COLD WAVE REMINDS PEOPLE OF WINTER

The weather turned colder the latter part of last week, and a light snow covered the ground. The elements have continued cold enough to impress the need of hot fires and warm clothing. The experience here, however, is mild compared to that in the east where a severe storm has been raging.

New York, Dec. 14.—The center of one of the heaviest snow storms this section of the country has experienced in several years, passed north of New York today leaving in its wake a tangle of broken telegraph poles and wires, railroad trains stalled in snow drifts, large portions of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New England under snow from six to fifteen inches deep.

Snow was still falling early today although the severity of the storm had abated.

Trains Are Delayed.

Some of the New York Central through-express trains from and to the west forced their way through the drifts and arrived here today hours behind the schedule. The whereabouts of other through trains was unknown to the railroads.

The blockade of the electric zone of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad between New York and Stamford, Conn., was declared by officials of that road as the worst in years. Hundreds of passengers spent hours last night in the stalled trains or marooned in the stations until steam locomotives were sent out to pull the trains to their destinations. New Haven officials said through trains between Boston and New York began to move from six to eight hours behind their schedule this morning.

Telegraphic communication between New York and points west and northwest was crippled by the breakdown of wires and poles under the weight of snow. The telegraph company stated that their service had been affected as far south as Virginia.

At one time the Western Union Telegraph Co. was virtually without a wire leading from New York to cities up the Hudson river and all the signal wires of the New York Central railroad went down.

Cable communication across the Atlantic was badly hampered by the failure of the cable companies' land wires between New York and Nova Scotia.

The snowfall in New York City is estimated at six inches. During the height of the storm the wind here attained a velocity of sixty-four miles an hour. The storm caused damage to shipping in the harbor and along the coast.

CHOKES TO DEATH.

Lindsay, Neb., Dec. 14.—The 1-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan died suddenly yesterday afternoon. The baby was playing on the floor, and it is thought, not something into its mouth and inhaled it into its larynx, death resulting almost immediately. A physician was summoned at once but the child could not be resuscitated. Mr. Buchanan is visiting with his brother-in-law, Chris Nelson, about eight miles south of town. There the accident happened. Mr. Buchanan, whose home is in Genoa, had a narrow escape from death about three months ago when an infuriated bull attacked him. He still is on crutches. F. W. Edwards, owner of the electric light plant, is Mrs. Buchanan's father.

THE PROGRESSIVE PARTY.

Geo. W. Perkins, one of the boldest of the progressive party, gives assurance that Colonel Roosevelt will stay with that organization. Maintaining the third party with active support from the Oyster Bay politician, is the only source of hope for the selection of the democratic administration. The progressive party manifestly could not win, and if it proves as weak next year as it has proven in late state elections, it would not prevent republican victory. But if it should recuperate strength, boosted by Roosevelt, it would likely give advantage to the party now in power.

The inconsistency and dilemma of the colonel are pointed out in an editorial in the Lincoln Journal. There is no doubt that Mr. Roosevelt would be the party's strongest candidate. Circumstances are so forming, however, as to place Mr. Roosevelt in a trying position next year. In the past three years Mr. Roosevelt has shown himself decidedly primary in the public object. This object is the defeat of President Wilson next year. His political pronouncements have uniformly had this aim. His position on Mexican matters has been taken with a view to presenting the president in the most unfavorable light. He has denounced the administration's neutrality policy, its tariff policy and pretty nearly everything else that has been done under the Wilson presidency.

"If now Mr. Roosevelt should accept the progressive party nomination for president he would be doing the utmost in his power to insure the reelection of Wilson. The next year's campaign bids fair to be a close one. A few thousand votes diverted from the republican candidate in, say, New York, might be sufficient to determine the result. Mr. Roosevelt would undoubtedly poll a large number of votes in his own and especially in western states if he were a candidate, no matter of what party. And every vote for Roosevelt would be half a vote for Wilson."

"At one time it looked as if the progressive party might be strong enough to force the republicans to make terms with it—perhaps choose its candidate for president. If that were to happen, Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy would be a menace to the president. But that is not going to happen. The progressive party has shown such weakness in state elections and the conservative republicans have such strength in their party that the republicans are certain to ignore the progressive organization, though they may do as they did in Massachusetts this year, make up their platform with a view to inviting progressive voters back home.

"How, in such a case, can Mr. Roosevelt himself promote the progressive party and block the president's reelection. It looks as if he would have to make a clear choice between two conflicting aims."

FARMER'S MOODS.

Wallace's Farmer: All human beings are more or less subject to the influence of the weather. The east wind the world over is depressing; puts us to speak a cloud over the spirit of man. There were times this last summer when the town people were a discouraged look because of the continued rains and the cloudy weather.

The farmer is much more susceptible to atmospheric influences than the townsman, because he is a child of the open, moving spirit that is at the bottom of a sea of air forty or fifty miles deep. The townsman's roof leaks, he can stop it even if it is raining, but no farmer thinks of trying to stop a leak in the heavens; and surely the heavens leaked this last summer. The farmer's view of life is quite different during a wet winter than it is when the sun shines clear and bright, even if the thermometer may be up in the nineties.

Apart from these daily changes, the farmer has four distinct moods, corresponding to the four seasons of the year. He takes heart of hope after the sun crosses the line in the spring, when the maple buds begin to swell and the pussy-willows come along the streams, the wildflowers begin to grow, the song birds come from their southern sojourn and sing their mating songs. What farmer can feel discouraged when "his peach and plum and cherry and apple trees are in bloom?" This changes his whole view of things.

He has a different attitude of mind when the days become longer, when the grain "begin to change color, when not only the days are long, but the work most arduous, for the harvest must be gathered. He is a very serious earnest man along "his own having and harvesting and threshing. He feels the full joy of his work, not that of anticipation or promise, as in spring-time, but realization. As the old prophets said: "The joy before thee according to the joy-in-thyself, as men rejoice when they divide their spoil," not spoils taken from their fellowman, but the spoils from Mother Earth.

Then comes the autumn, when the farmer takes on a more philosophical mood. Bryant described it as "The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year."

Of walking winds and maked woods and meadows brown and sear. Yet to the farmer with a full crop with the corn dented, which the cooler days are "sugaring off," when the heat units have expressed themselves in terms of corn, when the stalk is slowly dying like an old man who is ripening for the great change; these days are not melancholy. He is then in a philosophic mood. He rejoices in his achievements, studies how he can condense his coarse crops into some form that will condense freight, and is looking forward with courage and hope to the winter. Happy is he this year if he has been able to pay cash for all that they need in the way of food and clothing, even if it be not all they desire. For there is no end to our desires, whether we live on the farm or in town.

Then comes the winter season, the season when the grain must be fed out, when the stock must be cared for, and the farm crops marketed in the form of live stock. It is a time of physical endurance as well, for the winters of the corn belt test the endurance of men, particularly the farmer. But after the twenty-first of this must end. The days are beginning to get longer, the rays of the sun more direct, and sooner or later will come the singing birds with their coarse song and the voice of the turtle dove will be heard in the land.

Winter is the time for reading, for study, for more social life, for planning for the future, and especially for the next year, for looking more carefully after the education of his children, and for becoming acquainted with other farm folks. We may just as well yield ourselves to the influences of the seasons, knowing that the spring will not give all that it promises, knowing that seedtime and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, shall not cease for these great forces of nature, which it is vain for him to resist; will continue to operate and work out their results.

Some scientists tell us that the farmer is a fatalist. If anything happens to his live stock, it is just luck. If unexpectedly large crops come, it is his good fortune. If adversity comes, he thinks it is because he is kept down by other classes. This is not exactly true, and yet in a measure it is true. The farmer realizes that the great forces of nature that surround him, and that it is not possible for him to change the order of things, but he can by wise adaptation and planning, get the best that is possible under the conditions. The farmer of faith is rather than a fatalist. The inspired writers of long ago recognized this, and pointed out the faith of the farmer in an overruling Providence as an example to men who were not so fortunate as to live on the farm.

CORN AND LIVE STOCK.

Wallace's Farmer: The campaign for better corn which has been going on in the west for about ten years has given us a very valuable sidelight on cattle breeding. In other words, it has shown us the great similarity between the breeding of seed corn or any other seed grain and the breeding of live stock. The seed corn breeder, the man who breeds by the ear-to-row method, has discovered that there is very considerable difference between the producing qualities of ears all grown from the same seed. There may be a difference of fifteen or even twenty bushels in the yield of different ears, on soil as nearly as possible the same, with the same cultivation and the same conditions.

So the cattle breeder or the breeder of any kind of live stock discovers that there is a difference, and a very considerable difference, in the value of animals from the same sire and even from the same sire and dam. Why? It is the same thing. Biologists have been known to find out, but so far as we know to find it, it is just the same difference that we find in the seed corn breeder. It is the same father and mother. It is a matter which nature, insular as we have learned, is unwilling as yet to reveal.

Very little corn is sold on the market that is grown by the seed corn breeder. It is entirely too valuable, has cost too much to produce it. So there is very little live stock of any kind sold on the market by breeders of pure-bred live stock for consumption. Before it reaches the ordinary farmer, the seed corn of the breeder must be planted in the field; we believe they call it a multiplication field. So the product of the specialized live stock breeder is not sold to breeders who have neither the time nor the money to expend in developing the perfection of the animal. These men, who have small herds on the ordinary farms, produce the seed that goes to the ordinary farmer. It is in this way that the multiplication field furnishes the seed corn that is the ordinary corn grower. It is these last mentioned, both in corn and in live stock, that furnish the product that goes to the market.

We can not well do without the seed corn breeder; neither can we do without the live stock breeder, who puts his time and brains, his experience and money into the moulding of live stock of the highest type. He is a soul-poor, working not with clay nor marble, but fashioning the raw materials which nature gives him into forms of the highest utility and beauty.

The work of the seed corn breeder requires years. The finished work of the live stock breeder requires a lifetime. He will not engage in it for the money alone, but for the realization of his ideals, to make for himself a name that will go down to future generations, like the names of Bates, Collings, Cruickshank and the other great names that have made breeds of beef and dairy cattle famous throughout the world. The multiplication is done by men who can not afford it, but, who, by buying the best that these men can breed and breeding them to the best they can procure, are producing a very type of live stock which to the farmer is not only invaluable but absolutely necessary. He wishes to make a success of his work in life.

The seed corn grower, whether a breeder or multiplier, is hit much harder by the environment than the breeder of pure bred cattle. A year of superabundant rainfall or of drought, in other words, a bad environment, may apparently destroy for a time the results of his work. Not to the same extent, but quite as really, the breeder of live stock suffers from environment. The man to whom the breeder of the highest class sells may not furnish the proper environment for the development of seed which he has produced. He may try to grow his corn in a thin soil.

And so the farmer who buys either seed corn or seed cattle, from causes which he can not control, may be disappointed in the results. But whether in seed corn or in seed cattle, "blood will generally tell." We remember reading a report published by the Kansas station some years ago. It started out to buy scrub cattle without any outward trace of breeding; and yet, when these cattle had gone to college, and had been given college care and treatment, the results began to show themselves.

And so an indifferent ear of corn, if that indifference has been the result of a bad environment, may, in the hands of the multiplier or farmer, grow up wonderfully, if given the environment it calls for. For it must not be forgotten that heredity and environment run side by side, both in grain, in live stock, and in the human family. Many a man well-born, with blood that ought to have made him a marked man, turns out to be inferior, and may become even an outcast, because the environment in which he has been placed, or has placed himself, is not decent, and that which is in him. And yet, in his children, given the environment, we may see surprising results. After all, there is a great similarity in the workings of the laws of nature. For, as we have often pointed out, they are really the laws of God, simply His plans for the development of life in grain, in beast, in bird, as well as in His own children, human beings.

Dr. E. S. Blair has received notice of his appointment as Wayne surgeon of the C. St. P. M. & O. railroad. A meeting of surgeons is to be held in the near future to introduce in the house of a resolution to continue in effect the emergency tax which expires by limitation December 31, for another year, the first step had been taken to carry out the action of the caucus action of the house democrats last night. The caucus agreed, with but two exceptions, to vote for the resolution. Representatives Keating of Colorado and Callaway of Texas refused to abide by the caucus action on the ground that they had promised their constituents to oppose a continuation of the tax. Representative Kitchen, the majority leader, was ready to offer the resolution today. A vote probably will be reached Wednesday. Its passage in both houses not later than Saturday, when congress plans to adjourn for the holidays, was predicted today.

CHURCH CALENDAR

The German Evangelical Lutheran Church.
 (Rev. R. Morning, Pastor).
 Preaching services, will be held next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Sunday School will be at 10 o'clock. The pastor will preach at Winside in the afternoon at 3 o'clock.

St. Paul's English Lutheran Church.
 Sunday school every Sunday at 10 o'clock.
 Luther League at 6:30 o'clock.
 There will be no morning or evening preaching services Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid society meets Thursday, December 16, at the home of Mrs. Ole Lyngen.
 Choir rehearsal was held Tuesday evening. They will meet again to rehearse Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the church. The children will practice at 3 o'clock Sunday. Let all children be there.

The bazaar was held Saturday and was a great success.

Let everybody be present at Sunday school and Luther League. There is a place for you. A hearty invitation is extended to visitors.

First Baptist Church.
 (Rev. W. L. Gaston, Pastor).
 Two splendid congregations greeted the Rev. W. L. Gaston, the new pastor of the Baptist church Sunday. In the morning the introductory sermon of the beginning pastorate was preached from three phrases found in the 12th chapter of Acts. These portions of scripture were segregated from their local settings and combined so as to make a very suggestive text. They were "Let every body be present at Sunday school and Luther League." "But the steadfastly affirmed that it was even so;" and "Peter continued knocking." This, the preacher said, was constant prayer, constant testimony, and constant effort, and it is this that is a successful pastorate. The old program that had outlived centuries must be put into practice. No new or claptrap methods were to be practiced, but an old method applied with a new energy, a new vigor and a determination as persistent as eternity was to be the hope of all achievement.

The evening sermon was of a popular nature calculated to interest a mixed congregation. Mr. Gaston announces that it will be his policy to make his evening services popular and interesting for the public outside the church. From time to time the gospel of present day events will be presented and discussed from a churchman's point of view.

There will be two Christmas services next Sunday. In the morning the theme will be "The wise men and the shepherds," and in the evening "The Angels and the Star." These are two very eloquent themes and the day gives them their timely setting. There will be a fine biblical program in connection rendered by the choir under the direction of Prof. Davies.

Methodist Church.
 (Rev. A. S. Buell, Pastor).
 The official board of the Sunday school at their meeting on Monday evening re-elected the officers and secretary with the few exceptions. The Sunday school is doing excellent work and we hope for even larger results for this coming year. You are invited to membership with the Epworth classes in readiness.

There was a meeting of the representatives of the four churches, Baptist, English Lutheran, Methodist and Presbyterian last Sunday to discuss revival plans for the winter. Things are not quite in readiness for a tabernacle meeting so steps were taken to hold a union service conducted by local talent. An executive committee of twelve is to have the arrangements in hand.

The Methodist Sunday school is planning an unusual program for Christmas eve. See program elsewhere in this paper.

It is expected that there will be a matchlight meeting on New Year's eve. Full announcement will be made next week.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society will meet this Friday afternoon at 2:30 with Mrs. Crockett.

The Epworth League young people had a delightful social last Friday evening in the church parlors. The devotional meetings each Sunday evening are very interesting and helpful.

The choir will render a cantata Sunday evening, December 26. Those of you who heard the cantata last Christmas will not fail to be present this year. The pastor will preach his Christmas sermon on the evening of December 26.

The subject for the sermon on next Sunday morning will be "Preparations." The subject for the evening sermon will be "The Elder Brother."

Special invitation is extended to the public to worship with us.

Presbyterian Church.
 (Rev. S. Xenophon Cross, Pastor).
 The following standing committees have been appointed in the C. E. for the ensuing term, and will be especially responsible to the president of the society: Calling, Gertrude McEachen and Genevieve Roberts; music, Ruth Ingham; temperance, Elsie Jones; press, Ralph Ingham; lookout, Elizabeth Mines; prayer meeting, Bess Durrie; missionary, Mrs. Chasen.

The following C. E. committees will be responsible directly to the vice president: Information, Mae Hiseox; Sunday school, Rev. Cross; Home, Dorothy Bressler; good literature, Joe Ringland; social, Florence Welch; janitor, Miss Dayton; pastor's aid, Cella Gildersleeve.

The sermon theme for Sunday morning will be "Adaptability." Find the text among Paul's great sayings. This study should be especially helpful to the young folks. All are invited. Be on time if possible. The hour is 10:30 sharp.

The special evening services will be continued for several Sunday evenings. If there are 200 people out next Sunday evening, we will vote on the question of adding a stereopticon or reflectoscope to our equipment for evening meetings. The majority wins. The question box will be opened at the evening service. Mr. E. B. Young will make an address. There will be special music. You are invited.

To the people of Wayne: We are glad to have you in our church at all times. Come! and keep on coming. If you are a new comer, we desire your acquaintance. If you have no church home, we invite you to the privileges of this one—free seats, true fellowship, cordial welcome. Shake hands and tell us who you are and where you live. We want to help everybody all we can.

THE COLD winter night the snow was gently falling on the pine trees of the forest. These tall, stately trees stood very straight and still on this cold night. By and by the tallest and the oldest of them said:

"How happy I shall be when at last I am strong enough and tall enough to be cut down by the wood cutters. I hope when they do cut me down that I may be good enough that they will want me for some great ship, and then I shall have a chance to sail the seas."

"What do you know about ships and seas?" asked a little pine tree who stood at the foot of the tall one.

The stately tree bent his branches a very little and looked down at the small tree, at his feet.

"I have heard many stories of the seas, and the ships that sail on them, for the birds sit in my branches and sing to me all the time of the beauties and wonders of the world. Then, too, the starbeams, who are much older than the birds, have some truly wonderful tales to tell of things that they have seen in their trips around the world. There is the Starbeam of the Brightest Star, just peeping over the hilltop. He can tell some truly wonderful tales."

The little pine tree trembled for very joy. This was his first winter in the forest, and these things were all new to him. Just as was the snow that was covering his roots, and making them all warm with its white blanket.

"Won't you please tell the Starbeam to tell us a story?" asked the little pine.

"I will try to tell you a story of the Christmas season," said another of the older pines. "The one he told us last year."

So, when the Starbeam came over and rested gently on the tallest pine, he asked it to tell again the Story of the First Christmas.

"I love to tell this story best of all stories that I know," said the little Starbeam.

"Once upon a time a long time ago, long before even the oldest pine trees here began to grow, a beautiful woman, named Mary, and her husband, Joseph, went on a journey to a little city called Bethlehem. All the people in that country went to this same city, to pay their taxes, and when Mary and Joseph got there, they found so many people there, there was no room left for them at the inn. The only place where they could find shelter was in a stable, and here they went. That night a little babe was born, and its mother, Mary, laid him in a manger on some nice clean straw.

"As yet in the East, the Brightest Star appeared. He had never been seen before, and some wise men knew that this was the time for the babe to be born, saw the Brightest Star as they started out to find the babe. All their long journey the Brightest Star kept just in front of them to show them the way to go, and when they rested at night, the Brightest Star would rest too, and wait for them. At last they reached the city of Bethlehem, and found the little babe in the manger with his mother by his side.

"These wise men had brought some very costly gifts to this babe, and it is the birthday of this babe that is celebrated every Christmas, and it is in his memory that gifts are given to the poor.

"That is all of the story, and it is time for me to be going," and the Starbeam went gayly on, dancing over the tops of the trees.

The Russian St. Nicholas. In Russia the children put their shoes filled with hay outside the door for the horses of St. Nicholas; and it is believed in most sections that St. Nicholas comes first on a preparation of his ten days before Christmas to learn which children have been good. He leaves nuts and candy in the shoes of the children who have been good, but nothing for those who have been bad, who thus know that they may expect no presents on the real Christmas day.

The Bran Pie. This is an English custom. The gifts are hidden in a large pan of Bran. A string is tied to each package, and on the end of the string is the name of the one for whom the package is intended. When all have their strings set all-pull, then comes the fun of pulling each one off and opening the

THE FIELD OF BUSINESS.

Sioux City Journal: The interstate passenger fare cases in litigation with the commission's dictum in the eastern rate case. In that case the commission indicated its conviction that passenger traffic was being profited by freight rates. It intimated that a plea for higher passenger fares might not be refused. Since that opinion was rendered the railroads have been engaged in an effort to raise interstate passenger rates to approximately 2 1/2 cents a mile in thickly settled states, while adhering to the 3-cent fare in less densely settled states. The present decision confirms the 3-cent rate in the thinly settled states, of the south and west, approves a 2 1/2-cent rate in North Dakota and South Dakota and authorizes a rate of 2 1/2 cents in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, northern Missouri and Kansas. Midge ticket rates of 2 1/2 and 2 1/4 cents were approved. In the aggregate the small rate increases allowed should make a considerable decrease in railway earnings. Through which has been warranted to some degree by the higher cost of operation in recent years.

It was a rather curious fact that a message in which President Wilson expressed a direct bid for the approval of business should have been received for the most part with disapproval in financial and commercial circles. The president's proposal was embodied in a suggestion that a committee be appointed to study the railroad problem before the enactment of any further regulatory measures. The purpose of the suggestion, it was explained, was to see if railroads efficiency could be encouraged and promoted as part of the general campaign of preparedness. The president's recommendation was heartily appreciated in railway quarters, but the good effect there was overshadowed by the general distrust which the new taxation proposals were received. The disappointment was reflected by sagging in the securities market which continued more or less during the week, being accentuated first by peace rumors and later by the threat of war with Austria. The decision to pay for preparedness out of current revenues was not regarded as sound by financial authorities. The proposed tax on pig iron and manufactured steel was objected to as a direct tax on prosperity. The suggested tax on gasoline and gasoline engines and vehicles found few friends in any quarter. Criticism of the tax on the part of the administration has been sufficiently widespread to suggest to congress the advisability of a change.

Plans for the Replote steel merger are rapidly approaching fruition. For as the merger has been worked out, it will include the Cambria, Lackawanna, Newport News and Youngstown steel companies and either the Inland or Republic of Chicago. Such a combination will make a worthy rival of the United States Steel corporation.

The only unsatisfactory feature of current trade is the lack of railway and shipping facilities for all exports. Holiday trade is booming in all parts of the world.

The great-seeing eye of God, as it surveys this planet, with all its scenes of revelry and its riot of sin, beholds but one feature which is self-same and gaude upon one thing of great beauty--gratitude which recognizes in every deed of man the work of God.

The immortal Frances E. Willard said: "I regard ingratitude as one of the basest of sins."

"What shall I render unto the Lord for all his goodness to me?" Thus answers his own question by saying: "I will take the path of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord."

Never before have we so seriously faced the question of our obligation to Almighty God. There are thousands of heavy-hearted, world-worried men and women who will never find life worth living until their lives are filled with Jesus Christ.

There are many who have turned their backs on life and are now in the hands of the devil. The dead give nothing out, and that's why it is dead. Many have seen the Dead Sea. If you would have the joy of Christmas, you must find it in doing what Jesus did. He went about doing good. No one will ever find the Christian secret of a happy life save by trying to make it easier for others to do right and harder to do wrong.

This is the joy of lifting up burdens of others--as the little girl found it who was carrying her baby brother across the street. He was almost as big as she was.

"Isn't he heavy?" asked a passerby. "Oh, no; he's my brother."

"You cannot be a Christian without being a good fellow in the sense of trying to help others to be good, or as someone has put it, 'Except you erect the cross in your own heart Jesus will profit you nothing.'"

O Holy Child of Bethlehem, Descend from thy star and enter our hearts. Cast out our sin and enter our hearts. Be born in us today.

To feel strong, have good appetite and digestion, sleep soundly and enjoy life, use Burdock Blood Bitters, the family-system tonic. Price $1.00.

Frank Whitney, at the Herald office, has a brand new triple-silver plate slide transparent for sale at a big bargain.

CHRISTMAS, 1915 (Farm, Stock and Home). Our homes are bright with Christmas cheer. Our hearts contented rest; From all the world are gathered here.

There are those who have the best. With love to older herangs we turn. Where once we sang and played. Before this home of ours was born. Before its walls were laid.

And yet tonight no home so next town, but one incarnation ought to satisfy the most ambitious traveler to the tomb.

It seems to me a single birth. Should satisfy the soul; One trip along this sin-cursed earth. Toward man's eternal goal.

One outlook for a better life. Above earth's dust and crimes. One laud, one place called home. One wife at a time.

To have the measles and the mumps. To hear the old folks spat, To go through childhood's cuffs and bumps. To cry is enough for that.

So let me not reincarnate. When done with grip and groans; Would not mind a future state. Devoid of flesh and bones.

But, clad in this imperfect clay, Man's is a sorry fate. Considering which is why I say: Once is a plenty. --BX--

Gratitude as the Real Key to Christmas Joy

By "BILLY" SUNDAY

SEVENTEEN hundred years ago a star shone above a lowly manger in Bethlehem, and above the moonlit hills of Judaea the angels heralded the beginning of the life of Jesus Christ upon this earth. And once more the birthday of the Saviour approaches.

Recall that these festal days follow one another! Only a few days ago I was penning a Thanksgiving day message. Now we are looking forward with happy hearts and bright anticipations to Christendom's great gift-giving day.

Gratitude inspires in us the grace of giving.

Gratitude is the great original source of noble living and service. Just as sin is the original source and root of all iniquities.

The great-seeing eye of God, as it surveys this planet, with all its scenes of revelry and its riot of sin, beholds but one feature which is self-same and gaude upon one thing of great beauty--gratitude which recognizes in every deed of man the work of God.

The immortal Frances E. Willard said: "I regard ingratitude as one of the basest of sins."

"What shall I render unto the Lord for all his goodness to me?" Thus answers his own question by saying: "I will take the path of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord."

Never before have we so seriously faced the question of our obligation to Almighty God. There are thousands of heavy-hearted, world-worried men and women who will never find life worth living until their lives are filled with Jesus Christ.

There are many who have turned their backs on life and are now in the hands of the devil. The dead give nothing out, and that's why it is dead. Many have seen the Dead Sea. If you would have the joy of Christmas, you must find it in doing what Jesus did. He went about doing good. No one will ever find the Christian secret of a happy life save by trying to make it easier for others to do right and harder to do wrong.

This is the joy of lifting up burdens of others--as the little girl found it who was carrying her baby brother across the street. He was almost as big as she was.

"Isn't he heavy?" asked a passerby. "Oh, no; he's my brother."

"You cannot be a Christian without being a good fellow in the sense of trying to help others to be good, or as someone has put it, 'Except you erect the cross in your own heart Jesus will profit you nothing.'"

The days are so filled with duty they speed by as if on wings and the Old Coder fairly has his breath taken away. Even from Christmas to Christmas it is but the break of a wave, a flash of lightning, the betting of an eye, and one intuitively dives into his pockets and fishes out a folded paper or two to see if it is a bill and has a rubber-stamped "paid" mark at the bottom. Nevertheless, "Backward, turn backward, O Time in thy flight, make me a boy again, just for tonight!"

There was a rather curious fact that a message in which President Wilson made a direct plea for the approval of highway should have been received for the most part with disapproval for financial and commercial circles. The president's try for favor was embodied in a suggestion that a commission be appointed to study the railroad problem before the enactment of any further regulatory measures. The purpose of the suggestion, it was explained, was to see if railway efficiency could not be encouraged and promoted as part of the general campaign of preparation. The president's recommendation was heartily appreciated in railway quarters, but the good effect there was overshadowed by the general distrust which the new taxation proposals were reflected by sagging in the securities market which continued more or less during the week.

ger are rapidly approaching fruition. So far as the merger has been worked out it will include the Cam-Chicago. Such a combination will work a mighty rival of the United States Steel corporation.

REINCARNATION

"We have with us this evening" a man who last evening set forth as attractively as might be done the dogma of reincarnation. The only way to balance life's injustices, inequalities and blunderous mistakes is to give everybody a "return engagement," and repeat the performance until the chastened soul reaches Nirvana, that state of cold storage where aspiration, sensation, materialization, love, desire, ambition and every form of emotion are disallowed and consumed in the final blaze of nothingness, whether we are fit for it or not.

"If we must reach a final state
Of nothingness dilated;
This plan to be reincarnate
Is poorly instituted.
In an oblivious dead sea
My final plunge is taken.
One trip on earth's enough for me
Let not my soul awaken."

"I've seen the wild beasts of the jungle.
I've had both grief and pleasure;
I've had some friends down here
below
Whose memory I treasure.

"Will of the wisps that others chase
Too have to be followed;
These one fail to make the race
Whom death has kindly swallowed."

"Forgetting all that has occurred,
I must see return, O mortals,
(The contemplation seems absurd).
Within earth's wretched portals?
The sage a puling infant comes,
Who once had solved life's riddle."

"He says too-oo, and sucks his thumbs,
And spits up half his vitals.
I'm growing old, I've had my fling,
I've sipped both joy and sorrow,
I'm now . . .
And when the clock of fate strikes
"bing,"
"I'm going home tomorrow."

"From thence may no such form as

If there's no "better land" of bliss
Don't wake me—let me slumber.

Gratitude as the Real
Key to Christmas Joy
By "BILLY" SUNDAY
INTEREN hundred years ago a star pointed above a lowly manger in Bethlehem, and above the mountain hills of Judea the angels heralded the beginning of the life of Jesus Christ upon this earth, and once more the birthday of the Saviour approaches.

So far as these festive days follow one another! Only a few days ago I was penning a "Thanksgiving day" message. Now we are looking forward with happy hearts and bright anticipations to Christendom's great gift-giving day.

Gratitude is the great original source of noble living and service to all mankind. The great all-seeing eye of God, as it surveys this planet, with all its scenes of revelry and its riot of sin, beholds but one festering heart—selfishness—and gazes upon one thing of great beauty—gratitude—which recognizes in every deed of man the voice of God.

The immortal Frances K. Winard said: "I regard ingratitude as one of the basest of sins."

The Psalmist said: "What shall I send unto the Lord for all his goodness to me?" Then answers his own question by saying: "I will take the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord."

Never before have we so seriously faced the question of our obligation to Almighty God. There are thousands of heavy-hearted, world-worried men and women who will never find life worth living until their lives are linked with Jesus' Christ.

"We must use or lose. The Dead sea gives nothing out, and that's why it is dead. Many lives are like the Dead sea. If you would have the joy of Christmas, you must find it in doing what Jesus did. He went about doing good. No one will ever find the Christian secret of a happy life save by trying to make it easier for others to do right and harder to do wrong."

"There is no us, sitting any burden of others, as the little girl found it who was carrying her baby brother across the street. He was almost as big as she."

"Let 's be merry' I asked a passer-by
"Oh, no; he's my brother."

You cannot be a Christian without being a good fellow in the sense of trying to help others to be good, or as someone has put it, "Except you erect the cross in your own heart
Jesus will never find you nothing."

O Holy Child of Bethlehem, Dearest one, we pray in Cast out our sin and enter in;
Be born in us today.

and digestion, sleep soundly and enjoy life, use Burdock Blood Bitters,

LATE BANQUET RANKS AHEAD OF ANY IN PAST
EXCELLENT MENU SERVED
Feasting Followed by Series of Spirited Speeches—Event Highly Enjoyed.

Nearly 200 men shared in the enjoyment of the banquet given under the auspices of the Commercial club Thursday night in the dining hall of the Baptist church. A number of farmers from the Wayne vicinity and several people from neighboring towns were in attendance. Everything passed off successfully and to the eminent satisfaction of all. Not a syllable of dissatisfaction was heard.

The ladies of the Baptist church prepared and served the banquet and were very ably assisted in serving by a group of young men. The service which climaxed all possibilities, showed perfect organization and was a source of much gratification to all present. A people disposed of the savory viands in the culinary skill of the Baptist ladies. They merited and received many encomiums as the result of their efforts.

At the conclusion of the menu, Fred S. Berry, president of the Commercial club, introduced, as toastmaster, the subsequent events of the evening. Mr. Berry was at his best, and with sparkling good humor in keeping the crowd in a happy mood.

Mayor D. H. Cunningham was presented first, and he spoke briefly of the excellent work done in the past year. He urged more get-together meetings and commended the liberal support which citizens invariably accord public improvements. His mention of paying an important and due tribute to the city elicited an outburst of applause.

On account of the desire of musicians present to leave, the musical numbers were introduced at this juncture. Mrs. A. R. Davis sang, "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. J. Jones sang, accompanied by Mrs. Jas. Miller on the piano, and were called back for another number. The "Normal Mate quartet" rendered a song, and responded to all with sparkling good humor. Both groups were very pleasing.

Geo. F. Woltz, for many years mayor of Fremont, member of the legislature at one time and recognized as a "live wire" came on as the program and gave a practical view of public improvements. He praised Wayne's public buildings and residences, and congratulated the city over its success in capturing the state normal university with Fremont.

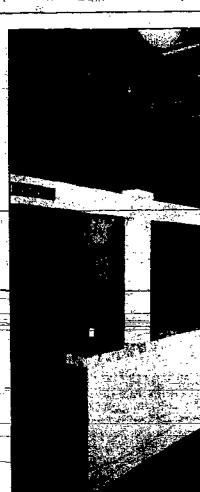

Frederick H. Hagedorn, Senator Philip H. Kohl as a "live wire" and result-getter in the legislature. Mr. Woltz touched on the importance of fixing grade lines and drainage in the city, and Mr. Hagedorn urged good lights, cheap power and well paved streets as essentials to growth. He mentioned that paving seemed expensive in advance, but that increased property values more than warranted the cost. He mentioned business lots in Fremont valued at $8,000 before paving increasing to $15,000 as soon as the improvement had been made, and resistance less going forward.

Mr. Woltz's address, Toastmaster Berry expressed appreciation of the presence of representatives of rural districts and neighboring towns, remarking that Wayne could be proud and prosperous without becoming detrimental to the ambitions of outside points. The proceedings were climaxed at this point by the introduction of an entirely new feature designed to entertain Mr. D. Redmond, a good natured, lighthearted, registered of the Wayne State Normal, and to amuse the crowd at his expense. Sheriff Geo. T. Porter interrupted the program by appearing and presenting a man to whom he had been brought, stating that she wanted Mr. Redmond arrested for breach of promise. To thicken and animate the plot, the toastmaster asked the woman a number of questions and she answered them with a smile to the delight of the crowd. A. R. Davis, conveniently seated near Mr. Redmond, made a feasting speech in his behalf, and succeeded in securing a copy of the proceedings. The victory of the drunk bore up with courage, but was taken too much by surprise to turn the tables on the jokers as he might otherwise have done. This incident caused an outburst of laughter and applause.

H. E. Schum of Wausau, was next introduced. He told a number of interesting stories. He said Wimsie didn't have a commercial club, but although it ought to have one, the town stood together and acted unitedly for all worthy public enterprises.

G. S. Weaver, secretary of the Commercial club, praised the spirit of good feeling between Wayne and Norfolk. He said every citizen, regardless of his occupation, should be an active member of the Commercial club and he encouraged it to do his part toward improvement of the town, and know he would be glad to see the Commercial club and the assembly was the liveliest one he had ever attended. He would like to see every man feel interested and responsible. He suggested that Wayne, Nebraska, should have a public health treatment applied to people in

MILITARY COMPANY

The Wayne soldiers under Lieutenant James Pile returned Thursday from Stanton where they underwent instruction by a superior officer. The boys passed inspection satisfactorily, and were highly commended. Lieutenant Pile says there is prospect of the organization of a company in Wayne next March.

LOCAL OWL IS ENTERED AND ROBBED

While the steward of the Owl lodge was at supper last night, the place was entered by someone breaking through a rear door, and robbed of $150. On the return after supper, the steward found the money gone and the door broken. Suspicion pointed to a couple of strangers who had left town on the evening train, but after investigation proved they were not guilty of the theft.

ELIZABETH SPENCER TOMORROW EVENING

The music recital by Elizabeth Spencer will take place at the Normal auditorium tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Those who have not received tickets may get them at Jones' Book Store. Elizabeth Spencer is a singer of the highest order and her appearance is a musical treat.

GOOD FELLOWS WILL SPREAD HAPPINESS

It is understood a local "good fellows" movement will act within a few days to insure a merry Christmas to poor people of the city. The purpose is a worthy one, and will be heartily and liberally supported by charitably inclined citizens.

DEATH OF CARL THUN

Carl Thun died at his home six and one-half miles northwest of Wayne. Apoplexy was the cause of death. He was 78 years of age. Funeral services were held at the home at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning and at the German Lutheran church in Wayne at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Rudolph Moehring, pastor of the German Lutheran church, was in charge of the services. Interment was made in the Wayne cemetery.

Carl Johnson Christoph-Thun was born December 8, 1837, in Rappin, Island of Ruegen, North Germany. He was confirmed in the Evangelical Lutheran church at Rappin. He married Mathilde Gritz, and they came to America in 1882, living in and near Omaha until 1891, when they came to Wayne county. Mrs. Thun died in 1904. Although feeble due to his advanced age, Mr. Thun was well up to the day of his death. He leaves three sons and one daughter: August Thun, Carl Thun, and Ferdinand Thun, all living in Wayne county and Mrs. William Blecke, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. George Itard, north of Wayne. Friends extend sympathy to the sorrowing children.

BIRTH RECORD.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Julius Peterson of Laurel, December 13. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson were formerly residents of Wayne, moving from here to Laurel five years ago. Born, Saturday, December 11, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. John Denby, Wayne.

Born, Thursday, December 9, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Tully Straight, thirteen miles southeast of Wayne.

SOMETHING UNIQUE AT BEAMAN GROCERY

A unique and impressive panorama miniature of the journey of the wise men through the rough country to the Bethlehem manger to find the Christ child is a view presented at the rear of W. E. Beaman's grocery. The plan was entirely original with Mr. Beaman. He devoted thought and labor for weeks to produce the representation, so appropriate at this time, and the effort is fully justified by the admiration of all who have seen it. The city of Jerusalem is found on one hand, and by ingenious use of electricity, men and animals are seen traveling among rugged mountains, guided by the star overhead to the Bethlehem manger where the child is found. Electricity illuminates the scene, and adds to its attractiveness. The interesting bible story of the advent of the Nazarene whose birth is soon to be commemorated is most vividly set forth as the result of Mr. Beaman's genius.

MR. AND MRS. R. PERRIN WEDDED FIFTY YEARS

Happy Reception Held. Friends Call and Congratulate the Worthy Couple—Many Gifts Are Received. Sunday, December 12, was the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perrin of Wayne, and the following day was devoted to a fine celebration of the event. At the family dinner at noon Monday were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perrin and son Clyde of Wimsie, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Perrin and son of Sioux City, Mrs. Harry Lucky and three children of Stanton, Mrs. Thomas Perrin of Orchard, Mrs. Lloyd Prince, grand daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perrin, and her husband and two children, of Wimsie, Messrs. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hyatt and Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Buell of Wayne.

The afternoon was devoted to an informal reception of friends and neighbors, when Mr. Perrin paid his respects to the worthy couple. Delicious punch and cake were served. At 2 o'clock a wedding ceremony took place, Rev. Mr. Buell officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt were the attendants. The bride was gowned in black messaline and carried bride's roses, the gift of Mrs. Wadsworth and Mrs. J. J. Williams. Mr. and Mrs. Perrin were the recipients of many gifts from relatives and friends. Appropriate talks were made during the afternoon by A. J. Ferguson and Miss Charlotte M. White.

Mr. and Mrs. Perrin were children together in Illinois, where they went to the same school, and grew fond of each other as playmates. In June, 1861, Mr. Perrin joined the union army, and remained in the service until September, 1862, when he received an honorable discharge. During his strenuous experience in soldier camps and on the firing line, he did not forget his sweetheart in Illinois, and was encouraged by the outgoing mail her appearing in a musical treat.

Many friends here and elsewhere extend hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Perrin over their wedding anniversary, and wish for them many more years of life and happiness.

It is not too late to have photos made for Christmas. All pictures taken on or before Monday, December 20, will be finished before Christmas—Craven's Studio, D161ad

DENTAL INSPECTION AT TRAINING SCHOOL

Teeth in Wayne in better condition than studies elsewhere indicate. We are just beginning to give some attention, in a practical way, to the physical child. There has been a lot of talk, but not much action. It is gradually beginning to be understood that the mental child cannot be sectioned out and developed by the school, while other institutions are supposed to develop the physical and moral sections. The child must be developed as a whole, or not at all. In view of this fact, we suggested to each dentist in Wayne that he donate three hours of his time and service to the Normal Training school, in an examination of the teeth of the pupils in school. Our request was cheerfully granted, and the following is the result of the examination:

Department	No Pupils	Percent of pupils having decayed teeth
Kindergarten	12	67
Primary	16	85
Intermediate	18	95
Junior H.	15	93
Training S.	86	83

Another way of showing results: pupils having decayed teeth—percent of pupils with no decayed teeth.

In terms of "condition of mouth," which includes decayed teeth, absence of health, and a malocclusion, the results are as follows: Showing condition of mouth and per cent of pupils in all grades. Good... 60
Fair... 28
Bad... 12

A duplicate record for each child was sent home. The teeth of children whose records are marked "fair" or "bad" should receive immediate dental attention. The record sheet contains the following: "A healthy mouth means better chewing of food; better chewing of food means better digestion; better digestion means better health; better health means better school work." Sincerely, H. H. Hahn, superintendent training school.

Laughter Aids Digestion. Laughter is one of the most healthful exercises it is possible to give to the stomach. It gives help to digestion. A still more effective help is a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets. If you should be troubled with indigestion give them. They only cost a quarter. Obtainable everywhere.—Adv.

Wishing You a Very Merry Christmas, We Are,

Nels Darling who spoke at the do to be saved. He is a community booster of a high order, and Wayne, who aroused lively interest by his treatment of municipal subjects. He gave an address at Coleridge last week and had an enthusiastic audience. Most towns are dragging Craven's Hardware anchor, and Mr. Darling searches out their ills and tells them what to do. A late news report states that Kearney has three miles of paving, with bids asked for two miles more, whereas two years ago it had none. Paving for one block is now being completed, and one paved street leads to the state normal. When progressive citizens proposed paving in Kearney two years ago, they met considerable opposition, but now the improvement is welcomed by all, and more of it is the general demand. Paving has sent the town ahead, stimulated industry and prompted new building operations. What means has done for Kearney and other towns, it will do for Wayne.

The Poor Man's Nest Egg

There is no one who derives relatively greater benefit from a savings account than the poor man, whose savings are necessarily small, but who may gradually get a little money ahead by the smallest savings, and will find the nest egg of great value to him if he should suddenly be deprived of work and income.

A savings account means thrift, independence, self respect and freedom from the worries of today and the uncertainties of tomorrow. The man with a bank account can look the world square in the eye for he is his own master. If sickness, accident or loss of position comes his way, he is safe. His bank account will see him over. his appreciation of the many beautiful floral tributes, and the excellent music rendered by the Lutheran choir at the funeral.

Saturday was a lively day in Wayne, and Christmas shoppers were numerous and active. Rich and often-unique Christmas decorations in store windows attracted attention and enlivened the Christmas spirit. Christmas stocks were found abundant and—many men craved the golden touch and spend the best part of their lives in cultivating it. It was on the corresponding day a year ago. This week and through to Christmas day at the close of next week, trade promises to increase and fully warrant highest expectations.

BUSINESS.
(Sixty.)
The way to get our neighbors' goats to me is clearly seen. We want a lot of merchant boats and business-few submarines.

THE GOLDEN TOUCH.
Hartington Herald: One of Hawthorne's charming and impressive stories deals with an avaricious king who craved the "golden touch" so that everything he came in contact with might be turned into gold. The wish was granted him by a fairy and he was able for a short time to revel in his gold transforming power. Everywhere he went his slightest touch turned things into gold. When he came down the stairs, they became gold, when he walked out into the garden the beautiful flowers became gold and when he sat down to a meal, the dishes became vessels of solid gold. He had the golden touch and everything he came in contact with was turned into gold. This greatly pleased the avaricious king for a time, but there was a "come-back" in his power to transform everything into gold. He also found presently to his chagrin that not only did the flowers in the garden and the dishes on the table become gold but also the food and drink that were set before him, and when finally his touch transmuted his little daughter into an image of pure gold, his chagrin and grief were complete, and he was glad to have the fairy relieve him of his accursed power. The moral to this little story of Hawthorne, of course, is so evident that it scarcely needs pointing out—Many men crave the golden touch and spend the best part of their lives in cultivating it.

Persistent cultivation gives them the power to turn everything into gold, but when they have acquired it, they find with the grasping king that it was not so desirable a gift as they had imagined—that in acquiring this they had lost much else and that had transmuted into gold many things which they had not intended. A certain amount of gold is all right and desirable, but if it has its well defined limits, as the king discovered, there are many things of far greater worth and when these things are transmuted by the golden touch so that all of life becomes cold, shimmering, inanimate gold, the magic gift becomes a withering curse.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

OUT OF THE WRECK

I built me a handsome shack, and painted it out and in the color scheme green and black; 'twas roiled with the best of tin. My heart swayed with the breeze, and my tongue was smooth and fine. I laughed and I sang, and my pipes and pumpkin vine. Then came a tornado wild, and jugged that house around, and on me its fragments piled, and flattened me to the ground. I crawled from the ruins then, my hair full of glass and tin, and sprung, in the view of men, my patented duplex grin. I said to the scowling skies, "You've taken a fall from me, but out of the wreck I rise—'n' in this, the rag, you see." While others indulged in screams, and wept in the cyclone's track, I galloped my joists and beams, and built me another shack. While others deplored their loss, and put up a line of walls, I scrounged for my household joss, and gathered my rusty nails. Again by my figure tall, again by my pumpkin vine, I look from my cottage wall, and the prospect strictly fine. No man on the dump heap lies, who says when misfortunes frown, "Oh, out of the wreck I rise—there's nothing can hold me down."

CATCHING A COLD.

Anyone can catch a cold, even I, so fat and old, that I can't wish all my power, go a pair of miles an hour. I can catch a cold with ease; just sit down and hear me sneeze. Stay a while, and hear me cough my old bronchitis whiskers off; take care upon the steep, wet streets, and hear me whoop. I am easy on my guard, in the house or in the yard, trying to prevent a cold from securing strange hold. I am muffled to the chin, to protect the world against; I have caught another cold, and my anguish is untold. Someone's raised a window sash—some one thoughtless, fresh and brash, and the microbes of the grip have your uncle on the hip. Seat yourself and hear me bark like a bulldog in the park. Hear my bronchial tumbles complain like a windmill in the rain! Hear me whistle when I speak, mark me strangle when I shriek!

WAR NEWS.

The foe has lost six yards of trenches, and now lacks pretty strictly those husky boys of Sir John French, rushed in and added the trick. The Germans captured Hilsen, Tvering, which cost 10,000 men; they soaked the Britishers a-plenty, and drove them back again. "A triumph for our splendid navy!" We sank a pleasure boat! Our super-dreadnaughts are, by gray, the grandest things afloat. "The Turks are using gas, whose stench is too strong for Christian throats, and so they robbed us of some trenches, and captured seven goats." "K's" policy, of watchful waiting appears to lose its charm; "the morning sheets are broadly stating that he's a false alarm." "The king, who tumbled from his charger, still has a lumpy lox." The lumps, however, are no larger, and there's no panic now. "Our heroes scrambled from the trenches, just as the sun went down, and caught a brace of county wenches who carried cheese to town." "The Russian hosts are still retreating, yet fighting from ditch to ditch; they surely take a lot of beating, and punishmentovitch."

RESTORATION.

In Europe, when the war is done, the battered land will smile once more—the charities, sacked by howling Hun, some gifted genius will restore. The ruined steeple will rise again; to cheer the pious passer-by; but who'll restore the brass-voicing men, who left their happy homes to die? Again the rich and fruitful vine will grow on France's sunny hills, where now the thorn-bush whines against the wind. Strong, patient hands will bring about the bloom to all the countryside; but who'll bring back the fine young men, who had their girls farewell, and died? For all the wreckage do not grieve—four years hence 't will be dream-leave more the busy lads in the meadow, the milchew paddles in the stream; again the sage will take his pen, and arg will gain its former strike; all will come back—except the men, who kiss of their mothers' hips and died. All ruined things will be restored; the sunken ships will be replaced; and there will be an endless horde of men in soldiers' trappings gone; the heart will matter in its den, the lion roar in angry pride; but gone forever are the men, who left their fathers' roofs and died.

THE PAUPER.

The old and seedy pauper has no one for a friend, his life has been a struggle, and now it nears the end. Some cold and frosty morning will see him borne away, another await, warning, to sleep till Judgment Day. And once he was as glib as any hitchesome scum, and nabbed his build among the hills of Spain. He had his golden vision, when he was young, like you; the future was elysian, in his ecstatic view. When they have had the pauper behind the old gray bark, they'll say, "He came a cropper, because he wouldn't work. Fair visions he was viewing, of fortune and renown, but when it came to doing, he wouldn't buckle down. He took it out in dreaming of wealth in vast amounts, while 't'other lads were scheming to swell their bank accounts. And so he plant his system behind this old stone barn, and not a soul has missed him, and no one cares a darn. Oh, golden youth, get busy, while you possess the years, and labor till you're dizzy, like granddaddy's brindled steers. Yield not to visions' fruitless, but make the kettle boil; intrusions, all bootless which are not backed by toil."

TRAGEDIES.

The king was riding slowly, reviewing his troops, when, with a scolding, the band sent an unfortunate, who was much frightened, the king was scared, alas! and o'er his head he skirted, and landed on the grass. And operators tireless the dreadful tidings bring, by spies and by the wireless, all over a breathless world. To Greenhills' mountain the dreadful message flew, by Africa's sunny fountains the sweating heathen knew. By many an ancient river, with many a palmy plain, the news made people shiver, and filled their souls with woe. And as their ire grew larger, we heard the nations sing, "Oh, let us Lynch the charger that bucked and threw a king!" Know all men by these present, and also by this sign: That day ten thousand peasants were shot and killed like swine. Yet, while that host of horses indulged in leap and bound, ten thousand lean and bony were piled upon the ground. They lay beside their allies, all stained with blood and dirt, but who can heed such trifles when royalty gets hurt?

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.

From the Wayne Herald, December 20, 1882.
Ted Perry was seriously ill. John Alger opened a meat market in the Courser building. A wreck on the Omaha line delayed trains for several days. Dr. Matthews of Rock Island, Ill., purchased land near Wayne. A street lamp was put up in front of the office of Dr. Crawford. The time clock on the safe of the Logan Valley bank was out of order and the safe could not be opened. A safe expert from Omaha was called, but failed to get into the safe. A masquerade ball for Christmas night was being planned. Members of the executive committee were Frank Fuller, Charles Johnson, James Britton, D. C. Patterson, Professor Davies, J. F. Sherbabe, D. W. Britton and Charles Johnson. From the Wayne Herald, December 19, 1895.
Charles Shultheis shipped cattle to Onondaga. The Early Hopi club gave a dance at Pythian hall. Schrott closed for a two-week holiday vacation. The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Hunter for a social. A son was born to Dr. and Mrs. Blair, December 16, 1895. The child of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Elliott died December 16, 1895. The Pleasant Hour Whist club met with Mr. and Mrs. James Britton. The members of the C. S. Worth League met with Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Beebe and organized a reading circle class. James Mallory, formerly of South Dakota, this week issued the first copy of the paper, the "Wakefield Journal," at Wakefield. Market prices: Wheat, 39 cents; oats, 10 cents; corn, 14 cents; butter, 12 cents; eggs, 15 cents; potatoes, 20 cents; hogs, $3. The Modern Woodmen elected the following officers: W. H. Hogewood, V. C. T. W. Moran, W. A. J. Greenleaf, banker; P. H. Kohl, clerk; John Coyle, escort; M. P. Ahern and A. Lett, managers; Dr. E. S. Blair and Dr. J. J. Williams, physicians.

From Ponca Journal, December 15, 1881:
On Saturday this country was visited by a slight sprinkle of snow and a cold wind, thus giving promise of a blizzard. But it did not come, and in a day or two the snow vanished and the sun shone out again warm and summer like.

The old building next south of Burns & Nichols' billiard hall, was turned around and moved a few feet in order to give room for a large store which is being built by Mr. Bresslin. The store is to be large, two stories high and to be finished by the 10th of January. It is understood that it is to be occupied by Messrs. Conner and Hingey with a large stock of goods.

Everything considered, the old building has had a good deal of life within its walls. Its removal from its ancient location indicates that this check is nearly done, and that its works are about all passed in. Next spring, in order to give still further room, it is to be taken away, perhaps to some farm where it will flicker out its few remaining years in the character of a barn or hen house, and will then return to dust and be forgotten.

The Wayne County Review has removed from La Porte to the new city of Wayne. The Review is a good paper, and will no doubt prosper in the future as in the past. We understand that Wayne also has, or is soon to have, still another newspaper. The town has now a population of nearly a hundred people. It is this surrounded by a large tract of country, which has a rich soil, is well watered, and only lacks settlement and cultivation to be as good a country as any in the west.

The old building which was removed, is one of the oldest in town.

It was built in an early day by Wm. Bigley, by the heirs of whom it was lately sold to Mr. Bresslin. The venerable building was put up when white people were few in this country, and when Indians frequently held their bow-rows and bare-legged dances before its door. Since being put up it has been occupied as a store, postoffice, county clerk's office, dwelling house, jewelry store, millinery establishment, butter depot, carpenter's shop, drug and grocery store, barber shop, etc. etc. Years ago when the town was small, it was sometimes held there. It was sometimes used for halls, or to hold elections in. Occasionally it was occupied to preach in. A school was also once kept there.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES.

Kidney Diseases Cause Many Aches and Pains of the Whole Body.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so may weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down. Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and generally when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills frequently come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards dropsy, gravel or fatal Bright's disease. When the kidneys fail there is no real help for the sufferer except kidney pills.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys. No need to take the statement of some one living far away as evidence.

Here is a case right in this locality. R. D. Aller, carpenter, Wakefield, Neb., says "I suffered from kidney complaint the back was lame and painful and my kidneys were not acting right. I had headaches and dizzy spells and at times my sight was very poor. Through the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, my health improved."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Aller had. Foster-McMillen Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

A chronic liar always in due time crosses his wires and exposes his duplicity. He would be better off if he could force himself to tell the truth.

Real Wayne hospitality and cordiality will be an exhibition at New Year's day. The series of entertainments planned will reflect the characteristic good feeling of the town.

As Henry Ford is evidently not wanted abroad, we would urge him to return home and devote himself to cheapening the production of automobiles. He could thus do something worth while.

The Christmas season ought to make people less selfish. It ought to inspire noble thoughts and generous deeds. The one who thinks and acts kindly toward the world has kindled the true Christmas spirit.

Wayne's stores were never more splendid in holiday decorations. They never offered more attractive Christmas stocks. They will be thronged with Christmas shoppers until Christmas day as they truly deserve to be.

We notice that "The Herald Angels Sing" at two Christmas programs at local churches Christmas eve. The Herald angels are some angels, all right, and may be expected to appear and perform as scheduled, simultaneously at two places.

Long ago someone wisely remarked that people should "eat to live, not live to eat." Many give too much thought to the appetite, figuring out new and often barbarous dishes with which to tickle the taste. As a result, the mind is checked in attaining its greatest possibilities and its highest enjoyment. A further consequence, hospitals are getting more business than they really need.

Speakers, touching municipal improvements at the banquet a week ago, emphasized the importance of paving. It was pointed out that paving will bring a train of other improvements and be an impetus to growth along all lines. Soon after the holidays, plans preliminary to paving in the spring should be made without fail. Once a few blocks are paved, every property owner will want the improvement in front of his property. Once Wayne starts to pave, it will never stop. Once started, the town's population will begin to swell rapidly.

At the Commercial club banquet a week ago, S. R. McKelvie, in the course of his address, touched the importance of service. Service is the thing that counts chiefly in all lines. People demand efficiency. If a man is employed to perform a certain service, he is expected to do it promptly and do it right. A sloppy job tardily done discards the worker and makes him wonder why his services are not demanded. The government by any dealer must be exactly as represented to win favor and promote success. The product of any institution must be forthcoming in satisfactory condition. No one can get far in gaining material success without full meeting popular requirements in the way of service.

Both President Wilson and Mr. Bryan have been in closest possible touch with international affairs threatening complications with the warring nations of Europe and both by reason of inside information ought to be able to judge wisely as to the likelihood of serious trouble in the future. Notwithstanding such intimate acquaintance with the facts, we find them pulling violently in two opposite directions over the question of preparedness. Does one sense trouble and the other peace? Has something turned us completely from the public, that urges Wilson to demand greater armaments? If so, is Mr. Bryan ignorant of the fact? Concerning the future security of the nation, it would seem that both, who should be equally well informed, ought not to be so widely apart in determining the right course to pursue. If safety is not threatened, a middle course would appear the right one to follow. If it is threatened more than the public interests of every group, relations, ought to know it, and be in favor of practical means of safeguarding the country.

WHOLESALE PLACES OF AMUSEMENT USED

To the Herald: In last week's issue of this paper there was announced the intention of holding tabernacle meetings in Wayne in the near future. We should like to ask of those who are back of the movement if they have chosen this method after a careful analysis of the social problems of our city, and after a close study of all the possible ways of making Wayne better, or if it has been suggested merely because there is an evident need for the bettering of conditions, and the revival is regarded as the only plan.

Is the revival the thing we need this winter? Would it go to the root of the evil? The very fact that it is impossible for us at this time to put our fingers definitely on the source of evil shows the pressing need of some systematic investigation to ascertain the actual conditions of each and every group in Wayne—not just the church-going group. On the other hand, one need not be a pessimist to see in the faces and actions of some of our young people the traces of this unwholesome environment. Worse than the liquor evil, doesn't the double standard of morality, costing even more degrading influences? But it is not our purpose to even attempt to expose a few individuals—they are not altogether responsible for their selfish views of life, for they are clearly the product of the environment in which they were reared—but rather do we wish to center the attention on the ideal of Wayne as a community in which every individual, rich or poor, might be able to realize his best self. To become the most useful man possible with the natural gifts which he possesses. Would that we could go a step farther and stir the civic consciousness into definite action! Would it not be expedient for the public-spirited men of Wayne to cooperate, and, if need be, employ a social expert to plan a social program which would not only find out and publish the truth about certain suspected places, but a program which would also serve the positive interests of every group?

Frankly, we believe this could be accomplished not even in the slightest degree by a revival. To our mind, the cause of this trouble goes back to the woeful lack of opportunity for wholesome recreation. For man, being originally a social creature, seeks his fellows to have a good time. The power of the gang becomes the controlling spirit, and suggestion all but sweeps away the ability to reason and to judge. At this point the evil pleasures—nicely varnished and glossed, to be sure, so as not to seem offensive to the most cultured eye, fling out their alluring bait. Do we need any further picture? If there are not wholesome, sane social and recreative influences at work, the outcome must always be the same. For under such circumstances, there are few that have the moral caliber to resist the temptations.

Some social and recreative influences at work, the outcome must always be the same. For under such circumstances, there are few that have the moral caliber to keep their head. In the light of these facts, does it not then seem folly to erect a tabernacle and to persuade men to start the better life—men in whose brains habits have been wearing, wearing paths for perhaps scores of years—and then expect them to hop their promise in the face of such temptations? Do you set a tender, young rose-slip in the midst of weeds, and then wonder why it perishes?

Would it not therefore be more rational to first prepare the soil, so to speak, for those who know not the Christ? If we cannot, as a community rise and wipe out evil temptation from our town in spite of technicalities of the law, we can at least set up a moral standard and thus compel them to heel a retreat. Perhaps this might be effected by building an ample Y. M. C. A. or some similar institution well equipped with bowling alleys, swimming pool, reading rooms, gymnasium. This social center if managed by an alert, progressive secretary, could be made so attractive that it would soon completely overshadow the other less healthful sources of amusement, just as, at a circus, the "big show" overshadows the "side show."

Then, when we had thus had a moral house-cleaning, followed up by a careful social survey of the town and surrounding country, we could more intelligently plan for an ingathering into our churches. The money paid out for the erection of a tabernacle and for the salary of the evangelist would no doubt make a good substantial beginning towards a Y. M. C. A. Moreover the benefits derived from the latter would be continuous and widespread, while the good that a revival might do under present conditions is, to our minds, practically negligible.

We are all working for a better town. It is only a question as to which method is the more expedient. In our opinion, we have already enough active Christians in our churches to push through such a movement for a Y. M. C. A. The Commercial club has given us our splendid new lighting system; no doubt it, as an organization, would fall in line and boost for a social and recreational center.

Do not misunderstand us. We believe in revival. They have done and are doing much good. But Wayne—Wayne, a college town—needs something more. We must rid the town of degrading influences. And, as we have already outlined the best way to accomplish this, by building up an institution, physical and mental as well as the moral values of our people (especially of our young men) will usually result in the most desirable sort of social center out of existence.

Unless this can be done in connection with the revival, we would say, "Postpone the revival, boost the Y. M. C. A." Let us all work to get everybody lined up for temperance in the coming election, for with the "dry law" we will get laws that will put an end to "blind pigs," gambling dens and all such places.

If this be accomplished, then Wayne will be truly progressive and worthy of the privilege of welcoming each year from three to five hundred young people into her midst. She will be doing her duty by her own boys and girls and, as men and women, will gladly return all that they have received with interest.—M. Forbes.

TODAY IS THE TIME

Attend to your teeth today to-morrow may be too late. Decay eats night and day and will not stop on Sunday. The larger the decay the greater the loss of tooth structure.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS

To the patrons of the Wayne Neb. Post-Office. As the holiday season is at hand I wish to call your attention to a few suggestions for our mutual good. Packages to be mailable must be securely wrapped and properly addressed having the addressee's name and address plainly written with the name and address of sender preceded by the word "From" in large letters. Do not fail to observe these suggestions as I want to avoid the inconveniences to you and to us during the past holiday season when packages were refused because they were improperly wrapped and addressed. Use strong string and paper. Bring the packages in the mail box unless you are sure of the postage required. Lack of postage will delay packages from two to ten days according to the distance. Remember you can insure packages up to a $5 value for 3 cents extra. From $5 to $25 for 5 cents. From $25 to $50 for 10 cents. From $50 to $100 for 25 cents. Packages on which there is a special delivery stamp will be delivered within the city limits as soon as received the same as special delivery.

EVENTS OF THE WEEK IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The American history class in the high school is studying the constitution of the United States. The holiday vacation will begin Wednesday at 4 p. m. and school will assemble again January 3, 1916, at 9 a. m. The sophomore girls' class in geometry is interested in the making of artistic designs based on geometrical figures. Visitors during the week were Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Oman, Mrs. A. A. Childers, Mrs. Howard Theobald and Miss Bessie Laumann. Miss Janet Carlough was unable to be in school Wednesday on account of sickness. Miss Leta Fisher had charge of the kindergarten during her absence. The class of the seventh grade has completed the geography of South America, and taken up the study of Carpenter's geographical reading on South America. Forest Macaffey has left the third grade, having moved with his parents to a farm. Dorothy Felber of this grade is out of school on account of an attack of appendicitis. Miss Mack of the department of expression at the State Normal gave an interesting talk before the high school Monday morning on the drama, reading as an illustration a selection from "Hamlet." The high school bazaar and social held last Saturday afternoon and evening was in every way a decided success. Dinner and supper were served from the domestic science kitchen; an interesting program was rendered in the music room at three different hours; the bazaar was open all hours in the gymnasium. At 8:30 all these features were closed and a basket ball game between two high school teams was held in the gymnasium. The proceeds amounted to $82.80. The high school takes this opportunity to express to the public its appreciation of the patronage extended. Proceeds will be used to defray expenses of the Watchword and the athletic association.

WEEK'S HAPPENINGS AT NORMAL SCHOOL

A. L. McClanchin of Lincoln, was a visitor Tuesday. The literature club announced for Thursday evening has been postponed. The department of physical science received an interesting wireless message from Wesleyan Wednesday. R. A. Dawson will assist in the department of physical training during the winter, directing the work in basketball. A holiday vacation has been announced beginning Friday, December 24. School will resume work on Monday, January 3. The Kihelafner-Skibinsky company, appearing under the auspices of the Student Faculty Cooperative Association, was the attraction at the normal Wednesday evening. During his attendance at the normal C. Wynn Duerig received high rank as student in the department of education. A recent request to Dean Hahn to recommend helpful books and magazines shows that Mr. Duerig is keeping abreast with the times in the field of education. Resident Council returned Tuesday from Strasbourg where he attended a meeting of the Board of Education. The business of the session consisted largely of passing upon claims presented for approval. The list of vouchers presented by the Wayne institution amounted to more than $13,000. The board adjourned to meet at Wayne on February 7. The second number of a series of lectures arranged by the Phi Kappa Psi society will take place in the auditorium on Thursday evening of this week. The question is "Resolved, That the intervention by the United States in Mexico would be for the best interest of the United States." Gordon Saunders and Ray Emerson will appear for the affirmative and Miss Helen B. Erloch and A. E. Wilson will present the negative of the question.

Sioux City, Io., Dec. 15.—Safety zones were established in the neighborhood of the schools yesterday, when standards bearing targets that read "School, Go Slow," were placed in the streets passing school buildings. The targets are painted red and the lettering is white. The poles are of iron and the target is steel. The standards were placed at each end of the school zone, in such position that they command a lengthy view of the street. The school zones were provided for in the traffic ordinance and cars hereafter will move past the school buildings at a speed that will permit the stopping of the car almost instantly.

HERE ARE Christmas bells

The real Christmas bells ring out only in the morning under the misty sky. The other bells ring from morning until night. After which they jangle through one's dreams.

The Christmas doornbell is a great institution. It is the busiest bell of the lot. All day long the doornbell has been ringing out its merry notes. The doornbells ring on Christmas day; everybody gives heed to its sweet sounds. And everybody rushes to the front door when the bell rings out before, and that was the nearest exit. The doornbell has everyone in the family hopping as if they were so many trained soldiers.

There are two reasons why the Christmas doornbell is a welcome visitor. It is the first thing that you hear when you first place you know that no bell is ringing in the house. It is the first thing that you hear when you are at the door. In the second place the doornbell announces the arrival of a package.

A saved-up express wagon driver, with a chunky, holly-bounded package under his arm, gets more attention on Christmas day than the governor of the state, surrounded by his military staff and accompanied by a Chinese orchestra, playing "Tippecanoe."

HOLIDAY AILMENTS

How to Avoid Condition Brought About by Overeating.

Plenty of Vigorous Outdoor Exercise Will Help Digestive Organs Assimilate Food Better Than Doctor's Prescription.

By IRENE WESTON.

SO MANY people habitually feel unwell after a holiday that it is a few days following Christmas that Christmas ailments have come to be recognized as a necessary aftermath of the festive season.

Of course, the children will always overeat themselves; if they were not allowed to eat all sorts of indigestible things they would not be so easily beguiled. The children will always cheat out of half the joy of the gay Christmas season. As a matter of fact, it is not the children at all who make up the bulk of sufferers from Christmas complaints. It is the grown-ups who, simply through carelessness, neglecting to subscribe to one simple rule of health, frequently find themselves more or less unwell inside, and more tired and run down physically at a festive season than at any other time before.

dozen eager hands. It is strange how ready everybody is to help in relieving the deliverer of his 12-ounce burden. Then the package is conveyed in silence to the recipient. The moment it is opened with nervous anticipation, and there is great rejoicing when it proves to be a knitted merriment for father from Aunt Jessica. The merriment is as large as a young hammock, and is plainer than pea's cheeks when we all hasten that he try it on.

If there is a grown-up daughter in the family, she beats all records getting to the door when the bell rings on Christmas day. She snatches her gift to the knob, it is not her fault, as she slid down the banister and took a flying leap, which was the best she could do without breaking bones. She expects the kind of presents which are not found in fireplaces after Santa Claus' arrival. She is looking for bouquets of flowers, huge boxes of candy and other tokens of regard. No matter how long the wait, she is patient. The Christmas telephone bell is an important feature of the Yuletide. It rings Christmas tidings which formerly were sent on decorative cards, which, with their imitation snow, made hands and wretches of a Chinese orchestra, playing "Tippecanoe."

The Christmas dinner bell—once at a time, please. Don't all rush in at once!

WHOLE WEEK'S CELEBRATION

Descendants of Old Spanish Settlers Observed Christmas With Dinners and Parties.

Among the descendants of the old Spanish settlers here find that they observe a week in the celebration of Christmas. This begins one week before Christmas. In the daytime they have dinners at each other's homes and in the evenings they give a series of parties at the different houses. In the evening the young folk go to the homes of one of the number and knock, and then all begin to sing. Those within the house ask, "Who is there?" and the answer is, "The Virgin Mary and St. Joseph seek lodging in your house." To carry out the Bible story they are at first refused admittance, and then the door is opened, and they are all given a hearty welcome.

On Christmas eve the old and young all join together and have a big celebration. In a large hall they fix up one side to represent the manger, and here they solemnly give a little play in which many take part, the characters being Mary and Joseph, the wise men, the shepherds and the angels. The play is very real to them, and they all play their parts with a reverent spirit.

A Christmas Prayer.
Give me the eyes to see my brother's soul.
Grant me the vision that perceives his soul.

"I find my Christmas joy," my mother said, "in the fact that I can give to my children more than money. I can give them the joy of a happy home, and the joy of a happy heart. I can give them the joy of a happy life, and the joy of a happy death."

COUNTY TEACHERS IN SESSION SATURDAY

HELPFUL PROGRAM GIVEN

Papers on Western Trips Given by Two Teachers—Prof. Bright, State Normal Speaks.

The meeting of the Wayne county teachers' association, which was held at the court house Saturday, December 11th, attracted a very large attendance. The program presented was of an interesting and helpful nature.

At the morning session Rev. S. X. Cross of the Presbyterian church delivered the invocation. Special music by the girls and eighth grades of the Wayne school under the direction of Miss Eva Graves, music supervisor, was much appreciated.

Miss Edith Dulin of near Hoskins gave an interesting paper on "What I did in the Way of Serving Hot Lunches Last Year." Miss Dulin served lunches during the months of December, January and February last year. The pupils enjoyed the lunches very much and are eager to have them again this year. Some of the foods served were tomato soup, corn soup, vegetable soup, bean soup, chicken and noodles, dumplings, broth, creamed potatoes, rice, fried mush, cocoa, boiled potatoes and gravy, creamed peas, toast and eggs. Miss Dulin said that the experiment made much extra work, but was more nourishing and healthful than eating cold lunches.

An exercise in reading and dramatization was given by the pupils of the second grade of the city school. Miss Florence Welch who is the teacher outlined the work done in reading. The story dramatized was "The Magpie's Nest." The characters were the magpie, thrush, blackbird, wise owl, sparrow, and turtle dove. The magpie tried to show each of the other birds how to build a nest, but each was too easily satisfied and flew away before she was through. Each child acted his or her part well and the little magpie, when her nest of clay and twigs, lined with feathers was completed, nested it to the teachers for inspection.

Dr. R. N. Donahay gave a very instructive talk on the "Care of the Eyes of the Pupils." The teachers are all in the care of the eyes, by regarding carefully the light that enters the school room. If defective eyes are taken care of when the child is young glasses may not be needed later in life. The optical business is said to have increased 100 per cent since the coming of the moving pictures.

At the afternoon session the boys' high school quartet gave a few selections. The boys are Ralph Ingham, LeRoy Owen, Ward Kendall and Fritz Midner. Julius Hirstead is accompanist. The girls' quartet, Miss Ruth Ingham, Miss Frances Ouse, Miss Edith White and Miss Rose Will, also sang.

Miss Josephine Carter, primary teacher of the Winsor school, read a paper on "Busy Work." She gave many helpful plans and suggestions which could be used without any great outlay of money and without much work. The plans can be used each day in connection with reading, spelling and number work.

The paper on "A Trip to the Panama Exposition" by Mrs. Wolf, was excellent. Her vivid description of the country and of the wonderful great city of Panama, proved a fair substitute for the trip itself. She told of hearing Dan Matthews preach. She walked across a tree stump in a park in Seattle, Wash., which was nine feet across. In a ride of eighty-five miles from Pasadena to Long Beach and back she just showed on the clothing of the travelers, due to the asphalt paved roads. Mrs. Wolf saw the renowned Carnation head of Holstein cows on a farm near Oakland. The herd is housed in a modern sanitary barn with all necessary fixtures, including milking machines which carried and emptied the milk into large tubs, which then carried it outside and away without being touched by a hand and kept it free from dust. She says that when she was returning and had come into our own state, and was rolling along between the great corn fields and alfalfa fields here it looked more like living than anything she had seen when she was gone.

Miss Nettie Sandahl's paper was also on the subject "The Educational Side of My Trip to the Panama Exposition."

She says: "The west is too much of an education to be absorbed in a few months or even years. Certainly there is a wonderful opportunity for education in geography, nature study, and in the study of English and scores of things through contact with the masses of travelers who come to the exposition. I learned of self-dependence and another punctuality. Their knowledge of history was increased by a visit to Salt Lake City and hearing of the Mormons and their wanderings. The oil wells in operation at Santa Monica were interesting sights. California's celebrated fruit were everywhere in evidence; also her wild spreading wheat fields and enormous flocks of sheep.

After waiting for two and one-half hours at the Massachusetts building in San Francisco they were admitted to a lecture by Mme. Montessori, the noted Italian educator, and were delighted at being introduced to her. She spoke through an interpreter. In the palace of education, Palmer, the father of the penmanship method, gave daily demonstrations of his system. It is a popular motto. Miss Sandahl says to ask her pupils if her teaching this year has been more interesting than it was last year.

The program closed with a very interesting address by Prof. C. H. Bright of the Wayne State Normal. He made a plea to the rural teachers especially for special attention to the older boys from the farms who are unable to be in school except for a few weeks during the winter months, giving his own experience as an example. If they are not interested in compound numbers, which perhaps he has gone over for several times in succession, give him something that will interest him: One aid in this might be the bulletins of all kinds which can be gotten from Washington, D. C., in which the boy will find things that he knows something about and wants to learn more about.

GORE'S Hog Worm Cream CONCENTRATED

All Hogs are Wormy: By the very nature of the hog, his way of living and what he eats, he is bound to be wormy.

There is no market for hog worms, and they sap the life blood and your money from the hog. Hog worms stunt young hogs, and a stunted hog is a money loser in the fattening pen.

The greatest menace to health and thrift of the hog is worms. A wormless hog will be a choicest hog.

Gore's Hog Worm Cream is certain to kill worms. It is the cheapest insurance and the best investment for hog raisers. It costs you less than 3c per hog. Each dose, and it feeds each 30 days will keep them free from worms.

No Waste and Proper Dose: Gore's Hog Worm Cream is not like any other medicine—it is a heavily concentrated cream preparation containing an absolute antiparasitic "Worm Killer" and the directions are followed, each hog is certain to receive the proper dose.

You simply mix or stir Gore's Hog Worm Cream in swill. It mixes perfectly and evenly. Put your swill in the trough and there you are.

IN THE WHITE HOUSE

How Christmas of Past Enjoyed by Presidents and Holydays.

No Celebration by John Quincy Adams Because He Regarded Religious Festival as a Foolish Extravagance.

ACCORDING to history the only president of the United States who did not celebrate Christmas (because he regarded it as a foolish extravagance) was John Quincy Adams. The most economical man known in public life.

Mrs. John Adams, the wife of the second president of the United States, was the first wife of a president to celebrate Christmas in the executive mansion in Washington for the president and Mrs. Washington were always in Mount Vernon for the holidays. She had no dominating sense of economy, but it was the White House itself that was shabby, and a Christmas reception given to the members of congress by the president proved, from her point of view, to be a costly failure.

President Adams, a widower with four daughters, and during his second administration Martha, the eldest daughter, was the mistress of the household, and made Christmas the happy and festive occasion it was designed to be from that time when the star shined still above the manger in Bethlehem.

There were trees, and decorations, and all sorts of entertainments for the children of the official families, as well as gifts for the poor of the capital.

Although the Madisons did not spend all of their Christmases in the White House, on account of the little historical interest in the British, when they occupied other quarters for a time, the brilliant party witnessed a record for holiday hospitality and merry-making that has never been surpassed.

When Andrew Jackson came to a stunted home he was bowed and broken by the death of his wife and depressed by political animosities. He had neither heart nor the slightest inclination for holiday celebration, but he pulled himself together at Christmas time, and saw to it that the day meant something happy to those in the White House.

In the meantime the Monroe administration was marked by nothing in the way of holiday celebration, but what was conventionally prescribed, and after President Jackson's efforts at keeping the spirit of Christmas in spite of his personal aversion, President Harrison did not live to see a Christmas in the White House.

Mrs. Tyler lived to celebrate only one Christmas in the White House. After his second marriage the Tyler administration was noted for its brilliant entertainments. Whether it was Christmas or any other time of the year, hospitalities were dispensed in the old Virginia style, and there was a lot of merry-making at the White House.

The Polk administration is remembered for the first and only time in the history of the United States when the Christmas celebration at the White House; it is difficult to define the reason why President Polk did not make the holiday a festive event in the executive mansion; it may have been the temperance of the chief executive, perhaps.

It was not until the year 1845 that the White House, for the first time, celebrated the holidays, as according to tradition Zachary Taylor, brilliant figure in military history, who had no chance whatever in the social history of the White House, before he died of cholera, was the first year after he had taken his seat as president of the United States, and spent only one Christmas in the White House. General Taylor's administration, the Fillmorens, people piously distinguished by sorrow and in no way adapted to the needs of the nation, had a great national responsibility of maintaining the political and social obligations of the White House.

"Shortly after becoming President," someone writes of President Lincoln, "this wife died, and a year later a daughter, an only child, passed to the great eternity."

THE CHILD WHO TAKES YOU THROUGH THE WONDERS OF THE MODERN DEPARTMENT WARES WHAT YOU DID.

The child you take with you through the wonders of the modern department wares what you did. The little girl strolls before the baby doll's eyes, with its tiny feet, the hoarsest floods with happiness before an ark in which is every imaginable creation. You remember what a small thing your own was, fourth or fifth, but his joy is no greater than yours. He pushes toward the rocking horse. Now it runs by machinery, when once you run your eye across the floor for the imminent danger of total destruction to persons and furniture that might stand in the way. The day when "dolls" were not and you were king or queen in your kingdom of toys.

MISS SANTA CLAUS

With joyful heart, no dainty toes, Her eyes shining like stars above, With letters with her presents goes The Christmas morn.

In Santa's task she claims a share, And bears her gifts with thoughtful care, While Love attends her everywhere, A willing aid.

Oh, Santa, take a friendly tip, Unless you want to lose your grip, Don't let her make another trip To all your gifts.

For she's a sly one, an complete, So captivating, fair and sweet, That she has got you surely beat A hundred ways.

A GREAT DAY This is Christmas day, the anniversary of the world's greatest event. To one day all the early world looked forward; to the same day the later world looks back. That day holds time together by its order. Smith.

When the joy of your kiddies brings Tenure Memories of Years Ago.

In these strenuous shopping days writes Louis James, have you caught yourself remembering suddenly, in all sorts of queer, unexpected places, all days of one year's forgetting? Have you remembered how these days before Christmas are the busiest days in the life of the child, more hectic days, perhaps, than that that are to come?

You know that yourself. You can't recall how long time went by those days before the gift day. You remember how each day seemed somehow more wonderful than the one before, each day a prelude of real joy to the child's marvelous moment of Christmas morning, when, after a night of little if any sleep, you scrambled up and stood breathless on the threshold of the room which had been forbidden you all those interminable weeks that went before.

The child you take with you through the wonders of the modern department wares what you did.
