The free exhibitions in Wayne Saturday afternoon and evening by Georgia Abbott who—as she explained in an address, was a boy twenty odd years old, and matched what he called his magic strength against the physical powers of several men. While the entertainment was not wonderfully entertaining, people stated it with interest, and it demonstrated the value of special Saturday attractions. This Saturday feature suggests the pleasure and advantage that would accrue from the holding of such an event over Saturday. The Public Service club might cooperate with the musical department of the State Normal in securing the services of a band. Good music would help enliven the festive spirit of Saturday nights, or any other nights.

ALUMNI BANQUET WAS A SINGULAR SUCCESS

More than one hundred fifty graduates of the Wayne State Normal assembled at the Baptist church last evening for the annual alumni banquet. Prior to the opening of the banquet doors, the guests gathered in the church auditorium. Hearty handshakes, exclamations of surprise, and excited chatting evinced a feeling of interest and were being renewed on every side. The crowd seemed super-charged with enthusiasm and optimism.

When the signal was given, the guests, including guests and members of the faculty, filed through the doorway to the rooms below. From behind a green lattice work, the orchestra struck up a lively air as the descending line approached the banquet hall.

Down the center of each of the six long tables were arranged huge bowls of bright red honeysuckles. Between these bouquets, orange cards with red lettering and boxes of black were effectively used. The menu cards and nut dishes were also in the college colors. Potted plants at the windows and boxes of gay peonies gave the charming effect.

The guests found their places by means of dainty name cards, each decorated with a four-leaf clover and the college seal. In silent lines the guests stood while Rev. W. L. Gaston of the First Baptist church invoked God's blessing on the occasion. Then the talking broke out afresh with not a moment lost in "breaking the ice." When there was a brief respite from eating or a lull in the music the classes represented, vied with each other in yells and songs. The class of 1916, which occupied the largest hall, perhaps the most self-assertive because of its numbers. The two whistling solos by George Wilcox were heartily applauded.

After each of the five courses of the excellent feast, has been leisurely enjoyed, President U. S. Conn rose for attention. Chairs were then pushed back from the tables and turned so that all would be facing the music. After Pres. Conn spoke a few words of welcome and commended the changing of the banquet to a later date, he introduced Miss Eugenia Madden as the toastmaster for the evening. Miss Madden explained that the toasts would carry out the idea of a big political convention. Accordingly she introduced Prof. I. H. Britell as the man who would sound the keynote of the Convention. Prof. Britell asked the delegates to imagine him as the original "Teddy" made a plea for the progressive party on the lines of preparedness for right living, internal improvements of the mind, and good defenses against vices and indiscretions, such as "Zebra hostility" and "dressless dressers." He begged for a strong national spirit founded on industry, service and brotherly love. Ray Hickman next took the floor and outlined the credentials necessary for nominees. Taking the five letters standing for Wayne State Normal Alumni association, he first declared them to symbolize work, sociability, necessity, ability, and amiability, and then showed why the following he unambiguously elected officers of the association for the coming year: Earl Schroer, president; Florence Welch, vice president; Alwine Luers, secretary; Rollie Ley, treasurer.

After a rousing cheer for the newly elected officers, the lights were turned off and a fairy skipped around the tables and snuffed out the candles. In the stilly darkness, she spoke for equal suffrage. Miss Sara Henry effectively rendered a selection entitled "Goodbye." This was the sixth annual banquets to cooperate to bring greater numbers of students in the Normal, and spirit of good fellowship manifested on this occasion was due to the efforts of the retiring president, Miss Edith Beechel.

VISITOR IS STRONG IN PRAISE OF NORMAL

Norfolk Press: While at Wayne Friday afternoon The Press editor was shown through the splendid State Normal school of which he had heard so much. He is justifiably proud. We admired the splendid auditorium, one of the finest in the north half of the state; enjoyed the delights of the domestic science and manual training departments; drew inspiration from the splendid classrooms, fine windows, stairways and broad corridors, strolled over the campus, inspected the dormitories, witnessed a game of chess, and met the splendid men and women that comprise the very able faculty and enjoyed the cordial welcome given us and came away regretting that it was not Norfolk's fortune to have this fine institution in place of the one here. Wayne is a beautiful town of fine homes, churches and schools and the normal college gives it tone. Nobody, however, slow to recognize the advantages the higher education could overlook the influence the college has on the town. The students and there are more than 500 enrolled there now, are a fine lot of young men and women anxious for mental growth, eager for learning and to come in daily contact with one can but mean a world of inspiration for those outside. By reason of the college the town has many people are enabled to have the best in music, drama, public speaking, to see the best in art and to live under the very roof of a towering teacher of ideals. Standing on the highest of peaks the splendid town the wonderful farming community that slopes away to the horizon with its groves and prairie here and there and touches of vivid color no mortal hand could reproduce. Surely it was a splendid treat, ours of Friday afternoon, and we are indebted to the good friends who made the visit possible. Norfolk and Wayne should know more of each other—they are a twin even. Mother Nebraska may point to with pride.

quarters at the Speedway in 1914. "The accident victim yesterday took the machine from his brother John, who had just made a trial flight. The machine having been just assembled, Matt told his brother he would not attempt the 'loop the loop' feat. Turning at right angles almost as soon as he left the ground, he came rapidly to a height of about 350 feet.

"The machine seemed to be under perfect control when he started a short spiral glide. After flying about fifty feet he lost control and the machine sped like an arrow to the ground.

"The engine kept running during the whole course of the fall, and Savidge could be seen frantically trying to regain control of the machine.

"The plane fell within 200 yards of the spot where hundreds were watching the young aviator in his trial flight. Rushing forward the crowd prevented the mangled form from the tangle of wreckage in time to prevent the body from being consumed by fire from the engine.

"Young Savidge had spent the winter making trial flights in Texas. He is credited with having originated the trick of writing his name in the air with his machine, and his looping won him considerable fame over the middle west, where he was widely known.

"Savidge made his debut here with a daring flight over the city in July, 1914. He started from the Speedway. He raced against running cars at the race course that year."

APPRECIATION.
Lincoln, Neb., June 14, 1916. Public Service Club, Hwy. Gaston, Secretary, Wayne, Neb.

Dear Sir:

Please be assured of our sincere appreciation of the very excellent manner in which you entertained the guests of the "Seeing Nebraska" party while they were in your city last week.

The purpose of this project was to obtain for Nebraska some much needed publicity among men and concerns who are in position to spend money in this territory and aid in the business development of our state.

It was a success in every detail, but I believe the thing that was most appreciated by all of our guests was the splendid entertainment and hearty cooperation given our Bureau by the towns visited along the way. This enabled us to send our guests back to their eastern homes inspired with what they had seen and happy over the hospitable manner in which they had been treated while here.

It was splendid of you to respond so courteously and we trust that out of the event, your city will get its full share of benefit.—Very sincerely yours, The Nebraska Publishers' Bureau. S. R. McKelvie, President.

AMONG PRODUCERS OF WAYNE COUNTY

(By Ward Randall, staff representative of the Herald.)

H. J. Miner.
H. J. Miner covers the Fairview farm of 200 acres a mile south of Wayne, is one of the well known farmers of Wayne county. He is successful not only in farming but in the stock growing. He is considered high in the county. He owns Polled Durham cattle in the state. At the head of his herd is "Confession Sultan," No. 41874-21170. It is a rich cow and a show animal. It has high legs, fine udder, and considerable money. Mr. Miner feeds abundantly. He has twenty-five head of Polled Durham cattle. The milk from his cows tests as high as five per cent butterfat. In the line of pigs, he has 215 spring pigs, thirty-four old sows and seven half shoats, some of which are pure bred Poland Chinas. His land is cropped in this way: Six acres are corn, twenty-two acres in oats, sixteen in alfalfa, and the balance in pasture and hay land. He has one of the most commodious barns in the county. It is 360 by 100 feet. He has a plan for building a cattle shed 24x60 and a machine shed 24x36. His sightly home is protected by a grove of ash and maple.

Earl Miner.
Earl Miner moved the past spring to the farm which he bought two miles southwest of Wayne. He has lived in the country seven years, raising one of the Mellor places for two years. The land which he purchased was a part of the W. O. Miner estate, and is considered very valuable. He has seventy-five acres in corn, twenty acres in oats, and sixteen acres in alfalfa. He has a fine producing apple orchard. He has over 100 head of hogs.

True Prescott.
The Prescotts have lived in Wayne county twenty years and is a large land owner. He is farming 240 acres and one-half miles south-west of Wayne. Last year he shipped a car of cattle and a car of hogs. He now has on hand forty head of cattle and 100 head of hogs. Ninety acres of corn, sixty acres of oats and the balance in alfalfa and pasture tell the story of his crop plan for this year.

Ed Surber.
Ed Surber lives on the Clyde Oman 320-acre farm four and three-quarter miles southwest of Wayne, and has been there for six years. In his yards are eighty-five spring pigs and thirty-one old sows. He shipped a car of hogs last year. His crop plan: 100 acres in corn and 100 acres in small grain, balance in pasture. He has a pleasant home, and a good yielding apple orchard.

B. Grono.
B. Grono has lived twelve years on the 104-acre farm which he owns four and one-half miles south of Wayne. Nine milch cows furnish plenty to do in the dairy line. He has 100 head of hogs. He has sixty-five acres of corn, and the rest in pasture and hay. He has good buildings and the farm shows the results of a thorough farmer.

Magnus Westlund.
Magnus Westlund lives on 250 acres of land owned by Mrs. Prescott about four miles southwest of Wayne. He has sold 100 pigs during the past year, and has 106 head left on the place. His crop plan: 115 acres of corn, 250 acres of oats and fifteen of wheat.

NOTHING LIKE IT.
Jewell, Kas., Republican: Never did such a thing occur before. Never was a man who declared himself not a candidate who had no opponent, who, nevertheless, drew attention presumed to make in his name, who refused to make a statement, and who sent word to powerful politicians that he was busy and could not be disturbed—never before was such a man dragged out and nominated for president of the United States. Yet that is what happened to Justice Charles E. Hughes of New York, last Saturday. The republican national convention nominated him on the third ballot. Instantly the demagogue of Justice Hughes changed. As justice of the supreme court he returned to be a partisan on the subject of the nomination. He questions—issues that might eventually come before him as a candidate. He refused to be a candidate for anything. But when the nomination for president was officially offered him by the republican convention, he immediately sent his resignation as justice to the president, and on its being accepted, he dispatched a message to the convention, stating that it had not been his wish to be nominated, as he wished to remain a justice; but that he recognized the right of the nation of the court, John Jay, ran for governor of New York while on the bench, and he did not resign in order to make the race: He was defeated for governor and remained on the bench. John Marshall was a dabbler in politics and in 1812 received four electoral votes for president. He attended the anti-Masonic national convention in 1832, where Justice MacLean was an unsuccessful candidate for the presidential nomination. Justice Davis of Illinois was a rival of Horace Greely for the liberal republican nomination in 1872. Chief Justice Chase's presidential aspirations in 1868 are well remembered.

From Chase's time to this, however, there has been no formidable movement in favor of a supreme court justice for president. The long absence of the court from political calculations is a reason, perhaps, why the country shows no particular sensitiveness to the nomination of one of its members. Had the nomination come in another way, the public attitude would doubtless be different. Had Hughes and his relatives pulled wires for the nomination as did Justice Chase and his relatives, there would be good ground for criticism. Since the nomination came unasked for and unworked for, the ground for criticism is reduced to the single question of the expediency of the precedent which is now set. For though supreme court judges were formerly much in politics, none has ever before received and accepted a presidential nomination.

MRS. LENORA M. LAKE
In summing up the attributes that make an ideal human life, Lenora M. Lake uses these words: Love and Service; and they express as no other words could express the keynote of her character, for her heart is filled with love for God and humanity.

During her nation-wide investigations of crime and crusade against labor conditions, she found so much woe and hardship, so much wreck and ruin of the home and family life due to the use of alcohol in its various forms that it made her a pronounced advocate of temperance. For fifteen years she has been honored with official position by the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, and many other organizations have been glad to honor her. Years ago the Knights of Labor, at the time the greatest body of organized labor in the world created a special position for her, called General Investigator of Women's Work. For eleven years she and the late Frances E. Willard were devoted and congenial co-workers. Mrs. Lake is connected with many charitable and philanthropic associations, is also a club woman, a member of the Blue Yew Reading circle and of the National Congress of Mothers.

Mrs. Lake has the gift of eloquence as it has been given to few men and women. This is the woman with the message: "The most gifted woman speaker on the platform today." Wayne Chautauqua July 13.

THE LATE PROGRESSIVES.
Lincoln Journal: Colonel Roosevelt's decision is still tentative leaving the progressive party leader in the balance. Mr. Perkins has not spoken leaving the party leader in a market in doubt. But to all intents and purposes the progressive party is dead at the tender age of three years and ten months. Since it is so soon broken, why should we wonder what it was begun for.

The answer to that question calls for volumes and the labors of night consuming historians. We are not sure those who thought at the progressive party in the hour of its infancy. It was not a bubble notwithstanding its early bursting. Its spirit is not extinct, though the body is crumbled to dust. The progressive party, reorganized, a progress which has been ineffective in this party form, but which the statesmen of the coming years will have to deal with seriously. The spirit of the progressive party was born of a well founded disgust with existing political organizations. People like Jane Addams, working on social problems, had found the political parties refusing to touch the real problems American life. The politicians talked buncombe and courted the bosses while slums spread and the problem of living increased in difficulty. Men everywhere, grown sick of conventional politics and conscious of the country's need for a firm grasping of its problems, thought they saw in the new party a star of hope. Thus the party attracted elements capable of an enduring struggle.

But the circumstance that made Colonel Roosevelt the head of the movement made it necessary for the party to win its first battle or win never. Here lay the comedy of the progressive party. Colonel Roosevelt is a very great man and a very good one as a great man for, but as a politician he is a failure. He is a great man in the country to display "something of the heroic," but you don't find Colonel Roosevelt waxing his calves while some fighting heroically for causes whose chance to win lies only in the sweet by and by. The sight of Colonel Roosevelt leading an army of "Christian soldiers" is the progressive party's great contribution to the comic history of the United States.

Then came the tragedy. The colonel thinks he sees a chance to win by switching from social justice to Americanism and patriotism. Seditioning were some of his idealists worshippers that they followed him to Chicago in expectation of some how distilling some social justice as a by-product of that issue. Colonel Roosevelt's plans fail. In the effort to prove that he was not all for himself he steps his leaders in the face with Henry Clammey Lodge. Clammey to him though he slay them the progressive nominate him still. Will he lead a forlorn hope? To favor is a waste of breath. The curtain falls. The instinct for "social justice" is in the American blood and will work itself out in due time. It will get wisdom there. The way of progress in American politics is not to go to the labor of building a new party. It is less trouble to capture an old one.

He lives only a half mile from a school which is located on his farm. He is a hard worker and a sure winner.

William Buetow took possession March 1 of the 240-acre farm, six and one-half miles northwest of town, owned by E. E. K. Mellor. Although he is just starting out for himself, Mr. Buetow is not a greenhorn at farming by any means. Besides a thorough knowledge of conditions and methods, he has the grit and discretion which assure him success. He is now stirring up the soil in a 135-acre patch of corn.

JUDGES IN POLITICS.

Lincoln Journal: President Wilson is supposed to have opposed including in his party platform a plank proposing a constitutional amendment to keep judges of the supreme court from holding office after they did not propose to have his party indulge again in such cheap opportunism as it displayed in 1912. The single-term plank which the Roosevelt candidate led to his nomination, embarrassment to the democrats since. Such opposition to Hughes as can be stirred up by reason of his jump from judicial to political position can be well stirred up without the help of platform planks. Some such opposition there will be. How much there will be no one can tell.

The supreme court has increased its distance from politics in the last fifty years. Probably the main reason for this has been the increasing power, prestige and dignity of the court, which made its members well known to the people and to the public. The spirit of the progressive party is nothing more. The first chief jus-

Omaha and Sioux City employing institutions offer to hold jobs for employes wishing to join the army and they are anxious to serve the country—another example of true American patriotism.

Hughes and Fairbanks, republicans against Wilson and Marshall democrats, insure a lively presidential campaign, with chances strongly in favor of the former.

An Indian girl in South Dakota has been awarded $3,500 judgment against an erstwhile lover who proved false to his promise to marry her. He is also an Indian. It is the first time that a reclaimed aborigine has rapidly assimilated the ways of white folk.

The country around Wayne looks magnificent in its garb of green. Corn all kinds of ways, green, although corn needs warmer weather to accelerate growth. Moisture has been enough, but not too much. The present outlook for plenty and prosperity is encouraging.

A Sioux City institution manufacturing shougun shells, had refused contracts to make munitions for use in Europe, but shows its patriotism by announcing its willingness to devote its plant to the manufacture of shells for the American army. No doubt in all parts of the country factories that have refused to supply munitions for the enemy are now offering their services to the United States.

If the Mexicans really knew what was going for them they would lay their arms and fight welcome the United States as a friend. But they won't do it. The ignorance, false impressions and penchant for fighting will lead them to resist to the limit of their power. Later Mexican generations, enlightened by American civilization, may appreciate the good intentions and helpful services of the nation now regarded by the greaters with suspicion and scorn.

Members of the Commercial club of Aurora liked the expert business talks of Frank Stockdale so well that they invited him back here to give another talk on business subjects. Mr. Stockdale is the well-remembered to give the business talk at the Wayne chautauqua in July, and will be invited while here to address business men at a noon-day luncheon. He is a man of wide knowledge and much valuable information may be gained from his knowledge and experience.

H. H. Pense, publisher of the Beemer Tribune, who is among the editors visiting Wayne last winter, has been given wide-spread publicity on account of his roster-catchup plan for campaigning for subscriptions. His picture with a wisp of hair appeared in Collier's Weekly of recent date. Mr. Pense's plan is to travel over Pease county, and with every farmer he enters into an agreement to catch a wisp of hair from one's life. If necessary, to sustain the civilization and institutions of one's own country. The spectacle of America's young men, responding with gusto to the call of duty, is a practical patriotism, should thrill every American breast with pride and praise.

It looks as though the time were not far distant when the United States would be free to enter Mexico and establish a stable government. In that event, it would likely be many years before the United States could withdraw with assurance that Mexico as an independent country would remain orderly. It would undoubtedly be better for Mexico and probably no advantage to this country to effect permanent annexation. With Mexico annexed, why not trade to England the Philippine islands, throwing in the Sandwich islands to boot, for Canada. If it were desirable to retain the Sandwich islands, we could even the trade by giving England some money, which it will mightily need at the close of the war. This would be agreeable to the alliance between England and Japan. Then buy the little countries between Mexico and the Panama canal, and the stars and stripes would float over an entire continent of matchless resources. The opportunity to confer civilization and strength that would forever silence the remotest suggestion of trespass from outside nations. Of course, we don't expect this plan to be adopted without mature consideration.

HUGHES' "PEP". Fremont Tribune: The "pep" that Candidate Hughes is showing is a most encouraging sign. One of the chief reasons why the American people think so much of Teddy Roosevelt is because of his pep. They are going to find the same thing in Hughes, coupled with a most remarkable mind.

MILITARY ACTIVITY.

Norfolk Daily News, June 21: Most interest in the recruiting of soldiers for the Norfolk national guard machine gun company was noted Wednesday morning when...

It was expected the recruiting would be more spirited before nightfall and a number of former members of the Norfolk national guard company came into the recruiting station to secure information regarding the organization. Many stopped in the office to inquire for latest developments in the Mexican situation, expressing their willingness to enlist if they were assured of seeing actual service. Among the applicants Wednesday were former university students, high school students and a number of young business men. It was apparent that if the recruiting continued here it will include some very choice men.

Some Companies Moving. One team of the company has received definite instructions to move to the mobilization camp at Ashland. The Wisner company left home on train No. 2 over the Northwestern road Tuesday. The seventy-five men of the Fremont signal corps were in readiness to move Wednesday. Orders reached that company to move Wednesday morning and telegraphers and linemen who belong to the organization were rushing to Fremont from many points in the vicinity. George Miller, toll collector of the Norfolk district, Nebraska Telephone company, joined the Fremont signal corps Tuesday night. Sixteen other men of the telephone company in this district were also traveling from home to join the colors.

Equipment to Gordon. Railroad equipment was sent to Gordon Tuesday night. The Stanton company has but three engines and orders from headquarters were sent to the Stanton commander to rush the recruiting of his company to full strength. This recruiting was the chief feature at Stanton Wednesday. The Fremont signal corps ordered to assemble at their armory. It was expected that a large number of the South Dakota gardeners would pass through Norfolk over the Northwestern railroad within the next few days. Some railroad equipment for these soldiers was sent to the Black Hills division Wednesday.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

Everybody blames everything on everybody else.

What has become of the old-fashioned agitator who predicted the next war would be between labor and capital?

What has become of the old-fashioned father who wielded an influence over his daughters?

What has become of the old-fashioned reporter who started out to tell the truth about amateur plays? That's why he looks that way.

About the only soldierly characteristic some men have is the habit of charging everything.

You have such a wide acquaintance that you may know of someone who doesn't enjoy fatness.

What has become of the old-fashioned father who wielded an influence over his daughters?

You ought to be able to hustle around and accomplish more than the average slogan ever does.

Forty-five acres of oats are beginning to head. Forty acres of alfalfa and good pasture occupy the balance of the land. Mr. Ott has scarcely had time to stock up very heavily yet, but he has made a beginning in that direction having sixty-five fine spring pigs already besides over twenty brood sows. Friends of Mr. Ott would wish progress as a farmer with much interest.

For fourteen years, Claus Ott has tended his brother Fred a quarter section of land, eight miles northwest of Wayne. A new barn and granary on this place are much appreciated by Mr. Ott, especially at showing time. He is now attending to twenty-four head of cattle and ninety hogs. The stock output last year consisted of one car of cattle and forty-eight head of hogs. Mr. Ott is now working early and late in the fields, moving toward the twenty-two acres of corn. Thirty-two acres of oats and a good pasture and meadow complete the 160 acres.

Three hundred and twenty acres of land four miles northwest of Wayne is farmed by E. W. and A. C. Arnold, the former coming here from Lyons and the latter from north of Dixon. This year they have fifty acres alfalfa, 110 acres of small grain, 120 acres of corn. The Arnolds are progressive young farmers and Wayne county is fortunate in attracting them to this vicinity.

For three years, Henry Cozad has been renting of J. T. Bressler 200 acres of land, six and one-half miles south of town. He is tending 100 acres of corn, and has sown thirty-five acres of oats. Twenty-two acres have already headed. The crop of well-cured hay. Mr. Cozad likes good cattle and has sixteen head of the "Choice Good" strain. Five yearling bulls have been sold at $125 apiece. Mr. Cozad is making this a successful branch of farming.

Six miles north and three miles west of town are 160 acres of land owned by H. Dunklaw and rented by his brother John Dunklaw for five years. On it this year are growing fifty acres of corn and eighteen acres of oats with a pasture and some excellent hay land taking up the balance. Mr. Dunklaw has a fine herd of cattle on his pasture, prior to the fattening period in the yards. Mr. Dunklaw also has 125 hogs, some of which will be finished for market this fall. Sixty head of hogs and fifty head of cattle were sold from this farm last year. The improvements are fair.

On a quarter section of land six and one-half miles northwest of town, R. S. McIntosh has made his home for three years past. Besides a nice field of alfalfa, and a good sized pasture, he has eighty acres of corn and fifty acres of oats. The hog business has not proved profitable for Mr. McIntosh here. He now has only twenty head, but no doubt his luck will turn some of these days according to the clever philosopher who says,

Deuel County, Nebraska

I want to sell before July 1st one or all of five quarter sections north of Big Springs, Neb. Good as any in the county. Lower price and better terms than any adjoining land. Write if you mean business. Box 302, Omaha, Neb. 115-22

"When things get so bad that they can't get any better, then they usually begin to get better."

August Vahlkamp. For ten years August Vahlkamp has been tending a 160-acre farm, five miles northwest of town. He is fortunate in renting a farm with an entirely new set of buildings, including an attractive modern house. A young grove has also been planted to secure shade and shelter. Mr. Vahlkamp reports sixty-five acres of corn and thirty acres of oats as his crop plan of the year. He also has a thick heavy crop of oats and corn. The young grove has already yielded the first heavy crop of the season.

M. W. Simpson. Coming from Oakland, Ia., six years ago, Mr. Simpson located on an excellent quarter section of land, four and one-half miles northwest of Wayne. The improvements are all good, some of the buildings having been put up out last fall. A prodigious amount of time has been put over other points in favor of this farm. One hundred twenty acres are devoted to grain, eighty acres being in corn and half that amount in oats. Forty acres of tame hay annually yield a heavy crop. On this farm are sixty-five hogs and fifteen cattle. Last year Mr. Simpson marketed fifty head of hogs at a high price. He is a thorough-going farmer in the section whom Wayne county is the prouder.

Herbert F. Lessman. Herbert Lessman is another young Wayne county farmer who is doing well this spring. He moved five and one-half miles northwest of Wayne on a 320-acre farm, one-quarter of which is owned by Frank McDonald. The buildings on this place are first class and a young grove will provide adequate protection within a few years. With 150 acres of corn, 100 acres of small grain and a big acreage of alfalfa, Mr. Lessman has been a busy man this season. Besides the field work he has 125 hogs and seventy-four head of cattle that come in for their share of attention. Last year the stock shipments from this farm comprised one car each of cattle and hogs. Mr. Lessman is a farmer who is a combined grain raiser and the live stock business on a profitable basis.

A farm, four miles west and six miles north of town, has been the home of A. A. Smith for the last twenty-three years. This place comprises 200 acres, besides which Mr. Smith owns the southwest quarter of section six. An even 100 acres of land on the east half of that amount is producing a good crop of oats. Hay land and a good pasture fill the remaining fifty acres. Mr. Smith has twenty-five head of good stock cattle and he sold fifteen head last year. The herd of hogs he made up of forty old hogs and over 100 smaller rooters. He realized a good profit on a car and a half of hogs during the past season. Mr. Smith believes in good stock and the benefits of farming the two factors which have resulted in his success.

Fred Wendt. Fred Wendt has farmed for four years on a quarter section of the Morrison estate, lying seven miles northwest of town. He is making the dust fly these days as he goes through his sixty-five acres of corn. Besides this crop, he has twenty acres of wheat and fifty acres of oats. The rest of the quarter is devoted to pasture for protection. Mr. Wendt fed out one car of cattle, but at present he has only a few head. A small herd of hogs are making a good grow.

John R. Hefti. A good quarter section eight miles from Wayne is occupied by John Hefti. The lay of the land is especially desirable, and the building spot is slightly and well improved with a good grove for protection. Mr. Hefti has seventy-eight acres of corn this year and fifty acres of oats. The rest of the land is in alfalfa and pasture. As to stock there are sixty-five hogs and fifteen head of stock cattle. Mr. Hefti has lived on this farm for fifteen years, and every year he has made some sort of an improvement on the place.

Frank Peterson. Frank Peterson is a young man who is just starting out in the farming business. He has rented the Simon Goemann eighty seven miles northwest of town. Taking out eighty acres for pasture, Mr. Peterson has twenty-five acres of oats and forty-five acres for corn. This is a comparatively small crop acreage, but by devoting most of his time to his corn, Mr. Peterson ought to raise a big yield per acre.

Asmus Franzen. It means work and lots of it to operate three full quarter sections of land; yet Asmus Franzen, living three miles west and five miles north of town has the ambition and the judgment to do just that thing. Naturally his major crop is corn of which there is a total of 260 acres. The remaining land is sown to oats and grasses of the best varieties. Although Mr. Franzen does not pose as a stock man, he marketed last year one car of cattle, and now has on hand fifty-five head of hogs and twenty-five cattle. As good work horses are necessary for successful farming on so large a scale, Mr. Franzen keeps an even dozen mature horses of a good heavy grade besides three colts. A good grove is an attractive feature on this farm.

Theo. Johann. Coming from Cuming county two years ago, Theo. Johann is now farming a quarter section of the J. T. Bressler land, nine and one-half miles south of Wayne. Thirty acres each of oats and hay land leave 100 acres for the major crop, corn. After marketing thirty head of hogs Mr. Johann has thirty-eight spring pigs and eight old hogs. Mr. Johann likes Wayne county, and is a big booster for this vicinity.

Pio Andresson. Six miles northwest of Wayne and an equal distance southeast of Carroll is the quarter section tenanted by Pio Andresson. The farm is owned by Mr. Smith of Cretz. Mr. Andresson has crops as follows: Corn, eighty acres; oats, fifty acres; pasture and hay land taking up the balance of the land. Twenty-three hogs and about the same number of cattle comprise Mr. Andresson's live stock at the present time. A good grove on this place affords ample protection from the wind.

John Schindler. This is the second year that John Schindler has lived on a quarter section, located four miles west of Wayne and owned by June Conger. Mr. Schindler has almost all the land under cultivation, 100 acres being in corn and the balance in oats. The corn shows a fine stand. Although stock is not a specialty on this farm, there is a herd of twenty good stock pigs. Mr. Schindler is a hard worker, and expects to do most of the corn cultivating himself.

Stomach Trouble and Constipation. I will cheerfully say that Chamberlain's Tablets are the most satisfactory remedy for stomach troubles and constipation that I have sold in thirty-four years of drug store service. Write S. H. Murphy, druggist, Wellsburg, N. Y. Obtainable everywhere. Adv.

George Hofeld. George Hofeld came to this county thirty-two years ago and by constant effort and hard work he has come into possession of considerable land in this vicinity. He lives on a 320-acre farm three miles west and three miles north of Wayne and rents an additional quarter. He is tending almost 200 acres of corn. Besides this crop he has 120 acres of oats and a small patch of barley. The remainder of the farm is in alfalfa and excellent hay land lying in a rich valley. Much of the grain and hay is fed directly to stock, thirty-one head of cattle being in the yards at the present time. Mr. Hofeld also has a large bunch of hogs, and a large modern house, good barns and sheds, all equipped with water and other conveniences, together with the surrounding orchard and grove, make this a home of which the profits may well be proud.

J. Holtz. J. Holtz is a young newly married farmer, moving here from Pifger. He is the tenant on a quarter section of land, four and one-half miles northwest of town, owned by Emil Hansen. For crops he has seventy-eight acres of corn, forty-three acres of oats with the remaining acreage sown to alfalfa and pasture. As yet Mr. Holtz has not gone into the live stock extensively. However he has a small dairy herd besides a few stock cattle and fifty head of hogs of a good type. Mr. Holtz is congenial, and it is no wonder he will be able to attain his high ideals of success.

A. D. Jones. A. D. Jones has for the past three years farmed a half section of his father's land, four and one-half miles west of Wayne. He is cultivating 130 acres of corn and has 110 acres of oats already beginning to head out. The balance of his place is sown to alfalfa and pasture. Mr. Jones marketed one load of hogs and he now has 170 head of the type that will feed out in good shape.

Louis Knoll. Since 1888 Louis Knoll has made his home on his 320-acre farm, seven miles northwest of Wayne. His farm is well improved and the ground is kept in splendid condition by careful rotation of crops and proper fertilization of the seed beds. This year he has his land divided as follows: One hundred fifty acres of corn, 120 acres of oats, with pasture and hay land occupying the balance of the land. Mr. Knoll is a conservative stock man having at the present time two head of hogs and a good horse and barn and the proximity of the place to a good rural school enhances the value of this farm.

Coming from Cuming county two years ago, Theo. Johann is now farming a quarter section of the J. T. Bressler land, nine and one-half miles south of Wayne. Thirty acres each of oats and hay land leave 100 acres for the major crop, corn. After marketing thirty head of hogs Mr. Johann has thirty-eight spring pigs and eight old hogs. Mr. Johann likes Wayne county, and is a big booster for this vicinity.

Pio Andresson. Six miles northwest of Wayne and an equal distance southeast of Carroll is the quarter section tenanted by Pio Andresson. The farm is owned by Mr. Smith of Cretz. Mr. Andresson has crops as follows: Corn, eighty acres; oats, fifty acres; pasture and hay land taking up the balance of the land. Twenty-three hogs and about the same number of cattle comprise Mr. Andresson's live stock at the present time. A good grove on this place affords ample protection from the wind.

CHURCH CALENDAR

Presbyterian Church. (Rev. S. X. Cross, Pastor).

All people are invited to attend the morning service of this church...

The temperance folks of this church will be busy next Sunday. They will unite with all other temperance folks at the Baptist church.

Your special attention is called to the Sunday school services. The work of the Brotherhood class should attract all men to this fine class.

The regular Sunday evening 8 o'clock service will be omitted Sunday. This is in order to unite with everybody else in a big union mass meeting.

The mid-week meeting deserves more attention than is given it. The next Wednesday evening meeting will be "God's Gentleness and Man's Greatness."

The children's program given last Sunday morning was well selected and well rendered. Much credit is due to Mrs. L. C. Giffers and her helpers for this most excellent program.

The Epworth league service was the most successful evening of the year. The theme for next Sunday morning's sermon will be "For Their Sake," being a message on the social aspect of religious experience.

At the hour of the evening preaching service we will join the other churches in the union meeting at the opera house, where Mrs. Nesbit will speak.

The Methodist young people will hold a social in the church parlors on Friday evening.

A "Ladies' Aid" class meets twice a week for a few weeks, and is having very profitable studies in christian experience and church doctrines and discipline.

The second annual session of the federated district meets at the district conference, the district Epworth league convention, the district Brotherhood and Men's Work
