moral character was evidenced during his week's stay in our city. The weather was rather unfavorable during the week, but for all that the attendance was good. The company opened and closed in a rain, but the people here have become accustomed to rain that much, and it did not mar the pleasure of the best with their pleasure, and Under has again maintained her well known reputation for being the best town in the state for turning out large crowds when there is an opportunity to obtain amusement and pleasure. Paralysis

Is there a part of your body that is paralyzed? Do you lose hope and think you will never again regain the full use of that part?

When the vertebra (B) gets wrenched out of place as shown in illustration it pinches the nerves that supply the motive force which results in paralysis. Rubbing, serums and electric treatments will not restore the nerve control. The pressure on the nerve must be relieved by chiropractic adjustments. Come up to my office and let me prove to you why the spine is the seat of all diseases.

Do you think you are obliged to spend the rest of your life paralyzed? This new science opens a new road to health.

The Cost of Progress

Constantly the Bell Telephone System spends large sums of money in scientific, experimental and research work, pursuant to the policy of always providing the best.

In the working out of complex scientific and engineering problems alone, the Bell System has a staff of more than 500 skilled engineers, the graduates of seventy American and foreign universities.

New Telephone Inventions

Hundreds of improvements in switchboards, cables, and long distance lines have been made the last few years to better the service, and all has been done so quietly and without disturbance to telephone users, that the public has hardly realized they were going on.

Since work began on the Panama Canal, the Bell Telephone System has spent twice as much money on extensions and improvements as it cost the government to buy the right-of-way and build the canal.

Fifty neighbors gathered at the home of Claude Forney, east of Wayne, last Thursday evening and surprised themselves and their friends with a party. The guests carried delicious refreshments and spent the evening with music and social amenities, and the evening ended with a very happy one.

The Young People's class of the Methodist Sunday school is planning a Halloween social to be held in the parsonage beginning at eight o'clock Friday evening of this week. All of the members of the class, all of the members of the church and Sunday school and all other young people who have a preference for the Methodists are invited. There will be a small item of expense in which all will have an opportunity to share.

The members of the Acme club and their husbands were entertained at a Halloween party at the home of Mrs. T. H. Britell Monday evening. In compliance with the request on the invitation each guest gave their friends a ghost. Another ghost conducted the guests upstairs and relieved them of their wraps. The rooms were appropriately decorated in the Halloween spirit. Delicious refreshments were served. Members of the entertainment committee: Mrs. J. H. Britell, Mrs. S. R. Theobald, Mrs. W. R. Weber, Mrs. M. S. Davies, Mrs. C. T. Inglish and Mrs. H. M. Crawford.

BILLY SUNDAY

Lincoln Journal. Seven weeks in the vicinity of Billy Sunday has probably convinced most Nebraskans that the evangelist who has become so much the vogue justifies neither the faith of his converts nor the doubts of the "skeptics." Mr. Sunday has not turned Omaha upside down. Many a next winter's winter revival will come closer to ripping up a community. Mr. Sunday tackled a larger job, but in a short way. His people are such that he is able to organize the church forces of a large community with a thoroughness which in the past has been matched only by political organizations. This despite the roughness of the task set for him by Coughlin he has produced marked results. If he is not invincible, he is also not a failure. Closer contact with Sunday has oftened the harsher impressions which one gets from his printed words. It is less offensive to be called a knave by Billy Sunday in person than to your back. The personal good nature of the man justifies the roguishness of his words. One may honestly doubt whether Mr. Sunday is put on the bench, would he possibly doubt to help with the freedom in the pulpit he ascribes to the people worse than his first. A year from now should tell the tale.

THE FIELD OF BUSINESS.

St. Louis City Journal, Oct. 25: Another contribution toward the restoration of normal international exchange conditions was made last week when a large shipment of gold from London via Halifax was delivered in New York. This shipment amounted to $25,000,000 and another of the same size is said to be under way. Important news in Halifax has been that Macgregor's $85,000,000 gold transferred from Ottawa, the importations of gold for the year aggregate $140,000,000. Between gold shipments, securities shipments and the recent credit loan of $50,000,000, it cannot be to their Creator. No doubt there said that the Foreign financiers are in giving their best to meet the financial emergency created by the result of his visit. But that will lodge it trans-Atlantic trade situation. However, the balance of trade in favor of the United States continues to accumulate, and it is evident that further emergency measures will have to be taken from time to time. The department of commerce has just issued a statement of our foreign trade for September. It shows that our exports for that month totaled $297,000,000, an increase over September, 1914, of $141,000,000. As our September exports amounted to only $151,000,000, the balance of trade in our favor for the month was $146,000,000. If our foreign trade should continue on the same scale month by month, which of course, it is unsafe to assume, the balance in our favor for a twelve-month would reach the enormous total of $1,756,000,000. The liquidation of such a balance would offer a problem as big as the financiers of both sides of the Atlantic indulged in long, hard head scratching. Another foreign customer appeared in the New York money market last week. Only twenty-a credit friends and foes are disputing the value of his work remain to be seen. UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

THE CRAZY WAR
When the flags have ceased to flutter over ambush, siege and rout, then perhaps the kings will mutter, "We have wasted all our scrap about the stars and stripes. The land under heaven has been a dandy war, but the time has come to wonder what, in billion years it is for? Now that for a little season we have ceased our gory fun, we'll have time to find a reason for the absurd things we've done." They'll have time, the kings and princes, to ransack each royal mind, but a reason that convinces will be mighty hard to find. For a while they will endeavor, each to vindicate his cause, but with time exacting will never from a throne be hauded down. If an honest, candid knight told the truth, he would declare, "By my halidom and celer, we were leaded up for bear; at each other we'd been yelling, springing, walling threat and curse, and we had to do some scarping, just to show we had the nerve. We were wild and we were woolly, on such a shouter was a whip, and we had to get the hairy, or not forest we were in our grip." Till the reeking cannon-flinger, and there is no sign of peace, and the sickened nations wonder what's become of the police.

CONFIDENCE

I know a man who bruits, for snakes, and kills them for their grease. He says 'twill cure rheumatic aches, and make you anguish. He has tried it on a number of his own sort-of-virtue-ous, who will not cure the pains that coil around your joints and bones. But this old-guy-who kills the snakes has never had a doubt; he says, all other cures are false, when he tries this about. He is so everlasting sure that what he says is true, that even skeptics buy his 'cure', to see if it will do. And so it keeps him waiting hard, the keen demand to meet, and he has bought with his money a home on East Street. If you believe in what you sell, have faith in what you say, in that same avenue you'll dwell upon a future day. If one is not supremely sure that what he makes for sells better than competitors' loo, his eloquence will fail. A man can tell me setting-bees, or swarms of bumble bees, or double action fountain pens, or cures for housemaids' knees, if he's confident that what he sells beats anything around; that sort of salesman's wearing bells wherever he is found.

YOUR OWN TOWN

I sing in the gloaming a dirge that is worth while sparrows are combing the chaff from my beard. The theme of my dirge is (in rhyme) the decay of the nation, the wherein I abide. Because I would slumber while others savel wood, I am a back lumber, I haven't made good. An object of pity, I stand by the pump, and swear that the city has gone to the dumps. It's dead and decaying, a man has no show. I always am saying so, I go, to scout for a handout from some kitchen wench; for I am so fat and out-I'm back on the benches. As a city is ailing, which sees my distress, the charges who are greedy have made a success. They say it's the town full of vim, but men who are lazy can't get in the swim. Some of 'em are under-wood, I am, and sometimes I wonder if I can't go to live. If fellows less well-off, less gifted than I, can thrive in this city, and fatten on pie, then why am I hasted and down at the heel, and asking disgusted birds (eggs) for a meal? The answer has terror. It's dead now, it's right that I'm in error: the town is all right!

THE 1915 CORN CROP

Wallace's Farmer: The frosts the night of the 7th and 8th of October have stopped effectually the growth of the corn crop of this year over all the corn belt except possibly the extreme southern part. The 'corn crop' is made light. Farmers expected and hoped for two or three weeks of favorable weather, without frost, but it didn't they were disappointed, and are now hoping for two or three weeks of dry weather, so as to get rid of the water surplus. The crop, as planted in June, even in southern Iowa, was caught by the frost in the roasting ear stage. Fortunate is the man who has a silo in which he can utilize this roasting ear corn. It will make good feed for stock. In fact, that is the best thing that can be done with it. Even in the early planted fields, and on ground naturally well drained, while the bulk of the crop is fairly secure, much of it will be found to be chaffy and contain a relatively small percentage of dry matter. And it is the dry matter that puts fat on the steer and the pig, not the water that is in the corn.

Iowa seems to have been hardest hit this year. Minnesota and Wisconsin plant an early variety of corn, and it is relatively farther ahead than in northern Iowa, where farmers have not yet got over the habit of planting corn too early for the harvest. The normal season furnishes. It will probably take two or three years like this to get them to see that they should not grow corn that demands a greater number of heat units than the climate will furnish during the season. Iowa has fared better with Iowa, and will, we think, exceed Iowa in its yield. Nebraska and Kansas have both fared better. While they have had moisture above the normal this year, they have had a good deal less than Iowa and some parts of Illinois. The quality of the corn will depend largely upon the weather during the latter part of this month and the next. The weather should be weather should be cold and damp, of the general character of what we have had during the season, this corn will not be sufficiently dry to feed profitably. For while, as was stated in an article published in our previous week's season, the dry matter of soft-corn is equal pound for pound to the dry matter of mature corn. It will not be good feed if fed while frozen. It would be asking too much for the best stock to furnish heat enough to thaw out corn before it can be digested; and ordinarily the best does not do it, but simply passes it on.

What shall we do with the corn? The best case that can be made of soft corn is to feed it; and here comes in the difficult problem as to what it can be fed to at a profit. The high price of feeders and the low price of fat cattle last fall will make farmers and feeders cautious in buying this year. The price of feeders is about the same as it was last year. Let us hope that the price of fat cattle will be at least equal to the prices in May and June, which would give a fair chance of feeding at a profit. It depends on the foreign market for means. Let us hope that the experience of last year will not be repeated when the British government—finding that the packers here aid in the recovery of the market by exorbitant prices—resorted to the cheaper meats of Australia.

In the eastern states, although the season has had a surplus of rain, the crop reached a fuller maturity. We saw farmers cutting up corn in Pennsylvania about the 25th of September, and it was apparently almost as mature as the corn crop in Iowa on the 5th of October. The acreage and high price of feeders and the progress of foot and mouth disease in Illinois, which has stopped outgoing shipments from the Chicago stock yards, make the problem still more difficult than it would be if normal conditions prevailed. What has been said of cattle may also be said of sheep. Sheep feeding is also the only live stock feeding that furnished the farmer any profit last year. This has led to high prices, which give sheep feeders cause to believe they invest very largely.

The cattle country in the west will this year be able to feed more of its own cattle than heretofore for abundant rains have given them big crops and have also given them a better corn crop and larger yields of feeding stuffs, such as sorghum, kafir and milo make, than they had heretofore. Many thousands look for a larger number of cattle to be finished in the grain region, and have a better number to be shipped east. Take it altogether, the farmer will have to do some serious thinking, being certain of just what he has a crop of corn left feeding his herd that will be satisfactory. It is not certain, and a high price for feeding steers, while the markets of the future are unsettled because of the great war, which is affecting us in more ways than are apparent on the surface.

LINCOLN MAN SAVES HIS WIFE

Mrs. Anna A. Dahl of Lincoln Restored When Husband Gave Her Wonderful Remedy.
Death was close upon Mrs. Anna A. Dahl of 1430 P street, Lincoln, Neb. She was 81 years old and had been so long afflicted with derangements of the digestive tract. In fact, at times she was so ill that she knew nothing of what was going on about the sick room. She recovered most marvelously. The treatment that she underwent saved her when she was so sick she did not know until after she furnished a note to the doctor. The stomach remedy, given to her by her thoughtful husband, was MAYR'S Wonderful Remedy for the Stomach and Bowels. Mrs. Dahl's good letter, tells of her experience: "I feel so grateful to you I can't express my feelings on paper. I will make a great effort to see you personally soon. My treatment commenced while I was too sick to realize anything but the terrible pain. My husband told me I passed at least a thousand gall stones, of all shapes and sizes." "I'll I know—I have only taken one bottle and I feel better than for years." MAYR'S Wonderful Remedy gives permanent relief for stomach, nervous, intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distressing attacks in an hour. It cleanses the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on about a dozen cases. If a cattle factory money will be returned.

This Week We Have Many New Goods to Show You

New Coats of Corduroy and Plush $12.50 to $20

The most popular and hardest to get coats on the market today are velvet corduroys, and plushes, both with and without trimming. This week we were fortunate enough to receive twenty-six of these desirable coats, which we ordered in September. They are mostly belted styles, with plain or fur collars, and come in navy, brown, dark green, gray and black. They are just the coats everyone is looking for and if you would be sure of getting one, come soon. At $12.50 to $20.00, they are splendid, stylish coats.

Girls' Worsted Dresses

This shipment of dresses came in from New York Monday. They are the same well made, perfect fitting kind of dresses that you have been buying here for years. There are pretty styles that will please you and the girls, neat trimmings, good linings, deep ditch hems that will permit lengthening of the dress for another year's wear, and moderate prices. $1.00 to $4.00.

New Dress Skirts at $4 to $10

Most of these new skirts are $6.00 to $7.50, a few plain serges are $4.00 and a very few fine silk faille ones at $10.00. You have dozens to choose from in poplin and broadcloth, at $6.75 to $7.50, in every size up to 36 waist. The young folks will find some fifty new novelties in big plaids and in plain colored skirts; piped with white. We make all the alterations necessary to insure a perfect fit without extra charge.

New Waists of Silk and Voile

Silk crepe waists in white, main, flesh, gray and navy blue at $2.50 to $3.50. Messaline waists in black, brown, navy and hunters green at $3.00. Wash silk waists in white ground, with pretty stripes at $2.50. White voile waists, neatly embroidered, and trimmed with fine faces at $1.25 and $1.50. Everyone fresh from the factory in Philadelphia, the very newest styles and favored materials.

More New Shoes for the Girls

They will be here today—pretty patent shoes with cloth tops, both lace and button; velvet top shoes with white buttons; stout gun-metal boots for school wear, and good kid shoes with patent tips—all guaranteed to wear, and all priced very reasonably.

From the Wayne Herald-Tribune, October 28, 1886:
An attempt to organize an A. O. U. W. lodge was unsuccessful.
Market prices: Wheat, 43 cents; oats, 10 cents; corn, 16 cents; hogs, $3.00; cattle, $3.25.
Frank Martin while going home on horseback ran his horse into a barbed wire fence at night, and suffered some bad injuries.
E. M. Smith, Wm. Dutcher, H. Meyers, E. R. Chace, J. H. Brown, J. Bennett and A. S. Almer were hunting along the Missouri.
Rev. J. W. Linn of Denver, visited his brothers here. He preached Sunday morning in the Methodist church and in the evening at the Presbyterian church.

Ponca Journal, November 1, 1888:
The Halloween festivities last night were not so extensive as in former years. A few gales wandered off their hinges and a few business houses swapped signs, but there was no such general and wholesale helter-skelter as took place last year.
Down in Dakota county the democratic party anticipate a majority this year of about 500. The entire tribe of Winnebago Indians have been converted to democracy, and will vote that ticket straight. Last year the price for Indian votes was one dollar per head. This year, in view of the presidential election, the market price at date of copper coin was $1.25 per head. Hence high as $1.25 per head.

At these figures it is expected the Winnebago fellow citizens will vote with great enthusiasm.
The concert of the colored troupe on Tuesday evening at the opera house was very good and was attended by a large audience. The audience was not large at the opera house, but there was a large concourse of listeners on Mr. Snow's adjacent roof. They went up there by means of a ladder, and then one, fearing they might fall or take cold, took the ladder away and the audience on the roof was therefore detained in that lofty and breezy situation until the small hours of the night, when the ladder was found and they all came down.

SEED CORN.
Wallace Farmer, as our readers know, we have been apprehensive all summer of a shortage of good seed corn for next year's crop—so much so that in July we suggested to our readers that they select from the crop of 1914, which was in general excellent, enough corn to plant their crop next year. Not that they should necessarily plant it, but lay it aside as an insurance against possible shortage of seed corn from this year's crop.
We have urged farmers not to be too late in selecting their seed corn from the field, but to select good ears before there was any great danger of frost, even though they were immature, dry them out carefully and keep them dry, so as to be certain of seed that would readily germinate under any conditions next spring. We suggested that this seed might not look very nice, as it would shrink and shrivel; but if the germ is sound, it will grow—and viability or the power to grow, is the necessary thing. We hope our readers have followed this suggestion.

Many no doubt have gathered their seed corn long before this; but the question has often asked: Will seed selected after the frost has hit the corn germinate, if properly dried out? We think that depends on the severity of the frost. In some sections the weather was so severe that blades were killed, but the ground was frozen; and if the stalk has been frozen so that there is no movement of sap, it might be a question as to whether the germ was not also killed.

We cannot afford to take any chances next year. Select the best seed corn you can, and plenty of it, and dry it out as rapidly as possible. Where it can be struck on a pin or nail on some sort of a rack, permitting free circulation of air around each ear, it will dry out; but there must be free movement of air. If the weather is pretty cold, we would advise the use of artificial heat; but don't undertake to use artificial heat with green corn in bulk, or you will set it to growing in the ear.

Once having dried out your corn, keep it dry. We once had seed corn selected early and perfectly dried, spoiled by being in an open shed on two or three foggy days in February, followed by a sharp freeze. There is not much danger of freezing weather killing the germ of corn, if it is perfectly dry and kept dry, but the corn and cob will absorb moisture in foggy weather, and a freeze may kill the germination on part of the ear. It is a long time ahead to talk about the corn crop of 1916, but every farmer knows that it depends very materially on the quality of the seed, and hence one had better take his chances.

PATHEIC INCIDENT.
Harrington Herald: Speaking of the death of the late Geo. W. Witse of Randolph, the writer now recalls a rather pathetic incident which happened not very long ago. In January of 1914, when the republicans of Cedar county met in convention, the writer, who at that time was chairman of the county central committee, was battling for life in a hospital at Sioux City. Geo. W. Witse was chairman of the convention, and on notion of the delegates, he and the secretary, E. F. Robinson, sent a telegram of sympathy and encouragement to the absent chairman. We recall it as if it were yesterday. Sister brought it in just at supper time, and although the writer was so weak that he could scarcely hold the scrap of paper, the telegram cheered him tremendously, and accordingly he went back to the hospital to recover. And now the chairman of the convention, Geo. W. Witse, who helped to frame that message of sympathy and good will, has himself passed on, the great divide at whose brink the writer was trembling in the balance on that hot July day.

When Baby Has the Croup.
When a mother is awakened from sound sleep to find her child who has gone to bed apparently in the best of health struggling for breath, she is naturally alarmed. Yet if she can keep her presence of mind and give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy every ten minutes until vomiting is produced, quick relief will follow and the child will drop to sleep to awaken in the morning as well as ever. This remedy has been in use for many years with uniform success. Obtainable everywhere.—Adv.

THE JOKER AGAIN. It is stated by its owner is the gross income of the Nebraska Farmer. Tenant farmers come minus expenses and 5 per cent. The large landowner farmer income than interest on the capital, which includes land-owning farmers and better returns than interest on the capital. But 5 per cent on their capital than landowners. Professor Filley in his article in this paper—and the present article—proof that what he says is true. The interest on the capital is 5 per cent. If it amounts to which rent amounts to 33 per cent, on the less than the going rate of interest advantage of the tenant farmer in such investments, it means simply labor income disappears at once. In fact, the land is capitalized beyond its present producing value, but its value is not at a disadvantage in the marriage of the tenant farmer. The tenant farmer is squeezed out of his land value. One thing should be kept in mind in connection with the apparent returns to land-owning farmers and landlords, and that is that if they receive a large percentage return because the price of land is so high, it is because rent is less than the going rate of interest that the labor income of the tenant farmer is greater than that of the land-owning farmer. The labor income of a tenant farmer is the gross income minus rent, expenses and 5 per cent interest on the capital of the tenant. The labor income of a landowner is the gross income minus expenses and 5 per cent interest on the value of the land owned.

the value higher and leaves the rate as low as ever.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

Lincoln Journal. With last year's radical slump in the price of gasoline the high cost of living ceased for the moment to be a paramount issue in America. Now that a good touring car can be had at less than $1,000 and can be run five miles per cent. worth of gas, the problem of getting a living is not perceived. The tariff has ceased to trouble, for as the Dry Goods Economist observes, nobody buys clothing any more. The farmers, too, are not troubled, for the price of foodstuffs is in the dumps. The trusts, our erstwhile persecutors, are mostly busy now getting high prices for instruments of destruction—oil to Europe.

But we are not done with the high cost of living question. In the nature of things it is bound to hark upon us with redoubled weight and soon it will trouble Europe most grievously.

There are a thousand and one reasons for the "high cost of living." The inaudible cause, however, is always the existence of human beings in excess of the things needed. If everything worked as it should, the supply of labor would be just what the demand is, and the price of labor would be just what the price of goods is. As it is, however, the supply of labor is in excess of the demand, and the price of labor is high. This is the reason why the price of goods is high. The price of goods is high because the price of labor is high. The price of labor is high because the supply of labor is in excess of the demand.

But for a year past, as we all see, a very great proportion of the energy of the human race has gone into efforts which produce nothing but which increase the cost of living much by which they live. In the United States we have not done this to more than the usual extent, but we are preparing to go farther. Our army and navy are to be radically increased. This means the withdrawal of larger numbers of men from the production of useful goods and the employment of their energies in destructive operations. Our factories will be closed and the backs to be clothed remain the same, the number of people depended upon to produce the food and the clothing is less. This means less supply in relation to demand, and a higher cost of living for everybody.

We can easily see that a crop failure increases the cost of living. Experience frequently shows that the days of our country are marked by such a general loss of military expenses, including pensions, up to about $650,000,000 a year. The economic effect is this equivalent to throwing two-thirds of this year's American wheat crop into the sea, or to a two-thirds total failure of a wheat crop. We are planning to waste it but a drop in the bucket as compared with Europe's military wastes. These wastes are the equivalent of this year's American wheat crop. The coming cost of living in Europe is to be not only high, but practically prohibitive. Ours will be higher, and though we will not have to live and go to the moving picture show our cries of anguished protest will shortly be ascending to the skies.

COMING ELECTIONS.

Lincoln Journal. With no election of its own to remind it, Nebraska is likely to overlook the several state elections of general interest which come next Tuesday. Massachusetts elects a governor, Florida elects a governor, and California elects a governor. The question of a non-partisan state government is a matter of importance. The legislature should carry out its duties for congress, for party politics should not be allowed to influence the elections in California. The question of national party nominations and designations. This would make California the first of the big four to break away from its traditional national politics. Ten other questions, most of them relating to procedure, will also be passed on by the California electorate.

The Lost Jewels of a Mandarin

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Richard Durwent looked gloomily around the disordered library, which had lost its accustomed air of quiet repose. Packing cases stood everywhere, and the empty bookshelves projected their contents had been transferred.

The big mahogany table in the middle of the room was littered with various articles, and among them lay a small box. Richard Durwent had been making an inventory of the contents of the room and had been putting in the pack when he had discovered that the box did not bear to suit with Durwent, traveler and explorer, had been an unexplained acquisition, and he gave it to himself. The box was made of a hard wood and the lid was bound with leather. The lock was a simple one, and he turned it with a key which he found in the box.

He opened the box and found that it contained a small bundle wrapped in paper. The paper was torn and the bundle was scattered about the room. SAVINGS SERMONETTE

NUMBER TWENTY-SIX

Mechanics and Laborers

Mechanics and laborers could frequently spare something from their daily earnings to lay up against a rainy day—to provide a future home or to secure any other advantage to be obtained with money. A small sum deposited each week and allowed to accumulate, will finally amount to a large one, and allow some desirable purchase to be made which might otherwise never be accomplished.

When they place their money in a savings account they know that it is safe, it can get it when they want it, it is earning something all the time and they will have no trouble in collecting their interest or principal.

Money in the bank is more than money—it is character. The man with a bank account is seldom out of work. His ability is recognized, it makes him a good workman and he is looked upon as a reliable man.

FUR TRIMMED SUITS AND ROCKS OF SERGE

New York, Oct. 25.—The early days of November with their brisk winds call for not only thoughtful millinery, but also suitable outdoor wraps. The most popular of these are the "rocks of serge" suits. These suits are made of a heavy, warm, and durable material, often with a fur collar. They are perfect for the winter weather. The suits are made of a heavy, warm, and durable material, often with a fur collar. They are perfect for the winter weather.

which was wound about the throat. This was in tones of orange and blue, and the color just the touch of color needed to brighten the dress and render it effective. A huge top coat of early cloth with collar and cuffs of natural lynx kept the wearer cozy during the lulls in the game.

Wool Muller and Mandarin Tam, and a smart little Mandarin tam of velvet, tipped with a touch of the fur, kept her bright hair from becoming disarranged, in more than a becoming carelessness.

various velvet or fabric tam-shawlers which are now so popular, will be found convenient and comfortable. Warm gloves and high-topped boots are necessary. One of the smartest suits seen this year was designed for a young girl or small woman. It was designed in one of the plaided velours de laine, a dark blue ground with an almost invisible bar of dark gold. The suit, which was made with a short flaring circular skirt and one of the chic box coats, was buttoned, banded, cuffed and collared in seal. A tam of velvet in dark blue with a golden tassel completed a costume which was charming and most becoming. Another frock of dark blue serge, pocketed and pleated was made absolutely without trimming, the only bright bit of contrast being the striped wool-muller with fringed ends.

Other Interesting Costumes.

The Russian blouse, collared, cuffed and banded around the bottom with shunk seal, lynx, or fox, is particularly attractive and becoming coat model and one that is well liked by most women and girls. Velours de laine, velvet, corduroy and broadcloth are among the materials generally favored for this type coat. Many suits are accompanied by this style of coat, and when trimmed in this way it may serve for top coat as well, over frocks of various materials. Dark green velours de laine trimmed with lynx is one of the effective combinations seen a great deal. Many of the shorter suit coats are combined with a tunic-skirt, giving almost the same effect as the tunic coat. The pointed front-and back, or over-the-hips, is often banded with fur to match that on the coat. The apron tunic, loose, or of a contrasting material set in like a panel is another variation of the tunic skirt favored in frocks of soft silks or satins. One particularly effective afternoon dress of dark serge has an apron tunic, net veiling a bright, contrasting lining of satin. Contrasting Blouses. Perhaps the most pleasing way of introducing the light blue color necessary to this season's suits is by means of the contrasting blouse of taffeta or soft satin—that is almost universal. For instance, a suit of dark blue serge, gabardine, or of the satin finish broadcloth is completed with a rather severe tailored blouse of orange satin, or a striped blouse, combining the shade of suit and a brighter tone. A dark blue taffeta blouse is belted and cuffed with orange, a crepe Georgette costume blouse in a soft shade of beige, is striped with dark blue taffeta. The effect is harmonious becoming and generally pleasing.

THE TRUE GLORY OF WAR.

(Lincoln Journal.) Edith Cavell went to her death with the stoicism of the martyr's maid. The British chaplain who visited her before her execution found her brave and content. The German chaplain who was with her at the end reported that she was bright to the end, and saying she was glad to die for her country.

What this woman did, men in all the armies are doing every day in well-nigh countless number. It cannot be denied that in this respect there is a true glory to war. It is not because he is going to kill somebody that we honor the soldier; it is because he is going himself to be killed, or run risk of being killed. The killing is inhuman. The heroism is the noblest act a man can render. He lays down his life for his country. Such deeds excite in the beholder a moral elevation that is in some degree an antidote to the demoralizing influence of war and its terrors. The institution that kills an Edith Cavell for trying to save the lives of her countrymen is unspeakably abhorrent. But the spectacle which she brought to her death without word of feeling of hatred toward her persecutors is among the noblest the world has seen. The Christian world has built its religion about just such a deed as this.

The willing self-sacrifice which was delays on the part of its victims has been and is still the most nearly valid of all the excuses for war. The salvation of the world is in the hands of those who are willing to give up their own lives for the lives of their friends, and also for their enemy.

We may not all agree to this, but the thinking of the world toward Edith Cavell will show that all know it in their hearts. The need of inspiration to heroism is such that poets have considered it necessary to invoke those who have died in war as justified by the heroism which it involves. The late Henry James wrote a pamphlet in the search for a "moral equivalent of war."

In actual fact, no one lives many days without opportunity to be as heroic as any soldier in battle. The business man who goes to the wall rather than consent to questionable methods of succeeding, risks, on the whole, more suffering than the soldier. The teacher who risks his ideal at the risk of his job is equally heroic. Many a man has the strength to die cheerfully in the excitement of battle who could not think of standing for a moral principle in times of peace where that involves sacrifice of income or public regard. Peace demands the higher sacrifice. Edith Cavell will have a monument, and her memory will be embalmed in song. Thousands of country women have literally starved at their sewing machines for virtue's and family's sake and none saw the sublime heroism of the act.

The heroisms of war are after all comparatively unimportant to the heroes of peace as so much fiercer, in fact, that we overlook them and forget to stir up an appreciation of them. It will be one of the marks of the attainment of a genuine civilization that the world needs no war-staying to render its heroes recognizable.

THE WAR PROGRAM.

Freemont Tribune: The greatest question now before the American people and the one on which their minds are open is that of "preparedness." Though the treasury is showing an increasing deficit and there is talk that the income tax must be increased and that the special called war tax must be continued and that the free sugar clause of the Underwood bill must be repealed, these are not of as great or important interest as the one involving our preparation for war, for the reason that taxation involves only the payment of money for the support of the government, whereas "preparedness" involves the better aspects of a national moral policy, by which our aspirations and ideals may be measured by the actions of the earth. The administration is formulating a plan and is preparing to urge that plan upon the people through the coming congress. The president is to be the special advocate of our coast defenses. And if his program is sanctioned by congress and by the people it will revolutionize our habits and thoughts of American people; for we have not always been taught to believe that we are to remain almost entirely free from the burden of militarism, that our magnificent isolation between the earth's great seas is our national bulwark of defense? If compulsory military training is to be enforced in this country it will be a radical departure from our ideals and our traditions, deeply affecting our civilization.

There is no mistaking the fact that the "moral" events of the last year have thrown us into a state of mental confusion. If we keep clear heads through all this neither over-optimism nor over-pessimism will be the prevailing influence. Nevertheless, there is serious danger of our being led astray in the direction of overdoing. The pressure of the dangers, which always has the advantage of patriotic thrills, of great corporations that will benefit tremendously through the manufacture and sale of war munitions, will be an almost irresistible forward impulse.

The president's tentative program seems to us to bear the marks of militarism. The recommendation of $100 millions a year for the navy is extreme. The great increase of our arms and munitions that our military and naval position should be strengthened may perhaps be accepted as true, though frankly, we do not pretend to say to what extent it is an imminent danger of attack to us. In our opinion, we cannot, we do not, too quickly or too energetically. This is not a European nation that would think of going to war with us. They are too busy slaughtering and they will be so enfeebled as a result of the wholesale slaughter and destruction of this great war that they will not seek a quarrel for generations to come. The horizon of the whole world and find only one possible danger, which is in the orient, and that is so remote a possibility as to be almost negligible.

So, then, we can see little reason for a great increase of the military program. To be sure, what is proposed by the administration is so little compared to the present banking experience of European nations that it seems almost infinitesimal. But why get excited? Why revolutionize our plans at a time when there has been less reason for it than in fifty years? Mr. Ryan is going to contest with the president on this matter. He and his friends are likely to be influential enough to hold the country down to about the normal procedure.

Lots of It in Wayne But Daily Growing Less. The kidneys often cry for help. Not another organ in the whole body more delicately constructed, or more important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood. When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous. There can be no health where there is poisoned blood. Backache is one of the frequent indications of kidney trouble. It is often the kidneys' cry for help. Read what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for overworked kidneys. Proof of merit in the following statement: Mrs. John A. Larson, Wakefield, Neb., says: "I first took Doan's Kidney Pills when I was having a hard spell with my back. A constant pain kept me awake nights and I also had trouble with the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of the attack." (Statement given June 24, 1907.) Over four years later, Mrs. Larson said: "I still take a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills now and then and they act as a tonic to my kidneys." Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy; get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Larson has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. Accidents will happen, but the best regulated families get Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for such emergencies. Two sizes 25 and 50c at all stores.—Adv.
