The Reliable German Store

1915 best year and 25% the 1904-13 industry. Most of these small refiners merely "top" the crude oil, selling the light product for gasoline and the remainder for fuel. They generally fix their prices at a certain percentage below the Standard Oil quotation, and it is said some of them sell gasoline as low as 2 and 3 cents below the Standard price.

That these new independents succeed in taking business away from the Standard of Indiana is generally admitted. It is said that for four or five months the Standard management sat by and watched this new element taking its business but finally decided that some action would have to be taken to remedy the situation. The result is that prices are now lower than at any previous time. Most of these Cushing refiners, it appears, can only operate so long as crude prices continue low. It is claimed that as soon as the crude market turns upward, which is not likely to be long with the Cushing production going off rapidly day by day, many of the Cushing refiners, that sprang up overnight will be unable to operate at a profit.

Slump in Gasoline.
Lincoln Journal: Prices of gasoline which have reached the low level of 10 cents a gallon in Lincoln and lower still farther south, were not forced to that point by the voluntary action of the Standard Oil company. Two years ago automobile owners were paying 18 cents a gallon, and the expression was common that "the trust" was getting back the money it had paid out in fines.

The Wall Street Journal gives this explanation of the decline in prices and foretells an increase before the end of the year.
Interests who have close relations with Standard Oil company of Indiana say it is practically certain that an advance in gasoline prices in the middle west, under the lead of the Indiana company, will be made before the close of the current year.

Following the last cut prices by the India company, independent dealers declared that the company had made contracts effective throughout the year at prevailing prices without coming into conflict with the anti-discrimination laws.
On behalf of the Standard of Indiana, however, it is stated that only a few such contracts were made and that these were closed with interests who must be assured of their petroleum products supply at a stated price in advance, or so-called "fixed" contracts among these big consumers are such interests as paint and varnish makers. Furthermore, it is said that if crude oil prices are advanced, an increase in gasoline and naphtha quotations will soon follow and that there is no law that could prohibit such action. Officers of the Indiana company have recently been in touch with the federal trade commission at Washington and it is considered likely that this matter was discussed.

The present low prices for refined products are not due to lack of demand but primarily to the over-supply of Oklahoma crude oil which has brought with it unprecedented competition in the oil trade. It is not the old-established independents who have been the cause of low prices, but the small independents who have sprung up since the Cushing pool became a factor in the oil

Omaha, Dec-8-Aug-9: The large stock run in months was reported by the market. The market report on live stock has been very favorable. The morning cars started to enter the yards and before 6 o'clock more than 365 cars, estimated to contain more than 7,000 head of stock, were reported. This is the largest Monday's run of the year.

This morning's run marks the real opening of the western range of cattle stock. More than fifty cars of the run were direct from the range. ### DEMOCRATS CUT POLITICAL PIE.

Fremont Tribune: After more than two years of violent disagreement the democrats of Nebraska have cut their political pie. The tempering party has long been in plain sight, but there has been no way for the patriots to get to it. Whenever a Bryan man approached the center Senator Hitchcock blocked the way, and whenever a Hitchcock friend made it to get away with it he found Mr. Bryan in the way.

Now that the cutting has been done it is noted that Bryan has done it so that he has been given two pieces and Hitchcock two. This has led some of the unsophisticated to say it was a compromise, but Senator Hitchcock's remarks on the situation do not carry out that idea. He is quoted as saying that inasmuch as the appointments must yet be ratified by the senate what he will do is to appoint the best man.

He got his original candidate for collector, whereas Hitchcock long ago presented the name of Chris Greuther, whom he desired for the place, above all others. Then he urged two or three more names at different times, only to have them barred by the Bryan vote. It is not likely, however, that Mr. Hitchcock will attempt to do so.
