It Shows the Four-Ply Construction of the Copper-Clad Range Body

- See No. 1—The heavy grey iron inner-lining that clamps the asbestos to place.
- See No. 2—The thick layer of long fiber asbestos that keeps the heat in the range.
- See No. 3—The sheet of pure copper to spend the asbestos and the range.
- See No. 4—The range body or outer-casing on which the life of a range depends.

REMEMBER
That the asbestos in a range sweats every time a fire is made. The heat drives the moisture out of the asbestos—away from the fire—and against the copper sheet. Now see the air space formed by the domes in the sheet of copper. It keeps No. 4, the range body, perfectly dry so it never rusts out from the inside.

INSIDE RUST
If a range body didn't rust from the inside the range would last several times as long. That's why Copper-Clads outlast two or three ordinary ranges—they can't rust from the inside. You can easily stop outside rust with a bit of oil or paraffine or stove polish, —but what can you do for inside rust even if you know it.

LET US PROVE IT.
Come and See the Asbestos Sweat
Takes but 5 minutes—you'll know forever

"My Country 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty"

I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the Republic which it stands; one nation indivisible with Liberty and Justice to all.

Accumulation of great wealth is not always proof of mental superiority. It is often the result of business judgment, power of correctly estimating values, ability to guess on the trend of the future and energy to further material ends. It is often the result of years of unflagging toil and careful saving. It is also sometimes the result of an ever-present determination to get everything deserved and as much more as possible, yet parsimoniously not pay more than absolutely necessary. Some people have been kicked into affluence by circumstances which they could not control—bought property which did not go high in price that it made them rich. It is not necessarily a rich man who can wisely consider social questions or untangle political problems. The man of wealth has usually—not always—devoted chief thought to material gain. He has not given main attention to problems outside of the realm of money-making. Many people of refined and polished intellects fail to become interested in social and political questions because they have inclination to fields of thought apart from possible profit in dollars and cents. Even a "short" man who tries to make something, though it is unable to amass great wealth, the compensation comes by surpassing material prosperity is the sacrifice of other considerations.

A good deal is put up to the American conscience these days, and a good deal depends on the American conscience. Many patriotic duties are to be performed, and the conscience is a big, prompting force. The American conscience will rise quicker and strike harder for humanity, will respond quicker to the pleadings of stricken people than any conscience in the world. At the front or at home, the American conscience will be found devoted to the redressing of wrongs, the alleviation of suffering and the safeguarding of freedom and human rights everywhere. The American conscience has been refined until it abhors injustice and cruelty, until it finds courage arising to the rescue of helpless victims of unprovoked brutality and outrage. The American conscience, stirred to its depths, will liberate the world. It will make good in this crisis.

Training in army camps gives young men quickened intellects and sustaining muscles. It instills alertness, courage and fortitude. It makes them quick to think and strong to act. We saw an elderly mother take her soldier son to the baby of the family—into her arms at the railway station recently as he was leaving to join his company overseas. What a motherly affection sacrifice was encouraged and made more bearable by the tenderness and buoyancy and hope offered by her son in the uniform. She caressed his military coat, and she had seen that only a mother can feel. He reflected his training in his manifestation of filial love and manly courage.

We are camouflaged into eating most anything these days. Substitutes are trotted out in so many different guises that one has to get a bill of particulars to know what he is eating. We went into a gastronomic camouflage recently and were suddenly shot by a lot of little red peppers that had been purposely hidden under a pleasing and tempting venger. Substitutes are so disgusting that one thinks he has eaten one thing whereas he has really eaten another. Since people are so easily deceived, what's the use in fastidiousness? The experience in controlling and educating the appetite is good for health and comfort.

The city clerk reports increased consumption of electricity over that of any previous February notwithstanding that the service has been suspended during six hours of every day. Thus, the city reaps more revenue that it did when the plant operated continuously, all of which shows that consumers have been dipping into the electric supply with increased liberality while it lasts. The result apparently is this: Fewer the hours of operation, the greater the consumption, the greater the revenue and the less the expense.

Albion is considering a proposition to pave, and the way any unpaved streets at this season is powerful argument in favor of the improvement. Wayne should have been paved five years ago, but didn't get around to do it, and of late it has been said, though much has been thought, of the need. Every man who parks his car in the middle of the street and then wades through the mud to the sidewalk lays aside his piety long enough to think a few short words of disgust and condemnation.

Suggesting a precedent for the Wilson administration, it has been pointed out that Lincoln's cabinet during the great Civil war crisis was made up of four democrats and three republicans. During the present critical period in the nation's life, people would like to see the two leading parties represented by their ablest statesmen in the president's body of direct advisers and helpers. Nonpartisanship is essential at this time, but it should be endorsed by example in Washington.

The government in its management of the railroads ought to get around before long to the business of fixing schedules so that trains competing and otherwise will connect and thus facilitate and hasten travel and shipments. As we have understood, one of the objects of government control was to insure close railway connections.

It is unfortunate that people must sit idly by and see an unsophisticated girl slyly caught in the nefarious trap of a demagogue and miscreant who biped merely because of lack of direct and absolute proof. To protest unsuspecting young womanhood at this time, but it should be assumed ground based on suspicion and act accordingly.

Wayne is getting ready to pull off a big article section for the Red Cross next Saturday, and promises to be a stellar performance.

The White Basket Grocery

The store that stands high in the esteem of its patrons. First, the war has laid new stress on the wisdom of buying foods at over-the-counter prices and carrying them home. Second, The character of goods handled are dependable and just as represented in every instance. Our change from credit to cash has raised the standard. Many people prefer to trade at a cash store where there is an opportunity to effect a substantial saving making it possible for the housewife to provide the table from her usual allowance and have money left.

The Basket Store is receiving very loyal support from both country and city. People are taking time to stop and think and are fast becoming "converts" to the safe and sane system, selling for cash, turning goods quick at a small margin.

There is a reason (many of them) why the Basket Grocery is more largely preferred than the store conducted in the old way. If you will investigate, if you will look into the possibilities, consider the common sense idea of selling for cash, you will understand why we are receiving unusual cooperative support. The maintenance of this store will owe its existence to the patronage of the people who STOP AND THINK.

WOMAN'S WAR WORK. (By Mrs. J. G. W. Lewis) Increased food production of prime importance. Food administration speakers and that to the war zone and who have been to the war zone and who have first hand information regarding the food situation are the other states, importing the American people to save food in order that starving children of our allies and that our own men in the trenches may be fed. America must heed their warnings, but of even greater importance right now is the problem of food production. Production in 1918 must be increased in order that we may have food to conserve. Some lines of patriotic work can be carried on all the year round but place for food production must be made now. The women, and especially the women on the farms, can and will have a large part in increasing food production. Mrs. E. M. Dawese, of Dawson, Neb., who is herself a farm woman, and who is serving on the woman's committee as state chairman of food production has issued the following: Food Platform for War-Time Producers. To stimulate production of all food that can be utilized without arguing impermissible production of perishables or articles not purchasable on the general market until there is solution in sight of some of the present problems of labor, strikes and transportation, is the aim of the food production department of the woman's committee of the Nebraska council of defense. With the endorsement of G. W. Watters, state food administrator, C. W. Pursley, head of the extension department of the University of Nebraska, and George Coupland, chairman of the Nebraska council of defense, the following platform is issued by the woman's committee food production chairman, Mrs. F. M. Dawese, of Dawson: All families produce to their full ability such food as is purchasable on the general market. This includes general crops and stock, poultry, some of the dairy products such as dried beans, etc. All families supply as nearly as possible their own tables and try to provide themselves with a supply of vegetables for a year—all they can use, fresh, canned, dried or stored. Under present conditions of labor, market and transportation, all families produce what they feel assured will find a market, either through the regular channels or by arrangement with all hotels, boarding houses, families who are not situated that they can supply them

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES

From the Wayne Herald, March 1, 1900. Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Ellis returned from their Iowa visit. The whist club was entertained by Mrs. Walter Weber.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Moran February 27, 1900. The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. J. Folck, died February 27, 1900.

Pete Lewis entertained a number of friends in honor of his wife, Mrs. Charles Lungen of Sioux City, visited his brother-in-law, John Coyle.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Turner and daughter returned from their Oregon trip. J. W. Bartlett received a medal awarded his deceased son, Elmer, by the governor of Colorado.

The Wayne school board is agitating the proposition to vote $10,000 bonds for a new school building.

From the living vein of J. W. Nichols, 14 years nine months of Wayne, died of quick consumption.

Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Nieman entertained a party of friends in honor of their guests, Judge and Mrs. Mackay of Stanton.

Mr. C. Swanson and Miss Hilda C. Anderson, both of Logan precinct, were married by the county judge February 25, 1900.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bush of Wilbur precinct, celebrated their sixteenth wedding anniversary. Fifty neighbors and friends enjoyed the hospitality of the Bush family.

Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Theobald, James Porterfield and D. H. Sullivan of Wayne.

From Ponca Journal, February 28, 1918: Ice is all out of the river. On Tuesday there was a general bustle all along the line, and it went pitching and smashing down stream.

The crowd of dogs and cats, five dogs and purrs around this neck of woods that ought to have sentence of death pronounced on them immediately.

Not that the row over teacher is settled, would it not be well for the people to think of building a stylish and commodious school house in the spring.

At the elevator of J. Leach there has thus far been purchased 38,000 bushels of wheat. He has this week been paying 77 cents per bushel.

On Tuesday he bought between four and five hundred bushels at that rate. Mr. Leach does not propose to buy any more dressed hogs for market price.

On Tuesday he paid $2.60 per hundred. We were greatly pleased on Monday, for the reason that Mr. Rockwell the poet laureate, came in and left with us another of his soul-stirring poems, which we are well pleased to publish for the edification of our readers.

Mr. Rockwell has finished inventing his car-coupler, and will in the future, we trust, take more time for poetry and less for practical inspiration from the divine poetic muse, often than heretofore.

We understand that the Sioux City house in that Col. Davenport (formerly the general manager of the C. & B. H. railroad) is about to go to Brazil, for the purpose of building a narrow gauge railroad that will henceforward unhappy country. It is to be presumed that it is the same road that was projected last summer by Genoy Alchametz and his brother, Asbigassell, and which was to run between Penumblesburg and Baradocia.

GERMAN ATROCITIES. Prof. Guernsey Jones in Lincoln Journal: The wholesale arson, rape, and lynchings which have been perpetrated in every territory they have entered, the illegal taking and execution of hostages, the imposition of exorbitant fines, the misuse of civilians for screens in military operations, the extensive deportations and forced labor, are, it need hardly be said, inhuman cruelties in themselves; but they take on an additional indescribably odious color when we recall that they have been committed, "not by the independent acts of unscrupulous individuals, nor as the results of misunderstandings or in the heat of fierce passions evoked in battle, but by the cold-blooded execution of general orders, prepared for the army in time of peace," in direct violation of international pledges solemnly entered upon.

Bismarck in 1871. It must not be supposed that these worse than Turkish barbarities are a new thing in the world. They have long been a recognized branch of German military technique. In 1871 Bismarck said: "It is in the territories which we occupy, we can not supply everything for our troops, from time to time we shall send a flying column into the territories which we are occupying. We shall shoot, hang and burn. After that has happened a few times the inhabitants will finally come to their senses."

A magazine article written in 1871 by the distinguished English philosopher and historian, Frederick Harrison, shows how Kultur made its way at that time. It has been believed that the following eloquent passage was not written of the present war:

"The result of France has been such as to put up a sword, for 300 or 400 miles vast armies have poured on. Every village they have passed through has been the victim of what is only organized pillage. Every city has been practically sacked, ransacked on system; its citizens plundered, its civil officials terrorized, imprisoned, outraged or killed. The very notion of a peace treaty, contrary to the usage of modern warfare, forced to serve the invading armies, brutally put to death, reduced to a state of utter starvation and desolation. Vast tracts of the richest and most industrious districts of Europe have been deliberately destroyed and ploughed into farming solely in order that the invaders might make war cheaply. Irregular troops, contrary to all the practices of war, have been systematically murdered, and civil populations indiscriminately massacred, solely to spread terror. A regular system of ingenious terrorism has been directed against civilians, as horrible as anything in the history of civil or religious wars. Large and populous cities have been not once but twenty, thirty, forty times, bombarded and burnt, and the women and children in them wantonly slaughtered, with the sole object of inflicting suffering. All this has been done in license or passion but by the calculating ferocity of scientific soldiers." Fortnightly Review, February, 1871.

Making War Profitable. In one respect only does it appear that the Germans have improved upon their technique of terrorism since 1871, viz. in the systematic exploitation of the cause—and labor of the conquered territory.

Our own south held out so remarkably during the Civil war because its agriculture was carried on by slaves, leaving the whole of the male population free for military operations. Germany has now in its occupied territories a subject population of over 40,000,000 inhabitants which it treats as an inexhaustible supply of slaves, and worse than slaves. It has carried out ruthlessly and shamelessly appropriated their property in a manner wholly contrary to international law. It is the German method of waging war cheaply, and in the end, making it profitable.

The facts of these deportations are so clear and so open to dispute. The German government does not deny them. They have purposely caused the paralysis of industry in Belgium and northern France by seizing raw materials and food supplies, by dismantling the factories and sending the machinery to Germany or breaking it up for munitions. They have torpedoed American relief ships in order to starve the population into submission and to give a pretext for forced labor and deportations.

Inasmuch as the main facts are so little in dispute, I have thought it better to quote from French rather than from German sources, in order to give an impression not otherwise obtainable of the pitiful state of mind of the victims of these deportations. The story as told in German and American sources will be found admirably summarized in "German War Practices," issued by the Committee for War Information. It is the usual story of broken German promises, cold calculation and incredible cruelty.

The extracts which follow refer to events in Lille, and are taken from a publication of the French government entitled, "The Deportation of Women and Girls From Lille," which may be consulted in the university library. It is made up of official letters, of depositions by persons returned from the occupied territories to France, and of private letters smuggled by devious ways into France and now preserved in the French archives. The reader will readily see to which category each extract belongs.

A Bishop's Protest. A rumor having reached Lille that the deportations practiced in neighboring towns were to be extended to that city, the bishop of Lille, Monseigneur Charost, addressed a forceful and dignified protest to the commanding general, von Graevenitz, in these words: "It is my duty to bring to your notice the fact that a very excited state of mind exists among the population."

Numerous removals of women and girls, certain transfers of men and youths, and even of children, have been carried out in districts of Tourcoing and Roubaix without judicial procedure or trial. The unfortunate people have been sent to places unknown. Thus to dismember the family by tearing youths and girls from their homes is not war; it is for us torture and the worst of tortures—unlimited moral torture. The violation of family rights is doubly by a violation of the sacred demands of morality. Morality is exposed to perils, the moral idea of which every honest man, from the promiscuity which inevitably accompanies removals en masse, involving mixture of the sexes or, at all events, of persons of very unequal moral standing. We have suffered much during the last twenty months but no stroke of fortune could be equal to this. I cannot believe that the blow will fall. I have faith in the human conscience and I preserve the hope that the young men and girls of respectable families will be restored to their homes in answer to the demand for their return and that sentiments of justice and honor will prevail over all lower considerations." Among the Hague conventions adopted in 1907, is one to the effect that "family honor and rights... shall be respected." But neither international law, the bishop's position, nor his faith in the human conscience were of the slightest avail in the eyes of the Kaiser, who only replied to his letter, "What happened afterwards in Lille will appear from what follows:"

Midnight Raids.
"This week has been terrible for our unhappy town. 1,200 to 1,500 people have been carried off every night, escorted by soldiers with fixed bayonets and hands playing machine guns at the corners of the streets. Intelligible girls and young women of all sorts, also men from fifteen to fifty, sent off promiscuously in cattle trucks with wooden benches, for unknown destinations and employments, nominally to work on the land. You can imagine the despair and agony of their relations."

"Horrible affair at Lille; tell it everywhere; the deportation of 6,000 women and 6,000 men; for eight nights at 2 in-the-morning, districts invaded by the Sixty-fourth regiment (spread it in France that it was from Verdun,) forcibly dragged off girls of eighteen and women up to the venerable forty years. Herded in a factory; sorting out during the day and carried off in the evening; scattered from Seclin to Medan in abandoned villages, farms, etc.; cook and wash for the soldiers; replacing orderlies sent to the front; working on land, especially servants; said to be doing the work of good family, Rue Royale, hardly any servants left; crowded in with men of all ages without distinction; the immorality; some German officers refused to see some soldiers were crying, the respectful."

"The last three weeks, and especially the last week, we have spent in the most terrible anguish and moral torture possible for a mother's heart. On the pretext of difficulties caused by England in the matter of the necessary, the refusal of men out-of-work-to-volunteer for work in the fields, the Germans have embarked on a forcible evacuation of the population, with an inconceivable refinement of cruelty. They did not proceed as on the first occasion by whole families; no, commonly of suffering, they thought would be too easy for us, and so they took one, two, three, four or five members from each family—men, women, youths, children of fifteen, girls, and children ever was chosen, quite arbitrarily, by an officer. And to prolong the agony for us all, they operated by districts, without even giving notice in which district they would operate each night; for it was at dawn, at 3 o'clock in the morning, that these heroes, with a hand and machine guns and fixed bayonets, would go and hunt out women and children and take them away. God knows where or why. They came far from the front, for work which has nothing to do with the war."

Holy Week, 1916.
"On the night of Friday to Saturday before Easter, at 3 o'clock the troops, on their rounds to invest the first district on the list came to our house. It was terrible. The officer went round, pointing out the men and women whom he chose, and giving them, to make their preparations, a period varying from an hour to ten minutes. Kintom D. and his sister of twenty-two were carried off. After considerable difficulties the sister under fourteen was left, and her grandmother, ill from grief and terror had to receive the rites of the church at once; at last the girl was allowed to return. And here an old man, two weeks in bed, was allowed to leave to keep the daughter who was their only support. And everywhere the Germans jeered, adding insult to injury. For example, at the house of the doctor, B's wife, they left madame the choice between her two servants; she chose the elder one. Good; they answered, 'that is the one we will take.' The youngest, Mlle L., who has just had typhoid and bronchitis, saw the sergeant who was carrying off her servant approach, and she said, 'I don't know what we have to do.' More than sad, monsieur, one might call it barbarous. 'That is a hard word. Are you afraid that I might take you away?' And, as a matter of fact, the traitor did denounce her. She was given seven minutes and carried off bare-headed, in slippers, and a cold in the head. It was in character of this noble military operation and who condemned her to go in spite of the doctor's opinion. And it was good to his indignation, and the pity of a German less brutal than the others that obtained her release at 5 o'clock in the evening, after a day of perfect agony."

"And through it all our people preserved their calm and their dignity admirably, although that day the one we will take. The youngest, Mlle L., who has just had typhoid and bronchitis, saw the sergeant who was carrying off her servant approach, and she said, 'I don't know what we have to do.' More than sad, monsieur, one might call it barbarous. 'That is a hard word. Are you afraid that I might take you away?' And, as a matter of fact, the traitor did denounce her. proud, remaining impassive in the face of their persecutors. "And for a whole week this agony lasted, this anguish weighed us down. At last our turn came. As you can imagine, I could not sleep. I heard the troops coming round and woke up the whole household when the visits began in the street at 4 o'clock. It lasted till half-past one, our turn at half-past ten. Do you realize the agony of those six mortal hours?"

"This is the end of this long and miserable story, but I have not been able to depict the suffering of those whose homes have been thus desecrated. Many will die of it. As M. de Mousperre said, it is the passion of our families added to the position of Christ. The tears of these people were not exaggerated. Their relatives were worked-in-slave-gangs, herded promiscuously, subjected to violence, shooting, internment, fraud, blows, usually without pay and upon insufficient food. The depictions upon this subject are terrifying. They cannot be revolved within the space of a single article."

It is when you have a severe cold that you appreciate the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mrs. Frank Crocker, Pana, Ill., writes: "Our five-year-old son Paul caught a severe cold last winter that settled on his lungs and he had terrible coughing spells. We were greatly worried about him as the medicine we gave him did not help him in the least. A neighbor spoke so highly of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy that I got a bottle of it. The first dose benefited him so much that I continued giving it to him until he was cured." -Adv.

Mrs. Frank Crocker, Pana, Ill., writes: "Our five-year-old son Paul caught a severe cold last winter that settled on his lungs and he had terrible coughing spells. We were greatly worried about him as the medicine we gave him did not help him in the least. A neighbor spoke so highly of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy that I got a bottle of it. The first dose benefited him so much that I continued giving it to him until he was cured." -Adv.

His experiments were very interesting, especially the tribology light house and wireless station which he had placed in the rear of the auditorium, and which he called and lighted from the stage. The most striking experiment of the evening was the reciting of Mother Goose rhymes by Prof. James Dolliver and Walter Christensen, under normal conditions and the repeating of the rhymes after Prof. Stearns had filled the gentlemen's lungs with hydrogen gas. Winside is very proud of her two newly found comedians.

LAWYER IS FOUND-GUILTY

Former County Attorney of Madison County is Convicted.

Norfolk Daily News, February 23: Art Koenigstein, former county attorney of Madison, was found guilty by a jury in district court at Madison Friday morning on four counts charging him with accepting bribes from resort keepers while he held public office. The jury was out at 11:30 a. m. and deliberated until 9 o'clock Friday morning.

In case an expected motion for a new trial is refused Koenigstein's next course would be to appeal to the supreme court.

Apparently there was very little interest in the present trial. Many of the important state witnesses who have evidence against Koenigstein in two former trials were missing. Chief among them being Name Meyer, a resort keeper who forfeited her $200 bond and for whom a bench warrant was issued. Fern McDonald and May Campbell, two other women who figured as state witnesses, were also missing.

The case opened last Monday afternoon and every point was carefully contested by both sides. Koenigstein was defended by his brother, Jack Koenigstein, of Norfolk and Attorney Rees of Lincoln. The state was handled by County Attorney Tyler and W. L. Dowling. The latter as county attorney prosecuted Koenigstein in the previous trial.

The evidence of Name Meyer given at a previous trial was read from shorthand notes. Part of the May Campbell evidence was also read. Riley McLimans, a former taxi driver of Norfolk and now a soldier at Camp Cody, N. M., was questioned by both sides. He had been an important state witness at the previous trials and he took the stand at this time dressed in khaki. Koenigstein came to Madison to fight his case from Los Angeles, Calif., where he had been visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Koenigstein.

At 9:45 Thursday evening the jury received its charge and it deliberated until 9 o'clock Friday morning when the verdict was announced.

In his first trial at Madison Koenigstein was acquitted. In the second trial he was found guilty and the district court was reversed on error by the supreme court.

WHAT ARE WE FIGHTING FOR?

By Chesley R. Perry, Secretary International association of Rotary clubs.

There are those who claim not to know what we are fighting for in this great war. It won't do to denounce such people as unpatriotic and let it go at that. They are or may become numerous. They should be enlightened and educated.

Who is going to do it? Are you? Am I? Let's see now, just what are we fighting for? Do you and I agree and do all of us agree together on this question? Does the American and the Briton and the Irishman and the Belgian and the Russian and the Japanese and the Central Powers—agree as to what we are fighting for? Are we all fighting for the same thing or each for his own ideal?

—What? Where have I been? Don't I know that we are fighting to make the world safe for democracy?

That's right. So we are. And so is Jaybird. But what does it mean to make the world safe for democracy? Now, honest, do you know? Do I know? If we do think we know, do our ideas agree? How many phrases have we received with enthusiasm only to find that we have misunderstood them?

Let's fight for something we can understand. Something that means something to the man-in-the-street, to the boy in the shop and the girl behind the counter or in the farmhouse.

Let's Fight to Put an End to War?

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord, as He tramped out the wine where the grapes of wrath are stored."

He has loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible swift sword; His truth is marching on. The American people, when prepared, can whip the Kaiser and all the sword bearers of the Lord. The American nation is called of God to proclaim liberty throughout the world.

As a people we are passionately devoted to the ideal of universal peace. We are for peace before, during and after the fighting is over. We want peace without fighting for it and so we are going to fight and win the peace we desire.

We will accept the challenge of the war lords, of those Prussians who say war is the natural function of the state, of those who say all progress is through war. They are liars and the mark of the beast is upon them.

We will give them war till they are sick of it, and we will give them peace with none of it—except as we are forced to fight that we may silence the beast and have peace.

Let's us—the U. S. and the allies—declare for a League to Enforce Peace. Let's organize it right now and start to enforce peace by kicking the war lords of Deutchthum.

There's a program that will satisfy the whole American people. No one can refuse to come in on that platform and claim to be patriotic.

—What are we fighting for? To put an end to war forever more.

—What are we fighting for? To bring peace to the world.

—What are we fighting for? To destroy the devils that say that war is necessary and noble.

—Why are we fighting Germany? Because the Germans are for war for the blood and iron policy.

—Why are we fighting alongside England, Japan and the other allies?

Because they have signed up with us in the League to Enforce Peace.

—We are trying to make the world safe for democracy. Who is? The League to Enforce Peace.

—Who is the League to Enforce Peace? The nations known as the allies and their friends.

—How do they expect to get it? By agreeing to stop wars as the League of nations (the allies) have already agreed to do and by kicking the Hun until they agree also.

—Look here, friend, do you want to be a slave or a freeman? Then get in with us. We are going to do the job. Come on along. Enlist! Join the army! Join the navy!

Join the marines! Join the Red Cross—Give your money and your service to the Red Cross. The U. S. C. A. or other war causes. Exert your maximum effort. You are a worker in the shops, on the farms, on the railroads, or wherever your place of action may be. Save food, save fuel, save money! Condemn and expose waste! Boast and pull and push your bit to win your war.

TO FORCE CONSERVATION

Washington, Feb. 23—Compulsory conservation is the unanimous opinion of the members of the house agricultural committee which today submitted its report on a bill giving the president power to regulate public eating houses and the distribution and manufacture of foodstuffs. The bill does not directly affect householders.

The report states that the president has no power to enforce conservation in consumption under the existing food law and that the success of conservation plans depends entirely upon the voluntary cooperation of the people. The appeals to save food have met with gratifying results, the report says, and adds: "But there is a small percent of people who either willfully or for lack of understanding fail to respond to the claim for patriotic conservation."

Food Situation Critical.

"The food situation as it affects us and our allies," the report continues, "is becoming so critically serious as to require the most drastic steps to be taken. It is foolish for us to shut our eyes to the facts; it would be cowardly in us to fail to attack the problem of our food situation in the most vigorous manner."

Urge Equitable Distribution.

"The bill is designed to meet a situation which is closely allied to conservation. The ship to Europe all of our exportable surplus of certain foods, there is never going to be more than just enough of such foods available for consumption in the United States in order to prevent local shortages it is necessary that this normal supply be distributed with absolute equality throughout the country. From time to time there may be temporary shortages in certain foods. In such a case the president should have power to coordinate such a way that the shortage is spread out as evenly as possible.

In discussing public eating house conservation it is charged that the fact that the consumption particularly in "high priced restaurants," and hotels per capita is nearly double of normal.

Would Eliminate Waste.

"The bill authorizes regulations to eliminate unnecessary use of essential foodstuffs by manufacturers of food products," said the report. "It would be possible to effect great saving in food products by requiring higher milling or the mixture of ingredients, in bread which cannot be sold as such. It is noted that although it does not authorize a rationing system for consumers in the language of the report, it would permit the president to limit the amount of any one product which may be shipped into a particular distributor. The president can, in effect, ration the distributors so that a strictly shortage can be spread out as evenly as possible throughout the entire country."

THE NEBRASKA-FARMER EX-PANDS

Buys Twentieth Century Farmer—To Be Merged About June 1.

On and after April 1, 1918, the Twentieth Century Farmer, as now published by the Bee Publishing company of Omaha, will be owned and published by the Nebraska Farmer company. The combined circulation of the two publications for their new stand, is more than 170,000. What it will be after they are merged we are unable to say; but we may safely predict that the consolidation will make the Nebraska Farmer the strongest weekly farm paper west of the Missouri river.

On April 1, 1918, the Twentieth Century Farmer will continue under the present management. From April 1 until June 1 it will be continued as a separate publication, but under the management of the Nebraska Farmer company. According to present plans, the two papers will be consolidated about June 1, under the name of The Nebraska Farmer. In this deal the Nebraska Farmer secures the entire printing and electrotyping plant used by the Bee Publishing company in publishing the Twentieth Century Farmer. This consists principally of a sixty-four page, two color, 116 perfecting press and a strictly modern electrotyping plant. These will be moved to Lincoln as soon as a building can be constructed in which to take care of the greatly increased business of the Nebraska Farmer.

No change in ownership of stock, or in personnel of the editorial and business management of the Nebraska Farmer will result from this transaction. It is an interesting fact that when S. R. McKelvie, editor and publisher of the Nebraska Farmer left the farm, he began working for the Twentieth Century Farmer at $15 per week. He remained with that publication three years before he became editor and later principal owner and publisher of The Nebraska Farmer.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

The most wonderful thing being made now is a living for a family. If you are an exile from the paternal roof, you must be awfully lucky.

An Atchison man chews the rag so much that it is feared he has lost his lungs.

There are a good many cold, dark, dreary and dirty depots on the journey of life.

RECITAL - A BIG SUCCESS

Words of Highest Praise for Silber-Steckelberg Concert.

Sales of tickets for the joint recital by Sidney Silber, head of the piano department, and Carl Frederic Steckelberg, head of the orchestral department of the university school of music in Lincoln, given Sunday afternoon in Wayne for the benefit of the Red Cross amounted to nearly $300. Over five hundred people from Wayne and neighboring towns filled the opera house where they listened to these two great artists. Words expressing highest appreciation have been heard on every hand. Mr. Steckelberg was accompanied on the piano by his wife, Mrs. Duida Steckelberg, who is also a genius on the piano. The program was a rare treat to lovers of music and the public feels indebted to the ladies of the Wayne Red Cross chapter who were influential in getting the artists in Wayne. The committees in charge of the advertising and selling of tickets did their parts thoroughly, and much of the success of the recital belongs to them.

FOR MILITARY TRAINING.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—After concluding a stay of the better part of two days at the great lakes training station, former President William Howard Taft declared that the result of his thirty days of speaking in military camps had convinced him finally that universal military service is essential to the youth of the nation. Mr. Taft also told of his impression of the manner in which the army and navy training of the nation is being done, highly praising the work accomplished in both branches, but criticizing the army's failures to use this and to provide adequate training purposes. In the course of a busy day, Mr. Taft delivered two addresses, reviewed 7,500 sailors in the making, gave a decisive and looking bout and inspected the entire station.

"I am not a militarist, and hope the end of the war will wipe out the military and end of huge military establishments," said Mr. Taft upon his return from great lakes. "Nevertheless, no one who has spent a moment in the camps, in the various cantonments, could fail to be impressed with the tremendous improvement in the physique, courage, discipline and discipline of the young men now in the army and navy. I am, therefore, buttressed in my belief in universal military training for the afternoon, speaking of the war and navy departments have done a big thing in getting the army and navy prepared. The work has not been perfect, of course, but it has been complete. I think the only glaring defects shown in the army training have been the failure to train the old Springfield and Kragsjorgensen rifles for training the men in rifle work and in not using the Lewis gun at least for the training of the machine gun companies. This training, Mr. Taft inspected the station, visiting officers' quarters, detention camps, mess halls and Y. M. C. A. buildings.

In the afternoon, speaking of the difference between American and German ideals in his address. Mr. Taft said: "The German philosophy is a horrible, a brutal philosophy, not of God, but of the devil. The earth is not safe with that kind of a power on it. Germany is not composed of supermen. On the contrary, her statesmen have made the gravest blunders. At a time when the war is to be decided by men, food and money, she has aroused this young giant of a nation. We can furnish more money than any country in the world, and we shall; we can furnish more food than any country in the world, and we shall; we can furnish more men than any country in the world, and we shall. Speaking of Russia, Mr. Taft said: "The Russian people are in a dreadful way. Russia was just created a democracy when we came into the war. What she is now nobody can say, what with the wild-eyed theorists who have degenerated into thieves and scoundrels, who control and exploit her."

THE FIELD OF BUSINESS.

St. Louis City Journal: Economic conditions have progressed, industrial conditions better, more favorable security values improved and strongly bullish quotations prevailed in grain and provision markets during the first six months of the year.

A compromise agreement on the new finance bill, to create a federal financing corporation that will pass on all securities raised, the standard reached in the senate, and the bipartisan arrangement effected there was understood to be sure of extension to the house. Prompt passage was forecast. The railroad control bill, after spirited debate, passed the senate with an amendment to include the house. Prompt passage was forecast. The railroad control bill, after spirited debate, passed the senate with an amendment to include the house. Prompt passage was forecast.

Each of these developments had an optimistic effect. Corn was strong throughout the week, finally touching along with most provisions, the February fixed maximums. Oats sky-rocketed going at length to 96 cents for No. 2 white, 6 cents above the high record set in June, 1867. The Chicago board of trade first set a limit of 2 cents for one day's advance on Chicago wheat, but later established a 93-cent maximum for February, March, April and May. Varying maximums for provisions also were ordered. Quotations went down as a result of the new orders. The administration announced that no change in the $15.50 hog maximum on oats quotations, and the maximum of the early part of the month were registered by some shares. Activity in steel was most notable. International iron was generally firm. Time money was steady at 6 per cent, with little available. Call loans ranged from 3 per cent to 6 per cent, the low figure being current late in the week. The usual holiday effect in the stock and finance markets was exerted Friday. Liberty bonds were strong, and responded promptly to the issuance of $1,000,000 in treasury certificates at the new rate of 4 per cent.

The higher rate on treasury certificates was taken to indicate a corresponding boost in the rate on the third Liberty loan in April. The last issue of certificates was subscribed only to the issuance of $1,000,000 in New York and other eastern centers in taking more than their quotas. About $2,000,000,000 of certificates are to be issued in installments at intervals of two weeks in order to complete the certificate subscription of $3,000,000,000 in advance of the Liberty loan. Banks have been requested to set aside 1 per cent of their total resources each week for the purchase of the certificates. Reservations of December 31 were about $18,000,000,000, which was approximately $500,000,000 less than the high total of November 20. The railway administration announced its intention to take care of public service corporations, such as street railway and lighting concerns, even to the extent of encouraging rate advances if that is necessary.

Appointment of a preferential board to decide between claims of various industries for the action of the nation was announced as part of the fuel conservation program of Dr. Garfield.

Transportation conditions in general were greatly improved by easier weather. An economic agreement with Norway, to which all nations in this America are agreed, was reached.

ANIMAL INSTINCT.

Bixby in Lincoln Journal: Tenacity of life is a purely animal instinct, it is discovered in the lowest form, the amoeba. It is keenest in man. One may be aged, and crippled and poor, homeless, friendless, and yet "live on as fast," yet will bear the ill he has rather than fly to others that he knows not of, as Shakespeare puts it; and he can scarce give a reason for it if he tries. It is to signify that man is a boy of being so impressionable that hearing one of the old-fashioned sermons, on retribution, with powerful convincing facilities, we dread to go to sleep lest it might prove disastrous, the awakening being worse than oblivion. That sort of "retribution" or "punishment" was abnormal. Naturally one who is sleepy welcomes unconsciousness and the joy of temporary forgetfulness. It is to signify that man is a boy of being so impressionable that hearing one of the old-fashioned sermons, on retribution, with powerful convincing facilities, we dread to go to sleep lest it might prove disastrous, the awakening being worse than oblivion.

Why should we backward start in fright? At thought of life's uncertain day? Or shudder when the shades of night? Have fallen dark along the way? When nature tells it is just To go to sleep and take our rest? Men are a prey to various fears, They worry as they jog along; Some shudder at the drifting years, Some at the very thought of death. While neither life nor death, strikes me, Is, bad as it's cracked up to be. Enough that each may walk the road Of life, and see what may be seen, Each juggling his peculiar load. The rich and poor, the far and lean; Each, since men reap that which they sow, With his own share of weal and woe. And when the wheels begin to squeak, "And when the tires are pestered out, And when the nether limbs grow weak, And wobbly as we move about, Why should we shudder then to find The rest prepared for all mankind?"

WHEAT PRICE FIXED.

Washington, Feb. 25.—A price of $2.20 a bushel—made for last year's crop—was fixed by President Wilson Saturday night for the coming season's wheat yield. The price is for No. 1 northern spring-wheat at Chicago, with a scale of discounts for other markets. The differentials differ to a slight extent from those now operative and range from a minimum of $1.80 to a maximum of $2.28 in fixing a price now for the new crop, which will not be harvested until June, the president was believed to have had two objects in view. The first was to halt legislation pending in congress to fix prices at from $2.25 to $3, and the other was to stimulate spring planting.

The introduction of the price-raising bills, had begun to check the flow of wheat to market, and food administration officials feared that mills soon would have to close down. To stop the legislation would pass, farmers it is declared, have been refusing to sell at the present price of $2.20. In enacting the food control law congress put a guaranteed price of $2 on next season's crop, and this has been construed as a minimum price to raise the wheat to market the president fixed a price of $2.20 on last season's yield and it had this effect until the price-raising bills had begun to check the flow of grain to stop. Food administration officials have declared that if the bills passed the government would be forced to raise prices to well above new levels and that to do so would upset the food administration's flour and bread program.

BASKETBALL GAMES.

The Methodist basketball team will play the Bancroft champions a game of basketball Friday evening at Bancroft.

The Wayne M. E. team will play a return game with the North Methodist church team Saturday evening.

STATE APPOINTMENT.

The following are the amounts which the different districts are entitled to as their share of the state appointment. The appointment was made this year according to the enumeration of pupils in the several districts: From state appointment as per certificate of state superintendent, $3,825.30.

From fines and licenses, $227.30. Total amount apportioned, $4,052.60. Number of districts in county entitled to share, 81. Amount per district of the "one-fourth" apportioned, $49.91. Number of pupils in districts entitled to share, 3,317.

Amount per child from the "three-fourth" apportioned, $66. Figures in second column are the amounts of sales of War Savings Stamps as reported to this office. Many of the amounts for these schools are probably greater now than when the reports were sent in:

WAKEFIELD, NEBRASKA

Present transportation problems have put the wonderful resourcefulness of the automobile industry to the acid test, but the resourcefulness of the automobile industry has yet to crack under the most severe strain. Hardly a day passes in the Oakland plant but a new and novel means of moving automobiles is devised and deliveries are being made in the face of the worst obstacles.

There is a train of three box and twenty-seven flat cars running between Kansas City, Omaha, Minneapolis and the factory at Pontiac, Mich. The equipment was leased from a wild west show while the circus is idle in winter quarters. Another train of thirty flat cars, double-decked to double their carrying capacity, is operating continually between the factory at Pontiac and Chicago, the Oaklands being unloaded at Elsdon, twelve miles outside of the city, to avoid the congestion and delay in the main freight yards.

On the first of the year, a train of fifty new automobiles cars, built in Chicago shops for the Northern Pacific railroads started on their maiden trip with a cargo of 250 Oaklands, consigned to Seattle, Spokane, Portland and other distributing points of the Pacific Northwest.

Such resourceful means of shipping cars is a guarantee to the Oakland dealer that he will have "Sensible Sixes" to sell and assure the prospective Oakland buyer that he will have his automobile to use with a minimum of delay.

FOOD FOR REFLECTION. Fairbury News: "Some figures have been given out that furnish America abundant food for reflection. Of the two and a half million young men recently examined for military service, one-third failed to pass the physical test. These tests were not severe. In fact they were usually less, merely calculated to weed out the seriously defective and abnormal. America has for a century boasted of her physical prowess, and it seems that this test came a time to give us a rude awakening from our dreams of power. Is it reasonable? In the absence of more definite statistics, most people will incline to the belief that our mad rush for knowledge and the almighty dollar, we have neglected the foundation of all success—health.

C. E. SOCIAL FRIDAY. The young people of the Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church, held a social Friday evening to celebrate the thirty-first anniversary of the founding of the society. Nearly one hundred and twenty people were present and a good time was reported. The evening's entertainment consisted of the following numbers: Song, America of audience; vocal solo, Mrs. W. H. Morris; reading, Miss Elizabeth Mines; vocal duet, Miss Minnie and Miss Rose Will; violin solo, Marion Barber, given by the Boy Scouts; and vocal solo, Bert Maxwell. Following this program, games and contests were enjoyed until refreshments of gingerbread and coffee were served.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Cedar County News: Christopher Johnson, 23 son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson, residing about four miles northwest of Fordyce, was crushed to death about 8:30 Wednesday morning on the Lammers place near St. Helena, when a load of wood slipped from the sleigh crushing him to death against a fence post. Albert Schulte, a neighbor, passed the scene of the accident about a quarter of a mile from the Lammers home shortly afterward and quickly noted that the driver of the team was missing. He immediately started to remove the wood and soon came upon the body of Johnson, with life extinct. Heily was summoned and the body removed to the Lammers home. Physicians were summoned but nothing could be done. The young man was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson at home. He was registered and rather expected to be called into the army in the near future.

HE WAS FOOLED.

(Bixby). He thought that marriage was sub-time. He married one who thought his way. Since which they've had a stormy time. With certain lectures every day. And he has learned a deal of sense in life's great school, experience.

She seemed to him a clinging vine; Was that her nature? Aber nit. Where he had hoped she would entwine, She'd dangle 'til a little bit. She had a strong, compelling will. And in her presence he kept still.

He passed among his fellow men, A freak among the other freaks; They say he never smiled again, When he'd been married seven weeks. He keeps the peace upon my oath, And in the home she storms for both.

One word have I for old and young, Of my unhappy sex to hear; A woman with a restless tongue Will yet excite our constant fear. Once married, there is no redress; Be prudent—single blessedness.

WHY SUFFER SO?

Why suffer from a bad back, from sharp, shooting twinges, headaches, dizziness and distressing urinary ills? Wayne people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Could you ask for stronger proof of merit? Mrs. Jos. Schmalstieg, Wayne, gave the following statement in August, 1910: "I was troubled more or less all the time by a dull, heavy ache through my kidneys. I also had terrible headaches and dizzy spells and I was bothered a great deal by other distressing symptoms. Doan's Kidney Pills strengthened my kidneys and drove away the pains from my back. The headaches left, too, and my health in general was improved."

On July 15, 1916, Mrs. Schmalstieg said: "I am still recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Whenever I have any kidney disorder I get them at Fisher's Pharmacy and they drive away the trouble in a few days. At all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y."

W. M. Silligman who has farmed for nine years eight miles northwest of Carroll, is moving to the farm which he bought near Holyoke, Colo. Mr. Silligman says he came from Germany to the United States fourteen years ago with $10 in his pocket, and has labored sweat and blood for every year he has been here. He adds that if he had remained in Germany he would have been a slave to militarism and would not have been worth anything. He is strong in his praise of the prosperity and other advantages which free America has brought to him and has no use for the iron heel and mailed fist of the autocratic kaiser. He says his father and mother were in Germany the last he heard from them, and that if they are still alive when the war is over he will see that they come to America and share with him and his family the free opportunities of this country. The Wayne county friends of Mr. Silligman and family will wish them well in their new western home.

WAR SAVINGS COMMITTEE WANTS 450,000 MEMBERS.

A Big Campaign Is On—This Month to Get Members for the State's Largest "Lodge."

The Nebraska headquarters of the National War Savings Committee has started out to get 450,000 members in a big War Savings Society. The state headquarters of the War Savings Committee at Omaha is preparing to prosecute a concentrated campaign for the formation of War Savings Societies. Organizations of every character in every town will be asked to assist in the movement. Members of War Savings societies pledge themselves to support the government by refraining from unnecessary expenditures, by saving, saving and by obtaining new members. Ten or more persons may organize a War Savings society. They may meet in a factory, school, church, clubhouse, the home of one of the members, or at any other convenient place. The purposes of the War Savings societies, as set forth by the state committee, are to raise a realization among the men, women and children that in their hands lies the key to the successful prosecution of the war; to encourage the use of the far-reaching patriotic service through refraining from the purchase of all unnecessary articles, confining themselves to the use of things which are necessary for health and efficiency, thus releasing labor and materials for the support of our army in the field, and in helping the War Savings Bureau to help finance the war.

underserved censure in eastern publications because we, along with some half a dozen other states, permit foreign-born citizens who have not completed naturalization under our constitution to vote and hold office and enjoy all the privileges of other citizens. While the Bee fully agrees that the time has come when all the requirements for United States citizenship should be exacted of all citizens before participation in state and local government, yet no odium or discredit can attach to Nebraska for our liberal voting franchise with anyone who understands its origin and purpose. First and foremost, let it be remembered that Nebraska was admitted to the union in 1867 under a constitution which contained this provision, which constitution was revised in 1875 without changing the suffrage clause. At that time Nebraska was a sparsely settled country and the main object of the people already here was to persuade newcomers to join them and make their homes in Nebraska. The immigration of that day from European countries was of the most desirable class—men, largely furnished the element which has made Nebraska the prosperous commonwealth it is today—and among other inducements held out in the invitation to come west and help develop this land of opportunity was the offer to take them in on equal terms after a year of government or institution of intention to become citizens of the United States.

As a matter of fact, in all the fifty years of Nebraska's history the foreign-born voters, technically still aliens, have never constituted a serious menace or danger to the stability of our government or institutions, but, on the contrary, have been of inestimable assistance in beating off successive waves of fanatical and radicalism in the great movement, the free silver cause and all the other repudiation schemes. When it comes to the menace of alien suffrage the first-paper voters in Nebraska are certainly subject far less to objection than a certain element of voters in some of the states where our most severe critics are located. We refer to the suffrage states, including New York. Under the law as it stands a woman takes the citizenship of her husband by the mere formality of her marriage, so that in these states a foreign-born woman who marries an American citizen becomes a voter overnight without going through any of the procedure of naturalization, be she as ignorant of our language and institutions and as hostile to our
