

JUNIOR CLASS PLAY PROVES SUCCESSFUL

The play "Esmeralda," given by the junior class of the State Normal school...

In this they meet many people among whom are some Americans who plainly see the plans of Mrs. Rogers...

The scene between the marquis and Mr. Rogers is interesting and pathetic...

The play closes with the fortunes of the "little house" in the hands of Mrs. Rogers...

Miss Hicks as Esmeralda left nothing to be desired. As the little country girl...

Miss Oman as "Mother Rogers," was certainly mistress of the situation...

Mr. Main as Esteban, gave an "atmosphere" to the play as well as all details connected with it...

Mr. Blivertich as Jack Desmond, the "American" artist, showed the caustic personality...

Thomas Musselman, alias George Drew, the speculator, almost succeeded in getting "Old Man" Rogers...

Ed Schroer, the "foreign" element, and succeeded in showing us just what a marquis should be...

Much credit is due to Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hahn for the play in charge...

Recent visitors were Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Shetler...

The lecture last Friday morning on industrial education was given by Mrs. A. S. Shetler...

The sixth grade is interested this week in the study of the crow...

The eighth grade in their book binding work are making booklets...

The senior class is busy with preparations for the class play...

The first grade is interested this week in the study of the crow...

The physical conditions of factories, however, should improve...

The pupils of the seventh grade are making maps of South America...

The eighth grade, the ranks for the six weeks' term just closed were as follows...

The ninth grade class in agriculture is very much interested in a debate on the question as to whether it is more profitable to rent or to own a farm in Wayne county...

HAVE YOUR WATCH CLEANED OCCASIONALLY

A WATCH will run without oil or cleaning longer than any other piece of machinery—but it needs both occasionally.

If you will consider that the rim of the balance wheel travels over fifteen miles a day, you will not grudge your watch a speck of oil and a cleaning once a year. It will increase the life and accuracy of your watch.

Weaver, publisher of one of the leading county newspapers, and one of the ablest editors in the Jayhawk state, delivered an address on paragraph writing in which he said among other evident truths that: "The time is gone when a newspaper can hold the attention with long winded editorials. Life is too short to spend time reading long discussions on the whiteness of the shirt and the universally read editorial is short, snappy, concise production. Editorials are being shortened perceptibly every year. There are exceptions to this rule and scores upon scores of them. Discussion is of such great interest that the editor knows that his lengthy writings will be followed eagerly. But the paper that habitually carries long editorials is not the paper of the greatest popularity. It is not the paragraph writer then on the right track? But is he doing any more than carrying the idea of short editorials to the extreme? He is. He is putting the gist of the subject in a few words. He is concisely stating that it will be carried in the reader's mind. He is putting it so forcibly that the stand of the paper cannot be misunderstood. And he is writing editorials that will be read. Under such circumstances paragraph writing might be adopted by the editorial writer, who has a freight train movement."

REORGANIZED DISTRICT.

Norfolk Daily News, April 19: Interest is now being centered in the appointment of the additional judge in the Ninth judicial district in which there is a mid fight on. The new law adding Cumins and Stanton counties to the district, is effective about July 1, and those interested believe that Gov. Morehead will make the appointment very soon. Although friends of Senator W. V. Allen are anxious that the governor give the office to their favorite, a number of other candidates are getting into the race. It was learned here today that Andrew Olsen of Waverly is a candidate and that County Judge M. S. McDuffy, accompanied by A. K. Donovan, had gone to Lincoln to seek support for himself. Judge Douglas Cones, who is also a candidate, was in Norfolk Friday and his friends say that he has already filed application for the position. Those interested in the new law say that the Ninth district will be turned democratic by the addition of Stanton and Cumins counties. The figure in the latter county is democratic by 300 votes and Stanton by about 150. The other counties in the reorganized district are Knox and Pierce, classed as democratic; Madison, Wayne and Antelope, classed as republican.

THE WEEK WITH THE

CHURCHES

St. Paul's English Lutheran Church. (Rev. P. E. Blessing, Pastor) Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Are you helping in the Sunday school? We need more of the parents in our Sunday school. Come, spend the hour with us.

Morning worship at 11 o'clock. The subject for next Sunday morning will be "The Kingdom Within." Ephesians 3:14-16. Christ's original interpretation of the word Kingdom, is the territory ruled by a king or queen. We wish to change the meaning just a little and apply the term to man in general. We divide it into two parts, first, the Kingdom without and second, the Kingdom within man. The Kingdom without man is made of things which have never been so numerous and glittering as in the present day. Salim has defiled this world and arrayed it in show which seems to charm man. It draws with the power of a mighty magnet. When man is involved in the world the Kingdom without the inner Kingdom does not develop. Paul realized this when he said "That he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his spirit in the inner man."

Luther League at 6:45. The subject will be "History of Your Own District Sunday." Acts 15:1-20.

There will be a union meeting in the evening at the Presbyterian church. The Sunday school evangelist, P. S. Dietrich, will speak. Mr. Dietrich speaks every night this week, excepting Monday in St. Paul's church. Sunday afternoon he will speak in the Baptist church at 3 o'clock. Hear Mr. Dietrich on Sunday school work.

The Ladies' Aid society will meet at the home of Mrs. W. C. Matson on Thursday of this week. Election of officers will take place at that time. All members should be present.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to worship with us.

Methodist Church. (Rev. A. S. Buell, Pastor) This is Sunday school week in Wayne and Paul Simpson-Dietrich and wife from Lincoln, are here and are conducting a Sunday school in and out of the interest of all Sunday schools of Wayne. Mr. Dietrich will speak in the Methodist church next Sunday morning at 10:30, the hour of the regular morning worship.

Remember that the Sunday school hour at 11:15. The school is well equipped with a splendid equipment of teachers and officers. Wm. Beckenbaur is superintendent and Mrs. J. C. Gildersleepe is superintendent of the primary department. Let no one miss hearing the Dietrichs this week. Every evening in the English Lutheran church and Sunday morning in the Methodist church. Sunday afternoon in the Baptist church and Sunday evening in the Presbyterian church. The Epworth League had an unusually interesting and helpful devotional meeting last Sunday evening. Many of the Baptist young people were present. The Misses Gerdner and Gosard were leaders. Miss Abbott and Professor Bunn each sang solos. Remember to come next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

No preaching in M. E. church next Sunday evening on account of union-Sunday school meeting in Presbyterian church.

Presbyterian Church. (Rev. S. Neophon Cross, Pastor) The Shallcross-Bima meetings closed Sunday evening with a record-breaking attendance, five hundred persons being present.

We appreciate the splendid meetings which have taken place through the series. There was not a meeting in the series that was not represented by a goodly number from each of the other churches.

The evangelists reported sixteen as the number of conversions in the course of the meetings. Some of these will probably find church homes in each of the several churches in Wayne. Indeed, preference was expressed by individuals for four of the different churches. Entertainment was provided for the evangelists and several free-will offerings made during the course of the meetings. The public free-will offerings amounted to $153.69. A considerable number of the books were sold to individual purchasers and Carl Clasen bought twenty-five of them for the C. E. society.

All Sunday school workers, take part in the Dietrich-Sunday school campaign. On Sunday morning, the pastor will speak on the theme, "The Vision." The C. E. meeting at 7 o'clock will be led by Mr. Carl Clasen. The evening service will begin at 8 o'clock and will be a union meeting under the lead of the Dietrichs. This should be a fine meeting and all are invited. Remember the C. E. district convention, next week. Read the strong program prepared for this convention. There is not a number on the program that will not prove attractive to someone. Every session is cordially invited to attend. Especially are the young people of the other church societies and young people of the normal school invited to attend just as if it were your own convention. You are invited to make it yours and get out of it all that you can.

First Baptist Church. (Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor) After two weeks of strenuous work at the East Lincoln Baptist church, the pastor is on his home field again. In many ways the meetings in Lincoln were unusually successful. Many people got new visions of the christian life, and entered a higher sphere of christian service. The one meeting last Sunday afternoon, lasting three hours, many said, was the greatest meeting they had ever gotten into. A large number of people dedicated themselves anew to God, while some over fifty persons definitely accepted Christ. There were some notable conversions. The converts ranged in ages from seven to seventy. Mr. Deal worked heroically. He applied himself to the task with his usual enthusiasm. The pastor never worked so continuously in his life. Such meetings cost heavily, but they do pay. Next Sunday morning the pastor will preach, and report more fully on the meetings. Covenant meeting Wednesday evening at eight o'clock. There are a few who should be baptized next Sunday. In regard to the evening sermon, announcement will be made Sunday morning. Be a worker, not a shirker or a jerk.

Note From Lincoln, Lincoln, Neb. April 19, 1915.

Dear Editor—Knowing that many of the friends of Rev. B. P. Richardson, pastor of the First Baptist church of Wayne, would be interested in the meetings of our church, East Lincoln Baptist, where Mr. Richardson has preached for the last two weeks, I am sending you this account of the meetings for your paper.

Rev. Richardson has rendered some splendid service for this church and community, preaching twice each day through the week, and more times on Sunday. He fit our situation exactly and was best in leading some fifty people to a decision, some of whom will unite with this church. Brother Richardson is a growing man who is already a strong preacher and fearlessly presents the truth as he sees it. The meeting closed last night at high tide with nine people coming forward.

Prof. Ira Deal, the man who led the choir and sang in the recent meetings in the Baptist church at Wayne, also helped us here and the two men made a mighty team for God.

We congratulate the city of Wayne and community on having such a man as Richardson in your midst. Indeed, I was never in a place where brotherly love and the spirit of unity was more manifest among the ministers than in Wayne.

Rev. Richardson leaves us with our very best wishes and with high praise for the way he let God use him here. Yours very truly, H. R. Watso.

"The Wonder Car"

This is the car that 38,000 happy owners have given the "rough and tumble" acid test of real automobile owners' wear

An automobile on the road for 18 months in constant, every-day use by an owner ceases to be a designer's theory.

It becomes—either a great automobile success; Or it becomes—a great automobile failure.

Multiply one model by 38,000 and give each one of these 38,000 automobiles day in and day out rough and tumble road wear, and if this car stands up and delivers, it has become one of the rare great automobile successes.

today—that is exactly the "Acid Test" that the Maxwell has passed through, and that is why the Maxwell is the most talked about automobile that is built today.

And this is the car we urge you to see. This is the car that you owe it to yourself to see. We want to tell you about its hill climbing triumphs. We want to tell you about its speed and endurance records. We want to show you and add up for you every one of its new features.

And that is the Maxwell success

One of the very few great automobile successes the world has ever known.

FEELS KINDLY.

Eremont Herald:—A subscriber wrote to the editor of a Kansas newspaper the other day, requesting him to discontinue sending the paper to him. The subscriber sometimes do in the best regulated neighborhoods; but the editor stepped out of his way to say something in his paper about the subscriber, which editors seldom do in any sort of a neighborhood. In fact, the editor began his statement with the remark that he felt very kindly toward the subscriber, and then proceeded to hand him a further statement, which reads as follows: "While we are not always successful in lowering our enemies, yet we feel kindly toward this man. We would even enjoy doing him a favor if we could. We feel that if he were in some cemetery, far, far away, on a sun-kissed hillside, where the low wind whispers 'monogram' to the flowers, and the birds sing their songs forth, her plaintive notes at even-song, we could read his name on a slab of beautiful veined Italian marble with real pleasure. We feel that we could do this much for him, even since he has died right away to his loss, there is no bitterness in our soul."

Peg o' My Heart

By J. HARTLEY MANNERS

A Comedy of Life Frazzled by M. Manners on His Grand Play of the Same Title - Illustrations From Photographs of the Play

Copyright, 1915, by Dodd, Mead & Company

SYNOPSIS.

Frank O'Connell, young Irish patriot and would-be British soldier, while making a home rule speech. He is aided by Angela Kingsnorth, an English society girl who defends him.

Angela takes O'Connell to her brother's home and helps to nurse him. He recovers and she and the girl becomes fast friends.

O'Connell when well is sent to jail for disturbing the peace. He finally convinces Angela that he has finished his sentence.

O'Connell and Angela wed. She has espoused the Irish cause. Her brother, a member of parliament, is very angry.

The happy couple come to America to live. A daughter is born to Angela. O'Connell refuses to help her brother's cause.

O'Connell marries his daughter, Margaret and calls her "Peg." O'Connell receives a most important letter from England, which person is Angela's brother.

O'Connell allows Peg to visit England at her uncle's request. The elder Kingsnorth's heart had finally softened toward his dead sister's little son.

Peg goes to the home of the Kingsnorth family. She is introduced to Mr. Hawkes, Kingsnorth's attorney, as Kingsnorth suddenly dies.

She first meets Earl Chichester and Brent, a married man in love with her. She intercepts them by accident in a room where they are.

Ethel is engaged to Peg and indignantly dismisses her from the drawing room, sending her to the servants' quarters. The Chichesters have lost their money in a bank failure.

Hawkes arrives and reads the Kingsnorth will. It leaves most of the fortune to Peg and offers liberally to anyone who will undertake her education and social training.

Mrs. Chichester finally agrees to bring up Peg in return for the money promised, although she openly despises the shabby little girl.

Peg is heartbroken at the cold reception given her by the Chichester family. She is "much" impressed by Mrs. Chichester's luxury of her surroundings.

Peg meets Jerry Adair, who takes in him a real friend. She tells him about her father. He's a farmer, he says.

"I don't know what she means," said Mrs. Chichester, "but she's really very kind."

"She's a wonderful girl," said Jerry, "and I'm sure she'll be a great help to you."

"Don't do that," he said softly as he felt the moisture start in his own eyes.

"I don't often cry," she said. "My father never made me do it. I never saw him cry. But you see in his life—"

"Well, so long as he's not tied up all through his mind. Now I'm a child with my father in a cart. An angel of an angel's consolation only to forget just about the time you cry."

"You're like father, then, were they?" Jerry asked her suddenly, in case she was crying.

"Jerry suddenly to assure her that she was really most interested."

"Well, so long as he's not tied up all through his mind. Now I'm a child with my father in a cart. An angel of an angel's consolation only to forget just about the time you cry."

Candid Policy Wins.
Fremont Tribune. Jay E. House, the newspaper paragrapher who has just been elected mayor of Topeka "and" "and" circumstances, announces that the result justifies his idea of politics. He says he did not care so much to be mayor as to put to a definite test an idea entertained by him. He wanted to see if it was necessary for a candidate to sidestep, spread sava and lick boots to get elected. He finds these are unnecessary. He struck out boldly and squarely, with no apologies or equivocations, and he won out handsomely. Of course the post-

The New Judgeship.
Pierce-Galt. The legislature last week passed a bill which adds Stanton and Cuming counties to the additional judge. The bill as originally drawn included only one county —that of Stanton—and was introduced to relieve the press of work

Wright in the past. It is an acknowledged fact that this district has more work than any one man can take care of. While the office of district judge is supposed to be non-partisan, the adding of the Old Resident Leaves.

Bloomfield Journal: W. A. Needham left Tuesday night for his new home in Montana, where he expects to develop into a really and truly rancher. Pioneering will be no new thing for him, as he has undergone a pretty thorough course of training in that line right here in Knox county. When he landed here 27 years ago this country was beyond the fringe of the then modern conveniences, the railroad was a long ways off, Bloomfield was not marked on the map, and cattle and Indians made up the chief population of the prairies. Seventeen years ago his family was spent as postmaster in Bloomfield, just relinquishing that position to again furnish an instance of "once a pioneer always a pioneer." In addition to his extended acquaintance in Knox county, he is well known in Masonic circles over the state, having attained a Grand Master's degree, and officially visiting many lodges throughout Nebraska. His numerous friends wish him the best the golden west can give him, and he says that assured that whenever he desires to return to "civilization" the Bloomfield

Nebraska Semi-Centennial.
Lincoln Journal. With the legislature out of the way and politics in abeyance for the better part of a year, Nebraska is free to consider its approaching fiftieth birthday anniversary. On March 1, 1917, less than two years hence, Nebraska will have its first full century of statehood. The state cannot afford to let this date pass without fitting recognition.
At the age of fifty years a geographical state should begin to accumulate the sentiments and tradition out of which a spiritual state is built. This birthday comes, fortunately, at a decisive period in the fortunes of Nebraska. Nebraska

It is not too long since that, twenty or thirty, according to individual opinion, that it became certain of establishing itself as a great, rich state. The years of struggle for existence are now passed. Nebraska has won economic freedom on the basis of an assured agriculture. The time has come to consider the future use of that freedom.
The coming semi-centennial presents an opportunity to sum up Nebraska's achievements, to encourage a just state of pride, and to enlarge the basis for the great future which can be built for Nebraska.
It is not too soon to be thinking of the form which the recognition of the coming date shall take. The celebration should be as broad as the state, and should be all inclusive in spirit. It should not be a mere feast of a day, as it should be the culmination of the building of the past and future Nebraska.

Perhaps from the state university, whose existence is practically identical with that of the state, might well come the central inspiration from the university and its everywhere present alumni. But all Nebraska organizations and interests should join in making the semi-centennial an epitome of Nebraska's past and present and a prophecy of its future.

Bought Nebraska Land.
Lincoln Journal. Thirty-three years ago a young Maine Yankee who had settled in Boston went traveling widely over the country as a special newspaper writer. On one of his visits to Washington he had studied the soil and climate maps and knew the location of the best agricultural regions. He kept his eyes open for opportunities and finally picked on Nebraska as the best field for investment. In 1882 he bought a quarter section at $25 an acre. A year later, against the advice of a scandalized friend at Columbus, he bought 200 acres more exactly like the first at the unheard-of price of $12.50 an acre.

The young man was John B. Divine, who "farmed it" for awhile and then rented the land while attending to a government job for ten years at Washington and to public questions for about the same length of time in Lincoln. No long ago he sold out at $132 and $40 an acre, netting $9,000. The land that cost his $3,500 originally, and involved no outlay for maintenance, Mr. Divine is not sitting down to enjoy his unearned increment, however. He is thinking of going to the south in a few weeks to see if that is not the part of the country to repeat his very satisfactory Nebraska operations.

NON-STOP IS NOW THE AUTO RACE FACTOR

The motor racing season of 1915 has already developed a distinct novelty—the non-stop speed performance of 300 miles or more.
At Corona and Venice, Barney Oldfield in a Maxwell car ran the entire distance—301 and 305 miles respectively—without pausing for a second in his mad career. The Corona course Oldfield covered at the entire average of nearly 86 miles an hour.
The Venice race was over a slower course but the non-stop feature enabled Oldfield to win him. P. J. Carlson, also in a Maxwell but who spent a few seconds at his pit.
Carlson also established a non-stop, running the 306 miles of the Point Loma Road race near San Diego without hesitating at any stage, losing first place by a matter of seconds only.
These performances have been starting to racing man and designers alike. They have tacitly served notice that the time is not far distant when no driver can hope for pit stops unless he is able to go through the whole distance of his race without a tire change, a replenishment of supplies or a stop for any mechanical trouble whatever.

Such a feat would have been impossible to the speed demons of a year ago. Even now it is almost revolutionary. That speed cars should be built to any other requirements than mere speed would have seemed heresy in former years. In most good racing cars of the light, efficient, well balanced, non-stop Maxwells ask no odds of any of their rivals in pure speed, adding to their ability to roll fast a faculty to keep rolling—which is almost fatal to opponents' hopes.
With the heavy racing cars of earlier years, economy of gasoline and oil was a minor consideration, due to the fact that frequent stops were necessary on account of tire trouble. A pause at a pit for tire changing was just that made the occasional stop for tank replenishment, without additional loss of time.

Present day racing cars are so much lighter that tire wear is less rapid. So thoroughly has the problem of balance and lightness been worked out in the Maxwells that in more than 8,000 miles of travel at high speed in practice and competition on the Coast circuit during the winter, but one tire change was necessary at the race track.
Economy in fuel supplies which has been incorporated into the Maxwell design by Chief Engineer Ray Harroun, then became a tremendbus asset. A 30-gallon gasoline tank, would it was discovered, carried ample fuel for 300 miles of racing.

The car, in fact, demonstrated an ability to average from 12 to 16 miles to the gallon, even at a sustained speed of nearly 90 miles an hour. Lubricating oil was used in similarly parsimonious way. Refreshing water was unnecessary. And non-stop runs began to be recorded.
Racing men roughly estimated that a car loses a mile by a full stop —merely momentary duration in-Each minute spent at the pits loses the car over a mile more. The race cars of the present are virtually of equal speed. For the first time efficiency and economy are playing a big part in determining the winner.
