America, first! and the stars and stripes forever, should be in the heart of every American.

Within a few years every county seat town in north-east Nebraska will be a city. Wayne can hold its own to its rank of leadership by taking the lead.

Main country roads will come to the city, and the city will be the center of the county. In the meantime every street in Wayne ought to be paved.

Patrick Henry said: "We must hang together, or we will hang separately." It is as true now as when it was spoken. Devotion to country should be as united an intense as that felt for home and family.

Editors often do unintentional injury by things carelessly written. Frequently an editor says something without weight and without proper estimate of the probable influence on the popular mind, and the result is harm, really not expected and not intended.

The grip, which is going the rounds of the country, is the same stock of ailments it had a year ago and the year before. After the war and when there are not so many soldiers to think about, the epidemic will be a common one.

possessing a new assessment.

Harry Thaw has been pronounced legally sane in New York and legally insane in Pennsylvania. This will be a precedent for the future. It is necessary to be insane, he can manage to get into Pennsylvania. If he finds it all right to be sane he can land in New York.

The United States is gradually drifting away from the tradition of the world war, and unity of purpose and action is properly expected and demanded. In this crisis, the American flag should be made to mean more than ever. It is the badge of a free, independent and progressive nation. Within its folds every American citizen has been able to find inspiration and courage. America will perpetuate its inviolability, perpetuate its power for security and liberty. A whole-hearted and unqualified stain for America and American institutions will be the world the impossibility of trying to break down or impair this nation. In presenting a solid front we are protecting our own country, our homes, our material possessions, our families and our posterity.

Arthur Brisbane, noted writer, calls to the attention of country publishers through the American Press, the importance of a plan to make the American army and navy self-sustaining. It is a fact that the Herald urged editorially such an idea several months ago. It believes it is the way to make the armed forces of the nation better paid, better satisfied and more efficient. The plan is to have the men of the army and navy engaged in an active military campaign, and thus they would yield appreciable results during peacetime, and at the same time would be training to handle effectively the defense of the country. Places in the army and navy would be made more attractive during times of peace.

Senator George W. Norris speaking to an audience of 500 people at Lincoln, sought to justify his course in the late senate filibuster. He is reported to have charged with a vengeance, and with unrelenting force, the president to arm ships, and which he alleged had been published in the Associated Press dispatches. He said he expected to stand by the country in the event of war, but criticized the attitude of the president and congress as one calculated to establish a monarchy with a king or czar to rule. Such notes of alarm have been sounded before, but all ways without due ground. The declaration of independence a president who entertained a wish or hope to create a monarchial form of government in this country. Then the sense in trying to force upon the people a president of any congress. Senator Norris charges the president and a majority of congress with a despotic rule which he and a few colleagues sought to enforce. The imperialistic and despotic government in an international crisis seems wholly unwarranted. As to the newspapers, they are so often charged with writing sensational or flagrant hyperbole, they will not feel seriously aggrieved.

To visiting teachers: Wayne extends the glad hand of welcome to you, and wants you to know your presence is appreciated and that your comfort and pleasure will be anxiously looked after. When Wayne was founded, education was the first and foremost consideration. Wayne was destined to be a school town, and has grown as such. Apart from the city schools which have always kept pace with the times, other educational institutions have been loyally and generously supported. First came the old Lutheran academy, succeeded by the late J. M. Eick private normal school, and developed by the state. Education is written into the history of the town. The fact—history—have people of education, and the state government have not been allowed to suffer under the heel of avarice or greed. While people have prospered, and the state government has the same ambition. You will find a cordial and sincere respect for your profession. Young and old will treat you on the street and in their homes as culture workers and guests. We abound in sentiment. We don't want to see how much money we can get out of you. Rather, we want to gain by exchange of ideas. A cordial hand touches and by simulated social relationships. We want you to go away with pleasant recollections of Wayne and its people. We want you to feel like coming again and again. We expect to be rewarded by the benefits of extended acquaintance, by the memory of happy association with you. If you do not see what we mean, try it. If anything is lacking to make hospitality complete, of your welcome sufficient, don't hesitate to say so.

WORD OF EXPLANATION.

In regard to the proposed opening of Logan street, the report that I am in favor of it in order to profit by the sale of any part of land which I own is, unqualifiedly false and I am making a charge for the better. I will donate enough land to cover that part of the yards which would be lost to the street, and it was of no land needed for stockyards, the price may be fixed by a board of impartial appraisers. I am in favor of opening Logan street because it is the only way out of the city to the surrounding country. The proposed opening of Window street would be unsatisfactory and an account of a low place to fill would lead to the expense of much greater work or expense.—Edward Perry.

TO GET RICH QUICK

A glorious opportunity to get rich in a few months is offered by a Texas oil concern which is already bringing for gushers and says so in a letter which is being mailed. The terms offered are such that we get in on the ground floor, as it were, and may not in wealth if we will have it so. It must be great, have an abundance, so one can go to the movies every night, and have enough to eat no matter what the price, but we fear the reaction from affluence and idleness will be long.

—I have been poor so long I've had to toil.
—To get rich selling oil.
—Might make my head go wrong.
The joy of wealth is great.
—To have enough to wear.
—And eat, and some to spare.
Cash ready, real estate.

All this were very fine.
—But if I held the deed.
—To wealth beyond my need.
—I would tax these wits of mine.

So do not tempt me, friend.
New worldly tricks to learn—
Each week I still can earn.
The cash I need to spend.
My pockets have been lean.
Despite my daily toil.
Now had I gobs of oil.
I might grow rich and mean.

And then I should applaud
The Strehlow senate file.
—Along with landlords vile
Who lack the love of God.
WOMEN WILL AID
Omaha, Neb., March 27.—Omaha women are showing much interest in their intention to do their bit in the national emergency. Not only are they offering themselves to aid in the work of recruiting men but they have expressed a willingness to take their place at the front wherever their nation needs them. When press dispatches several days ago told that women were needed for clerical work in the navy department where they might act as clerks, stenographers or perform similar duties, there were six volunteers within a few hours after the very news in circulation. The local recruiting officer was unable to accept their services as he was not instructed by the navy department as to this course of action with women recruits. Other women have since volunteered until now a dozen are on the "waiting list" at the recruiting office. Miss Marie L. Alberty of this city is the only woman who has volunteered for army service. She is a nurse and asks to be sent to the front with a hospital corps in case of war.

The war spirit, however, has not caught on alone with the dozen women who have volunteered. A concerted effort is being made to organize the young ladies of the city into a "Join the Navy" club and several days ago scores of girls appeared on the streets wearing ribbons inscribed with "Join the Navy". It is merely one way of maintaining enthusiastic recruiting among the men.

This activity is to spread throughout the state. It is planned to make the "Join the Navy" club a statewide organization. In the larger cities of the state the women will be asked to go to their homes to secure more men for the navy.

FUND FOR MOBILIZATION.

Lincoln, Neb., March 27.—One hundred thousand dollars for the purpose of mobilizing the Nebraska national guard and equipping other regiments, if needed, was asked for in a special message sent to the house yesterday afternoon by Governor Neale. The message, which was accompanied by a bill covering the matter, which was at once introduced, was as follows: "The president of the United States has ordered the mobilization of the Fourth infantry national guards. It becomes most apparent that war is inevitable and Nebraska must uphold the president in any contingency which may arise. It is imperative that the legislature appropriate $100,000 for the state militia organization for mobilization of volunteer regiments and for any other contingency which may arise. Money paid into the state treasury by the federal government in reimbursement of funds spent in mobilizing the national guard is pledged so that the military department will have an elastic fund to meet all emergencies during the year 1917 and 1918."

Don't You Like to Shop?

But most women feel some restraint about setting out on a shopping tour. They know they may wish to buy something, but they hesitate to go to a store, look through the stocks carefully and see what the offerings are, unless they begin to buy at once.

Please don't feel that way about this store. It will be a pleasure to have you 'shop' here to your heart's content. Buy if you wish, you shall be glad to have your patronage.

But if you do see anything you need or want, you need have no embarrassment. This store is here to SHOW GOODS. If we have what you want it is our good fortune.

If We Do Not Have What You Want, It Certainly Is Not Your Fault—It Is Our Own.

Come and 'shop' here and we shall, of course, try to sell you something if we have what you want. If we do not have what you want you will be justified in walking away without spending a cent.

NEWSPAPER RESUMES AFTER GIANT FLOOD

The Norfolk Daily News which was compelled to omit two publications on account of the flooding of the city, today resumed its publication on Monday's issue. This is the first issue of the News since Friday noon when the flood waters from the Norfolk river poured into the basement of the News building, submerging the big printing presses. The last edition of Friday's News was ready to be printed when the flood broke in the press. The first edition of Saturday and the two editions of Saturday had to be abandoned.

The fight against the flood waters, the press operations had been taken from the exterior of the building, but the backing up of the sewers made all the precautions futile. A power tractor was put to work continuously pulling a 3-inch stream of water from the basement. The water from the sewer gurgles rapidly and it was not until Sunday afternoon that a considerable drop in the water in the basement was noted. Employees of the News worked night and day fighting the flood but it was late Sunday before hopes were entertained that this issue of the News would be forthcoming.

The officers of the News managed to keep the printing presses from the presses were heroic. Men who are accustomed to work at office desks donned overalls and welded boxes and presses. They worked night and day wading up to their hips in the chilly water in the fruitless fight against the water. Their reward is in the fact that the News paper only two days and that there will be no further break in the publication.

The story of the flood is told in Monday's News as follows: "Norfolk is recovering from one of the worst floods in the city's recent history. The Norfolk river which was on the flood last night has been dropping rapidly and information from other points deemed by the river, are that most of the flood water has been carried away. The damage to the city is estimated to be $1,000,000. The damage which was caused by the flood waters in and around Norfolk. A number of families who abandoned their homes Thursday and Friday night have moved to other parts of the city. They are turning their attention to repairing the damage done by the flood or removing the water which filled the basements of many homes and store buildings. "Many Norfolkans concede that more territory was covered by the water this year than five years ago when Norfolk suffered a similar flood. Some declare the water was twelve inches higher around their property. Others say that it was not so high. This year the water that the higher road bed on North Fourth street railroad crossing and the construction of temporary sand-bag dikes had a tendency to hold the water back for a time from the business section of the city. The damage, however, is declared to be heavier this year, but the extent will not be known until the flood water has disappeared.

Big Territory Drained. "The rapid thaw of enormous quantities of snow was the cause of the flood. The snow storms of a few weeks ago had left tremendous snow banks in the big territory which is drained by the Norfolk river. Some estimate this territory at approximately 700 square miles. It is believed that the water course was filled quickly and the river north of Pierce was soon flooded. Attention to this fact was called here Wednesday morning. Thursday night the fire whistle was blown to inform the residents that the river was rising rapidly. The Elk horn river had gone up considerably Wednesday and the current in the Norfolk river was reported Thursday night. When the flood waters from the direction of Pierce reached Norfolk Friday morning the river overflowed and widened itself to more than a mile in some places. The fire whistle was sounded again Friday morning and city officials, assisted by residents, worked like Trojans to divert temporary sand bag dikes in an effort to keep the water from the business section of the city. This work was abandoned at noon when it was found that human efforts were useless.

Some Narrow Escapes. "Chief of Police McCune, Paul Hintz, City Engineer Tracy and other men who had been engaged in the patrol automobile or in wagons. Many victims found refuge in homes of friends and relatives who lived on high ground.

Boats were scarce and a wide search brought no results. It appeared that most of the boats were in the most dangerous places along the river banks. Canoes were used to some extent but these proved quite dangerous. The horse drawn vehicle came into prominence once more.

Business is Demoralized. "When the water broke over the temporary dikes it quickly surrounded the city hall which had to be abandoned. The press room of the News filled rapidly with water which bubbled up from the sewers and trickled through from the auditoriums which was badly flooded. The flooding of the News basement put an end to efforts to get out the last edition of Friday's paper and soon the top of the big presses were under water.

The scenes which followed resembled those of five years ago. A temporary police station was maintained on Norfolk avenue and a patrol automobile made rescue trips. "A temporary fire station was maintained in the John Rice Lyceum. The officers took charge of rescue work and kept in constant touch with the situation by telephone. The foundations of several buildings in the business section collapsed and the families were removed with some difficulty. A wall of the Carlson building on Norfolk avenue was damaged and some of the business houses were submerged. This included a lot of valuable hides in the basement of the Robinson building. Most of the perishable materials, however, had been removed from the basements on Thursday night when business men and their employees worked all night.

The Affected Zone. "The territory covered by the flood here included all that portion of the city north beyond the city limits, west to Seventh street and east beyond Edgewater Park addition. This part of the stricken district as viewed from the standpoint resembled a big lake which covered the top of the fence surrounding the baseball park. The flood waters then stretched south and east through the city taking in parts of First, Second, Third and Fourth streets to Pasewalk avenue. The water in the southeastern direction covered the territory known as Lindau. In the business portion of the city, the water covered all that territory between First and Seventh streets north of Norfolk avenue, causing considerable damage and inconvenience to all business located in that area.

Some Homes Abandoned. "Suffering by families who were marooned during the flood was severe in many instances. Many people were forced to stay in the city because they had no means of reaching their homes. Some families were terror stricken during the night as they listened to the water washing through the basements and against the walls of their houses. In some cases the water did so much to incline deep on the floors in residences. A number of these people sent calls to the police asking that they be removed to places of safety. Transportation of these victims was made in the patrol automobile or in wagons. Many victims found refuge in homes of friends and relatives who lived on high ground.

This included a lot of valuable hides in the basement of the Robinson building. Most of the perishable materials, however, had been removed from the basements on Thursday night when business men and their employees worked all night.

The Affected Zone. "The territory covered by the flood here included all that portion of the city north beyond the city limits, west to Seventh street and east beyond Edgewater Park addition. This part of the stricken district as viewed from the standpoint resembled a big lake which covered the top of the fence surrounding the baseball park. The flood waters then stretched south and east through the city taking in parts of First, Second, Third and Fourth streets to Pasewalk avenue. The water in the southeastern direction covered the territory known as Lindau. In the business portion of the city, the water covered all that territory between First and Seventh streets north of Norfolk avenue, causing considerable damage and inconvenience to all business located in that area.

Rupert Julian Again

Especially who saw Rupert Julian in either "The Night to Be Happy" or "Naked Heart" will be glad to hear that this actor of note is again to be on the screen in Wayne next Wednesday afternoon and evening in a very different type of play, however.

"The Bugler of Algiers"

Shown at the City Next Wednesday afternoon and evening is thus intimated by the New York Morning Telegraph "The Bugler of Algiers" is a striking photographic work as well as a martial romance of more than passing worth. Rupert Julian has so manipulated the successive scenes as to produce a film that will be welcomed by film-hired patrons. Frank J. Price.

Margaret Illington Comes Tomorrow

Perhaps Margaret Illington is a stranger to many Wayne people but she is considered the greatest and of the Lasky studio since Geraldine Farrar became a photoplayer. A long-term contract with Miss Illington gives promise of some great productions.

For years Margaret Illington has been a leading star on the stage. Her genius and original human touches to the gripping story, "Kindling" which she played in New York city during the season of 1914-15 will be appreciated in the screen production of the same play.

The story is intensely dramatic, and is distinctive. It deals with the vital problems of slum life in a way that can never be forgotten.

You will miss a great play if you stay away from the Crystal tomorrow evening

PURE FOOD WEEK

Lincoln, Neb., March 26 - In recognition of the fact that Nebraska is in the forefront of the food producing states and that an effort is made to make these products comply with all pure food standards, Gov. Keith Neville has ordered that this week shall be designated as "Pure Food Week". In his proclamation to this effect issued several days ago, Gov. Neville reviewed the efforts to have a pure food law passed in the legislature and tells of the earnest endeavor that has been made by the department in charge to make all food, drugs and dairy products conform to high standards.

"This law has worked well in the past," he says, "and has received the stamp of public approval but that it may be made more efficient I deem it proper to follow in the steps of other governors and set aside a week in which all organizations of commercial endeavor, all societies, and public welfare and business concerns engaged in selling, distributing or manufacturing goods, and those engaged in the production of food are hereby requested to join in the movement and aid in making the work of those carrying out the will of the people a success.

AUTOMOBILE LICENSES

Lincoln, March 4 - Approximately 300 more automobile licenses have been issued during the first two and a half months of 1917 than were issued during 1916 altogether according to the records of Secretary of State Charles W. Foul. The number in 1916, which was 100,537, had already been increased to 100,800, in round numbers, and applications are still pouring in at the rate of 200 to 300 a day. In January as many as 8,000 applications were received in a day. The present outlook bids fair to even raise the percentage increase in 1917, which in 1916 was 75 per cent over the preceding year.

THE FIELD OF BUSINESS.
Some City Journal: Advancement of the date for the convening of congress from April 16 to April 22 has been everywhere interpreted as indicating the determination of the government to acknowledge existence of a state of war without further delay. This conclusion was accepted without comment throughout the country. The probability is that the United States must be drawn into the war, has grown stronger week by week, developing into a virtual certainty when a state of belligerency was recently declared.

danger of an early strike but did not settle the whole railway wage question. Application of the new wage being granted will meet an increase of something like $500,000,000 in the annual operating expenses of the railway. The railway managers accepted this additional expenditure according to their declaration, through patriotic desire to assure against transportation difficulties during the coming period of preparation for war. A subsequent decision indicated that the railways could not have avoided acceptance of the eight-hour basic day, though they could have insisted on that day and litigation over the application of the principle. Any further delay would be to the disadvantage of the railways.

That the railways do not expect to pay the wage increase out of their present revenues was indicated later in the week when the eastern railroads filed with the interstate commerce commission application to be allowed to make a flat increase in freight rates applying to all commodities and ranging from 10 to 15 percent above present rates. Copies of similar applications in behalf of western and southern roads was served. It is contended for the railroads that new revenue is essential not only to meet the new expenditures for labor and fuel but to finance improvements required to put the program into effect.

Considerable discussion was caused in financial quarters by a suggestion that prospective heavy expenditures for war purposes be financed by means of so-called "conscription of capital." Under this plan all incomes above, say, $100,000 annually would be assessed for public use, throughout the war period and restored to private control only after necessity for extraordinary war financing had passed. The plan involves an extreme application of the principle under which large incomes and excess profits in business are required to bear an extra share of the war taxes. Financial authorities generally expressed the opinion that American war obligations might be readily discharged by more conventional methods than the one proposed.

GRATITUDE TO FRANCE

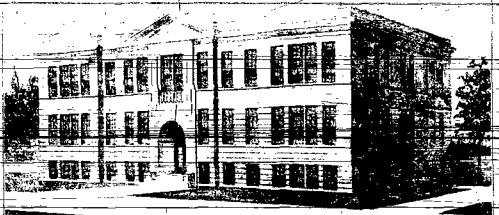

The French government is paying high rates of interest on New York, amounting to more than 60 percent on highly secured loans, a movement has been started in the east to ask congress to appropriate a billion dollars to be sent in presents to France in the form of American food, American munitions and American supplies for the French armies. It is argued that we really owe France more than this amount. The money spent in liberating us from British rule during the revolution is stated by competent historians at $400,000,000. This was at a time when a dollar represented very much more than it does at present. If we are to pay back the debt in such a manner, Uncle Sam will be obliged to pull his weasel skin to the amount of more than twenty-five billions. That is a pretty sizable sum even for so rich a chap as Uncle Sam.

The proposal to give France a billion dollars outright is made in a fine burst of generous sentiment reminiscent of past favors. But there are cold and practical days, and it will do no good to become flushed with philanthropy and good resolutions. France sent her fleet and her soldiers to help us because it suited her national aspirations and national necessities to do so. We shall stop sending our navy and our army too to help France, not because of sentimental regard for what she did back in our revolution, but because we are desirous of events beyond our control into a more or less direct alliance with her. If we get into war we will have our hands full providing men and munitions and ships for carrying on our end of the deadly business. It may be that in the course of time it may be decided that we can be of the maximum assistance by furnishing funds to back the allies. When that time comes we will no doubt furnish the money. In the meantime our task will be to extend credit to the allies for the usual terms, both as to loans and as to shipping as we can to defeat the submarines, and put our house in order for adding our power to the power of the alliance in making ready to restore Europe to order. The billion that it is proposed so generously to give to France will hardly be more than enough to make a good start in the war preparations that are now upon us.

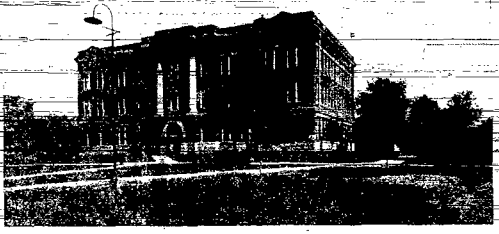

SELLING POTATOES SHORT

Southern Indiana are said to have tried a typical Wall street game with their potato crop. They "sold short." When the price rose to $1.80 and $2 bushel, most of the farmers sold all the potatoes they had, including those they would ordinarily have reserved for seed. They believed that when the bulk of the northern crop was put on the market the price would drop, and they could easily get all the seed they wanted for much less than their own crops brought.

Now they are facing the necessity of buying seed potatoes at as high as $3.50 and $4 a bushel. And many of them say they hesitate to plant any potatoes at all this year, lest there should be a big production and they should receive less for their crop than the seed cost.

Farmers of various other sections have probably had a similar experience. And it has been a salient lesson to them. They can't be blamed for imitating the stock speculators, but it's always a perilous proceeding to gamble in "futures."

evening hours passed swiftly. A splendid luncheon was served from five fitted baskets. The three northwest telephone lines held a business meeting Monday evening at the Henry Anderson school house. The following line men were elected: Herman Oak, W. B. Deane, Oscar Johnson, line 10, Henry Anderson, line 15. The box social held in the Henry Anderson school house last Friday evening was very successful. A play "Waiting for the Trolley," given by the young people formed the greater part of the program and held the attention of the packed house. Over $42 were realized from the sale of the boxes. Oscar Bloomquist acted as auctioneer. Miss Augusta Johnson is the teacher.

BRENNA. E. J. Anker and son, Marion, were in Winside Monday. Tom Holters has been having a serious time with rheumatism the past week. Mrs. Gene Gildersleeve has been in the past week with bronchial asthma. Mr. and Mrs. James Baird were Sunday guests at the James Hughson south of Wayne. There were no services at Grace church last Sunday on account of the illness of the pastor, Rev. J. Bruce Wylie. A special Easter cantata, under the supervision of Mrs. George Patterson, is being prepared and will be presented at Grace church Easter Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. William Olsen who have been visiting at the W. B. Deane home the past week, returned to their home in Winside Monday. Mrs. Louis Winegar and son, Dean, went to Pilger Friday, to visit Mrs. Winegar's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Peterson. They returned home Sunday. Mrs. Harry Cooley was called to Pilger Thursday on account of the serious illness of his father, L. J. Jones, who passed away Friday morning. Mrs. Cooley returned home Sunday. DeKush Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hughes, who was operated on for appendicitis at the Wayne hospital, was brought back to his home in Brenna last Monday. The little patient is doing nicely. Brenna was so completely under mud and water last week that the items failed to get started in time to be of any use. They were all of little importance with the exception of one and that we wish to repeat. A C. DO NOT GUESS! FEED CYPHER'S FOODS

The time is past when the housewife feeds her small chicks a mixture of corn meal and water, old molyd bread, or whatever is handy. She now knows the old method of hit and miss feedings does not produce profitable results! Secure a copy of Cypher's free books on poultry feedings; resolve to feed chicks the Cypher's way, and you are on the road to profitable poultry raising. This is a suggestion to connect you with a well tried and tested system. It's very simple: Feed Cypher's the food that's all food, properly balanced to make a healthy ration. Last year, a lady in this community fed four hundred chicks Cypher's food, until they were four and five weeks old. To economize, her husband grinds some wheat, oats and corn for the chicks; in a week's time have half the flock were dead—the food was not properly balanced. Cypher's foods are not new in Wayne; they have been on the market for five years or more. Over fifty farmers used this food with success last season. It's an opportunity for every chicken raiser to make the business pay a profit. Ask for the free book; also see the food.

RALPH RUNDELL

FRANK FRENCH TAKES AFFRONT AT SLIGHT

Mr. Fred Blair, Chairman Automobile Committee, My Dear Mr. Blair: You've done it now. You have invited the automobile aristocracy to turn out to meet the incoming train and greet the new Governor. You've invited the Packards, the Pierce Arrows, the Buicks, the Detroit Abbots, the Chalmers, the Maxwells, the Chevrolet and a few Fords, that was expected. You invited Rev. A. S. Bell to put in his new Ford, that's a chicken coop under the back seat. I stand for that. You invited Sam Graves to turn out with about his Chevrolet or his paper cart, whichever he could run the best. I didn't expect to line my Ford up along side of any of these society cars. But when you go down to the Herald office and ask those to put his name on the list and lead the procession with his lizard wheeler and never say a word to me about my sober, arid, sande—Ford, it is more than I will stand for. The Herald wagon has no standing in good society. It never was anything but a cross between a wheelbarrow and a river scow, with a summer school education. Men have grown old and gray since that car was new. It is now in the full flower of its decline. It wabbles, it has the blind staggers, it bucks, it lurches with a sickening west friend, it staves awake nights thinking up new places to get out of order. It has to be coaxed, it has to be cajoled, it has to be poulticed in order to get it up at all and then you don't know which way it is going to go. It barks at everything along the road. You have strap it down when you want to let it loose. You can't depend on it—it will break up the procession of a nigger funeral. And yet knowing all this you have invited it to go to the front of the parade and pass up my well-beloved mid-toned rattle. My Ford has all the attachments that anybody, except a sheriff, could put on it. It has an auto radiator, a reflex carburetor connected with twenty-five cents per gallon gasolene tankorium. It has an electric front and magnetic magnetism that will fry your kind of plug that comes along. If Huse is in I have got to be in. Give my source of trouble an invitation and I will start men to crank up now and then for the eight-hour shifts and will agree to have started by Friday. I did not want the car to feel slighted. I did not want to have it crowded out. Sincerely, Frank French.

I have such a powerful respect for antiquity that I feel heartily in accord with the antediluvian relic. When Mark Twain reached the grave of Adam, he solemnly knelt and wept, explaining the act as an evidence of the respect and reverence no matter how distant. I feel the same way about survival of anything archaic. Egyptian hieroglyphics give hint of horseless vehicles and the Egyptian hieroglyphs of rusted nuts and bolts and other motor fixtures offers corroborative proof. This perpetuity of a prehistoric relic, the creation of a genius which bears some rather meritorious resemblance to a modern vehicle, this survivor of a period that flared faintly with the preterdity of the world, this relic of a long, long extinct and forgotten—I would say in all earnestness and enthusiasm, that this "cunning little machine" which got its birth was during the twenty season known as Noah's flood, and which still almost reminds one that it was at some time in a remote age, quite useful and the fact that it has survived to be accorded proper recognition and honor during the forthcoming teachers' meeting. If it is too feeble to push itself along, it could be actually drawn by a couple of mild-mannered jackrabbits. If we are to properly regard antiquity, if we are to have heart for a dead and buried age, we should pay due recognition to an only survivor even though it now but slightly suggests what it was originally intended to be. The Herald's Ford, "a bustling and active" in the youth and vigor steps aside to give prior rights of honor to its distinguished antecedent.—Editor.

WAYNE COUNTY PURE BREED ASSOCIATION

A number of Wayne county's growers of pure bred live stock met in the city hall Tuesday afternoon in accordance with the constitution and organized what will be known as the Wayne County Pure Bred Breeders' association. The object of the organization is to improve the quality of the stock and to increase the interest of breeders along all lines. The following officers were elected:

V. L. Dayton, president; Harry Tidrick, vice president; H. Miner, secretary and treasurer. Names of charter members: Henry Cozad, W. W. Evans, Evans Brothers, Vern Richardson, William A. Bingham, W. H. May, W. L. Coughlin, V. L. Dayton, Harry Tidrick and H. L. Miner. "Another meeting will be held Saturday afternoon at 7 o'clock. The names will be considered and adopted. All who join the association at that time will be considered charter members."

SOLDIER GUARDSMEN GET READY FOR DUTY

Norfolk Daily News, March 27. National guard soldiers and officers are being mobilized for duty which has been ordered to assemble preparatory to moving to some mobilization camp. The mobilization camp were in uniform. Capt. W. L. Anderson, commander of the company, had no further orders and was giving his attention to assembling his company in Norfolk and Staunton, Virginia. He is in charge of the assembling at Staunton. It is likely that orders will be received for this company to go to Fort Crook where mobilization may be completed. It has been suggested by some of the officers that as soon as the Fourth regiment has been mobilized orders will be issued for the assembling at Fort Crook. It is explained that there is room for only one regiment at Fort Crook and that as soon as the Fourth regiment is mobilized, the mobilization will be made for the Fifth regiment.

Hard to Find Some Men

Assembling of national guard companies all over the state was going on during the day. Reports to the company leaders indicated that the officers were having considerable difficulty in locating enlisted men who were mustered out of the federal service recently following their return from the Mexican border. The members of the Stanton company who live in Norfolk responded to orders from their commanders. The time it took for the soldiers in uniform on the city's business streets caused considerable interest and had a tendency to make residents realize that the country is facing a more serious crisis than they at first would believe. Heretofore a majority of the residents looked at the probable war between this country and Germany with some indifference. The appearance of soldiers in uniform, answering the call to assemble, seemed to give their thoughts a more serious turn.

May Go to Border

The Nebraska guardsmen will probably be sent to Fort Crook to mobilize, but their objective destination is the Mexican border, said one officer. "These men will not be used for police duty, although."

Officers Regulars

This officer explains that the regular army plan is to send the guardsmen to the border to relieve the regular troops who will be moved to the eastern coast where they will be engaged in recruiting of volunteers and other organizations in case of war. Eastern guardsmen will be used to a great extent for guard duty. The military system may come again, this officer explains, but the present plan will have regular army officers, experts in many branches of the service and reserve organizations. Col. G. A. Eberly who recently received his commission as colonel in the reserve branch of the regular army is one of the few guard or volunteer officers to secure that high position. Only experienced officers will be given commissions for the higher offices, it is explained. Application will be made to men drawn from volunteers or present reserve officers.

Recruiting in Omaha

Omaha, March 27.—A day and night session of the first national of the Fourth Nebraska national guard to full war strength, will be opened this morning on the ground floor of the new bank building. The station will be in charge of Capt. Col. Blasser and Maj. Todd. About 80 per cent of the men have already responded to the mobilization call by the Mayor. The "peace" footing of the average national guard company is about fifty men and three commissioned officers. Local guard officers are being organized in the four companies up to 150 men, war strength. With the building up the military companies lack guard officers. The city hall is being organized and organized what will be known as the Wayne County Pure Bred Breeders' association. The object of the organization is to improve the quality of the stock and to increase the interest of breeders along all lines. The following officers were elected:

Be Tailor-Made This Spring

All men are different, yet the ready made clothes manufacturer acts on the presumption that all men of the same chest measure, vary little otherwise.

But just think of the difference in shoulders, arm waistline, height, and individuality. All these are considered, only when your clothes are made to order.

A visit to our shop puts you under no obligation to buy. When you see the values we offer you, and the dainty styles for Spring that we can give you at prices no higher than you are now paying for the ready-made clothes, we'll leave the rest to your judgment.

Pennington, Robert, Sneath and family, own Tuesday, coming after a package of oranges expressed to him by L. W. Fensler, a former Pennington citizen, who is now located at Filmore, Calif., where he grows a fine fruit.

There were three crates of oranges, an even dozen at three navel oranges in the box and they certainly were fine specimens of this much appreciated fruit. Milton James spent several days with Mr. Sneath while he was visiting in California recently and says that he has a fine orange orchard, and other fruit trees which give him a profitable return. Nebraska is a fine state for the production of grain, beef and hogs but when it comes to delicious fruit California is hard to beat.

To be sick anywhere is bad enough, but how much more monotonous the days and how much more dragging the nights in some strange city hospital far away from friends and relatives. Oftentimes the homesickness causes a reckless despair; which the surgeon knows is infinitely harder to combat than the real disease.

THE little courtesies and acts of thoughtfulness that the family and neighbors can extend to the sick at home are often the only things that make the fight for life and health seem worth while to the patient. The constant care and the personal interest of home nurses radiate a healthful atmosphere of cheerfulness. Everything is plain and simple and quiet. Everything is conducive to recovery.

CARBOGRAPH SHOWS NO SIGNS OF TIME

Mrs. Emma Durkin in her collection of art work, executed by her husband, the late Prof. Reuben Durkin, has one piece as unique as it is valuable.

On one end of a thin slab of white marble is carved the figure of Psyche, the Greek goddess of beauty, while on the other end is a carbograph work.

What is a carbograph? It is an unusual process by which permanent pigment is absorbed into the translucent marble. It is impalpable, being affected neither by water or sun. At a distance the work looks much like a photograph, while at close range it somewhat resembles a charcoal drawing.

Mr. Durkin secured a patent on this remarkable process July 30, 1888. Soon after he was awarded a grand medal in France on an ethnographic work. The piece now treasured by his wife was executed at Streator, Ill., about four years before Prof. Durkin came to Wayne.

It is mounted on a background of orange velvet and is enclosed in glass with a gold frame. The two distinct types of work testify to the genius and skill of the artist.

Best known, perhaps, among the Durkin creations in sculpture are "The Infant" and "The Little Boy," the latter done in Carrara marble. "The Little Boy" received a high reward at the Trans-Mississippi exposition in 1898 at Omaha where he was competing with world artists.

It is interesting to know that one of the Omaha papers, published an article written by one of the day's leading art critics of the day, calling particular attention to this piece of sculpture and stating that it would well repay one for a visit to the fine art structure.

Prof. Durkin used to go models, yet almost faultlessly he reproduced the graceful lines and curves of the human body. Not only was he able to crystallize in marble the facial expression, but also he could reveal the character that had molded each countenance.

For a number of years Prof. Durkin worked in Wayne until sickness forced him to give up the hammer and chisel. He passed away six years ago on the twenty-second of March.

Why Adjust the Spine?

Because the middle of your back from head to hips contains a part of your skeletal frame that has everything to do with the state of your health.

The Backbone of man is the key to his health. People are sick when the joints of this column become disturbed to the extent that the displaced segments compress the spinal nerves.

A backbone in true alignment means good health in all body parts.

Contrariwise, any subluxated segment of the spine will produce disease in such parts of the body as are reached by the nerves it impinges.

Have an Analysis of your spine. It costs you nothing.

Gold Dollars for Ninety Cents

If a man offered you gold dollars for ninety cents you would laugh at him. You would suspect something "phony" about the dollars. But when a man offers five dollars' worth of dental work for three dollars, people fall for it. If the work is done as it should be, it is well worth five dollars. If it is done for three dollars, either it is not properly done or the dentist loses money. Which of the two is most likely to be correct.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

DISTINCTION.
But little time has passed since he who owned a motor car had won distinction fair and high; we all admired him from afar. We have said, when he drove by, how followed his triumphant way, that he was putting on more size than one frail mortal should display. But we admired him, just as he approached; for he had seated the heights of fame who availed so glittering a coach. But now the man who his no car creates excitement in anyone; he is anxious to see how there are who do not hold their noses down. We say of him, "I'll bet my old he likes a car, as much as we; but he would make a thorough out of it, for he is not a motorist. He'll run for alienation this year, and try to get the public vote, by claiming he's the one man who 'doesn't own a motor car.' The 'Famous Man' has had his day. The Bearded Ladies lost her goat, the Dog-faced Boy must now make way for him who doesn't own a boat.

CHANGE OF WORK.
We do the same things, day by day, and now and then we rise and raise our heads at the sky, and try to do a little better than we do. Sometimes I think like to try the doctor's job, and help folks. Again I see the banker stand with his hands on his hips, and wish that I might have his task, and on a pile of screenbacks back. When I behold the merchant prince, I feel the need within me to win the race. I think that I will strive at the main grade to keep alive, while he rules over a hive of trade, where every brand of wealth is made. But when I look at the farmer, I wish to meet the good old village doc. I realize that his face is sad, as glad as any in the grad. The banker's hair above the ears, is white, although he's young in years; his face is ing down the street, but all my misery, won't save the smallest patch of wheat, or bring a shower tomorrow. And so I pen some sprightly verses, enjoying the endeavor, making that the country roads are better now than ever. Get out your 'sicks' and your 'fours' and search along the highway, enjoy the golden-out-of-door, exploring the ways and ways. Through crops may fall be calm and cool, no regulation showing, for fretting will not change the type that keeps the planets round.

MIDNIGHT.
When I was young, long years ago, ambitious boys, I used to know, who yearned to scale the heights, until they sprained their weary backs; they studied books of nights. They traced long the midnight oil, these tired, aspiring sons of toil, and high they would say, "We are determined that we'll shine, as jurist, steamman or divine, before our heads are gray. And scores of men who won the game, and climbed to towers, with faith and faith, in the hours would tell of how through long cold nights they wrought to store their minds with gems of wisdom."

When I read this learned how to score and gained toys and hundreds more, to whom we point with pride; the world admires and loves to read, and hit the giant's stride. But in these times of motor cars, and sounding brass, and movie stars, when full the end and aim, do you, ambitious boys, do you, can you, can you, have the old lights, the way to fame?

MOTOR GRIEFS.
The machine, the motor car, with its many tears belows the land, the dwells where tribulations are, and walks with arduous hand in hand. When skies are bright his lower, with his face, and his attractive scene, and when the nineteen miles from home, he finds his out of gasoline. The greasiness remains always change when he, reappears from all regions, to which

From Ponca Journal, April 4, 1917:
Signs of Spring.

The war signs come on apace, and the signs of spring are a multitude of new lies and deceptions for the rural districts to devour the substance of the miswary granger; he looks at prices about with a headish desire to persecute man, but the poet swoops down on the lunatic, farm-working newspaper man with his dog, the bodied master of the public highway, and tells the neighborly stories and call it working out their soul's tax; the gentler days come in, and the rates per day and talk scandal at the rate of fifteen knots an hour; Benedict, the married man, catches his meals on the fly, while his sufferer ball is in the reaches of "spring cleaning"; the fashionable young blood hie himself unto the barber and come away with his head recumbent in a beautiful hairdial ball; the man who may be called "the man" to his neighbor's hens; the almanac, the soda fountain fizzes in the drug store, and the ice cream man imposes on the swabs and swabs on the ice; in search of grass and then winds softly back again and mingles hay; the farmer's pocket swells with importance, and numbers of smart boys, dressed in fancy and holy pantaloons; the mixer of ungodly beverages, such as green tea, before his door; the land masses in the morning and behold his front gate hanging by one hinge, and the old man's daughter kneeling her own counsel; the man who stands on his feet, and stands on his feet to have to get a $40 spring suit on a $3 per week salary; the bull-frog croaks mournfully; and the Thomas cat yowls with renewed energy; the loving bird stands on one foot and meditates over prospective goslings; the garter snake crawls around, the tumble bug stands on his head, and the Covington, Columbus and Black Hills railroad man talks proudly of continuing the road "right off." By these signs does the wise man know that spring has arrived.

drawn with haggard lines, as though he worries and repines. The merchant prince has said to the farmer, "I'm in trouble free, and often with a spirit song, the whole night long he'll walk the floor. So, residence, ture and maybe, I'm after all a lucky chap."
SIGNS OF SPRING.
I saw a robin on the lawn, before the second month was gone. I went to Sarah Jane, my frau. "The winters on its last legs now." Well, my dear, I fancy the snow is never winter-brought, of death and pain; it taught you what privation is, and filled my bones with rheumatiz. But spring, dear wife, will shortly dawn, and a robin on the lawn, the birds are wise; the robins know just when the winter-time will go. One robin knows more weather lore than human prophets; five or four, so when such heralds I behold, I know well 'id farewell to cold; that winter is an also-ran and I secure a patent law. Cheer up, cheer up! So help me John, I saw a robin on the lawn." But Sarah Jane, she said, said she, "This is the thing that puzzles me: You've seen, with tears and spirit aches, a thousand times, that signs are false. You've never seen a sign come true, that is, if you desired it to; and yet one robin on the lawn, convinces you that winter's gone, you believe me, spring has come, and the birds begin to hum, and there's no robin caged or free, can work that sort of bluff on me."

Mary Pickford has a new sweetheart. He would give her anything he possessed—and then some.

During the production of an important scene for Mary Pickford's new Vitaphone picture, "A Poor Little Girl," in which Jimmie Beane came to his attention. The camera was regarding the actions of the famous screen star in a very touching scene when loud exclamations of the audience to the stage disturbed her in the midst of her work and resulted in Mary's leaving the stage to ascertain the why and wherefore.
Dadging between the legs of the door-man the youngster threw himself upon Miss Pickford, excitedly demanding that she accept a bulky package he had brought. "Here's some cookies Grandma made you," said the tiny one. "We came all the way from Brooklyn to give 'em to you and now this man won't let 'em go."
Right then and there the famous "Little Mary" hunched herself upon the dusty studio floor at the peril of her pretty silk frock and with the delicate fingers of her Christmas mission, opened the package.
Although at first it seemed as if Jimmie was the cause of considerable "trouble," it turned out that he was really a God-send. For several days Director Tourneur had been searching for just his type for a small part in "A Poor Little Girl" and before the young Pym realized it, he had become an actor in the same cast with his idol, and can be identified in the picture by the fact that he is the smallest player in the production.
Another scene was spoiled by little Jimmie who ran into focus of the camera and leaped upon Miss Beane, who was holding a tin of you-like-ice cream. "I shoted her, entirely unconscious of the wrathful glances from the director and his staff." "Surely," replied Mary, laughing at the disclaimer of her co-workers. "What color?" demanded Jimmie. "Pink," exclaimed she, entering into the spirit of what she supposed was a little game on Jimmie's part. "If I like it, do you like it?" referring to that famous candy made from the juice of the licorice plant. "Upon an impetuous assurance from Mary that she liked "Kirlich" he disappeared like a flash.
Half an hour later in the midst of another scene which had been played several times in order to get the best effect Jimmie again appeared as if from the roof of the studio and dropped into the lap of this girl with a small box of "Sunk" cream and a bag of licorice, whereupon the director threw up his hands and rapped into a chair in despair. "I got a quarter and spent five cents of it for you," said Jimmie as they munched the remains of the licorice some time later. For a young man of seven to spend an entire quarter on a girl certainly goes to extremes in order to prove his devotion. "Yet it will not go well with the individual who donated this quarter if the director should learn of his identity."
This little gallant is Jimmy Pym, aged 7. See him in "The Poor Little Rich Girl," May 3.

WHERE THE SNOW FELL.
Lincoln Journal: A flood of extraordinary volume at Norfolk reflects the freakish weather of the past winter in the Missouri valley area. Each blizzard which has headed for Nebraska this season has sweeter off to the east, piling up unusual depths of snow in the Dakotas and northern Nebraska, but leaving the rest of Nebraska pretty nearly "bone dry." The rapid melting of the bulk of these snows in the basin of the Elkhorn-North Platte, which reaches up toward the Dakota lines, is what has set Norfolk afloat. The streams of northern Nebraska have had hardly a trickle of mucky water since last year.

MASSIVE TOOTH FOUND.
Hartington News: John Hewitt, superintendent of construction of the new Hartington hotel, is displaying a massive tooth, nearly one and one-half inches across the base and over three inches long, which he believes to have belonged to a dinosaur, the ancient animal, several times larger than an elephant, which roamed this country thousands of years ago.
Mr. Hewitt found the tooth in the construction of the hotel and which came from a pit near town. The tooth has become petrified and now has the appearance of a very hard shell. It is also considerably heavier than a stone of the same size. One end is quite rough and shows the various layers of which the tooth is composed. Toward the other end the tooth graduates to ward four separate columns, through the center of which a small hole is large, indicating that the nerve found their outlet to the brain through these channels.

The revival meetings proper opened Sunday evening with a large attendance. The Rev. Gerritt Jansen and daughter, Miss Mary Jansen of Florence, Neb., conducted two excellent services Sunday. Miss Jansen conducts the song services which began promptly at 7:30 o'clock. This week the following program was carried out: Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock the children's store and song hour was conducted by Miss Jansen. Tuesday afternoon a special meeting was held for the ladies at the home of Mrs. George Whippman. Wednesday evening a service especially for the men was given by Rev. Jansen. Next week a patriotic service and a high school night will be the special features. The special meetings are proving very interesting and everyone is cordially invited to come out and hear one of these services. Sunday school at 10. Morning preaching at 11. Epworth League at 6:30. Preaching in the evening at 7:30. All week service Wednesday evening.

THE JANESVILLE SINGLE LEVER GANG PLOW

The Janesville has made a new single lever gang plow, a New Method of Furrow Laying, and a New Method of Handling the Plow in the Furrow by the Operator

THIS NEWEST AND BEST PLOW, best as proven by winning in last three contests against all competitors at Big Rock and Wheatland, Illinois, for three consecutive years, has that very delicately curved mold-board, built to turn the soil in the best possible way with the least resistance, making a light draft and does perfect work.

This new single-lever plow of Janesville make has cut out the bothersome lever of the old style riding plow. The plow bottoms well as the frame is operated and tilted by a single hand lever in connection with the foot-trip-horse lift, on which patents are now pending.

Beams are hung in a single ball which is operated by the single lever. Lever or foot-lift may each be operated separately or jointly, perfectly regulating depth of furrow with bottom absolutely level.

Come in and let us show you all the good points about this new Janesville plow.

It is almost needless to tell the farmer who has used a single lever Janesville gang plow or their farm machinery that if there is to be any improvement the Janesville people will have it, for they spare nothing in expense to place the best in the hands of their dealers. We handle the full line of Janesville Famous Farm Machinery, and once you try the plow so perfect you will find it that you will be interested in their Disc Harrows, Seeders, Corn Planters and Cultivators, and later we will tell you of other labor-saving implements in their season.

Our stock of farm implements is now very complete, and the machinery of known merit and real value is carried here.

Telephone us about repairs—Ash 1-308.

INTERRUPTED RAIL TRAFFIC IS RESUMED

Interrupted railway service, due to the floods and the consequent washing out of tracks, was generally resumed Friday, and operation of trains on all lines was about normal on Saturday. Delayed mails brought a big influx of papers and letters Saturday and Sunday. The snow gone, the floods soon ceased and streets and roads commenced to dry up, rendering travel by teams and automobiles less difficult. The streets of Wayne were thoroughly and properly dragged as soon as the moisture had sufficiently dissipated.

Norfolk, Neb., March 23. Considerable business has been suspended and a number of families have been forced to leave their homes and seek higher ground as the result of the worst flood in Norfolk's history. The North Fork river is several miles wide and is washing through a large portion of the business, industrial and residential sections. It is estimated approximately seven hundred square miles of territory which has been choked with enormous quantities of snow resulting from the storms a week ago, is about a foot higher than it was five years ago when the city suffered what was then thought to be a record breaking flood. Considerable water is yet to come from the vicinity of the Norfolk and Osmond where the rise of water was reported gradual at 5 o'clock Friday evening.

The bridge near the mill dam at Pierce has been cut out of commission by an ice gorge which formed near the dam. The Elkhorst river is falling slowly and some relief was expected for Saturday morning. The river is draining the flood reached Norfolk at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon when the flood waters backed up in the sewers and filled the press room of the Norfolk Daily News. This caused suspension of that newspaper.

A number of other industries were put out of commission. Many of the houses in the city are filled with water. The city hall, police and fire stations are cut off from other parts of the city by the high water. Automobiles are used to run through the narrow street section of the city where the water is not deep but wagons and bunks are the usual means of transportation in other parts of the city where the water is running through the streets like a mill race.

The dike gave way in several places during the day and efforts to check the floods with temporary sandbag dikes were abandoned when the crest of the flood reached the city.

Norfolk, Neb., March 25. Two women were drowned, one man fatally injured and a woman seriously hurt when an ice gorge carried out the bridge over the Kaw River at 6:30 tonight. Twenty persons were standing on the structure watching the flood when a sudden movement of the bridge near the ridge caused it to break in two. Those near the end of the bridge ran off safely, but several near the center were unable to escape.

Two Women Drown. Mrs. A. Wakefield, aged 70, and Miss Sylvia Wales, aged 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wales, of Gregory, S. D., were swept into the river an ice-drawn bridge. Mrs. Arnold Hudson, a sister of Miss Wales, with whom the girl was visiting, was seriously injured, and Judson Stewart, aged 45, a farmer living two miles from Brockburg, was so badly injured he died two hours later. He is survived by his wife and several small children. The bodies of Mrs. Wakefield and Sylvia Wales have not been recovered. The Kewa Paha is a branch of the Niobrara river.

Floods Destroy Bridges. All bridges in Kewa Paha county, except the Mills structure, have been carried away by the ice gorges, and the river is the highest in its history.

At Norfolk the river had fallen more than fifteen inches at midnight and the crest of the water was believed to have passed.

Train service on the Minneapolis and Omaha line, which has been demoralized for nearly a week, has been resumed. A train which left Sioux City last Wednesday came into the city over the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha with 100 storm-bound passengers at 6 o'clock last night. Passengers had to be taken from trains with wagons. The Winnier line of the Northwestern road is bed up, a bridge being washed out between Verdigris and Niobrara. Reports from Pierce, where an ice gorge broke out a bridge, indicated no further damage and water receding rapidly. Considerable damage will result to Norfolk from the flood. No estimate of the loss can be made until the water has dissipated.

THE SCHOOL OF THE ARMY

Sioux City, Iowa, June 1. Altizer, an enlisted man of Company A, Twenty-first United States Infantry, at present on border service at Palm City, Calif., his home is at Marston and he was enlisted at the Sioux City recruiting station on December 23, 1916. He has written a letter to his home paper, the Marcus News, relating briefly the experiences of his two months' service in the army and recording his impressions of army life. He writes that the army is like a large school; that each day one learns something new and that the experiences, concluding paragraph of his letter follows:

"If there is any boy in dear old Marcus who wants to join the army and he has said it will make a 'buddy' out of him, he is wrong. There is everything here to make a man out of him. One does not have to allow himself to become that way. It is the same as in life, only you must put your job when you are up all night dancing and feel 'punk' the next morning. It will make a man out of anyone—no matter what or who he is. But don't mix it with the intention of not working."

The conclusion reached by Private Altizer is that of an intelligent man and careful observer. It required only two months to convince him that a period of service with the colors "will make a man out of anyone." In this conclusion he confirms the judgment of a multitude of school and army boys who have had the benefit of such a period of service.

A short term of military service could not fail to be helpful to every school and army boy who would learn many lessons of value to him in life. The United States army truly is a great school wherein is taught obedience, self reliance, courage, self respect and moral and physical cleanliness, to say nothing of the military instruction imparted. No young man can go through such a school and not be benefited. The youth of today needs to learn the things which are taught in the school of the army. Without learning them, he will be a failure in success in life. Many of our youths are not learning them, so lax has become home and parental discipline. The chief recommendation of a system of universal military training is that it will make men of our boys, as it has lately, under our very eyes, made men of the boys whom we sent to the Mexican border.

The disadvantages of a term of military training for all young men are so slight as to be inconsequential; its advantages are undoubted. The testimony of Private Altizer is important and well worth consideration.

STORE BROKEN INTO

Insured. Advocate: Entrance was gained into M. T. Woodruff's grocery store Wednesday night by some person or persons who forced their rear door. Some canned goods, a strip of bacon, several boxes of crackers, etc., were missing the next morning. Bert Woodruff opened the store, and the first thing that attracted his attention was a lot of matches on the floor; investigation revealed the state of affairs. Evidently somebody wanted to reduce the high cost of living. Some quantities left in the till the night before were taken, and the combination on the safe had been fooled with.

TWO GOOD STRAINS

Of cockerels, the Silver King and Tarbox an eastern breed, have been used in strengthening Mrs. Miner's flock of Silver Laced Wyandottes. The fowls are average weight, and their flesh is sweet, juicy and tender. As layers they are among the best. A few choice cockerels are being offered at very reasonable figures.

Eggs for hatching are quoted at $1.50 per setting, $2.00 per 100.

FROM FISCHL STRAIN

Plymouth Rocks have long been recognized as favorites for general purpose fowls. The White Plymouth Rocks which are pure white in plumage throughout, conform to the general features of the breed in that they have broad flat breasts, moderately large heads, ornamented with upright, rigid combs and wattles. They are hardy, mature early and are good layers throughout the year. They are good sitters and excellent mothers.

Eggs sold by the hundred or in single settings at reasonable rates.

BUFF ORPHINGTONS

My flock contains fowls of a good strain of Single-Comb Buff Orpingtons, a breed taking its name from Orington, in Kent county, England, where William Cook originated this type of chicken.

I have found them good general purpose fowls of average size and prolific layers of brown-shelled eggs. They are a rich, golden buff throughout.

Soie prices of eggs: $1.00 per 15; $3.00 per 100.

BARRED PLYMOUTH ROCKS

Are popular for the farmer or market poultryman, being of medium size, well proportioned with a deep, full breast. They mature early and are very hardy fowls. As layers and for table use Plymouth Rocks stand second to none.

Eggs for hatching will be sold at the following prices: Seventy-five cents for 15; $3.00 per 100.
