

SAVINGS SERMONETTE

NUMBER FORTY-SEVEN

WHAT EVERYONE WANTS

To lay by a portion of the fruits of industry in this youth-and-health-for-future years, is a mark of wisdom and, as all are liable to infirmities, provisions to alleviate them is of the highest obligation.

Everyone wants a bank account — find that may be depended upon when reverses come; when sickness or commercial depression cuts off the daily or weekly income; when unexpected demands are made upon one's resources, or when old age or failing strength make impossible the exertions which bring-in return the revenue for comforts and luxuries of life.

To the average individual the great trouble is in securing the start, the nucleus for this much desired desired boon. It is a great mistake to suppose that small sums are not worth saving. By the habit of saving in little "savings" "riches" are acquired, funds saved will soon accumulate to dollars.

Many might be disposed to save part of their earnings, if they knew how to set about it.

automobile. Dr. Vail attends all the auto shows and gets as much enjoyment out of them as he did out of the earlier cars. Dr. Vail is a nephew of Stephen Vail, who was a distant relative of Robert Fulton, inventor of the steam boat. The Vails then lived at Newark, N. J., and Dr. Vail well remembers a trip to Philadelphia, 99 miles away, which he made with his uncle, on a "self-propelled buggy." The buggy had to be boosted over the steep hills and it required three days to make the journey. The trip was made in 1838, succeeded in putting out the fire.

TESTING SEED CORN AT THE STATE NORMAL

About fifty farmers took advantage of the opportunity to have their seed corn tested for germination in the agricultural laboratory of the State Normal school last week. The test showed that there was a great difference in the viability of the seed corn brought in by the farmers of this community—as is shown by the following facts: The highest test showed 95 per cent strong, 5 per cent weak and no dead kernels in the ten ears submitted to test. The lowest test showed 12 per cent strong, 37 per cent weak and 51 per cent dead kernels. The average of the fifty samples tested gave 73 per cent strong, 18 per cent weak, and 9 per cent dead. The average shows about one ear dead in every ten. It takes about fifteen ears to plant an acre, and there are about eight hundred usable kernels on each ear. Now, this means that the average condition among the fifty farmers who had corn tested, that there would be about 100 ears of unusable plants on each acre, if this corn is planted without eliminating the bad ears. If you figure one hundred twenty ears for each bushel, it would mean a decrease of ten bushels per acre in yield. This would not be actually make that much difference in yield, but certainly it would be too much to disregard when it costs only ten cents per acre to test every ear planted. There are a considerable number of farmers who have expressed a desire to have their corn tested who were unable to get in on the test made last week. So we have decided to run another test for the benefit of those, and also those who wish to make a desire to bring in their corn. The corn for this test may be left at any of the banks in Wayne and should be in by Tuesday, March 21. Use where so many are having corn tested. In order that the greatest good may come from our efforts, each set of ten ears should be accompanied with the following information: First name of owner; second date of selection; third, whether selected from crib or field; fourth, where the seed was stored during the winter. These four points of information are very important as affecting the value of seed corn and should accompany all samples. The report on the germination test should be ready about April 5. A copy of the report will be given to the owner, and to suitable samples for testing. If you are interested, bring in the corn. Here is a means of increasing your yield without any appreciable expense. Why not try it?—E. E. Lackey, Department of Agriculture, Wayne State Normal School.

Public Library. Henry James, the father of the "International Novel" died last week in London, a British subject. But to us remain the privilege and credit of having given him to Anglo-American literature—one of the most interesting and significant figures during the period on which he lived and wrote. He interpreted us to Europe, also he interpreted us to ourselves as we reacted to the "European scene" to adopt one of his own phrases. Patrons of Wayne Public Library have an opportunity to become acquainted with him through his much discussed "Daisy Miller." In this book he satirized, perhaps with more truth than satire, some of the frailties, foibles and follies of his own countrymen. New Books in Library. "Life and Letters of John Hay." Win. R. He hates militarism but believes in a reasonable preparedness and naturally shrinks from the task of leading forth the devoted but inexperienced young men of our land to be slaughtered like cattle at the hands of experienced and seasoned troops." General Wood calls our attention to the fact that our country has never in its entire history had single handed a first class country prepared for war. MARCH WINDS.
Oh, March is bad and hoisterous, and rude and rough and roisterous, she's like a dippy squaw; she bows around us frightfully, and blows our hats off spitefully,--the worse you ever saw. And as our lids go fluttering, the language we are muttering in the air around us taints; of course it's rather rude in us to use oaths platitudinous, but then we are not saints. We paw around and ever again, for breezes warm and sweet; we think we'll then be happier, but doubtless we'll be scarpper, when summer brings its heat. Our language will be vigorous, when our sore legs are chiggerous, when ants crawl up our backs; we'll still be cursing drearily, while we are swatting, wearily, the flies that stick like wax. Our discontent's inherited; we hand out roasts unmerited, to all that comes along; instead of smiling merrily, we yelp and say, "Yes, yes, yes,--indeed, it's wrong." Man ought to face things cheerfully; explaining always, fearfully, betrays the spineless cube; man's head is largely ivory and he for sense must strive or he becomes a hopeless boob.

THE GRAND DUKE.

The Grand Duke Nicholas was canned some eight or seven months ago; his ill-found soldiers could not stand against the well-armed, full-fed foe. His men were armed with rusty guns, and had no powder and less shot; they could not face the fighting Hun, nor yet endure the German swat. Remark the Russian ruler then, "Grand Duke, you fail to cut the grass; I'll send you with a bunch of men to guard some lonesome mountain pass." "All right, my liege," the grand duke cried, before the monarch bending low, "your order I'll obey with pride; for what you say must always go." A thorn-duke might well have cursed, and nursed a sore and aching head, and vowed his treatment was unjust, and groused around till he was dead. But, smiling, Nicholas retired, and led his bunch of also-rans, a group of has-beens, worn and tired, to play before the bush league fans. But, oh, how Nicholas came back, and led his has-beens to the front, and gave the Turks a deadly crack; till Russia closed in his snuff! Say, do you sit around and curse, when you've been taken down a notch, or grantly see above reverse, till all the world's spunk must watch?

SPRING AT HAND.

1914 Winter's on the downward grade, he soon will cease to blow; to furnish up the good old spade, and grind the rusty hoe; O grind the rusty hoe, my friends, and make it gleam like glass, for when the snow melts, and the birds, we say, our golden sash. The birds will soon be winging back from sunny Southern climes; they'll build their nests around your shack, and sing to beat the chimneys; they'll sing to beat chimneys, and sing to beat the sweepers' brooms, and while they raise their cheerful noise, we'll plant our beans and peas. The Frost King soon will lose his grip, the frozen brooks run free and lambs and colts and calves will skip around in frantic glee; they'll skip in frantic glee, my dears, for all young things are brash; and when the snowdrift disappears, we'll sow our succotash.

FIGHTING AND FARMING.

Since winter on its wings is falling, and spring is again old Europe's hosts are now preparing to slay about a million men. Great husky youths who should be seeding the fertile fields to wheat and oats, will spend the autumn scuffling, bleeding, intent on cutting strangers' throats. The hills of France shall see no tiller, the vales in vain expect the plow, and Death, the dour and dusty miller, is doing all the grist-work now. And Death is measuring the acres where once the shepherds used to bask, to see that kingly and kindred fakers have room to do their butcher's task. And Death demands the ox and charger, which used to draw the loaded wain, and everything that will make large his crimson tally of the slain. Where once the milkmaid drove the heifer, where once the vintner pressed the grape, Death's bloody odor taints the zephyr. Death flouts his rusty rags of crap. When to your divers gods, you're praying, pray not that either side may win, but for an end to crazy slaying, and end to murderer's smoke and din.

THE BALKY MUSE.

Oh, it's hard to keep on singing, when the muse won't come when you bow with sweat is wringing, and the muse won't work; then I'd throw away my fader, and go forth to honest labor, at the woodpile, like my neighbor, when the muse won't work. It is hard to keep on harping, when the muse won't work; and the critics all are carping, if the muse won't work; "Yonder bard his grip is losing," say the critics, him abusing; "Homer nods, but he is snoring, and his muse won't work, O, I would like to be a baker, for my muse won't work; or the village undertaker, for my muse won't work; I would like to be a tinner, or a butcher or a spinner, or a juller or a skinner, while my muse won't work. Oh, to cast a tailor's wages, for my muse won't work; I have walked the floor for ages, but my muse won't work; with my fountain pen i potter, but my brain begins to totter, though I've soaked my head in water, and the muse won't work."

BONEHEAD PLAYS.

We might as graveyard we advance, know naught but golden days, if we did not, at every chance, indulging in bonehead plays. For merry all the hills we know, and all the paings and aches, originated long ago in our own foolish breaks. Man labors, in his stalwart years, and when he draws his pay, he blows it in for long cold beers, and that's a bonehead play. The schoolboy, Mother's Little Pet, upon a summer day, learns how to smoke a cigarette, and that's a bonehead play. The damsel learns to paint and sing, to dance the night away, but sidesteps every useful thing, and that's a bonehead play. All carelessly goes in debt for grub and clothes and hay, and knows, when lawyers make him sweat, it was a bonehead play. To buy a gaudy choo-choo cart, man signs his home away, and says some day, with breaking heart, "It was a bonehead play." This life of ours should be sublime, our hearts should all be glad; but we pull boneheads all the time, and that's why life is sad.

Always Moving Ahead

Thousands of the brightest minds in this country are devoted to the development and improvement of Bell Telephone service.

Steadily and constantly some fault is eliminated, some method improved, or some obstacle overcome.

To realize the steady progress that has been made one only has to compare the quality and quantity of the service today with what it was ten years ago.

Even in the last five years the number of telephones in use has been practically doubled and the distance of telephone transmission multiplied many times.

Our rates are the lowest possible and yet afford sufficient revenue to pay a reasonable return on the money invested, after paying fair wages and after providing sufficiently to rebuild or restore parts of the plant when destroyed by fires or storms, or when it is worn out or becomes obsolete.

It is our constant endeavor to give the best service at the lowest rates at which it can be furnished, so we shall be able to connect everyone who will add to the service to others.

The river now being out of its banks, has overflowed and washed away Elk Point and other lowland localities. Do they yet live, or have they sailed out for the Gulf of Mexico?

The railroad bridge at this place was raised up two or three feet and warped all out of shape by the ice on Sunday—and hence, recent cannot run over it. On Monday a gang of men and a steam pile driver were brought up from Covington and the work of taking out the bridge and building a new one, was commenced. To do the job will take several days. Until the new bridge is put in, the trains have ceased to run. It may be a week or two, though it is to be hoped it will not, before the passenger train goes up and down again, and this locality is blessed with a mail.

NEBRASKA POLITICS.

Lincoln Journal: An informal organization of newspapers, one in each state, has been effected for the purpose of exchanging political information. The paper serves the town field; writes a summary and sends it to its exchanges in the form of proof slips, which may be printed or filed for the information of the editor. The Nebraska preliminary survey just sent out by the Journal, is as follows:

In 1912 Nebraska cast 109,008 votes for Wilson, 72,669 for Roosevelt and 34,216 for Taft. The split ticket came after the state ticket had been nominated. It was easy to enlist the support of the progressive party for the regular republican nominees, as most of them had progressive tendencies. All were elected, with the exception of Governor Adair, who had given of fence to the Taft men because of his zeal in supporting Roosevelt.

Aside from the split-over the national ticket the Nebraska republicans were not badly divided. Had it not been for the defeat of Adair, they might have held together with out a serious break. This defeat led to some recriminations and caused the loss of the governor again in 1914, together with a part of the state ticket, the Taft men refusing to vote for R. B. Howell, the republican nominee, because they considered him too progressive. In recent months the antagonism between the regulars and the progressives has lessened, and there is much talk of a reunion in support of some republican presidential nominee of liberal views.

The policy of the Nebraska delegation in the national convention will be determined by a primary vote to be taken on April 18. The entries thus far are: Henry D. Brooks of New York who lived for 40 years in Omaha and Senator Cummins of Iowa. The Estabrook candidacy is held to be of no importance. As the vote stands the vote is likely to be in favor of Senator Cummins, although a movement is under way among the numerous supporters of Hughes to write his name on the ballot.

Ex-Senator E. J. Burkett of Nebraska is a candidate for vice president, but is making no effort to influence the vote of the state on president. In case Senator Cummins is nominated, Mr. Burkett will be eliminated by geography. If his choice for president falls on an eastern man, Mr. Burkett hopes to receive consideration.

While the republicans are gradually healing their bid sores, the democrats of Nebraska have fallen into hopeless factionalism over the Bryan issue. W. J. Bryan, angered by the interference of the liquor interests in politics and particularly by their failure to give him support in the past, has announced his intention to stump the state in favor of the pending prohibition amendment to the state constitution. It is expected that he will also oppose the nomination of democrats to state office who do not stand in favor of the amendment. His brother, Charles W. Bryan, now mayor of Lincoln, is a candidate for governor on the "dry" issue. Both of the Bryans have challenged the "wet" element in the democratic party to a trial of strength. They claim that the brewers and distillers always ally themselves with the corporation element in all parties and make good government impossible. As the democrats of Nebraska have always opposed prohibition, the Bryan attitude has thrown them into an unprecedented state of irritation and confusion. Prominent democrats refuse to be for office, fearing to be hauled out as liquor and corporation henchmen by the Bryans, who have on their fighting clothes and are inclined to be hot fire and reckless in their charges. All sides profess to be for Wilson, but they are agreed on nothing else. Senator Hitchcock is a candidate for re-election but the way is opposed by J. D. O'Connell. In the primary and at the regular election, new issues like the shipment of munitions, which Senator Hitchcock has opposed, and the general attitude of the German vote will add confusion to an already complicated situation.

To summarize: The republicans of Nebraska, who are so overwhelmingly progressive that no independent progressive party has ever been strong here, are slowly reforming their lines and will support the nominee of the Chicago convention—in case he is progressive and is given a progressive platform. The democrats will support Wilson only because they have no other candidate. On account of the Bryan issue they have little hope of carrying Nebraska for anything except the Wilson national ticket.

PLATFORM PLEDGES.

Sixty in Lincoln Journal: Twenty-six years ago Ulysses John Powers, a candidate for governor and populist ticket, declared in his speeches that platforms were made to get in on, not to stand on. How true it was. A strong looking plank in the platform built at Baltimore demanded that the president-elect, an no more. Politicians playing for partisan popularity, knew that it meant nothing. The man elected to high official position is a servant of the people. If they care to keep him on the job, the platform upon which he was elected will not stand in their way, or his. The adoption of these silly vote catching pledges ought to be discontinued by statesmen, if any ever chance to get into a convention.

AILMENTS OVERCOME; GAINING IN WEIGHT

This is the story of John Gadeken of Winnebago, Neb., and how he won back health and happiness. Mr. Gadeken suffered for years from ill health. His trouble began with his stomach. His food was not properly digested, and he grew weaker under the worry of what he feared was hopelessly bad health. One day he heard about Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. He took one dose and was astonished by the results. He wrote: "My ailments seem to be entirely overcome, as the many symptoms which were constantly worrying me have, like a wonder, all passed away, and my health is improving fast. Am also gaining in weight fast—gained five pounds already. My intention to get through your treatment, and I can say that it has put my stomach and bowels in perfect shape." "Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the lower part of the bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee. If not satisfactory money will be returned."

these are reeds, featherbone, and even hair-stitch stiffenings. In many instances the reeds are graceful and becoming, but, as a rule, the effect is extremely awkward, as there is no pretense whatever of concealing the Dance Frocks of Taffeta and Chiffon, medium; and they often protrude at unexpected angles, giving a curious, unaccounted result.

In the regulation summer frock and the dance dress of net, organdy, or other of the sheer, dainty fabrics favored this year, the fulness of the skirt is made modestly present and youthful by tucks, ribbons, and bias bands of the same, or a contrasting material. Often folds of chiffon or net are attached to the inside of the skirt of the dance dress giving a soft, buoyant effect which is pleasing in every way. Taffeta is unusually effective combined with, or as trimming for, the pale-tinted frock of organdy or net, fashioning the summer dance dress. In both illustrations this week the skirt is of taffeta and the effect of the deep tuck is well brought out. The first dress has an underbodice of shadow lace and a simple over-drapery of chiffon. The short sleeve cap, while it conceals the fashion's steeple-neck demands, also makes a concession to modesty. The second frock shows the combination of net and taffeta. Aside from being especially pretty, this combination is practical, as net wears, particularly well and lends itself to almost any fashion of draping.

Ribbons and Ruchings

Pleatings and ruchings of all widths and fashions are still favored trimmings for both street and house frocks. Narrow black velvet ribbon is most effective and easily applied.

Net Bodice and Taffeta Skirt. On some of the imported models cordings, pipings, and ruchings appear in most unexpected places. One cannot fail to see that handwork, and individual hand-made trimmings, stitchings, etc., can work wonders, and afford an effect which can scarcely be brought about by machine-made trimmings. It is quite interesting to see a little blue serge frock trimmed with insertions of matching net, with accompanying pendant ornaments of wool or beads in a soft harmonizing coloring. Be retaining its effective look on both silk and wool materials; it is being used in any way that clever brains and fingers may design. The more original the notion, the more attractive the blouse or frock. Pale pink crepe de chine or crepe is made more delicate by a banding or an ornament of delft-blue opaque beads. Dark blue taffeta or serge may be brightened with a touch of emerald green, orange, copper or a harmonizing contrasting blue. There are any number of smart artistic ways of trimming frocks and blouses this season with practically no expenditure of money, if one has ideas and fingers delft enough to carry them out.

FIRST INDICATIONS FOR SPRING ARE HERE

New York, March 16.—Paris and New York are both at the moment and have been for ever so many weeks back, in the midst of the spring opening hubbub. We are not quite sure as yet whether coats are to be short or three-quarter length, whether sleeves are to be tight or loose, whether blonde or brunette will be the fashion this season.

It is quite safe to predict, however, that the same general lines suggested in the mid-season openings and at the various fashion shows will be followed.

Here and There the Tapering Waist

Other "new" one inches in the new, important, tendency toward the slender, tapering waist, and this, of course, means the well-secured, rounded waistline. It is quite remarkable that this should be so just now, when we are massing so much fullness in the skirts between the belt and the knees, but it only goes to show the wide variety we are to see in the spring and summer.

A Word on Skirts

Skirts continue short and full, and many of the houses are emphasizing the favor shown by them for the hour-glass figure will be continued for a moment, but a trifle more trimness, conduced by a well fitting modern corset, is necessary to meet the requirement of the spring suit, with its hint of a curve at the waistline, its graceful flaring skirt and coat-skirt. A carefully selected and properly fitted corset is necessary and always has been to a smart, well-groomed appearance. Rather than injurious, the right corset tends toward health.

Several of the Paris houses are advocating the three-quarter length coat, and now and then one sees a polonaise effect. These coats are made with well-fitted shoulders and rounded waistline. It is quite remarkable that this should be so just now, when we are massing so much fullness in the skirts between the belt and the knees, but it only goes to show the wide variety we are to see in the spring and summer.

Backache is one of the frequent indications of kidney trouble. It is often the kidneys' cry for help. Heed it. Read what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for overworked kidneys. Proof of merit in the following statement: Mrs. John A. Larson, Wakefield, Neb., says: "I first took Doan's Kidney Pills when I was having a bad spell with my back. A constant pain kept me awake nights and I also had trouble with the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of the attack." (Statement given June 24, 1907).

RAILROAD OFFICERS DISBURSE COMPLAINTS

At Hartington on Tuesday night of last week, the commercial club of that place met with railroad officers to discuss the service on the Crofton-Wakefield branch. Complaint had been made that the service was inadequate and ought to be improved and a meeting was arranged to discuss the question. Following are excerpts from the Hartington Herald's report of the meeting: "Mr. Reedy responded in his usual lucid and able manner, and presented an array of facts and figures in support of the community's side of the case. He said that we needed better equipment and better service on this branch, and while he paid a high tribute to the trainmen and engineers, the local division officials from blame, he contended that C. St. P. M. & O. railroad company was not giving the service that the volume of business would warrant. Better cars, better engines, better tracks, better service and better time were some of the things which he asked for in behalf of the towns served by the branch line. "The next gentleman called upon to speak in support of the community claim for an improved railroad service was the Hon. John Reifenrath of Crofton and he mentioned some of the instances in which the service could be bettered from the standpoint of Crofton. The delay which is attending the mail service getting its evening mail was the principal item in Mr. Reifenrath's complaint. Our state representative enlivened his speech with a few good stories. "The next speaker was followed by the Hon. Charles Ruden, also of Crofton, state senator from this district, who made a few remarks on the subject of an improved railway service from the standpoint of a citizen.

Mr. Ruden of Coleridge, a member of the commercial club of that town was present and was called upon and spoke briefly and to the point in regard to some of the things which that town desired in the way of better-railroad accommodations, especially, better time and ventilated cars. Plaintiff had had a brother who was just back in the hospital on account of insufficiently heated water. "At this point, the state rested, sentiment against the railroads running high, and the verdict of the jury favoring life imprisonment as the maximum and electrocution as the mode of execution was thought to be meted out to them. "And then Mr. Blundell spoke. "E. C. Blundell is the division superintendent of the Omaha railroad and is a railroad man from the ground up. He is a big man, physically and mentally, and has a quiet, convincing way of saying things which impresses people. As the defendant in the case of the people vs. the railroads, he made a good, quiet, and convincing case. While he was talking you could have heard a pin drop, and before he had finished, men began to suspect that they had been a little hasty in their judgment. Mr. Blundell took up the point of criticism against the men on his own. In regard to the charge that the trainmen were sometimes careless and discourteous, he said that was the first time the criticism had ever been made; in regard to the criticism that the trainmen run on schedule, he gave several reasons for the condition, the principal ones being the connections and the desire of the company to serve the stockmen; and in regard to the charge that the inadequate and unfit equipment is being used on this branch, he said that it was just as good as it was possible to have under the circumstances. In giving the Crofton-Wakefield branch the very best service that the business would warrant, and clinched his argument to the jury by saying that, if any man present could do any better than he was doing, he had a job for him."

The defendant made a good impression, as has been said, and the men at the smoker, who had previously been in favor of hanging, modified their opinions considerably during the argument, and roundly cheered the speaker as he sat down."

COURT ON NEWSPAPERS.

From a legal decision rendered by the supreme court of Missouri: "The press disseminates practically all of the public news of the world and a large part of which is personal; it imparts intelligence regarding the public health, public morals and public safety, and materially aids in the preservation of the two former and in the defense of the latter; it is the mouthpiece of the statesman and lawmaker, and proclaims to the world how governmental affairs are administered; it imparts the valuable news from official sources with just commendation, and singles out the inefficient and those deficient in duty; and as a rule it is at the head of those collecting and distributing public charges and interests. The press is a great educator in literature, art and science, and points out their beneficial influence upon the home, morality and religion; it enables the poor who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow to secure employment, to familiarize themselves with the best and cheapest necessities of life, and the most reliable places where they may be procured."

WILLIAM P. WARNER TO RUN FOR CONGRESS

Dakota City, Neb., March 11.—Judge William P. Warner of Dakota City has at last acceded to the demands of hundreds of republicans of the Third congressional district of Nebraska and will be a candidate at the primaries for the republican nomination for congressman from this district. Judge Warner, ever since his return from Omaha, where he served as United States marshal, has been in daily receipt of letters from all parts of the district from republicans of prominence, all insisting that he become a candidate, and in addition to letters he has had numerous personal interviews with prominent men who came here for the sole purpose of trying to induce him to enter the race. Judge Warner has been very reluctant in consenting to be a candidate and he has frequently stated that he was anxious to see the Third district represented by a republican, but that he would use his best endeavors to elect whoever was nominated; that personally he would prefer to see somebody else nominated. His entering the race is not for the purpose of gratifying any personal ambition but because leading republicans have insisted that he is the heaviest thunderbolt in the district to be hurled at the democratic hosts and to unseat Dan Stephens. Judge Warner is very well understood that if he is nominated he will be the candidate of the republican party, with "republican" underlined—he will not be a candidate for congress simply because he is in the race; and he expects to stand squarely on the republican platform, both state and national.

HUGHES.

Leslie's Weekly: Hughel! Our wideawake friend, the Hon. Victor Rosewater, former chairman of the republican national committee, reports in his Omaha Bee, after a special survey of thirty leading states, a strong endorsement for Justice Hughes for the presidential nomination. This eminent jurist has said several times, most emphatically, that he was not a presidential candidate, and he has forbidden the election of Hughes delegates to the national convention. There he rests. And there he can afford to rest. It is generally conceded by the political leaders that Hughes would be the most formidable presidential candidate the republican party could choose, with chances in favor of his election. He has steadfastly and consistently maintained that he was not a candidate, and, like a sensible man, he has rested his case there. When the republican national convention meets, if it should be swept off its feet by an unanimous demand for the nomination of any man for the presidency, we do not see how such a nomination could be declined. It would be a call to duty. The anxiety of some of our democratic friends who are warning Justice Hughes that he must not permit his name to be discussed is accompanied by such profuse expressions of high appreciation of his dignity and independence that one surmises it is not wholly without motive.

RETROSPECTIVE.

(Sixty). Can one be young at sixty years? I've tried to be, but it appears that when a chap is old and fat he has to let it go at that. Contented to accept the truth. That he has parted with his youth; unfit to race on life's swift track. Try's he may, he can't come back. His head with hair of white is—

DECEASED.

He views the years in retrospect. And lets the years of memory flow. Among the ghosts of long ago. The faces of the loved and lost drift past the session's tempest-tossed. And the hopes, and all the fears, and all the triumphs of the past. And all the griefs, and all the strife. He lives all over—such a life.
