TENNIS TOURNAMENT IN WAYNE THIS WEEK

FAVOR OF IDEAL WEATHER

Players from All Parts of State Here - Matches Started Monday - The Banquet

The 1916 tournament of the Nebraska State Tennis association is in full blast at the courts in Wayne. Players from all over the state began to arrive as early as Sunday both by rail and auto, and by Monday evening more than seventy net enthusiasts had gathered in the "Home City" to show their skill with the racket. The drawings for the preliminary and first round matches were made early Monday morning, and by 11 o'clock the first games were in progress. Although few spectators were on the grounds on the opening day, the enthusiasm has been growing steadily until today there are delegations from Winnebago, Norfolk, and other surrounding towns as well as large crowds of home people on the bleachers.

A good start was made Monday in playing off the first round matches. One of the surprising features of the day was the defeat of Frank Morgan, the Northeast Nebraska champion in 1915, by Larson, a high school man from Plattsmouth.

Davis of Deaver City is upholding his former reputation. His new reverse serve puzzles every player with whom he has come in competition.

Monday evening a smoker was held in the Tennis club rooms.

Two tennis matches were finished up to the third round. The only Wayne man who survived Tuesday's strenuous opposition was Harry Gildersteelve, Oldham from Winner, S. D. arriving Tuesday and won easily in two matches. In the evening the visiting men enjoyed an auto ride and picnic tendered them by the local association.

In spite of the heavy rainfall early Wednesday morning the courts were in splendid shape by 2 o'clock. The third round set and some of the doubles and consolation singles were disposed of before night. The Oldham-Partridge match revealed some class tennis from both players, but his latter's smashing serves from close to the net finally won the set.

Tennis Banquet

The banquet to the Nebraska State Tennis association by the local association took place at the Gem Cafe last evening. The rich menu which was served in excellent style, was thoroughly enjoyed. Following:

- Blanched Peanuts
- Cream of Tomato
- Toast Sticks
- Olives
- Pickles
- Cabbage Salad
- Roast Beef-Tenderloin with Mushroom Sauce
- Escalloped Potatoes
- Sliced Tomatoes
- Parker House Rolls
- Cheese
- Coffee
- Mints

A series of toasts followed the feast. F. S. Berry acting as toastmaster.

Today the fourth round of singles is being played. The competition for the championship has now narrowed down to eight players - Partridge of Fremont, Gildersteelve of Omaha are working hard for the honors. Tomorrow the last four matches will be played, leaving the semifinals and the consolation.

The play in the doubles and consolation singles is being pushed by Referee Mathewson so that everything will be closed up by Saturday night if the weather remains favorable.

In this morning's games, Professor Partridge of Fremont defeated Ellis with a score, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1. Mann won his match against Weaving, 6-3 sets, 6-3, 6-3.

The Patterson-Hanigan game is scheduled for 5 o'clock and the Madden well match will take place at 5 o'clock. Both of these games will no doubt bring forth some brilliant sets that will be well worth seeing.

- Monday's Scores.
- Powell defeated Ahern.....6-2 6-2
 - Langenberg d. Hickman.....6-4 5-6
 - Davis d. Chaffin.....6-0 6-0

RAIN COOLS AIR AND REFRESHES THE CORN

After the mercury had been hovering around the one hundred mark, yesterday's rain was a welcome sight, cooling the air and refreshing vegetation. Crops hereabouts were not seriously suffering, though the long continued hot spell made people begin to feel rather apprehensive. The rain came just in time to give needed stimulus to the growth of the corn crop. A week ago a heavy rain fell around Wayne and other sections of the county, but none visited the Wayne vicinity. Corn never showed greater promise and with an occasional shower will equal highest expectations in quantity and quality of yield.

Norfolk Daily News, July 19: From one-half to one inch of rain fell all over the Norfolk territory Tuesday night and soaked deep into the ground which had been dried up by the hot winds during the past few days. Farmers are jubilant and the prospect which the rain held for the Norfolk country were discussed by every business man Wednesday morning.

The rain started falling just before midnight following a day of humidity and sweating heat. Reports early Wednesday morning showed that the rain clouds were well distributed. The rainfall in Norfolk amounted to about three-quarters of an inch and fell in such gentle showers as to soak well into the ground.

Rosebud is Soaked.

The Rosebud country was well soaked, the railroad reports showing one-half to one inch of rain had fallen in and around Winnet, from Long Pine to Dakota and from Dakota to Scribner and over the Alliance half an inch at Fremont and lighter showers east of that point. Good rains are reported in various places in the South Platte country, including Omaha, Lincoln, Lincoln, Hastings and Superior. Spalding reported a good shower while Enola, only a short distance from Norfolk, reported only a light shower.

It was believed the dry condition around Columbus, where a water famine is being experienced, had been slightly relieved by the timely rains.

Columbus Water Famine.

Union Pacific reports which came from Columbus yesterday advised that the citizens of that city were alarmed over the shortage of water. The city wells were practically dry and the water hardly leaked from the water pipes in the various buildings. The Columbus River has been nearly dry for several days.

While there have been various reports regarding the suffering of crops in the Norfolk territory because of the hot weather, it was declared Wednesday morning that all of the crops are back in normal condition again following the timely rains. Corn which was reported curling in some places and appeared to be suffering is now reported in normal condition and has been in the past ten years.

CHRISTOPHER BEHN.

Christopher Behn who made his home with his uncle, Herman Kremke in Wayne died in a City Hospital Saturday, July 15. He had been suffering from appendicitis, and underwent an operation. Funeral services were conducted at the German-Evangelical Lutheran church at this place Tuesday by the pastor, Rev. R. Moehring, and interment took place in Greenwood cemetery.

WAYNE SOLDIERS IN CAMP ON THE BORDER

Liano Grande, Tex., July 16, 1916.

We arrived here on Monday evening after a long, tiresome ride from Houston, over the L. & L. B. M. R. R. The distance is approximately 300 miles and the trip occupied the thirty-two hours in a former letter to you I stated that we passed through Austin. I have since discovered that we have not yet had that pleasure.

About all there was to this Liano Grande town when we arrived was the sign and a few houses. Since however, refreshment stands have made their appearance and a couple of picture shows are in course of construction. A box car depot has also been established. In fact, a regular place on the Place on the Sam Forney.

This place is on the Sam Forney route, about forty miles from Brownsville and eighteen miles from Harlingen, the main line junction, approximately forty miles from the Gulf of Mexico, and they say that live Rio Grande fish are only a few miles to the south. The nearest "real" town is Mercedes, a few miles east.

The camp is located in a great mesquite grove. The mesquite tree apparently is the only variety in this vicinity. It is a scrubby looking shrub with long, narrow leaves, and bears red, round fruit in the shape of bean-like pods. There is not much shade to these trees.

There was a great mass of underbrush here before we arrived, but it was fast being cleared away by the men of the Texas laborers. The Mexicans seem to be the ones who do most of the reat hard labor in this part of Texas.

Had rain every day since we have been here.

Had rain every day since we have been here excepting yesterday and today. The two latter days have been exceedingly warm, but the temperature has not been very average. We certainly hope that they don't have any real hot days then. We are not so far from the Gulf of Mexico, but that there is an occasional breeze, and they are quite cool. The nights so far have been cool and are ideal for sleep. But I like the Nebraska climate best.

This part of the country has Nebraska beaten in one thing at least.

That is on the size of their mosquito. These things persist in attempting to entertain us in the evening with their song and sting. The government has issued mosquito netting, and that helps some.

The Fifth Nebraska arrived during the past week and the Indiana and Michigan regiments have arrived. So there is quite a city of tents here already. I understand that about twelve thousand militia are to be encamped here.

The water question has presented quite a problem.

At the present time the water question has become a reservoir and brought to camp in water-wagons. This water has a cloudy appearance, and in my estimation certainly cannot be considered pure. However, pipes are being run, and the system is being installed, and we hope this condition will soon be improved upon. Shower baths are also to be built, and that will surely be a comfort.

Had some guard duty from 11 a. m. yesterday to the same hour today. Corporal Clark and Hamer had charge of a detached post at the railroad track. About 3 a. m. Private Hoglin, Post No. 1, called for Corporal Church, and upon Church's arrival announced that he had seen an animal whose hind legs were longer than those in from Church discovered that it was one of the small type of mice. Soon after his return Private Price, Post No. 2, called for the Corporal and said that he had seen a small animal which was not a mouse. He had charge of a detached post at the railroad track. Corporal Church reminded the boys that it was their duty to halt the intruder, compel him to advance and be recognized, and if after three times they were instructed to fire.

Fritz Lerner has been appointed to the position of baker at Harlingen at a substantial increase in salary.

George Church has made a solemn vow that he will never become the first man to be in a city in Wayne once more. He presents a picturesque appearance at the present time.

Pete Larson bids fair to become

CITY ASKED TO VOTE ADDITIONAL BONDS

Water Extension Urged

Total of $12,000 Wanted—Two and One-fourth Miles of Water Mains Necessary.

A special election will be held in Wayne Monday, July 31, for the purpose of passing judgment on a proposition to issue municipal bonds in the sum of $12,000 to make needed waterworks extensions. If the bonds carry, the improvements will benefit different parts of the city. It is proposed to extend the water system south of the power plant, east and north of the Catholic church, and also extend it to neglected parts north, northwest and southwest. A total of two and one-fourth miles of water mains will be required.

The districts to be supplied have inadequate fire protection and are greatly in need of the extensions. Voters are urged to remember the date of the special election and turn out en masse to vote and perform an important one, and the council feels it should not be longer delayed.

ARMY OF I. W. W. CAUSE TROUBLE AT LINCOLN

Lincoln, Neb., July 19.—There will be no "siege" of Lincoln by an army of I. W. W. invaders, a peace compact between Sheriff Hyers and the leaders having been entered into whereby two of the seven incarcerated workers were released at 6 o'clock last evening, the five remaining men being allowed to perform the duties assigned them by the sheriff.

T. R. McNally, the Omaha representative of the I. W. W., agreed to protect the city from any more unlawful acts of its members, leaving a man here to have charge of the situation. He returned to Omaha last evening.

Yesterday afternoon about 500 members of the I. W. W. marched to the jail and made an effort to scare Sheriff Hyers into giving up the men. They rushed up the steps but were met by Sheriff Hyers and deputy and by the vigorous use of club the men were driven back.

After the march arrived in a town to quell the disturbance, but the men were very bitter and threatened that blood would flow down the streets before the trouble was over. One leader declared that before the I. W. W. were through with Lincoln, the people would not recognize it as a city.

Governor Morehead said yesterday he will not pardon the men held in jail here unless Sheriff Hyers requests him to do so, and Sheriff Hyers does not appear to be in a mood to make the request.

MARKSMEN COMING

The local gun club is arranging for a shooting contest in Wayne Wednesday, August 2, for prizes that will aggregate $90. Invitations have been sent to marksmen from all over Nebraska and part of Iowa. Between fifty and one hundred guests are expected.

CARBHART HARDWARE

PLANS ARE UNDER WAY FOR A SWIMMING POOL

To the Wayne Herald.

Now that we have been granted permission by the council to beautify the square, which was used last week for the chaletauqua assembly, and to make of it a city park, especially the children, but a little, let every citizen of the "Home City" and of the surrounding country work towards that goal just as if you were planning your own playground garden.

Pres. U. E. Conn was the first person to make a gift to the park. Before chaletauqua opened he purchased a drinking fountain and Prof. E. J. Hentemer installed it promptly on the grounds. All the people, and especially the children, who attended chaletauqua enjoyed the good, cool drinks it afforded. Whether they spoke it or not, they felt gratitude both to the giver of the water and the giver of the fountain. I sometimes think that if we only expressed our thanks often for the blessings we have, more would be given to us.

They would realize the duty of doing something worth while. They would see opportunities to work all around them. Not only would they be happier, but the community would also be benefited.

I need not tell you all this. You know that such conditions exist. Why not set about it to wipe the canvas clean and then paint a picture of different pictures.

Again, the day is hot and sultry. Again the boys are lounging about the streets or are listlessly worrying through a game of pool. All at once a man, looking as if he had just stepped out of a band-box, walks rapidly towards the group calling out as he approaches, "Say, boys, I've been up to the new swimming pool ever since noon. You know it just opened yesterday. It's great. Come on, let's all go and have a swim." The listeners pump up with a new life and energy in spite of themselves. As they follow the leader up the street they forget all about its being hot, for he tells them that it is just what they need. They did in the afternoon. When they reach the door and the cooling breeze from the fresh water blows full in their faces, they almost tear off their sticky clothes in their eagerness to get into the water. Garbed in their neat bathing suits, furnished at the pool, they plunge into the sparkling water, and are supremely happy.

On Saturday afternoons the tired mother may take her children to the pool and while they play in the clean, cool water she can relax in a big, deep, hollow chair and read her favorite magazine. Meanwhile she can hear her children laughing and playing in wholesome fun. And if the child is happy, the mother is happy, and nine times out of ten if the mother and children are happy the father is also happy.

Now I am going to ask our ministers to make a sacrifice: We all know that their christian work in which they are engaged is very dear to their hearts. If I have been properly informed they have made arrangements and have raised some money for evangelistic meetings this fall. Now if they would only use as much influence and exert as much energy for a swimming pool and reading room for our boys and our girls for all the citizens of Wayne county they would do more to gain the love of their people and the whole community than any one thing they could do.

Sincerely,
Wayne would be a much more pleasant place, in which to live, with this improvement. And now please everyone help me to accomplish this work this summer—I mean now.

Mrs. Henry Ley.

In one place Bryan declared that only in the past few years has this country had any piece tractors worthy of the name and said "I prophesy that one thousand years from now the names of Woodrow Wilson and myself will be famous because of their work in the world." He paused for applause, but the silence was complete—it was very, very still.

CROSSLAND WEDDING.

Lincoln Star, July 16: One of the brilliant affairs of the summer season was the marriage, Tuesday evening of Miss Mildred Claffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Claffin to Weldon Frank Crossland. From the staircase in the hall to a bank of palms in the living room, an aisle had been formed by two long baskets of pink gladioli, tulips and snaplex. Roses and baby breath, combined, were used in profusion and it was before an improvised altar of palms, ferns and Dresden baskets of pink roses that the bridal party was grouped.

Before the hour chosen, Miss Eva Embree played two Nevin selections, "The Gondolier's Song" and "The Venetian Love Song." Miss Eula Marshall sang, "The Life Rose" and the Minuet in E Minor by Grieg and announced the entrance of the bridal party.

The four flower girls, Misses Eula Marshall, Joy Mills of Gordon, Helen Gruver and Vera Griswold of Gordon, entered first. Miss Eula shall wear a light blue satin gown, with a bodice of silver lace. Miss Mills was garbed in white net with pink accessories. Miss Gruver's frock was of American beauty means, and Miss Griswold wore a dress of green georgette crepe. The flower girls wore corsage bouquets of white sweet peas and baby breath. They were followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Joy Schreckengast and Miss Edna Burge, who entered together. Miss Schreckengast wore a frock of old rose, soiree silk, with silver lace on the bodice and sleeves and Miss Riley's gown was of apricot georgette crepe, with a Graver of Omaha and Mrs. Jessie Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Crossland left for the lakes of Minnesota where they will spend their honeymoon. Mrs. Crossland traveled in a suit of tan cloth, braided, and a white hat.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Crossland were graduated from the Nebraska Wesleyan university in 1913. The following October, Mr. Crossland went as a Rhodes scholar from Nebraska to Oxford university in England. He received his bachelor's degree there in June. Many expensive gifts were received from Mr. Crossland's friends abroad. Prince Saroskain, of India, who was a classmate of the groom at Oxford, sent the bride a very lovely coat, heavily embroidered in gold. She received a lace scarf from Egypt and one of the most unique was an engraved tablet from a troop of wounded soldiers to whom Mr. Crossland, during his association with the Red Cross society had sent a book of American pictures.

those which weathered the storm, but to the satisfaction of all who participated in them either as advertisers or readers.

The newspapers are simply responding to conditions with which the public has very much to do, and in the absence of which no business can have marked prosperity.

The time has long passed when the party organ can hope to prosper if it cannot show a quality superior to its rival of opposite or no politics. And the personal organ, formerly so common for the purpose of grinding axes or expiating grievances, has no show at all.

Consolidations and other changes in newspapers are made in response to a very real state of affairs and the wise way publishers are engaged in reading this sign and putting the necessary conclusions into practice at the present time is inviting marked commendation.

REVERSING EMERSON'S RULE

Sioux City Journal: Reversing Emerson's rule, which blesses the man who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before, there is an increasing faith among those who make the newspapers that twice blessed is the man who converts two struggling newspapers into one flourishing and prosperous enterprise.

This tendency is not a respecter of either persons or geography. The metropolitan press has had to yield to it, but in the lesser fields it is even more marked. There are a score of towns in Iowa in which a few years ago two, three or four newspapers battled for a precarious existence where the situation has been cleared not only to the vast improvement of

Methodist Church.

(Rev. A. S. Buell, Pastor.)
 "Greater than a king" will be the subject for next Sunday morning's sermon. We will begin using the court house lawn for evening services this Sunday evening. There are some extra good reasons for the union services this summer. The tabernacle meetings are to be held in September and there is much to do in getting things in shape for the meetings. The sermon will be at 7 o'clock, and immediately after the sermon the entire committee will meet to plan the summer pre-tabernacle program. We expect that every member of every committee will be there Sunday evening at that meeting. It is hoped that there will be a full program of Sunday afternoon meetings for the rural school hours in the country. The four pastors have all offered themselves for this work, and it is expected that a good delegation of laymen will cooperate with the pastors in these afternoon meetings. If any country church or any school house community want a Sunday afternoon service and will telephone their fact to A. S. Buell, or any of the other pastors in Wayne arrangements will be made for two or more preachers and probably a car load or more of the laymen will go out and share in such a meeting. Our slogan is "Wayne County for God." We are entering the bonds of Christian fellowship for the spread of righteousness and happiness throughout the entire Wayne territory. Already the men are at work on the tabernacle building, and it is expected that everything will be in shape for the opening date on the tenth of September.

Among the Producers of Wayne County....

By WARD RANDOLF Staff Representative of the Herald

J. H. Mitchell.

Although J. H. Mitchell has been in the county since 1780 it was only five years ago that he bought the eighty-seven miles east and two miles south of Wayne. His practice is intensive farming, having this year, twenty-five acres of corn, thirty-two acres of oats, a small patch of oats. As to live stock Mr. Mitchell reports twelve old hogs and sixty spring pigs. A total of over fifty hogs were finished for market within the last year. There are twenty-six cattle, including a herd of five milk cows. Mrs. Mitchell realizes a good profit on the butter sold. She also secures a good income from her flock of Rhode Island Red chickens of which she now has a total of over 200.

Rudolph Long.

Although Rudolph Long came to this county in 1881, thirty-five years ago, he did not take possession of his present farm until twenty years ago. This place, eight miles east and four miles south of Wayne, covers a total acreage of 200 acres. Of this amount, eighty acres are in corn, and half that number are in oats. Then, Mr. Long has eighteen acres of alfalfa and a big stretch of hayland and pasture. The buildings are good and are adaptable to stock raising on a conservative scale. At present Mr. Long has more than 100 hogs, seventy of which are this spring's stock. One car each of cattle and hogs were marketed last season. Thirty head of cattle are now in the yards. In addition to the stock cattle there are six head of milk cows, that produce high-testing cream. Mrs. Long is very successful with poultry, and now has more than 400 chicks rapidly developing into fries.

Herman Long.

It was in 1890 that Herman Long first came to Wayne county and just ten years later he moved upon the place he is now occupying. It is a handy quarter section, lying eight and one-half miles east and six miles south of town. Many are the clients that have taken place on this farm and all through the county since Mr. Long took possession twenty and additional hay land. Mr. Hill is fortunate in obtaining a place that is equipped with good buildings for stock. He now has fifteen head of old hogs and eighty-five head of spring pigs that are making rapid growth. During last February one car of hogs was sold and three cars of cattle. This left him with a total of sixty cattle of all ages in the yards and on grass. Five good-type milch cows are a source of steady revenue on this farm, the cream being sold for cash each week. This is another example of a farm where the two lines, grain farming and stock raising, are carried on side by side with profit.

C. F. Sandahl.

The quarter section situated five miles east and one-half mile south of Wayne, is owned by Ed Sandahl, Sr., and occupied by his son, C. F. Sandahl, who is a progressive and ambitious young farmer. C. F. Sandahl was born on the place, and has been in charge six years. He is very much interested in "pure-bred

PARADISE VALLEY.

(Baby.)
 This weather is simply outrageous. Though some people say it is great; The heat I am sure is contagious, It "spreads" so all over the state.
 My features with tedium are scented, As richly becometh a man; I try to be calm and contented And cool, but be darned if I can.
 Take courage, ye sons of the prairie; This shall not be ever your lot, Although for a time it is very Unpleasantly sultry and hot.
 Some day over hill-top and level At corn-shucking time in the fall, The north wind will blow like the mischief.
 Or Hicks is no prophet at all.
 Some day will the storms of the season Fall heavy on stable and fold, And then with more fervor than reason We'll grumble because it is cold.

P. M. Hill.

A splendid 480-acre farm, located nine miles east and ten miles south of Wayne, has for twenty years been the property of M. A. Nye and is at present leased by P. M. Hill. In crops Mr. Hill has this year the following: One hundred and sixty acres of corn, forty-five acres of oats, thirty acres of wheat, fifty acres of barley, leaving quite an acreage which is devoted to pasture

CHURCH CALENDAR.

The German Evangelical Lutheran Church.

(Rev. R. Moehring, Pastor.)
 Next Sunday there will be no Sunday school nor preaching at this church. A mission feast will be held at Winside in the grove on Fred Thies' farm. All members of the Wayne congregation are invited to attend.

A BASKET DINNER.

There will be a basket dinner at the Baptist church next Sunday morning, but not the genuine article. There will be no baskets filled with fried chicken, frosted cake and cherry pie, but in their stead will be baskets filled with bread and fishes and they will be passed to the multitude sitting on the grass covered shores of Enclave. Mr. Gaxton will be in the pulpit and will tell you what was in the baskets—how much was in the baskets and what was left when all had eaten. You will enjoy this service whether you stay awake or go to sleep. Good music is also part of the program.

St. Paul's English Lutheran Church.

(Rev. J. H. Fetterolf, Pastor.)
 Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.
 At 11 a. m. there will be a short sermon by the pastor, after which the congregation will remain to take final action relative to the excavation of basement under the church. This will probably be the last chance for the members to voice their sentiments on this much talked of project. It is therefore very important that every member be present. Do not stay away because you expect to be detained long after the noon hour. We will see to it that you go away as early as from any regular service.
 In the evening the congregation will join the other churches in the union services held on the court house lawn.
 At their last meeting the church officers voted to give the pastor a vacation during the month of August. Consequently there will be no preaching in the church, either morning or evening during the next month, but the Sunday school and Luther League will meet as usual.

STOCKDALE ON TOWN LIFE

the Hussars Furnish Final Musical Attraction—Assured for Next Year.

Although the people were disappointed that the Oxford did not come on Wednesday, their appreciation of their work on Thursday all the keener. In the afternoon, a miscellaneous concert was given by the members of this company as part of the first order, effecting notable productions noteworthy because of their harmony and finish.

Mrs. Lenora Lake who was invited to give a lecture on Thursday afternoon was unable to do so because of illness in her family, but her place was ably filled by Weldon Crossland, retired school teacher at Oxford, England. Mr. Crossland talked on the terrible conflict existing in Europe, a conflict he believes, due to racial hatreds and desire on the part of some of our territory. He explained the life in the trenches and told how the trenches were built and fortified. He also spoke on the terrible conditions of the front lines and the death rate and this was well appreciated. In emphasis to the power of the machine, he told of the machine gun which he had seen in the hands of the German soldiers.

Wayne called. He thinks that it is no present prospect of the end of the war, and that there will be no one on the side makes a great gain over the other. He said it was talked in England that Russia was only a few weeks from the end of the war. He said that there was a rumor in the field was a rumor of this speaker warned this country against unpreparedness, nothing of the kind of any to be done. He said that the people of this country should be interested in what he said was very much appreciated.

In the evening the Oxford had full swing. Following a cycle of "The Merry Widow" and "The Perfect Day" was sung with rare singing, the accompaniment of the company offered selections from McDowell and Liszt. The crispness of his playing was much appreciated.

An adaptation of Sullivan's opera "Mikado" was the climax of the evening's entertainment. The richness of their original costumes, the singularity of the singing and the genuineness of the parts made it a far the most interesting musical production of the entire course. Nanki-Poo, the Mikado's son, in disguise to escape punishment for not marrying the lovely Katisha, enters to hear from Pochiki's lips that Yum Yum has left town for the night. Yum Yum is married last very day to Koko, the Lord High Executioner. But Koko's marriage arrangements are interrupted by a message from the Mikado, who proclaims that unless some one is beheaded within a month, Koko will be degraded. Nanki-Poo, who is to be beheaded, is the only one who is allowed to marry Yum Yum and live with her a month. When it is discovered that Yum Yum must be married alive with him, Nanki-Poo threatens suicide, and Koko fears to lose in time to explain the situation and Koko is punished for his deceit, by being compelled to marry Katisha.

The song, "A Wandering Minstrel" was interpreted exceptionally well by the "Flowers that Bloom in the Spring" trio. They received so much applause that the singers were constrained to repeat the number three times. The Oxford are a highly talented company of musicians and they are sure that it could not have heard them in the four programs as scheduled.

Stockdale Speaks. After a brief recital of readings and music on Friday instruments in the Diaries, on Friday afternoon, Frank Stockdale, secretary and financial officer of the Associated Farmers' club of the world, was introduced. His talk, although of a general nature, contained ideas by which any one might profit. He said that the death of Dan Hatch had caused such a volume of comment simply because during his life he had done something worth while. He urged that we should not be content with "good" and "better" but should aim at something of genuine value.

And by Wayne, I mean," said Mr. Stockdale, "all that territory which is commercial, its educational and religious influence reaches far and wide to all other towns in a state of isolation. Ten thousand towns in our country are eligible back-roads to say nothing of those that are standing still or only moving forward at a snail's pace. How serious this is, is seen by the fact that the Mikado, in whom he says the vitality of our country depends not on the growth of Chicago or New York, but on the brains, the enterprise and the energies of the small community, and if we are to be a great local community, we must be a great town."

Mr. Stockdale considers three things necessary for progress in any town: transportation, "the arms of a town without which it cannot feed itself," and "the strength of a town which determines the direction it will take and sees that it keeps on keeping on; publicity, which builds up a town and encourages people to pool their money at home rather than in Chicago and abroad. A man who made his fortune in a local community and then went elsewhere to spend it has been condemned in this way: "There never was a stater big enough to grow a hole big enough to make a poor big enough to hit a foot large enough to know that man may be degraded. Mr. Stockdale said: "It is the Rip-Van-Winkle sleep into which towns fall, that causes their decline. I call it smugosity, a combination of ignorance, superstition and self-satisfaction, and the most harmful of all in its position. It brings to the town is just a big family. They why can't it be a peaceful family and what's more important, an aggressive family? Do you realize that thirty cents of every dollar you spend goes to the outside centers for the public improvements and the educational, the cultural life of the community? This thirty cents is the cost of distribution, paid out for rent, salary, etc. and goes directly back through the public channels."

Mr. Stockdale commended the Public Service club and pleaded that it be made an organizer of organizations so that all the interests of Wayne might be fed into the hub of community progress. He reminded the audience that even if all spokes of the wheel were made even, it wouldn't roll up-hill itself but there would need to be a shoulder at the wheel continuously. Otherwise it would become a rear of "No Good" whose history is chronicled herewith.

You may have heard of the town of No Good. On the banks of the river Slow. When it rains, the Walk-while river flows.

How fair. And some time or other scents the air. And the soft Gossams grow. It lies in the valley of What's-the-what.

In the province of Let-her-sit-ty. It's the home of the reckless-I-don't-care. And Give-it-up aside. The town is as old as the human race. And grows with the flight of years.

It is wrapped in the fog of idlers' dreams. Its streets are paved with discarded schemes. And are sprinkled with useless tears. The future Wayne is in your hands. You are choosing every day between a town of No Good and the town that Wayne can be. And the real difference is exactly thirty cents.

The Dietries. Friday evening the Dietries first staged an interesting program of music and song. Besides the witty remarks and lively music, Mrs. Dietrie then showed her versatility by whistling, singing and reading selections. The program closed with novelty music on the glockenspiel, xylophone, and organ.

Saturday's Attractions. On Saturday afternoon the White Hussars, a group of nine versatile musicians, made their first appearance on the platform. Besides ensemble numbers they offered solos on several of the instruments used. After the prelude of a half hour, "Minnies Mac-Towles" presented the play "Within the Law," which attracted such wide attention. This tells the story of a shop girl, who when accused by her employer of stealing silks and sent by him to jail, through the aid of men of the red light district she finds a life just within the law and finally manages to get her employer's attention. Intimated with her. After they are married, she invites the father to their apartment and reveals to him, whom his son has married. Complications follow because of the attempted theft of some articles of tapestries, but in the end the criminal is punished, and the two are left to work out their problems together.

In the evening the White Hussars gave their best. Their program ranged from the ultra-classical to the purely non-sensical, from selections from William Tell to a realistic representation of an old-fashioned box social with the subsequent dance. The latter part of the program was given in the costume from which the band have taken their name. The men, arrayed in glistening white Hussar uniforms, trimmed with gold braid and buttons, with small turban hats ornamented with a feather. In the front, carried the audience into another land. In keeping with their costumes most of the selections of this part of the program were of a military tone.

The Last Day. Again on Sunday the White Hussars were on hand to furnish the music. The solo, "My Task," was especially appreciated, as was also the selection on the piccolo. The big attraction of the afternoon was the lecture by Dr. Patterson, or Catch-Me-Pal Patterson, as he is better known. His talk, which embodied the history of the Catch-Me-Pal movement since its foundation, was most interesting. He struck a cord in the liquor traffic which he characterized as the "snakeiest snake" that infests the world today.

Dr. Patterson told how after seventeen years of ineffective preaching in his pastorate, he took the cue from a Catholic priest who told him: "The secret of my success along temperance lines lies in the fact that my people think I'm in earnest about it. First, my determination to do something to wipe out the curse that was damning his people, and realizing that alone his drunken parishioner would fall but in the midst of his brothers he would stand, he then set an example of the strict and persisting himself to do the things at the same time under the condition that each one was to bring in a pair of the old snake. Although in two weeks of the work in the town had sworn with clenched hands and in stentorian tones, "We will see this thing through."

Thus by sheer force of public opinion men were shamed out of the drink and the liquor were paid. The women of the town began to look happy. In short, the tone of the community was entirely changed.

"All you," declared the speaker, "there was some sensation of my church when I caught on foot a returned drunkard to take up the collection. It would be a blessing if we had more of such sensations in our churches today. For many of them are getting down to business responsibility to preserve themselves. We must get some of the ecclesiastical starch out of our collars both in the pulpit and in the pews. We must uproot a lot of this chrysomelid, the turned-up nose, this curled-up lip and start in their place a wave of shakmy-pewism. We must cultivate the spirit of individual responsibility for our brother. Thus we will become moral and spiritual 'Pick-me-ups'."

After commenting on the miracle of the 4,000 miles of international peace between Canada and the United States, he stated that though we are not rivals in militarism, we are rivals in social reform. Canada is all dry except Quebec and British Columbia. This is the big opportunity for the United States to arise in her manhood and become the purest nation in the world, and thus make ready to help the other nations.

Dr. Patterson closed with a graphic recital of the story of the good Samaritan, and urged each person within sound of his voice "to go and do likewise." It is interesting to know that Dr. Patterson was reared less than two miles from the farmhouse of the Corkeys in Ireland. He was personally acquainted with the late Dr. Alexander Corkey, who ministered in Wayne for several years. Sunday morning Dr. Patterson occupied the night, formerly filled by Dr. Corkey to whose life of unselfish service he paid special tribute.

BUSINESS MEN HEAR STOCKDALE AT LUNCH

The Gem Cafe was a source of attraction to business men Friday noon when they gathered there for lunch in honor of Frank Stockdale, "The Future of the Future." Following the lunch, Mr. Dr. Gaton, secretary of the Public Service club, introduced Mr. Stockdale as a "farm demonstrator" for merchants. Mr. Stockdale is an expert in the line of promoting community interest and

ing. He said the regular retailer spent six per cent of one per cent of his earnings in advertising, and that half of the amount was wasted. The department store spends between three and four per cent for advertising, whereas the mail order house spends seven per cent. Good advertising means good merchants.

Due to lack of progressive methods, Mr. Stockdale said some merchants secured only fair wages for themselves. The successful merchant so controls business that he knows exactly where profits lie. The very life of goods on the shelf should be six months and twenty-six days. Fifty-nine stores in four Nebraska towns having stock valued at $2,900,000, sold a total of 1,750,000 worth of goods in one year.

It is hoped to have paving well along in Wayne's business district by this time next year.

Certainty of an abundant harvest means increased plenty and prosperity in Wayne county.

With harvest fields all over the middle west offering big wages for helpers, there is no excuse for healthy and able-bodied men to be out of employment.

The chautauqua last week and the existence of this week have diverted a good deal of attention from routine. It is expected affairs will again become normal next week.

Most members of the late progressive party are returning to the republican fold. Those who are not doing so, were former democrats, and will naturally drift back to the latter.

Submarine commercial traffic between Germany and the United States, which succeeded by experiment last week, will prove a welcome relief to both countries in supplying things each needs.

In the absence of paving, it would seem mightily desirable to arrange for sprinkling the business district Sunday the same as other days of the week. Dirt is swept into business houses, besides the discomfort to those who visit the business section.

The chautauqua, just closed, was generally satisfactory, and the advance guarantee of season tickets means well for next year. The town assembly can be made a greater success by active and intelligent co-operation on the part of the people of the town and surrounding country. An effort should be made to secure the active interest of more supporters in this territory.

A number of years ago we often heard it remarked that a republic was an experiment and not a certain success. But if any doubt lingered up to the outbreak of the wholesale war in Europe, it must have been effectually dispelled since then. Certainly government by hereditary rulers is not a success, and never has been, as witness the state of unexampled barbarity into which each of several crowned heads has led his country.

The increased cost of paper is no joke. The Herald's contract for paper, fixing the cost at $35 a ton, expired in June. The ton in use now cost $85, and since the present supply was brought the price has gone up to $100 a ton, nearly double the old contract price. It takes a ton of print paper a month to supply the Herald's mailing list. Thus, one may appreciate the extra cost of the single item of print paper to this plant.

The savage methods employed in the European war violate every principle of Christian civilization. Brutality and suffering are visited on women and children and other innocent non-combatants. It would seem wars in the so-called dark ages could not have been more merciless. Human impulses have been dulled. The example and precepts of the Nazarene, accepted and preached in behalf of civilization for 2,000 years, seem to have been flung aside in a mad riot of hate and revenge. And there is no apparent cause.

Closer co-operation between the city and State Normal along all lines would be beneficial to both. The enterprises of each should be warmly supported. When an opportunity is presented to boost or strengthen an undertaking of either, encouragement and patronage should not be bestowed complainingly. The optimists and far-seeing representatives of each, appreciative of the mutual value of reciprocal relations, should see that the boosting spirit is kept up and that worthy efforts, originating at the State Normal or down town, are properly sustained and rewarded.

THE FIELD OF BUSINESS.

St. Louis City Journal: A distinct tightening of the money market and a busy bear movement in industrial stocks—so-called war-stocks bearing the brunt of the attack—were the features of the week in financial circles. Industrially production continued to resist the regular midsummer tendency to curtail output, and several important new orders and extensions were announced. The price of wheat took a sharp upward response to continued rumors of rust damage in the northwest.

The hardening of money rates, accounted for in the main by local conditions, is part of a world-wide tendency. The Bank of England raised its discount rate from 5 to 6 per cent, as an immediate consequence of a recent marked contraction in its gold holdings. The tightening of this side on the Atlantic and the announcement of the contemplation of another large American loan to France may have helped to cause raise. It is the first fluctuation in the Bank of England rate since August, 1914, when the rate was arbitrarily reduced from 10 to 5 per cent at the opening of the war.

The existence of a former market in New York was disclosed on Monday when call money jumped to 6 per cent following a drop in the surplus reserve of the New York banks to $5,000,000, the lowest figure for many months. The drop was readily traceable to large withdrawals of cash through dividend and interest disbursements and income tax payments in connection with the opening of the new quarter. New demands for commercial uses and crop money helped to diminish the supply of idle cash. It is agreed by all authorities that ample funds are in sight for all legitimate needs, including some important foreign and corporation financing, and that there is no chance of anything resembling a money stringency.

A trend toward liquidation of industrial stock has been in evidence for several weeks. It seemingly reached a climax last week when substantial declines were recorded all along the line. The bear drive has been directed principally at "bear bridges" and has been supported by reports of orders canceled and dwindling profits. The most influential factor in the slump is a popular impression that the possibility of profit in the munitions trade was overestimated in the first boom and that an elimination of inflation is now necessary. Aside from munitions stocks, industrial alcohol was the chief sufferer by the week's operations.

A 32-point drop was scored for this stock in one day. During the midst of the heavy bombardment of Bethlehem Steel, the favorite of all the war brides, Bethlehem, which is known to have been doing an enormously profitable business announced that it would spend $70,000,000 in addition to the $40,000,000 previously appropriated for extensions and improvements of its various plants. An increase in the Willys-Overland dividend from 6 to 12 per cent and the declaration of a 10 per cent stock dividend by that concern helped to repel the bear drive.

A $100,000,000 loan to the French government is to be made by a new corporation of American bankers headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. The concern is to be capitalized at $100,000,000 and is to be called the American Securities company. It will make the loan to Paris, taking as security an ample block of neutral European government bonds. The loan is to be at 5 per cent and is to run for from three to five years. The French notes will not be offered in the American market. Instead the securities company will issue its own debentures, which will be an American security.

Commercial reports record no let-up in industrial or commercial activity, though there is conservatism in ordering, and strikes are interfering with the output in some industries.

COUNTY BOARD. Board met as per adjournment. All members present. The board having carefully examined the books and vouchers of Lambert W. Roe, county treasurer, showing collections and disbursements from January 1, 1916, to July 1, 1916, and the board being fully advised in the premises finds that he collected as follows:

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

THE AUTO

The auto fills a long-felt want for it enables us to jump far from the city streets and we can breathe the country air, and hear the tolling farm bells, and watch him busting his bows. Before the auto made its bow, we seldom looked upon a cow, or saw a setting hen; and all we knew of habits, brooks and spring beds, we learned from books, written by some weary pen. The country seemed so far away! And when we toiled, the long, sad day, we could not journey there; we stilled in our dismal rooms, amid the city smells and fumes, and longed for country air. The auto's brought the country near; and from our foreheads disappear the furrow and the frown; and we can take our willing wits; and put some sunshine in our lives, by joggling out of town. Oh, we can seek the rural valleys, and see the cattle wag their tails, and hear the roosters crow; and we can drink the country breeze, and win our car around the trees, and chorle us to go. The sunset, when the sun men; it's making old gent's young again, it keeps us all entranced; it makes each day a holiday, it drives the cares of life away—when it is sandy used.

AMERICANISM

If I elect to see a piece of Madagascar, Greenland, Greece, or any other clime, I'd like to feel that Uncle Sam will guard me well through it. I am, without a waste of time, I'd like to feel as if I were in Rome, as I am feeling here at home, with cops on every hand; I'd like to see insulators wince, when I, with hauteur of a prince, proclaim my native land. But when I traveled in California, I happened to stop at my way, and pulled my nose and ears; and when I cried, "Unhand me, skates!" I'm from the great United States. They treated me with jeers. They robbed me of my money. They stole my dollar watch, and every coin, they stole my dachshund pup, and I stood by and saw them swipe my safety razor and my pipe, and my new tin drinking cup. I notified my government and asked that bar-tendish be sent, as fast as they could track it, to shoot that country full of holes, and prod the thieves with ten-foot poles, and get my chattels back. Uncle Sam just wrote some notes, instead of going after goats, and breaking some ones' heads, or to say Americanism, and it is the best of plans to stick around at home.

GOING BACK HOME

There's nothing sadder than returning, responsive to a hearty yearning, to a country we need to know, but lately to such scenes I wandered, and with an aching heart, I pondered o'er things of long ago. I used to know a girl named Drove, who was so smooth she drove me along and across the water, and always in my mental vision, an angel, beautiful, elysian, and bright with youth she seemed. And in my recent tour I found her with seven husky sons around her, and she was bent on gray, and worn, and cooking beans and fish and was washing everlasting dishes, and helping men pitch hay. And all the lads who with me gambled, and through the moon patches rambled, on bygone starry nights, were staid from all their toil and straining, and hobble-

Shoe Repairing

C. Peterson who moved his modern shoe repairing business to Sioux City, has arranged to handle at that point all jobs sent to him from Wayne. Shoes for repair may be left at the Randall grocery and will be promptly shipped to Mr. Peterson's Modern Shoe Repairing Shop, 404 Fifth street, and returned to Wayne the same day. People wanting shoes repaired promptly and satisfactorily should leave them at Randall's.

up and down complaining of hick and chigger bites. The town itself was there, unchanging, the river down its course was ranging; by hoary elm and pine; the old stone mill still rear its steeple, and in its shadow were planted people who once were chuns of mine.

SUNDAY

I'm always glad when Sunday comes, and our old town no longer with its hills and valleys, and its mart, the bargaining that breaks my heart. On Sunday morning I can meet my friends and neighbors on the street, and they won't try to sell me prunes, or real estate or pants. I can buy the best of bread upstairs to have my life insured; no auto salesman on my track; I freely walk to church and back; I hear the pastor's helpful views, in my new suit and polished shoes, the worshippers are left behind for one brief day, the heavenly grind, and when the parson's discourse ends, I mingle freely with my friends, and no one tries to sell me socks or wiskers dye, or patent locks. No salesman interrupts the hymn. I walk with my duplex garden hick, and walk back home in cheerful mood, my spirit full of gratitude that there's one day in every week when wheels of commerce cease to creak. I do not hide behind a tree when some investment man tries to sell me a hodge, or spurn the agent for a patent chum.

LEAP YEAR

"Oh, come with me and be my bride," the spinner whispered, soft and low. "We do not have the giddy girls, with curly hair and sunny curls, whose only asset is their looks, while I am learned, and life and books? Oh, I can cook, and I can sew, so come with me and be my beau." What thought in years ago, when I was a boy, the foolishness of youth is gone; experience has taught me much, with useful arts I am in touch, and I can make of home a nest where weary man might gladly rest; and I can ornament, you believe, the parlor—my kitchen, and I, not have to knead the dough, so come with me and be my beau. I play the harp and violin, I carve on wood—and hammer-iron, and I can talk of books and art; I've always been considered smart; with my own hands I make the garments, and I, the smoothest thing in town; there's very little I don't know; then come with me and be my beau!" The invitation was in vain, for no young man is safe and sane. He rounded up a girl, wed who could not back a loaf of bread, or see or cook or do a thing but look like flowers that bloom in spring.

JAMES J. HILL

Jim Hill is going to his repose, out there the weeping willow grows. He built his empire, the West through all his years he strove and fought; by night he planned by day he wrought. Men used to say, "Where'er he goes, he makes things blossom as the rose; a state he built for Mexico he Pelegrad." One hour of Hill is better far than fifty thousand years of war. This mighty captain lies at rest, his monument the whole Northwest.

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES

From Wayne Herald, July 21, 1897.
Rev. William Gors and family have moved into the new parsonage.
A. C. Crockett has bought a piece of land near the creamery for a brick yard.
E. L. Jones has built a new house on his farm, five miles northwest of town.

The Wayne Driving Park association has joined the National Trotting association.
T. S. Goss sold two car loads of steers on which he realized 26 cents a bushel for his corn.
Ed. Liljeborg has rented the H. W. Hamman building and has occupied it with his stock of boots and shoes—Grandma's and—Grandpa's. White celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the home of their son James White, but caused three deaths in the vicinity of Carroll.

C. J. Whitney and Miss Mary Penfield were married on July 18, 1897.
Henry Miller who lived south of LaPorte died from the effects of rheumatism.
A republican club with 150 members has been formed with N. Grimsley as president.
J. G. Morrison drove with a team from Lincoln to look after his land interests in Wayne county.
Market for July 21, 1897: Corn, 29 cents; wheat, 51 cents; oats, 21 cents; flax, 84 cents; hogs, $4.75.
J. O. Milligan has erected a large building near the elevator for a flour, exchange and grain storage house.
From Ponca Journal, July 20, 1892:
A wonderfully fine-voiced and plain-spoken jack, has for several days and nights elucidated his doctrines in a continuous, long drawn out stream of head-splitting eloquence from a stable in the central part of town.
A newspaper will soon be started at Wakefield by Mr. Boyd Leedom who has had an experience of several years in the business in Kansas.
Wakefield is a first rate place for a newspaper, and we do not doubt but Mr. Leedom will furnish an excellent paper, one well worthy of patronage and support. We wish him the best of luck in the enterprise.
A specimen of timothy, said to have been grown on Witham's sand hill, near Martinsburg, was handed us this week. It measured four feet two inches in height, and was a fine where land sells at 100 to 200 dollars per acre, timothy grass four feet two inches high would be considered immense. But here, where land ranges from $5 to 100 per acre, we are satisfied with any such small grass as this. A pure and unadulterated satisfaction happens to us only when the grass is from six to ten feet high. The fact is, one acre of our ten dollar land has double the actual value in it of the best high priced lands of the east.

Andrew Johnson Dies.
Andrew Johnson, who for the past few years had been gradually passing away at the home of his daughter, died at 11 o'clock Friday morning at the age of 84. The deceased was one of the oldest settlers in this vicinity. He was about seventy-three years old at the time of his death. In early days he resided on the home farm just one mile west of town, making his home there until a few years ago when he retired from active work and moved to Wakefield. After Mrs. Johnson's death, she was buried in the home place. The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. J. T. Kraft officiating. Interment was made in the local cemetery. The one daughter, Mrs. M. J. Smith, is the only surviving child.

Chautauqua Pleases.
Much favorable comment has been made in regard to the Wakefield chautauqua which closed Saturday evening. It was considered by many the strongest program ever offered by the bureau. Each of the four lectures was instructive and well as entertaining. It was a remarkably well balanced course, there being just enough music, wit, etc., interspersed with the more serious features of the program to render it entirely enjoyable. The management states that after all expenses have been paid there will be quite a little balance left in the treasury. The directors were pleased with splendid spirit on the part of the patrons this year and they hope to offer even a better course next season.

A Fire Scare.
Wakefield people had quite a scare Monday afternoon when the fire alarm was turned in with the fire department. The Charles Henry home was on fire. It seems that the maid had lighted the oil stove to heat some irons, and then had gone up stairs to do some work while they were heating. When she returned to the kitchen the Charles Henry room seemed ablaze. Neighbors rushed in and carried out the stove so that before the fire department reached the place, all the danger was over.

Auto Accident.
Saturday evening as Lee Terwilliger and Neil McCorkindale were driving along the road about three miles east of town, they attempted to turn quickly to the side of the road to escape running into an approaching team and as a result, the car turned completely over. Both of the men were thrown out, but fortunately neither of them was injured seriously. They sustained a few severe bruises.

Bakery Changes Hands.
Charles E. Smith who had been operating the Wakefield bakery for the last few years, closed up his deal Saturday whereby the equipment and stock became the property of C. E. Ten Eyck, who has for some time been employed at the Wayne Bakery. Mr. Ten Eyck took possession, and his wife arrived in Wakefield Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Smith is as yet undecided as to where he will locate.

Her Atonement

A Story For Memorial Day

By ESTHER VANDEWER

...period of my life. I was then a girl of eighteen, and the war between the States was at its height. I was living in Pennsylvania in my first home. It was a small town, and on a road leading to Gettysburg.

One morning persons began to pass our house, making all the haste they could. Some of them were on foot, some in vehicles of different kinds, and nearly all carried articles of furniture or household utensils. When asked why they were making such a hurry they said that a general assembly of Confederate was advancing to invade the northern states.

We had a family of five children, and what to do. We were all Union sympathers and knew we had nothing to expect from the southerners. But in those days we were not so sure. We were all for the Union, and for the Union we were on. For the fences were all to be kept from pillage and mind what they lost. We decided to stay at home and protect our property as far as we could. We buried the valuable things in a hole, and a little later they were all back and forth over the ground under which it lay so that the recent digging might not be noticed. Father took down his fowl, and the chickens started on northward to the Federals.

When we had hidden everything that was liable we waited. Father and the boys had been held long. They had been in the Union army but had always kept guns in the house for hunting and for the three revolvers. After father's departure the boys had no revolvers, but had been left, and I took it and put it in my pocket—for women had pockets in those days—and those guns were hidden but that I might have occasion to use it.

It seems to me now, an old woman, that I must have been a plucky girl, for I had to walk back and forth with my own gun, and I had to keep my own possession. And I have noticed all through my long life that it is unexpected that happens. Vice versa as the expected does not happen.

Surely this was illustrated in the first hour which came in advance of the storm. A young fellow in gray uniform with a gun on his shoulder rode to the house. I was on the porch. He took off his hat, smiled and said in the most deprecating manner and voice:

"Can you tell me if there is a road leading eastward within a few miles of here?" I felt the danger, but I was certainly nothing to be afraid of in this young fellow, and I bravely answered:

"Yes, it is a Unionist, I suppose?" he said. "I am," was my firm reply. "I would not refuse information to a Confederate."

He looked up the road, hesitated, then spoke again. "I am a Unionist, I suppose?" he said. "I am," was my firm reply. "I would not refuse information to a Confederate."

into my head to do my country a service by... I had a revolver in my pocket and could produce it instantly, while his own pistol was in a holster on his hip. An instant he pointed his revolver at him and ordered him to throw up his hands. Then, possessed himself of the revolver, he turned to me and said: "I am a Unionist, I suppose?"

I noticed that it was difficult for him to keep his hands while he was eating. There was nothing surprising in this. For I have heard that in wartime a man may pass several days without food and water, and still survive. When he had finished his meal I went to the cupboard where father kept his cigars and taking the box I went to my room. He opened his eyes with delight, and taking one bit off the end, and I lit a match and held the flame to the tip of the cigar. I now had no objection and softened my manner to him decidedly. Pointing to a lounge, I invited him to take a nap on it. He protested against the matter, but could not refrain from stretching himself upon it for a few minutes of the cigar. I asked him if he would like to have a cigar. He provided I would awaken him at the end of that time. He positively refused, though he confessed that he had been weary for two days. That he was refusing to sleep he passed into slumber.

THE PIPE ORGANIZATION. In less than two months the long expected cabinet of the Pipe Brotherhood and their party will be in full blast and the party of Wayne county will have an intimation that something important is taking place. The advance work to be done now is along the line of publicity. The committee wants to carry word to every man and woman, every boy and girl within a radius of thirty miles, that a great meeting is being planned and that the Pipe Brothers contingent is one of the greatest attractions in the program work.

It is now proposed to spend the summer month next coming in holding advertising meetings in the surrounding country. The plan is to go to the country school houses on Sunday afternoons with several auto loads of speakers and singers, and organize the farmers and their families so that they will have part in the meeting and feel that it is as much their meeting as anybody else's.

Arrangements will also be made to hold union meetings in Carroll, Winslow, Hoskins, Sholes, Wakefield, Laurel and every other adjacent place and give the people of the place a description of the campaign and invite them to organize to attend. The Wayne ministers will attend these meetings whenever it is agreeable to the church people of the respective locality and present the matter of trips and delegations to Wayne during the meetings.

The names of all ministers residing in Wayne county have been sent to the home of the evangelists in Plymouth, Ind., and from his home he will write every minister and church extending a warm welcome and urging co-operation in the meeting.—Committee.

They clip assiduously, they lay aside newspapers containing articles they wish to keep safe, and they postpone the task of sorting and arranging to the rainy day or the interval of leisure which they find. Presently they are dismayed to find themselves confronted by a pile of ephemeral literature mountain high, wherein it seems hopeless even to glance a treat at the person of meticulous, orderly habits shows his irritating impatience with him day unto day had uttered wisdom, he has tabulated and pigeonholed his stores as they came to his hand. It does not prove that you are literary and learned to make a vast tabular array of news items or to try to make a rule that suggests the visit of a Zeppelin. Those who keep scrapbooks are likely to reckon them among the precious items in their libraries—Philadelphia Ledger.

Marked and the dishes into two classes, those who preserve fugitive clippings and those who don't. Among the former are many who for lack of classification become victims of their own belongings. They clip assiduously, they lay aside newspapers containing articles they wish to keep safe, and they postpone the task of sorting and arranging to the rainy day or the interval of leisure which they find. Presently they are dismayed to find themselves confronted by a pile of ephemeral literature mountain high, wherein it seems hopeless even to glance a treat at the person of meticulous, orderly habits shows his irritating impatience with him day unto day had uttered wisdom, he has tabulated and pigeonholed his stores as they came to his hand. It does not prove that you are literary and learned to make a vast tabular array of news items or to try to make a rule that suggests the visit of a Zeppelin. Those who keep scrapbooks are likely to reckon them among the precious items in their libraries—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE WORD "LOVE"

In the Orient It Means to Like or to Be Used to Express Good Will.

The word "love" has been more highly specialized in the west than in the east. In the proper English use it means only that ardent, unselfish, loving which cannot be created by will and design. In the west the word "love" has been so far removed from its original meaning that it is used to express the least ardent desires, such as the terms "to like," "to have good will toward" and "to be warmly attached to" simply.

Not so in the east. The word "like," meaning "to be favorably inclined toward," is not found either in the Bible or in the Arabic tongue. In the English version of the Bible it is used in two places, but the translation is incorrect. In the twenty-fifth chapter of Deuteronomy and the seventh verse "if the man like not to take his brother's wife" should be rendered "if the man consent not" and in the fourth chapter of Amos, the fifth verse "for this liketh you, O ye children of Israel," is in the original, "For this ye love." O ye children of Israel. In an ancient translation of the Bible the Hebrew verb abeh-to love precedes these quotations.

So to us orientals the only word which can express any cordial intention of approval is "love." One loves his wife and children and loves grapes and figs and meat, if he likes these things. An employer says to an employee, "if you love to work for me according to this agreement you can." It is nothing uncommon for one to have a cordial acquaintance with another, "I must say, abeh (friend), that I love you." I know of no equivalent in the Arabic for the phrase, "I am interested in you." "Love" and "like" are the usual terms by which approval and disapproval, as well as real love and hatred.

From all this it has been seen that when the Great Oriental Teacher said to his countrymen, who considered all men as less than their own as their enemies, "Love your enemies," he meant that they should be ennobled of them, but that they should have good will toward them. We cannot love all our enemies, but we certainly can will to be well disposed even toward those who, we believe, have ill will toward us—Abraham Miller Ribbony in Atlantic Monthly.

Old Seville.

Seville, one of the oldest cities of Spain, was a place of importance under Rome and later was the Moorish capital during the eleventh century. It was the country's chief commercial center when the new world was discovered and rose to great prosperity on profits from the Spanish main.

Ambiguous.

"Alice, if I told you that I loved you dearly, that there was no other girl in all the world for me, would you promise to be mine?"

"Would you mind telling me first whether that is a proposal or a hypothetical question?"—Florida Times-Division.

How Could He?—

CORRESPONDENCE FROM OUTLYING POINTS IN WAYNE COUNTY

WINSIDE.

Miss Margaret Forbes of the Herald staff is editor of this department. Her plan to have three such meetings during the summer months when the regular work of the organization is dispensed with. A pleasant time is anticipated.

Bitten by Dog. While little Florence Shenelberger was playing at the George Baler home east of town last Sunday the dog jumped on her and tore her right cheek with his teeth. It was found necessary to take three stitches in the wound, but it is thought that it will be entirely healed in a few days.

Breaks Her Arm.

While playing Saturday the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hanks fell and dislocated her wrist and broke one of the bones in her right forearm. Dr. B. M. McIntyre was called to give the necessary surgical attention.

Stock Shipments.

Needham Bros. shipped one car of hogs to Omaha Monday and also one car Wednesday; Chris Weidls also shipped a car to the market. The Farmers' Union shipped a car of hogs the latter part of the week.

Miss Abbie Lound was a visitor to town on Sunday. George Farran was in Wayne on business Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Etha Krahn is visiting with her mother, Mrs. Fannie Shaw. Miss Monte Fletcher visited with Willa Nellie several days last week. Miss Nellie Winget returned Saturday afternoon from her visit at Norfolk.
