Ten reasons why "That Printer of Udells" is the best play of the season. (1) The characters are not mere puppets but real living breathing men and women. (2) A real dramatic performance and entertainment. (3) It exemplifies typical American life scenes. (4) There is not a dull moment nor any long waits. (5) It solves the tramp question. (6) It is a really powerful and spry actor. (7) It enthralls, inspires, and entertains its audiences. (8) The story was written by Harold Bell Wright, the best American author. (9) It includes comedy without silliness, pathos without sentimentality, and heroism without boasting. (10) It is a play that everyone will be talking about and you owe it to yourself to know what it is about. This modern dramatic masterpiece will be presented at Wayne by the fine company of artists one night only, Friday, March 24. M231ad

TRY

For the encouragement of those whose constant efforts do not bring them to their desired goal as rapidly as they wish, the following anecdote in regard to one of the greatest financiers will be of interest.

John D. Rockefeller on a stormy Sunday surprised his friends by appearing in church despite the fact that it had been necessary for him to travel that night through snowdrifts that had been supposed to be impassable. The trip was made in Mr. Rockefeller's automobile from his country home at Tarrytown in New York, and was undertaken because he must at a point never miss church on Sunday, no matter what the weather conditions may be. When his friends marveled at this feat, Mr. Rockefeller simply said: "When you start out to do a thing you can generally do it if you try."

This is worth remembering. Just make the start by taking out a passbook, and keep this text constantly in mind: "When you start out to do a thing you can generally do it if you try."

 Members of the republican committee meeting in Chicago this week to arrange for the national convention, reported a general sentiment in favor of Justice Hughes for the presidential nomination. He will be given the nomination if he will accept it, and he will accept it if he is as big a man as the people think he is.

In his speech at his birthday celebration Monday night, W. J. Bryan expressed his favor for the re-nomination of President Wilson, and claimed to be in accord with him on most points. Preparedness is the one policy over which they disagree, and Mr. Bryan talked strongly against it. Preparedness being an issue of such surpassing importance, it looks as though it would cause an unbridgeable chasm between the two men.

Merchants at Crab Orchard have entered into an agreement to purchase a cash system April 1. The merchants say they will require cash, bankable paper or produce for everything bought after the date mentioned. They explain that the banks are the ones best fitted to handle the receipts of the town and should be granted the privilege. The working of the experiment will be watched with interest by other towns. If it proves successful, it will naturally reduce the cost of doing business, and the merchants' commodities when they reach consumers.

The grip is a repertoire institution. It is versatile and comprehensive. It isn't a one-profile affair like measles, mumps, scarlet fever, small pox, hahonic plague or other individualistic creations. It shoots shrapnel. It reaches every organ and it stings that it does not organ. It plants its tent wherever it is the equator, and shoots in every direction. It operates like a submarine and zeppelin simultaneously. One can get more feeling in less time from the grip than from any combined dozen diseases known to human experience. In fully diagnosing and cataloging the grip, the condition of every organ, bone and muscle must be considered and noted separately. It is a thief in the night, but from whence it comes, no one seems to know.

Delegations in congress seem to favor a public policy which they believe their constituents favor. A committee has been set up in Washington, in touch with the hand information and with time to study it, should know more about a proposed policy which has not been thrashed out during a political campaign. One of the chief disadvantages of incomplete data and diversified interests. In taking a stand on a new policy, it would seem proper for a congressman to weigh the facts carefully and be convinced by merit, and then go home to his constituents and try to convince them that he was right. As it is, a member of congress first feels of his constituents who are not in as good position as he is to judge, and is not by what they think, and with necessarily restricted means of knowing, they may think wrong. It would appear that a congressman anxious for better government ought to be more particularly interested in the merits of a proposed policy than to carefully size up the home people's idea of its wisdom.

TRASHY LITERATURE.
 Editor Herald: Child welfare is a subject of almost universal and constant consideration, for most people realize that the progress of the race and the improvement of social conditions must be based on the direction of effort given the young of every generation. In the study of child life it is self evident that existing characteristics and conditions are to be improved, the causes of them are to be removed, and the clearly understood. All who deal with children are well aware that one of the determining forces at work in the development of the child is imitation.

 Do you find children impudent or quarrelsome? Study the speech and conduct of the adults under whose control they are in whose society those children live.
 Are children dishonest or untruthful? Let the grownups of their group study without prejudice their own attitude toward obligation or duty. Many things, little in themselves, but which are done daily by adults, and the child sees and imitates. A father spies on his son to detect evidence of his smoking, advises against it, then lights his own cigar and puffs away with such apparent enjoyment that all he has said is forgotten by the boy whose highest ambition is to be like his father.

In discussing the American habit of irreverence and ridicule in respect to books, "The Discipline of the School," Frances M. Morchouse, supervisor of high school teaching in the Illinois State Normal university, has this to say: "They (the children) copy the habit from teachers, from moving pictures and vaudeville shows; and especially from that arch enemy of all that is desirable, the 'funny sheet,' of the Sunday newspaper. The wide spread example of the Katesmen and their ilk has corrupted more good manners than the whole teaching fraternity can correct in a decade."
 At a recent meeting of art directors in New York City two prominent speakers called attention to the demoralizing effect of the "funny paper."

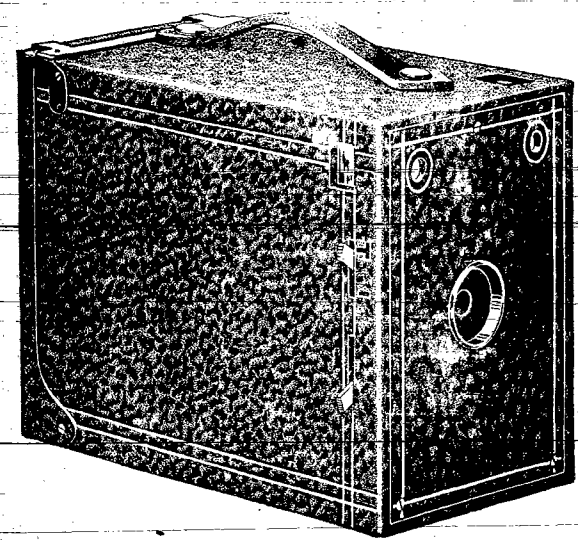

Parents and teachers are beginning to discover unquestioned influence of these comics on the habits and thinking of children. A teacher in this community reports that she has found the stories written as language exercises tainted by undesirable ideas gleaned from that feature of the Sunday supplement. This demoralizing influence is the more dangerous because of its subtlety.
 Since the tendency to imitate is inherent in children, the only safe course open to the adult who would direct the thinking and habit-forming of children is to remove, as far as possible, the undesirable example, the maritistic or suggestive picture, and trashy literature. - M. A. Phillips.

FOR FARM DEMONSTRATOR.
 Editor Herald, My Dear Sir: Relative to the matter of a "Farm Agent" or "Farm Adviser" I have been asked to write a few paragraphs setting forth some facts in connection with the farm agent movement that has made such a phenomenal hit in nine hundred counties in the middle-west—a movement that is yet in its inception—and one that bids fair to become universal. In discussing the matter I shall attempt to state in plain writing, without frills, ruffles, streaks of paint or stencil borders. I want to say a few things in a plain, frank way and put them in such a way that the boys and girls can understand them. First of all what is a "Farm Agent?"

What is a Farm Agent?
 A farm agent or farm advisor, or farm demonstrator, or whatever you are pleased to call him is a man employed by the farmers of an entire county, who, no one farmer could afford to do. He will vaccinate your hogs and fight the battle against hog cholera for you; he will save thousands of dollars worth of hogs for the county every year. He will advise you about the danger of getting the flu and horses and the care for the same. He will judge your fine stock and advise in the selection of breeding animals. Mr. Roberts, the agent of Gage county, went to the fine stock sale in Lincoln not long since with a dozen of Gage county farmers and every one of them bought fine stock under his advice.

He will tell you how to care for chickens and increase the egg crop and how to get more out of the eggs and in general make you lot of poultry money. You can meet him in his office where he will explain everything and show you samples of what others are doing and raising in other parts of the county. Before for him to come and he will drive out to your farm and take off his coat and help you do the thing you want done, answer all your questions and demonstrate everything that can be demonstrated. He will eat dinner with you, too, if you invite him.
 More than all this he will do much toward making an up-to-date scientific farmer out of you and boy, and this will be even better than increasing the yield of your corn and oats and eggs and fruit and improving your stock.
 What the Farm Agent is Not.
 He is not a soft-handed dude with his hair parted in the middle and the hair oil running down the back of his neck. He is not a snarling guard that thinks he knows it all and tries to a great expense to the people of the county.

 He will use the county farm for an experiment farm and test out things for the benefit of the entire county, which no one farmer could afford to do. He will vaccinate your hogs and fight the battle against hog cholera for you; he will save thousands of dollars worth of hogs for the county every year. He will advise you about the danger of getting the flu and horses and the care for the same. He will judge your fine stock and advise in the selection of breeding animals. Mr. Roberts, the agent of Gage county, went to the fine stock sale in Lincoln not long since with a dozen of Gage county farmers and every one of them bought fine stock under his advice.

 More than all this he will do much toward making an up-to-date scientific farmer out of you and boy, and this will be even better than increasing the yield of your corn and oats and eggs and fruit and improving your stock.
 What the Farm Agent is Not.
 He is not a soft-handed dude with his hair parted in the middle and the hair oil running down the back of his neck. He is not a snarling guard that thinks he knows it all and tries to belittle you. He does not wear evening clothes in the corn field. He does not loaf in his office, and do nothing but draw his breath and salary. He is not the "tail that tries to wag the dog." He is not the fifth wheel that you can get along without just as well as not. If he was this kind of a fellow he couldn't make it go and no university extension or state agency would send him out.

 How Can We Get a Farm Agent?
 How can we get a farm agent is perhaps one of the phases of the questions that should be mentioned. Whenever two hundred farmers will sign a petition pledging each to pay five dollars a year for at least two years the university extension department at Lincoln will send us a man who in their judgment is competent and qualified to meet all of our demands—a practical farmer graduate. The matter of using him will be up to the farmers. Will he respond to everybody's call? Yes, in so far as possible, but he will respond first to those men who subscribe to his salary.
 Who Pays Him?
 Who pays his salary is a vital question and one which every farmer has a right to know. The United States government pays him $600 per year and the state of Nebraska pays him $600 per year and the county that employs him pays the rest of his salary. This is made up by the $5.00 subscription that each of the two hundred farmers mentioned above is asked to subscribe. Since the nation and the state put so much money in his salary and since we have to pay part of the expense whether we use him or not, it is any more than good ordinary business sense to chip in a little and get the benefit. To put it in another way the government pays one-half of your hired hand's salary.

The Hard Path of Progress.
 Progress has traveled, always a hard road. Every reform, every new idea, every step of progress, every advancement in any direction, has had to buck its way against the opposition—the strenuous opposition of the people it was intended to benefit. But opposition cannot buy curb progress, never of reform roll on. New methods will come, new ways will prevail and those who champion them first—those who are themselves progressive enough to avail themselves of every possible advantage, are the ones who are benefited.
 There is now money enough in the state treasury to apply on the salary of one more farm agent. The first county that applies will get him. Will it be Wayne county? I ask, the question again, will it be wide awake, progressive, Wayne county, than which no county has richer soil or better farmers?—W. L. Gaston.

 Chadron State Normal note in Chadron Journal: Dr. House, head of the English department of the State Normal school at Wayne, gave us a very entertaining talk at chapel period on Friday, Dr. House taught in the old Academy at this place twenty-three years ago, where the parents of some children of the normal went to school to him. In the course of his address, he called attention to the intense interest in education of the settlers of this part of the state, manifested in their endeavor to keep a higher institution of learning and the promising future thereof in the State Normal school; to the development of personality by contact with other people which such an institution affords; and to the greater opportunity of finding oneself afforded by a higher institution of learning.

STRENGTHENING CREDIT.

Wallace Farmer.—It is a matter of great importance to every business man, whether he be engaged in farming or in business in town or city, that he establish a basis of credit with his local banker. Credit may not be needed now; there may be no immediate prospect of need in the near future. Nevertheless, the basis for it should be established, and this can be done more easily before there is much need for it. No one can foresee the future. Misfortune may come without warning. The best laid plans "gang aft a-gley."

Some years since, the elder Morgan, when testifying before a congressional investigating committee said in effect: "When extending credit, he relied more upon the character of the man than upon his worldly possessions. We do not remember the exact words he used, but that was the substance. If that is true in New York, where business is carried on in a manner much more cold-blooded than in the west and where loans are made largely on collateral security which can be sold at a moment's notice, how much more true is it in the west, where less rigid rules of business prevail?

How is the banker to get a knowledge of the character of the man who may want to do business with him? In most cases it must be by personal acquaintance. There are a few men in every community who have lived there so long—and whose names are so well known generally, that even those who may not have a personal acquaintance with them, do have a knowledge of their character, an understanding of the sort of men they are. But the farmer who expects to do business in the town should make it a point to form the personal acquaintance of the business men of that town, and especially of the banker. He should by personal contact from time to time give the banker an opportunity to size him up, to form an impression of the sort of a man he is. If he is a man of character and integrity, the banker will see it, and if later the time comes for the establishment of business relations between them, this previous acquaintance will prove a very valuable asset.

Next to character of the right sort, the reputation for a business man of doing things is a most valuable basis for credit. The fact that very few farmers keep accurate records of their business transactions, and that still fewer take yearly inventories, and then show how just where they stand each year in a financial way, makes it more difficult for the banker to form an accurate opinion as to their financial worth. When a business man in the city goes to the bank to get a loan, he is prepared to submit an inventory showing what he had at the beginning of the year, together with a statement of the important changes in it up to date, and a schedule of his liabilities and resources. This gives the banker something to work on. It is information of very great importance to him in deciding upon the amount of credit his customer should have.

Whether he needs it for the purposes of credit or not, it will pay every farmer—renter or owner—to make once a year a complete inventory of his possessions. This will serve him as a measure of his progress each year, and he will find it very helpful in establishing satisfactory financial relations with his banker. The mere fact that he makes such inventory each year will make the banker feel that he is more careful and more systematic than most farmers. March is a good time to make such an inventory on the farm.

WHY IS HAROLD BELL WRIGHT THE MOST POPULAR AMERICAN AUTHOR.

Because he writes American stories of American life in a manner that Americans understand and read at home. Americans never tire of reading and seeing presented in dramatic form. He shows us methods of overcoming faults of heredity and environment and ways of rising to a higher plane of mental and moral development. He shows the true American ideal of life. This "Printer of Uddels" is a typical story of real American life. In this play we see how a man who though he is only a tramp rises to the great heights of heroism—he becomes master of men. It is a wonderful object lesson of hope and inspiration to both old and young. This excellent play will be presented at Wayne opera house, Friday, March 24 by Mr. Sanford Dodge and his excellent company. Tickets are on sale at the market.

From Ponca Journal, March 23, 1892:

The Wayne Review says there are now in course of construction in that town seven new buildings, and that since July last over seventy business houses and residences have been erected.

The new town made his first visit to the new town of Wakefield in the southern part of the county. He found the town to be all that his name implies. It is beautifully located, and its life and rapid growth indicate that in the near future it will be one of the most prosperous places in the Logan valley.

While working on his brother's new house one day last week, George Dennis, a neat, stalizing boy it would seem to fall off a house and break his neck. He was shining near the end of the roof about twenty feet from the ground, when he lost his balance and started head first for the ground. He was fortunately partially swung around while falling and struck on his side, alighting on a pile of cord wood.

The fall very near knocked the breath out of him, and for a time he didn't know what he was doing. George or George's corpse, but he finally straightened up and after investigating himself and finding no bones broken, went to work again.

THE PRESIDENTIAL RACE.
Sioux City Journal: In the campaign for the republican nomination for president the only definite gain of the past week was scored by Cummins, when he carried the Missouri primary by a vote of about 5 to 1 over Espinbrook.

It was no opposition to the renomination of Wilson by the democrats. Foss and Sulzer sought the honor of heading the prohibition ticket, and at last reports the outcome was in doubt.

An unpledged delegation will go to the republican national convention as a result of New Hampshire's first presidential primary. By vote of about 2 to 1 the delegates announced their preference for Roosevelt over Foss, and he is unpledged opponent.

Three of the democratic delegates-at-large are pledged to Wilson, and the fourth is unpledged. All the republican delegates are unpledged.

Only half the number of voters who participated in the state primaries in 1915 turned out for the presidential primary.

Pennsylvania: Brumbaugh announced that he is a candidate for the presidency in a letter to the republican national committee from Pennsylvania, and his name will appear on the ballot in the Pennsylvania presidential preference primary on May 8.

It is understood the candidacy is backed by Roosevelt sympathizers. In his letter Brumbaugh says he has been assured "that those who are held responsible for the defeat of 1912 cannot bring together the broken forces of the party and lead it to a decisive victory."

McCall's chances of figuring as Massachusetts' favorite were completely dashed, and there is no chance of his being re-elected. The reason is the insistence on the part of Bird that Massachusetts stick by Roosevelt and name delegates for Roosevelt in spite of Roosevelt's declaration that he does not desire to figure in the new party contest.

McCall's statement, deploring any break in the republican party of Massachusetts and offering to step

Professional Cards

Illinois presents the somewhat paradoxical spectacle of Roosevelt threatening legal action against the officials unless they keep the names of avowed pro-Roosevelt delegates at the primary ballot and the same John Maynard Harlan, who four years ago trailed Roosevelt, and the interests of Taft, traveling from Chicago to contest the nomination of Roosevelt for president. The secretary of state has reversed himself and decided to keep the ballot clear of Roosevelt delegates, Illinois having on April 11 and will instruct its delegates for Sherman.

Committee managers were pleased, though not surprised, over the result of the Minnesota primary. The only details which they considered showing Cummings is expected to make on the first ballot in Chicago will be increased on April 10, when he is given the Iowa delegation, and in all likelihood he will win the South Dakota delegation on May 23. The Nebraska primary is to be held April 18, and the Iowa is hopeful of annexing also the delegation from that state.

La Follette insists on making his own selection of delegates, although the primary is to be held March 21. La Follette won North Dakota over both Roosevelt and Taft in 1912. He expects to follow this prospective victory up with one this year.

Interesting events of the week hearing on the presidential campaign included the selection of Allen L. Benson of Yonkers, N. Y., and George R. Kirkpatrick of New York, as nominees for president and vice president, respectively, by the socialist; the filing of Bryan's name for re-election in large form on Nebraska; the resignation of the national committee and also a protest alleging he is not a democrat; the statement by Champ Clark that he would not be able to attend the democratic convention at St. Louis; the filing of Marshall's name in Nebraska and the candidate for renomination as vice president; the calling of a meeting of the subcommittee of the national committee for March 20 in Chicago to select a temporary chairman for the national convention and the announcement that Roosevelt would return from the West Indies March 25.

KONCK THE KNOCKER.
Emporia Gazette: There is only one way to minimize the work of the knocker, and that is to snub him. "Knockers" like all men of this kind are not to be trifled with. The knocker is the most lonesome thing on earth to a knocker with no one to knock to. A knocker is harmless himself, but he is a breeder of more knockers. Snub him to death, cut him cold, and he will be kinder to other knockers than a knocker with no one to knock with. There is no fun in knocking.

Some folks come in and say, "How much will you put a furnace in my house for?" And then award the job to the cheapest bidder.

Listen, my friends, there are more differences in furnaces than in autos, houses, or farm lands. No one would say, "How much is an auto?" without specifying the grade or class.

The eighteen juniors of the Wakefield high school had a jolly time Tuesday evening when they met at the Nuernberger home to celebrate Miss Alfreda's birthday. GREATNESS.

(Bixby)

"I'll not deny that he is great" (For that is not my style)

As my man in any state,

He's greatness "all the while."

But just as great have been extant,

Is he a bigger man than Grant?

For peace on earth his breast was bare

Two years, and almost three,

And now he wants to be prepared,

Right off, on land and sea.

Men have a right to turn their coats;

And is this for the sake of votes?

It may not be a thing so strange,

If all the facts were known;

His mind has undergone a change.

And I am forced to own,

It is not to perfect this verse,

I say the change is for the worse.

Munition-makers daily wait

To flout their daily wars,

And those who deal in armor plate

MIX up in state affairs.

It is their plan to make a fuss

And scare the daylight out of us.

This night Woodrow Wilson fell

Before that active bunch;

And, though he knows that war is bad—

Bill Sherman gave the hunch—

His light is not—to seem to me—

Resplendent" as it ought to be.

Much has he done that I commend,

But now he has my goat,

Who once was Woodrow Wilson's friend.

And though he'd get my vote

I'll be proposed to break our backs

To gratify war maniacs.

I still admire his noble traits,

But want the judge to see

There are in these United States

Men quite as great as he.

As and devoted to our cause

As Woodrow Wilson ever was.

For me, I worship no man's name,

For I can plainly see

That all men make noise and blame

To this or that degree.

No perfect man in politics

Is now or ever has been.

THE WHEAT RESERVE.

Lincoln Journal: Now that the let is about out of the ground and the fields begin to present a dry, firm footing, the threshing season in Nebraska will resume. For wheat threshing, be it known, has lingered in the lap of oats sowing this year. Many a wheat stack has defied the elements of the winter long, and late March must finish what November has generally ended.

This extraordinary situation in Nebraska represents a universal fact so far as the United States is concerned. One year ago at this time there was left still on the farms throughout the country about 88,000,000 bushels of the wheat crop of the year before. But in the present March the wheat still in the hands of farmers is estimated at 241,717,000 bushels, being one-fourth of the estimated total crop. Never before, not even after the great wheat crop of 1906, was so much wheat unmarketed at the beginning of the spring.

These facts have been taken into account in making up current market prices. The great quantity of wheat still on hand should not of itself, therefore, affect the price. The interpretation of the fact concerns about three facts: First, the big wheat crop of last year, the largest ever known; second, the inability of the railroads to carry and of Atlantic ports to tranship wheat as fast as available for shipment; third, and to Nebraskans most interesting and comfortable of all, the financial ability of the wheat growers to hold their crop.

CHURCH CALENDAR.

St. Paul's English Lutheran Church.
(Rev. J. H. Peteroff, Pastor.)
Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.
Worship with sermon at 11 a. m. and 7:45 p. m.
Luther League 6:35 p. m.
The subject of the morning sermon will be the second petition of the model prayer, "Thy Kingdom Come." In these days of bible study much interest has centered in the meaning of the Kingdom. Is it the church, or is it something distinct from the church? We will try to learn what the scriptures say it is and what it is not.
The Ladies' Aid will meet Thursday afternoon, March 30, at the home of Mrs. Wendel.
A hearty invitation is given to the public to attend all our services.

Presbyterian Church.
All who read these words are very cordially invited to attend all the services of the Wayne Presbyterian church.

The hour of morning worship is 10:30. The subject of the sermon will be: "Faithfulness in Little Things." There will be two pieces of special music at each morning service.
Come to the Sunday school. Your presence is needed. Boy Scouts get busy. There are great things ahead for the Boy Scouts this spring and summer. Any boy of twelve years or upward may become eligible.
The Senior Endeavor society recently voted a unanimous appreciation of the work being done for Dayton and Cella Gilderleeve as a part of this work. Miss Esther McEachern, Mollie Grothe and Mae Hiscox also assist in the work.
Members of the Westminster Guild and of the Missionary society will be interested in the program of the Y. P. S. C. E. next Sunday evening. The topic will be "Great Home Missionsaries." Mrs. Carl Clasen is the appointed leader of the meeting. You are requested to read Luke 10:1-20 and come to the meeting.

The evening service will be union. There will be a good program of music. Mr. Gaston will deliver a lecture on the subject, "The Grace and Strength of Oak and Rock." We like these union meetings. They must be productive of great good. Come in the spirit of unity and good fellowship. Everybody is invited.

As far as we are concerned, we believe in making the mid-week union meeting, at least a permanent feature of our church work in Wayne. In union there is power. Let us be together with one accord in the place. The meeting at the M. E. church this week was well attended. Why not have another Brotherhood here in Wayne.

The German Evangelical Lutheran Church.
(Rev. R. Moehring, Pastor.)
Next Sunday will have a mid-week school at 10 o'clock, and preaching at 11 o'clock.

Baptist Church.
(Publicity Committee.)
The Baptist church will have their regular service next Sunday morning at the brick church on the corner. Rev. W. L. Gaston will be in the pulpit with a characteristic sermon and will conduct a lively, helpful service. Strangers who have not received an especial welcome and will be pleased with the service.

In the evening the pastor of this church is to deliver a lecture in the Presbyterian church entitled "The Grace and Strength of Stone and Oak." His people will go to the Presbyterian church with him and no evening service will be conducted in the Baptist church.

THE FIELD OF BUSINESS

St. Louis City Journal: While each threat that the United States might be involved in the European war has caused a slump in securities, the certainty of intervention in Mexico proved a positive help to a somewhat woody market. The Wall Street conviction is that American control of Mexico—or any part of Mexico, for a time—will be beneficial to practically every business interest in the turbulent republic. There are many important industrial concerns whose securities have been languishing because of suspension of business in evident lack of order in Mexico. The manifestation of any degree of American concern in the restoration of order in Mexico could not fail to revive speculative interest in these securities. As a direct result of the American decision to enter northern Mexico, and the Carranza decision to cooperate with rather than oppose the punitive expedition, there was the most pronounced buying movement. Wall Street has witnessed for weeks the benefit from the demand extended to all classes of securities.

The British decision to prohibit the importation into the United Kingdom of luxuries will cause some interference with American export trade. How serious this interference will be remains to be seen. The probability is it will not be so extensive as has been feared. The new embargo has been placed purely as a menace. It applies to all countries alike, including British colonies. It covers such articles as automobiles for private use, musical instruments, cutlery, hardware, chinaware, soaps, and fancy goods. It is explained that tonnage for the transportation of articles of necessity, such as war munitions and food, is running short and that the suspension of trade in luxuries is intended solely to make place in the ships for commodities with which the United Kingdom cannot well dispense. A secondary effect, of course, will be to reduce the balance of trade against the United Kingdom and serve to hold American exchange at a more normal figure. From the British financial standpoint, this will be an advantage. It is not likely the volume of American exports will be reduced materially for the ships will take abroad all the exports they can carry. But certain lines of production will be benefited while

Hymn to Nebraska

(By REV. W. H. BUSS of Fremont.)

A prize of $100 was awarded to the author by a special committee to select an ode to be sung at celebrations of Nebraska's semi-centennial anniversary.

Now land the proud tree planter state,
Nebraska—free, enlightened, great;
Her royal place she holds in song,
The noblest strains to her belong;
—Her fame is sure—
Then sing Nebraska through the years;
—Exult her stalwart and unfeared;
The days when, staunch and unafraid,
The state's foundations, well they laid,
To long endure.
—II—
The land where Coronado trod,
—And brave Marquette surveyed the sod,
Where Red Men long in council sat,
Where spreads the valleys of the Platte
Far north the sun,
The land, beside whose borders sweep
The big Missouri's waters, deep,
Whose course erratic through its stands,
From northland on through many lands,
Does seaward run.
—III—
The foothills of the Rockies lie
Afar athwart her western sky;
Her long, her prairie, the wide
Held long in virgin sanctity,
Her fertile loam.
The author suggests that the following stanzas to be numbered 3 and 4 could be utilized on occasions:
Her heaving bluffs uplift their heads
Along her winding river-beds,
And, pleasing far the traveler's view,
Well guarded her elkhorn and her Blue.
—IV—
And there, by landmark, ne'er to fail,
Upon the ancient westward trail,
Or given stone, securely placed,
By eye-observant may be traced
Where wigwam stood,
Her honored cities grow in wealth;
In thriving commerce, public health;
Her first, the gateway of the west;
—Her Omaha, right will not rear,
—Her Kearney,
Her capital of worthy fame,
That bears the mighty Lincoln's name,—
And thousands of Nebraska youth,
—E'er sunnious to her fount-of-truth,
At learning's seat.

others will lose part of their present market.
The spring season is opening with every index of activity steadily mounting. High prices apparently are not serving as a deterrent in any way. Most of the complaints in regard to current business relate to difficulty in securing deliveries of time.

NEBRASKA HOGS.

Omaha Bee: A story to gladden our hearts is that printed in the Joseph Gazette, which tells of a Nebraska farmer who sold a load of hogs on that market for $1,600. He worried had caused his mental breakdown. He boasted that some day he would do that very thing and would receive $835 per hundredweight for his pork on the hoof, his neighbors would have hurried him off to the asylum ere he did harm to himself in his ravings. What is further emphasized is that the $1,600 of hog money represents but one of the products of the farmer's plant for the eight months period of time, during which the "jobless" put out some valuable dairy stock, sold some high-priced poultry and poultry products, and marketed vegetables and fruit, all of last night dropped for a considerable period his subject and discussed national topics and his relations with President Wilson, whose renomination he declared he favored. There would be, he said, no other candidate at the St. Louis convention. "I am a candidate for delegate-at-large to that convention," said Mr. Bryan, "but if any of my friends of Woodrow Wilson can serve him better than myself he then send some one else to the convention." "If Woodrow Wilson owes me anything he has more than paid it back by giving himself to the na-

Commenting on this shining example, the Gazette says: "Some few years ago, the farmer who would have expressed belief in his ability to put a 2-month-old pig on the market at 220 pounds would have been pitted by his rural neighbors; they would have wondered whether the heat or business which, however, were but side lines to the main crops of corn, wheat, small grain and hay. Other states may be able to match the Nebraska hog, but it's dollars to doughnuts they can't beat it."

Mogul 8-16 Saves Its Own Price In Fuel Bill Reduction

THAT'S true. A Mogul 8-16 kerosene tractor saves its own price in fuel bill saving, as compared with a gasoline tractor.

Until April 1st the price remains at $675 cash f. o. b. Chicago. Fortunate early purchasers of material still allow you this low figure. After April 1st the price will be $725, same terms.

At either price the Mogul 8-16 is by far the most economical tractor because it operates on cheap, common kerosene or coal oil. Gasoline to run the gasoline tractor costs 100 per cent more than the kerosene a Mogul 8-16 will use. Which is best for you?

You know what gasoline costs you, and you know what you pay for kerosene. Figure it out yourself, or see your dealer. This is a saving you can't afford to miss.

OUR RELATION TO THE BELLEGGRENTS.

Fremont Tribune: Victor Mardock, just returned from the war zone, tells again of the horrors of the people of the belligerent nations for the United States. Maybe it is not so much hatred as contempt and disgust. At any rate, if we are to believe his testimony, reinforced by that of many other keen observers who have been abroad of late, we are not in good repute across the seas.

Can anybody figure out a cause for this feeling toward us? Or are there several causes for it? As compared to those nations we are young, cocky and full of swagger. We have done so much in a material way in so short a time, as the life of a nation is reckoned, that we have easily and emphatically outstripped any other country of the world, and, very naturally, we are envied. The old countries had become settled and even in their character before the war and we were held by them to be "fresh" and freakish and something of upstarts. Perhaps it is galling now for them to witness us unctuously prospering and profiting out of their sore needs and resting in peace while they are weak, ailing and bleeding from every vein.

Maybe our readiness to yield in a contention in order to avoid the inferno into which they have fallen is irritating to them and interpreted as meaning that we are weak and white-livered and too cowardly to assert our rights, lest such assertions cost us something in blood and treasure. Standards are different in war and peace. Bloodshed has made the foreign view less considerate of human life. Doubtless in the foreign mind we are too slow to resent insult and infringement of our rights. That may be held that we would sacrifice honor for gold. Perhaps this blood-soaked sentiment arouses the contempt in which we are said to be held by our foreign friends, or foes.

Yet because one's house burns is no reason why one should wish that the homes of all his neighbors and friends should suffer the same fate. Every normal person should rejoice that there is the leaven of goodness and peace and hope in the world; that something the sun is shining. The unparalleled thing is being done by America in organizing charity on a vast scale and sending millions upon millions abroad to alleviate the suffering of the wretched sufferers of war. In this mission our people are sublimely neutral. No one stops to ask what the nationality. It is only that where the greatest need is there will go the greatest portion. Are not these stories, such as "The Tribune" published yesterday in a letter from Paris, of profound gratitude for the gifts we have freely sent, to have any effect on the minds of the people of the belligerent countries?
