O'Neal referred to in the following news report from San Francisco, appearing in the Sioux City Tribune, October 14, was a former Wayne veterinary, having removed from here to California: "A complete recovery from an anthrax infection simply by local application of antiseptics to the infected area of the nose was announced by the veterinarian who reported today here. In the light of the struggle against the disease by a septic treatment by physicians treating George F. Stackpole, of New York, the recovery of Dr. W. R. O'Neal, veterinarian of Newman, Cal., by local antiseptics is considered remarkable by medical men who have watched his case. Dr. O'Neal was bitten by a fly on the arm last month while conducting an autopsy on a cow which had died of anthrax, commonly calledumpy jaw. Later the anthrax bacillus appeared on the arm. He displayed the infected arm to colleagues at the time."

The Every Member Plan Committee met on Monday evening and elected a permanent organization. An every member social visit will soon be made by teams appointed by this committee. This canvass, or visit, will likely be made on the corners north and Sunday school day, November 7.

The U. B. C. S. H. desires to express its appreciation of the gift of a piano to the society by our friend and elder, Mr. David Cunningham. This is a splendid gift from a noble heart. The society has been much in need of a piano and it will prove a blessing to a large number of folks.

We desire to call attention once again to the mid-week social prayer meeting of this church. Until the first of the new year, the topics for these meetings will be found in the handbook, beginning on page 91. See on the blackboard a suggested group of themes for next year. For which do you vote?

Today is being continued. The attendance and offerings last Sunday were very satisfactory. Prof. Kemp is succeeding in making of this Sunday school a genuine educational institution. The classes are developing finely in their class organizations. There is a class for the reader this.

The sermon next Sunday morning will be on the subject: "Is the Church Losing Ground?" In the evening, the choir will give a special program to which an article invited. You cannot afford to miss this service. Please note the assembly yourselves together, as the manner of some is.

The morning sermons will start with a study of redemption and the evening sermons, with Gols' side. Both series are to be evangelistic with the hope that they will brighten the Christian experience of believers and awaken for our Christ in the regular services. Let me make this the matter of prayer and consecration.

We are glad to report a splendid attendance at Sunday school last week. The "Sunday-school program," "The Patriotism of Peace," will be given October 31. The full program will appear in next week's paper. The Epworth League had a pleasant time at their meeting on Friday evening. They will soon have another social. Remember the devotional meeting at 6:30 Sunday evening. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. Dayton at 2:30 Friday afternoon. All ladies are cordially invited to attend. Remember the prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30 each week.

A large class of applicants was received into the church last Sunday morning. Officers were elected on that Sunday. That certainly was a splendid audience at the church service last Sunday morning. Communion friends—bring your church letters with you. Others are also invited to come and worship with us. Help us grow.

A splendid gathering of the Wayne people from the various churches met to worship with the Baptist people Sunday evening at 7:30. The service was led by Brother P. Richardson who goes this week to Hastings to become pastor of the First Baptist church in that city. The wellwishes and prayers of a host of friends go with him and his family.

CEDAR COUNTY WARRANTS

Harrington Herald: The mandamus proceeding which was ordered by the court against County Treasurer Barnhart to compel him to pay warrants drawn against the county and not registered for payment was held before Judge Graves on Friday last Friday. The case was held in the nature of a test as to the position taken by the county treasurer in refusing to pay any warrants until he was satisfied as to their legality. As was stated in the Herald some time ago, Mr. Barnhart was sustained in his position by the majority of the county jury and the attorney for the bondsmen company which holds Mr. Barnhart's bond, and as will be seen from this report the matter was fully sustained by the decision of the district judge.

When the matter was submitted to the court at Pender last Friday the court held that all the warrants issued were incomplete in that there was not endorsed on the warrants the amount of the tax levied for the year 1914, nor the amount of the warrants issued against said taxes in excess of 85 per cent of the tax levied for 1914 as set forth in the schedule of taxes levied for the year of their issuance and at the present time for the reason that there were no funds on hand at that time for the payment of the warrants nor was any provision made for their payment at the time of their issuance.

A WAR COMMISSION

A Lincoln Journal-Gazette correspondent is preparing to raise its year of living by $150,000,000 a year on the strength of a whisper, but in the dark, some country or other around the corner is about to swing in the neck.

The night was dark, the sun was hid behind the mountain gray. 'Tid not a single star appeared. To show a light in the dark.

That was the small boy's chance to meet a ghost in the person of an amiable guidepost. People who need to school under the auspices of Mr. McGuffey will remember the rhyme: "We were in 'walk right up'."

We need some "walking right up to it" in the matter of this national spook. Who is about to snitch us, and why, that we must cram our pockets with pistols and our boots with bowie knives and prepare to defend ourselves? If there is danger, let us face it in daylight or electric light, not snail our eyes and whisper about stories in chimneys corners and afterward go to bed in a state of nerves to "shoot" the window pitcher or stab a fluttering window curtain.

We need a non-partisan and anti-international commission for the investigation of "snore" rattlings. These intenses says, let us man them down. These Magdalene bay nightriders have already had their awakening dash of ice water from cold brained investigators. Is it the Germans we fear? If there are any Germans left of any German war funds, after the present unpleasantness, let's send over a delegation to hire a jail in Berlin and inquire if Germany is just what it is we have that it wants. We might send an expedition to Japan to check the Japanese, then we might send one to Korea and China and back looking for Philippine trouble. If German troops are drilling in New York suburbs in readiness to take our forts from the rear at the flashing of a signal, it should be possible to probe the fact. At all events, let us be doubtful with mysteries and wild shots into the dark. It might be that this would make us done with most of our war dangers and "preparation" fevers.

FADING FLOWERS.

Fremont Tribune: The lover of flowers is certain to suffer a pang when frost comes. Ever since the early spring when a gentle breeze has ear over the soft warm earth, and when the crocus and the iris begin to peep through the soil and give their first glimpse of beauty and promise of dawning spring and coming summer, followed quickly by the lavish hues of the regal tulip, the lover of flowers has gone from one to another till the senses have become drunken with the wine of beauty. The climax of the season's show of love is in the gorgeous array in the first of the month in the pastel tints of the cosmos, in the ruby salvia, in the blood-red bloom of the canna. The waxen long and pointed leaves of the latter have grown to luxuriant habit and the bright yellow flowers are in full and level them, blighting the pride of the heart and the radiant panorama that has so long claimed the attention of the eye. It makes it impossible to witness this beauty without the world being the purity and fragrance of the maiden who is called from her entwining grasp upon the heart, but all this beauty like hers is not invincible. It makes its impressions before it is faded from the world and before it goes into operation next year. With this proposal we have no quarrel. It is a ground-hog case—the treasury is about out of meat.

IS THE PLATFORM BINDING?

Fremont Tribune: In order to back up and duck, to provide for the increasing hole in the treasury, the World-Herald approves the suggestion of Secretary McCaDo that the free-sugar provision of the deadweight burden bill be suspended before it goes into operation next year. ### The American Telephone

The United States has less than 6% of the world's population, yet it has more than 64% of all the world's telephones. The five states of Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and the Dakotas have more telephones than all Great Britain.

The City of New York has more telephones than all of France and Spain combined. Chicago has more telephones than all of Austria.

The Cost of Operating

The telephone companies in this country pay double the wages for the same kind of work that is paid in Europe, and telephone equipment costs a great deal more here.

Fully half of the European telephone exchanges are closed at night and on Sundays and holidays. It is the general rule in this country to give all-night and all-day Sunday telephone service.

When the efficiency of the service and the cost of producing it is considered, American local and long distance telephone rates are by far the lowest in the world.

THE CORRECT FROCK FOR MATINEE OR MUSICAL

New York, Oct. 20.—There are many interesting plays in town. The afternoon teas are among the social pleasures of the season. The fashions are the latest. The frock for matinee or musical is a charming array of gowns, many of them more subtle than those which fully suggest. The dark rich colors, combined with subtle tints of broadcloth and velvet are most effective and worthy-looking and the touch of fur which almost necessarily appears on some part of the gown.

The Popularity of the Jumper. Perhaps the most generally favored style of gown or blouse is the jumper; there is the little jumper bodice made with narrow shoulder straps, crossing suspender "shooping" down the back, continuing down each side of the back in straight lines. The sleeveless blouse in various styles is popular, too, with sleeves of stiff gilette, or crepe. Many of the new frocks are made of three-quarter length, long or wide sleeves, and some of them have a heavy sleeve. This is also an economical idea, as the sleeves can be varied, a pair of silk or tulle may do service for morning and by substituting a genuine of crepe, Georgette, or chiffon cloth, the same frock becomes dressy enough for afternoon wear. A very characteristic of the new frock is the use of tulle, built on fine lines, such as made with the jumper bodice, buttons in a bangle-breasted line in simulation of a vest front. This frock was accomplished by a glimpse of a tulle chiffon. Another material favored for contrasting sleeves is broadcloth, a wide crepe for morning, is made with gimp of blue cross-grain broadcloth in gold, with charmingly harmonious effect. Among the dressier afternoon frocks, the use of velvet combined in various ways, is popular. Full, loose, tulle-trimmed or plain, full, most agreeable. One charming little frock was made with the lower section of the skirt in velvet, arranged ing a decided departure. Most of the business frocks straight down the front, from the top of the collar and as general rule are made with a high collar, or are so arranged that they may be worn over the skirt.

A Word on Hats

Hats are fascinating in their quaintness this season; the crown on most of them is of a necessity, slightly with narrow brim, stiff but slightly drooping, after the manner of the Director's period. The wider brimmed hats often form a poque in front and now then a small ostrich tip or two nestles against the hair. Some of the high-crowned hats have a softening frill of lace or gauze falling over the edge of the crown, this, however, has nothing of the bierge in effect.

shired, corded, and plain, are again a part of its adornment.

The Costume Blouse. One or two thirty-dress blouses for winter with crepe Georgette or chiffon, are a necessity in a well-dressed wardrobe. It will be found economical, too, as often the suit may be worn for service for many of the most important occasions by adding accessories of the becoming costume. The new models show increasing variety. One is the high collar of the material, piped or lined with a contrasting color. The sleeve is another feature, and very ample through the elbow, but in many instances, are gathered into the armhole. This, be-

Some weeks ago we advised our readers to pick-out of their old corn...

No one knows what the season will be, and hence we venture to advise our readers to select their seed corn without delay...

We are particularly anxious about this, because if their supply fails the farmers will want to be sending south for larger and more mature corn...

All experience shows that corn does better after it has been acclimated, or rather, has adapted itself to local conditions...

Make sure of getting seed corn from your own locality, and don't hesitate to pick it green this year...

Appetizing Meats From the Central Market. Pronounced one of the most sanitary in state, compels attention and wins favor. In the array of tempting meats of all kinds, we would give special emphasis at this time to our ample stock of chickens. This market is on the alert to supply the best in chickens. Leave orders for chickens for Sunday dinners. Remember for our oysters of highest grade. Supply your table with fine, crisp celery from this market.

THE CENTRAL MARKET. F. R. DEAN, Proprietor.

On children poorly clothed and fed. When Dalhman hits the trail. Gambrines' wounds will bleed afresh. When Dalhman hits the trail. King Alcohol will turn crooked. When Dalhman hits the trail. I wish I now might name the date; I hope we won't have long to wait. 'Twill be a blessing to the state. When Dalhman hits the trail.

SANITARY. (Bixby). No more upon the streets we see. The man with whiskers (two feet) three. Down with these trickles like the dew. Great globules of tobacco juices. This is a sanitary age. When faces smooth are all the rage, And every man to health endeavor, Except Sam Deick, move his head. Some day I hope Sam will relent. And let those white whiskers wear. And bravely go about the place. With uncombed neck and face. Who's that one's counting on to save? To do as P. H. Cooper did. I think commendable indeed. His whiskers that once went to seed, Are seen no more where once they were. In triumph never since he shaved. His face, that once provoked a row, Is smooth and sanitary now, But when all such are in his class, Long life will be contagious. BIX.

REDEMPTION. (Bixby). It has been a bad week, we will have to allow. But it's not for the devil in Omaha. And the cohorts of sin are distracted. At a sight of the trail so persistently hid. Every day swells the crowd that will give us static to count on. And the devil is down with pneumonia (some). And the city I speak not these words as a josh. Will no more, as he had as she once at a laughing. It is no easy task to outgrow these habits. From their evil desires and their wicked passions. But when a man is hit by the rescue of those who are hitting the trail. They are coming each day. And it will humble the proud, it will lift up the bum. It will make the good man just as good as can be. It will strengthen the weak, to a certain degree. It will let the strong man to abandon the cup. And the soak, down and out—it will sober him up. It will strengthen the man with a powerless will. But the wretch I would say now is Bully for Bill.

DEBT OF STRENGTH. These are the days when you must not give up. Every community. That which usually blocks the progress of a community is not the surplus of weak and inefficient men. It is the debt of strength to weak men. Sometimes the person who fails to win success in commercial or other industrial pursuits are catalogued as "big failures." The really "big failures" are those who are not big. When the gods have granted you plus and you do not learn that such power was given them to use for the good of the mass of men. It is not a sign of weakness to be greedy. It is a sign of weakness to be miserly. It is not a sign of weakness to be a spender. It is a sign of weakness to be a miser. It is not a sign of weakness to be a spender. It is a sign of weakness to be a miser. It is not a sign of weakness to be a spender. It is a sign of weakness to be a miser.

THE 1915 WHEAT CROP. Wallace's Farmer: One of the London trade papers, which specializes on the grain trade, and which is noted for its careful estimates. It has estimated that the total wheat crop for the year 1915 is 4,150,000,000 bushels, as compared with 3,700,000,000 bushels last year. The total world wheat crop in 1913 was almost but not quite as large as indicated for the year 1915. The estimated wheat crop for Great Britain, Canada, Australia, and India is so large that the indications are that England will not have to draw heavily on the United States for her wheat. Of course, it may be that this London organ of the grain trade is not so judicious, and is either consciously or unconsciously overestimating the probable wheat crop. If the estimates of this paper are correct, there will be more wheat raised in 1915 than in any year since 1913. In 1913, when the yield was almost as great as this year, the September price of cash wheat in Chicago varied from 88 cents to 95 cents, and during the months from January to July, inclusive, it averaged 90 cents, or less than 90 cents per bushel. The indications are for a slightly larger crop this year than in 1913; but with the year going on, it would seem as though wheat prices had just about reached their lowest level. However, the crop is large this year and this, combined with the possibility of Great Britain securing a large part of her supply from home sources, may leave the United States with an uncomfortably large surplus with the result that prices will decline even more. Whether the wheat farmer holds his wheat till next spring or sells it now, he is to some extent gambling.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGNS. "No man does his best as often as he thinks he will. Possibly one might also refer to a white slave case as chicken stealing. There is no perfect man, and if there were he'd probably prove very dull and tiresome. Some of the best sellers tend to lower one's estimation of the well known human race. After a man has met three or four discouragements down town in the course of a day, he hates to have some one remark that Rome wasn't built in a day.

COUNTY ATTORNEY'S WIFE MADE HAPPY. Wife of Former County Attorney Finds Quick Relief at First Dose—Thousands Are Restored. David G. Himes, former county attorney of Stanton County, Neb., was an attorney of prominence in Des Moines. It is one of the many who have discovered the wonderful merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Himes had long been a sufferer from indigestion and general weakness. She tried many of the best remedies. Then came the wonderful remedy. She had the following letter: "I have received the medicine you shipped me a few days ago, and my whole system is feeling new and bright. I am an absolute guarantee—if not satisfied my money will be returned."

COME ON IN. (Bixby). There'll be rejoicing everywhere When Dalhman hits the trail; The old rough-neck bunch will swear. When Dalhman hits the trail. The old Third ward of Omaha Will sense the change and feel the draw. And there'll be more respect for law. When Dalhman hits the trail. I shall be first to go to him. When Dalhman hits the trail. And say, "May heaven bless you Jim." When Dalhman hits the trail. The victor may not like the game. But derent people, just the same. Will pay due honor to his name. When Dalhman hits the trail. When Dalhman hits the trail. From hence the devil will withdraw. When Dalhman hits the trail. Nor show his face in Omaha, When Dalhman hits the trail. The light of hope its rays will shed. On mothers who have toiled for bread.

SEED CORN

Wallace's Farmer: We did not say much about seed corn this time last year, because the weather conditions were such as to almost insure the viability of corn, provided the farmer was not careless in his selection. We have had no complaint of seed corn not germinating this year. There will likely be a different story to tell another year, unless farmers are vigilant. The season in the corn belt has been wet and cold, for the

 A motion was made by Gildersleeve and seconded by Harrison that the street and alley committee be directed to prepare if possible a plat of the owners of lots 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18, in block 12, of the original town of Wayne for a sanitary sewer over and upon the back-end of said lots, and to carry out the same.

On motion the board of health and zoning folks to inspect and purchase and suggest whether they have had as good opportunities as she has had or not.
 We know that a very small percent of the farm-horn of either sex can ever go to college. We know that a small percent, though a larger one, will ever go to high school. We see this estimated at five per cent, but don't know whether that figure is correct. Therefore, the bulk of the education of the farm-herd must be in the rural school. If they are to be contented and happy, that education in the rural school must be in terms of farm life and in the spirit of the farm. It must be something that will help to make them contented and happy on the farm.
 We have the time will come when the rural school will teach at least the rudiments of domestic economy and the principles of the household occupations. Some of them are doing it now. Farmers ought not to be satisfied until they all do it. They will not get the worth of their school money until this is done.
 It is the farmer who is interested in his farming, who reads everything he can get on the subject, mixes it with common sense, and works it out in a practical way, is not likely to live very happily with a wife who has no care for the household farming, who cares nothing about housekeeping. She is not apt to be much company for her husband, and vice versa. We cannot neglect one without injuring the other, for neither has any sense, together and together they will never. We remember the old nursery rhyme: "Jack and Jill went up the hill To fetch a pail of water. Jack fell down and broke his crown And Jill came tumbling after." What young people need is a wider view of life—the happiness in this world that comes from work well done. If they do not have about the same ideas of life and work, the same sense of duty, and live happily together, the farmer's wife is more than his cook and housekeeper and the mother of his children. She is his companion for life. If there be no mutuality in their hearts and hopes, and if they will be robbed of their chief joys.

EDUCATE THE FARM GIRL
 Wallace's Farmer: We are now beginning to understand that farming is not a man's job, but a woman's job more than just working on a farm. It means work plus intelligence to guide that work. It means more than throwing any kind of feed to any kind of live stock. It is the labor plus the intelligence to give the right kind of live stock the right kind of feed at the right time, the kind needed at the different stages of development.
 We are pretty well agreed that the farm boy needs an education, not necessarily a college education, nor even a high school education. Neither of these is worth much unless it fits him for the work of his life. We are pretty well agreed that the farm girl needs an education that will enable him to do his life's work successfully with the maximum of intelligence and the minimum of unnecessary labor.
 Every woman offered as to why the farm boy should be educated for his work in life applies with equal force to the farm girl. We all admit this so far as reading, writing and arithmetic are concerned. We are far enough advanced for that. Some other nations are not. They do not think of the girls who need education of any kind, and in those countries the situation of womanhood is pitiable in the extreme. They are servants, degrades, breeding stock, that's all. We are taking out that material, the girl as well as the man, and just a little smarter in many lines than the boy, and usually more industrious and honest. She has just as much right to an education as he. We are to educate the boys, whether in the common school, the high school, the college, or the university, and give them larger fields of human life, we must educate the girls, and give them a right to live happily. They will marry by and by, and the heavy burden of maternity will fall upon the girls in addition to the burdens of housekeeping and homekeeping. They are to be married, whether they must not be "unequally yoked together." The farmer has a right to expect of his wife that she be not merely a good housekeeper and a good mother to his children, but that she may be truly a companion for him. To be this, she must have substantially the same education as the same knowledge, but the same sort of mental training that will enable her to get the kind of education that she requires for her work.

 She does not need to know anything about chemistry of farming for live stock—that's his business. She need not be a generalist, but she must be able to use the results of the work of the chemist. She needs to know something about balanced rations for babies and youngsters; for the hobbled and his sister, as well as for the horse and cow. Therefore, while he needs education about farming, she needs education in order to be a housekeeper. She needs an education that will fit him for the society of the best farmers in the community, and for the society of the man who presumes to teach him. She needs an education that will enable her to take influence with the best people of the community and to help the women and young folks to live happily and contentedly, and suggest whether they have had as good opportunities as she has had or not.

LOST MONEY LAST YEAR
 Wallace's Farmer: Last year was one of the hardest years we have ever known for feeders of live stock. The phenomenal advance of wheat to a dollar and a half pushed at the breaking-out of the war raised sympathy the price of corn, as it always does, and increased the cost of production. The result was that the present low prices of provisions as compared with hog prices. If the packers' trust had been satisfied with moderate profits, and the shipping interests had been satisfied with like profits, and had not been attempting to make unjust profits out of the necessities of the warring nations, the farmers in the corn belt would not have met with tremendous losses that they suffered last winter.

 We do not wonder that the packers met with scant favor in dealing with the British cows, especially when they were endeavoring so to appear to deceive the government that had insisted on their export to the destination of their cargo. The British government has dealt in the same way with the coal kings and the big manufacturing industries. They have simply not permitted them to grow rich at the expense of the common people, and have sided with their own people. In the end it does not pay either the packers or anybody else to play the hog and raise the price of the necessities of other human beings.

Mr. Runciman was explaining to the house of commons the methods turned to North America and French armies. He made this significant statement: "We don't allow the American meat trust to get all the profit, nor the ship owners to get all the profit." Mr. Runciman had his early training in shipping, and hence knew how to meet the situation. When the British government, at the outbreak of the war, was ready to make big contracts for meat in Argentina, and found the supply of both countries under the control of a small body of American packers, he considered the price asked by these gentlemen excessive, it was requisitioned all the vessels engaged in the beef trade between America and England, and sent them off to Australia. The Australian government took control of all the beef and mutton produced in that country, and loaded it on ships at cost price. In short, the British government said to the packers, in effect: "You ask too much money. We won't let the price. We don't have to let the price be raised by the country in the next twelve months at a cost of $250,000,000."

This explains why fat cattle were sold at the price of feeders during the winter months. It also explains the present low prices of provisions as compared with hog prices. If the packers' trust had been satisfied with moderate profits, and the shipping interests had been satisfied with there would still be a profitable margin.

 Men who sold their cattle in May or June realized a fair profit, but those who sold during the winter months pocketed a dead loss, selling their fat cattle at about the price per pound they paid for feeders, and realizing less from the sale of them than they would have realized for the corn they fed them.
 Mr. Runciman, president of the British Board of Trade, has thrown a great deal of light on this question, and also on that question, as to why the price of live hogs and hog profits has been lower than the price of hogs would seem to justify.
 Mr. Runciman was explaining to the house of commons the methods turned to North America and French armies. He made this significant statement: "We don't allow the American meat trust to get all the profit, nor the ship owners to get all the profit."

THE CLASS NEWSPAPER
 Lincoln Journal: A million dollar company has been formed for the purpose of launching a number of Catholic daily newspapers.
 Science Master of Boston, the first paper of the new chain. The Daily-Estate, will begin publication in Chicago on the first of January. The preliminary announcements indicate that it is not to be a church organ but it is to attempt to fill the need for a clean, well-edited and properly conducted newspaper for the home. Presumably the new publication will command a higher subscription price than the average metropolitan daily and will thus be more free from the space excursions of the advertiser. For twenty-five years the trend of the newspaper has been toward universality. Every important daily paper has seemed to seek to enter every home in its field, regardless of the diversity in the tastes and requirements of the people. Under this ambition the newspaper has taken of the nature of the department store, steadily growing in size and variety of content, and inviting each reader to select from its pages the things he most particularly desires. The cost of the product under this system has grown enormously, while the tenacity of the subscription price has at the same time been downward.

The success of the proposed Catholic newspaper may mean that in time we shall return in a measure to the smaller newspaper prepared to meet the wants of a particular class of readers. It is an interesting experiment and upon its outcome will depend many things in the future of the newspaper publishing business.

Methodist Church Notes.
 (Rev. J. Bruce Wylie, Pastor.)
 We are now very comfortably seated in the parsonage home provided for us. Very attentive audiences greeted the pastor at each service last Sunday. We noted an increase in attendance over the previous Sunday at both the Winside church and Grace church. The attendance is not yet what it should be, and we hope to see a steady gain along all lines of church activity.

This is our first experience in Sunday afternoon preaching, and with three sermons, two Sunday school classes and Epworth League, the time is fully occupied.

Every one is cordially invited to all the services of the church.

Obituary.
 Catherine Arthur was born in North Wales, February 21, 1844, and died at her home in Carroll, Neb., October 19, 1915, being aged 71 years, 7 months, 22 days. Her parents sailed for America when she was but four weeks old, coming to Louisiana, La. She was one of six children and was taken by an aunt, with whom she remained until four years of age, when she returned to her parents.
 In 1873 she was married to John Williams who served four years in the Civil war and died in 1879. To this union were born four daughters, three of whom survive as follows: Mrs. Elizabeth J. Williams of Carroll, Neb., Mrs. Ella Holmes of Norfolk, Neb., and Mrs. Marie Morris of Chicago, Ill.

In 1885 she was married to the Rev. Samuel Jones. They resided in Montgomery county, Mo., for four years, after which she moved to Cleveland, Io., where Rev. Jones was in charge of the Congregational church. From there the family moved to Wagner, Neb., which point Rev. Jones served as pastor of the Welsh Congregational church, west of Carroll. The family moved to Carroll in 1898, at which place they resided until death came. Rev. Samuel Jones died February 19, 1914.

Mrs. Jones buried with the church in her early childhood remaining a devoted member. She was also an active member of the W. C. T. U. and was always interested in temperance progress, especially after her experience as a pastor's wife in a mining camp.
 She passed bravely through the struggle of widowhood and knew how to trust in divine providence. The twenty-third Psalm was her favorite scripture. She reared her family to love and serve God, which evidence is truly manifested by the surviving members.
 The funeral services were held from the Methodist church at 2:30 Sunday afternoon with interment in the Central cemetery. The floral offerings were many and beautiful and showed the esteem in which Mrs. Jones was held. The sorrowing family have the sympathy of their many friends in their hour of bereavement.

The social part of the evening was spent in interesting games. For instance, each person was instructed to act on his particular hobby in pantomime and the remaining were to figure out what it was. The meeting closed with a delicious luncheon of ice cream and cake served by Mrs. Jones. Members prophesy great success for the club as it is both instructive and enjoyable.

Tuesday evening of last week the seniors enjoyed an auto ride to the John Peterson home to visit Miss Gora Peterson, one of their former members. The time was spent in pleasant talk and several different pictures of the class were taken by Prof. Jones. Before leaving, the party was treated to a dainty lunch by Mrs. Petersen.
