

THE WAYNE HERALD IN THIRTY-FIVE YEARS

GREAT CHANGES ARE MADE

Voice From Clouds—Enthusiastic Editor—Reviews Past—Points Out New Methods.

Personnel of the Wayne Herald's Working Force

Loyal and Efficient Helpers Largely Explain Growth and Success of Newspaper Enterprise

Won't you contrast present newspapering with what it was thirty-five years ago, said Miriam, Herald editor in 1950, looking to her father, who had joined the unseemly multitude some years before. Inventions and psychic developments have wrought in thirty-five years wonderful changes in processes and talents by which news and opinion are distributed. The editor of the Herald had for many years a succession of valuable aids, and when a few years ago he was privileged to advance to higher spheres, Miriam, trained for the newspaper field and intensely fond of it, was virtually in charge. She had been largely directing the paper's business and editorial policy for half a decade, and the erstwhile editor's advisory help was not interrupted by his transition. Since easy communication with the disembodied had been made possible, she was enabled to keep in close touch with him and every day receive the benefit of his finer experience. The next year after practical intercourse between the seen and unseen had been established, she opened the department, "The Invisible World," and has increased it from time to time, as readers are aware. From the other side, the former editor has been furnishing news of interest. The evolutions and employments and diversions of people, gone before, have been carefully reported. He has been able to contribute a share to clearing the mysteries of the ages, and fixing in the minds of mortals unquestioned confidence and pleasant anticipation.

The past editor had just returned from a jaunt to the constellation of Orion. The paved streets of Wayne and the paved roads for miles in every direction leading to the spacious and snugly business blocks, the enlarged State Normal group, the magnificent residences—the many different and substantial improvements—were impressed on his mind as Miriam suggested a brief retrospect.

"The swift-winged Herald airship which serves to keep you in touch with subscribers and business and news sources—contrasted with the Ford which ran about for us in the early days, suggests the difference in means of service in all lines between now and then," remarked the past editor, as the signed spiritual nectar, caught from a sunbeam. "The way you talk news and other matter for the Herald into a machine which in turn manipulates the approved knotype, without the aid of human hands is a great advantage over the old method. You have read how we used to employ a man to work the keys of a linotype after the fashion of the typewriter—long ago discarded—and how laborious and exacting was the task. Your issue of from seventy-five to one hundred pages every week is a big thing compared to the twelve, sixteen and twenty-page editions which were the rule thirty-five years ago. The increased territory you cover, the improved facilities, advanced methods, the fine intelligence of the people have made phenomenal changes possible."

Moving closer to Miriam, and suggesting, as he had often done before, that the sting of cold be passed with perishable mortality, the voice from the ether resumed: "A great war was drawing to a close thirty-five years ago, and out of the terrible crucible of war, a new age came. I believe, the higher standard of living which has since developed. At the end of that dark tragedy began an era of less selfishness and clearer understanding, and steadily knitting together, as you realize, the seen and the unseen, aiding in the uplifting of community life. And with this spirit I am glad to see the Herald keeping pace and in happy accord."

"I am pleased to note your crusade in favor of more effective means to restrain evil thinking. The more earnest work and disinterestedness—the more easily is a turn by evil thoughts, and you are doing noble service by seeking to more completely protect society against shafts of hate or revenge. It is interesting to note by the annual report the decrease in number of patients treated in the state hospital for insanity. The report shows the disease is diminishing, and accordingly that the mental condition is more healthful and encouraging."

"No, I haven't seen the Wayne man who accidentally fell out of a window in the seventh story of the Wayne hotel yesterday, and thus vacated his earthly tenement. He probably hasn't recovered from the shock incident to transition. He will be floating around soon, and I will be glad to ask him to assist me to fall. The suspicion that he had acute indigestion, superinduced by eating too much from a fresh supply of food, is dispensed from the electric table to be tested."

"Yes, I saw early today Frank French who used to write pages and half pages for the Herald. He has gone to explore a remote Copeland and will soon be back."

ELIZABETH DURRIE

MARGUERITE FORBES

JACK BLY

C. F. WHITNEY

It is the custom of the Herald to publish the picture of any one added to its staff, and with the presentation of Miss Elizabeth Durrie, installed last week, I believe it would be of general interest to publish the pictures of the entire group behind this growing newspaper enterprise. Harmony, integrity, faithfulness and efficiency are essential to success in the newspaper game, and I feel fully warranted in self-congratulation over the excellent fitness of each assistant for his or her respective task. The Herald intentionally employs only people of alert brains, people who are ambitious, energetic and progressive, and who have the best interests of the paper, the public and themselves at heart. I believe these people amply meet expectations. Each sustains my judgment of the right one, for a particular duty. The Herald has accordingly grown in service and volume of business. Results encourage determination for still greater improvement.

The need of some one whose time could be devoted largely to ad-writing and special features has been apparent for several months, and therefore I decided that Miss Marguerite Forbes who has been a dynamic force in the evolution of the paper during the past year, was the one to handle the service proposed. Some of the best advertising experts in the United States are ladies. I know Miss Forbes will soon become an expert, and she is at the service of the public to prepare reasonable, snappy, attractive, pulling advertisements.

Miss Forbes is succeeded by Miss Elizabeth Durrie as news gatherer in neighboring towns, and to give assistance in handling different lines of local reporting. Miss Durrie likes people, and people like her.

She is affable, but not obtrusive. She has abundant ability, with plenty of ambition to develop and improve. I believe my confidence has been well placed again.

C. F. Whitney has been with the Herald ever since I have been here. He is an expert linotype machinist, operator, and thoroughly understands all mechanical lines of the business, though he devotes main attention now to the job department. He takes infinite satisfaction in turning out one work, and giving the customer a better job than he expects. He is a bundle of nervous energy, alert to every duty and alive to the needs and requirements of his department.

When you read the attractively set and arranged advertisements in The Herald think of I. C. Trumbauer, another bundle of nervous energy. He is the artist who puts good taste and finished skill into the ads. He is the man who knows exactly how to make your ad grip attention and speak with force and effectiveness. He has charge of the make-up and arrangement of the newspaper pages. I know none better for that service.

Jack Bly is the faithful linotype operator. He is always on the job, and always "puts it over." He begins his week Sunday night, and every morning until press day, the desk is cleared of all copy as the result of his night's work. Like wine, he improves with age.

John Cathart, an ambitious school boy, is on hand promptly to do the Herald's chores, enlarging his duties as he learns.

That's the force. Isn't it a group worth presenting and mentioning in accord with candid opinion? —The Editor.

THE FIELD OF BUSINESS.

Sioux City Journal, January 29: There was no "leak" in connection with the president's new peace note, and its effect upon Wall street was negligible. The first assumption that the note might lead directly to new peace negotiations was not confirmed by later reflection. There was a little slump in securities prices early in the week, and subsequent demand continued rather slack, but the dullness was attributed to influences other than the peace prospect.

One of the largest "melons" of the present munitions boom was cut by the Bethlehem Steel company. This concern raised the regular dividend on its common stock from 7 1/2 per cent to 10 per cent and declared an additional stock dividend of 200 per cent. At the same time the company offered its common stockholders the privilege of taking a new issue of $15,000,000 common at a par privilege, which all holders are expected to accept with eagerness. The effect of this financing will be to raise the common stock from $15,000,000 to $60,000,000 and give the company a working capital of nearly, if not quite, $100,000,000.

Another "melon," reflective of general rather than munitions prosperity, was cut by the Sears-Roebuck company. This concern raised its regular dividend to 8 per cent and declared a stock dividend of 25 per cent. The total capitalization of the company is now $83,000,000, of which $5,000,000 is preferred stock. A recent survey of the copper industry showed an unprecedented situation. For the first time in the history of the industry there was not a pound of unsold copper on hand at the beginning of the new year. The current output is being delivered on contracts made last fall, and the indication is that no new orders for raw material can be filled until after July 1 next. Conditions assure high prices for the finished product throughout the year.

Several shipments of gold have been made to South America in fulfillment of new financing operations. The New York bank report showed a loss of surplus reserve for the week. Bank clearings for the week aggregated $4,779,000,000.

POWER OF PACIFISM.

Nebraska Farmer: When Governor Stanley of Kentucky dispersed an angry mob bent on lynching a negro merely by making a moral appeal to its members and telling them that it would not harm the prisoners or the officers in charge without also harming the governor of the state, he gave a splendid demonstration of pacifism. The militarist idea is that evil must be resisted by physical force, that to pursue any other course is to be a mollycoddle or poltroon. And yet by moral force Governor Stanley did what it would have required a regiment of soldiers to do—and more, for he sent the crowd away in good humor. Those who say pacifism won't work should ponder these things.

A good deal is being written about the high cost of paper, but the effect is so touching and aggressive that we have no courage to refer to it at length.

Though manifestly lean and rather credulous, we were not one of those who were bunched by an advertisement that advertised to put flesh on thin people.

We wonder if this from the Fairbury News is a thrust at the Herald editor and his Ford: "There are a lot of people driving motor cars and others who are not competent to operate a motor carriage on an asphalt pavement."

Some very clear-headed people question the necessity of building town sewers before paving. They point out other towns that have been paved without putting in an elaborate system of drainage in advance. They urge that Main street ought to be paved, and then when paving is to be extended, they would adopt necessary or feasible systems of drainage.

Students who are indolent and misbehave at school, not only defeat the object of the training for themselves, but monopolize the sacrifice of time which should be shared with students who are orderly and ambitious to learn. So long as teachers are required to do police work they cannot employ their best efforts as instructors. Thus, the studious pupil suffers to a degree with the one who is indolent and who takes the teacher's endurance in the way of discipline.

The profitable results of gardening engaged in by young men in different parts of the state last year under the auspices of the agricultural school encourages the hope that some systematic effort in this direction may take root and thrive in Wayne. Many young people are not adequately employed during the long summer vacation. Many vacant lots, usually allowed to grow weeds, ought to be cultivated and made to produce valuable crops. The industry would be excellent training for the young, and would be suitably rewarded.

"We are just now halting between a dead, country town and a live progressive city," remarked A. R. Davis, well known Wayne attorney, to a Herald representative. When I made a talk at the opening of the new Wayne depot last year," continued Mr. Davis, "I urged paving as one of the essentials to stimulate growth, and I am firmly convinced that the position I took then was sound and well justified. My acquaintance with small towns that are paved strengthens my conviction that it is not a mistake to pave, but a mistake not to pave. Refusal to adopt modern improvements is tantamount to refusal to progress."

Beatrice has called a special election to vote bonds of $400,000 with which to pave intersections. During the town's boom thirty or more years ago, Beatrice did some paving and then struck by hard times, rested on its oars. Ten years ago the old paving looked like the billows of a storm-tossed sea, and when rolling sea waves sounded like a rock crusher. Nothing was done in the way of fixing the old paving or putting down new paving until five or six years ago. Then the ozone of enterprise and improvement overspread the town. Old paving was repaired and new paving was laid. Now $400,000 will be voted for intersections. The need of good streets and roads is now so generally felt that there will be no stop in that direction until every street in town has been paved and every road in the surrounding country has been put into shape. It is a matter to defy mud and reach the city during any season regardless of weather.

Nearly everybody inherently likes publicity, if it is favorable. As a rule and naturally enough, doctors and dentists like to be noticed and commended, though a tradition, still somewhat adhered to, inclines the notion that it is unbecoming for a member of either profession to seem to seek publicity. In the case of the smacks of advertising is taboed by those who can't get away from archaic conventions. Any member of the profession who lets his light shine on people who know his merits and attainments, is liable to be regarded as awfully undignified by the stickler for tradition. The worthy ambitious man who kicks such ultra-conservation has the spectacle of an orange in his hand though his advertisement is a mere campaign of education, is likely to cause frowning foreheads, uplifted eyebrows, and an exhalation of adverse criticism. No business or profession is too exalted to be above the need of publicity. Advertising has come to be regarded essential to growth and service in every line of endeavor, and no occasion, whether curing clothing or feeding people, can achieve the success that is possible without letting people know what is being accomplished and what can be accomplished.

VISION OF THE FUTURE

H. C. Wells in Saturday Evening Post:
In the last ten years I have developed religious belief that has now become to me as real as any commonplace fact. I think that mankind is still, as it were, collectively dreaming and hardly more ready to realize than a very young child. It has these dreams that we express for the flags of nationalities and by strange legends and by irrational creeds and ceremonies, and its dreams at times become such nightmares as this war. But the time draws near when mankind will awake and the dreams will fade away, and then there will be humanity, and no king, no emperor, no leader but the one God of mankind. This is my faith. I am as certain of this as I was in 1900 that the world would eventually be as it is as it must be.

GRAND JURY AT OMAHA STARTS WAR ON VICE

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 30.—Two true bills returned by the grand jury here are believed to be against persons charged with violation of laws governing vice suppression. Instructions regarding a case of a starting character were read to the jury by District Judge Sears. His instructions contained the following: "If there are those who are engaged in the activity of levying money on fallen women under the guise of promise of pretended protection, it is your duty to return a true bill in that relation. The court calls your attention to the liquor laws of the state and you should investigate the rumors now in circulation." "The court calls your attention to the laws of Nebraska relating to prostitution and houses of prostitution and you should investigate all persons who are violating such laws."

Debauchery of Girls

Principal J. C. Masters of Central high, and Karl F. Adams, principal of the commercial high school, appeared before the grand jurors today in response to hurriedly issued subpoenas shortly before noon. They were called after Probation Officer A. Miller was disassembled with the jury for nearly an hour. It is understood that Masters and Adams will be called upon to reveal whatever information they may have concerning the debauchery of school girls in the upper grades, and also of proximity of immoral houses to Commercial high on Leavenworth street.

May Ask Prosecution

Intimations that some of the students at the latter school have been lured into the red light houses, will be presented to the jury by police and juvenile officers, it is said. Prosecutions of owners of the property, under the Miller law, and criminal action against the proprietors of the places may be asked by the grand jurors. Two true bills were returned by the grand jury Tuesday, after three hours' session, yesterday afternoon. These indictments will not be made public until the persons named are apprehended and a return is made in open court.

BILL PROPOSING TO KNOCK OUT CIGARET

Lincoln, Jan. 30.—It was hurry and skurry jump and run, this afternoon when the house was called out into shape by the bill to prohibit the introduction of cigars and cigarettes fairly had their tongues running out when the bill was called and summing up of the work showed that the bill had been shoved into the hopper. Flood of Bills. This runs the number up to 528 and the west is yet to come, for there is one more day left and when the time comes to adjourn tomorrow it is likely that an evening session may be resorted to if any are shut out. In the senate forty-six were out against, running the total up to 199.

The house out of the impasse. The bill was the cigar bill, which two years ago was defeated. The bill provides that no person under 18 years of age can buy, smoke or have in his possession any cigars and any person who smokes a minor is subject to a heavy fine. The present law makes it unlawful to sell to minors, but does not prohibit the smoking, so that there is still chance of conviction. The present bill will make it easy to get the evidence.

Wilson Endorses

Endorsement of President Wilson's peace address, as provided for in a resolution introduced last week by Senator Hiram Bland, which gave the members of the house a chance to talk. Mr. Lemar, an old-time populist, opposed Mr. writer Peterson, republican floor leader, became just a trifle sarcastic and remarked that he did not believe the action of the Nebraska legislature would make much difference to President Wilson.

The resolution was, however, adopted by a vote of 55 to 35, six democrats, Dafoe, Dau, Fleetwood, Lemar, Maysburg and Shafer voting against it, with six republicans, Harris (Buffalo), Hostetler, Meigs, Reneker, Rickard and Tracewell voted for it.

Lincoln, Jan. 30.—The Nebraska senate today reversed itself on the federal liquor license question, introduced forty-seven new bills, passed three on third reading and no action on the other, and called it a day's work.

Senator Albert pushed through without a dissenting vote his resolution, asking congress to require in the future that all bills introduced by congress to states the names and addresses of those who paid liquor taxes. A strenuous effort was made by Senator Beal of Custer to get the resolution referred to the prohibition committee, but after a little parley this was killed by a vote of 13 to 20. No one voted against the resolution.

Last week after a bitter fight the senate passed a resolution memorializing congress to deny "licenses" in dry territory. Albert, who contended that there was no "license" and dry tax, fought the plan, but it carried over his head.

Look Into Road Fund

Resolutions for a joint committee to investigate the federal aid plan, and report the present procedure are in the legislature. It is estimated that $1,600,000 ought to be accepted were passed.—On the committee, Lieutenant Governor Howard appointed Senators McAllister, Spirk and Johnson. A petition endorsing the Spirit bill, Senate File 60, reorganizing the State Board of Health and curtailing the powers of the board of secretaries, was read in the senate today by Howard W. Quick of Crete and fifty-seven others. Several letters were read endorsing Gene Melady's boxing bill.

WRESTLING MATCH AT SIOUX CITY ON FEB. 7

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 29.—John Olin who is claiming the wrestling championship of the world as the result of a decision he received at Springfield, Mass., in December, and Joe Stecher, the great scissor artist of Nebraska, will make his first appearance in the west at Sioux City, Ia., Wednesday evening, February 7, when he tackles Otto Freberg in a finish match. This promises to be the greatest wrestling card the central west has seen since the famous Gutch-Hackenschmidt bout in Chicago.

Freberg has been picked by the Sioux City promoters to oppose Olin because he holds a decision over the giant Finn. Freberg is credited with having thrown Olin when he first came to the United States. This is the only blot on Olin's record and he is desirous of erasing it.

The Olin-Freberg bout was to have been staged at Mason, Ga., but the Sioux City promoters caught the Georgians for this important battle. When Freberg informed Olin that he would meet him at Sioux City, the giant Finn cancelled an engagement at Los Angeles, Calif., in order to take on Freberg. Olin startled the wrestling world by forcing Joe Stecher to quit in a Springfield bout in a matter of hours of grueling wrestling. The Nebraska phenom was not able to cope with the defense of the giant Finn and he refused to wrestle after Olin had tossed him into the "toss." The decision was awarded to Olin and with it went the supposed championship of the world.

The winner of the Olin-Freberg match will be the champion of the world. The bill which is being picked to be the next world's champion.

The Olin-Freberg bout will be staged at the auditorium and the seats will be placed on a week's advance. The same popular prices for past bouts this season will prevail for the bout on February 7.

From People You Know

The following communication to the Herald was written by the student of the school taught by Miss Monte Theodal at San Antonio, Texas.

In the heart of the 'City of Missions,' rises the scarred visage of the Alamo, a place hallowed by its baptism of blood. This mission is supposed to have been founded in 1724 on the Rio Grande. After several changes in both name and location it was in about 1718 removed to San Pedro Springs under the name of San Antonio de Valero, so called from Saint Anthony of Padua, and the Duke of Valero, Viceroy of Mexico. It was next moved to the Military Plaza in San Antonio, and finally on May 8, 1742, the first stone of the Alamo was laid, and it was then given the name that is now so precious to every lover of liberty and heroism.

In the right bank of the San Antonio River, about four miles below San Antonio, stands the most beautiful of all the missions San Jose de Aguayo. This mission was founded about 1718 by the famous Father Miguele. It is a masterpiece of completion. The earnings and statutory which ornament the front of San Jose are the work of a Spanish artist, Francar, who devoted much of his life to the study of this work. The south window of the baptistry is considered by good judges the "finest gem of architectural ornamentation existing in America."

In 1731 Concepcion, the best preserved of the missions, was founded two miles below San Antonio. Its twin towers, its picturesque dome, its front gateway so curiously decorated, its leaders and tried to mount. The fury of despair nerved the arms of Travis' men, and again they hurled back the foe. The Mexicans, bleeding, wounded, and shattered, retreated, and the attack, led by the stern command of Santa Anna, and the flashing sabres of the avenging, forced them on. By tens, by hundreds, they swarmed up the ladder, and the forward attack, the second, crushing all beneath them, while the Texans stood like rocks, waiting to see others feel their mighty strength. But there was a limit to all human power. What could one hundred and eighty-one men, worn out by eleven days of constant effort, do against four thousand fresh troops? The Mexicans were ordered forward, and the bodies of their dead comrades—now they were on the walls! Now the noble Travis fell! Now Bonham. The enemies were in the convent, and the outer walls were abandoned, and our men fought their way backward to the barracks and the church. Every apartment was a battlefield, every tower a fortress. The Mexicans were ordered forward. Crushing through the massive stone walls, came the cannon balls from their own guns, which the enemy had now turned against them, yet our heroes struggled on until they fell, literally cut to pieces. But not one fell unavenged. The court ran with blood; but the conflict did not cease until every one of the noble band lay a bleeding sacrifice upon his country's altar. "Death and Santa Anna held the place."

By the order of Santa Anna, the bodies of the Texans were collected in a huge pile and burned, while

THE WAR MORTALITY.
Lincoln Journal: According to careful authority the number of men who have been killed or wounded in the European war is now in the neighborhood of fifty millions. Several months ago Professor L. P. Jacks played the number of fat millionaires, and his estimates have been pronounced rather over-conservative. The killing and wounding have continued steadily since. The war has accordingly killed or crippled the equivalent of half the population of the United States. If a black plague were to strike down so many people, science would not sleep till it found the cause and applied the cure. The effort to wipe out the red plague which has struck down these fifty millions is left, astonishing as it may seem, to a few "impractical dreamers." As for science, it appears to be too busy devising machinery for the faster killing of men in war and the more effective mobilizing of economic force for the support of war to have much time left for a scientific search for the germs of war and a courageous application of the necessary germicides.

ated, its quaint legends, all make this mission one of peculiar interest. The front of the building was formerly painted in brilliant colors, but the art and sight have long since faded. There were many other missions founded; some have entirely disappeared, but some still stand majestic monuments of the patience of the Spanish priests.

Years have passed and the 'City of Missions' is no longer under the rule of Spanish priests, but under the Mexican flag. Settlers have come from Mexico and the United States and those from the latter country have become so numerous and have formed themselves into such a compact unit, that the Mexican rule is no longer unjust. So a movement is being started to free Texas from the hated Mexican rule. The battle of Goliad has been fought and won by the Mexicans. Mexico has been decided at a council, that Santa Ana, the Mexican general, shall storm the Alamo between midnight and sunrise on March 6, 1836.

Figures and facts to take the Alamo at any price. Shortly after midnight on March 6 the Mexican troops surrounded the Alamo. The infantry were supplied with crow-bows and ladders for scaling the walls. Back of these were the cavalry, who were ordered to kill any soldier who shirked the fight, and to see that no Texas escaped. Amidst the roar of the cannon, Santa Anna's army advanced, fired the attack. The Texans received them with a terrible volley of musketry and artillery. Back rushed the Mexicans before that fire of death. Again they advanced, planted the dead Mexicans were taken to the cemetery for burial. As the Sabbath sun sank slowly in the west the smoke from that funeral pyre of heroes descended into a bleeding rain that sacred fire sprang the flames that lighted through all Texas; the fire of patriotism which finally consumed many Mexican heroes. In the heart of Santa Anna, the Napoleon of the west, to bow his haughty head.

The dawn of peace has come and an Alamo is in the heart of the Texas. But as time moves on, Texas is annexed to the Union. Then over the Alamo there are two flags unfurled, the Lone Star and the Star Spangled Banner.

Many years have passed; peaceful years, full of prosperity and happiness and the City of Missions has become a large city, when the dark cloud of war hovering near the horizon—and troops are gathered from all parts of the Union to place their arms on the Texas soil.

Besides Fort Sam Houston, which is situated in the northeastern part of San Antonio and is one of the largest and best equipped posts in the United States, there are stationed. For the use of the soldiers at the fort and Camp Wilson there is a base hospital and a hospital train. This hospital train is of special interest because it is the only train of its kind in the United States. It is composed of eleven coaches in which there are quarters for doctors, nurses, sick and wounded and an operating car. This operating car is equipped with a wonderful system of lighting by electricity which gives a light considered almost equal to daylight. In the coaches there are beds for one hundred and fifty beds along the sides with aisles between the rows of beds so that the patients may be easily reached by the doctors or nurses.

As the Alamo is prospering greatly because of the presence of so many more people, Joske Brothers, the largest department store here, reports that their business has been more than tripled in the last year and that they attribute this increase chiefly to the soldiers who receive about eighteen dollars a month, and officers who receive from one hundred and fifty dollars a month, with all spending at least one-tenth of their wages in the stores of San Antonio.

INTERURBAN LINES FOR NORTH NEBRASKA

Norfolk Daily News, January 29: Inspired by statements from financiers that Norfolk is the best city in Nebraska for an interurban railroad project, A. D. Bowen, president of the Bowen Transit Co., of Omaha, has asked the Commercial club directors for an audience at which he will ask their support in an interurban railroad project which he says he is anxious to start, using Norfolk as the center of the enterprise and running lines to nearby towns. Mr. Bowen was in Norfolk and talked with a number of business men and at their regular meeting Friday, the club directors instructed Secretary McCleary to invite Mr. Bowen to Norfolk for a discussion of his proposition. Mr. Bowen appears enthusiastic over Norfolk and its territory. He believes that the time is rapidly approaching when each farmer will have a railroad running into his own premises and that the greater part of the vehicular travel now common on the public highways will be done away with.

Cars Now Building.
Mr. Bowen is a railroad man and has patented and is now building a small, compact, self-propelled car with which he expects to solve the transportation problem on the rural highways.

"We understand," Mr. Bowen said to Norfolk business men, "that Norfolk is making very substantial progress in the way of growth, and that there is a desire to secure an interurban line connecting Norfolk with Madison and Stanton. Our plans will solve this problem with very little burden to the community."

It was told in Omaha that if there is a city in Nebraska where the interurban project could be developed to its fullest possibilities, that city is Norfolk.

Mr. Bowen says his company plans the construction of light-weight rolling stock, including small gas passenger cars, carrying twenty-five passengers, and small freight cars, about a third the size of ordinary freight cars. The rails would be light-weight, run along the public highways and close to the farm fence lines. Portable tracks would branch off from the main lines to the farm yards or directly to the farm buildings where freight cars could be loaded during shipping time and, if necessary, the tracks could be removed. Only one man would be necessary to operate each car. The lightness of the equipment would make expensive ballast or roadbed unnecessary and, he says, the running expenses of each car would approximate only 7 1/2 cents per mile. Passengers, he figures, could be hauled on these cars for 2 cents per mile. Mr. Bowen declared that the farmers could not run their automobiles for trips to the city as cheaply as they could ride to town on the interurban car.

"When the farmer wants to take his family to town in his machine, Mr. Bowen argued, he would probably take his own car, but in case of a business trip, would be likely to use the interurban. He says the farmer would find the interurban freight cars a great convenience for making grain shipments at the proper time.

Claims to Have Eastern Capital.
What Mr. Bowen will expect from Norfolk in the way of financial aid is not known. He declared in a conversation, however, that he expects no financial backing and that his project can get unlimited financial backing from eastern capital. He says he has constructed a number of interurban lines in Iowa and California, but apparently his present ideas are new and result from long study of the interurban question. He declares because of the small cost of building and operating it is possible to build interurban lines from a town of from 3,000 to 10,000 inhabitants to other surrounding towns and make them profitable.

Many Previous Projects.
A number of interurban projects have been contemplated for Norfolk during the past ten years. At one time farmers around Newman Grove became interested in a project which was brought to the attention of the Commercial club here, but finally lost its interest. Later Mr. Chamberman made a survey of the country around Norfolk and declared he was planning the construction of interurban railroads to various towns in the vicinity. Many maps, blue prints and photographs were made of the proposed route. It was claimed that the project was being backed by eastern capital and that the European war put an end to the enterprise.

THE BILLS.
Lincoln Journal: Hear the rustle of the bills; legislative bills—So would Edgar Allen Poe remark, we suppose. In the smoke of legislative rooms how the bill file booms and booms, he might add. And towards the end we should hear of the bills, bills, bills, bills, bills; of the hustle and the rustle of the bills.

By next Wednesday, according to official forecasters, the tide of bills will have reached past the hour and mark in the house. There will be bills to make water run up hill; bills to keep roosters from crowing middle C if at all; and then only plain bills to put down the price of potatoes and to put up the price of pork; bills to keep babies from crying; bills to compel ears of corn to grow at least twelve inches long and two to the stalk; bills for the extraction of blood from turpins and tears from stones; and bills for bidding water to seek the sea. Also there will be 999 other bills, many of them changing ones. Representative Pries is said to say.

It has been the fashion for some sessions past to roast legislatures for their proclivity in bills. There is here a waste of precious white paper it is true. There is likewise a waste of time for the bill writers of the legislative reference bureau.

This department has been carrying a bill load of late and working hours which would scandalize a labor union. The flood of bills well nigh strangles the committee, moreover, and creates the excuse for that fatal legislative monotony, the sifting committee. All this we know and regret. But mature observation suggests the uselessness and perhaps the harmfulness of resisting this tide of bills.

It cannot be stopped safely any more than the winds can be stopped. Legislators have these bills in their systems. If they must get them out by the bill route or explode. We prefer the bill. What an innocent means this furnishes legislators, moreover, of pleasing their constituents. Constituents have ideas as to laws. How much more practical to introduce their bill than to argue with them. And one thing more: Where is to be found a more accurate and more accessible digest of the mind of the legislator than in these multitudinous bills? An artist could read these bills, if life were long enough, and out of them write an exposure of the most secret soul of the state. Every hope and aspiration, every idea and, we fear, every grief, would here be found expressed. Such is the gold ore flood of bills is mingling with the sands of time for ray and gem. Since we must have these bills, why not see the good in them?

POEM BOOSTS WAYNE AND WAYNE COUNTY

Following poem by an unknown author was read at the annual meeting of the Public Service Club Monday evening by Miss Marguerite Forbes:

Wayne County—Wayne!
 Great farms with fields and meadows,
 Pastures filled with lowing herds,
 Spacious orchards, deep in shadows
 Filled with vines of grape and berry,
 Yellow Goldenrod, gently nodding
 Underneath the leafy hovers,
 Wayne county, land of peace and plenty—
 Wayne county, glorious home of ours!

Grand old homesteads, once so barren,
 Now so rich with fruit and grain,
 Filled by honest hearted yeomen,
 German, English, Swedish, Dane,
 Working from the early morning
 Far into the glorious night,
 Plowing, planting, reaping, threshing,
 Light hearts making labor light.

No log houses now are scattered
 Here and there o'er prairie lands,
 But instead, each farm a village
 As upon its acres stand
 Large and roomy homes and stables,
 Corncribs filled with golden pride,
 Granaries, full to overflowing,
 With bins of small grain side by side.

Cellars, where when frosts of autumn
 Foretell many a wintry blast,
 Piles of russet and checked apples
 Are gathered by the lad and lass;

Bins of potatoes, turnips, carrots,
Onions, pumpkins by the score,
Rows of canned fruit, jams and jellies,
All are added to its store.

The chicken house is a wonder
 With chickens young and old,
 Ducks, geese, and there's the turkey
 For Thanksgiving dinner sold.
 While the garage in its newness,
 Holds a prominent place today,
 Whether Ford, Maxwell, or Buick
 It speeds the great highway.

But Wayne county's not all farms
 lands,
 It has its share of towns.
 Some are merely trading posts,
 One, a city of renown.
 A place progressive, wholesome,
 So full of life and dare
 The state felt safe in placing
 Its young folks in her care.

A band of men is organized
 To talk and plan and dine,
 And with all new improvements
 To keep the town in line.
 The Public Service club 'tis called
 We hope 'tis not in vain
 That the members ask the people
 To 'buy it here in Wayne.'

The stores are filled with bargains,
 The qualities the best,
 With clerks, polite and courteous,
 And windows all well dressed,
 Our banks are three in number
 And all are filled with gold—
 Here children are encouraged
 To save for when they're old.

We have lawyers here a plenty
 For those by troubles driven,
 Who charge a very trifling sum

For expert service given,
Physicians there are many
Of every cult and school,
And dentists who can fix the teeth
Of wise men or of fool.

A hospital with nurses
Whose training is the best,
They'll care for you thru sickness
Or if you need a rest,
Or if it's found to cure you
An operation's due,
All things are there provided
Clean, sanitary, new.

Of churches there are many
Of every class and creed,
In caring for the wayward
Wayne surely takes the lead.
For ministers are teachers,
Their congregations true,
You surely reach the city
Till some church is after you.

But when we mention schooling,
The wish of every heart,
Finds fullest satisfaction
In our educational mart.
Wayne High School is the finest
In the north central States field,
Her teachers are the leaders,
As they the fertile wild.

But glance up Normal avenue
And there with spirit and vane,
We see in all its beauty,
The Normal School of Wayne!
The campus, trees and parkings,
The buildings fine and grand,
The equipment and the faculty
Are the best in any land.

We've lovely homes and churches,
The best schools in the state,
Whatever sold or purchased,
And help for every fate,
So, if you're discontented
And wish a better lot,
Sell out—move to Wayne county,
Nebraska's garden spot.
—A Youthful Booster.

FRIENDSHIP

Freemont Tribune: One of the most difficult things in this world is to properly estimate personal friendships. So often all too often, friendships are based on business relations. Mostly people patronize other people whom they like and esteem as friends. Frequently, on the other hand, when patronage is not bestowed for the special reason whatever, it is assumed that there is lack of friendship. The social life is based very largely, in spite of all the altruists would do, to prevent it and have it otherwise, upon commercial transactions and to that extent it becomes a matter of profits. If, in some manner, we could think of each other purely and wholly as our genuine worth and virtues are, it would be a mighty sight better for all concerned.

CIGARETS

Lincoln Journal: The tobacco dealer who wants to abide by the laws has been for several years at a disadvantage in Nebraska. The law forbids selling cigarettes. The non-enforcement of the law has made this a prohibition only upon the dealer who cannot bring himself to violate a law. With the trade in cigarettes goes the crowd and increased trade in other articles. The dealer has had to choose between joining in disregard of the law and going out of business. This is wrong.

Meanwhile the inhabitants of the state have been taking daily lessons in disrespect for law and government. From the first, men could buy cigarette tobacco and find the wrappers conveniently near to be taken without cost. This was a lesson in law evasion. Boys know that cigarettes are forbidden to sell, yet are able to obtain them. They see that laws are made to be broken. The state is conducting a school of lawlessness.

It may not always be true of a law that it should be rigorously enforced or else repealed. It is true of this particular law. This legislature should take up the cigaret question and deal with it in sane and decisive fashion.

Representative Ollis has raised the issue by introducing a bill calculated to compel county attorneys to enforce the law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to young and old. Representative Puts has introduced a bill prohibiting the smoking of cigarettes in specified public places. If the present law is to stand, something in the nature of the Ollis bill should pass. In that case, a provision akin to the Puts bill might be of help in enforcing the law.

It is a grave question, however, whether the present law should not be greatly modified. The critical tobacco problem is the problem of keeping tobacco, and especially cigarettes, from stunting growing boys. As present tendencies go—ought perhaps to include the girls also. Nebraska has its big law-enforcing contract on its hands in connection with prohibition of the liquor traffic. If cigarettes can be kept away from the boys without going to the trouble to apply the prohibition to men, that is probably the expedient thing to do. The experience of tobacco dealers, of law officers, and of social workers would be valuable in deciding as to these points. What should be done is a matter for careful study. But the one thing is sure, the present situation is intolerable. The boys are less protected under the present drastic law than they were under the former law applying only to minors.

It is Easier to Complete a Telephone Call Than to Report—"The Line is Busy."

Very seldom does the telephone operator report a line busy when it isn't—it is less work to complete the call.

A request from a subscriber for a number which the operator reports busy usually means a second call will be made for that number.

If the subscriber makes a second call and the line is still busy, the operator's work has been doubled. If the subscriber calls for the number a third time, whether the connection is made or not, the operator's work has been tripled on this one call.

The line may be busy, (1) because some one is using the telephone called, (2) because another person on the party line called is using their telephone, or (3) when some one else is trying to get the number at the same time you are.

Please be considerate of the telephone operator—she does her work willingly, always courteously and wonderfully well.

The bureau will affect mostly those boys and girls who come to Norfolk from nearby towns or from the country to attend high school. The same bureau keeps tab on local boys and girls who should be in school and every effort is made to force parents to send children of school age into the schools for their educational advancement.

This is the most interesting and those who were not there can take up the thread of the discourse and enjoy it just as much as if they had heard the first.
The Luther League will be the theme of discussion. The young people who filled the house last Sunday will be alike interested in this lecture.

St. Paul's English Lutheran Church.
(Rev. J. H. Fetterolf, Pastor)
There has been a rearrangement of the Sunday school classes. One new class has been formed with Julius Horstad as teacher. Quite a number of scholars have been promoted. We hope to see ever scholar in his place next Sunday. The school meets promptly at 10 o'clock. Public worship with sermon 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. The subject of the morning sermon will be: "Laborers in the Vineyard." In the evening the seventh in the series on Joseph: "Joseph Meeting his Father."
Mrs. Harry McMillan will lead the missionary meeting next Wednesday afternoon. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. N. J. John.
The Luther League meets at 6:45 p. m. The subject is the 46th Psalm which is the basis of Luther's Battle Hymn. Mrs. Fetterolf is the leader. The Teacher-Training class meets in the pastor's study every Thursday evening. We would be glad to welcome still others into this circle to prepare themselves for efficient teaching.
The trustees have enlarged the choir platform and enclosed it with a railing. This has added much to the appearance of the church.

THE SUPER-WAR

Lincoln Journal: Whatever the president intended to accomplish by his last expression on the European war, he has mobilized the forces for a new contest. We might call it the war above the war, a contest of mind vs. matter.

Without entering into the old dispute as to the relative scope of mind and matter we can secure assent to the proposition that a very large part of our doings are the product of mental states which are subject to change. We meet one man and tell him he is an idiot. We laugh pleasantly and go about our business. We make the same remark to another man and there is a fight. The difference between the two cases is obviously one of mental attitude on the part of the insulted man. One habitually takes the Cowper view that a gentleman will not insult me and none other can. The other has a more general opinion that the president is a King and honor and the need of defending it by blows. Convert this man as Paul was converted and his reaction to insult is entirely different.

The president has helped to concentrate upon the world-situation the ideas which war upon war. The world has thus far been possessed by a war psychology of Kings and hierarchies have held their power by war. Others have won wealth by war. Thus war has been made the habit of the race. One British writer remarks that the president's suggestions presuppose the complete changing of human nature. Man, a fighting animal, is called upon to sheathe his swords. As well ask him to cease feeling and cast numbers of people in this country take a similarly cynical or hopeless view of the possibility of eliminating or greatly reducing war.

Against these intrenched ideas the president rallies the contrary conceptions of men. Man is not a fighting animal. Give him half a chance as numberless French tanks and the soldier will fight with his foe. He is the victim of a system and of a habit of mind, both of which can be changed. War is no more fixed in human nature than was the burning of witches and heretics and the institution of human slavery. These disappeared because new ideas entered and possessed men's minds. Let the president's peaceful settlement of international disputes put sufficient footing and war between England and Germany will be no more necessary than war between Nebraska and Kansas. So fight the anti-war army.

Back of every government of Europe stand peoples ready to rally to this war upon war. Some of the irritation at the present moment now expressed comes doubtless from men who as men of war realize that their lives are menaced by this enemy in the minds of men.

War lords, the men of any land who hope by force to dominate the life of the world, will no more welcome a declaration of peace than the rulers of an enemy in the minds of men.

their town on a wheelbarrow or Ford runabout early some morning before the neighbors are up and that it over near the center, Wayne Herald.

From the above, one who did not know better, could draw the inference that our little city amounted to nothing whatever. But, when it comes to modern improvements and the justice to get more we are of the opinion that our little city is even with all and ahead of many others in this county. However, we believe, in the matter of the county seat, that it should be located so that those living in the far corners of the county would have a somewhere equal distance to travel. In other words, the county capital should be located as near the center of the county as possible. Dixon Journal.

LOGAN, THE PRIZE

Dixon Journal: The Wayne Herald article on the prize hog to be made here, well, seem to be making a strong attempt to enlist the aid of that little burg by the river to assist them in grabbing off Logan township, the richest township in Dixon county. But for all their faults we hardly think our present county capital would be so foolish to agree to a proposition of that kind.

Randolph Times: C. O. Sellon came out nicely with his shipment of hogs last week. One car-load of thirty-five head, weighing 24 pounds and sold for $107.5, a half car load of thirty-five head shipped with Joe Menk's hogs, averaged 190 pounds and brought $10.50. The lighter hogs are not bringing the big prices. Mr. Sellon has done considerable feeding the past fall and summer and has been highly successful.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS

Most every woman is accused of trying to marry off her daughters.

Hope is a fine thing, but there must be some work done along with it.

The men who occupy them very easily convert political jobs into positions.

If you think you are stern, the chances are other people think you are crony.

A lot of men who are decent because they are poor believe they would have a reason if they were rich.

Nearly every man has a few good tricks, lying around the house, and for the most part, they are those he has bought.

While patience is a virtue, there are those who devote their lives to waiting patiently without accomplishing anything.

Just about the time you conclude Towner has human intelligence he runs out in the street and tries to bluff an automobile.

Why not be foolish once in a while? People who are always extremely serious and sensible seem to die with considerable regularity.

Militarism should be possible with the ymcaezes who bewail the fact that there aren't enough handsome lieutenants to go around.

FORMER WAYNE STUDENT

Miss Winifred Gantt, referred to in the following news report in Sunday's Sioux City Journal, is a niece of Prof. M. S. Davies of Wayne, and was for a number of years a student of the Wayne State Normal.

Miss Winifred Gantt, daughter of W. E. Gantt, 3842 Palmetto avenue, was stricken with appendicitis and rushed to a hospital in Des Moines, S. D., early yesterday morning, according to information which reached Sioux City last night. Miss Gantt has been teaching in the high school at Sturgis, S. D., and was taken ill in that place.

Two years ago Miss Gantt left the Joy school in Morningside, where she had been a teacher for some time, and went to Interior, S. D., where she fitted on a claim. After spending the required time in proving up on the homestead she returned to Sioux City in May, 1916. Miss Gantt entered the University of South Dakota at Vermillion in the fall. After spending one semester in the university she accepted a position in the Sturgis high school as an instructor of Latin and English.

Mrs. W. F. Gantt and son Cecil, mother and brother of Miss Gantt, were in Des Moines yesterday morning. A dispatch received by the family late last night stated Miss Gantt had rallied from the operation and was much improved. She is still, however, in the recuperation period.
