The evening program at 7:30 will be a Christmas cantata by the choir and Sunday school. A special program of unusual merit. See program in this paper. All are welcome.

St. Paul's English Lutheran Church. (Rev. J. H. Fetterolf, Pastor.) Sunday school meets every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

At 11 o'clock, the hour for morning worship, the subject will be "The First Christmas Service." On Sunday evening the Sunday school will give a Christmas program consisting of drills, exercises, dialogues and music by the different departments of the school. The program will be given at 7:30 o'clock with a large snow show probably the chief attraction.

It is the custom of this congregation each year to give a Christmas collection and also a box consisting of clothing, toys and many other tokens of love to the orphans in the "Home of Lincoln." This year was no exception and the box has gone forward to bring Christmas cheer to the homeless. This is a real Christmas spirit, for to live is to give.

Delivered an Odd Fellow Sermon. There was a fine audience at the Baptist church on Sunday, Dec. 17, at which time the Rev. W. L. Gaston delivered what the members of the order call a very rare Christmas sermon. A large delegation of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs occupied the body of the house. For a text Mr. Gaston put together two different phrases of scripture as follows: "And Jonathan swore unto David" and "Tell it not in Gath." These two phrases brought together, said the speaker, combine the thought of covenant and secret, the two great fundamentals in every secret order. He cited brotherhood as exhibited by Cain and Abel and Esau and Jacob to prove that the bonds of brotherhood of flesh and blood are not in themselves sufficient to bind men together in a life pact. Over against this he cited David and Jonathan as an instance of a cultivated brotherhood, one of flesh and blood, had proven stronger than blood relationship. From this he argued that a fraternity could and should be cultivated.

Presbyterian Church. (Rev. S. K. Cross, Pastor.) The Christmas cheer will permeate every program of every department of this church on the coming Lord's day. Read the excellent programs in another part of this paper. You will not want to miss any of either of them. The Sunday school will convene as usual at 11:30 next Sunday morning and every person is asked to come in the spirit of Christmas.

Miss Cella Gilderleve is expected to lead the Christmas meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. at 6:30 on next Sunday evening. This will be an attractive one. The Christmas tree will be up all day on Sunday. There will be the fragrance of Christmas and Christmas greetings in the air all the day. Let us all be in our places in the services of our church. We feel we are at a great privilege to all who are taking a part in working up the programs for next Sunday morning and evening. They will wish this winter to have our gladness to the hearts of many people.

Let us all approach this sacred season with a pure heart and happiness to as many persons as possible. That is the true Christ spirit. Let us see for how many we can make the way a little more bright and beautiful. Then let us plan to carry the Christmas spirit with us through all the days of the coming year.

"THIS IS THE LIFE." Halton Powell's latest and best musical comedy offering, "This is the Life," will be the attraction at the Wayne opera house on Tuesday night, December 26. This new song and dance show is said to contain nothing but the best in the line of musical farce comedy.

Christmas Greetings

The Star of Bethlehem never shone on a brighter Christmas than this. True happiness begins by making others happy, hence, true enjoyment lies in the giving. The giver's sentiment is best expressed in the gift that provides for the personal comfort or pleasure of the recipient. You can open an account at this bank for the boy or girl with one dollar or more, as you wish. We give you the passbook with the entry of the first deposit therein, which may be presented as a Xmas gift. Young people who learn to save in youth form a habit that will prove beneficial through life. The "nest egg" deposited will not be spent like a gift of currency or coin, but will encourage the recipient to add to it and lay the foundation for a substantial bank account. Wishing you a Merry Christmas and extending to you all the compliments of the season, we are yours to command.

WAYNE MEN PROMOTE BORING FOR OIL WELLS

TCUMSEH, Neb., Dec. 16.—Dr. George F. Cowdy of the State Geological Survey, has for years been of the opinion that there is oil in Johnson county. With his associate geologists he has traced the favorable indications to this county—from some of the richest fields of Kansas several times.

At Table Rock a company has been formed which will drill for oil. TCUMSEH is but sixteen miles away and it looks as though something is to be done here. J. T. Hurst of Grey Bull, Wyo., a wealthy oil operator and State Senator Phil Kohl of Wayne have seen here this week in an endeavor to secure leases upon certain tracts of land. They have suggested that a meeting of property owners be held here in the near future, with Dr. Cowdy present to represent the people. The promoters do not wish the local men to invest a cent. They simply desire to get leases upon a sufficient amount of land to warrant the expense of sinking some wells. Mr. Hurst said the wells would cost at least $15,000 each, and several should go down.

Senator Kohl is a well known Wayne man, and Mr. Hurst will be remembered as having lived here a number of years ago.

"THIS IS THE LIFE"

The management of the Wayne opera house, Mr. Britton, takes pleasure in announcing the coming of one of the latest and best musical comedies, which will appear at the opera house on Tuesday night, December 26. "This is the Life" promises to exceed the laughter limit with its clean, bright, wholesome comedy. It has been many years since the theater-going public has had an opportunity to witness a musical comedy of this kind. Halton Powell, considered to be one of the largest producers of musical comedies in the west, has spared no expense in launching this organization, selecting the best to uphold his years of reputation. The choruses selected, is well known to musical comedy lovers, having appeared in the larger cities with well-known productions. The choruses, young and pretty maidens sing and dance gracefully. Mr. Powell's brand of "light" shows has never failed to please the most critical audience, because he is quick to anticipate the public wants and never disappoints.

"This is the Life" which will appear here for the first time comes well recommended and judging from the newspaper criticisms of other larger cities it will be the best musical comedy that will play here this season. The scenic production is carried complete and the costumes are said to be magnificent. It is safe to say that you will not go wrong when you witness "This is the Life."

CHRISTMAS CHEER ON WAY TO SOLDIER BOYS

Christmas cheer, a quarter ton of it in the shape of a tempting array of home-made food, was carefully wrapped in eight huge packages Sunday and hurried to the depot where it was billed to Company E, Fourth Nebraska Regiment at Llano Grande. All day Saturday the toothsome dainties kept pouring into Grant Meers' office until by night the room was a veritable treasure house of good things. Seventy generous boxes of candy, a full gross of fat doughnuts, two boiled hams, a dozen or more choice fruit cakes, a bushel box of apples, and one hundred eighty popcorn balls were piled high on every available table and chair, to say nothing of a riot of toys and Christmas tree decorations that were spread on every where on the floor.

Early Sunday morning Mr. Meers, Charles Drijch, C. H. Fisher, J. A. Achen, Paul Harrington and Frank Gaertner, members of the committee to look out for the khakis at Christmas time, gathered at the office to pack and label the boxes. They worked at the job all morning and right past the dinner hour, and even then scarcely got the last package tied up in time to catch the afternoon train. Frank Gaertner, officiating with the brush, decorated the parcels with fancy lettering that added much to their attractiveness. The total weight of the eight packages was 470 pounds, which certainly will be long remembered by every one of the six-to-two soldier boys in Company E. The Public Service club slipped in an abundance of good cigars and also wrote out a check for the express charges, which totaled $19.10.

A committee of Wayne's soldier boys will unpack the boxes, decorate the trees and make all arrangements for a jolly Christmas eve. It is understood that they will put on a full program of music and speech making, in addition to distributing the gifts.

Gaston's Christmas Address.

Down at Llano Grande next Sunday night, Christmas eve, somebody selected to impersonate W. L. Gaston will deliver the following address which he has prepared:

"Officers and Men, Company E, 4th Regiment Nebraska National Guards:

"I am a thousand times glad to have this opportunity to bring you a thousand Christmas greetings from your friends and relatives in the old home town of Wayne.

"We have come down to you from your far northern home, with boxes and bundles well packed and filled with good Christmas cheer, and hearty good will, boxes and bundles that are expected to add something to camp happiness at the Christmas time and make you, away from home and friends, realize that you still belong to home. They want you to know that friends and neighbors, as well as relatives, are thinking about you tonight and have planned with sacred devotion for your happiness.

"It is cold here and frosty in the air but all this only adds to the joy of the holiday season, and puts vigor into life and the Christmas spirit into the Christmas cheer. It has been a year of fat and plenty. The wealth and joy of corn and wine flow in magic stream past and down past the Christmas cheer, a fabulous plenty and unusual Christmas cheer. Everybody is well sheltered and clothed. The swine and kine are sleek-coated and filled with Wayne county's corn. There is bread and to spare in every Wayne county home. The evergreen and holly are festooned in the living rooms and a cheerful Christmas fire, fed with fifteen-dollar coal, sends up from the furnace Christmas warmth and comfort into every room above. Christmas gifts, tied up in bundles, are piled high in every home. Christmas cheer leaps from everybody's heart and is on everybody's lips. All is lovely, and the goose is an altitudinarian.

"May I have the Christmas time in which for more than the last half year there has been a vacant chair, and in which tonight an empty sock is hanging by the chimney wall. The chair and sock are empty because a soldier boy is down at Llano Grande.

"In camp at sandy

"By the Rio Grande.

"This is all that clouds the Christmas time or mars the Christmas cheer at home. But the home folks remember; they remember the country's call and the Jung time leaving, and tonight while they sit at home by their firesides, their thoughts are down here with you. They have sent you a home-grown and hand-made Christmas. They have sent each of you a marked box of the season's good will. They are determined that you shall share the home Christmas.

"So they are sending

"A tree that's bending

"With popcorn and candy

"Down to Llano Grande.

"Some doughnuts fried

"The home cook's pride.

"For your inside.

"At the Christmas time

"And sports, and possessing all a home with friends in Wayne and sharing their Christmas with them.

"Live again the days that are past; imagine you are boys once more; boys again, just plain headless boys, wading deep in boyish pranks and sports, and possessing all a boy's capacity for Christmas trees, and other things that go with Christmas.

"So imagine me as a boy again and hunt up the best sock you can find, disinfect it, deodorize it and hang it up tonight just as you did the year ago when you were a boy at home. If there is no wreath in the camp, hang it on a mesquite or a cactus and go to bed and dream of Santa sliding through the cactus to fill it with popcorn and nuts. Go to your blankets tonight and dream that Santa Claus came down past Wayne and is hump-backed with the load he is carrying. It's safe to dream this kind of a dream for Santa Claus will surely come and your Christmas socks will be filled by the fellow who puts them on.

"Enjoy Christmas. Show care and pains to the winds, and enjoy with all the enthusiasm of youth and health, the things that Christmas brings. Eat a couple of pounds of the candy your home girl made, and don't eat it all through it. Eat it all and be happy. May I have the Christmas time in which you will live through it. There is castor oil in your ration, Never mind the greasers; they are on the other side of the river tonight and Santa Claus is an American. If the Mex. should make a raid before morning, don't shoot, give them the doughnuts. Make them swallow them and give them some of the fruit cake or the cookies your girl made, and they will never be able to cross the river. That will be better than shooting them on Christmas night, and you can tell the girl at home that the doughnuts worked fine.

"And now seriously, all the friends in Wayne shout Merry Christmas and send best wishes and prayers. They commend you to the care of the famous Child whose birth we celebrate and who in spite of wars and rumors of wars is still the Prince of Peace. May that first Christmas star be your star tonight and send down its soft light in peaceful benedictions upon your camp.

"Wayne will be glad to see you back again in your home town, and so again a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

BENEFIT TO WAYNE OF PUBLIC LIBRARY

Editor Herald: This is eminently an age of scientific knowledge. In all lines of serious men and women are seeking information that will make them efficient in their special spheres of labor. The university, the college and even our public schools are offering a varied program of studies such as was not dreamed of in our school-days. To supplement these institutions, learning, in almost every city and in thousands of towns and villages throughout our land, public libraries have been established. Their doors are open to every child and adult who seeks for knowledge of any subject or for intellectual diversion. Every citizen not only has the right to avail himself of the privileges of our library, but its doors are always open and an eager invitation extended to enjoy its benefits. It has been the endeavor of the board, in the selection of books to have represented every branch of literature, to supply information on all subjects. Among the hundreds of volumes not only are there those which attract, entertain and instruct the children, but those which will meet the wants of the farmer, the high school and college. And for those who have long since passed out of the schools, who are now engaged in the activities of life, there are on our library shelves volumes of valuable information which if known and put into practical use will render everyone of us more efficient in service both to ourselves and to others.

In this age there is a sharp competition in every branch of business, in every line of activity. It is the skilled mechanic who is in demand and who commands the big salary. It is the thoroughly educated man or woman who receives the best paying positions in all kinds of work. It is the scientist, farmer who grows the best crops and markets the highest priced stock. And for the farmer who did not have, in his day, the advantage of a course in scientific agriculture or animal husbandry, our library furnishes books which if carefully read will afford a knowledge of facts relating to farm work which will make him a better farmer and bring greater profits to reward his labor.

There has recently been added to our list of books a large volume entitled "Farm Economy, A Cyclopedia of Agriculture." I take this opportunity to call attention to this volume that the farmers of our community may know that it is at their service and because it contains a great store of valuable facts and information which every wide-awake farmer will be glad to know. The book is a large volume containing nearly 1200 pages and almost every topic of interest to the farmer, the farmer's wife, the stockman, the fruit grower and the gardener is exhaustively treated.

Book 1, "Soil Selection and Storage."

Book 2, "Special Pointers on Crops."

Book 3, "Soils and Soil Fertility."

Book 4, "The Garden and the Orchard."

Book 5, "Concrete Construction."

Book 6, "Farm Drainage, Dry Farming and Irrigation."

Book 7, "Farm Buildings."

Book 8, "Weeds."

Book 9, "Insect Pests and Plant Diseases."

Book 10, "Farm Mechanics."

Book 11, "The Business Side of Farming."—E. S. Blair, Member Book Committee.

CHRISTMAS FELLOWSHIP. After twenty centuries of "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men" as an accepted precept, what do the noble Nazarene think of a large...

While we commemorate the nativity of the unselfish, peace-loving man of Galilee, we look with horror on the carnage and suffering in Europe. But the men in the trenches of a crushed and bleeding continent driven to senseless slaughter...

Another improvement in Christmas programs over the old-time custom is the elimination of long-winded and painful sermons. Trial and error have been the rule for the pastor or superintendent to draw his face down to zero...

Wayne Will Accept It. Because the town of Wayne is doing much for its soldier boys on the border, it is not surprising that it has become known as the Lincoln boys and because Lincoln is suspected of doing little, about thirty women gathered at the Lindell hotel Wednesday afternoon to decide if the state capitol be moved to Wayne...

In the current issue of The Fra, Felix Shay fires a volley of vituperation at American newspapers. In his tirade, he says not one good thing about them. He evidently seeks to paint the newspaper as an institution without integrity...

The failure of the Wausa Gazette to get its usual shipment of printer paper on time forced it to use poster paper last week, and we could not see that the substitute was any worse than the average print.

An exchange quotes a man as saying that the "old times" have a "most promising future before them." It is interesting to note that their future is "before" and not "behind" them.

Children put extra merriment into the Christmas season. Their alert ears, sparkling eyes and glad hearts are quick to catch the spirit of the weary and heavily burdened.

Many Nebraska weeklies issued mighty creditable special Christmas editions last week.

neighborhood quarrels, family rows and other difficulties, often serious are brought to him for consideration. The remedy of the busy conscience once above mibney, and sees only the welfare of who seek counsel and aid, he does his best to smooth things over, tactfully disentangle and solve an intricate problem, prevent a lawsuit, prevent big money being lost, and so on.

Judge James Britton of this city, expresses himself strongly in opposition to tearing down the old capitol building, and putting on three to five million dollars into a new one. He thinks twenty-five to fifty thousand dollars would put the present building into good shape for use for years, and that the money proposed for a new one could be better spent in building up the state and developing its water powers.

As evidence of increased breadth of vision on the part of churches, we would offer this: We well remember the time when churches would consider Christmas exercises and distribution of Christmas gifts on a Sunday evening as serious sacrilege.

Another improvement in Christmas programs over the old-time custom is the elimination of long-winded and painful sermons. Trial and error have been the rule for the pastor or superintendent to draw his face down to zero, and then talk the job of a day or two of youngsters before they really belong to the occasion commenced to happen.

Dakota City and Ponca have lately arisen to dispute the reputation given Frank Weber of Wayne as the best caterer in commercial service in northeast Nebraska. Each town claims such distinction. If the question cannot be amicably settled, it would suggest referring it to the railway commission.

The credit system is over-worked. If a customer would go to a bank and borrow the money with which to settle his store account rather than having to buy on credit, he would transfer banking to its proper place and not compel the merchant to do his banking without compensation.

These kind words from the Harrington Herald are accepted as full preparation for mean things said about us: "When it comes to hitting the nail right square on the head, we don't know anybody who can do it much better than Ethel Huse of the Wayne Herald."

People who were defrauded by having their "old times" have counterparts in the overly credulous speculators who used to buy from a neatly printed, ten ton lots that weighed from ten to twenty feet under water.

At the noon hour many of the visiting teachers enjoyed the appetizing luncheon served by the domestic science department and instructors of the Wayne school.

Miss Pearl Sewell, county superintendent, made announcements concerning the future work of the association at the close of afternoon session.

She also read a farical poem, a word play on those taking part in the program, written by Rev. W. L. Gaston.

The main address of the afternoon was given by Mr. Gregg who spoke on "Making the School Work Seem Worth While." Following are some excerpts from his speech:

"The two big questions in the study of psychology are these: 'How do folks do what they do?' and 'How can one get folks to do what one wants them to do?'"

"The first of these is theoretical and the other practical. In answer to the first question there are those who have said that man is a mere machine, and that his behavior at any time is the resultant of many forces. Others have said that man's constant struggle is to avoid immediate pain and to seek immediate pleasure."

A third group maintains that man's quest is always that of ultimate pleasure. Finally, it is held that man's behavior is fundamentally what it is because of certain complex forms of inherited tendencies, which are thrown into functioning when the specific stimulus arises, unless memory or habit have come into effect."

"The child at different stages takes on different characteristics and has different interests. Dividing the child's life roughly into three-year periods the first is that of babyhood; the second, the 'dramatic' age; the third, the 'big injun' stage; the fourth, the 'going period'; the fifth, the 'awkward' age; the sixth, the 'love sick' age; the seventh, the 'altruistic' age, and then comes maturity."

"In the endeavor to find the solution to psychology's second great question, various common means have been defined as the process by which conditions, threatening, exhortation, but the ideal procedure is one of motivation. This latter process may be defined as the process by which one is made to feel that a particular activity is compellingly worth while."

"In the application of these ideas to the work of the schools, the conditions must be met. In the first place, the teacher must know the characteristics of the successive stages of child life and particularly the mechanism of each of the instincts."

"In the second place, the subject matter taught in the schools must be that which is desired by society, but adapted to the child. This means, among other things, that physiology, technical grammar, and chronological and causal history must go over to the high school and hygiene and language work and biographical stories be given in the grades."

"In the third place, the teacher must have the ingenuity to create such situations in the work of the school as to excite the natural 'springs of action' toward the selected subject matter. Teaching is a great art."

In the last analysis, however, a teacher's work resolves itself into two all-embracing tasks. The first is that of the teacher to effect motivation for the work of the school, and the second and simpler task, is to provide the conditions for growth."

The undersigned physicians of Wayne wish to announce the following fees which will be strictly adhered to from this date: Ordinary medical calls in town $2.00; medical call at night $3.00; Dr. Williams, Dr. Hess, Dr. Blair, Dr. Lutgen, Dr. Erskine, Dr. Ingham.

ELECT OFFICERS AND AGAIN CHOOSE OMAHA

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 20.—Continuing the Federal Road bill, improving the Federal Land Bank bill, urging more drastic supervision of mining and other activities, and giving support to agricultural activities, the Farmers' Congress in session in Omaha last week took many constructive steps and a few reactionary ones.

The congress, despite the cold weather which broke on the occasion, was the most successful in any of its history. The attendance was representative, farmers coming from every section of the state, Iowa, and representing the various interests and organizations.

Some changes were made in the personnel of the officers. O. Smith of Kearney being elected president to succeed George Campbell, who was unable to be present because of ill health. F. T. Tenhill of Norfolk was re-elected first vice president, J. B. Grinnell, Papillon, secretary, and George J. G. Bancroft, was elected second vice president, and A. M. Stoner, third vice president.

The congress voted to hold its 1917 session in Omaha at Hotel Castle and selected the third week in December. The executive committee that of this week should be the permanent meeting time of the association.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS IN ANNUAL CONVENTION

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 20.—June 19, 20 and 21 have been selected as the dates for the annual meeting of the Nebraska State Sunday School associations. All meetings will be held in the municipal auditorium.

The coming meeting is the fifty-fifth anniversary of the organization and elaborate plans are being made for the convention. That it will be the most important in the fifty years is conceded. More than 200 delegates will attend.

Among the speakers already secured are Marion Lawrence, international general secretary; Mrs. Maud Baldwin, international elementary superintendent, and Prof. M. V. O'Shea, Wisconsin university, the great child study specialist. The executive committee is also considering the putting on of a mammoth pageant and is giving favorable consideration to this project.

TEACHERS NAME MISS POWELL PRESIDENT

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 20.—By an overwhelming vote, the Nebraska State Teachers' association voted to elect in Omaha, Miss Martha Powell, as president at the first meeting in November as the time of the meeting. Omaha's selection was the most decisive in the history of the association. The metropolitan polling more than two to one with a final vote of 1,263 to 600 for Lincoln.

Miss Martha Powell, principal of Long school of Omaha, was elected president in the most spirited contest for the office ever waged. She was elected over Miss Ruth Taylor of Lincoln, A. O. Thomas, state superintendent, and Dean Hahn of Wayne. The male candidates, however, requested that they not be considered.

THE FIELD OF BUSINESS.

Sioux City Journal: Haycock was wrought up over the Christmas plans of many stock and grain speculators on Tuesday when the German government filed a formal proposal for a peace conference. Such a development at this time had been wholly unforeseen in American business circles. And the news struck the stock prices. The first reflection was that the peace plea would not receive a sympathetic hearing in allied countries, and on Wednesday the downward movement was stopped. Thursday reports that the German terms would not be brooked under other than liquidation. The report on Friday that the German plans even included a system of international disarmament, drove the bears full control of the market. By Saturday there had been heavy declines in securities and grain prices, and the rental of dollars of paper profits on the part of speculators were wiped out. The downward movement was stopped on Saturday by the news that the Russian drama had definitely rejected the possibility of peace under existing circumstances. Securities and grain prices reacted sharply under this influence, but Saturday's ground recovered only a fraction of the loss suffered earlier in the week. Among the securities the so-called "war babies" were the heaviest sufferers, and railway securities came through the flurry with relatively small losses. Cotton, which had been declining in response to a showing of increased supply, was again commodified to profit by the peace rumors.

The agricultural department's final report for the year established a high water mark for crop values. Notwithstanding the smaller yields, the aggregate value of the year's output was placed at $7,000,000, or $1,700,000 more than the same crops were worth last year. Corn was at the head of the list with a total value of $2,295,000,000, an increase of $73,000,000 over last year. Cotton took second place with an aggregate of $1,079,000,000, a gain of $49,000,000 over the 1915 showing. Wheat took third place with a total of $1,025,000,000, an increase of $83,000,000 over the 1915 crop, which was 400,000 bushels greater. Hay also passed the billion mark with a total of $1,008,000,000, or $95,000,000 more than last year.

One of the interesting developments of the week was the disclosure that representatives of the railways and brotherhoods are engaged in an effort to work out a solution of the wage problem without depending on the Adamson law or the supplementary legislation. The president is now urging. Both the managers and the brotherhood leaders are said to favor a system of arbitration by means of a new joint commission, to be maintained under government auspices and to have jurisdiction over all railway industrial problems of the employees and the railroads should get together in support of such a system, neither congress nor the public would be disposed to interfere. Any method that will do away with the possibility of strikes will be satisfactory to all.

Application of the new system of demurrage charges and car rentals is expected to have an early effect in relieving congestion. Under the new plan of high demurrage charges shippers cannot afford to use cars in lieu of warehouses. Current trade is booming in some industries a cautious disposition toward the future is becoming manifest. The earnings last week totaled $5,677,900,000. Some vipers one encounters are two-legged vipers.

UNIVERSAL CONSCRIPTION

Lincoln Journal: The now a public hearing begins before a senate committee on the subject of universal military service. Advocates of universal service say they have hopes of securing favorable action, if not at this session, then at the hands of the coming congress.

Americans have known of universal military service largely through immigrant neighbors who left the land of their birth to escape it. Such are to be found in practically all American communities. It has probably occurred to few Americans that any similar system would ever be proposed here, or if proposed would be considered seriously. Senator Chamberlain's conscription bill was indeed passed over last year without discussion, slightly was it taken. But we are told that it will be different this time. Last year the militarists were focusing their efforts on the navy. They did not want to disturb and perhaps alienate public opinion by pressing their case through the navy, and are ready to take up the task of making an army to match. Not many years ago the Germans were appalled at the introduction of conscription in their country. Now they have it, and we see what it has brought them to. It is not at all probable that we should be led in the same path. It has been the way of the American militarists—from the first to shout their horror of German deeds while urging us to adopt the German system and ideals.

Just what form of universal service its advocates hope to secure from congress remains to be seen. Proposals have varied. It is not likely that a three year term in the army for every youth will be proposed at first. The wedge will enter at its point of course. But any form of universal service must involve long training for the officers, and it will take no small number of officers to train the army of nine million men which would be conscription will draw into the field for training. If only one year all told is taken out of each man's life for military service the economic, social and political effect will be momentous.

The reason usually given for demanding that every American man be made a trained soldier is that the militia has not been an efficient reserve army, and that it is proving impossible to secure by voluntary enlistment the recruits needed by the standing army. Should the nation undertake the training of one or ten million soldiers in order to secure an army of two or three hundred thousand? It is answered that the two or three hundred thousand have a right to complain at being picked for service while the rest stay at home in comfort and safety.

There is much to be said on these subjects and it will be said before this country adopts the German military system or even the Swiss system. The absurdity of calling some million men into the field to be thrashed out here. The United States should think seriously whether it is so adjusting its affairs to bring down a sparrow: as to be in the best shape to bear infinitely less expense the pay and whatever strain may in future be thrust upon it. But that is as far so good that men would compete for places in the army as they compete for postoffice appointments.

state—that we must endure subjects. There is a preparedness that the country needs. But that is not hundreds of miles of water from other "preparations" the militarists' popular countries, is assumed to and the munitions makers are after-make itself such a military camp as Germany or even such a trained school for soldiers as Switzerland, countries surrounded by armed neighbors more than equal in population to themselves. There is lack of sanity in the very suggestion.

It is high time that the question of military service and preparedness were threshed out here. The United States should think seriously whether it is so adjusting its affairs to bring down a sparrow: as to be in the best shape to bear infinitely less expense the pay and whatever strain may in future be thrust upon it. But that is as far so good that men would compete for places in the army as they compete for postoffice appointments.

TWO LIVE "ISMS."

Sioux City Journal: Prohibitionists and suffragists have been agreeably surprised at the ease with which their amendments have been pushed to the front in the house of representatives.

The judiciary committee which at the last session voted to postpone consideration of the prohibitory amendment, has now reported it for consideration, and a vote is looked for at the present session. When last acted upon in the house this amendment secured a majority, but fell short of the two-thirds required for the submission of constitutional amendments. Predictions are made that the amendment may receive a two-thirds majority at this time. It is unlikely it will be passed upon in the senate at the present session, but it probably will come up for recall in the Sixty-fifth congress.

The senate is now giving its attention to a proposal to dry up the District of Columbia, and there is a feeling that some legislation on this subject may go through at this session. A compromise suggestion that the issue be referred to a referendum of the district, men and women included, seems to be gaining strength.

Another temperance measure, winning popularity in congress is the proposal to deny the use of the mails to liquor advertising. If adopted hereon it will be the first measure of the present session it will by means of an amendment to the postpaid appropriation bill.

The suffragists won only a partial victory when the judiciary committee reported their amendment for having to eat it or go hungry out upon the staff.

A GASTRONOMIC HORROR.

Bixby in Lincoln Journal: A Philadelphia newspaper affords the good taste and intelligence of its 40,000 readers a fine opportunity for an England boiled dinner as something nutritious, palatable and digestible. It was being designated by another writer as "amaric and one of the most execrable gastronomic horrors of the world." So it is, and we would go farther and pronounce it rather palatable nor digestible. Our remembrance of this conglomeration of mortal error is that the composition is made up of corned beef, cabbage, carrots, parsnips, potatoes, turnips and table salt in about equal proportions. This jumble of junk is cooked en masse for three mortal hours, and while it is cooking you can smell it a mile, and after it is eaten you can taste it a mile. Some cooks add onions to the mixture for variety, but in its primal state of offense nothing can make it worse or lessen the terror of having to eat it or go hungry out upon the staff.

Good for Consumption.

Chamberlain's Tablets are excellent for consumption. They are pleasant to take and mild and gentle in effect. Obtainable everywhere.—Adv.

Very few men are as depraved as the remarks of the prosecuting attorney concerning the accused might lead one to believe.

get a hearing in congress on any issue when it is really ripe for action. For many years congressional committees have been turning deaf ears to the suffragists and the prohibitionists. There has been much loose talk that the liquor influence had been exerted on congress to smother adverse legislation, as a matter of fact the prohibitionists are able to turn down the pleas of the reformers time and again only because there was no formidable support for their proposals in either congress or throughout the country. Now that public sentiment has developed in favor of prohibition and suffrage there will be no further difficulty in getting a hearing in congress. In the main it is the prohibitionists who are to give the people what they want. A legislative body that frequently violates its trust must be subjected to a quick and radical change in membership.

SERIOUS JOKE.

Hartington News: Martin Knudson, a former resident of Paragon vicinity, who has been a resident of Knox county for a number of years, has been visiting old friends, Mr. Knudson and one of the seven supervisors of Knox county at the recent election. He was invited to give the vote on a silver ticket and his section was solemnly democratic. But then Martin was born under a lucky star. He had been in the practice of earth due to this case being due to his goodluck.

Mr. Knudson's first recall—an excessive but while in the office of the Paragon mines, when a joke of a jovial old citizen, Dennis O'Flaherty, resulted in the death of another man, Andrew Olson, and others, Mr. Knudson and Hans Schager, now one of the rural mail carriers, had a narrow escape from death. The incident happened in 1888.

Mr. O'Flaherty was then serving as a county commissioner. He had settled on the eastern part of the county, south of Ober, and farmed considerable land, assisted by four sons, George, Marv, O'Flaherty and the third, Irishman and found it and would greatly enjoy the pranks he was able to play on his friends and neighbors. One day he was as one of their best friends. Having been to town they knew he would bring whiskey and so they stepped out for a drink. Schager was a young man and drank but a nip from the proffered bottle. Olson drank more heavily. O'Flaherty handed the bottle to Knudson over his shoulder, evidently then smiling at the joke he was playing, for the bottle contained alcohol diluted with poison.

Knudson and Olson managed to get in the former's wagon and drove to the Olson's home. Even Mrs. Knudson smiled at the suggestion that they were seriously ill. It was apparently O'Flaherty's intention to get the drinking party started, but he had no idea of the power of the poison. O'Flaherty took care of the matter.

As soon as the consciousness of the matter was realized every effort was made to rebuke the men, but Olson refused our dates. Knudson and Schager were ill some time.

O'Flaherty was arrested by Charles Jones, then deputy sheriff of Knox county, charged with having been criminally responsible for Olson's death. The case was heard by Judge William F. Norris, in a city building where the Elks' paragon is now located. Judge Norris is now in the employ of the federal government as Washington. Additional testimony in Colorado was the prosecutor, assisted by J. C. Robinson, Wilbur F. Bryant, assisted by counsel from Omaha, represented O'Flaherty, who was acquitted. On the jury were George Champ, John Tigges and Frank Deming.

Although acquitted, the death of Olson grieved Mr. O'Flaherty and he died about four years later.
