their coming books will smask of blood and guns and army cooks. Their plots they'll glean from stories you have read, like coroners they'll "shoot above their dead," and every page will speak of dying groans, and every chapter treat to dead men's bones. War has more evils of the soldier knows when he's shot by or when he shoots his foes. The stories must suffer just as well and sigh with one who knew, "Ah, war is hell!"

BE JOYFUL.

You'd better be joking than kicking or croaking; you'd better be saying "Amen" than saying "Amen," will cross you and praise you and bless you, and say you're a peen and a broth of a boy. You'd better be cheery, not drooping and dreary, from the time you get up till you go to your couch; if people will let you and roasts and berate you—they don't like the man with a hang-over growth. You'd better be leaving the groaning and grieving to men who have woes of the genuine kind; you know that your troubles are fragile as bubbles, they're but the growth of a colicky mind. You'd better be grinning while you have your inning, or when a real trouble is racking your soul, your friends will be growling, "He always is howling—he wouldn't touch you with a two-ty-four point. You'd better be pleased, not if sorrow is present, there's no use in chafing it fast to your door! far better to show it, and hoot and pursue it, and then it may go and come back never more.

FIGHTER AND FARMER.

The warrior in armor is slaying follow-on, the while the peaceful farmer goes forth to plow again. All through the day the former is watching shot and shell and making Europe warmer than age the gates of Hades. Mo. And all day long the latter is wrestling with the soil, and makes the welkin datter with a sound of useful toil. The farmer cleans his horses, and gathers luscious eggs, and the soldier's making corpses, and wounding people's legs. The farmer fills his mangers with good and wholesome food, the soldier hatches strangers for thirteen cents a day. The farmer "sets" his biddy, and leads a useful life, the soldier leaves a widdy where was a happy wife. The farmer props the nation and builds the smiling town, the soldier carries his nation by burning buildings down. The man who lives on danger, and leaves a trail of woe, looks cheap beside the plunger whose weapon is the hoe. The soldier with his saber should be ashamed to see the peaceful man who labor to raise the corn and wheat.

POOR OLD MEXICO.

Through Mexico grim death goes skating in spite of all our watchful waiting. Where once the farmer did his haying, cheap generals are busy slaying; and if a citizen's too foolish, wrong-headed, stubborn, vain and mulish, as to indulge in useful labors, they slice his person with their sabres. No merchants now do advertising, and from the mills no smoke is rising, the mines where once they dug for riches are empty and deserted ditches; and everywhere, in all directions, the brigands make their foul collections, and if the victim cannot pay 'em, they deal in arson and mayhem. Cheap tax men and tax the mouthful the law againsts day they flourish; and in three shakes we see them headed for deep denimation double-headed. A villa's still immersed in slaughter, crime is his handmaid and his daughter, and Colonel this or that Amherst's pushing bayonet through his brother, Carranza is bungling, botching—oh, the blessed results of Warful Watching!

Our Policy of Publicity

Some corporations say: "What's the use of trying to advertise—what's the use of telling the people anything? They won't listen to what a corporation has to say?"

Don't you believe it! Most people are fair, broad-minded and unprejudiced.

The public can be awfully wrong at times, but it is usually because they have received wrong information.

This company has been criticised time and again in years gone by, but we are not complaining. We should have furnished the public more complete information about our business.

Today—our policies and our problems, our revenues and our expenses, everybody about our business—we tell the public.

We are a public service corporation and the public deserve to know what we are doing and why we are doing it.

Then we are willing to place our case squarely up to them. They are the fairest jury we have ever known.

We want the people to know all about our business, because we want their confidence and good-will.

It means more business, less trouble, more happiness.

We have the utmost faith in the sense of justice and fair play of the American people. We believe that they want to give square corporations a square deal.

The number of people engaged in growing pure bred stock in Wayne county increases from year to year. That it costs no more to raise pure bred animals than any other kind is a forefearful argument in favor of the former, and that profit is far greater on registered varieties is no doubt.

It has been often said, and it is now as true as ever, that some men and women are just children grown tall. Often an adult, educated and experienced of usual stature, we find the same traits, the same mental normal head and average bust measure will say and do things for which prompt apology would be offered in behalf of a youngster in school he would be similarly guilty.

Complaint is made that eastern educational institutions have been exploring Nebraska fossil fields and robbing them of their fossil remains, and an effort is being made to stop the practice. Any fossils not obtained by the eastern university are assumed that they are alive, are not included in the proposed protective measure, as the Herald understands, and may be taken out of the state, and kept out, according to the will and pleasure of students of geology.

February will soon disappear, to the joy of all concerned. While not so cold as December or January, February has reeled out a series of blizzards and snowdrifts unparalleled for many years. As remembered that the sun struggled into view on groundhog day, and on one or two subsequent occasions. The rest of the time when it wasn't cold enough to snow, the circumference of walking around the town in fog. Roads have been blocked with snow or rendered nearly impassable by mud and slush, and consequently people came to town only when driven by necessity, which wasn't often. Likely caused by snow at rate-wetness and rain of rare chills, more colds, coughs and grip than usual prevailed. Few serious cases have been reported, however, the February supply of disease having been apparently exhausted to encompass the greatest epidemic of people that power of attack was weakened and usual severity prevented. Indeed, February has seemed to have gone the limit as an extraordinary month.

The government of the United States is plainly doing its best to avoid trouble with any one of the warring European nations, and will of course continue to do so. America's neutral policy is likely to seem biased, but wrong way to one who is himself biased. To avoid this, the individual the government would not seem neutral unless it appeared distinctly partial to the nation he favored. We have enough confidence in the integrity of American statesmen to believe they will do their utmost to maintain strict neutrality and avoid becoming involved in a foreign war. There is no doubt that government heads are moving cautiously in handling a very delicate situation, and that serious complications will not follow unless European nations are determined to draw us into their fight. Citizens of the United States should be thankful that they live under a government that is putting forth every effort known to international diplomacy to avoid becoming involved, a government that is manifestly for peace and is anxious to assist in bringing peace and order out of the European chaos. Every citizen should defend and encourage the government in its neutral policy by which it will ultimately perform a great service to the world.

Careless disregard of seemingly little, though, in fact, very important things is a barrier to usefulness and success. Failure to properly sense responsibility and fully handle little duties, involved by it shatters confidence, depreciates worth and is a guarantee that one will plug along precariously at the tail-end of the procession. Indifference to obligations, often amounting to ainine stupidity, frequently leads to loss on the one hand, and ruined prospects on the other. The first of the week the office building of the Des Moines Register and Leader was caused to burn by a lighted cigarette carelessly thrown by a boy on the floor of the mailing room, involving a loss between $200,000 and $300,000. Who would want to employ a boy guilty of such a senseless thing? Of course he didn't mean to do it. He just didn't think. The careless fire on the farm leaves the find open and horses or cattle find their way to the corn. Some of them die from over-feeding. He may forget to take the harness off a team. He may forget to milk all the cows or feed all the pigs. He may thoughtlessly drop a lighted cigarette or cigar stub in the haymow. His mind is engrossed in affairs apart from duty, and he has to be watched and cautioned continually by a more thoughtful and responsible head. He means well, no doubt, but just forgets, and therefore isn't worth much to his employer. A store clerk forgets to close a showcase, forgets to shut a door, forgets to turn off a faucet, neglects to put goods back on the shelf, overlooks closing the draft of a stove that is too hot or opening the draft of one that is too cold. He is just a stupid mule, who neither by inheritance nor training became a thinking man, but who forgets after little things, and therefore he is of no value to the institution employing him, and unless the importance of care for little things is so impressed on his mind that he will think through his practice, he will drag through his life known as unreliable and untrustworthy, and he will not succeed appreciably in any line of endeavor. Boys should early learn to think what they are doing and master triumphantly every responsibility assumed. Then we would have more efficient and successful men, and fewer failures due to the reprehensible weakness of forgetting.

PASSING OF ANOTHER NEBRASKA PIONEER

Benjamin Welbaum died at the home of his son, W. L. Wilbaum, in Wayne Monday, Feb. 22 at 7 o'clock P. M., at the advanced age of 87 years, 6 months and 12 days. Funeral services were held in the Baptist church Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 23, conducted by the pastor, Rev. B. P. Richardson, with interment in the Wayne cemetery. Obituary.

Benjamin Welbaum was born in Montgomery county, Ohio, August 10, 1827.

When a young man he moved into Indiana, and there March 24, 1850, was married to Miss Martha Moses. After living in Indiana for about twenty years they drove across the country to Van Buren county, Iowa. In 1876 they moved to the western part of the state and in 1888, the family came to Nebraska, settling on the old homestead, four and one-half miles east and north of Wayne. On this farm they lived until last summer, when they came to Wayne to make their home.

For several years Mr. Welbaum had been greatly failing in health, but not till last May did he become bedfast. Since then his strength gradually went from him, and early Monday morning the spirit left the worn-out tabernacle of flesh, and entered the eternal realm.

In his death, one of the few pioneers of the west—men who knew frontier life from actual experience with its real problems—has been taken away.

Into his home eleven children were born, seven of whom survive him. For forty four years ago his wife was called away. The children who survive are: Ira Welbaum, Butte; Lewis Welbaum, Marshall, Wyo.; John Welbaum, Marshall, Wyo.; Jake Welbaum, Wayne; W. L. Welbaum, Wayne; Benjamin Welbaum, Butte; Mrs. Carrie Williams, Lynch. All were present at the funeral except the sister who could not reach here on account of snow blockade.

His children, he leaves four grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

The character developed by Mr. Welbaum was such as life in early days would develop in the man who met the problems and hardships of pioneer life. He was honest, hard-working, willing to share with others what he had willing to do his part in the struggle of life. Men of his type know what hard work is, know what it is to face and meet life's practical responsibilities. It is because these herges of early days were willing to undertake the development of our storm-swept prairies and build their homes on them, that today we have a developed community.

We of a younger generation today are rich in the fruits of the untiring labors of our fathers. As we enjoy the heritage they have handed down to us, let us occasionally pause long enough, at least, to lay a flower upon the casket of one of this number. If our generation can understand and carry out its fortunes with that same undaunted spirit, then characterized the pioneers, there will be no doubt about the results.

Except the sister who could not reach here on account of snow blockade. His children, he leaves four grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

HOOKING A SHARK. EXTRACTS FROM THE HERALD EXCHANGES

Fairbury News: Four times the Kansas legislature has rejected the initiative and referendum, and each time by an increased majority. And yet," says the Kansas City Journal, "there was a time when Puffer and Jeffrey, Simpson and Mary Ellen Chase had everything their own way in Kansas."

Omaha Bee: "The former British ambassador to the United States, Viscount Bryce, expresses the hope that the present strife 'will rid the world of the worst evil of the human race, war. If this does not cure us, nothing will.' Among the forces to be employed to that desirable end is less glorification of war in his- tory and fewer public monuments glorifying warriors."

St. Paul News: "Mr. W. W. Vaught mentioned in the following paragraph from the Chicago Herald was formerly Mr. E. H. Young and an ally of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. MARTEL AND POITIERS.

The Mail and Battle That Saved Europe From the Saracen Yoke. A traveler approaching the city of Poitiers, France, would hardly believe that it was around the site of that small city that the battle which saved all Europe from the Saracen yoke was fought. The man who commanded the French in that great battle was Charles, who afterward received the surname Martel, "the hammer," from his very prowess in that battle.

He battled the Saracen invasion by his great victory at Poitiers. The Saracens had mastered all Asia and conquered Spain. Nothing could withstand their arms, and the Crescent bore death and desolation before it wherever it went. The Mohammedans were determined to conquer all Europe in the name of the Prophet. Spain had fallen, and France was next. The two halves of the battle which saved Europe bloody, for the Saracens had the prestige of former victories and the advantage of numbers; France had the courage of Martel. The Saracens were wiped back—a broken power. This victory saved Europe from want and desolation, for the Saracens had never suffered anything sooner than embrace Mohammedanism. The great champion of Christianity died nine years after his famous triumph at Poitiers and died in the year 741—Irish Hero.

Force of Drops of Water. It seems almost incredible that so small a thing as a drop of rain should be the propeller of a revolution. Let such be the case. At so great a speed does the propeller revolve—1,200 revolutions a minute as a matter of open fact—a rain drop hits it with such enormous force as to chip a piece of the wood away. Some idea of the hardness entailed by flying through the air at sixty miles an hour may be gathered from the fact that an aviator who recently went through such an experience, slightly with the edge of his helmet, instead of the helmet, has been gnawed by rats. The rain drops had chipped pieces out of the helmet's surface—then the assistance—due to the force with which they hit against his flesh—London Spectator.

Antiquity of "A Regular Shindy." The antiquity of many familiar terms is surprising when it is known. Many people are not aware that "what-the-dickens" occurs in Shakespeare, but fewer still will be prepared to hear that the phrase "a regular shindy" is found in an author's note in a book called "The Popish Kingdom," published in 1701. A writer quotes this note, which refers to the returning of Maulie Thursday, "Midnight services are held for church, the lights are put out, and a regular shindy follows, men being beaten and wounded."—London Globe.

Fine Language. As a rule the edited matter of West Africa, like his father-in-law, loves high-toned language. A clerk one time ago sent a report complaining that the cartons of the police at his station offer mischief. This is how he put it: "It is ridiculous to report that the enormous of the police when pointed at the firmament refuse to give explosive words."—London Saturday Review.

Of the Past. Geologists say that several species of man have entirely disappeared from the world. Doubtless the lost species include the nice old gentleman who used to pull out his boots at an evening with the help of the boot-lack.—Chicago News.

The Fourth Estate. The expression "fourth estate" was first used by Thomas Carlyle and was applied to the editors during the period of the French revolution.

Impudent. Registrar—How old are you, madam? She—I've been nineteen summers, sir, otherwise—How long have you been buried?—Brooklyn Eye.

Some Don'ts

For Stomach and Liver Sufferers

Don't take medicine for your Stomach ailments morning, noon and night, as usually such medicines only give temporary relief and simply digest the food that happens to be in the stomach.

Don't permit a surgical operation. There is always serious danger in operations and in many cases of Stomach, Liver and Intestinal Ailments the knife can be avoided if the right remedy is taken in time.

Don't get around with a foul-smelling breath caused by a disordered Stomach and Liver, in the discomfort of those you come in contact with.

If you are a Stomach-sufferer, don't think you can not be helped; probably serious cases than yours have been permanently restored by Myers' Wonderful Remedy.

Most Stomach ailments are mainly caused by a catarrhal condition. Myers' Wonderful Remedy not only removes these irritations but also assists in removing the entire alimentary and intestinal tract, antacidities. This is the secret of its marvelous success.

Don't suffer constant pain and agony and allow your stomach ailments to physically undermine your health. No matter how severe your case may be or how long you have suffered, one dose of Myers' Wonderful Remedy should convince you that you can be restored to health again.

Myers' Wonderful Remedy has been taken and is highly recommended by Members of Congress, Justice-also Surgeons-General, Doctors, Lawyers, Merchants, Bankers, Clergymen, Druggists, Nurses, Manufacturers, Priests, Ministers, Scientists and people in all walks of life.

The Horse Thief

How He Was Saved.

By M. H. WORSLEY.
Copyright by Frank T. Munsey Co.

The winter had broken earlier than usual, and between the narrow paths of civilization and the black stretched a waste of gleaming snow. As the first snow fell behind the shack, hauling the brushwood after her, the soft yet distinct padded pad of a runner's feet in the snow caused her to throw her head back and listen intently.

Slowly the girl, her face almost as white as the snow, dropped the brushwood and crept into the shack, and her fingers felt for the bolts on the door. But she was too late! She's arm was thrust into the opening between the door and the jamb. She pushed the door with all her strength, but did not utter a word. She was afraid to make a fighting chance; the man groaned. She stepped back.

"The sheriff! Hide me!" She knew she was safe quickly as the shouting of a dozen men was heard. "Get behind that curtain. I'm going to fight the bang. Don't move or get skinned into shooting!"

"No tricks, mind!" said the man. "This isn't a kid's game I'm playing. I've got you covered, and if you give them so much as a wink—"

A thundering at the door closed his mouth. He stepped quickly behind the curtain of air half an inch in height, affording him a view of the scene at the door. The girl lit the lamp, then carefully searched the boots.

The man at the door leaped lightly from his saddle and poitedly raised his hat. His companions drew back their horses and waited.

"I apologize for having disturbed a woman at this time of night, but we're looking for an outlaw by the name of Joe Gregar. 'Lifted' a horse some miles back and not the first by a good many. He's given us a mighty good run for the money, but I reckon we've tired him."

"You're the new sheriff, aren't you?" There was biting irony in her voice. "I've got you covered, and if you give them so much as a wink—"

"I hope that Brute lick, whoever be, will have half my luck." "I hope so," she whispered. "He deserves it."

"You seem to know something about Brute," he said. "She was sitting on the side of the shakedown, and her eyes met his fairly and squarely."

"I know that he's never had a square jaw if the wind ever makes a horse's head." "He's married, isn't he?" "So I've heard."

"A wealthy woman?" "Wealthy—but she isn't much of a woman. He was a good and straight man when she left him."

"And then she took to horse lifting?" "In all his life he's taken one horse, although he's been blamed for many."

"Was there another man in the trouble between him and his wife?" "So they say," she answered. "Is Brute looking for him?"

"A man can't afford to take the law into his own hands when he's got a wife."

"A sick child!" And she nodded in the direction of the shakedown. "His own little boy. Hasn't been riveted on hers."

"Do you mean to say that she—she is Brute's fourth child?" "Yes," said the woman deliberately. "Where is he?"

"He has gone to fetch the doctor."

"What?" "A sick child!" And she nodded in the direction of the shakedown.

"The man looked to his feet. His eyes were riveted on hers."

The Scrap Book

Juliet Got the Light. At a small square table a star across the third magnitude appeared in the sky.

"I don't do justice to myself," she said to the manager. "If I do not have a chance thrown on me when I appear before the balcony."

"We will get no intelligible music, but I think we could get a fine ship's blue light."

"I replied the obliging manager, and to this the lady agreed."

"The lady who went to the shop to buy the blue light brought back a signal lamp."

"The manager, who was given to him by mistake, the prompter took the lamp in good faith."

"Romeo—He is a great actor, but he is a wretched prompter."

"Juliet appeared promptly in a white mantle."

"But what! What light through the window breaks?"

"This was the match lighting the candles."

"Arise, fair sun, and win the race with us."

"The sun or rather the rock did rise with a terrific hiss. Juliet was knocked off the balcony, the fly-liners were set on fire, and the theater was filled with a sulphurous smoke."

"The audience, which was fortunately a small one, made a stampede to the door."

"Since then 'Romeo and Juliet' has always been looked upon in that town as a dramatic work that could not be witnessed without personal danger."
