This is Why the Door Frames are Riveted on the Genuine Round Oak Stoves!

Examine, if you please, every other heating stove available. You will discover that the doorframes to which this man is pointing, are bolted on. These in a few years become loose and your stove leaks air, fails to hold fire overnight, and dissatisfaction always follows.

Not so, however, with the genuine Round Oak stoves. Here you will discover the doorframes are riveted on - gas-tight for life.

Examine the Stove Itself

Do not be satisfied with claims, but carefully inspect the construction of the heater itself.

We invite the opportunity of demonstrating not only this point of marked superiority, but four others which characterize this all-fuel stove. Note that it burns hard coal, soft coal, coke, wood, and coals, and lasts a generation. The reasons why were patented. Let us explain them.

Asbestos Sweats

Sweaty Asbestos Rusts Out Ranges

Asbestos has saved millions of dollars worth of fuel because it holds the heat in a range, but as it cools off, it absorbs moisture from the air and sweats. This sweat goes to the cold side and rusts the copper lining. That's the Copper-Clad Range. That is why goes three times as fast as any other range. No wonder Ranges rust out.

COPPER-CLAD

Asbestos saves too much fuel to be discarded. The sweating cannot be stopped, as the copper lining will keep the sweat from the body of a range and prevent all rust.

Fairbury News: The little city of Wayne, Neb., according to the Wayne Herald, has adopted a slogan that ought to be next to the hearts of the people of that section. It is neither new nor original, but it nevertheless is a good one. They have had a lot of attractive signs painted on which is inscribed the motto: "Buy it in Wayne." We like the idea. That sort of a sign attracts attention to the face of every corner is bound to make him stop and think, and may have a tendency to arouse some latent patriotic spirit. We should like to see such signs on every road leading into Fairbury.

NEARLY A THOUSAND PLUNKS SUBSCRIBED

The Sunday morning meeting at the tabernacle was given over to the collecting of money to meet all the demands of the budget of local expenses as worked out by the finance committee. Rev. Clyde Lee, the local minister, presided from the platform and the help of a corps of tellers the finances of the campaign were quickly settled. The local subscription amounted to one which somewhat over $200 had been received in the regular collections of the first two weeks and the meetings. When it was considered that in only one case did any contribution exceed $10 it is seen that the well to do and responsive and how general was the feeling. It is gratifying to the management to have the running expenses of the campaign covered so early. No further collections will be taken until the closing meeting when a freewill offering will be solicited for the balance of the budget. The members of the company are paid with the proceeds of the two lyceum concerts, one of which was given last Friday evening.

Men's Meeting

In the afternoon a large audience of representative men of the community met at the tabernacle to hear Evangelist Fife on "Cleaning up the Town." Fife warmed up to his subject and told the men their responsibilities straight from the shoulder.

"No town is a clean town that will tolerate profanity, gambling, dancing, drinking or adultery," challenged Rev. Fife. "I am not here to do de-uctive work, but let me tell you this—a saloon is a saloon whether it is on the corner, or in the drug store, in the lodge or at the club, in the ice box or in the cellar, and anyone that sells or gives away liquor in this town, which was voted dry several years ago, is violating a fundamental law in that, he is deying the will of the people."

The evangelist scored the infamous habit of joy riding either in a Packard or in a jenny. In closing he said "Let the clean homes and to rear children in honor and decency it is necessary to have team work not only between the father and mother, but also among the children."

A Record Crowd

In the evening the biggest crowd of the day filled the tabernacle. Promptly at 7:30 the choir went at his post in the choir loft. In addition to the chorus work Fred S. Kuhn played two violin solos and Miss John Voecky sang "O Divine Redeemer" with violin obligato and piano accompaniment by Mr. and Mrs. Kuhn. This number was especially impressive.

"Heaven" was the subject for consideration at the sermon hour. Rev. Fife declared that all people longed for better states and worked with that end in view. The evangelist asserted that heaven was not necessarily far removed from this world as some men seem to think. It might even be located on this earth after it had been purified. "If 'Heaven' were the Evangelist Fife, 'the family record' will be a list of names that will be a place of music and it is high time that some of you people were beginning to plan your success. Again heaven will be a rest from labor and anxiety, and last of all it will be a place of family reunion."

His Wayne friends will be pleased to learn of his advancement.

GEM CAFE HAS ADDED ATTRACTIVE TABLES

This week F. A. Salmon, proprietor of the Gem Cafe, has replaced the old tables with twelve new ones heavily enameled in white. This change does away with the use of table cloths altogether, thus saving the place more sanitary and adds to the inviting appearance of the room.

Giving the devil his dues isn't a good way to invest your money. A man is apt to overestimate the extent of his large circle of friends. The biggest fall holds "everybody says" when he really means one person.

You can run around in a circle, and go a long way without getting anywhere in particular.

A man should use his executive ability to induce his wife to mow the lawn and cut the kindling. After a woman is married, she might as well figure on carrying her own parasol most of the time.

Neighbors may pretend to sympathize with a woman who is a quarrelsome over her husband, but they laugh and make fun of her when they are out of her sight.

BUCK'S HOT BLAST HEATERS

First in Economy, Convenience, Durability and Appearance

They will produce hard coal results with soft coal. They are decided specialties, because they contain "Buck's Patented Hot Blast Ring, which supplies more heated air to the fuel surface than any other. Combustion takes place in a circle, burning from the outer edge to the center, causing the stove to radiate as soon as the fire is started. Contains "Buck's" original cone-shaped, easy cleaning grate. The grate is self-cleaning; it grinds up and drops into pan all foreign matter in soft coal. "Buck's" Hot Blast Heaters contain the best features of a base burner, having highly heated base, and mica illumination.

The argument that prohibition is not advisable because it does not prohibit should have no more force with a thinking man than would a suggestion that any law ought to be repealed on the ground that it could not be fully enforced. If prohibition does no more than curtail liquor consumption, it is eminently worth while.

A speaker before the Norfolk Y. M. C. A. recently said a man should do his best work and get the greatest amount of life after he is 60 years old. This is encouraging to people who have plugged along without putting much into life or doing much out of it, and who have reached the crest of the hill and are tobogganing down the other side.

Anyone who drives will testify that more work should be done on the streets of Wayne. The street running east and west by the State is a great cut in the road and ruts filled. It is also so crooked that in following it successfully one ought to have preliminary training in driving a rickshaw. In different parts of town the streets ought to be put in better condition. Draining after rains would smooth down the bumps in some places.

Intemperate use of gasoline was the cause of what might have been the serious injury of the editor's Ford recently. Too much combustion got under the belt of the Ford at the wrong time, and it leaped ahead with such force that it tried to go back over the top of the hood to open the doors. The car survived without a fresh scratch, determined by close and critical examination. Success is due to the editor's Ford ought to bring a letter of congratulation from Congressman Stephens.

President Wilson justifies the action of congress in establishing an eight-hour day for certain trainmen, and declines the expediency of arbitrary limiting such work to the same employer and employee. If railroad employes can go to congress and demand reduced hours, why not other workers in the same class can repudiate arbitration and force congress to pass a favorable law? Why can't the same class do it? How long before farm laborers will band together and demand a law curtailing their hours of work? Will the boards of arbitration, like courts of justice, are to be cast aside, will not the foundation of America's boasted equal rights be seriously shaken?

The Taft administration was denounced by the democratic platform of 1912 as one charged with "profligate waste of money wrung from the people." Figures have been compiled to show that expenditures under the Taft administration to 1913, totaled $3,800,000,000, whereas the Wilson administration has appropriated thus far a total of $3,400,000,000, leaving a balance of $400,000,000, a total increase so far of $700,000,000. The figures do not include expenditures under the Taft administration. The showing proves that the Taft administration was not so extravagant after all, or that the Wilson administration was not so powerfully economical as his proclivity wind-jamming gave reason to expect.

In view of the religious campaign now going on, we would suggest this for the contemplation of our parishioners: Heaven—spiritual exaltation and satisfaction—may be had here and hereafter, on earth and in eternity, in proportion as one thinks and behaves nobly and unselfishly. We would suggest that we devote time no place, and is evolutionary and progressive. The superior will of the Nativity was made ample for the imperfect thinking of mortals, and the nearer the latter approach the former's standard, the more they get nearer to the heights of jealousy, envy, hate, avarice, selfish and sinful living, and the better are they prepared for the next life. The process of spiritual growth. So, you might as well start now in developing heavenly qualities—start now in initiating the great career of perfect life.

While the Herald does not pose as an exemplar of perfect English it does not believe serious errors of the kind noted in the columns. But in an editorial paragraph last week an incorrectly constructed sentence appeared, having been overlooked by the proofreading. Here is the sentence as it read: "Spasms of fancy led by wild and dangerous extravagance does not assuage the torments and regrets of conscience when obligations cannot be met. Of course 'does' should have read 'do' to agree with 'spasms.' Extravagance," used in the singular, caused the oversight in the hurry of proofreading. To test students in ability to detect the error, copies of the editorial were sent to the classes in English at the high school and State Normal. The experience stimulated spiritless and unenthusiastic students in both institutions, and somewhat compensated for the blunder. A considerable number in each institution pointed out the mistake. Typographical errors are not uncommon, but mistakes in syntax, especially in editorial columns, are almost inexorable.

WILSON'S UNHAPPY PARL

Stoux, Cley City: After reading Mr. Hughes' Dayton speech one suspects that President Wilson must have been a little ashamed of his attempt to draw an analogy between the enactment of a law by congress before making sure of its justification and a refusal by the supreme court to set aside an act of congress before being assured of its unconstitutionality. In his Shadow Lawn speech President Wilson referred to the 80-cent gas case in which the supreme court ruled that the company must put the legal rate in force and come into court later to attempt to draw an analogy between the enactment of a law by congress before making sure of its justification. This precedent he cited as justifying the action of congress, without any preliminary investigation, in forcing the eight-hour basic day upon the railroads. As it happened Mr. Hughes was the wrong man to stir up in this relation. He had had a hand in the procedure preceding the adoption of the 80-cent gas law, and he was thoroughly posted as to the difference between that law and the Adamson act.

The 80-cent gas law was passed after the New York legislature had made an exhaustive investigation into the whole gas situation, including cost of production and actual and prospective profits. When the case was taken into court the state was able to make a strong showing for the presumptive adequacy of the new rate. The supreme court could invalidate the rate only on the ground that it was unconstitutional because confiscatory. The court declined to accept the company's claim that it would be confiscatory as overbalancing the showing made by the state as to its adequacy. It quite properly told the company that the court would stand by the legislature until the company could show in actual practice that the rate was confiscatory.

In the Adamson act congress gave the railway trainmen a $5,000,000 increase in wages without any pretense of preliminary investigation. Congress did not try to find out whether the railroads could afford to pay the higher wages or whether the trainmen were in fact entitled to this raise, as compared with lower-paid employees in other branches of the railroad service. Acting on advice of the president, congress said in effect that the trainmen must have their increase, leaving it to the courts to decide eventually whether or not the increase is justifiable.

In the 80-cent gas case the New York legislature acted judicially and made sure—as the event proved—it was fixing an adequate rate before enacting the law. In adopting the Adamson act congress acted in haste and under duress. If the law is economically sound it is a matter of luck rather than preparedness. The New York gas law stands as a conspicuous example of the regulations affecting public utilities should be made. The Adamson act stands as an even more conspicuous example of how regulations affecting public utilities should not be made.

In effect what President Wilson tried to do was to establish a parallel between investigation before legislation on the one hand and legislation before investigation on the other. Mr. Hughes has demonstrated conclusively that it can't be done.

WILL BE INDEPENDENT.

Lincoln Journal: Progressives like Roosevelt and Pinchot are able to give their whole hearted support to Judge Hughes without harboring their minds over the undoubted fact that their old reactionary enemies are also doing their best to elect the same candidate. Progressives everywhere can look upon this condition without uneasiness. Justice Hughes was not the candidate of the reactionary element. He will be president in his own right in case of his election. No man in public life has a cleaner record for independence. One of the reasons for the lethargy of a considerable element of the republican party in the present campaign is the knowledge that he will be the president of the whole people, and not the "titular head" and office broker of a single party. If Hughes had qualities less admired by progressive voters of independent leanings it might be easier for him to reach the white house.

FAIRBANKS ON PROSPERITY.

Omaha, Sept. 27.—Charles W. Fairbanks, former vice president and present republican candidate for the office, addressed two Omaha audiences yesterday. He spoke at the Commercial club, before an assemblage of business men at noon and in the evening at 8 o'clock he addressed a mass meeting in the auditorium.

He declared he had failed to hear anyone thus far claim the present prosperity was due to the democratic administration. He said: "Suppose" he said, "that the democratic congress had adjourned for good its last day of August, 1915. No one anyone suppose that we did not have had the same prosperity? The gold that is now crowded in by progressive men paid for by bullion and shrapnel."

"We are enjoying a large trade to be sure, but it is trade with the nations of the world. No, it is trading with the camps of Europe."

He declared there were enough independently thinking voters in the country to elect Hughes and Fairbanks.

Obituary.

John Henry William Wolter whose death at the age of 71 years, 4 months and 19 days, occurred on Tuesday, September 19, at his home in Omaha, was born April 30, 1845, at Laase, Germany. He came to America in 1868 and first settled at Etizen, Minn. It was there that he was married to Miss Wilhelmine Steckelberg. Mr. and Mrs. Wolter moved to Burr county, Neb., in 1871, and ten years later located on the farm northwest of Wakefield, on which one of his sons now lives.

Mrs. Wolter preceded her husband in death on August 17, 1902. Later Mr. Wolter was married to Miss Mary Dee. In 1896 they moved to Omaha, where they had since resided.

The deceased leaves two sons, F. H. Wolter and W. H. Wolter, both of Wakefield, and one daughter, Mrs. L. Thomas Sylvanus. In addition to six grandchildren. Three children preceded their father into eternity.

The funeral services were held Friday afternoon at the Swedish Lutheran church, the Rev. H. F. Jorgensen of the German Lutheran church, pastor of town and Rev. Bollinger of Concord, officiating. Interment was had in the local cemetery.

Mr. Wolter was a man of virtue and was highly respected by all who knew him. The sympathy of friends is extended to the relatives who survive him.

At the Schools.

Arrangements have been made for a reception to be given by the teachers for the patrons on Friday evening October 20.

John Atwater's Little Sister

How She Entertained His Guest During His Absence.

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Miss Susan Atwater kept house for a brother much older than herself, John Atwater, was thirty-eight years old, Susan was nineteen. John was a lawyer who dabbled in politics—not for office, but because the game interested him.

While John and his sister were quite chummy, he never talked to her about his professional work or his interest in this or that political deal.

One day John Atwater told his sister that he must go to attend court in another city and would be gone probably several days. She was to open his letters while he was gone, attend to anything needing attention so far as she was able and communicate any matter of which he should be advised. This was asking a good deal, considering that he kept his affairs so rigidly to himself. He had not been long away before a letter came for him bearing the official mark of the governor of the state. Susan opened it and read:

Dear John—I'm going to run down to see you tomorrow. My purpose is to get away from under the narrow roof of a prison. I shall endeavor all affairs of state except the cabinet matter on which I propose to take a rest. Yours,
JAMES R. MARTINDALE.

Miss Atwater was quite upset by this letter. The governor of the state was altogether too big a man for her to entertain. She was not a social creature. What should she do? Telegraph, or state that her brother would be out tomorrow? Why not telephone? The latter method was not far distant, the expense would be about the same. It was 11 o'clock in the morning, and the governor would doubtless be in his office. Going to the telephone booth she consulted the subscribers' names and, finding the governor's number, looked over the receiver and called him. He was sitting at his desk at the time and answered the call at once.

"Is this Governor Martindale?" asked the girl.
"Yes, Mr. Martindale."
"I am John Atwater's sister. My brother is away and before leaving asked me to receive his calls. He might come for him. One came from you stating that you were coming to see him. I thought it advisable to telephone you to see if he is absent."
"Thank you very much. When do you expect your brother home?"
"He gets home probably be away several days."
"Oh!" The governor seemed to be considering.

"Does Miss Susan Atwater, are you not?"
"I am."
"I've heard your brother speak of you. He has a very good sister."
Susan wondered what John could have had to say to the governor of the state about her. Surely she could have nothing to do with the momentous political questions that were discussed between them.

"Well," continued the governor, after a brief silence, "I presume I'll have to defer my visit. I'm sorry. Very much obliged to you for your information. Good-by."
Susan hung up the receiver, feeling much relieved.
Of all the months in the year the most of news is heard of politicians and the morning after Susie Atwater had headed off the governor was one of the brightest mornings that bright month. Susie Atwater, having finished her morning duties, was sitting on the porch with some embroidery work when she started to go to school, dressed in a white flannel suit and a straw hat. He looked to be about thirty-five years old, and there was something about his strange yet attractive in his appearance. He stopped at the foot of the steps and asked: "Does John Atwater live here?"
"He does."
"Is he at home?"
"No; he went away yesterday, to the governor's house."
"That's too bad," said the stranger in a disappointed tone.
"You never come up on to the porch?"
"The stranger availed himself of the invitation and seated himself in a wicker chair. Every minute of his time was very lovely. A climbing rose vine was in bloom; a field opposite was full of daisies; a pretty girl was beside him.

"Are you related to John?" he asked of Susie.
"I'm his sister."
"John and I were classmates in college. John entered at twenty, I at sixteen, but that didn't prevent our being chums. Having some time on my hands, I thought I would run down to see him. It's a long while since we met."
"John and I were classmates in college. John entered at twenty, I at sixteen, but that didn't prevent our being chums. Having some time on my hands, I thought I would run down to see him. It's a long while since we met."
"I dare say you will be greatly disappointed to miss your visit."
"Not more than I."
"When Susie Atwater looked out his watch and a railroad time table at the same time and examined both.
"There's no train back till 3 o'clock," he said.
"I shall be happy to do what I can to relieve the tedium of your stay," then and can give you a bit of consolation."
"Thank you very much."

An hour was spent very pleasantly, the Susie was unable to give many orders about the luncheon. When she returned the two spent another hour, during which the stranger made himself so entertaining that Susie began to say plans for keeping him till her brother returned. There was an apology for a chapter on the subject of being very old, in the house, whose presence would render her stay proper. After luncheon Susie said to her brother's friend:

"If you choose to wait John's coming you can be accommodated."
"I've been thinking that I might wait a day or two, but I would not think of intruding upon you. I'm stopping at the inn, and I can as well keep my room there by the way, where has John gone? I have a mind to communicate with him and learn when he'll be back."

"He's at Waterford at the Somers House."
"Where is your phone? I'll see if I can get him."
Being shown to the booth, the gentleman called up John Atwater and caught him at his hotel at the noon hour. He was surprised and surprised to find that Susie had been visiting several days. Telephone Equipment Costs Have Doubled in Two Years

Material used in the manufacture of telephone equipment that could have been purchased for $50 two years ago cannot be bought for less than $100 today.

The following figures show the per cent increase during the last 20 months in the market price of several of the more important items used in the manufacture of telephone equipment:

Material.	Increase.	Material.	Increase.
Aluminum	108%	Lead	54%
Batteries	68%	Lumber	20%
Brass	174%	Platinum	98%
Copper	287%	Rubber	36%
Crossarm bits	175%	Tin	36%
Crossarm braces	274%	Wire (iron)	20%

These advanced prices are caused principally by the European demand for war materials and to the curtailment of foreign imports into this country.

Drive It Into the Barn

As we told you, a Low Cloverleaf gives the manure a double beating. It also spreads manure eight feet wide or better. But the wonderful thing is that it does this from a box only 45 inches wide. The spreader itself is so narrow that it can be driven into any modern barn and loaded from the gutters. Only one handling of the manure for the quickest, best job of spreading you ever did. How does that sound to you?

If you have even begun to think about buying a spreader, see this Low Cloverleaf. You will say you never saw a better manure spreader. It won't take long to look it over. Your dealer has one set up for you to see.

WHY WOMEN SUFFER

Many Women are Learning the Cause. Women often suffer, not knowing the cause. Backache, headache, dizziness, nervousness, Irregular urinary passages, weakness, languor, Each a torture of itself. Together hint at weakened kidneys. Strike at the root—get to the cause.

No other remedy more highly endorsed than Doan's Kidney Pills. Recommended by thousands—Endorsed at home. Here's convincing testimony from a Wayne woman: "Mrs. H. Kellogg, Wayne, says: 'I was subject to frequent attacks of kidney trouble. I found Doan's Kidney Pills which I got at Fether's Pharmacy to be just what I needed and the trouble went away. I had suffered from nagging pains in my back and found it difficult to move around or lift because of the sharp twinges it caused. I felt depressed and nervous, too. Doan's Kidney Pills always gave me great relief so I don't hesitate to endorse them.' Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Kellogg had. Foster, Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y."

THE FIELD OF BUSINESS. Sioux City Journal: There was a slight recession on the Wall street market Wednesday, obviously implying only a natural reaction after a long continued period of what are known as "million shares" days—days when the sales attain a volume of more than 100,000 shares of stocks. The market recovered promptly from the setback and new high records for United States Steel and other industrials were recorded with the close of the week.

Trade in manufactured goods of all kinds continued to be brisk this week. Labor disturbance in certain localities and the steadily increasing prices of all commodities had no detrimental effect upon buyers. Manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers reported an unrelenting volume of orders. The demand for better, but better quality goods. Factories have experienced difficulty in securing efficient help, accounting in part for the aggressive attitude of many labor unions at this time.

One of the incidents of the financial week was the announcement that France had nearly completed negotiations for another war loan in the United States. This time the amount involved is $150,000,000. It is to be placed at a rate that will allow the American investors about 6 1/2 per cent—a very tidy rate to secure from a nation so rich as France was at the beginning of the war and so rich at paying on gigantic debts as France succeeded herself to be in the years following the last Franco-German war.

The wheat market throughout the week was sluggish until Friday, December wheat closing on Monday at $1.84 and only $1.83 at the close on Thursday. On Friday news that Argentina's crop was not so good as had been reported stimulated buying and the December option on that day mounted to $1.53 1/8. On Saturday, December closed another notch, closing at $1.53 5/8.

Prohibition and Lower Land Values

The U. S. Government has gathered reliable figures as to the value per acre of Farm Land in every state in the Union.

The Government takes the value of all the lands in a state, the high-priced land and the low-priced land, and then strikes an average.

On Page 36 of the "Monthly Crop Report" for April, 1916, published by authority of the Secretary of Agriculture, is found a comparison of the average value per acre of land with improvements, as follows:

NEBRASKA—Average value per acre, $76
KANSAS—Average value per acre, $58

The U. S. Government states officially that the average value per acre of land with improvements is $18.00 per acre less in Kansas than in Nebraska. On a quarter section this amounts to $2,880.00.

The soil of Kansas in every way is equal to that of Nebraska. Climatic conditions are the same.

THEN WHY THIS DIFFERENCE IN FAVOR OF NEBRASKA? THE ANSWER IS SIMPLY THIS: PROHIBITION!

PROHIBITION LOWERS LAND VALUES AND INCREASES TAXES.

CORRESPONDENCE FROM OUTLYING POINTS IN WAYNE COUNTY

WINSIDE

Miss Margaret Forbes of the Herald staff is editor of this department, and will visit Winside every Wednesday. Any news contributions to these columns from town or country will be gratefully received. She is also authorized to receive news of renewal subscriptions.

Winside Markets

Table with 2 columns: Commodity and Price. Includes Hogs, Wheat, Corn, Oats, Eggs, Butter, Springs, Hens.

Royal Entertainers

The members of the junior and senior classes of the Carroll high school and their sponsors, E. Mason and Miss Ruth Sterling, pronounced the upper classmen of the Winside schools royal entertainers for the affair of last Friday night. The guests arrived shortly before 8 o'clock and were immediately shown to the school auditorium where a cotillion was given. A full ball. The room was especially decorated in the Carroll colors, orange and black. Spicels kept the music. The girls of the Winside G. A. G. gave the entertainment. Miss Mabel Tenary as fortune teller and Gerald Leuck in the role of a hypnotist were the center of attraction. The supper was served from two booths and included hamburgers, wieners, scalloped potatoes, baked beans, watermelon, popcorn and coffee. After supper the two schools vied with each other in several clever races in all of which the winners were from the Winside. It is hoped that these congenial young people can get together often during the year.

Winside Study Center

At the first meeting of the Winside Study Center last Saturday afternoon the teachers decided definitely to enroll for the new course. Dr. J. T. House of the Wayne Normal was present to give a general survey of the work that would be covered. It was decided to use Wood's Elements of Sociology as the text book and to cover the subject in the order in which it might be interested. The Center will meet on the first and third Saturdays of the month at the high school auditorium at 3 o'clock.

Give Pound Social
