SCHOOLMEN'S ROUND TABLE HELD IN WAYNE

Topics Discussed Aroused Interesting Discussion—Normal News Notes.

The second meeting of the Schoolmen's Round Table of North-western Nebraska, held at the Wayne State Normal, Saturday, April 15. Three topics were discussed:

1. Athletics in High School, led by Supt. O. R. Bowen.
2. Science in the Average High School Pupil, led by Principal A. B. C. Jacobs of Tekamah.
3. What Should We Expect of our Teachers Outside of the School Room, led by Supt. F. E. Price of Neligh.

The association was fortunate in choosing the leaders for these discussions. The writer never heard of letter papers for the purpose of presenting topics and provoking discussion than those given by Supt. Bowen, Principal Jacobs and Supt. Price. After each had finished, a lively discussion was asked, and the prospects were realized in each instance. There was no time wasted and no one went to sleep for lack of interest and enthusiasm.

In connection with the first topic the schoolmen seemed to think that athletics in high schools are for all pupils and not only for the few who least need the training; secondly, the prevailing idea to win at any cost should be discarded, and the idea of "real sport" must be substituted.

As to the second topic, all present seemed to agree with Principal Sedgwick's suggestion about assisting high school students to solve their problems in the home community; that it should not be a study of science for the sake of science, but rather an application of science in practical living. In other words, science should be humanized for boys and girls.

There was no agreement as to what the teacher should or should not do inside of the school room. Many differed in their opinions. The fact that no agreement could be reached marks this subject as a timely one for the consideration of teachers. Perhaps the best would be the interest of different communities. At any rate each teacher must make, at least in part, an individual adjustment; but this does not lessen the importance of his decision. In most cases it involves either success or failure.

All in all, the meeting was the best of its kind the writer ever attended, and he believes this is the opinion of each one present.—H. H. Jahn.

STATE NORMAL NOTES.

SOCIAL NEWS

Shakespeare Club.

On Tuesday evening Miss Mabel Dayton entertained the members of the Shakespeare club. The ladies began the reading of John G. Neill's play, "The Merry Wives of Windsor," which book they expect to study for several meetings. A committee, consisting of Mrs. M. A. Phillips, Miss Sara Kilham and Miss Mary Mason was appointed to map out the program for the coming year. At the close of the meeting Miss Dayton served dainty refreshments. The club meets with Miss Mary Mason in two weeks.

A Belgian Program.

At the meeting of the U. D. club at the home of Mrs. John Hufford Monday afternoon, an interesting program concerning Belgium was presented. The ladies had answered roll call by giving a brief description of some Belgian city, Mrs. W. W. Kline told of the life and customs of the Belgian royal family. Mrs. H. B. Wilson then read the past history of Belgium and told of some of its present conditions. The whole program was of special value because of the part which this little country has played in the present European struggle.

Gives Luncheon.

Mrs. H. F. Wilson sent out invitations to the ladies of the Aeneas club for luncheon at her home Monday. The rooms were charmingly decorated with sweet peas. At 1 o'clock the guests found their places at the table by dainty Easter place-cards. The hostess served an excellent four course luncheon, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Later in the afternoon was held the annual business meeting at which reports were read and the election of officers took place. A group of the officers were re-elected for another year: Mrs. John T. Bressler, president; Mrs. Walter Weber, vice president; Mrs. E. S. Blair, secretary; Mrs. A. H. Ellis, treasurer.

Favorites Paving and Macadamized Roads.

C. A. Chace who returned last week from his winter's sojourn in southern California, says this section is farther behind the coast country in paving and good roads than any other section of the state. Not only is it so, but Wayne are paved, but the country roads are macadamized and made easily passable at all seasons of the year. The result is a facility of travel that permits getting by long on shortened time. The saving of automobile tires alone is said to justify the cost of the improvement. Mr. Chace thinks the sooner paving and improving road building are undertaken, the sooner will growth, consistent with resources and opportunities, be realized.

Central Social Circle.

Last Thursday afternoon the Women's club met at home held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. R. R. Smith. All of the members except Mrs. Adolph Keiper were present and Mrs. Ray Perdue joined the circle at the meeting. After an interesting discussion of current events, followed by a short business meeting, the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Miss Lulu Smith, served delicious refreshments. The circle will meet next Thursday in May with Mrs. Fred Wendt.

Impersonation Party.

In response to the invitations from Elizabeth Mines and Warda Randol which read "Give us some power the gifts we use." To this object all the others see us," the seniors gathered at the home of the former Friday evening, each one dressed to represent either a senior or a member of the faculty. The impersonation was also carried out in the conversation and actions of each guest. This clever idea created fun all during the evening, especially when Mr. Bowen's "second" gracefully waltzed around the room. Each guest manifested their interest by putting on some trick or sleight-of-hand stunt. Late in the evening delicious refreshments were served by the host and hostess. Although all the members of the faculty were invited, Mrs. M.

ON MONDAY EVENING

The P. E. O. sisterhood held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Rollie Ley Monday evening. Roll called brought forth from each one present the name of some woman who is doing things in the world today. Mrs. E. S. Blair furnished music.

Celebrate Birthday.

Mrs. Rollie Ley invited over twenty boys and girls to her home Tuesday afternoon to help little Miss Joy Ley celebrate her tenth birthday. The guests arrived immediately at the close of school and remained until 7 o'clock. Just before seven Mrs. Ley served delicious refreshments.

Mrs. Hahn, Hostess.

The Monday club met with Mrs. H. H. Hahn Monday and not with Mrs. P. B. Becker as was announced in last week's social calendar. After roll call Mrs. Hahn gave a very interesting talk about the recent discoveries in archaeology. An interesting letter was read from Mrs. C. A. Chace, who has been at Long Beach, Calif. for several months.

Birth Record.

A son was born Sunday, April 16, at Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Jones, Wayne.

A son was born Monday, April 17, to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartling, six and one-half miles southeast of Wayne.

Wayne has reached Wayne announcing the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Skeen at Pomona, Calif. Mrs. Skeen was formerly Marie Feather of Wayne.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

On Easter Sunday the first mass will be at 8:30 o'clock and the second mass at 10:30 o'clock. At 7:30 in the evening there will be benediction. There will also be a service on Good Friday evening at 7:30.

On the Subject of Home Heating

The Round Oak Moistair Heating System, properly installed, completely renews the air in every room on an average of ONCE EVERY TWENTY MINUTES. Now stop and think. Let it sink in. THAT MEANS HEALTH, for every physician agrees a heating system that will not provide fresh, clean, pure air in abundant quantities is a menace to every member of the family.

Necessity of Proper Installation

No heating system ever gave 100 per cent satisfaction unless carefully installed. Proper installation costs no more than improper installation. The main requirement is KNOWLEDGE OF HOW TO DO IT. If you will trust us with this important part of your home equipment, you may be sure it will prove 100 per cent efficient.

The Round Oak is the only warm air heater sold in Wayne bearing the trade mark and approval of the National Warm Air Heating & Ventilating Association.

The left half of this illustration represents the trunk branches and fruit of a tree.

The trunk corresponds to the spinal cord, the branches to the nerves, and the fruit to the organs of the human body, as shown in the right half of the cut.

Pliers are represented as pinching a limb, also the nerves which convey the functions to the stomach, the results are immature, worthless fruit and a diseased stomach.

In the human body the intervertebral foramina are the pinchers.

The vertebrae are wrenched, displaced, occluding the openings through which the nerves pass. Chiropractors assert that this pressure causes 95 per cent of all diseases.

The leaves and fruits are at the twig ends of the limbs.

The organs of the body are at the peripheral ends of the nerves.

Disturbed functions in any other branch, or spinal-nerve, would have shown similar results in other fruit or vital organs.

DEATH OF INFANT BOY.

O. C. Lewis received a telegram Monday from his daughter, Mrs. Minnie Lueblich, at McDonald, Kas., announcing the death of her youngest child, a 6-months-old son. While the family visited in Wayne recently, the baby suffered from scarlet fever and pneumonia, but was apparently well when the family left for Kansas last week. Death was pronounced due to measles. The child's weakened condition from sickness doubtless rendered it unable to withstand renewed attack. At 11 o'clock on Monday morning from his daughter made encouraging reference to the improved health of the family, and so a sudden turn for the worse was evidently taken. Mr. Lewis left on the afternoon train Tuesday for McDonald, and will bring the body of the little one to Wayne for burial.

There was a bad fracture of the skull and large fragments of skull-bones were removed and a large loss of the brain tissue was sustained. He had suffered considerable hemorrhage and this fact, with the brain injury and length of time, twelve hours, he lay exposed and with the loss in the brain, scarcely gave him any chance of recovery. He had received the best of surgical attention and care but gradually grew weaker until the end came at 4:35 p. m. His parents are in Fitzgerald, Ga. and were immediately summoned and are on their way here.

Methodist Church.

(Rev. A. S. Buell, Pastor.)

A sacred cantata entitled "The Lord of Easter Tide" by John D. Gresswell, will be rendered by the Methodist choir next Sunday evening.

On Sunday morning the pastor will preach an Easter sermon from the text, "Why Seek Ye the Living Among the Dead?"

Revival meetings in the Methodist church will begin the first of May, in which the pastor will be assisted by Mrs. Mabel Stevens of St. Petersburg, Fla., with a very capable singer who has been with her for six years. People are asking about these meetings. Who is Mrs. Stevens? Who is her singer? What about them? What kind of a revival meeting do you expect to hold the first of May? Do you expect everybody to come and can you hope to accomplish a great deal in two weeks time? Is this meeting just a kind of a fellowship meeting for the church members? Every individual within ten miles of Wayne is invited to come if he wishes to do so, and everyone who comes once will be back every night as long as Mrs. Stevens stays in town even though he may be getting ready for commencement or planting corn. Mrs. Stevens is a college trained woman, a cultured southern lady who is thoroughly consecrated to her Master and His work. The ladies may just as well get their housecleaning through before the first of May for after Mrs. Stevens begins there will be no more cleaning until she is gone and the men will come whether the house is cleaned or not.

Remember the prayer meeting on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Beginning with Easter Sunday all evening programs will begin at 8 o'clock.

The secretary of the Norfolk Commercial Club has sent out card asking teachers to express their preference regarding the next meeting place for the North Nebraska Teachers' association. We suppose this question was settled when the association voted to leave the selection of a place to the executive committee which was subsequently elected. The fact that the committee happened to be favorable to Wayne stirs the Norfolk club to get busy. In view of the action of the association in delegating power to a chosen group, the executive committee will be fully warranted in standing pat and refusing to be influenced by the anxious interests of the Norfolk club.

Holding the state-wide primary again arouses discussion of the merits of the primary system. One big objection is the cost. It is expensive both for the public and for candidates. The cost to the ninety Nebraska counties will run in the neighborhood of $200,000. The cost to candidates eliminates a man of small means no matter how well qualified he may be for public service. The huge expense, however, would be considered unobjectionable if better public service and better government have been accomplished. On the other hand, people object to the old-time machine conventions in which people were bribed, consulted, notwithstanding the claim that results were quite as satisfactory as those secured through the primary. Neither the primary nor convention is entirely satisfactory, and it is likely no faultless system will ever be worked out.

A current magazine contains a valuable article showing the importance of courtesy in the commercial world. Stores, hotels and railroads are mentioned among institutions helped or hurt according to policies of consideration shown. It is a well known fact that railroads whose heads are affable and well disposed, have been made to suffer by inconsiderate and ill-mannered subordinates who meet and deal with the public. No doubt much anti-railroad legislation—some of it just, some of it unjust—could be traced to the snapping tongues and spewing content of railroad employes in meeting the wants of railroad patrons. Since it had become apparent that injury had been done to railroads through needless discourtesy on the part of employes, a change of policy for the better has been enforced with notably a more kindly attitude towards transportation companies by the general public. No business institution, no matter how big, or how small, should tolerate churlish employes and their inevitable and possible failure. Courtesy is easy if one cultivates the habit, and should be insisted on in all lines of trade or industry.

The handling of the Mexican situation is not so ungenerally successful as the people had hoped it would be. Villa, object of pursuit and source of much trouble, found it convenient to be dead for a few days, and it looked as though relief to a perplexing condition were imminent. But Villa has announced that he is alive again, which means continued pursuit unless a policy of weakness is to be shown by the administration. The Carranza government whose soldiers are little more to be depended on than the Villa bandits, issues instructions to the United States, hampering its soldiers with limitations. It is ordered that the American troops must leave Mexico within a certain time. The Carranza government is not apparently much concerned over the capture of Villa. When the time limit is over, will the administration withdraw the soldiers if the punitive expedition has not been a success and Villa is still at large? If so, the Mexicans will feel they have defeated the United States, and could easily wipe out this whole country. It is likely more snap and decision will have to govern the policy of the United States before Mexico can be made to behave itself.

Another case of picking the lock on a door and stealing refreshments intended for guests is reported. The party given for the senior class of the high school at the J. G. Mines residence was disturbed by this raw and rough-necked sort of barbarism. The lock was picked—a felony—and the kitchen entered and robbed of a big cake. Not content with the theft, the intruders added insult by sticking the plate from which the cake had been devoured, fast on the cigarette stub, and leaving on the porch. This was not the first offense of the kind in Wayne. Stealing refreshments prepared for guests has often happened, and according to our recollection, the guilty ones have never been caught and punished. But it is no less a crime because it has frequently occurred without the guilty getting into the meshes of the law. If one is amenable to the statutes for breaking into a store and stealing money, he should be made answerable to the law for breaking into a house or kitchen and stealing the provisions she has procured for her guests. No one is licensed by Wayne or sanctioned by local society to commit such outlandish unhampered and unpunished. Authorities ought to see that offenders are ferreted out and given just deserts as an effectual stop to habits of theft which have long been annoying.

RIGHT OFF THE BAT.
The Fairbury News points out a fault often found in the preparation of obituaries. The Herald has privately called to the attention of many writers the importance of introducing an obituary or any other news article with a gist of the information to be conveyed, and then proceeding with details. People want to know what has happened without wading through a lot of preliminary explanation. If possible, the first brief sentence should reveal the secret of the story to be told. The News says: "There is nothing that gives a newspaper man—or the reader either an eventful career. As the reader reads on and on he wonders whether the subject of the sketch is a candidate for office or has just been appointed postmaster. But if he sticks to it long enough he may find away down toward the bottom of the article, as if it was thrown in incidentally, a paragraph which winds up something like this: "and departed this life on the 16th of November, 1916." Occasionally they forget to add this information and the reader is left up in the air as to what became of the person—and virtuous citizen. "That sort of an obituary was all right seventy-five or a hundred years ago. In those days people did not realize that news was the prominent feature of a newspaper, and they were satisfied to search for it through the most obscure quarters of the paper. But now, in these days of hustle and bustle and commercial activity, men want the news to hit them in the face when they open the newspaper."

MAKE A START

These three words are the initiative to success in business. If you will only have the courage to "make a start" he would never have discovered the New World. And just as surely you will never have a bank account if you do not make a start. Do not wait until you have a large amount, but start now or next payday. There are several good reasons why you should commence at once:

1. The sooner you begin, the sooner you will have a capital of your own.
2. And then, if your money is in the bank, it will not be stolen or destroyed.
3. Also, when it is in the bank it is increasing and increasing itself.
4. Lastly—a little personal experience—we have always noticed that it is easier to spend money when you have it than to pocket than when he has to draw it from the bank. So make a start. Do it now. Do not neglect or defer it. You will never have a more propitious opportunity.

SEEING NEBRASKA

Fremont Tribune: The Nebraska Press association in planning for a tour of education. They are going to study the state in which they live at closer range. Gathering at Grand Island on some beautiful mid-summer day they will entrain for a trip through the northwest part of the state, stopping at Broken Bow, Alliance, Crawford, Chadron, thence back to Bridgeport, Sidney and to Scottsbluff, where the formal proceedings of the association will take place.

It will be a good thing for the editors and a good thing for western Nebraska to have such a program carried out. It will give the custodians of the channels of publicity a better knowledge of the magnitude and the varied resources of Nebraska and of the progress of its development, and this knowledge can be drawn upon in the future with profit.

Stock growing in the "sand hills" has become a source of great wealth. Hay and potato production is claiming attention. Agricultural problems in the valleys of many sections that were not long since regarded as unfit for crops, are being gradually worked out. Small grain under "dry farming" methods is being produced in unbelievable quantities in the far west. And in the irrigated county of Lincoln a valuable crop of cotton is being developed. The transformation there of the black soil into miles of caravans of white sugar is a miracle that is astonishing those who behold it.

The editors, thanks to their latter-day enterprise and to their own fortunate financial condition, than of yore, will be able to get this valuable schooling. It looks as if the next session of the association would furnish the climax of the thirty-five years of its existence.

DROPPING GRAMMAR.

Omaha Examiner: A woman was telling the other day about her husband's tricks of speech. He is descended from one of the most aristocratic families of the state and had every educational advantage.

Perhaps this man is an exemplification of the fad of dropping of formal grammar in school. This educational theory has influential spokesmen, as will be seen by the address just delivered by an official of the General Education Board of New York, concerning which the board asks for a general expression of opinion.

Some people ask What is grammar, anyway? Why is it not as well to say "them things" as "those things"? The meaning is perfectly clear, and if so, is not the purpose of speech observed? Yet there would be no sense of confusion if the basis of grammar were let down. A fixed agreement that certain forms are to be used for certain ideas promotes clarity of thought.

Some advanced educators, while holding firmly to the need of grammar, argue that you don't need to teach it in set lessons. If the child hears correct forms in school he will speak them afterward, they argue.

This seems to ignore the influence of one's surrounding after quitting school, when one encounters a flood of incorrect speech in daily life. The memory of the way you used to speak in school or college fades out. The mind grasps the regular form more quickly than an irregular one. Ease of expression and understanding are promoted by the practice of regularity.

DO WE WANT TO LIVE?

Norfolk Daily News: Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, former head of the pure food bureau of the department of agriculture, originator of the famous "poison-squid" idea, can always be trusted to say something forceful and worth thinking about.

In the last issue of Good Housekeeping magazine he asks: "Do we really want to live? As I might with my fellow men, I begin to doubt it. Our conversation is of war, commerce, society, music, clothes, athletics, congress, preparedness, taxation, occasionally of books, and once in a long while of life. That which is dearest to us we apparently think least about.

Where one man is studying how to prolong life, thousands are seeking means to put a speedy end to it.

The "advisory committee" to the secretary of the navy has suggested building a laboratory costing five million dollars and equipping and manning it, which would probably take about as much more. Its purpose is to study the best methods of killing our fellow men from other countries and preventing our own sailors and citizens from being killed. I am not inclined to protest against this action, but merely to ask, what of guarding against disease and preventing the half-million of preventable deaths every year? Who will provide the five million dollars for that? Ten dollars used for prevention will save a life.

The American Public Health association, the medical associations, and the dental associations are studying this problem, but are exciting little public interest. People

E. K. VALENTINE.

E. K. Valentine who died at an advanced age at his home in Chicago last week, was well known by the early settlers of Wayne. John T. Bressler says when he came to Wayne, Mr. Valentine was register of the United States land office at West Point. Later he was elected district judge, defeating Judge Griffe of Dakota City. When Mr. Valentine was elected to congress—this state having been entered Ia only one at that time—he was compelled to resign as district judge, and Governor Nance filled the vacancy by appointing Judge J. B. Barnes, now member of the supreme court. Mr. Valentine served three terms as a member of congress and then appointed sergeant-at-arms of the United States senate. His Wayne acquaintances remember him with esteem.

Farmers Buy the Large Size Herrick Refrigerators.

HERRICK HIGH GRADE REFRIGERATORS.

The cut does not show it exactly as it is. It has four doors in front, instead of three, one covering the ice compartment and the other three the food chamber. The ice compartment is in the upper left hand corner and has capacity for 175 pounds. The bottom is lined with heavy galvanized sheet iron, the trap and drip tray being easily removed by turning a button. This feature is patented and is found on no other refrigerator. It saves removing the ice from the ice chamber and the consequent slop and grime when the drip pan requires cleaning. Directly below the ice chamber is a compartment for meats, fruit, vegetables, etc., while to the right two five gallon railway cream cans can be put side by side. In the upper right hand corner is room for four 14 quart cream cans. It will be seen that this refrigerator will readily take care of 14 gallons of milk, 10 gallons of cream, and the catchalls besides. All the sliding is of removable sanitary steel wire heavily tin coated.

The outside case is genuine white oak (not imitation oak) and the inner lining of adolpser spruce or white enamel. Between the walls layer after layer of mineral wool is securely fastened so that it can never slip out of place and thus expose the contents of the refrigerator to the summer heat.

All hinges and latches are of pure brass nickel plated. Dimensions 43 1/2 inches wide, 25 inches deep, 58 1/2 inches high, weight 340 pounds. Price $35.00.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

PROGRESS.

When I was young I had to go and till the cornfield with a hoe. Ah, it was weary work, indeed; it paralyzed the noxious weed, and scraped the dirt around the corn, and yearned to hear the dinner-bell. 'Till all day to beat the hand, till blisters came on hoof and hand, and then the husbandman would say, as he dug up my meagre pay, "Was that the best that you could do?" You must have loathed the whole day through!" And now I see the farmers ride on cultivators tall and wide, that bill the corn and slay the weeds, as they are drawn by prancing steeds. A hundred freckled lads with hoses might work all day along the rows and the corn achieve as much, I ween, as would one green and red machine. The farmers of these modern days know naught of old time toilsome ways; they do their labor sitting down, and in chon-chag cars to town, they find the boodle growing rank, and have to stack it in the barn.

HIRED HANDS.

Upon the farms—rolling acres, the hired men, bulky harness wearers, now push the gleaming plows; all day above their tasks they're bending, and when the twilight is descending they milk three thousand cows. They rise before the dawn is bringing, and give their sweat-stained mules a raking, with brush and curcomb; with pals of will they go a-reeling, to feed the pokers, loudly squealing as they blow off the foam. They feed the calves and grown the chickens, and milk more cows to beat the dickens, before the rise of sun; and while the rest of us are snoozing, the glory of the morning losing, their day's work is begun. The eight hour day? Don't josh or mock them; such levity would pain and shock them; some eighteen hours they toil, between the hour of their up-getting, and their retiring, tired and weary, and caked with fertile soil. We boast and grow the richest farmer, and say he is the honest champion who keeps the nation fed; but, by the boosters, bands and sages, of him who fills the land for wages, there's mighty little said.

ADVERTISING.

I asked eight dollars and a half for one fine black Polled Angus calf, which price was not too high; I hooded it west, I hooded it east, endeavoring to sell the beast, but no one wanted to buy. Day after day I toiled along, and bored men with the same old song, "I have a calf for sale. I ask eight bones and fifty cents, for this unequalled critter, now coming up to the rate." Then said a friend, "Oh, rest your feet, and quit your wearing out the street, and howling by the year; spend fifty cents and advertise your sawed-off cow of pocket size, and buyers will appear." I followed up advice, and put my jaded feet on ice; and when the ad appeared, ten customers came to my gate; one bought the calf and paid the freight, the others bucked and roared. And thus, by printing little ads, the wise man ratters in the scads, and rests his aching corners; a little ad will make more noise than fifty-seven-busy boys, all tooting on their horns.

UNAPPRECIATIVE MAN.

"My husband," sighed the weeping wife, "has made a ruin of my life. He does not seem to yearn or long for Higher Things, like 'Art and Song.' The only things to him appeal; he'd rather have a good square meal, than sit with me through dreamful days, reciting Robert Browning's lays. A noble pointing on the wall makes no appeal to him at all, when I would pass the picture by, and say he'd rather have a pie. Because the bread is always hard, because his portnerhouse is charred, because the coffee's weak and thin, he'll make a most successively dim—his cake'll be made to realize that noble odes beat oyster fries, that Ipsen's pen, surcharged with ink, surpasses sausage in the link; that Handel's grand harmonium—burst, beats sweitzer or hawthorn. So he'll walk on the floor, and weep and wail forevermore."

SPORTS.

I watch the young men sporting, and tussling and cartwing, at divinely games, at wrestling, Greek and Cornish, and boxing bouts (inhornish), until they break their hames. It gives them satisfaction to get their forms in action, strain their bones and thews; life in their veins is bubbling, no rheumatism is troubling the feet that fill their shoes; "They have no good or glanders, ring-bones or yellow janders, no sprains on their joints; if vagrant, should hit them, they merely bid it quit them, and promptly it aoints. I see them strive and tussle, exerting every muscle—they call such "horse-play fun, and in the shade I'm sitting, watching on my knytting; my active days are done. My joints are stiff and rusty, my whiskers gray and dusty, I creak whenever I walk, and you may hear me sighing when I am sadly trying to get around a book." Oh, Youth, when Age is gazing upon your sports amazing, and energy so fine, Age feels its portion bitter, and says, "Though not a quitter, I must take my sign."

BE CHEERFUL.

Don't talk of griefs and things like those, don't be a chronic fretter; for if you don't describe your woes, all men will like you better. Perhaps you have the largest corn that ever hurt a tritly; but if you treat the same with scorn, you more attractive will be. Perhaps you have an aching tooth that's given you the willies; why, then, conceal the fearful truth, and talk of Easter lilies. Time was when I would lose my chums as fast as I could gain them; they'd leave me, gnashing and gnashing, never to see me again. My conversation gave a shock, and made the victims shiver, because I always wished to talk about my lights and liver. At last it dawned upon my mind that if I'd not be lonely, I must some cheerful subjects find—and cheerful subjects only. So I began to dance and sing, and talk of matters cheery, and people warmed. You, by jing, no longer make me weary! I do not care to have a feel of anguish, and grinning; if I have ear-ache in my heel, I talk of lambskin slipping.

JUNIOR CLASS PLAY.

WAYNE STATE NORMAL.

The Junior play given at the normal chapel last Thursday night is deserving of much more than passing mention. A true appreciation of such a performance calls for an understanding of the material and technique of the play. The essence of every drama is struggle. The more complex and genuine the problem the better is the material from the standpoint of the playmaker. It must be realized that the hero of a drama is not perfect. In fact he is very human, and it is his human mistakes that produce the struggle in which he is reconstructed in all his being. Two opposing points of view must appear in the parties to the play and the recognition of these must come if the play is to have a happy ending.

In "Don," the hero, an erratic genius, makes a terrible error: that of mistaking his wife for a woman in such a way as to endanger the reputation of the woman and himself. He does this with the highest of motives. His error is one of judgment. The outcome of the play is a trial and a punishment for the mistakes in the minds of his father and mother, his bride-to-be, her family and the husband. He must win this comprehension by the sheer sincerity of his character. Such a situation is full of dramatic possibilities of which the author makes the most.

It is easy to perceive that the task of choosing the various actors for such a variety of parts, ranging from the Church of England minister, the society wife of the old general, who is the father of the fiancee of the hero, the poetical hero himself, to the Salvation Army husband of the woman in the cast, called for much skill and insight on the part of the teacher who made the selection. It was a piece in which no one character could stand out above others. Each niche must be filled exactly. The sincerity of the hero and the sincerity of the husband meet in the first scene, and the dramatic intensity is tremendous. The breaking down of the almost insurmountable obstacle by the forces of the spiritual life of these two men marks the play as a masterpiece, and, in the judgment of the writer, all things in the presentation of the whole drama led up to this final struggle in a way far beyond the usual work of amateurs. The mother of the hero comes at once to the rescue, the old general is eliminated by his wife's power over him, the minister becomes an ally of his son against the dictates of his own conscience, the prospective bride, seeing the clear soul of the hero and the sacrificial spirit of the woman he has defended, stands unshakably by him. But all along each has seen and the audience has perceived that the crux of the matter is the way in which the husband will act. The writer confesses to a considerable dislike for the hero, the hero from the higher, thinking classes and the humble, religious enthusiast grappled each with the soul of the other and strove to understand. To say that in all the parts of the unfolding of the story leading to such a climax there was just the right amount of subordination and of self-assertion on the part of each actor is no mean praise and is the simple truth.

A little fun here and there relieved the tension. The surprising and irascible old general, controlled by no one save his wife, to whom he revealed abject submission, the dignified and earnest preacher who carried a sense of responsibility for the enforcement of the law of God, the adoring mother of the hero, the forlorn and suffering woman concerning whom the trouble had arisen, the tortured husband whose only mistake was his fanaticism and whose sorrow was due to his marriage to a woman who did not love him and whom he could not understand, though he loved her with all the ardor of his being, the hero unconscious of his splendid courage and uncomprehending of his egregious error in judgment, and all the maid, typical, English, funny, all deserve the highest praise.

It is natural that, as the normal grows in numbers and the range of selection of characters for such a performance widens, the public appearance of the students should improve. In this case the expected has certainly happened. The balance of parts, subordination of each to the whole, the filling of each place by one who seemed welded to it, shows this as a supremely successful performance, a new mark for the development of the drama in the normal. Miss Josephine Mack, head of the department of expression, drilled the young people and to her generosity, teaching ability and untiring effort the result is due.

Anyway, we favor financial "preparedness." We think everyone should prepare in his young, working days for declining old age. The way to prepare is to lay away part of the fruits of industry and thus have on hand a comfortable safeguard when the period of greatest production ceases. Get into the habit of depositing a share of your earnings with this bank. Your interests will be carefully looked after.
