Harting Herald: The account contained in the Wayne Herald recently concerning a woman oilfield who manages the household and does all the necessary buying for the family on $20 a week is very interesting. The result is they are able to save little or nothing, and the rainy days, which inevitably comes sooner or later, finds them unprepared. Our own idea of the matter is that people spend too much on unnecessary things. Instead of eating to sustain life, they eat to gratify their palates, instead of desiring to be comfortable and artistic, they dress to make a show, instead of being economical and saving, they are extravagant and wasteful and in these ways their incomes dwindle away with little to exhibit for the expenditures. Personally, we prefer a spendthrift to a miser, but there is a happy medium. We ought to be able to live well, and keep our minds and hearts from getting petrified, and at the same time keep within our incomes and make some provision for the future.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Taylor of Plainview, came to Wayne Sunday to spend Christmas with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Lewis, returning home Monday evening.

BUDGET STATE BOARD.

Lincoln Journal: The budget of the state board of control presented to Governor Morehead and by him to be submitted to the legislature for an increase in appropriations for the maintenance of the fifteen state institutions under the management of this board. An increase in the number of inmates amounting to near 17 per cent is being asked during the coming two years. In addition to this the board has added 10 per cent increase because of the advance in prices of supplies over the prices formerly paid by the state.

The board of control comprises Judge Howard Kennedy, chairman, and Messrs. H. H. Holcomb and Henry Gerdes. Two years ago the board presented to the legislature its first request for appropriations for the management of state institutions. In spite of a big increase in the price of supplies in the past two years, the amount given by the legislature will tide the institutions over until April 1, the end of the biennium, with scarcely a deficiency. One or two of the smaller institutions may show a small deficiency of $25,000, for an appropriation of $2,355,770 for the ordinary expenses of state institutions. This is an increase of $250,000 over the amount appropriated for the same purposes two years ago. In addition the board asks for $454,000 for permanent improvements or extraordinary expenses, making a total of $2,810,770 for the biennium.

A card from Lieutenant James Pile under date of December 22 stated that the first of the soldier boys to depart for Nebraska Tuesday night. They will first go into camp at Fort Crook, and it is understood later be mustered out of the service.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 25.—Official notification of the departure of the first of the North Nebraska from Lino Grande for the north, set for Tuesday, has caused army men here to redouble their efforts to have Fort Crook as habitable as possible when the men arrive. It will be a climatic change of no mean proportion, especially if the present cold weather continues.

One or two companies of Iowa guards, it was said, nearly had a small riot over the prospect of landing at home in winter's embrace, many of them without positions. There are several good barracks at Fort Crook, but there is a possibility that many of the men will have to tent camp during the two or three weeks that the formality of being mustered out is attended to.

TO THE SOLDIER BOY.

Miss Amy Culbertson, graduate of the Sioux City high school, and senior this year in the Wayne State Normal school, has written a poem of unusual merit. It follows: "The Soldier Boy, for the heart is less lonely. Even the miles between seem to grow few. This brings us closer together, this only. Your thinking of us and our thinking of you.

Then, do you think, soldier boy, in the star light, (Hush of the Christmas, all peaceful and still.)

Think of the Child who has brought that me-as-fair, the man will have to come, it is a-fright, to thrill!

He was rich, so you say, (nor believe the recorder.) You envy, it may be, his hard S. (Softer than any you know on the border.)

For the love of a mother who's over the head, Soldier boy, soldier boy, why are you sulking? (White you lone tent on the edge of my dreams.)

Though all his mother love is a-drobbing, Christmas has come to the border, it seems. —A.E.C.

COLORED MINSTRELS DELIGHT AUDIENCE

The home talent minstrel show, which was staged by Mrs. Henry Ley last Thursday evening at the Wayne opera house as an initial step toward the organization of a principal swimming pool and reading room for Wayne boys, was a decided success. The entertainment was given by the colored minstrels by four of Wayne's pastors: Rev. S. N. Cross, Rev. A. S. Buell, Rev. J. H. Fetterolf and Rev. W. L. Gasper. The minstrels, who dressed themselves in full sympathy with the proposed movement. They briefly outlined the various benefits, physical and moral, derived from such an institution as a swimming pool and reading room, open to all the boys of the community.

Later in the evening, Mrs. Ley took occasion to introduce each of the dark-skinned celebrities by their stage names. The high school orchestra, composed of Messrs. Harold Huford and Miss Marsaline Lewis with Miss Eva Graves as director, followed with a program of music. All the evening had been arranged behind the scenes. When the curtain slowly rose the spectators saw an orchestra of more than twenty pieces banked on the stage while in the foreground at the entrance of each wing sat a portly colored "mammy" with a cunning little pickney, dressed in bright yellow, cuddled close by her side. After a stirring southern chorus sung by the whole company, the minstrel show opened with solos and dances, every one of which was well done. Those who sang were: Mrs. Clyde Oman, Miss Emma Akke, Miss Edna Miller, Prof. J. J. Coleman, Miss Fausell, Mrs. W. L. Rennick, Mrs. W. E. Johnson, Miss A. B. Clark and Hal Schuchman. The program reported on the chorus by the members of the orchestra.

Jokes on prominent Wayne men were handled by the minstrel troupe, two interlocutors, Mrs. Carrie Bruner and Mrs. Clyde Oman, of the "Gold Dust" twins, Joy Ley and Emma, and a soloist in artistic dancing, The Ukalele club, consisting of Miss Fern and Miss Frances Oman, Leslie Ellis and Claire LaForsman.

Other members of the orchestra, who did not have individual numbers but who added much to the general effect by their clever acting, were: Misses Nellie and Blanche Hunter, who sat high above the rest with a big brass horn which she zealously tooted at the mere mention of a joke or pun. Miss Elsie Ford Piper, Mrs. T. W. Moran, Mrs. C. A. Chace, Mrs. William Beckenhauer, Mrs. Perry Theobald, Miss A. L. Lamson, Mrs. W. E. Seace, Miss Sara J. Killen and Mrs. Charles Carhart.

Ward Randall, posing as Hooker T. Robinson, preached a stirring sermon, urging the necessity for a swimming pool for the boys. Even the ushers were treated liberally with burk cork beyond the stage.

It was a well-timed, however, that they were Miss Elizabeth Betchter, Miss Belle Nickel and Miss Berniece Grifven and Miss C. Moses.

Not only did the show create a great deal of merriment, but it was a gratifying venture financially. The proceeds total $223, and the expenses were $27, leaving a balance of a little more than $65. This amount has been deposited by Mrs. Ley in a fund for the municipal swimming pool and reading room, and every Wayne boy may now feel that he has a part in that bank account.

CHRISTMAS LETTER.

(Omaha Bee.) My Friend! Why do I call you My Friend?

I remember that in some way in this world that seems so full of chance, yet through which I am persuaded there runs a deep and intelligent purpose, you and I have been thrown together. We came to know each other. And when we touched, you and I, two human atoms we his and mine, we took fire a little. I liked you, you liked me. Why, none can tell; it is just one of those wonderful miracles that happen in this wondrous life. That fire still burns in me. I want you to know I am still your friend. The sight of you this day, the sound of your voice, the touch of your hand would make me happy. I don't like to grow away from my friends. Life is so crowded and necessary business so absorbent that well-beloved faces drift into the gray fog of forgotten days. But Christmas comes and reminds me of the best business of all, the gift in its friendships. So I send this to you, in the hope that you may kindly a little today at the thought of me, that you may have a

Serving Your Advantage

No business has keener competition than now exists in the retail grocery business. Despite trying conditions this store has operated and been guided by conservative methods, encouraged by an ever increasing patronage until we feel we have achieved far more than the average grocer, yet, when analyzed from the experience taken from relations with hundreds of my patrons the reason is quite apparent.

First of all, "integrity" has been our watchword, integrity of purpose to establish a real grocery store; integrity of brands on which the housewife may depend to give perfect satisfaction, the grade of which is never lowered under any circumstances; integrity of service; integrity of clerks.

Our future purchases, before market advances, enable this store to offer hundreds of grocery items at the old price. Our regular patrons have been receiving the benefit of this condition, and we have an ample supply to extend this price and service to ONE HUNDRED MORE REGULAR PATRONS. If you will visit this store, we will call on you and you will find $5,000.00 stock will be removed. We have the goods and are going to continue the profit-dividing system as we have in the past. Your change of patronage to this store will mean a world of commercial satisfaction for your goods at less money than you have been paying.

It has been the policy of this store to give the customer something just a little better than he has been accustomed to getting. It's the results of a square deal that this store enjoys the larger share of the patronage of hundreds of the best families of the community. They have learned there is a difference; they have learned that the feeling of content and each individual business transaction is accompanied with fair, square, considerate and courteous treatment.

Already a number of new faces have signified their intention to trade at this store the coming year. This invitation is extended to everyone. I extend the heartiest wishes for a prosperous and enjoyable New Year.

little wish that I were near you, and that you and I may meet at least in thought.

I am not sending you any "present," I am sending you what is better—genuine heart-throbs. They are through and through these lines.

If you hold the paper close to your breast, I am sure you can feel them. The days when we were together, I have not lost them; they are with me now, walking through my mind, like smiling angels, to remind me that once I stood soul to soul with one who like me and whom I love, and that we reached bravely and blithely a few steps in this untoward world.

Think of those days when you read this, and reach out your hand and touch mine across the distance of years and miles. I meet enough people who do not like me nor what I do. The world has plenty of the destructive forces of envy, misunderstanding and animosity. Nobody gets along with everybody. But you and I belong to the "old-fashioned" order of Friends. We stand against the world. We feel eternity. If we do not meet in this world again, we will meet in the next. Our hearts shall never part. Our laughter shall ring out there, where there is no shadow of parting.

Dear My Friend! And the best is still to you! Contentment and love be yours, and plenty of good work to do! May your heart be always as brave. May your nature grow richer in all that happens to you!

And may we meet again, and let it be soon and often, to "pick up the favored sleeves" of friendship.

THE FIELD OF BUSINESS.

Sioux City Journal: Every activity in the world of finance and commerce was affected by last week's developments. In the stock and wheat markets it was the most exciting week experienced in years.

The agitation began on Tuesday, following Lloyd George's discussion of the proposed peace terms. The British premier's speech was first interpreted as a flat rejection of the peace possibility, and stock and wheat prices skyrocketed on the assumption that the war must continue. Second thought was that, instead of closing the door to peace, Lloyd George had in a roundabout way invited the central empires to submit their peace terms for allied consideration. Prices promptly slumped on the news that peace might be near. A period of nervousness and uncertainty followed. It was broken Thursday by the news that President Wilson had sent a note to all the belligerents urging them to make stock of their reasons for continuing the war and suggesting that comparison of the terms on which both sides might be willing to make peace might disclose that the time for a conference was at hand. Immediately after the announcement of the note came a statement from Secretary Lansing declaring that the United States was trying to force a peace because it was on the verge of being drawn into the war. The effect on the stock market was the worst period of liquidation undergone since the German note first made the peace possibility a tangible influence in business circles. In the epidemic of selling all stocks dropped to bargain prices and the week closed to a figure that quickly brought European buyers into the market. There was a vigorous recovery on Friday and the week closed to a figure that quickly brought European buyers into the market. There was a vigorous recovery on Friday and the week closed to a figure that quickly brought European buyers into the market.

The general effect of the "peace scare," whatever may be the outcome of the diplomatic negotiations, will be wholesome. It has served as an effective warning of the temporary character of the prosperity upon which the speculators have been basing their calculations. Though peace may not result from the present ferment, the best judgment is to the effect that the final settlement will be hastened by it. Disposition toward conservatism has been strengthened both in financial and commercial quarters, and a tendency toward checking the upward march of prices is noted.

The holiday trade just closed, according to reports from practically all localities, was the greatest in the history of the country. The higher level of prices cut no figure in discouraging buying and the trade was profitable to manufacturers, jobbers and retailers.

The managers of a number of important railway lines have been cited to appear before the interstate commerce commission to account for their failure to return to other companies a certain percentage of their rolling stock, as recently ordered by the commission.

100TH ANNIVERSARY.

As the result of a nation-wide campaign, the American Sunday School Union which is now preparing to hold its centennial celebration, has established one one hundred and twenty thousand Sunday schools with half a million teachers and more than five million scholars.

The society is also preparing to carry on its work of rural child development on an even broader scale, in an effort to meet the constantly growing demands from many parts of the country.

An intensely interesting series of pamphlets has been issued, describing the various phases of the organization's work and relating some of the amazing experiences of its field workers. These pamphlets may be secured upon request without cost.

Beginning with its first president, Alexander Henry, the society has numbered among its officers and committee members some of the ablest men of America, including authors, statesmen, jurists, financiers and merchants. Its headquarters are located at 1816 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Retrospect and Prospect

THIS market closes the old year with a feeling of gratitude for the patronage it has received, and faces the new year with resolution to do even better in efforts to please. The longer we serve, the better we understand public wishes, and the better we are able to gratify them. Therefore, spurred by ambition, we should and will improve in quality of service.

With heartiest good wishes for the new year, Central Market Fred R. Dean, Proprietor Two Phones—66 and 67

Everybody in our place wishes everybody in your place A Happy New Year and we thank you for the favors shown us during 1916 J. H. Wendte & Co.

With Joe Stocker in the hospital and W. J. Bryan in eclipse, about all Nebraska can brag over right now is 'Procter & Kleener,' the premier base ball player.

The new year with firm resolution to do better and achieve more, will seem to usher in. During the past year, industry has been awarded with profit in Wayne county. Farmers and townspeople alike have enjoyed prosperity. Country and county, materially and otherwise, and have still more to review with satisfaction at the close of 1917.

Life is full of ever changing lights and shadows for the man who is sensitive. Enjoyment of sunshine is not allowed to continue long until it is cooled by a bank of clouds. The hidden truth and are as bright as hidden truth. We are soothed by success, only to be hit soon by disappointment or by the angelic choir. The reason for this is no matter how great the reason for personal satisfaction, it is wrong and paid by the struggle and suffering of those who are not so fortunate. Neither light nor shadow varies the feelings of the man who is not sensitive, who is ultra-phlegmatic. He is neither happy nor unhappy.

A law put into the statutes of Nebraska four years ago provides that twenty patrons of a school can petition for a position in teaching of any foreign language. It is not optional with school boards. If twenty patrons ask to have Italian, French or any other foreign language taught, it must be done. Some foreign languages are popularly included in high school curriculum, but the law grants no such privilege to people who would thrust foreign languages upon the public. In a city like Omaha or Lincoln—a dozen or more foreign languages might be ordered taught in one school. The law is necessary, and does some violence to the American spirit. We would like to see the law repealed.

The Newcastle Times has had the contract for printing the proceedings of the county board of Disposition the past year, and the Wakefield Times of December 7 contained proceedings of August 22. The Republican thinks the proceedings ought to be published in the best order, unadvised with age, and that when they are published, they ought to give the widest possible circulation. If people want to read ancient history, they would find a review of the 'Age of Troy' rather than followed in the dim and distant past. An advantage in having board proceedings published promptly lies in the fact that the public is informed proposed to be spent before warrants are issued.

The editor of the Herald is gratified to note the opportunity for an enlarged service which has come to Norris A. Huse, editor and half owner of the Norfolk Daily News, who is going to New York to be president of the American Press Association, and advertising manager for that organization, he enters a field of unusual usefulness for America's rural publishers as thus indirectly to the American public. The surprising efficiency of the Daily News is a reflection of the ability, energy and sound judgment behind the enterprise. Norris succeeded a father of indomitable energy, a man who stepped forward rapidly but judiciously, his hands as capable and ambitious sons have developed the plant left to them. Norris will radiate from his New York headquarters the results of experience gained as leader of the Daily News, and will be able to serve well the American Press Association and simultaneously the rural publishers of the American public.

IDLE FARM. Omaha Best livestock is essentially an agricultural state, and as such is in the first rank. In many ways, wealth, due entirely to the prosperity of its farmers, this state is fourth in the union. But the possibilities of the farms of the state has not been realized. Not a great many years ago it was seriously set forth that enough of the ground might be found in the fence corners and along the neglected highways of the state to more than feed its people. were it properly cultivated, and thus give some figures that are even used to be sold. This may have been slightly exaggerated, but a report from the State Board of Agriculture gives some figures that are even more startling. According to Secretary Meritt's tabulation, less than half the land of the farms of the state was used during the current year. Of thirty millions of acres of farms in Nebraska, only fourteen millions were under cultivation. Making the allowance for fields allowed to lie fallow, and for pastures, there yet remains a tremendous acreage unused that ought to be put into service. This land is not all located in the undesirable parts of the state, but much of it is found in the best sections of the land. For example, in Lancaster county 14,750 acres were uncultivated this year, in Gage county 13,935, and in Otoe 13,982. Wheat in Lancaster county averaged twenty-two bushels to the acre, in Gage eighteen and in Otoe twenty-one. Showing a potential loss of $1,000,000 in these three counties of several millions of dollars. Intensive farming has always been urged on our farmers, but more than that is needed, the full use of the fields. The state is not going to suffer from overproduction.

THE PRIMARY. Aurora Republican: Richard L. Metcalfe makes a timely appeal through his paper, the Omaha News-Breaker, for attention to the acknowledged defects of the direct primary. Last spring, when the monotony was in plain view, there were none so poor as to do it honor but distasteful lends enchantment and to our state.

near approach of tangible responsibility adds luster to the average legislator's heart. Mr. Metcalfe does well to remind his readers that this republic was founded upon the principle of representative government, not pure democracy. This fact seems to have been lost sight of in the legislative tinkering by which the present primary law was enacted. With all its faults the old constitution system was in many respects preferable to the present primary. With railroad control broken—there was really no occasion for a change. But conceding that the repeal of the entire measure would be going a step too far, we believe that it might be amended along the lines suggested by Mr. Metcalfe in such a way as to preserve the best features of both systems. Either the Crawford county plan or the preliminary nomination of two candidates for each office by convention, with final selection to be made directly by the voters in primary, would eliminate most of the objectionable points and be a vast improvement over the present free-for-everybody-with-money scramble that is a disgrace to our state.

The wonderful scenery of the Sierra Nevada mountains is brought to the embellishment of the "Bluebird" photograph, to be exhibited at the Crystal theatre on Wednesday, January 3, under the title of "The Girl of Lost Lake." Rugged mountain peaks, the dense foliage of fir and balsam tree, the broad expanse of Lost Lake's shimmering and placid surface, are provided as a nature-setting to the dramatic and engaging portrayal of a delightful picture story of love. "The Girl of Lost Lake" is a play without a time, a picture that embodies fascinating interest without the intervention of any "problems" or the violation of any codes. Written and produced especially for Bluebird presentation, every element that makes for a close approach to perfection in camera-action and moving picture production has been fulfilled with lavish expenditure of money and art.

RAILROAD HEARING
OVER NEW SCHEDULE
 Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 19.—Contending that the new time-card on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railroad out of Sioux City south through Nebraska was solely for the purpose of improving the service, officials of that road today before the state railway commission finally admitted that the principal reason for the change was to eliminate the street car proposition which enabled passengers from and to Sioux City to change to and from street cars at South Sioux City and Dakota City in order to save the interstate passenger charge of 2 1/2 cents a mile.

Among the officials who admitted that the saving in revenue was the main point was Gen. Supt. MacRae, of St. Paul, and Company Accountant, Concilium Hanson, Hancock, Poulson and Gildersleeve. Absent, Harrington and Lamberson.

THE COST OF LIVING. Lincoln Journal: It is given out that the president plans a little later in the session of congress to appear before it with suggestions looking to effective action on the subject of the cost of living. The United States government is a century and a quarter old. In all that time there has been no formidable political movement or strong political action that stated definitely to the problem of the cost of living. There has been action which incidentally affected this subject. The homestead act, the anti-trust laws and measures by which the settlement and cultivation of the unoccupied lands of the country were encouraged and induced in reducing the cost of living. But that was not the direct object.

Our greater interest has usually been in the contrary direction. We have been more concerned with getting high prices for our product than low prices for our purchases. The democratic tariff of 1913 was indeed proposed as a means of reducing the cost of living. It might have had some influence in that direction had not the war arisen to upset all ordinary calculations. But that would not have done very much. When the president attacks the problem, therefore, his plans will be a matter of the deepest interest and importance. The cost of living problem is fundamental. It is primarily the question of the privilege of people are getting the fair equivalent of the goods they produce or of the service they render. No law to reduce price can in the long run give us more food than we grow, or more shelter than we build. If our living is too high, it means that some people are getting what belongs to others. Any attack on the problem which is worth the name will accordingly have to go into the question of monopoly and special privilege, and any remedy worth the name will have to deprive some one of the privilege of consuming more than the production. There are questions of mere efficiency in distribution, of course, but these are not of the chief importance. If the president goes into the subject in that fundamental way, the democratic tariff of 1913 will start something. If he merely goes after some supposed middleman's goat, taking no heed to deeper reasons why an occasional middleman gets a corner on things, the cost of living problem will be next year and the next about where it is now.
