

It's Smooth as Silk

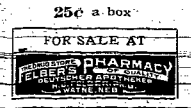

A talcum powder containing the finest particle of grit or foreign substance is not a proper powder. To use on baby's tender skin—or on your own.

Before you accept a toilet powder rub a little on the back of the hand or on the tender part of the wrist—you will easily detect the presence of grit.

Apply this test to NYALS' MAYFLOWER Toilet Talcum

—you will notice two things—its perfect smoothness and a delightful odor. It is a delightful powder in every way.

Its smoothness combined with its aseptic properties leaves the skin soft and velvety—and free from irritation.

sett of Brooklyn, N. Y., recently gave strong commendation to the work and value of the Sunday school, as an agent for the moral protection and guidance of children and young people. In sentencing a 19-year-old burglar to the reformatory he said, "I have been sitting on this bench for five years, and in that time I have had twenty-seven hundred boys before me for sentences, and not one of them was an attendant of a Sunday school. Had you gone there I am sure you would not be before me today." If one in such a position can give such a high testimony to the Sunday school, the value of its work is great. Will you not take advantage of it?

Morning services at 11 o'clock. The subject of the morning sermon will be "The Great Supper," Luke 14:16-21. As Christ was the favored "dinner" of the common people, he also excited the enmity of the Scribes and Pharisees. They sought many times to get him out of the way; they laid many traps to catch him. Upon one occasion he "dined" with the Pharisees, one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the Sabbath day, they watched him and planned his downfall. A man was introduced who labored under a serious illness, but Christ, knowing the intention by his wonderful wisdom put them to silence, so that "They could not answer him again to these things." This supper was the text of one of the most beautiful or our Lord's parables.

Evening services at 8 o'clock. The subject will be "The Visionless Life," Proverbs 29:18.

Luther League at 7 o'clock. The subject will be "The Lutheran College and its Support."

WIND AND RAIN CAUSE DAMAGE IN FEW PARTS
Elgin, Neb., June 7.—About 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon a tornado struck this vicinity from the southwest. The news from the surrounding country is very meager so far on account of telephone lines being down. At Herman Glampies farm three miles southwest of town, the farm buildings were badly wrecked and a daughter of Mr. Glampies was badly injured. At George Newton's, a mile this side of the building were nearly all blown away. The storm then struck the Ball farm, half mile southwest of Elgin, where all the farm buildings were badly damaged. G. H. Wilcox's new home in the southwest part of town was blown off the foundation and badly wrecked.

Mrs. Phoebe Biers' house was turned entirely over and rolled into the street.

The barn on the Nick Reiss place in the south part of town, quite a large building, was completely torn to pieces and scattered over the ground for considerable distance.

The five-new house of J. H. Johnson was blown off the foundation and badly wrecked. James Traher's house in the north part of town was very badly wrecked and several of the occupants narrowly escaped injury.

Small buildings, windmills and telephone poles and trees were blown down all over town. This is the worst storm of the kind that ever visited this part of the country.

JAMES HISCOX.
(By the Pastor).
Mr. James Hiscox was born in Bradford, Wiltshire, England, January 12, 1835. He quietly went to sleep in the Lord in his own home in Wayne a little after noon on Wednesday, June 3, 1915, aged 80 years 4 months and 21 days. Mr. Hiscox came to America when about nine years of age, taking up his residence in the state of Ohio. He was married to Miss Elizabeth J. Endy, at Lisbon, Ohio, March 29, 1864. To this union were born four children, as follows: Mary L. Hiscox, Mrs. Harriet E. Cook of Hastings, Neb.; Charles W. and William A. Hiscox, both of Wayne, Neb.

Mr. Hiscox came with his family to Nebraska in 1868, where he settled on a homestead ten miles north of Fremont. He resided in Leigh, Neb., for a time and then in 1907, came to Wayne. Mr. Hiscox united with the Methodist Episcopal church during his young manhood in Ohio, and remained a consistent and faithful member of that church until the time of his death. He was a true soldier of the cross and although suffering severely during his last sickness he was never given to complaining at his lot, but bore uncomplainingly whatever was his to endure. He will be greatly missed and kindly remembered by all who knew him.

BIRTH RECORD.
A son was born Friday, June 4, 1915, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Handerson, one and one-half miles south-east of Wayne.

This spring cut the Rosebud country off from railroad communication and early Monday morning the railroad officials believed that train services north of Niobrara would probably be resumed Tuesday. Streams are swollen and the Elkhorn river at Norfolk Monday morning had risen a foot in twenty-four hours going up to the highest point of the season. Sligh, Monroe and O'Neill were among the points affected by the high water. The break in railroad communication again held back the circus which has been marooned in the Rosebud country for a few days.

Major Strain in Verdell. Ponca creek was out of its banks in many places.

The tracks between Niobrara and Verdere were badly washed out and the approaches to the bridges were damaged. Some piling has been driven to make the repairs Monday morning. Trains were running over a soft bed of tracks on the main line in the Northwestern road.

The telephone office in Norfolk reported that most of the bridges between Norfolk and Clearwater were badly damaged Saturday because of the heavy rain.

Dr. Wiley Says:

Flours-doped with chemicals and acids are not pure foods, and are injurious to the human stomach. Dr. Wiley is a food expert and is recognized as the highest authority on pure food subjects. When Dr. Wiley makes the statement that bleached flours are directly responsible for thousands of cases of stomach trouble, he knows what he's talking about. When congress passed a law making it unlawful to ship bleached flour from one state to another, there was a reason. With this operating within its own state are permitted to dope flour and sell it to their home-people they are doing what they cannot do in an adjoining state. Why? Because the strong arm of the law forbids; under penalty of confiscation of the entire shipment, and a handsome fine besides. And again, why? Because the flour has been infected with chemicals, which has rendered some of the life sustaining properties, to conceal imperfections in milling. Dr. Wiley, pure food expert, says it's NOT PURE FOOD.

How easy is it when buying flour to ask: Is this flour absolutely pure, or is it bleached? Could this flour be shipped from one state to another lawfully? You have taken the proper precaution. If in doubt, forward a sample to Mr. Harmon, the state pure food commissioner.

Hundreds of people have stomach trouble in some form. Don't contribute to your own discomforts by using bleached flour. Doctors will tell you 35 per cent of their practice is for stomach trouble. Dr. Wiley says bleached flour is largely responsible for this condition.

This store takes pride in the fact it is a dispenser of pure flours, and flour has received special attention.

Splendid flour is not bleached. No poisonous acid-fumes has been administered to conceal old milling methods, and imperfect materials. Splendid flour stands today among the head-liners and can be LAWFULLY SHIPPED INTO ANY STATE IN THE UNION.

Housewife! Which do you prefer? Splendid flour, which is absolutely pure, or some other brand, which is bleached and not absolutely pure?

THE ALFALFA CROP.

The matter of the alfalfa, submitted to us, expert, brings out this statement: "There is no denying that the meteorological insanity of the last two weeks has played hob with the alfalfa farmers. Most of those who cut their crop early have since been sitting under water watching it rot in the swath. Those who have withheld the sickle now see the first crop lingering in the lap of the second, with bad results to both. Alfalfa is seldom so seriously damaged by wet weather that the cows and pigs will not eat it, but a spoiled crop is unsalable and of reduced feeding value. Fortunately, Nebraska can lose its first cutting early and yet thrive on the subsequent cuttings. Besides, a spoiled first crop of alfalfa is one of the forerunners of a big crop of corn."

Pierce a growing little town, was found to be unusually large in extent of district court being in session. Several horse thieves were on trial, and the celebrated vigilance committee to the number of about 500, were on hand to see that justice was done in court or out. We were told by several eminently respectable cow boy sympathizers with the thieves, that owing to some technical error in the indictment, their friends were about to be discharged. We were told by others that if the thieves were released the vigilantes would forthwith gobble them up and have a good old fashioned hanging. We, then and there, had a good deal to say about it. We believe the vigilantes would be correct in stringing them up. When courts fail to protect a community, the citizens are justified in protecting themselves. The vigilantes were camped in one part of town and the other, and the law was completely broken. We camped in another part of town. It was a question among citizens as to whether our party belonged with the vigilantes or horse thieves. A few days before we had been misled by a bad report of the vigilantes. As we have before explained, our party had not started out with remorseless consciences and insatiable

ALIMENTS OVERCOME; GAINING IN WEIGHT This is the story of John Gedenken of Winnebago, Neb. and how he won back health and happiness. Mr. Gedenken suffered for years from stomach trouble which was his stomach. His food was not properly digested, and he grew weak and thin. He had feared was hopelessly bad health. One day he heard about Magr's Wonderful Remedy. He took one dose and was astonished by the results. He writes: "My ailments seem to be entirely overcome, as the many symptoms which were caused by the food I have had a wonder, all passed away and my health is improving fast. I have gained five pounds already." "It has been two weeks since I got through my treatment, and I can say that it has put my stomach and bowels in perfect shape."

appetites to ravage the country, and like a horde of Bedouin Arabs or Comanche Indians, to journey from town to town shooting the game of tag. THE VACATION PERIL.

Lincoln Journal: School is out. Millions of youngsters who yesterday the schools absorbed in more or less useful occupation will tomorrow have nothing to do except their own heads to do.

The American public school system was established under ideal conditions and was adjusted to meet rural conditions. There was a hope for every farm in those days and every youngster graduated straight into a useful occupation. But now it is different. There was no parental horror then of having the family flock "on their hands" during idle Saturdays and summers. It took all of Saturday to chop the next week's wood, to crop a summer garden, to weave next winter's food. There were chores to do before 9 a. m. and after 4 p. m. If the children were spared for a six months' term then, that was pretty generous of their hard working parents. To this day some Nebraska public schools take an extra vacation in corn-husking time.

Rural conditions, as to a majority of American children and parents, disappeared. In that unbending way which institutions have, the schools were straightened out on a rural basis. Still the short school day still the Saturday holiday, still the long fall summer. Still stands the expensive school house vacant one day out of every two, and occupied only six hours of the day when it is used at all. Still children run to weeds on city streets through purposeless useless months, while parents wreck their nerves and wrench their hearts in the effort to save them from the debauching effects of idleness.

By means of a supervised vacation playground and vacant lot farming the city of Lincoln has shown a glimmering recognition that we are crowding new wine into old bottles. On a sweeping scale at Gary, Ind., and by cautious experiment at New York City the school system of the days of the squire and flail is being superseded with something different, and, safe to say, better. There the school is beginning to furnish to children the kind of work which farm children get without school. The result, the consequently nearly doubled capacity of the school houses, the training of hand and head together, the abandonment of the long, formal vacation, offer a hope that finally city school children will get over their devotion to country conditions, to the eradication of the special perils over which some million terrified parents are now losing sleep.

CONSERVING MOISTURE.

Wallace's Farmer: Conserving moisture! We think we hear a loud laugh from nearly every reader. He will say to himself: Conserving moisture? What's the matter with Uncle Henry? Has he been asleep? Don't he know it's raining and raining; that it has been at it in the corn belt for about ten days? Don't he know that many railroad bridges have been washed out? Don't he know that the dirt roads are practically bottomless, so that we can't get to town? Don't he know that the rivers are overflowing the bottom lands? Don't he know that farmers can't get into their corn, and the weeds are growing? Don't he know that he can't cure alfalfa; can't even cut it in some places? Don't he know that there's water in the cellar? What's he thinking about anyhow?

We know all this and more. It is no new thing that has happened to us. About every ten or twelve years we get just such weather as this; rain about the time you are finishing corn planting and want to begin plowing it, rain that makes floods and wash-outs. We have had it before, and will have it again. None the less, this is just the time to talk about conserving moisture.

The soil is full of water now, all it will hold; and anything more that falls in the next week, or so, will run off and fill up the streams. There is more water than we know what to do with, but that's just the reason why we should think about conserving the moisture. For these heavy rains have packed the surface of the ground. It will cost some money to get the moisture we have will get out faster than we have any idea of, unless farmers realize the conditions, their corn may be short of water in July, and almost certainly in August, unless we should have a wet August, as we have not had in the past. The chances are that, notwithstanding the surplus of rain now, there will be a shortage of it just at the time when corn needs it most. We have enough water in the ground now to make a good corn crop, provided it is conserved, provided we don't let it get away. We have all the ground will hold, but we will need every bit of it that does not naturally run away from us, surface or through springs, and sloughs and creeks.

What must you do about it? As soon as you can get into the corn fields, put on a match of loose dirt. You will have weeds that myriads of them, and if the weather should turn very hot, it will burn the dirt in. May, you will have to go down pretty deep to get rid of the weeds. Incidentally you will make a match of loose dirt. Keep it on as long as you can. This may be a season in which it will be necessary to cultivate very early in the ground in order to get the weeds in the ground this needed moisture.

There may be a lot of ground that you can't get into this year. But we anticipated this in another article, and you can get into it by plough or into part of man who is so unfortunate as not to have stock enough to consume it can sow to German millet for seed or to buckwheat. Anything is better than letting it grow up in weeds which will likely be too tall to mow and pollute the land for years to come.

Business men are already beginning to ask questions as to how this will affect crops. Not favorably. The surplus of rain may make winter so early that it will help out pastures and meadows; but the effect it will have on the corn crop will depend very largely on the extent to which this moisture is conserved. It will no doubt decrease the acreage of corn; and hence it is all the more important that we should conserve the moisture that we now have in such superabundance, and make the most out of it. There is every inducement to do that this year. For with the surplus of rain, it is possible to get into the ground for the first time in years. Hence, every farmer Nebraska and Kansas it will be the more important to grow the largest possible crop on the lands we can cultivate; and this can be done by ploughing and sowing the seed early. The peculiarity about rainfall is that it will get away just as fast as it can, as fast as you will let it. It will get away by gravitation and by evaporation through packing and crusting the surface. Your business, to keep from getting into the ground, will pass through the plant, so as to produce a full crop.

TIME IS ABOUT UP.

Bixby in Lincoln Journal: "Series L" tract 5, as published by the Pacific Advent Christian Home Mission board, contains the startling information that the time is about up. Satan has had his way long enough. His position is crumbling with its attendant destruction of the wicked (most democracy) is on the program immediately following the European devastation. Serves us right. If mankind has no more sense than to multiply its miseries by ever acts of violence and wickedness, it is time to burn the whole works, and have a new deal from start to finish. Accompanying the tract is a personal letter from our good friend E. Francis, who has no patience with better critics and believes in giving the Bible a literal interpretation, kiver to kiver, using our best understanding for that purpose. He holds that Satan is an individual entity with a large capacity for mischief. That he encompasses the earth like a fog and exercises his malignant influence upon the characters of people wherever they will stand for it. If the elder is right we believe it is this very old devil who possesses the impulse and understanding of men who contend that the way to cultivate peace and world war among nations is to get ready to fight. It is some satisfaction to know that, according to the faith of our old friend, the destruction of the wicked in the big fire will include the quietus of Satan and all his impus, a consummation devoutly

THOSE BUSY LITTLE BRIDES

St. Louis City Journal. Grandmother says that when she was a girl, the blushing bride was like the well known pearl, beneath a mossy stone, for weeks before the wedding she kept close to her father's house, eschewing public notice and awaiting in tranquil and modest retirement the coming of the hour of her choice. It is hard to wonder then that grandmother is much scandalized by the activity, not to say agility, of our brides of 1915 and that she gaily predicts that out of it all can come maggot but caterpillar. Showers and dinners and teas! Teas and dinners and showers! If you don't believe it, look up the record in the society columns. Grandmother will point it out with the greatest of satisfaction—and a hint of gloom. Time was when the busy little bride held the world's championship in the something-doing-all-the while class; then it passed to a certain dealer in cranberries and then to our old friend, B. Izzy. Long ago, however, it came to rest on the shoulders of the girl that made Mendelssohn famous, and there seems to be absolutely no prospect of her ever losing it in either showers and dinners and teas and teas and dinners and showers.

It isn't enough to have merely one event a day. It would be a dull drab schedule that couldn't show up at least a bride party in the afternoon and a dinner in the evening and if the idea be to make things really interesting for the bride, care should be taken to provide something also in the way of a breakfast by way of morning diversion. Prince Henry may have imagined that he was handed around with some dispensation to be permitted to visit to the United States some years ago—but even Prince Henry never came into touch with the genuine article—in the way of American hospitality, for Prince Henry never was a bride.

Grandmother declares it is shocking. Tut, tut, grandmother. You take some things too seriously. You do not always bear in mind that times have changed along with yourself. It does not necessarily hurt to dispense with the thing in these days of the twentieth century. It is just possible that the present generation would be shocked at some of the practices that were considered good from fifty and sixty years ago. One of the things is having the time of her young life at these self-same showers and dinners and teas and teas and dinners and showers. She is reveling in the joy that ought to be the portion of every girl at least once in her lifetime. Most remarkable and only one. Why not let them make the most of their little season in the limelight? In a few weeks they will tumble from the clouds of dreamland onto the solid earth. Then the splash and the rattle and rattle will be as strong and far between.

Hail, therefore, to the bride, and may her loving friends give her showers and dinners and teas to her heart's content and then lead her down with cut glass enough to keep her feet all her life settling her obligations.

THE UNIVERSAL WAR.

Lincoln Journal. We shall miss the reason of the war if we forget that the uproar in Europe is but an outward manifestation of an inward condition. The clashing of arms in Europe and the clashing of opinions as to aims in America is a reflection of the same conflict that has engaged the ages, and which is exceptionally keen in the present age. What is life? What is reality? What are the laws of the universe and what power controls them? The conclusions of human minds were opposing understandings of the substance of man and of the world, are expressed in what is now being done in Europe and argued in America.

The cleavage of human thought is represented now by the words spirit and matter. The world is a world of matter, with man its highest expression and goal; or the world is a world of spirit with the true course of human life a progress toward the source and center of the world. The one idea leads to a life based on material interest; the other to a life in which material interest is overruled wherever it leads to conflict with the growth of the spirit toward its great goal. In the last half century the material side of life has gained ground at the expense of the spiritual view. Men have found by the use of the new power over material things which modern science has given them, a new satisfaction in material conquest. They have thought that this may yet be possible, by human skill, to make earth a heaven. Thus they would no away with the demand for that beautiful paradise to which men formerly turned for escape from a natural world which they could not understand or control.

It is the truth of the only good—is physical good, then no means is justified in the effort to satisfy physical needs. We still may not rob, for robbery is not a successful means to worldly success. It is no mere crude selfishness that results from this view. Enlightened minds holding the material view of life understand that the best satisfaction of one's own senses necessitates an equitable distribution of the world's goods and opportunities. But the denial of spiritual goods cannot sacrifice material for spiritual gains, nor leave any stone unturned in defense of his material resources. He cannot turn the other cheek to an enemy. Thus are aggressive wars and preparation for war and the warlike spirit justified.

Superficially, the peace movement is an amiable effort to do business

FROM STATE CAPITOL.

Lincoln correspondence in Omaha News.

Lincoln, June 7.—After the officers of Chicago, accompanied by R. M. Keckler, president of the Nebraska Publishers' bureau, an organization recently formed by its organizer to advertise Nebraska in the east, called at the state house today to gather information for a verifying of the resources of the state.

The sum of $3,000 was subscribed by the newspaper men of the state, forming the association, and the advertising will be done in three of the principal advertising journals of the country. It is the intention to make a comparison with other states in order to bring to the notice of manufacturers that this state is a good place to bring their products and also to establish branch industries.

Mr. Rogers was very well pleased with the information he was able to gather from the records of the several and auting energy toward other ends.

"I don't want to destroy life; I want to make the world a better place to live in," he says. And he has. The world is full of light and song and music; it is transformed by a wizardry that has made work easier and existence happier, the source of which has been the Edison workshops and laboratories. Of course, if this nation needed his aid against its enemies, then—and there was no hesitancy in the old man's voice when he said so—he would turn his skill to its defense. May that day never come.

In the meantime it is interesting to hear the note of sturdy democracy in Edison's discussion of world events. England's meddling, says he, is the limit of incapacity, but that is because England is a true democracy. * * * It is only under an autocracy that you can get perfect technical efficiency, because it is the only way you can get the highest degree of scientific manage-without fighting. Fundamentally, it is an expression of the remnant of spiritual faith yet left upon the earth. At the surface, the difference on the question of armaments for the United States is a difference on a point of expediency. At bottom, the difference grows out of these opposing conceptions of life, the spiritual and the material. The forces that brought on the European war were the forces that think to see God in a rest tube and to find the consummation of human life in a mastery of the physical world.

—Whichever of these conflicting conceptions is false will ultimately die at its own hands. No plan or idea of life can permanently endure in conflict with the laws of the universe. If man is the supreme thing, then physical force will prevail. If a greater than man exists supreme, then physical force will prey upon itself and the spirit and the spirit at the heart of Christianity will ultimately reign on earth. The war may offer some suggestions as to the outcome. Certainly its long time effects, as witnessed by history, will be full of light to the materialist. Those who have once entered the kingdom of the spirit are sure they know without awaiting the test of time.

Representatives of the Omaha & Lincoln Railway and Light company, the interurban road running from Omaha to Papillion, appeared before the railway commission today and asked for a modification of the order of the commission about six months ago relative to an issue of bonds for the improvement of the road.

The former order allowed an issue of $2,000,000 in 5 per cent bonds, $2,000,000 in 6 per cent preferred stock, and $10,000,000 common stock; but the road now asks that the amount be raised to $16,000,000 to enable it to

ACQUITTED BY JURY.

Norfolk, Neb., June 7.—A coroner's jury after listening to testimony of a half-dozen witnesses at the state hospital for insane here, returned a verdict that Charles Steckelberg—the Walsfield patient—came to his death through a fall on the cement floor on the hospital premises in a scuffle with Assistant Farmer Eugene Edwards. Newsom, said foreman trying to place the patient under control, no violence used or intended.

The inquiry was called by County Attorney Dowling. The evidence showed that Newsom ordered Steckelberg to hitch up a team and that Steckelberg refused, declaring he did not get paid for work. Newsom took hold of Steckelberg's arm and asked why the patient refused getting the same answer.

After this Steckelberg walked into the barn with Newsom and was about to walk out through another door when Newsom touched the patient on the arm and Steckelberg clinched with him, both falling to the floor. Steckelberg's skull was fractured.

Dr. Guttery, the superintendent, was asked if he suppressed the news, and replied, that "the only thing I dread about publicity of this kind is the effect on the insane here."

He said the newspapers do not understand the effect on the institution and that the publicity makes people afraid to send patients there. "Asked if he gave it out that Steckelberg died of pneumonia, Dr. Guttery said the cause of the complications caused by the fracture."

Newsom said he never forced patients to work and that he told Steckelberg he could go back to his ward if he did not want to work. Steckelberg, however, insisted on their balance, which resulted in the fall.

DISAPPEARANCE CASES.

Omaha Examiner. Newspaper and court work must be impressed with the frequency of disappearance cases. These cases are of two types, the real and the fake. The newspaper reporter who looks up the case goes to the home expecting to find the wife distressed in tears at the loss of a husband whose whereabouts she confided in too trustingly. Actually, however, she does not always seem much upset.

The true inwardness of some of these situations is explained the other day by a man who had investigated a number of such cases. A husband will often leave secretly for another place, obtain a job, and send money regularly to his wife. She meanwhile will live in some degree of comfort, particularly as she has a seemingly good excuse for not paying bills. When the duns become too pressing she can follow her husband. But until that time she sometimes is able to get relief from municipal-poor departments, maintaining regular remittances from her husband.

The majority of disappearance cases are probably not of this type. But there are enough of them to signify a certain social irresponsibility, an unwillingness to bear one's part of the life and labor of a community, and to fulfill the obligations imposed by debts, marriage, and possession of a family.

No doubt in many cases the wife is openly flouted and left completely alone. She is left to the mercy of a trusting woman, unlifted by motherhood for hard labor, but left by some worthless human trash to fend herself and her children, is about the most pitiful thing in life. The man guilty of such an act deserves the limit of punishment. Only prison life may suit him too well. He may prefer it to the labor of supporting a family. Women should realize what chances they take when they marry men who lack a record of steady industry.

The FRIENDLY-ADVICE

A Parting Shot by Josh Billings to a Cockey Drummer.

One time when Mary Anderson was playing in "The Winter Tale" in Dublin William Black, the novelist, who was very intimate with Miss Anderson, and her family, insisted upon examining the part of one of the supernas who was dressed as a very old man with a venerable beard and locks that fell upon his shoulders.

When Anderson saw this she felt upset upon the stage in this disguise she walked about wearing his fellows' success with unusual restlessness.

"My venerable friend," he said as he laid his hand on the shoulder of the old man, "will you join us in a game of whist?"

"Yes; we will get there in about three hours," replied Josh, putting his hand to his ear.

"You don't seem to understand," said the young fellow in a louder tone. "We want you to take a hand."

"Yes; the stand 'o' corn has been unsung good this year."

"My friend," the young fellow then yelled, "will you take a hand in a game?"

"Yes; I was told," said Mary this morning how poorly you had the reputation of this year."

"Oh, you go to the devil!" shouted the young fellow as he took his seat while the other drummers impatiently waited for their turn.

"My venerable friend," he said as he laid his hand on the shoulder of the old man, "will you join us in a game of whist?"

"Yes; we will get there in about three hours," replied Josh, putting his hand to his ear.

"You don't seem to understand," said the young fellow in a louder tone. "We want you to take a hand."

"Yes; the stand 'o' corn has been unsung good this year."

"My friend," the young fellow then yelled, "will you take a hand in a game?"

HE TOOK THE CAKE

A Story of William Black, the Novelist, and Mary Anderson.

One time when Mary Anderson was playing in "The Winter Tale" in Dublin William Black, the novelist, who was very intimate with Miss Anderson, and her family, insisted upon examining the part of one of the supernas who was dressed as a very old man with a venerable beard and locks that fell upon his shoulders.

When Anderson saw this she felt upset upon the stage in this disguise she walked about wearing his fellows' success with unusual restlessness.

"My venerable friend," he said as he laid his hand on the shoulder of the old man, "will you join us in a game of whist?"

"Yes; we will get there in about three hours," replied Josh, putting his hand to his ear.

"You don't seem to understand," said the young fellow in a louder tone. "We want you to take a hand."

"Yes; the stand 'o' corn has been unsung good this year."

"My friend," the young fellow then yelled, "will you take a hand in a game?"

"Yes; I was told," said Mary this morning how poorly you had the reputation of this year."

"Oh, you go to the devil!" shouted the young fellow as he took his seat while the other drummers impatiently waited for their turn.

RESULTS TELL

There Can Be No Doubt About the Results in Wayne.

Results tell the tale. All doubt is removed. The testimony of a Wayne citizen can be best summarized:

What better proof can be had? W. H. Hoguewood, Wayne, says: "About a year ago, my back was so painful and lame that I could scarcely get up after sitting. I had other symptoms of kidney trouble. Dr. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in our home for a similar complaint and had given great benefit that I finally decided to try them. I was not disappointed with the results. I found relief almost immediately and in a short time I was cured. I have since been free from kidney complaint and in return for this permanent cure, I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills whenever I have had an opportunity."

Price—50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for $3; get Doan's Kidney Pills—same that Mr. Hoguewood had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Greatly Benefited by Chamberlain's Liniment.

"I have used Chamberlain's Liniment for sprains, bruises and rheumatic pains and it has benefited me. I have received many recommendations in the highest terms," writes Mrs. Florence Sibley, Washab, Ind. "If you are troubled with rheumatic pains you will certainly be pleased with the prompt relief which Chamberlain's Liniment affords. Obtainable everywhere."

GETTING RICH QUICK.

Wallace's Farmer. The census surveyors are taking the leading for the farmers. Farmers do not usually like to have money to do with statistics. They are not usually interested and are supposed to be notorious knaves. None the less, it is important to know something about what they do. It is well to remember that these statistics are estimates, not facts. Our readers may therefore be interested in a recent report of the census bureau, compiled by the chief statistician, which gives us some idea of what the United States is worth in property, outside of government property, or the average wealth per capita, and of the comparative wealth of the different states, both as a whole and as individual citizens. This report is the most interesting because it gives us accurate estimates since 1880, and less accurate estimates as far back as 1850.

In 1850 the wealth of the United States was estimated at $2,130,000,000, which is a little less than the wealth of Iowa alone today or about one-third of the wealth of New York state or about one-half the wealth of Illinois and Pennsylvania, the two next richest states. The wealth of the whole country in 1912, excluding exempt property, such as government buildings, churches, schools, etc., was estimated at $175,426,000,000. The per capita wealth in 1850 was estimated at $308; that is, averaged $308 for every man, woman and child. In 1860 it had risen to $514; in 1870 to $624, in 1880 to $848, in 1890 to $1,040, in 1900 to $1,234, and in 1912 to $1,836. Some of you will say: "Who's got it? Where's my share? I have a family of five. I'd like to know where I can find the $97,680 that is credited to my family."

It is interesting to know that the greatest per capita wealth is in the states of Nevada and many of them are very rich, and their per capita wealth is as follows: Delaware, $1,836; Nevada, $1,234; Montana, $2,743; Colorado, $2,668; Kansas, $2,525; Oregon, $2,523, and Illinois, $2,507. No other state reaches $2,500 per capita.

It is a great mistake to suppose that you can determine the wealth of a state by the assessed valuation of property. In Iowa the assessed valuation of property is only 11.7 per cent of its true value, while in New Hampshire and Wyoming property is assessed at 100 per cent. In eleven states it is assessed at 33.3 per cent of its true value; in twenty-four states at 50 per cent; and in thirteen states at 66.6 per cent or more.

When we get to studying the different kinds of property that make up this valuation, we find that real property and its improvements make up $98,363,000,000 out of the $175,426,000,000, exclusive of exempted property. The exempt property and improvements amount to $12,314,000,000, making a total of nearly $110,000,000,000. Railroads are estimated at $16,149,000,000; manufactured products at $23,157,000,000, including furniture, vehicles, etc. Live stock is estimated at $6,238,000,000; agricultural products at $5,240,000,000; and the value of the gold and silver coin in circulation at $2,617,000,000; privately owned central electric light and power stations at $2,099,000,000; farm implements and machinery at $1,368,000,000; and telephone systems at $1,081,000,000.

If all this is even approximately true, as a nation we are getting rich fast. We have more wealth than the British Empire, which showed at its latest estimate (1903) $108,280,000,000, of which Great Britain and Ireland had $73,000,000,000. The United States a year later had $107,100,000,000. We were more than twice as rich in 1912 as Germany was in 1908. The census furnishes no statistics for other countries.

This estimated increase in wealth may account for the fact that the best thing in the way of actually throwing money away, but in using it. Our farmers can readily understand why. Twenty or thirty years ago there were very few farm houses that had any modern improvements; which Chamberlain's Liniment and tele-phones.
