REGULAR HOURS

I hit the hay at ten o'clock and then I sleep around the block till half past five. I hear the early robin's voice, and see the sunrise, and rejoice that I'm alive. From the bed and kitchen I see, my breakfast tastes as good to me as any meal; I throw in luscious buck-wheat cakes, and scrambled eggs and sirloin steaks, and breaded veal. And as downtown I go, I see, I see a friend who's gone to waste; "I stayed up late last night," he sighs, and now I have two bloodshot eyes, and dark brown taste; I'd give a piñacito to die. For I'm so full of grief that I can hardly walk. I'll have to leave the drugstore clerks and throw some bromo to my works, or they will balk." But yesterday I saw a man to whom had been attached the can by angry boss; he was sailed all the night away, and then showed up for work by day a tot and gone. I'll turn the nighttime into day, or loaf along the Great White Way, that habit grows; if to the front you hope to keep, you must devote your nights to sleep—I tell you so.

SHINYTOWN

In Shinytown the people cling to their belief that in the spring, all men should rise and clean up alley, yard, and lawn, till every sign of trash is gone—which scheme is wise. In Shinytown they burn old hats, and sticks and rags and bones and cats and skinned trash; all labor for the public weal, with fifty-seven kinds of zeal and not for cash. This town is in a class alone; there flies and germs are quite unknown—year after year, no dirt, no flies, no lice, no louse, and all the fell diseases with them come near. As there are no diseases nigh, the people don't know how to die; death seems a joke; and some one has to shoot them down, when they are tired of Shinytown, and wish to create a village used to have a hearse before it killed the microbe curse long ago; but now, since microbes cause no fuss, they use it for a jitney bus—vents a-catch. This is the village of delight, where all the folks are living right, a cheerful scene; your burg might be like Shinytown if all you men would buckle down, and make it clean.

REIGN OF MUD.

The weather was a thing of dread, week after week, all men complained; the clouds were always overhead, and every other hour it rained. Then ducks and alligators laughed, the bullfrog raised a cheerful sound; the rural postman, on a cart, still tried to make his rounds. There was no bottom to the road; a muddy stream, it struck the eye; six horses scarce could pull a load that one would pull when it was dry. I heard the dismal farmers croak, "We're ruined, if this thing keeps on, already we are nearly broke—the profits of a year are gone." I tried to show that endless rain was what the country needed most; I talked in optimistic strain, the while I leaned against a post. "This is no time for sunshine talk," the farmers said; "it's vain, indeed, while we must watch our starving stock, because we cannot haul in feed. If you turn loose a joyous flood of language, while our hearts are sore, we'll push you head-first in the mud, and you will dance and sing no more." And that's the luck I always have, when up against colossal grief; my sunny words don't seem a salve, my chortling does not bring relief.

THE WALLING PLACE.

In this sad world with griefs beget, the more we howl, the more we're hurt. Misfortunes seem to keep the trail of those who raise the loudest wail. The business men, in pomp arrayed, who own big palaces of trade, and have their millions by the score, don't very often raise a roar. If things go wrong they do not sigh, or show the world a streaming eye. They do not advertise bad luck—that will not draw the patron's look. They advertise the gorgeous fact that they have red-hot bargains snatched all through the store, all sorts and styles; and when you go you're met with smiles. The merchant in yon tin horn store, who's been there thirty years or more, who has a driving streak of goods from the mill, who stands for goods decayed is always at the walling place, he always tears upon his face. The man who aims to get ahead, and not be numbered with the dead, must sound the brave and joyful note, and keep a firm grip on his goat.

SAYING AND DOING.

"Oh, if I had a million dollars," all longingly the poor man bellers, "how I would help poor hungry mortals, and fill their lives with smiles and choruses! I'd spend my five-monthly cess-wages, and that ground the poor men's faces from widows' eyes I'd wipe, the henry, and make all orphans days sunny-shiny." And if in after life he has a million guilders of his riches, to help the poor, he is to spend a single maravedi. "I don't believe in giving money to make the poor ones' lives more sunny," he mutters, with a stern glance; "it spoils their sense of self-reliance. The more you give your hungry neighbor, the less he'll buckle down to labor. He'll think the gods are watching over, to see that he abides in clover. We pauperize the workers, willing by bribing them the unearned shilling. And then we use our enormous taxes—my tax for ever greater waxes—and out of that the town or county should show the poor some kind of bounty." And other platitudes he mumbles, as to the long day, and the long night, and down with clanking roubles, which will relieve no poor man's troubles.

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Wayne. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement: Mrs. Joseph Schmalstieg, Wayne, says: "I was troubled by a heavy dull ache through my kidneys and back and I also had dizzy spells and pain in the head. My symptoms were unnatural and plainly showed that my kidneys needed attention. Doan's Kidney Pills drove away the pains in my back and toned up my system. Since then whenever I have felt in need of a kidney medicine, I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills and they have relieved me. It gives me pleasure to confirm the public statement I gave before endorsing Doan's Kidney Pills." Price 50¢ at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy, get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Schmalstieg had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE ORANGE INDUSTRY.

An easterner in California, noted and incensed by the methods employed in bolstering up the depressed orange industry, cannot say refrain from giving full expression to his feelings. W. S. Goldie, formerly of the Wayne Democrat, now publishing the Journal at Wilmington, Calif., gives his advice to orange boomers:

"Years ago, in the middle states, when corn was slow-sale at 10 cents per bushel, was used for fuel or rotted on the ground; fat hogs worth $175 a hundred and cattle and horses as correspondingly cheap," say the newspapers in those days, "didn't howl until they were black in the face about the 'millions made in corn by the state,' etc. The orange ranch 'business' in Southern California today, is analogous to the cheap corn era in Iowa nearly forty years ago. An orange grove as a revenue producer is some joke—in red ink—and the owner of one is looked upon with sympathy. The crop ripe at present is not sufficient in value to pay taxes on the same. Look at the streets of the Wilmington are crying as we write this item 'fine oranges, 10c a bucket full or 25c a box.'—It is poorer crop than Iowa corn at 8c per bushel. It costs several hundred dollars per acre to nurse an orange grove to the producing stage. In water, fertilizer, fumigating and tillage some $125 per acre a year. Of course, the citrus fruit man 'figures' on $400 and up for his crop but when they bring $120, or even much less, per box in New York, the 'returns' are in 'red ink.' This has been pretty much the condition of the orange business for three or four years—but keep it in mind. The Los Angeles newspapers would have all eastern tourists believe that for every carload of lovely oranges shipped east a carload of gold—for the rancher, of course—comes back! Ingenious and despicable merchants place the fruit on exhibition, marked '50c per doz.' What the Journal wants to know is does this sort of a fraud and coarse misrepresentation get us anything—except the contempt, disgust and cursing of every tourist?"

"It took me such a campaign of lying and untrained boarfulness to put the fertile lands of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas in sturdy hands that wrested a wonderful prosperity from the land. Why not frankly tell all comers that the orange and lemon industry is simply on the bum; that ranches are cheaper today than may ever again be seen in Southern California; that depression is always followed by expansion; to follow the advice of our city Croton," says "Ever since my daughter died, when she had a severe cold and cough by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy two years ago, I have felt kindly disposed toward the manufacturers of that preparation. I know of nothing so quick to relieve a cough or cold." For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

Nothing So Good for a Cough or Cold

When you have a cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to get rid of it with the least possible delay. There are many who consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy unsurpassed. Mrs. J. Borcup, Elida, Ohio, says: "Ever since my daughter died, when she had a severe cold and cough by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy two years ago, I have felt kindly disposed toward the manufacturers of that preparation. I know of nothing so quick to relieve a cough or cold." For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

A Cure for Sour Stomach

Mrs. Wm. M. Thompson, of Battle Creek, Mich., writes: "I have been troubled with indigestion, sour stomach and bad breath. After taking two bottles of Chamberlain's Tablets I am well. The tablets relieve severe cold and cough by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy two years ago, I have felt kindly disposed toward the manufacturers of that preparation. I know of nothing so quick to relieve a cough or cold." For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

Maxwell

"The Wonder Car"

You will have only yourself to blame if you are "talked into" buying an "unsuitable" or a "theoretical" Car.

The two commonest mistakes made in buying an automobile are—First, Buying a car not suited to your needs.—Second, Buying a car that has not passed the theory stage.

The first mistake—buying an "unsuitable" car—is perhaps made even less often than the second. But for your own sake study your needs sensibly, just as you study your household needs, and buy a car you can afford to enjoy—a car you will have pride in, and yet one that will not be a "ghost of reproach" to your good sense.

The second mistake—buying a "theoretical" car—is perhaps the sadder mistake of the two—because when you have made this mistake, you have on your hands some engineer's or designer's untried theory, instead of a tried, known, successful car. And you have paid a price that, put in the right car, would never have been a reproach—but would have bought an automobile of real pride and joy.

It is because we see these two mistakes being constantly made—because we see sensible people being constantly talked into these "automobile fiascos" that we boast so much about the record of the car we sell—The Maxwell.

38,000 happy satisfied Maxwell owners are driving 38,000 handsome streamline Maxwell Cars to-day—at an up-keep cost that any man of any standing can afford, and at an original cost that is simply a practical investment.

200 Maxwell Cars Every Day

Twelve hundred a week, five thousand a month. That is the actual output of "The Wonder Car" right now and constantly increasing.

Not bare promises that cannot be kept, but actual deliveries to Maxwell Dealers.

Stop! Think a moment. There must be something back of a production so great. There must be the hearty approval and confidence of the public in the car they buy and the car must merit it all.

26 Maxwell cars every hour of the business day. Yes, that is just what the public are buying, and when you order a Maxwell, you get one the day you want it.

Back of each Maxwell stands one of the greatest and most efficient organizations in the industry, and one strong enough financially to insure you against the purchase of an "orphan car" and to give you actual deliveries of a wonderful car on the day you want it.

The Maxwell Company's Guarantee of Service to Maxwell Owners

No other automobile is backed by a more reliable service than that guaranteed every Maxwell owner. More than 2,000 Maxwell dealers in every part of this country—are always ready to give expert advice, to make adjustments, and to supply new parts at reasonable prices. This splendid Maxwell dealer service organization is perfected and completed by the chain of Maxwell owned and Maxwell operated Service Branches. Sixteen great Maxwell Service Stations are so located throughout the country that a Maxwell dealer can supply any part for an owner within a few hours if not in his stock. Maxwell Service is one of the great advantages enjoyed by Maxwell owners.

Order a Maxwell from us now, and when you want it delivered, we will give you your car—not an excuse on delivery day
