The Wayne Commercial club succeeded by the Public Service club as a result of the meeting of citizens in the city hall Monday evening. Out of seventeen names proposed, the one mentioned was chosen, and the prize of $5 was awarded to Ward Randol, who made the suggestion. The other sixteen names are: Wayne Commercial Fellowship Workers, Wayne Community Club, Wayne Admiral Club, The Wayne, Wayne Union Veterans Club, Wayne Union Veterans Club, Wayne Virtue Community Club, Greater Wayne Commercial Club, Willing Workers Club, Urban and Rural Industrial Federation, Wayne Welfare Club, Wayne County Co-operative Workers Club, Consumers' Co-operative Union, Wayne County Boosters Club, Co-operative Community Club. A new constitution, prepared by Secretary J. H. Gaston, was presented and adopted.

J. J. Ahern, president, presided at the meeting Monday evening, and W. L. Gaston was in his place as secretary. All members present were hearty in favor of reorganization, and along lines that promised greater strength and greater good to the community.

The constitution adopted fixes the annual dues at $3, payable semi-annually in advance. The object of the organization is stated in Article I. "The object of this organization shall be to secure the cooperation of all business men, professional men, laborers, stock raisers, mechanics, farmers, or men retiring from whatsoever occupations residing in the community of Wayne, Neb., in the promotion of general business, farming, stock raising, manufacturing, labor employing plants, good roads, or anything that will be a benefit to the community, morally, financially, or socially; to cultivate and foster the spirit of unity and co-operation between town and country, to promote better methods in business, farming, professions and labor; to be the glad hand of the community; to extend a welcome to every worthy and profitable enterprise of industry seeking a location; to be the community agent directing all social affairs and the medium of correspondence with the public outside; to render in every possible way all public service."

Monday night's meeting, A. J. Ferguson representing the organization, G. A. R., asked the club to look after the arrangements for the annual observance of Decoration day, May 30, and accordingly the following committee was appointed for that purpose: A. R. Davis, F. E. Gamble and Mrs. Henry Ley.

The club voted to extend an invitation to the Nebraska G. A. R. to hold its state encampment in July of next year at this place. An effort will be made to bring the reunion here.

A proposition to have public dinners for club members was considered favorably, and the secretary will arrange for one in the near future.

The nine girls of the junior high school domestic science class very pleasantly entertained their mothers and Miss Rachel Fairchild at 5 o'clock Monday evening. The decorations were carried out in red and white and the guests received red carnations as favors. The girls served the delicious four-course dinner in an excellent manner. The guests were delighted with the progress their daughters had made in the culinary art, and expressed their appreciation to Miss Mary Mahood who had been their efficient instructor.

Progressive Party.

The young people of the Methodist church enjoyed a progressive party last Friday evening. The jolly crowd first gathered at the home of Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Buerger. From there they proceeded to the Clyde-Oman home where games were played and the first installment of the lunch was served. Later they were led to the Lambert Road where more refreshments were enjoyed. The last stop was at the William Beckenhauer home, and after a final whirl of merriment, the crowd dispersed, pronouncing the evening a very enjoyable one.

Mothers' Day.

The P. E. O. sisterhood with Mrs. James Miller, Mrs. V. A. Senter, Mrs. M. S. Davies, Mrs. H. S. Ringland, and Mrs. D. H. Cunningham, as hostesses, gave a luncheon for mothers' day afternoon at the home of Mrs. James Miller on May 1. The hours were spent in visiting and in listening to delightful music. Mrs. Winifred Main and Mrs. E. S. Blum each gave a most charming message. Miss Ella Morrison gave several beautiful instrumental selections, which were greatly appreciated. Following the musical program a two-course luncheon was enjoyed. Besides the members of the sisterhood, the following invited guests were present: Mrs. James Britton, Mrs. J. S. C. Art, Mrs. Ed Reynolds, Mrs. M. O. Fisher, Mrs. W. M. Pleedwood, Mrs. B. Hughes, Mrs. W. O. Gamble, Mrs. E. J. Nangle, Mrs. S. Currier, Mrs. Walter Harris of El Paso, Texas, Mrs. S. W. Dayton, Mrs. R. Junior Banquet a Success.

Just before 8 on Friday evening, a company of thirty-eight high school students and eighteen junior classmen and every member in addition to the eight members of the high school faculty, was ushered into the music conservatory. The guests forgot that they had been requested to find the places at the tables, and they stood drinking in the beauty of the room. They saw the exquisitely appointed tables, drawn up in a diagonal cross, they exclaimed over the huge bouquets of yellow roses which ranged in the center of the table; then their attention fitted to the dainty individual, yellow candle sticks with the gauze-like golden shades, which cast a soft glow over each place. They saw Easter lilies and cut flowers adorning the place. They noticed the potted plants gracefully arranged in the corners of the room. And they looked up at the ceiling, yellow paper, completely hiding the ceiling, met their eyes. They noted how the light from the chandelier was subdued by an artistic yellow shade. In fact the whole room seemed to have been transformed from: just a room into a place of unexpected loveliness.

When at length the guests had located their places by dainty placards, decorated with jonquills, the delicious dinner was served in charming light blue and white capricious room-bearing the delicious appetizer of the first course. Between courses the senior girls' quartet sang, Mabel Hanson gave a reading, and Helen Meyer and Fritz Midland rendered a duet.

After the guests had leisurely enjoyed each part of the excellent banquet, chairs were pushed back and the "banquet of the mind" began.

Supp. O. R. Bowen, as toastmaster, first introduced Jesse Randol, the president of the junior class, as the initial speaker on the toast-list.

Wayne State Normal have begun.

Wayne State Normal have begun, under the direction of Earl Schorer, a campaign to make Wayne flyless. Among others, they have sent letters to the commercial club and city council asking co-operation in a movement to annihilate the fly pest. "The letter points out the wholesale fecundity of a fly. In a month they will become the proud and happy progenitors of 124,353,672,000,000,000,000 flies. No adding machine is fast enough to keep count of more than a four months' output."

The letter further calls attention to a fly's appetite. It eats continuously, and never knows when it has had enough. It eats and coughs, and coughs and eats, and is never satisfied. It loafs around in filth, and then carries a few million germs to the dining room table where it roosts on a frosted cake or savory pie. A fly falls into a pan of milk and is drowned. Its prostrate body is a mass of germs, leaving a lot of mushy germs. The baby drinks the milk, and gets sick.

The children suggest as a preventive clean alleys and yards. Get rid of all filth in and around the house. Flies must have filth to do well. The way to wage effective warfare is to get rid of the first flies, and not give them time to multiply. If the children are encouraged and helped, the fly pest which spreads disease, can at least be greatly reduced.

Young, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lincoln. The senior class play will be given on the evening of Tuesday, May 23, at which time "A Servant in the House" will be presented. GERMANS GIVE PLAY.

The play given Tuesday evening by the department of German was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

The drama presented by the class was "Einer Muss Heiraten." Those having leading parts in the play were: Helen Graham, Herman Seims, Mary Fiske and Mrs. Shute. Miss Marjorie Selleck, the director, a great deal of praise is due.

RECENT ELECTIONS.

The following are among the members of the senior class who recently received notices of election to positions in school work: Helen Porter, History and English; Ewing; S. B. Shively, principal of high school; Ewing; Wymore W. Walcott, principal of high school; Long Pine; Helen Graham, principal of high school; Rosalie; Lillie Goldsmith, intermediate department; Wisner; Bernice Griffin, first primary, Wayne.

WIRELESS CHESS GAME.

The Wayne State Normal School has the distinction of winning the first game of chess ever played by wireless, and the Nebraska Wesleyan university has the distinction of losing the first game. Fifty years from now, when radio waves will be used in automobiles, either school car took back to this event with pride.

The game was finished May 2, after about three weeks of playing. It proved to be more interesting than was expected, and probably be an annual affair hereafter.

Wesleyan doubtless intends to get revenge yet this year, as that institution has already challenged the Normal to another game, which will still be played.

The Normal will work to keep a clean record, and Wesleyan will endeavor to even up. It will perhaps be Lincoln against Wayne. Let us win.

Baptist Church.

The Baptist church is still doing business at the old stand on the corner. Next Sunday morning the pastor will be in the pulpit with a fresh, crisp sermon, splendidly adapted to the requirements of every day life. The text will be the interrogation "What is that in mine hand?" It will be a plain, practical sermon that everybody can understand and one that everybody ought to practice.

In the evening the congregation will go to the M. E. church and join in the service conducted by lady evangelist.

There will be no services in the Wayne church next Sunday as the pastor will preach in Winslow.

RANDALL LOSES LEAD.

Omaha, May 2.—Harley G. Moorehead, election commissioner of Douglas county, yesterday found an error made in reporting unofficial election returns of Douglas county on railway commissioner, the vote of Mr. Clarke for railway commissioner being given to Walter Johnson, one of his opponents, and the Johnson vote being credited to Mr.

Clarke. With this change in Douglas county Mr. Clarke is made the nominee of the republican party for railway commissioner instead of Mr. Randall, the local vote from the entire state, not counting Douglas county outside of Omaha, giving Clarke 348 plurality over Randall, the vote being Clarke 348 and Randall 24,650.

Commissioner Moorehead was able to give the official count only of the city of Omaha and the entire vote will be canvassed by Tuesday. This will add to Mr. Clarke's vote the error found adds about 1,300 votes to Clarke's total.

GETTING OLD.

Fremont Tribune: It is a sad thing that merely by sticking around one has to suffer ravages from the tooth of time. Along about a certain age the skin begins to grow parched and wrinkled; the teeth decay and must be yanked out by an unfeeling, strong-armed dentist; the eyesight dims; the step falters; the hair slips off the head, or gets gray, or both; and a layer of lard accumulates under the vest. If wisdom fails to come with all these, and a modicum of satisfaction for duty done, the question arises, what are we here for?

CARHART HARDWARE

AMONG PRODUCERS OF WAYNE COUNTY

(By I. C. Trumbauer, Herald's special staff representative.)

James McIntosh.

James McIntosh has been a resident of Wayne county 20 years and is a successful farmer. He is located on a farm of 280 acres which he has leased for a long term of years and this year has the following layout: With 120 acres corn, 50 acres of small grain and 14 acres of fine alfalfa he will be kept busy. He has for a number of years raised the Black Polled cattle in order to secure his own feeders for which purpose he considers them ideal.

Mr. McIntosh is the owner of a 120 acre farm three miles east of his present location which he leases to other parties. "Something" things up one might say was a modest unassuming, successful farmer, one whom it is a pleasure to meet.

William Bannister.

A call at the William Bannister home a mile north of Wayne, disclosed the fact that some one had put in his share of hard spring work for Mr. Bannister was waiting for the warm rays of old Sol to warm the soil and get the weeds out of the ground, planting a reasonable proposition. The farm comprises 180 acres, is owned by William Gilderleeve and is in a high state of cultivation. There are 40 acres of alfalfa, 30 acres of small grain which is good, and the main crop, 110 acres of corn yet to be planted. There are 115 head of swine on the place, 85 of which are spring pigs. The combination—corn, alfalfa and hogs—is Mr. Bannister's specialty. He has several appearances a successful one. Mr. Bannister has been a resident of this county for 20 years, formerly farming some of the Strahan land, moving to the present place this spring. He is well satisfied with the new location as it enables him to take advantage of Wayne's schools and churches, and the farm itself has all conveniences in the way of buildings and equipment necessary for successful farm work.

Paulsen Brothers.

Pete Paulsen for 30 years a resident of Wayne county, and owner of 120 acres of Wayne county's fertile soil, in retiring from active farm work two years ago, was not without fortune in being able to turn the management of the place over to the three sons, Oscar, Robert and Albert. A call there the first of the season last week—everybody was full of life and vigor, the boys being in the field with three gang plows preparing the ground for corn of which they will plant 160 acres. In addition to the home place of 120 acres they have leased 240 acres of which is divided in crop as follows: 135 acres in oats, 4 or 5 acres of alfalfa, balance pasture, wild hay and ground occupied by buildings. We were favorably impressed with the spirit and energy of the farm home, and the energy with which these young men push their work. We bespeak for them unlimited success in their vocation.

Fred H. Martin.

Fred H. Martin is the tenant on the Winston farm north of town, and together with his sons is busy preparing the 240 acres for a successful crop year, and we will have much to say in regard to him in a future issue of this paper.

Harry Lessman.

Harry Lessman who occupies the Perry farm of 240 acres two and one-half miles north of Wayne, is one of the county's successful farmers and stock feeders. During the past season he has been feeding a load and a half of cattle which averaged $110 per head on last week's Omaha market at which time he also sold a good number of hogs which brought $9.45. He will have two loads of hogs which are ready to go most any time. Mr. Lessman is preparing ground for 140 acres of corn, has in 60 acres of oats, balance in alfalfa and some of Nebraska meadow. Mr. Lessman's general farm scheme is good stock and enough of it to consume all crops produced, and he should be a winner along these lines.

Thomas Brockman.

On the Tom Brockman farm of 160 acres he will have 30 acres each of corn and oats, has 40 acres alfalfa, 35 in pasture and 20 acres of wild hay. Mr. Brockman takes especial interest in raising fine head of cattle and fine colts. He has 100 head of little squealers which he also grew into pork. Knowing Tom pressed with the business-like manner in which things are conducted. Mr. Hanson is an extensive cattle and hog feeder, the cattle being good grade Polled Angus blood and the hogs of the best quality. March 1, he marketed a car load of fat hogs and has at present about 50 spring pigs as a nucleus for next year's feeding. A week ago he shipped two loads of cattle and still has 60 head to go. As to crops he will have 90 acres of corn, 30 of alfalfa, 30 acres of oats and has about 45 acres of pasture. Mr. Hanson is one of the few in this section who is experimenting with sweet clover, but so far has not met with the success that is claimed for it, but he says he will give it a thorough trial before discarding it from his general farm scheme. Sweet clover is a new thing and may prove satisfactory as a forage crop when properly handled.

W. M. Victor.

W. M. Victor, for five years a resident of this county, this spring moved to the Charles White farm north of town and is preparing 70 acres of alfalfa, 40 acres of small grain, balance pasture and hay land. Mr. Victor is well equipped and is ready to assimilate this year's crop. Mr. Victor practices dairying on a small scale, and considers the results financially to be good.

Will Harder.

Will Harder is one of Wayne county's progressive young farmers possessing grit, determination and the ability to execute plans. He will plant 80 acres of corn, has some alfalfa and pasture land, and has about 40 acres of the place to a neighbor. One could not help but notice the general cleanliness of the entire farm especially around the building site. Feeding and marketing a car load each of cattle and hogs is regarded by him to be a profitable thing with him.

Fred Victor.

Fred Victor is located on a well improved farm of 160 acres, seven miles north of Wayne, which is owned by his father, Carl Victor. This year he will have 35 acres each of corn and alfalfa, balance in alfalfa and pasture. He recently marketed a load of cattle and 40 head of hogs and realized a fair return for his labor. He also has 90 head of spring pigs. This farm has an unusual and beautiful view of the country, a large barn, fine cattle and good horses, and at the present rate of progress, Mr. Victor should land among the top-notchers.

George Harder.

George Harder is handling a quarter section of land to good advantage, as regards cropping, the largest acreage being in corn, to the amount of 90 acres, balance divided in small grain, alfalfa and pasture. Mr. Harder's general farm scheme is to buy and raise a few young calves possible for his farm to carry. The past few months he has handled two cars of cattle, a car of hogs with a few to ship later. He now has about 140 head of spring and winter pigs which should net him good returns. He has a few head of sheep are pleasant people to meet and it was with reluctance that we turned the—we came near saying car—Ford toward the main road.

Ferdinand Tuman.

Although a call at the Ferdinand Tuman home, eight miles northwest of Wayne, disclosed no one with whom to speak, by looking around a few moments we found a good farm house with well kept blue grass lawn, large barn, fine chickens, handy spring pigs, a good orchard, and finally all appearances a fairly productive vineyard. We are only sorry that the owner was absent and unable to give us more authentic information.

William Krallman.

William Krallman is renting 220 acres of the John Echtenkamp land and has an exceptionally fine farm home, large barn, and a sightly location. This season he will plant 95 acres of corn, 20 acres in small grain and some of Nebraska alfalfa product, alfalfa. He fed and marketed 35 hogs the past winter, and the spring bunch of pigs have totaled 90 head. He should prove to be a winner financially, with corn, alfalfa, and hogs.

Linn Hanson.

If a person is a lover of fat, sleek cattle, good hogs, fine barns, spacious cattle sheds, in fact a well-managed and equipped farm home, they should pay a visit to the Linn Hanson farm of 240 acres northwest of town. In a general survey of the place one could not help but be im-

Roy Pearson.

Roy Pearson commenced farming on his father's place on the west side of the A. M. Jacobs land and says that his time is fully occupied in expressing it mildly. There are 40 acres of alfalfa, 40 acres of small grain, and he is preparing 130 acres of land for the next year's crop planter. In speaking of spring pigs, he estimated that their number would total 200 when they were complete. Granting favorable crop conditions Mr. Pearson should be able to check up at the end of the year and find the balance on the right side of the ledger to a goodly sum.

Sam Barnes.

Sam Barnes of Wayne, is the owner of a fine quarter section of land northwest of town and in the person of John Lyngen he has the man who is well known for the best interests of all concerned. He will have 65 acres in corn, 50 in oats, 20 acres alfalfa, balance pasture land. He has a fine bunch of spring pigs to check up on this year. Mr. Lyngen is handling the place alone this year and words are inadequate to express how busy he is.

Alex Jeffrey.

Alex Jeffrey is farming 135 acres of the Jacobs land northwest of town and at the time of our visit was carrying a terrible dust with him in a field which was getting in readiness for the corn planter. This year he will have 80 acres of corn, 50 acres of oats (and they are looking fine) and he will sell 85 spring pigs to alfalfa this year. He has 51 feeding pigs on which he expects to grow a number of pounds of pork before the coming spring. After a final summing up of the good condition of things in general on this place, we are glad to see the prospect of a number of palatable spring fries along about July, and if possible we intend to be in that neighborhood about dinner time that many days as possible during that month.

Jens Anderson.

Jens Anderson is the owner of a fine little 80-acre farm northwest of town. He has spent 11 years in Wayne county, purchasing the present home 6 years ago. Each year he raises enough stock to keep the place in alfalfa and hay. He has 50 head of spring pigs, a few cattle, milkers five or six cows. He will plant 35 acres to corn, balance of land in small grain and pasture. He is one of Wayne county's sturdy citizens who has been in the hard knocks and is now ready to enjoy the fruits of his labor on a fine little homelike place.

W. G. Echtenkamp.

W. G. Echtenkamp was found busy in the field preparing for corn planting which he intends to start Thursday at the way and will put in 110 acres of same, also has 80 acres of oats, balance of the 220 acres being in alfalfa, pasture, hay, timber and building site. He marketed 25 head of fat hogs this spring and had 70 spring pigs in the fifth year on this farm and through good management and hard work, hogs and corn are proving that any young man who will devote his time and energy to his task can make a success of his chosen work.

Robert Stambaugh.

A few moments' visit at the Robt. Stambaugh home, disclosed plenty of satisfaction and contentment. Mr. Stambaugh is an old timer in this county, coming from Pennsylvania 31 years ago. His eighty acres of land is being cropped as follows: 25 acres corn, 25 acres oats, balance pasture and building site. He feeds and raises a few hogs, practices dairying on a small scale, milks his cows and raises a few calves, and considers it a good thing as it assures him of a steady, sure cash income weekly, and for the all-farmer should be the proper course to follow.

William Watson.

William Watson for 25 years a Wayne county resident, is the owner of a fine 400 acre farm near Wayne and this year is planning on raising from the more strenuous farm labor, having "leased" to the place 320 acres of the balance of the place being mostly in tame grasses. He has been on the present place 14 years and during that time has conceived and carried out the plan of a modern farm home. One of the main points for convenience—the water supply, numerous hydrants supplying water to all barns, sheds, etc. He has practiced feeding on a moderate scale for a number of years and the practice of feeding to live stock all grain grown on the place, together with hard work and a keen foresight, has had much to do with his success. During the past winter he has fed two loads of cattle and one load of hogs, and is well satisfied with results considering the poor feeding value of corn the past season. In speaking of the past, Mr. Watson remarked that when he first came to the county it looked like a poor proposition in the farming line, but now, taking Wayne county as a whole he was of the opinion that a man could purchase a farm, blindfolded and be reasonably sure of securing full value. Mr. Watson has not been in the county long and his expense in an effort to secure an orchard of fair production, but is convinced that until same is handled along modern lines, as regards spraying, pruning, and the securing of appropriate varieties, that this line of work will not be successful.

Oscar Jonson.

Oscar Jonson who is the tenant on one of the Andrew Stamm quarters, is practicing general farming, with the raising of hogs and corn as his main issue. This season, with fine weather, he has 20 acres of corn, 20 acres oats, balance pasture and ground-used for yards and buildings. He is the first one to our knowledge who has planted corn, putting in a field of 100 acres last week, though not expecting to continue planting until weather is more favorable. Mr. Jonson fed and marketed a carload of hogs this winter, and says he did exceptionally well with them, and lays much emphasis on the raising of stock. He has 50 head of alfalfa, when properly handled, to be used in connection with corn for the production of pork.

Andrew Stamm.

Andrew Stamm is the owner of a fine 200-acre farm, five miles northwest of Wayne, of which he leases one quarter, there being two sets of buildings on the place. The home farm is ideal as to location and the improvements are all of the best, every facility being afforded for the feeding of stock. During the past feeding season he has handled about twelve loads of stock and still has three loads of cattle in the yards. In reply to a question as to method followed in feeding he said that this year, in addition to the regular corn and alfalfa ration, he had used the molasses feed, and was well satisfied with results, especially as to the finish it put on the cattle when used with the low rate of alfalfa. He has 100 acres with. This year he is putting 100 acres in corn, 15 acres in oats, balance in alfalfa and hay. It is a pleasure to meet men of the jovial, friendly disposition and such a one as Andrew Stamm, for 31 years a Wayne county resident.

Mrs. Margaret Grier.

Mrs. Margaret Grier is the owner of a fine 80 acre place, well equipped as to farm buildings which are kept in first-class shape. Her son, Charles, is the manager of the place and under his able direction everything in farm work and stock raising is moving along smoothly. Mr. Grier has home 200 acres in addition to the home place and of the 200 acres has planted 145 acres of corn, 80 acres of small grain, about five acres of potatoes, 30 acres alfalfa and pasture. He has 50 head of fine spring pigs and is figuring on close to 100 head, having a number of good fat hogs and a few calves. One of the improvements to which he called our special attention was the installation of a modern stock watering system whereby he is enabled to keep all water at a palatable temperature for his stock.

WHY HE RAN SO.

Fremont Tribune: "Mr. Ford had that big vote given to him in this state because of his attitude toward the laboring man," says the Hastings Tribune.

Doubtless this had as much to do with it as anything; very likely more. The Nebraska car made his name familiar. There are more of them in use in Nebraska than Henry got votes in Nebraska.

The people of Nebraska are for peace and very much against war. They observed his peace ship sailing from Europe and they laughed at it but it made them know he was in earnest about maintaining peace, and they respect him for it.

They have become aware of Henry's tremendous business success, and they naturally take off their hats to the man who puts it over.

After all the biggest achievement of this remarkable man is his uplift of labor. He raised wages regardless of what men had to measure up to certain hard, easy requirements. He shows sympathy and consideration for all those who work for him; and they have responded in their sense of appreciation by actually bettering their service so his increase in wages has been made up in returns on the labor performed.

Ford has shown he knows how to put himself in the other man's place. It has not been so long since he was a laborer that he has forgotten it. It is an understanding of labor's struggles and aspirations that every man must have before he knows the real meaning of life. Wages are important, but they are not the thing. Ford has the workman's viewpoint. The laborer doesn't want aims. He wants only his share of his toil and a fair chance to get his place in the sun. It is to the credit of Nebraskans that they have paid a voluntary tribute to certain very worthy qualities of Henry Ford. It will have no bearing on the present situation but it does mean a demonstration of high qualities of citizenship, alike creditable to their possessor and to those who are able to see them in him.

RELATED WINTER

When winter is done, and its journey is run, it ought to retire for a while; retire to its tomb, or its lair, and make room for spring, with his radiant smile. When spring comes along with her laughter and song, and birds singing carols in tune, man, trustful galeot, dons a light gauzy suit, and underwear fitted for June. He's chipper and gay, and he sheds O. K. to seek all his wintertime duds; oh, he's stylish and neat, and the girls say he's sweet as the bees and the birds, and the buds. Then spring flies away, and the heavens are gray, and winter comes back with a roar, with winds that are bleak, being led for a week somewhere on the Spitzbergen shore. Then there is the guy who was sauntering by, attired in his summertime rig? In a hospital bed he is out of his head, insisting on dancing a jig. Doc says to the nurse: "Better order a hearse, and measure this gent for a grave; there's no way to miss such a drama here's, since winter won't learn to behave."

THE WICKED WAR.

I bought a ton of shredded coal. "The price I've had to raise," remarked the dealer, as he doled, and his loader, too, had raised the price, and sprung his rigmarole. "The warring nations cannot find enough to cool their backs; they're buying all the ice that's mined, and the baker for a pie to feed my hungry aunt," he said. "The war has made pies high." "Cried, 'Aroint! Avoant!' You merchant hand out whiskered lice, if you may boost the price, they can't shoot pie-whiskers, or loading guns with ice. I don't object to being skinned, when sinkers I demand, but if you use heated wind, produce a fresher brand."

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.

From Logan Valley Herald, April 27, 1933. The band boys have resumed practice. T. J. Steele shipped in 100 head of cattle. J. B. Geitzer and family have moved to Walnut, Ia. E. J. Porter is erecting a fine residence back of Hunt's feed mill. There is some corn in the gardens in Wayne nearly three inches high. George Barnes of Montgomery county, Ia., has moved on a farm eight miles west of Wayne. A. B. Slater and family have arrived to make their home in Wayne. The Logan Valley bank has purchased a typewriter, the first one in town. A. E. Quimby has completed the erection of an office for the firm of Feather & Smith. The building occupied by the J. O. Milligan Implement company, long lapsed because too great a weight of machinery had been placed on the second floor. Hundreds of people are moving from Illinois to Nebraska. It is reported that twenty-seven families have emigrated from the little town of Renden. Another company of 128 have left Logan county. Large bodies of immigrants have come from other eastern states. Consequently Nebraska real estate has been advancing rapidly.

From Wayne Herald, May 5, 1932: William Frazier has returned from a trip to Kentucky. A. F. Ernst has accepted a call to the Presbyterian church. Philoe & Son have purchased the lumber yards of N. Britton, Bressler and Dearborn have planted a large number of trees on their additions to Wayne. The new Baptist church was appropriately dedicated on Sunday, May 1. Over $2,800 had been spent on the erection and furnishing of this church. P. L. Miller and B. J. Kass have

OBVIOUS TRUTH

I know that when there comes disaster, that sticks like an adhesive plaster, a man gets no relief by giving free rein to his dander, and showing innocent bystander how loudly he can bleat. I know that sympathy will divide, if it is all the fires of wrath you kindle, when you have stubbed your toe; far better for your fame it will be, if you will simply nurse your tribby, and say, "I look like a fool, but I'm not and love the Spartan who struggles to conceal his smarting, his sickness, and his pain; so if your head hurts, don't sit crying, but spend a minute prophesying that we shall have some rain. PEDESTRIANS.

Pedestrians are everywhere; they are the motorist's despair, they're running to the left, in scattering through the town, I run a half a dozen down, they have me hauled to court. It seems to me unfair and mean that coin I need for gasoline must go in paying fines, or damages, or making up my losses. I've knocked gray west, and telescoped their spines. Oh, how aggravated a driver feels, when some one gets beneath the wheels, and spoils a costly tire! My sentiments, at such times, if they were couched in sonnet or rhyme, would not a wooden lyre, "Pedestrians look round with scorn, when I too warn you of your horn, their actions seem to say: 'Just climb our persons if you dare, wit that old rascal you have there—'we have the right of way.'" They clinch their hands and set their teeth, and wildly throw themselves beneath my inoffensive car, and down. Religion's tangled, tazed, and vexed, with dogma and confiding, and faith, by sages, splitting hairs; and all that fellows really need is just that simple little creed, to climb the golden stairs."

STRIVING TO PLEASE.

"We strive to please," the merchant said; his smile was large and loose. He drew wool-me-e-caboose head for which I had no use. He sold me seven cans of peas, five pounds of shredded rice; a section of imported cheese, and mackerel on ice. No doubt when I had left the place, despoiled of hard earned plunk, a smile lit up the merchant's face, since he had sold that junk. But to myself I said, "I think I'll trade with him no more; that merchant prince is on the blink, his methods make me sore. He greets a man with sunny smiles, and says he strives to please, and then, by dizzy arts and wiles, unloads his moldy cheese. The patron this is made to pay, much credit does he wish, and sausage that offends the eye, and probiotic fish. That sort of treatment chafes and galls the souls of honest men, and I shall buy no fish balls at that man's place again."

Mr. Smith of the late Courier, goes to Wayne tomorrow, and takes the friendship and best wishes of the citizens of this place with him. His new paper, the Logan Valley Courier, will without question be an honor to Wayne county, and most worthy of confidence and support.

Died, suddenly of paralysis, on Sunday at the residence of her son, C. T. Barro, Wakefield, Neb., Mrs. Lucy A. Barro in the seventy-third year of her age. Mrs. Barro had been a resident of this county for 38 years, to which place she removed from Illinois. She leaves many friends and relatives to mourn her death.

It is reported that seventy-five editors of Nebraska are in favor of woman suffrage. In addition, the three judges of the supreme court, and several of the district judges, among them, Judge Barnes of this district, are in favor of allowing women to vote. Why, indeed, should they not vote? They are the equal of man in intelligence and his superior in morals.

The colony which was to start for Washington territory on Monday next will, as we understand, be delayed a short time on account of the sickness of some of those who were going. The company will probably start in two or three weeks at the farthest. Among those who are going to commence life anew in the wilds of Washington territory is our poet laureate, Mr. Rockwell, also Mr. Barber, two old settlers and good men, and deserving of the good wishes of their friends.

WAYNE COUNTY GETS TAX.

Lincoln, Neb., April 22.—Wayne county will be $1,025, and Dixon county $472 better off financially because of the inheritance tax law. Mrs. Ella K. Morrison of Lincoln died some time ago leaving an estate valued at $212,000, of which $138,000 is located in Wayne county and $64,000 in Dixon, being largely farm lands. The courts have just assessed the above sums as inheritance tax.

HOW TO BREED UP A DAIRY HERD.

A practical way to secure good dairy stock that will answer the purpose except for breeding stock and will be worth 50 to 100 per cent more than common cows, is first: Get a purebred dairy sire and con-time to use one of the same breed for a few years you can have a herd of cattle that is a near approach to pure bred animals.

Over seventy-five per cent of the cows, on an average, in our dairy herds are classified as common cows. Their average yearly production per cow is estimated at 4,000 pounds of milk and 150 pounds of butterfat. Farmers should decide upon a breed of cattle and stick to that breed. So many herds indicate that many factors change breeds about as often as they change sires and never get enough blood of any one particular breed to bring their cows above the classification of common cows. Three crosses from common cows with a purebred sire will result in cattle that both in appearance and production will resemble purebreds, if the purebred sire used each time is of the same breed.

THE WAYNE HERALD

The Oldest Established Paper in Wayne County. Published Every Thursday. Entered at the Postoffice at Wayne, Neb., as Second Class Mail Matter. E. W. HULSE, Editor and Proprietor. Subscription $1.50 per Year. Telephone 146.

A well known Nebraska one said he would rather travel 100 miles to a man who writes a letter to Robert G. Ross, presidential candidate, is not so particular. Robert G. Ross' intellectual fitness for the presidency is better known now than it was at the time of the primary. His literary masterpieces, writes to Rev. W. C. Garrison and appearing in last week's Herald, has since then traveled all over the state.

If the administration had months ago warned Americans to keep off intelligent merchant ships, such striking diplomatic relations might have been avoided without injuring the nation's prestige or honor. If there is anything in a name and there is the Wayne Commercial club has done well in registering itself the Public Service club. The name is comprehensive, and if the members live up to it, large headway will be made in community development.

Some democratic papers want the republican party that republicans don't want Justice Charles E. Hughes for the presidential nominee. Such papers are apparently fearful that Hughes will not run well enough if nominated. But if they want Wilson re-elected, they ought to encourage the nomination of Hughes if he is as weak and unpopular as they claim. Their solicitude is remarkable.

Clarence J. Miles of Hastings, who was regarded the "wet" candidate for the republican nomination for governor, is quoted as predicting a victory for prohibition in Nebraska next fall by 40,000 votes. He says the most surprising thing found in his pre-primary canvass was the "dry" sentiment everywhere apparent. Increasing favor for abolition of the legalized liquor traffic is shown in the demands of employers on farms, railroads, factories and everywhere that employes must be temperate and orderly in the interest of high economic efficiency and greatest possible public confidence. Small employing institutions have followed the larger ones in requiring abstemious habits until a man accustomed to becoming intoxicated is rarely able to get a job or hold one long if he gets it. The growing policy of employers has been a positive force in developing the sentiment which prompts to make Nebraska a "dry" state.

Sunday, May 14, has been designated as the annual Mothers' day when motherhood will be justly exalted. It is the most beautiful and mother love is the purest and noblest in the world. Living or departed, memory of her kindly, unselfish devotion stimulates respect and appreciation and tender affection. The ruin, suffering and death sweeping the continent of Europe, are revolting to the sympathetic heart of motherhood. Also, war talk in America finds no favor in mother's delicately refined soul. Motherhood is the embodiment of love, and love means peace and good will. If highest motherhood ruled the world, there would be no wars—no slaughter of innocents to the god of hate, revenge and conquest.

Justice Charles E. Hughes will be the presidential nominee of the republican convention if the wishes of the party majority are obeyed. The current issue of the Literary Digest, published by the conservative and progressive members of state legislators, and among 1,500 who replied, 758 favored Hughes, 275 Roosevelt and 138 Root. The Nebraska vote stood 20 for Hughes, 2 Roosevelt and 1 for Root. The Digest also calls attention to a poll of 129 New York republican legislators, 94 of whom favor Hughes, 10 Root and 7 Roosevelt. In December, the Digest gathered 700 replies from editors, senators and representatives, and the result was Root 249, Hughes 152, Taft 51 and Roosevelt 47. If each poll reflects sentiment among republicans with approximate correctness, Hughes has the best of the contest ground the past few months, and is undoubtedly the choice of a large majority in the republican party. Whatever may happen to need attention in either the adjustment of foreign relations or the handling of domestic politics, none can deny that Justice Hughes will make a wise and safe leader.

Personally, we don't object to the primary. On the contrary, we rather like it. Besides, bringing opinions close to the people, it puts into the hands of the press more power and into its pockets somewhat more advertising revenue. The primary is a better plan. The primary requires a ballot containing enough names to puzzle a Philadelphia lawyer. Such a ballot, many more in number than needed, with names rotated to give none advantage, is printed at large cost. This is another pleasing result. From purely selfish motives a newspaper cannot tear its tresses in opposition to the primary. But as to the practicality of the system, as hitherto carried out, many people have their doubts. They often do not know candidates, and when they vote, they merely guess. They would prefer to choose delegates with authority to select candidates and make nominations according to their best judgment. As used in passing on national and state candidates especially, voters think the primary is a good deal of a failure. But future legislators, in whose wisdom, may be able to work it over and make it more practical even if not less expensive.

The club will meet for the last time this season on Wednesday evening, May 11. It will be at the Yarnan home and special entertainment in the way of program is expected. The seventh grade boys and their teacher went for a picnic roast last Tuesday evening. They went as far as the "Devil's Den" where they enjoyed their suppers and afterwards the walk home. The tenth grade went on an early morning hike one day this week. They made a joyful appearance strolling up the railroad track with their frying pans, toasters, etc., under their arms, for they cooked their breakfasts over campfires. The object of the trip was to hunt flowers for analyzing in botany class. The students of the physics class and their professor performed an act of door experiment, Tuesday, pertaining to the speed of sound in air. Tests were made by shooting guns at distances of one quarter, one-half, three-quarters, and one mile. The results were not very successful, so they are expecting to try once more on Thursday, with larger guns. The P. C. B. club met at the high school building Thursday evening. The entertaining committee were Beatrice Cobb, Eunice Linn and Edna Jones. The program was rendered: "The Present War of Europe," Fay George; "The Life of Riley," by Sylvia Garwood; "Why the People Love Riley," by Raymond Wolman; a reading, "That Old Swedish Farm," by Beatrice Cobb; a book review, "A Council Assigned," by Madeline Stanton. - Rolls
- Creamed Asparagus

Jones, sons and daughters for their kind hospitality, and also to the six sophomore girls, who acted their parts as waiters so excellently. No one was absent from his place at the banquet table. PUBLIC SENTIMENT IN THE EAST ON WAR

N. A. Huxin in Norfolk Daily News, May 1: Nobody in the east wants war; any more than the west does. This is nobody among the ordinary run of mankind. It may be that the manufacturer of munitions would welcome more business, even at the cost of war, but up and down the streets and in and out of the great office buildings of New York City there is no rejoicing and no war fever. Everybody you meet is for peace and strongly for it. incidentally the manufacturer of munitions is being handed packages every now and then, as an instance at the Hippodrome will illustrate. One of the comedians sings a song in which he says nobody in Europe knows what they're fighting for but I know—they're fighting for me. In connection with the eastern demand for peace, it is worthy of note that among a large number of New York men, many of them of national prominence, there was nowhere an expression of sympathy with President Wilson's submarine policy as regards the armed merchant vessel. I talked with lawyers, with advertising men of prominence and with eminent newspaper men and in every instance in which this topic was discussed there was agreement that this country has no right to demand that Germany's submarines come to the surface to warn a ship armed with a gun big enough to sink the submarine on sight. Many of the New York City newspapers do not take this view, but it is significant that nearly all of the daily newspapers of New York City are very much pro-ally in this regard.

Armed Merchant Ships.

One attorney—a law partner, incidentally of Elihu Root—had just returned from Chicago and quoted the lens of the law college of Chicago university as saying in a speech a couple of weeks ago that, contrary to President Wilson, it is not now and never has been international law that a merchant ship of a belligent nation may be armed with a gun big enough to sink an enemy warship and that therefore is not international law that merchant ships may be armed with guns big enough to sink an enemy submarine. He said that if England merchant ships had been permitted to carry 8-inch guns in the war of 1812 those merchant ships would have sunk the entire American navy.

Should Keep Off.

In many quarters in New York one hears from representative men the belief that President Wilson should have long ago warned all American citizens to stay off the ships of belligerent nations. It is pointed out that there is ample precedent for this in the fact that England did it in the Russian-Japanese war, and there is further precedent in the warning issued by President Wilson to American citizens in Mexico two years ago. Many are heard to express the belief that this step could have been taken without sacrificing any of our rights, and that if we really want to keep out of war that this was the logical step to take. One man put it this way: "The United States should have adopted one of two courses at the beginning of war. We should have either notified the warring nations that any infringement of our rights would result in a declaration of war from the United States, and should have immediately made ready to back up such an ultimatum, or we should have pursued a policy destined to keep us out of the war in any possible way, short of dishonor. We have done neither. We have issued the ultimatums without in any way being prepared to back them up and, although unprepared for war and although the sentiment of the country is against war, we have taken no precaution by way of warning our people off the boats of belligerent nations, to keep out of the entanglements and crises that have inevitably followed. We have sent notes until we are black in the face but we have not done the consistent thing by preparing to enforce those notes. An illustration of our utterly childish lack of preparedness was shown by the fact that we permitted Villa to cross the border and raid Columbus, N. M., several days after an American newspaper correspondent did not even have our army at the did not even have our army at the border to prevent that raid. President Wilson must be held responsible for not getting information of that raid in advance, and for not preventing it. It showed how utterly unprepared we are to cope with any serious situation."

The Low Cloverleaf Gives the Manure Two Healthy Beatings

WE used to think that if we threw manure onto the ground any old way and plowed it under, we were doing a good job. But now we know that won't do. To do any real good, the manure must be broken up into small pieces and spread evenly.

The Low Cloverleaf spreader is the one that does this work best. It gives the manure two healthy beatings, one with the regular beater, the other with the wide spread disks. When the manure reaches the ground in that condition your soil gets all the good there is in it, and gets it quickly. The Low Cloverleaf is the spreader it will pay you to see before you buy. See the local dealer, who has one set up for you to look at.

THE NUMSKULL VOTE.

Lincoln Journal. A good deal of pain is being expressed individually and collectively in Nebraska over the vote for president received by a Dawson county livery stable keeper. An illiterate person with a passion for a ballot for a man who is both the democratic and the republican ballots as a candidate for president. On each ballot he gets about 10 per cent of the total vote. One voter in every ten cast his presidential ballot for a man who writes Nebraska with a sm "N". This in a state of less than 2 per cent of illiteracy. Some of the serious minded are inclined to despair of popular government in view of the fact showing. It shows that we need a king or at least a change in the nominating system to permit of the existence of a boss. We do not share in this pessimism. In fact, the recent primaries in Nebraska give a striking indication of the intelligence of Nebraska voters. Let us take a look at the doughnut for the present ignoring the hole in it represented by such incidents as the Ross vote. The hole that contained in most instances upwards of fifty officers to be filled. That meant an average of perhaps a hundred candidates to select from. Now it is no reflection upon a man's intelligence if he found this to be a large order to fill intelligently. We know statesmen and university professors who confess to having done some wild guessing in their voting. Our system of trying to elect every thing under the sun puts a very heavy tax on the voter. And we maintain that they performed it in an almost superhuman fashion. It is by the results we must judge them. Take the results, one by one, and let us ask the question, do they reflect mere chance? The democratic voters, no one can deny, got just what they were gunning for in the way of delegates and candidates for governor and senator. That result expresses a definite and decided purpose on the part of the voters. The republican majority had a very complicated problem, that of uniting on one of a field of candidates in order to express party sentiment on the liquor question. They succeeded in that. Both parties expressed a definite intention in their nominations for railway commissioner. Down deeper in the ballot jungle, as for instance in Lancaster county, a complex question, they prevailed for an actual fluke. There were narrow escapes all along the line, but they were escapes. The Ford vote, which has seemed to so many to rank with the Ross vote for inability to find more intelligible explanation. The character of the ballot would have justified outrageous outcomes. In some manner, the voters overcame their difficulties. The explanation of this success will also explain the Ross vote which some think so disheartening. It is undeniable that there is more or less large baphazard vote. If intelligent results from popular vote depended upon universal intelligence, popular government would be impossible. But it doesn't. The saving fact is that the ignorant vote cancels itself. If 5,000 ignorant voted for Ross, then the chances are for the other names on the ballot each received an equal number of indiscriminate votes. The winning vote is thus neutralized and the fate of the candidates left to those who know what they are doing. There lies the explanation of the rational result, and the reason why, though the Ross vote is severe on Nelson, it does not often determine a result. It has always been thus. It was thus before the days of direct primaries. Presidential elections have always been decided in this same way. By means of mutual parties the indiscriminating voters have been divided about equally against each other. It then remained only for the more knowing, the independent voter, whose votes were cast with reference to the candidates and not merely party lines, to say which way the balance should turn. This is the salvation of democracies, that though all vote, only the more intelligent vote. It is the result in the result; and that every man has his chance to be of the ruling class by the simple means, always within his power, of acquiring some intelligence.

PRESIDENTIAL VOTE IN THE LATE PRIMARY

Lincoln special in Monday's Omaha Bee: Lincoln, April 30.—Without the count of Douglas county on the vote for president it is a certainty that no candidate for the preference vote of the republicans of Nebraska has received a majority and republicans are beginning to figure how tightly a delegation elected to the national convention can be bound by the vote as shown at the primary.

the rule of the national convention requires a majority of the full vote cast at the convention to nominate and on that sort of proposition all the candidates favored at the primary for presidential preference fall far short. Just as an indication of how the footings stand, without Douglas county, the showing is as follows: Cummins 26,981 Ford 22,228 Hughes 11,518 Brook 6,034 Roosevelt 1,641 LaFollette 10

This makes a total of 73,902 votes cast for president on the preferential ballot, of which Cummins, the highest man secured 26,981, and Ford a few thousand less. A majority of all votes tabulated would be 36,952 and Mr. Cummins lacked 10,000 of receiving that number, in fact will in the final tally have less than 10,000. The total number of republican ballots cast in the primary.

If Mr. Cummins is none the less entitled to first consideration because he secured one ahead of Mr. Ford, it is agreed that Judge Hughes, who without having his name printed, was written in by some 15,000 voters, is also entitled to a great deal of consideration. The big vote received by Judge Hughes has astonished even his most ardent friends who, while they have not been writing, did not believe that so many voters would take the trouble to write in the same in the face of the strenuous campaign put up by other candidates. They point to it as an indication how strong Hughes sentiment is among Nebraska republicans, and that the delegation would satisfy every one by joining ultimately in bringing about the nomination of Justice Hughes.

ATTCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS. 'Time is the kind of money a lot of people can't see.' It has always seemed a little strange that a man invented a talking machine. A poor man wastes a lot of time thinking what he could do if he could afford it. In this country an aristocrat has to do something more than avoid work to prove it. No notion is so absurd that you can't get a lot of people to accept it as the truth. In the home drama, father plays the goat-part more frequently than anyone else. Solomon was so wise he probably never tried to fool all those wives and lady friends. So much of the enthusiasm is possessed by youngsters who don't know how to use it. Fishing is never as good anywhere else as it is in the advertisements of summer resorts. A woman will forgive her husband a good deal, if it isn't an affair with another woman. The pest who never lets the conversation lag at a concert should also receive both barrels. Once in awhile a man takes in too much territory and tries to fool both his wife and his affinity. The chronic kicker should be kicked occasionally, so that he may see both sides of the situation. THE POTTER AND THE CLAY. Hartington Herald: A beggar who passed through this city on Tuesday, and who appeared to be able to fare sumptuously at the Midwest while he was in town handed out a card (while he was relieving us of a dime), on which was neatly printed this verse: "I wrote not the Potter, the power over the Clay, of the same lump to make one vessel unto honor, and another unto dishonor." Rom. ix-2. Which is undoubtedly a fact, and the Potter also picks up into men who are able to pick up an easy living, like these professional-beggars, and other lumps fit to individuals like the rest of us who have to dig in and work hard 18 hours a day in order to acquire a living. Yes, verily, brother, your little card contains a great truth. ATTCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS. You can't cheat the undertaker. Some day he is going to get you. Don't try to look for opportunity and dodge work at the same time. Nothing but a church row ever shakes a woman's faith in her pastor. When a man says he just about broke even, it usually means he lost a little. Despite the advance in labor saving machinery there is still a lot of hard work to be done. It is also possible to be so particular about details that you will never get anything done. If the children had their way about it more men would engage in the confectionery business. There are a number of women who are more of a help to the church than they are in the home. It is easy enough to be an optimist if you hold no account and no other serious trouble impends. Obituary.

I. H. Weaver who passed away at his home at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, was born near Homeworth, O., December 23, 1846, and was aged 69 years, 4 months and 7 days at the time of his death. Although the deceased was left an orphan at the tender age of two, yet he developed into a young man of splendid character. In 1888 he came to Wayne county and three years later he was united in marriage to Miss Sarah Neff, who was also a native of Ohio. They settled on a farm near Wakefield and lived there until eighteen years ago when they moved to Wakefield. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver were blessed with five children, one of whom died in childhood. The other four children survive: one son, Lester L. Weaver, of Alliance, Ohio, and three daughters, Mrs. Alice Weaver, Mrs. W. Leonard, and Mrs. B. F. Davis of Wakefield. His faithful wife also lives to mourn his death. Mr. Weaver had always been active in both business and church circles. He was deeply interested in the welfare of the community. For sixteen years he had served as secretary and treasurer of the Gospel Temperance union, an organization of the local Methodist church, which church he joined twenty-two years ago. For nine years he had acted as an efficient superintendent of the Sunday school, and at the time of his death was treasurer of the Local Budget association, and also the second vice president of the Brotherhood of the church. He loved his church and gave freely of his time and talents to promote its growth. The deceased had also served as city clerk and as secretary of the Farmers' Elevator company. Besides he had faithfully performed the duties of reporter and keeper of the local weather bureau.
The funeral was held from the residence yesterday afternoon, Rev. W. C. Kelly being assisted by Dr. F. M. Sisson of Fremont in the conducting of the services.

George Gruce Dies.

After an illness of less than two days George Gruce died at his home in Wakefield Monday evening at 6 o'clock. Death was due to pneumonia. The funeral services will be held from the Swedish Lutheran church today at 2 o'clock. Rev. Borneman of the German Lutheran church southwest of Wakefield and Rev. Mr. Bolling of Dixon, will have charge of the services.

In Honor of Poet.

On Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Graves library a very interesting meeting was held to celebrate the centenary of the birth of William Shakespeare. Mrs. J. D. Haskell after giving a biography of the poet's life, outlined the settings of his different dramas, especially those of Macbeth and The Merchant of Venice, and called attention to the wide range of characters which Shakespeare so wonderfully portrays. Rev. S. H. King, of the Presbyterian church, discussed the question as to the authenticity of Shakespeare's works. Miss Edith Baker read a portion of Henry VIII, which showed especially good interpretation. Her reading was followed by a vocal duet, entitled, "Birds in Spring," rendered by the Misses Ruth Collins and Myrtle Carlson.

Not only Philo Graves.

Not only Philo Graves, the founder of the library and all the members of the library board were present, but also there was a large attendance of patrons and friends of the library. The committee deserves commendation for arranging so instructive and entertaining a meeting.

Mr. Graves Returns.

Philo Graves who had spent the winter in California, returned to Wakefield last week and is busy beautifying the grounds around the library building. Mr. Graves reports that he plans to install equipment soon for a public playground on the lot at the rear of the library. This will be a great benefit to the children of the community and Wakefield is to be congratulated on having such a public-spirited citizen in her midst. Mr. Graves expects to spend the summer in Yellowstone park.

The instrumental trio by the Misses Vena Green, Elfrida Nernberger and Amy Hanson was much enjoyed. E. F. Dunlap delighted the audience with a vocal solo and Miss Faith Haskell and Miss Hazel Eberole each rendered a beautiful piano solo. J. D. Haskell, in his usual pleasing manner, gave a short address of welcome to Mr. and Mrs. King to which Rev. King very happily responded.

At the close of the program, the committee charge served dainty refreshments. The evening proved a pleasant one to every guest and it afforded Rev. and Mrs. King an opportunity to become better acquainted with their parishioners.

DEPTH OF CORN PLANTING.

Wallace's Farmer: When we start planting corn, it is interesting occasionally to measure—the exact depth of planting, with a tape measure or ruler. Most of us will find that we actually measure that we are planting about two inches deep. We think we have to plant that deep in order to make sure that all our seed will be properly covered, for unless our seed bed is very carefully prepared there are spots where the corn will be covered with scarcely any soil or even be dropped on the surface.

On a good seed bed, in the average season, it is wise to plant corn rather shallow. At the Ohio station, as an average of six years, corn planted one inch deep yielded 57.9 bushels; two inches deep 51.2 bushels; three inches deep 46.8 bushels. At the Illinois station, practically the same results were secured. Corn planted one inch deep yielding 78 bushels; two inches deep, 72 bushels; three inches deep 65 bushels; five inches deep 61 bushels, and six inches deep 60 bushels. At the Indiana station, the corn planted two inches deep slightly out-yielded the corn planted one inch deep, but the corn planted three and four inches deep did not yield so well as the corn which was planted shallow.

A number of other stations have also made experiments, but all indicate the same thing, that one inch with another, it is not wise to plant corn more than one or two inches deep. It is interesting to note, however, that one year in Illinois, when the soil was extremely dry at the time of planting, the corn planted six inches deep gave the best yield. The indications are that deep corn makes very little difference how deep corn is planted, provided only that the corn stalks have strength enough to find their way to the surface. For instance, in a New York experiment, they found that as large a yield per stalk was secured from corn planted eight inches deep as from corn planted two inches deep, but the deep planted corn did not give as large a total yield for the reason that many of the kernels which would have sprouted all right if planted shallow, were unable to find their way to the surface of the ground.

Evidently, the depth of corn planting, like most other farm operations, furnishes an opportunity for each individual to use his own judgment. Those who harrow corn after planting will prefer to put their kernels in at a depth of at least two inches, in order to make sure that the harrowing does not drag out any. When the soil is unusually dry and loose at the time of planting, we will of course plant the seed a little deeper than usual. In the case of a rough seed bed, we will find it necessary to set the planter a little deeper than usual, in order to make sure that all the seed may be covered. But when the seed bed is smooth, and the moisture is fairly near the surface, most of us will find it wise to plant not deeper than two inches, and preferably only one inch. In cold wet seasons, the shallow-planted corn has a much better opportunity to germinate than the deep planted, and as we but a wet soil may cause every three or four years, it is worth while to plant as shallow as we conveniently can.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES

Kidney Disease Cause Many Aches and Ills of Wayne People.

"As one weak link weakens a chain, so one weak kidney weakens the whole body suffers, and the final breaking-down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and generally when their activity is lessened, the whole body suffers. Headaches, Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills frequently come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards dropsy, gravel or fatal Bright's disease. When the kidneys fail there is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys.

No need to take the statement of someone living far away as evidence. Here is a case right in this locality.

R. D. Aller, carpenter, Wakefield, Neb., says: "I suffered from kidney complaint. My back was lame and painful and my kidneys were not acting right. I had headaches and dizzy spells and at times my sight was very poor. Through the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, my health improved."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Aller had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE WORLD'S RECORD FOR BUTTERFAIT PRODUCTION.

Dutchess Skylark Ormsby, a Holstein-Friesian cow, is the world's champion butter producer. The results of her 365 consecutive days' record, compiled by the Minnesota Agricultural college, show that she produced 27,761 pounds of milk, nearly fourteen tons, or over twenty-three times her own weight. The butterfat contained in this year's milk yield weighed 1,205 pounds, this being a far percentage of about 43.32.

At $35 cents a pound, she produced about $900 worth of commercial butter in one year. To her credit of $500 worth of commercial butter must be added over 20,000 pounds of skim milk and buttermilk, about fourteen tons of manure, and a calf, which pay for feed and care, making the total value of her production. This cow holds the world's record, regardless of age, class or breed. She was bred by R. B. Young of Buffalo Centre, Ia., and is now owned by John R. Irwin of Minneapolis, Minn. Her sire is 'Sir Ormsby Skylark 47010, and her dam is Oakhurst Duchess Clothilde 106988, by John of Barneveldt 35865; a bull that was imported in dam in 1902.

The new champion butterfat producer was born October 31, 1909, and freshened at the age of five years and three days. Throughout the test she was cared for by Axel Hansen, and never missed a feed, never required the services of a veterinarian, and was never fed anything but ordinary cow feed.

FIRST WHITE MAN DIES.

Omaha, April 29.—The Rev. Samuel Pierce Merrill, the first white man born in Nebraska, died Sunday in Los Angeles of heart trouble and asthmatic complications at the age of 81 years, according to information received by Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Milroy of this city, intimate friends of the late minister.

In 1835 the Rev. Mr. Merrill was born in a little sod house about a mile south of Bellevue on the Platte river, whence his mother and father had come as Baptist missionaries to the Omaha Indians.

His father established the old Merrill mission in Bellevue in 1834. Part of this mission still stands, farm house having been erected around the same with a bit of the original chimney shaft exposed. On the occasion of a visit to Omaha about two years ago the Rev. Mr. Merrill visited the historic spot.

A FOOL STUNT.

Sioux City Journal: A Lexington horse jockey named Ross did his share to make a monkey of the presidential primary in Nebraska. He ran for president on both republican and democratic tickets, polled 7,000 votes as a republican and about half that number as a democrat. Some Nebraskans laugh at Ross, but outsiders will be inclined to laugh at Nebraska for making an ass of the state by a fool law under which such a fool stunt could be pulled.

You can never tell how fierce a fight will be from the amount of rough talk that precedes it.
