June To Be A Big Month

Mr. Nielson has secured some truly wonderful productions for June. Right off the reel, it starts off on June 1 with Pauline Frederick, famous on Broadway in "The World's Great Snare." Then Marguerite Clark, she who played Snow White, will appear in the mushy story of "Molly-Make-Believe." And Mary Pickford comes again, this time in "Cinderella." "Womanhood," the big Vitagraph patriotic film, which is scoring phenomenal success in the large cities, has been secured for Wayne. Charming Alice Joyce plays the leading part.

How's this for a program crowded with unusual and up-to-the-minute productions?

STORY BY A SING SING CONVICT TONIGHT, MAY 24.

The Twinkler, which will be staged at the Crystal tonight, was written by Henry Leverage, at one time Convict No. 65368 at Sing Sing. It is a thrilling story of the underworld minus all objectionable elements. Swift action, suspense and clever twists of plot are paramount throughout all of the five reels. At one time Leverage was a well known short story writer. While in Sing Sing he was editor-in-chief of the prison paper, The Star of Hope. His characters are intensely human and William Russell plays the part of "The Twinkler."

A NEW PLOT IN "PASQUALE" TOMORROW, MAY 25.

"Pasquale," in which George Belan stars at the Crystal tomorrow night, is the story of an Italian grocer whose hopes for Margarita are cruelly betrayed. Later we see Pasquale requiring a Zeppelin attack in the Alps. The majestic awfulness of the battle holds one spellbound.

MARY PICKFORD, as "Miss Nell" SATURDAY, MAY 26.

"Little Mary" plays admirably the title role of Miss Nell in this dashing drama in the days of Charles II. of England. By her bravery and wit she saves her loved king, who by the way is her husband, Owen Moore, from Louis, who seeks to wrest the king's crown from him in a double plot.

"A CORNER IN COLLEEN" MONDAY, MAY 28.

Matograph, the authoritative motion picture magazine, emphatically declares "A Corner in Colleen" the cleanest, breeziest comedy released in many a day. And Bessie Barriscale, already a favorite in Wayne, may be depended upon to be indeed, a charming Irish colleen.

What Is The Voice On The Wire?

Well, we don't know exactly and neither does anyone else, except that the mysterious voice comes from an uncanny and inexplicable being, who continually baffles the efforts of "John Shirley," the great criminologist, to break up a clique of cunning evil-doers. Three episodes have been screened in Wayne and the plot thickens from week to week. Polly Marion, a beautiful actress, a confident of the detective, enters with growing ardor into the great pursuit, although her own danger grows with every exploit. Buy a season ticket, read the book which you get free, and follow this wonderful plot. A gripping episode every Tuesday night.

SAINTLY SINNERS, A BLUEBIRD WEDNESDAY, MAY 30.

Every Bluebird is a delightful treat. They sparkle with new ideas, both in plot, in the staging and the "cut-ins." The play next Wednesday will interest you. Can there be such a person as a saintly sinner? See this play before you decide.

PATHÉ TO PRESENT "KING LEAR" THURSDAY, MAY 31.

Lovers of Shakespeare should not fail to see King Lear. This is a super-feature produced by the Pathé company, which comes to Wayne for the first time. The acting, the costuming, the staging—all are consistent, convincing.

THE BACCALAUREATE SERMON AT NORMAL

The events of commencement week at the Wayne State Normal opened Sunday with the baccalaureate sermon delivered by Rabbi Emanuel Sternheim of Sioux City. As a star was played by Mrs. James Miller and Miss Gertrude McEachern—the members of the graduating class took their place in seats reserved for them. Preliminary to the sermon were singing by the Normal-Male quartet, association by Rev. A. S. Bell, song by Mrs. T. L. Jones, scripture lesson by Rev. S. K. Cross, and song by Mrs. A. K. Davis. The speaker was introduced by President U. S. Conn. "The Reconstruction of Religion for Humanity" was the subject, and it was handled in a masterful manner. Rabbi Sternheim showed himself a profound and progressive thinker. Following a generous extract from his sermon: Texts: "I see that all things come to an end: but the commandment is exceeding broad," cxix Psalm. "During thirty years I sought for God, and when at the end of that time I opened my eyes, I found that He was seeking me."—Boyard Bistami—(an Eastern Saint). "The realization of the omnipotence of God, the single God idea, and the conception of creative evolution and the nearness of God to the individual expressed in the two texts from which I have chosen to speak to you, constitute the basis for the reconstruction of religion for humanity." "I am going to make an attempt to bring you a conception of the outcome of the period of passionate protest in which we are living, a period that is going to shake and for all time end the narrower conception of religion which has hitherto prevailed. This is perhaps an optimistic viewpoint. For every age has a great question—the question of universal religion in its own way, and succeeding ages have rejected the viewpoint of the preceding ones. "People will listen eagerly to sermons, except in church. They like preaching except from the pulpit. Mr. H. G. Wells points out these phenomena in his recent book. He believes in a religious revival, but says that it bodes little good for the organized churches. "I am very little concerned as to whether the great reconstruction that is to come about is a direct outcome of the negation of religious principles by all the warring nations of the earth, will tend to strengthen the organization of the churches as such or not. The vital thing is that it shall bring about a new humanity—a conception that in the final analysis, the command of God is exceeding broad." "There can be no question of the fact that in regard to religion, we are taught in our churches, we live in a period of uncertainty, unrest and dissatisfaction. The explanation is not that religion is in peril, but that our faith has been in some measure built on an insecure foundation. "Theology must be progressive and brought into harmony with the truths of religion in the realm of science and biblical research. Pulpit teaching must be fairly in line with the best thought and the most assured knowledge of the age. If it is not, it is false, and it is largely because in the last decade it has not been so, that our churches are neglected by the cultured and the intelligent of our people. "The reconstruction process is also founded on the fact that religion in its sense is confounded with dogma, and because certain dogmas essentially unimportant, no matter how important they may seem to their adherents, are discarded, it is imagined that religion itself has decayed and is threatened with extinction. This is, however, the shallowest of shallow reasoning. Creeds may change and creeds may pass, but religion is eternal. Amid all changes in theological conceptions, which after all, are only man's imperfect views, and definitions of religion; the appeal stands good. Turn to God, for God has come to man. "Man is related to God of his self, related at all, in terms of personal intimacy and of fellowship. The eastern saint, Bistami in the words of my text challenges one of the prominent dogmas of the ages. He postulates the doctrine of personal responsibility and of personal relationship of the soul of every man to his Maker. The proud lofty dogma of the lower creature is that he has a religious nature, that he is capable of religion and communion with God. Wants and desires are his, to which the mere animal is stranger. Capabilities and powers are his, which the mere animal can never acquire. He can discern spiritual truths; he can be filled by spiritual essence; he can by a sublime act of faith, get out to the ineffable Deity "O God, Thou are my God." The realization of this fact is the explanation of that much abused term "religion."

Religion is not the invention of priests; it is a natural instinct of the human mind. The religious sentiment is universal. It preceded civilization and is by no means a product of it, as some people think. It is the exclusive endowment of certain individuals or nations. Everywhere you find in man a sense of the divine, a religious aptitude. However man is, there you find a higher, sweeter, more and more perfect ideas of it may be. The various faiths of the world afford evidence of this. Religion, since it is as old and as universal as man, is natural to him. He does not need a priest or a miracle to create it—its extinction would require a miracle. Its extinction would involve the humiliating of man, that he should become something meager and lower than man; for man is made in the image of God. Religion is the direct outcome of this creative blessing. "It is this vital religion extends independently of those creeds and formulas in which under varying conditions it is expressed. This change, but religion is eternal. It is the eternal and unchanging God of transition, and such periods are always associated with a measure of uncertainty and unrest. But religion is not crumbling away—it is only removing into a larger house, a house four-square to all the winds that blow, and domed by the immeasurable sky with all its stars. Religion will endure because God wills it, and man needs it. This is the fact on which the preacher to-day must base his fundamental appeal. After centuries of misconception, religion is at last coming to its own. It is coming to be regarded not as a yoke or a burden to which we must submit for fear of some great penalty, but as the summit and crown of our possible attainment, the supreme condition of a better, joyous and abundant life. "The first element in the reconstruction process then is the realization of the fact that it is religion which we desire to align in our relationship to humanity and not merely an aspect of religion. In order to do this we have to realize the unity amidst the diversity. We start in the beginning at the mountain base. We may proceed from different places and even on opposite sides, be far from each other in thought and fact, but we climb toward a common center and at the top we come together where the view is not incomplete, partial, but broad and general; and God has high places enough for all. "Distance at base divided, in their summits are united."—Emerson. "The spirit of the worm beneath the soil. In love and worship, blends itself with God." "If we can only hear that song of Browning's in 'Pippa Passes—God's in this Heaven. All's right with the world! Do we need to pray for anything else? Browning's statement summarizes the unity ideal, and Tenney emphasizes the spirit of my text from an Eastern Saint: "During thirty years I sought for God, and when at the end of that time I opened my eyes, I found that He was seeking me," when he says: "Speak to me thou for He hears." And spirit with spirit can meet. Closer is he than breathing. And nearer than hands and feet." "For the saving of his own soul, a man must be aware of the souls of others, and the future belongs to those who have a right to believe that the world is good in the sense that it can really be made good by men and women, who are strong because they feel the thrill of creative evolution in their hearts—this is the essential life in every living being. To this end, we must stand side by side, our eyes on the goal, and our feet on the path, and our hearts on the purpose of building man. What is this but expression of socialized religion. There must be a welding in the reconstructive process of religion of the three varying methods used hitherto in the bringing about of the better thing. We need the spiritual method, the personal appeal of which my expression so eloquently speaks, the conviction that human nature is ultimately good, faith in humanity and human creativeness, the desire to enter into a new outlook on life and the impulse within. "We need the social method."—(Continued on page six.)

Get Acquainted With Your Storage Battery

A surprising number of motorists, taking out their first car haven't the slightest idea where their storage battery is located. Some are entirely unaware of the fact that they have a battery and that the operation of starter and lights—and in most cases ignition—is wholly dependent upon it and its well-being.

The result is that the battery is ignored and often times harmfully abused. Not until it runs down and fails to do its work does the owner begin to investigate.

"Most battery troubles that come to our attention," says Mr. Vern Fisher of the local Prest-O-Lite Battery Service Station, "are due to lack of knowledge of the function of the storage battery and the attention it requires.

"If every motorist could realize that a storage battery is a perishable article, which is highly sensitive to abuse and neglect, a great deal of inconvenience and expense would be saved. In this respect the battery is no different than any other part of the motor car.

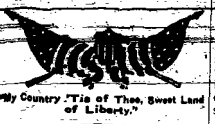

"Just as driving over glass and nails abuses tires and running a motor without oil will burn out the bearings, so will lack of care and attention bring the storage battery to grief.

"The average car owner knows what constitutes tire and motor abuse and he avoids them. He would do well to find out what abuses his battery, what attention it requires and why—to get acquainted with it and its operation. First season motorists, particularly, would save themselves considerable expense and annoyance by acquainting themselves at once with their storage battery and its needs.

"The battery experts at our Service Station cheerfully explain the make of their battery, just how a storage battery works, and how to keep it in working condition. Under our service plan, we are prepared to assist the battery user in a material way, if he will call regularly at our station for service. Battery users owe this protection to their storage batteries, as well as to their pocketbooks, as all storage battery troubles when neglected sooner or later develop into expensive repairs."

PROGRESSIVE SERMON.

A profound, progressive, enlightening and encouraging sermon was that preached by Rabbi Emanuel Sternheim at the Baccalaureate services of the Wayne State Normal Sunday night. Addressed through expressed in concise and forceful English, it attracted the audience to a high and refreshing standard. Mr. Sternheim's subject was "The Reconstruction of Religion for Humanity," and he sought to show that the new religious movement is a stripping out of non-essential dogmas and a new out of the struggle and confusion which have prevailed here. He does not believe in a supernatural visitation of providence. He believes European nations have been sick with envy, greed and hate, and that when the disease is removed by the drastic processes of war, nobler civilization and purer religion will naturally ensue. If the right kind of religion had been introduced in Europe, the confederation, now being scattered of the world, would have started. Results will be the tearing down of materiality and the exaltation of spirituality—the suppression of selfishness by the development of fellowship. The unseen and imperishable soul will become more radiant, subjugating in large and enlightening measure the insatiable desires of the senses, the mean, the selfish. Rabbi Sternheim gave clear expression to thoughts that are engaging the attention of many people who see the need of reconstruction and more practical and more helpful religion.

The industry and efficiency and level-headed judgment usually shown by people coming to America from Germany give proof that the citizens of that country are fully capable of governing themselves and do not need an arbitrary Kaiser to rule. Strip Germany of his king and create a German republic, giving all affairs into the hands of the people and the war would soon cease. Germans in America should be especially interested in seeing the Kaiser overthrown and a free government established.

Organization of the County Council of Defense to work in conjunction with the state body, will result in greater unity of effort and money in support of the government. It is for increased production and avoidance of waste. People working separately in different organizations with the same general purpose would naturally be unable to accomplish the results certain to follow coordinated efforts. The council would seem to insure greatest possible efficiency.

As the president expresses himself in his proclamations, he is expected to follow unselfish courses. They are not expected to do what they like to do best, but what they can do best. If they are best suited to service in the army or navy, they will be called for such service. If they can work to best advantage in factories or on farms, they will be expected to govern themselves accordingly. The government is expected to outweigh personal likes or dislikes.

Men and boys unable to enlist in the army or navy by reason of not coming within the age limits or not meeting other requirements may serve the country efficiently in many other ways. The invitation to work was never so strong as now, and no one needs to be unemployed. The government needs a man who fails to work is regarded a slacker quite as much as the man who, able and available for military service, shirks that duty.

In line with due economy and in recognition of the fact that the war suggests that members of high-toned eastern society get rid of their poodle dogs and cut out other utterly useless and expensive decorations.

Let the poodle dogs shift for themselves anyway until after the war. Let their owners divert money and attention to the aid of the nation in its present crisis.

Girls who are pretty, so called, should not depend wholly on looks to get through the world. The girls who will gather all ages and wrinkles, and carees multiply. The girl with cultivated brains and sound sense will endure in popular esteem long after the one resting on the possession of mere looks has lost out and been forgotten.

Though the weather has been rather unseasonably cool this week, the soil has been in good condition for planting and farmers have made lively progress in getting their corn into the ground. Notwithstanding the chilly elements, it is said seed is germinating satisfactorily. However, people will welcome a turn to somewhat warmer at any time.

Some statisticians have figured out that cats—members of alley fence orchestras—cost the nation $1,200,000 a year. The cost is worked out by estimating the number of birds killed by the cats and the number of birds that are needed that would be killed if the birds were saved.

For a long time people have been largely looking out for selfish interests, more or less successfully. Now they are broadening their perspective and devote themselves first and chiefly to the security of the nation and the democracy of the world.

Severity of coal and lumber in the cry already heard. The reports that hard coal shipments in April this year exceeded those of the same month a year ago by a million tons makes the announcement of a shortage rather insignificant.

No matter how great the production or how great the economy, there is no possible danger of overproduction.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

The following telegram was received by the army recruiting office at Omaha this date: "All men enlisting in the regular army will be eligible to take examinations for commission in the regular army. The rules applying to civilian candidates at any time after enlistment. Heretofore, soldiers in the regular army to be eligible to compete for appointment as provisional lieutenant must have served honorably not less than one year.

The present ruling of the war department makes it possible for those who were not selected to attend the training camp at Fort Belvoir to obtain a commission in the regular army.

In outlining a program for observing the day, the council proposes that first and church bells be rung and whistles blown at 7 a. m. the hour of opening the registration booths; that bands play near the booths; that men of registration age be escorted to the booths by their families and neighbors and given a distinctive registering badge, and that after the registration has closed patriotic meetings be held.

HOW TO CAN ASPARAGUS.

Wash your jars and fit with Pat your washboiler on the stove and fill with water to depth of seven or eight inches, if you are going to use quart jars. Also put on a teakettle of water to heat.

Then go out in the garden and cut your asparagus. Wash it and tie it up in a thin cloth. Put on the stove a good sized kettle for which you have a false bottom. Put water in the kettle so that it just covers the top of the cloth. Then put in your asparagus cover closely, and let it steam fifteen minutes.

Fill another large kettle with cold water. Plunge the bag of asparagus quickly into the cold water. Let it remain about one minute. Then take it out, untie the cloth and cut the asparagus into short pieces. Pack these tightly into your jars, add salt to proportion of one level teaspoonful to a quart and cover with hot water. Put on your rubber, being sure that you have a good one which has never been used. Then screw the lids on tight.

Then place your jars on the false bottom in your washboiler, and let them boil for an hour and a half. If the water is boiling here you begin to count the time. The water should cover the jars. Just as soon as the time is up remove the jars, tighten and invert them to see whether there are any leaks. Do not open the jars, even though they are not full of liquid. After the jars are cool, wrap with paper and store in a dark place.

Some men have self-confidence and not much of anything else.

What has become of the old-fashioned boy who believed toads caused wars?

It is not only treason to knock on your country, but also on your town.

Some people sing as though they wanted the audience to leave the building.

You may have observed that the industrious bee is robbed of most of its surplus.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who read the Congressional Record?

Although it takes two to make a quarrel, it is usually easy to get that many together.

The general rule is that you can start an argument a good deal easier than you can finish it.

Montana is The Place for the Homeseeker

Harlowton Bids You Welcome to Wheatland Co.

Just recently Meagher county has been divided and Harlowton has been made the county seat of Wheatland county. This of course will mean new interests and much additional business for this already thriving town. By considerable negotiating with the railroads we have arranged to secure a considerable reduction from the regular homeseekers' ticket, which costs about $36.

Any Saturday from Sioux City—$25.45

After you have seen the country and talked with the people, you will say that the trip was worth many times $25.45.

Montana is the only state in the union today wherein lies the opportunity to get a good farm home at a reasonable price and on terms as they used to be in the "good old times" of years gone by, when our fathers were buying land in Iowa, Illinois and Minnesota.

Today we offer the homeseeker the opportunity to get a home on easy terms where you will have every advantage as to railroads, good schools, churches, lodges and other conveniences.

Harlowton, in the Mussellshill Valley, where the Judith Basin line joins the main line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry., is the chief town of Wheatland county and has experienced a great growth in the past five years in population and business houses. It is a well built, busy city in every respect. In the city you will find a modern hotel, extensive flour mills, business houses, banks, newspapers, and it is the distributing point for a large agricultural and stock district. The railroad yards and shops of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway contribute to its prosperity.

Within a few miles of Harlowton, you will find thousands of acres of choice farm lands waiting for the plow. The soil is the best on earth, consisting of a chocolate-colored loam, intermingled with limestone and pebbles, carrying a considerable quality of free lime, which, in the process of cultivation, gradually disintegrates, feeding and enriching the soil and sorting the dirt that it is every great value for use in place of the manufactured fertilizers, where such products have to be used.

The climate is as good as any one could wish and the rainfall is sufficient to always assure crops, two-thirds of the moisture falling during the growing season. You will never hear of droughts, hot winds, black rust, or cyclones in this part of Montana.

We quote here the aggregate resources and liabilities of the 238 banks, trust companies, investment companies, etc., that you may form an idea of the wealth realized from last year's crop. On Dec. 31, 1916, the above totaled $108,036,993.00, an increase of $3,751,526.00 compared with the $104,285,467.00 which was reported Nov. 17, 1916. Does this not look to you as if Montana "The Treasure State" was the place for you? We bid you WELCOME.

COOLIES FOR THE FARMS. Sioux City Journal: A little consideration of the plan of the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent association for supplying the need of farm labor is enough to give the average American a warmer feeling for the sometimes unfairly judged Chinese. The project has been advanced here from one of the best sources in America. And oriental laborers even now are understood to be at work in some parts of British Columbia. But the offer of the Six Companies, the consolidated association of better-known, carries both authority and conviction. It sort of digress true when it speaks of friendship, especially since it obviously was framed with the utmost care to make acceptance easy and profitable for the United States. It is, after all, hardly likely that the shortage of farm laborers this year will become so acute as to make necessary the importation of aliens. But, whether taken advantage of or not, the suggestion stands toward putting the matter upon America on a better rating. The plan of the Six Companies, to which an objection of the part of the Chinese might be foreseen, is to bring into this country as many Chinese laborers as may be needed, to distribute them altogether on the farms, and to repay the cost, so that the emergency requiring their presence shall have passed. The inspiration, it is explained, lies in the feeling of obligation which enlightened Chinese feel toward the United States as the one country that has been consistently a friend of China. There is no need to go farther than that explanation, if, perchance, the gentlemen of the Executive Committee feel that the importation of the Chinaman to the farmers of America would lead to a better understanding between the peoples of the two countries. The suggestion is commendable and patriotic. The whole affair seems to demonstrate that, besides being peculiar in other ways, the Chinese has the faculty of being grateful. M241ad ception of social order redolent in time, and emphasizing the state as a divine entity, caring for the human world, the embodiment of freedom working for high individuals, taking its character from the state as a means towards good life, and itself the creation of self-governing persons, no mere abstraction, but socialized people.

And then we need the third method of the attainment of the ultimate good. The economic method—the destruction forever of the idea that work is a mere commodity to be bought and sold, and with it the destruction of that immoral and monstrous idea, the economic man, to the moulding of which we in large measure owe our sorrow and the pain and the terrors, and the blood of the present day. The human being is not primarily a profit-making machine; he must be judged as a man, a master of himself.

"You can no longer get away from the fact—today—that religion speaks in human values. It is not the air. It is here among men. The way to God is through human and social regeneration. We hear today of the moral obligation to be intelligent and that has a bearing upon our problem. There is a moral obligation to be intelligent and we have to apply it to religion. The twentieth century has no use for blind acceptance. We are asked today to use our intelligence, nay, we are obligated to use it and the emons of our church must satisfy the promphs and yearnings of a divinely implanted intelligence. We shall have a religion that shall ring true to social values, and the welding of the three methods of approach shall be comparatively simple things."

"Having established the essentials of our reconstructive process, there remains for me the task of presenting to you the place which education must play in the working out of the basis of religion for humanity. Education is surely the realization of the potencies of human life to the fullest extent of which the individual is capable. One individual may have taken all science to be his province, and still be an uneducated man; he may catch the literature and the history of a stranger in a world which should be his home and not his hiding place."

"Unless art gives grace and refinement to human character, it has failed of its complete purpose, and less science makes the whole life intelligent and tolerant, it has not succeeded in its aim. Unless faith opens the windows of the soul to the sense of fellowship with humanity, unless the one adds sweetness and the other light and the third the spirit of goodness, each to the other, none has justified its existence."

"Thus the responsibility of the educated religionist is the expression of religion in terms of education. Religious education must create faith in a world order. Religious education should train men to believe that whatever is needed for the good of man is obtainable. Every onward step man has taken has been taken in the face of the objection that the facts are against it, and human nature is not to be changed. The ideal side is the saying to humanity, 'create me,' and men of faith have always accepted the invitation. The stimulus of your education should be a stimulus to whole-souled faith. Faith is that which removes mountains and makes all things new."

"Religious education not only should create faith in the world order, but it should create faith in righteousness as the basis of the ideal world order. The religious meaning of this fearful conflict which still, after so many months of sanguinary warfare, envelops the world in a mantle of blight and tears. War is the world's surgeon. Like a patient returning to consciousness after an operation by some great occultist, our nation is now being found-sight upon a new world. We are in an age of discoveries and in the realm of our spiritual life we are commencing to discover 'righteousness.'"

"We who believe in righteousness read the signs of the times—here and now. We believe that, before the storm of war, the anguish of men, their lives, and reigns. One of these immutable prevailing will is righteousness, and whose essential character is love."

"It follows logically upon this that the new internationalism which are creating the comity of peoples and ethics civilization from the suicidal madness of war, must have its religious concomitant in a new internationalism which shall secure a brotherhood of churches and protect religion from the suicidal madness of denominational competition."

"I have presented to you the reconstruction of our religious life and have succeeded also in presenting to you the essential factors in your own part in the reconstruction, which is the only way to a position for righteousness and a passion to express it for the sake of all humanity, then does it only remain for me to remind you that in order, that you shall play your respective parts in the working out of the new world order, you have first of all to use your college education as a foundation and a basis for the right understanding of our own individual lives. A community is an aggregation of individuals—like people, like priests, are the inspiring words of Holy Writ. Like individuals, a congregation may be the application."

"And let me say to you therefore that when all is done that can be done to reach the ideal, it is not to be an efficient race of men and women righteous and inspired with righteousness and radiating righteousness, when all is done to make the conditions just and fair, and to venture, when every artificial barrier is abolished and every stumbling block taken out of the way, the individual must, in the end, be a conqueror of his own soul. Each one of you, young men and women, must realize the truth of Henley's great lines:

"He matters not how straight the gate,
How charged with punishment the frown,
I am the master of my fate,
I am the captain of my soul."

"Do you realize the splendid example of those men and women, who, in spite of the most appalling difficulties and apparently unsurmountable obstacles, by the force of clear grit, self-realization, self-discipline and patient persistence, have attained the goal of a noble and happy life. A every man is in a real sense the maker of his own world, no man knows how much of a world or how good a world he can make until he has made his utmost effort to the end."

"The reconstruction of religion for humanity then, is religion finding itself, escaping from the deadly grip of dogmas, belief, external authority and everything which has stifled thought and corrupted the moral sense. It means abandoning the pursuit of phantoms and illusions. It is a new orientation of the human mind. It is a striving for those human goals which are within our reach, knowledge, reality, goodness, wisdom, the building of a noble character for ourselves, and, as far as may be possible, the helping of others to build also. In other words, the new orientation will be ethical, not speculative, and as present themselves, they are either soluble or they are not. If they are insoluble they are, best left alone; in any case, they belong not to religion, but to science, and when we can see that point as to our dogmas, we shall have the dawn of religious reconstruction, and because I believe so, it, I believe, we see the dawn."

"There is a growing conception of the comprehension of the fact that in the final analysis, the ultimate truth is found in the words of the Lord:

"I see that all things come to an end, but Thy commandment is exceeding broad."
If we see, let us teach.
No good is certain but the seed that

AND WHAT ARE KEDS?

They are canvas rubber-soled shoes brought up to the last notch of perfection. The tops of Keds are made of especially woven fine grade canvas—canvas with the stretch taken out before making up. Yet each fiber is flexible, yielding, conforming to the movements of the foot without losing shape. The soles are rubber-made by the largest rubber concern in the world, that tells the story. Thus it is evident the KEDS are just the shoes for children for they give growing feet correct lines and proper support and keep them delightfully comfortable.

COMMENCEMENT OF WAYNE HIGH SCHOOL THIRTEEN GET DIPLOMAS

Award of Scholarship to Miss Jessie Watson. Address by J. W. Woodrough.

A large audience greeted the graduating class of the high school at the commencement exercises in the Methodist church last Thursday evening and listened with keen interest to the program. The organ prelude was by Miss Bessie Crockett, introduced by Rev. S. N. Cross and music by the girls' glee club was followed by the address of the evening by Judge J. W. Woodrough of Omaha.

Judge Woodrough gave an interesting address, enhanced by stories touching his experiences in the Kansas City University of Law and Business, a law school, and his own experience in the law. He mentioned the fact that the student's temptation to quit school while in the grades, but emphasized the satisfaction felt when the goal of graduation is reached. People who graduate with honors are the ones who carry the heaviest loads. Alluding to the present world crisis, he said the young people must do their share in developing democracy and preparing for the future.

Music by a boys chorus preceded presentation of diplomas by A. R. Woodrough, president of the board of trustees. Following the awarding of the well earned diplomas, Mr. Davis called attention to the effort and sacrifice exacted not only from students but from teachers and parents in the quest for an education. He spoke of the rather uncertain future and emphasized the need of service to the nation and to mankind. Miss Jessie Watson announced the names of the graduates: Marion Grothe, Ernest Stevinson, Jesse Randolph, Lyle Gamble, Orville Gaston, Luther Petersen, Helen Mann, Max Peterson, and Helen Peterson. Miss Jessie Watson as valedictorian of the class and awarded her the scholarship, worth $100. Her average was 95 1/2 per cent. Miss Helen Grothe was second place with an average of 92 per cent.

Rev. A. S. Buell pronounced the benediction and another happy commencement program was brought to a close.

CONGRESSMAN GARDNER—Stouox City Journal: Representative Augustus P. Gardner, of Massachusetts, has displayed the courage of his convictions by resigning from congress to enter the army.

Mr. Gardner has been perhaps the most conspicuous militarist in congress. He was for fighting in Mexico instead of watchful waiting almost from the first. He was one of the first men in public life to drop the attitude of neutrality and urge participation in the world war on the part of the allies. He has long been an ardent advocate of preparedness.

Mr. Gardner was most conspicuously in the public eye when he was regarded as an irrational military radical. Now that one of the wars he urged has come about, he is doing the logical thing in promptly getting out of politics and into the war. In getting into it he has improved on Col. Roosevelt's procedure by seeking to get in through a regular channel. Roosevelt, while equally consistent in his desire to get in, has insisted upon having a special channel constructed for his conference. Col. Gardner, if that is to be his title, will be entitled to more considerate treatment than Representative Gardner received when he was serving, as advance agent for the war.

Jude Johnson should be appointed general strategy of the American army. The first of every month he retreats very strategically and beautifully here in his old home town.

AN APPEAL TO WOMEN.

Nebraska Farmer: In an appeal to the women of the country, by Secretary of Agriculture David F. Houston, it is urged that by their abandonment of their usual home food-eliminating waste and utilizing wearing apparel fully—the women of the country can render important service to the country without abandoning their usual home duties.

Such economy will reduce the supply of foodstuffs, and clothing material and lessen the drain on the food supply.

From the wording of the appeal it appears to be directed chiefly toward farm women, though undoubtedly those in the towns and cities, especially those with considerable worldly goods at their command, would better be urged to reorganize their household expenditures and live in view.

Why should not they, whose habits have been more or less extravagant, and perhaps needlessly so, practice economy, also?

In the matter of dress particularly farm women cannot be charged with extravagance. Perhaps some of them go to the other extreme, but as all odds they are not the slaves to style as their city sisters.

More important in a kind of way is the suggestion of the secretary of agriculture to economize on food and eliminate waste in cooking, for as he points out, if only one ounce of the food were thrown away or allowed to spoil in each of our 20,000,000 homes, the waste would be more than 1,300,000 pounds each day, which would satisfy the hunger of many natives.

The field of business. Sioux City Journal: The runaway wheat market was brought to a halt last week by regulations which apparently assumed by the six leading

Independent and Bell Telephone Companies Form a National System

Independent telephone companies operate exclusively in three-fourths of the towns and cities in the United States having telephone exchanges.

The other one-fourth of the towns in this country having telephone exchanges are served by telephone companies comprising the Bell System.

These independent and Bell telephone companies in a small percentage of the towns in the United States.

The long distance lines of the Bell System connect with the exchange and long distance lines of the independent companies, thus forming a universal telephone service throughout the nation.

grain exchanges of the country. Under the new regulations purchases of grain for future delivery in these exchanges were suspended until further notice. Maximum prices were fixed for the settlement of contracts. The effect was an immediate fall in grain prices. It was estimated that the grain prices had been induced to drop out of the cash market for the present. As a result, prices for futures came down the ladder with a rush, and daily output dropping from $2.75 at the close of the previous week to $2.19 at Thursday's close. On Friday the impression gained ground that the reaction had gone too far and the market was due to rally. The July option closing at $2.40 on Saturday. Underlying the situation is realization that government regulation of food supplies and prices may not have longed.

It has become apparent that persistent pushing will be required to complete the flotation of the $200,000,000 wheat futures bill. The date set for the bond issue subscriptions for the first two weeks aggregated less than half the required amount. The reaction has caused investors and the expectation is that the next few weeks will see a steady growth of demand for war bonds. A $100,000,000 loan to Russia, which is being made by the United States, has had a beneficial effect on the disturbed situation in Petrograd.

Congress is still wrestling with the details of the proposed war tax. An increase in the surtaxes on large incomes was the most important deviation from the committee plan produced by the week's deliberations.

Business continues on a high level with recessions reported here and there on account of high prices, but considered economic labor scarcity or strikes, and lack of railway facilities.

In the corn belt an unusually favorable week for planting was experienced for such making up of lost time.

THE ARMY AND THE FARM.

Lincoln Journal: Since the new army is not to be called to the draft before September, the normal labor supply will be available for the cultivation of this summer's crops. There will be a shortage of corn hucksters in the fall, perhaps such a shortage should not be as acute as has been feared. A census bureau estimate of the number of men in each state subject to conscription under the new army law is as follows:

Alabama	267,940
Arizona	34,700
Arkansas	156,621
California	362,690
Colorado	174,660
Delaware	20,100
District of Columbia	32,400
Florida	92,840
Georgia	255,480
Idaho	51,800
Illinois	630,500
Indiana	253,690
Iowa	292,000
Kentucky	175,900
Kentucky	202,200
Louisiana	141,600
Maine	67,000
Maryland	145,300
Massachusetts	355,400
Michigan	288,100
Minnesota	244,700
Mississippi	175,100
Missouri	316,600
Montana	73,300
Nebraska	129,400
Nevada	16,500
New Hampshire	80,600
New Jersey	306,800
New Mexico	41,500
New York	1,068,000
North Carolina	194,400
North Dakota	89,000
Ohio	400,000
Oklahoma	213,500
Oregon	108,100
Pennsylvania	874,000
Rhode Island	67,000
South Carolina	137,100
South Dakota	80,500
Tennessee	185,000
Texas	420,200
Utah	45,000
Vermont	29,800
Virginia	186,400
Washington	217,400
West Virginia	141,600
Wisconsin	229,500
Wyoming	35,400
Total	10,078,900

The total is ten millions. The first army is to be only a half million, or one-tenth of the available men. Nebraska's available are estimated at 129,400 men. Its proportion of men for the first army would accordingly be about 13,000 men.

The number to be removed from industry by conscription time. The plan seems to be, however, to select men for the army with a view to having the farming operations as little embarrassed as possible. This may cause an unusual shifting of labor from the towns to the farms, enough, perhaps, to leave the fields well manned even after the first army is in camp.

How to Answer Questions on Registration Cards!

Read carefully before you go to the registration table. Here is what you will be asked. Study the questions. Prepare the answers in your mind.

Questions will be asked for you to answer in the order in which they appear on this paper. These questions are set out below with detailed information to help you answer them.

Do not write on, mark, or otherwise mutilate these instructions. Do not remove them. They should be carefully read so that you will have your answers ready when you go before the Registrar.

All answers will be written on the Registration Card in ink by the Registrar, who should be careful to print all names correctly and to write legibly.

1. Name in full. Age in years. This means all your names spelled out in full. State your age in whole years and disregard additional months or days. Be prepared to say "19" or "25" not "19 yrs. 3 mos." or the like.

2. Home address. This means the place where you have your permanent home, not the place where you work. Be prepared to give the address in this way: 232 Main Street, Chicago, Cook County, Illinois; that is, give number and name of street first, then town, then county and State.

3. Date of birth. Write your birthday (month, day, and year) on a piece of paper before going to the Registrar, and give the paper to him the first thing. Example: "August 5, 1894." If you do not remember the year, start to answer as you would if you were asked your birthday. Always give the year of your birth. The Registrar will then fill in the year of birth. Many people do not carry in mind the year they were born. This may be obtained by the Registrar by subtracting the age in years on this year's birthday from 1917.

4. Are you (1) a natural-born citizen; (2) a naturalized citizen; (3) an alien; (4) or have you declared your intention to become a citizen (specify which)?

(1) If you were born in the United States, including Alaska and Hawaii, you are a natural-born citizen, no matter what may have been the citizenship or nationality of your parents. If you were born in Porto Rico you are a citizen of the United States, unless you were born of alien parentage. If you were born abroad, you are still a citizen of the United States if your father was a citizen of the United States at the time you were born, unless you have been expatriated yourself.

(2) You are a naturalized citizen if you have completed your naturalization; that is, if you have taken final papers. But you are not a citizen if you have only declared your intention to become a citizen (that is, if you have only "taken out first papers"); in the latter case you are only a "declarant."

You are also a naturalized citizen if, although foreign born, your father or surviving parent became fully naturalized while you were under 21 years of age, and if you came to the United States under 21.

(3) You are a declarant if, although a citizen or subject of some foreign country, you have declared on oath before a naturalization court your intention to become a citizen of the United States. Receipt from the clerk of the court of the certified copy of such declaration is often called "taking out first papers." You are not a declarant if your first paper was taken out after September 26, 1906, and is more than 7 years old.

(4) You are an alien if you do not fall within one of the three classes above mentioned.

5. Where were you born? First name the town, then the State, then the country, as "Columbus, Ohio;" "Vienna, Austria;" "Paris, France;" "Sofia, Bulgaria."

6. If not a citizen, of what country are you a citizen or subject? This need be answered only by aliens and declarants. Remember that a "declarant" is not yet a citizen of the United States. If an alien or declarant, state the name of your country, as "France," "Japan," "China," etc.

7. What is your present trade, occupation, or office? This does not ask what you once did, nor what you have done most of the time, nor what you are best fitted to do. IT ASKS WHAT YOUR JOB IS RIGHT NOW. State briefly, as "Farmer," "Miner," "Student," "Laborer on farm, in rolling mill, in automobile, wagon, or other factory," "Machinist in automobile factory," etc. If you hold an office under State or Federal government, name the office you hold. If you are in one of the following offices or employments, use one of the names hereafter mentioned:

"Customhouse clerk," "employed in the transmission of the mails," or "employed in an army, arsenal, or navy yard," "mariner actually employed in the sea service," citizen-merchant within the United States.

8. By whom employed? Where employed? If you are working for an individual, firm, corporation, or association, state its name. If in business, trade, profession, or employment for yourself, so state. If you are an officer of the State or Federal government, say whether your office is under the United States, the State, the county, or a municipality. In answer to the question as to where you are employed, give the town, county, and State where you work.

9. Have you a father, mother, wife, child under 12, or a sister or brother under 12 solely dependent upon you for support (specify which)? Consider your answer thoughtfully. If it is true that there is another mouth than your own which you alone have a duty to feed, do not let your military and naval interests with the wish of the Nation to reduce war's miseries run minimum. Depend on you, and unless the person you have in mind is solely dependent on you, do not hide behind petticoats or children.

10. Married or single (which)? Race (specify which)? This does not ask whether you were once married, but whether you are married now. In answer to the question as to your race, state briefly whether "Caucasian," "Mongolian," "Negro," "Malayan," or "Indian."

11. What military service have you had? Rank? Branch? Years? Nation or State? No matter what country you served, you must give complete information. In answering these questions, first name your rank, using one of the following words: "Commissioned officer," "Noncommissioned officer," "Private." Next state branch in which you served in one of the following words: "Infantry," "Cavalry," "Artillery," "Medical," "Signal," "Aviation," "Supply," "Marine," "Navy." Next state the number of years service, not counting time spent in the Reserve. Finally, name the Nation or State you served. If you served under the United States or one of the States of the United States, name your service in one of the following terms: "National Guard (of such and such a State)," "Militia (of such and such a State)," "Volunteers of United States," or "Regular Army (Navy) of United States."

12. Do you claim exemption from draft? Specify grounds. Because you claim exemption from draft, it by no means follows that you are exempt. For the information of the War Department you should make a claim now if you intend to prosecute it. Some persons will be exempted on account of their occupations or offices, some on account of the fact that they have relatives dependent upon them for support. Your answer touching these things will be important in supporting the claim you now intend to make in your answer to the present questions. Be sure, therefore, that the grounds you now state are in conformity with your answers to questions 7 and 8. In stating grounds you claim as exempting you, use one of the following terms: If you claim to be an executive, legislative, or judicial officer of the State or Nation, name your office and say whether it is an office of the State or Nation. If you claim to be a member of a religious sect whose creed forbids its members to participate in war in any form, simply name the sect. If you are employed in the transmission of the mails, in the United States mails, as an officer or workman in an army, arsenal, or navy yard of the United States, or if you are a mariner employed in the sea service of any citizen or merchant within the United States, so state. If you are a felon or otherwise morally deficient and desire to claim exemption on that ground, state your ground briefly. If you claim physical disability state that briefly. If you claim exemption on any other ground, state your ground briefly.

country. There is every reason why depression in business should be avoided and regarded as the enemy, and this does not mean simply the routine business of the wholesaler and the manufacturer and the merchant and the builder or those engaged in transportation—it means business in all lines.

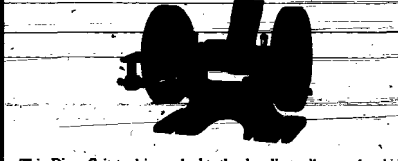

There is no reason why there should be extraordinary curtailment in the business of furnishing amusements. People need recreation just as much today as they did yesterday and they will need it just the same tomorrow, and the business of furnishing entertainment ought to be encouraged and upheld along with the business of furnishing supplies and transporting them.

European nations have recognized this. Along with Great Britain's last year record of the largest business in the history of the empire, with the exception of a single year, the government of that country has urged constantly to keep its place engaged in transportation—it means business in all lines.

There is no occasion for any continued depression in business in this

Your idea of duty depends largely on your prejudices. No man assumes a helvan offensive when he beats carpets.

WHAT IS A LIBERTY BOND?

A Liberty Loan Bond is a solemn promise of the United States government to maturely pay the amount of the bond to the holder thereof, and to pay interest semiannually each year from the date of the issuance of the bond to the holder and his family.

What is the Security for a Liberty Loan Bond?

The faith and honor of the United States, backed by all of the resources of the nation and the American people.

What is the Nature of a Liberty Loan Bond?

There are two kinds of Liberty Loan Bonds. Bearer Bonds are to be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, and $1,000. These Bearer Bonds, which are made payable to bearer, are interest coupons attached which are detached by the holder when the interest installments, they represent are due, and can be cashed at any bank or same as a United States treasury note.

Registered bonds are to be issued, which are registered as to both principal and interest, in denominations of $50.00 and $100.00; checks for the amount of interest due will be mailed out semiannually to the holders of these registered bonds.

What Are the Terms of a Liberty Loan Bond?

Liberty Loan Bonds of the first issue of $2,000,000,000 are to bear date of June 15, 1917, and to run for thirty years, except that the government reserves the right to pay them fifteen years after date. This right is not exercised by the government fifteen years from date, the bonds will run the full thirty years.

These bonds bear interest at 3 1/2 per cent per annum, and the interest is payable semiannually on the fifteenth day of December and the fifteenth day of June in each year.

What Special Advantages Have These Liberty Loan Bonds?

One special advantage no other bond of National State, municipal or corporate, has is that if the United States during the continuance of this war shall issue other bonds at a higher rate of interest, the holder of these Liberty bonds have the right to exchange their Liberty bonds for bonds bearing the higher rate of interest, dollar for dollar.

What Other Special Advantages Do These Bonds Possess?

If they are nontaxable. If your city, county or state taxes are three mills on the dollar, a not unusual tax, these bonds are equivalent to ordinary corporate bonds or other investments bearing 6 per cent interest. In addition to the fact that war conditions may later make a cessant will affect these bonds. The

Dr. Donahy has also renovated his show cases to display the display of optical instruments. The grinding machine which includes a stone, drill, cutter and buffer, all operated by electricity, enables Dr. Donahy to duplicate any lens that is brought to him. It is interesting to know that outside of Lincoln and Omaha Dr. Donahy has the only exclusive optical store in the state.

CONCORD NEWS

consider all public questions with as little partisan bias as possible. But this does not mean a purpose or desire to avoid a just criticism of public and plans. That is a right that should be reserved and exercised even when we are at war. It is this freedom of the press that has been so gallantly maintained in the days of the espionage and sedition law at Washington. Congress, and we believe the people, also desire that there be a freedom of discussion and criticism in order that we may have assurance that we are not to fall into evil hands and be plundered blindfolded. Publicity is so valuable a principle that if we have to forego it we might as well admit that we are giving up haven't much to fight for. If fundamental liberties like freedom to print and comment are to be abandoned, then, instead of being a strength and stay to the cause of democracy, they are a flaw and a weakness.

There is unquestionably a good deal of politics being played at Washington, and there will be no advisers. But there are such tremendous issues at stake the American people will not complacently tolerate it in its small and mean phases. Manifestations of it will be no more agreeable in those holding office than in the newspapers that fail to broadly rise to the occasion. There will be a struggle that at best may expect to witness a good deal of inefficiency. We can stand that, but we cannot, in addition, endure downright plundering that so serious a crisis. We want no scandals, no scaling of qualities for supplies, no duplicate vouchers, no thievery.

An alert, unhampered, non-partisan and honest public press will be of tremendous value to the country during the days just ahead.

A Mistaken Idea

Some people have an idea that in order to have a bank account, they must have some money to deposit; that the bank does not care to be bothered by "small" accounts. This, however, is not true of the State Bank. This bank welcomes new accounts, whether of $1 or $1,000, and the same courtesy and service is accorded the small depositor, as those in more fortunate circumstances.

It is our object and wish to serve the public in the most efficient manner that shall be satisfactory to all—old or young, rich or poor.

"What is so rare as a day in June?" wrote the poet. But even the delightful freshness of a spring day is lost on the sick. However, there are degrees to the misery of sickness. Environment plays so great a part in the story of every sick room. If you are in a clean, cool room, so located that your friends can call each day to tell you the news and carry messages to those you love, you can live through the days of convalescence cheerfully just in anticipation of those visits.

Because these facts are widely recognized the small hospital in the country town has steadily grown in favor until now it is regarded not as a hazardous adventure but as a necessary institution, subordinate only to the public schools and the churches in its importance to the community. And public opinion in a great democracy does not judge amiss.

A Leverless Cultivator

Is a saver of both time and nerves. And besides, another distinct advantage lies in the fact that a small boy can operate the John Deere Cultivator and do a good job.

IT PLOWS EVENLY

And anyone who has ever operated cultivators for even a day knows that is a big point in its favor. This even penetration of the soil is insured by the rig couplings together with the section of the shovels. Unlike most plows, the rigs are only connected with the frame at one point. Consequently the shovels move along through the ground at the same depth and in a straight line even if the horses strike from side to side or the frame tilts as the wheels strike uneven ground.

Adjustable Balance and Springs

The powerful springs adjust for both tension and leverage. These simple adjustments permit the use of light or heavy rigs with equal ease and satisfaction. Come in and see the other paramount advantages of the John Deere.

McCormick Big 6 Mowers Didn't Happen

The new machine is not an accident—it's a distinct improvement.

The Big 6 Replaces the New Big 4

McCormick harvesting machines are never changed unless decided improvements can be made either in the machine itself or in the work that it does. Sixteen years of satisfaction in the field has made the McCormick New 4 a popular machine. But we predict even wider success with the New 6 when it comes.

Now the New 6 is not a New 4 mower made over. It is a new mower with all the good features of the New 4 and with many distinct improvements. Not only has the No. 6 mower been O. K'd by expert mechanics, but it also has made good in the field.

Special care has been taken with the No. 6 to make it easy to replace all parts. Busy farmers will be quick to appreciate this advantage.

Rigid Frame Cast in One Piece

To guarantee good work season after season, a mower must have a substantial main frame. If the main frame did not remain perfectly rigid, the gears and shafts would be thrown out of line, causing all kinds of grief. That is why the No. 6 frame is cast all in one piece and thoroughly braced.

Get into the seat of a McCormick No. 6 and test out these other new and exclusive features.

1. Effective raising leavers without the detent handle.
2. Flexible Gag Arrangement for rough, uneven ground.
3. Tough pitman of second growth hickory.
4. Coupling Bar of extra heavy steel without welding.
5. Countershaft Clutch which acts instantaneously.

Washington, May 19.—President Wilson's proclamation putting into effect the selective draft provision of the war army bill, signed last week follows:

"A proclamation by the president of the United States:

Provision is made in the case of temporary absence from actual place of legal residence of any person liable to registration as provided herein, such registration may be made by mail under regulations to be prescribed by the president.

Section 6. That the president is hereby authorized to utilize the service of any or all departments and any or all officers or agents of the United States and the several states, territories and the District of Columbia, sub-divisions thereof, in the execution of this act and all officers and agents of the United States and of the several States, territories and sub-divisions thereof, and of the District of Columbia and all persons designated or appointed under regulations prescribed by the president, governor or whether such appointments are made by the president himself or by the governor or other officers of any state or territory to perform any duty in the execution of this act are hereby required to perform such duty as the president shall order or direct, and all such officers and agents and persons so designated or appointed shall hereby have full authority to perform all acts done by them in the execution of this act by the direction of the president. "Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, do hereby order the governor of each of the several states and territories, the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia and all officers and agents of the several states and territories of the District of Columbia and of the counties and municipalities therein to perform certain duties in the execution of the foregoing law, which duties shall be communicated to them directly in regulations of even date herewith.

Registration Day June 5.

"And I do further proclaim and give notice to all persons subject to registration in the several states and in the District of Columbia, in accordance with the above law, that the time and place of such registration shall be between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. on the 5th day of June, 1917, at the registration place in the precinct wherein they have their permanent homes. Those who shall have attained their twenty-first birthday and who shall not have attained their thirty-first birthday on or before the day here named are required to register, excepting only officers and enlisted men of the regular army, the navy, the marine corps and the national guard and naval militia while in the service of the United States and officers of the officers' reserve corps and enlisted men in the reserve corps while in active service. In the territories of Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico a day for registration will be named in a later proclamation. And I do charge those who, through sickness, shall be unable to present themselves for registration, to apply on or before the day of registration to the county clerk of the county where they may be for instructions as to how they may be registered by agent. Those who are absent from the countries in which they have their permanent homes may register by mail but their mail registration cards must reach the places in which they have their permanent homes by the day named herein. They should apply as soon as practicable to the county clerk of the county where they may be for instructions as to how they may accomplish their registration by mail. In case such persons as through sickness or absence may be unable to present themselves personally for registration, shall be sojourning in cities of over 30,000 population, they shall apply to the city clerk of the city wherein they may be sojourning rather than to the clerk of the county.

The clerks of counties and cities over 30,000 population in which numerous applications from the sick and from non-residents are expected are authorized to establish such agencies to employ and deputize such clerical force as may be necessary to accommodate these applications.

Must Train Nation for War.

"The power against which we are arrayed, the proclamation continues, has sought to impose its will upon the world by force. To this end, it has increased armament until it has changed the face of war. In the sense in which we have been wont to think or armies there are no armies in this struggle. These are entire nations armed. Thus, the men who consent to all the soil and men the factories are no less men of the army that is in France than the men beneath the battle flags. It must be so with us. It is not an army that we must shape and train for war, it is a nation. To this end our people must draw close in one compact front against a common foe. But this cannot be if each man pursues a private purpose. All must pursue one purpose. The nation needs all men; but it needs each man not in the field that will most please him but in the endeavor that will best serve the common good. Thus, though a sharp shooter, it is useless to operate a trip hammer for the forging of great guns, and an expert machinist desires to march with the flag, the nation is being served only when the sharp shooter marches and the machinist remains at his levers. The whole nation must be a team in which each man shall play the part for which he is best fitted. To this end, congress has provided that the nation shall be organized for war by selection and that each man shall be classified for service in the place to which it shall best serve the general good to call him.

Land Mark in Our History.

"The significance of this cannot be over-stated. It is a new thing in our history and a land-mark in our progress. It is a new manner of accepting and vitalizing our duty to give ourselves with thoughtful devotion to the common purpose of us all. It is in no sense conscription, for the unwillingness of the individual to select from a nation which has volunteered in mass. It is no more a choosing of those who shall march with the colors than it is a selection of those who shall serve in the service of the nation for an equally necessary and devoted purpose in industries that lie behind the battle line.

"The day here named is the time upon which all shall present themselves for assignment to their tasks. It is for that reason destined to be remembered as one of the most conspicuous moments in our history. It is important that the devotion to them that there is no gaps in the ranks.

Proper Food for Weak Stomachs.

The proper food for one man may be all wrong for another. Every one should adopt a diet suited to his age and occupation. Those who have weak stomachs need to be especially careful and should eat slowly and masticate their food thoroughly. It is also important that they keep their bowels regular. When they become constipated or when they feel dull and stupid after eating, they should take Chamberlain's Tablets to strengthen the stomach and move the bowels. They effect.

Pork Chops

For breakfast or a quickly prepared dinner what is better than nice, sweet, juicy pork chops?

We personally visit the markets each week and choose only those cuts which we feel sure would satisfy our most particular customer. We recommend our pork chops as measuring up fully to the high standards of all our meats.

We also have tip-top mutton, lamb and veal chops.

For Cured Meats

Such as ham, bacon, dried beef, sausage, etc., just say Armour's.

That's enough.

OFFERS SUGGESTIONS TO YOUNG GARDENERS

Herman S. Siems, supervisor of the Home Garden club in Wayne, reports the gardens in fine condition and a great harvest of recent crops. He has contributed the following valuable information from the department of horticulture which will be read with interest by garden enthusiasts.

Thinning.
Many garden plants require thinning. The thinning of plants is a necessary operation, more so as usually considered, than necessary, in order to insure a good stand of plants. This heavy seeding makes necessary the thinning of plants to insure the proper growth and the best quality.

The thinning of plants is a valuable practice. It enables the grower to study plants. It makes possible the eradication of the destruction of all weak and inferior plants. It gives the grower the opportunity of finding out which plants do the best and emphasizes plant selection.
It insures the proper spacing of large and uniform specimens. Such plants as the radishes, beets, carrots, salsify, turnips and onions cannot grow and develop satisfactorily if they are crowded. Therefore these plants must be thinned.
Plants like the beans, peas, lettuce and several more will struggle along if crowded, but the yield is always reduced.

The distance the several vegetables should be thinned depends upon the plant. For small root crops like spring radishes the plants should stand about two inches apart in the rows. For beets, carrots, and the larger root crops
from four to six inches of the rows is about the proper distance. Such plants as the peas and the beans should stand two to four inches apart depending upon the variety.

Thinning is very important because it insures that the plants are crowded. Therefore, study your plant's needs and allow it plenty of room to expand and to develop properly.

Replanting.
Replanting is the reverse of thinning. Replanting is the planting of a second or a third time when it is learned that a part of the seed did not come up the first time and you have a poor stand of plants.
Replanting is important, because only the maximum yields can be obtained when it is a full stand of plants. If the seeds are new and have good vitality replanting will usually never have to be practiced.
Occasionally, however, a damp cold spell at the time the seeds are sown kills many of them to rot before they sprout. In such a case replanting should be done as soon as the seeds fail to come up.

Cultivating the Garden.
All plants require cultivation. No plant will grow and produce a maximum yield if the soil is hard and lumpy. No plant will produce a good yield if the roots are restricted in their growth by hard and lumpy ground. All plants are benefited by cultivation because it loosens the soil, increases the amount of air and water available for plant growth.

The cultivation of the garden is beneficial for the following reasons:
First—Cultivation improves the physical condition of the soil by breaking up the soil particles and making a finer seed bed.

Second—Cultivation holds more water in the soil by forming a deep mud on the surface and preventing the loss of water by evaporation.
Third—Cultivation increases the amount of plant food by stirring up the soil, which makes the food more available for the plants.

Fourth—Cultivation makes the soil warmer and permits more air
to reach the roots of the plant.
Fifth—Cultivation keeps the soil loose and prevents the soil from becoming hard and lumpy under the manure or any green cover crop.

Sixth—Cultivation destroys weeds which are an injury to any growing plant.
The cultivation of the garden should be done frequently. Once a week is not too often. Every garden should be cultivated after each rainfall or whenever it is needed.
The cultivating should be done just as soon as the ground is dry enough to work without making it hard and lumpy.

The principal tools for cultivating
the garden are the hand weeder,
the hand hoe, and the wheel hoe.
Occasionally the hand rake is a convenient tool for smoothing the surface of the garden and making the soil fine, but it cannot be used for deep cultivation. The hand weeder is a small rake-like tool which is used to stir the soil between the rows. The hand hoe is used for cultivating between the rows and occasionally between the plants when they are spaced far enough apart. The wheel hoe is a small wheel-mounted on wheels which is equipped with several different kinds of shovels. The shovels can be removed and changed whenever the conditions warrant a different kind of shovel. The wheel hoe is one of the most valuable tools for a large garden because it is more efficient and it saves both labor and time.

The proper depth to cultivate the soil depends upon the type of soil, the kind of plant and the season of the year. If the soil is light and sandy it can be stirred a little deeper than if it is heavy clay. Early in the season the soil is usually cultivated somewhat deeper than late in the season. Small plants must be cultivated more shallowly and handled more carefully than large ones.

The cultivation of the plants should be thorough and timely. Always see that the soil is well prepared and that all of the weeds are destroyed, particularly those that grow up between the plants.

THE WOMAN AT WORK

Sioux City Journal: While the war doubtless will greatly stimulate the trend of women toward the gainful occupations, this effect will be accelerated and revolutionized in Little public attention has been paid to it, but the fact is that during the last generation the drift of women in America toward money earning has been very marked. In the past few years, but each decade for some time has shown a faster.
Besides the general increase in employment of all women, there also has been a marked increase in the number of married, divorced and widowed women in gainful vocations.
A new report of the federal Census bureau covering these phases of any woman shows in cold figures what the drift has been. The report covers specifically the period between 1890 and 1910. It deals with girls and women of 16 years and over. Without entering into explanations or attempts at explanation, it tells that in 1890 there were 3,996,615 women in the United States, gainfully employed, and in 1910 the figure was 7,438,686. The proportion of all the women represented by the 1890 total was 19 per cent, in the 1910 total 20 per cent, and by the 1910 total 25.3 per cent.
Of the women of 16 or over who were gainfully occupied in 1890 the proportion of married women was 24.7 per cent, in 1910 it was 26.7 per cent. The proportion of single women employed was 15.7 per cent.
In South Carolina it was 20.8 per cent. The proportion of all married women gainfully engaged also increased in the north country. The
Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Indiana is between 4 and 5 per cent.

The showing of the south in these respect doubtless is due in large measure to the presence of the negro.
But the significant thing is the growing proportion of women at work and of their women among the increasing percentage of married is independent of region. It is as true of the north as of the south, of the west as of the east. It is a most interesting sociological development.

WHAT DOES DEATH MEAN?

An Artist Called It "The Chance to Explore the Infinite."
A French definition of death is that by a French artist, who has now tested
the truth of his own words. "Death," said he, "is the chance to explore the infinite." The definition is in the mood as that of the late Charles Fostman, as he went down on the Trojan island. It is a bit more definite, however, than "Death is life's most beautiful adventure," which expresses the nature of the adventure.

This French artist, it seems, was enamored of the space idea. He was ever viewing the front of a vast, mysterious, and ever-changing. He endeavored with artist victation to visualize the world as floating through infinite by other worlds or in a stream of comets, planets, asteroids, suns. And his dream was of lights across the guide to Mars, to Venus, outside the solar system, to Sirius and the greater suns. With his eyes striven to realize what Goethe expresses in the song of the archangel
in the opening of "Faust."
"All the kinds of us pass over, willing,
if, reluctantly. We have no choice,
and there are no examples. Probably we have no choice concerning what death is to be. Whether it means extinction or confers immortality, whether it is a glorious adventure or whets us into another world existence, is determined by another death, we have no power to determine. We await its coming and its solution, both. We are victims to its beneficent and its cruel. We have no power to change its destiny. The bold dreamer welcomes it as an opportunity. The tired spirit is reconciled to it as rest. Perhaps will bring to every man his different hope. Let us so trust.—Minnesota Journal.

STATIONERY FOR THE GRADUATES

We have just unpacked a big order of Kara's fine linen box stationery, every sheet of which is heavily embossed with the Wayne State Normal seal. If you have received an announcement from some member of the class, nothing would be more appropriate for a small remembrance than a box of this distinctive writing paper.

Many Attractive Books
Perhaps there is no way so certain to be long remembered as by the gift of a good book. Books designed especially for Commencement gifts include:
LEATHER VOLUMES OF POEMS.
MEMORY BOOKS.
SMALL CLASSICS.
NEW COPYRIGHTS.
Aside from stationery and books, we would suggest booklets, fountain pens, pyralin ivory, and toilet goods as pleasing gifts.
