

If You Could Get Gas From The City

You'd scrap the old-fashioned wood-tove, with its torturing heat, in a minute.

You can get just the same results as city gas would give with the DETROIT VAPOR OIL STOVE. No wick, just a steady flame direct to the cooking utensil. Odorless, economical, absolutely safe. Thousands in use.

Let us put one in your kitchen, and you'll never go back to the discomfort of the old-fashioned stove. You'll get better results, too, because the heat is more even and better regulated.

SHORTHORN BULLS.
Parties interested in raising cattle should call and see bulls raised by John S. Lewis, Jr. & Son, They are the largest type beef cattle, yet their dams give a good flow of milk. Herd headed by Britton Grads 339757, son of Imported Grand Goods 184882, the most noted bull ever imported. His get and the get of his son and grandsons have won more prizes than any other family of the breed. Such cattle in Iowa sales last month averaged $900 to $1,150 each. These bulls can be bought so they will pay for themselves in additional beef produced in a short time and good enough to head any pure blood herd in northeast Nebraska. Herd founded in 1897. John S. UNCLE WALT
The Poet Philosopher
AN HOUR GAINED.

I set the clock an hour ahead, on night before I went to bed. I was at seven o'clock, and I obeyed the mill hehest. A greater sacrifice than that I'd gladly make, I bet your hat. And so, as I've all ready said, I set the clock an hour ahead, and now I get up with the birds and greet the dawn with fervent words: I see the good old sun arise and climb the well known eastern skies. It is a wondrous thing I say, this breaking of another day. Like countless joys, I always sleep at night—these new-born days—step night's clouds and cobwebs from the sky, and let the best of life go by. While morning's miracles took place, I snored a deep, snoring sleep, and in my soft couch lay asleep, and snored "The Cradle of the Deep." While morning spread its gorgeous hues, in purple, violet and blue, I snored with rhythm deep and slow, "The Heart Bowed Down by Weight of Woe." By God's permission to bed, I set the clock an hour ahead; at 9 o'clock I made it fit, and now I get up with the hen, and see the greatest show on earth, and stare with unbelieveing mirth. The hour I gain at dawn of day is worth a fortnight in the hay.

IN THE GARDEN.
It jacks off all my being, to wrestle with the soil; there is a joy in seeing the fruits of honest toil; there is a joy in growing string beans, in licks of five, a perfect joy in knowing that I have made them thrive. But for my strenuous endeavor, with spade and rake and hoe, the weeds would grow forever, where sweet potatoes grow; you'd see the bur and thistle but for the work I do; and so I sing and whistle a glad song to the low. The wilderness I'm making to blossom as the rose, as I do deftly raking, and plowing air cooled hoes. Such thoughts as these are boiling and seething in my dome, while I am daily toiling under my humble home. And there is naught more soothing than thoughts like these. I swear, and naught that beats them smoothing away the lines of care. To do some chore that's useful, to kill a noxious weed, or raise a cabbage juicy—ah, that is joy indeed! Oh, one may sing and twitter and twang a harp all day, and not help out a critter who's in the conssumer; and one might write like Bunyon, and do it all in vain; but when he rears an onion, he shows he's safe and sane. For art is cheap as skittles in crucial times like these; the world must have its vittles, its radishes and peas.

enchanted with his life; the cows do not read the papers which tell of deadly strife. I see the chesty horses, they paw and neigh and prance; they've heard not of the coases and bleaching horses in France. How glad should be the critters which draw their loads all day, and take their oats and bitterns as an abundant pay; their backs will be acting when evening first hours come, but hearts are never-breaking, among the critters. I wonder how they're thinking, the horses in their stalls, the mules out yonder drinking, the cow that sadly bawls! Have they no sense of humor, and no line of thought, and have they caught no flavor of this sad world distraught? All men are in a ladder when this or that side wins, but rooters never gather to read the bulletins—Men watch the fight out yonder, discuss it with a will; but porkers seem to wonder on nothing, but what's on their minds. The beasts have been around since Adam made his churn, and set when wyes confound if they do not care a dime, but they will have grown no broader since Noah lost his hat; they eat our grain and fodder and let it go at that. Unthinking and senseless, they will eat all their own; the poor-old human being must bear his load alone.

THE PATIENT PEOPLE.
The patient are the people! Their patience rings the bell; it's higher than a steep, and deeper than a well. They hear pro-German prayers uplift their ears and harry; they see inglorious traitors around them every day. In other lands such critters would back against a wall and there they'd take their bitter some lickshot in their gait. But we've a sense of humor, and we have merely laughed at treason's noisy boomer and buller's vicious efforts. But patience, though elastic, will break, if stretched too far, and now some measurs drastic the people taking are. Oh, now and then some fellow who falls to do his bit, is painted lemon yellow, and told to hit the grit. And now and then some slacker, who wears his face ajar, some cheap pro-German slacker, receives a coat of tar. The patience of the people is mighty hard to break; it's higher than a steeple and wider than a valley, but it's been sorely tested, and when it breaks away, it cannot be arrested by any mortal jay. So let the fools take warning while now the signs they see, or they may be adorning a lamppost or a tree.

THE HEAVYWEIGHTS.
Fred Fulton is a bruiser great, as large and stately as an Alp; he's whipped full many a beefy skater, who hoped to bear away his belt. He says he'll harvest Wilbur's pelt, and change that fighter's name to Pance, and bear away the champion's belt! I wonder why he's not in France? This Wilbur is a mighty man, who'll take some whipping. I suppose he made the smoke an also ran, and has a kick in all his joints. I don't believe he'll lose to Fred, unless by some unhappy chance; he uses both his fists and head—I wonder why he's not in France. Both men are of heroic build, they're perfect fighters when they're fit, and it is said they both are filled with forty kinds of pen and grit. And they will meet some day, I ween, to fight, with pump and circumstance, for packages of good long green; I wonder why they're not in France? I heard of Wilbur's wondrous reach, how he ear hit around a block; and I should judge, from Fulton's speech, that he can scrap as well as talk. Until they've fought they'll spiel and yell, and red hot arguments advance; if they can fight so wildly well, I wonder why they're not in France.

SPRING MOTORING.
The choo-choo season has arrived, the roads are good, the fields are green; I'm thankful that I have survived to burn a lot more gasoline. The winter cold and long and d'bar, killed off a lot of jays and crows; how glad am I that I'm still here, to blow myself for inner tubes! Sometimes I thought, when tempests shrieked, I would live to see the spring, for rheumatism through me streaked, and wrenched my joints like everything. When Bizarris, whipping down from Noize, were traveling angrily and loudly, called morticians to my home, to figure on a hier and shroud. But I hung on through sleet and snow, the lamp of life, and melted its flame; and now that springtime breezes blow, you'll see me in the motor game. I'll buy some bonds to save the hoons inherited from martial sires; I'll spend some homes for bread and prunes, and blow some more for rubber tires. I've cut out rich cigars and wine, and made a simple bill of fare; I'll need my change to pay my fines for lusting speed laws here and there. I'll blow a portion of long green into the Red Cross work, that's best; the bulk will go for gasoline—mechanics then will get the rest.

SUGAR FOR CANNING.
Omaha, Neb., May 1.—Householders may have all necessary sugar for canning and preserving vegetables this summer, according to a ruling of Gordon W. Wattle, food administrator. Despite the sugar shortage, arrangements have been made whereby householders, by signing a certificate that the sugar is to be used for canning purposes, may have the required amount.

The certificate will be presented by the grocer and must be sent to the county food administrator within one week after it is signed. For other purposes, sales of sugar in cities and towns will be limited to five pounds or fifty cents worth, and in rural communities, to ten pounds, or $1 worth.

DEFEATING THE HUN.

At least 50,000 French children are to be removed by the American Red Cross from the danger of German air raids and long range bombardment. They will be taken from Paris this summer to a provincial city for the vacation period.

French men and women, so far from being intimidated by the German atrocities, are manifesting greater courage and a stronger determination to win the war. The German staff announced that the raids and bombardment were intended to strike Paris as "the heart of France." To this the Parisians replied that "the heart of France is at the front."

Naturally French parents will be glad to have their children safe in a smaller city farther away from the battle line. The Red Cross therefore creates in this service one more factor that binds the two nations together for all time.

The children will be billeted in homes and dormitories, and will be supervised as to recreation and health by the Red Cross. It doubtless will prove to be the most profitable summer they ever had. Their fathers in the army at the front will fight all the harder from knowing their loved ones are protected.

The American people, when they open their purses in May for the second Red Cross War Fund, can unquestionably consider this service, for French children a most worthy disposition of their subscriptions.

"TOO PROUD TO FIGHT"

Kansas City Star: President Wilson did not say that the United States was too proud to fight. The facts of this oft quoted phrase and the words used by the president follow: In an address in Convention hall, Philadelphia, before a large audience of newly naturalized citizens, May 10, 1915, he was referring to the keeping of peace, and the speech was made in the midst of turmoil of popular feeling that had been aroused by the sinking of the Lusitania by a German submarine and the loss of so many American lives. It was the president's first public speech after the torpedoing of the Lusitania, and though he did not in the course of his speech directly mention the Lusitania or German submarine warfare, the speech has been grouped with two others, delivered at about the same time, as setting forth "the principles on which he would meet the crises of the European war as they affected the United States." He had been speaking of the ideals of America, with special reference to the coming aliens to be American citizens, and announced: "The example of America must be a special example. The example of America must be the example not merely of peace because it will not fight, but of peace because peace is the healing and elevating influence of the world, and strife is not. There is such a thing as a man being too proud to fight. There is such a thing as a nation being so right that it does not need to convince others by force that it is right."

Senator Volpp's Stand.

Fremont, Neb., April 26.—Fred Volpp, former state senator, spoke in part as follows at a patriotic rally at Blue Hill, Neb.: "Everything that I have, everything that most Germans in America have, they owe to this government. I voice the sentiment of myself and many others when I say that we would rather give up every dollar that has been sent to Germany. A good deal of the complaint that Germans in this country are not loyal is due to misunderstanding promoted by the fact that the German, whose sympathies at first were naturally with his own land against England, does not know just how to begin to assert his loyalty to his adopted country. Nevertheless he is loyal and in the pinch of supporting this government or sending the boys from his own family to fight on the battle line he would be found truly an American citizen."

Senator Hitchcock in address before Omaha Chamber of Commerce: "Nebraska today has the best organized food control of any state, and this fact is fully recognized by Mr. Hoover at Washington. This has been due not only to the men in charge of the work, but to the hearty and sympathetic support of the people at large."

"They have been willing to stomp and save in order to support—not only their people, but those on the other side of the sea. And so it has been in every class of war work. The people have shown true patriotism and spirit. Nebraska stands in the front rank, and I am proud of her."

Best Remedy for Whooping Cough.

"Last winter when my little boy had the whooping cough, I gave him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. J. B. Roberts, East St. Louis, Ill. "It kept his cough loose and relieved him of those dreadful coughing spells. It is the only cough medicine I keep in the house because I have the most confidence in it." The remedy is also good for colds and croup.—Adv.

RED CROSS SERVICE.

At every turn the American soldier is finding the Red Cross representative on hand and ready to serve him. The latest development of this service is upon the transports which carry our boys to Europe.

Every transport leaving for England or France is to have aboard trained Red Cross worker whose special business will be to look after the comfort of the men. These representatives will learn the anxieties of the soldiers as regards their home affairs and will undertake commissions from them to adapt conditions to a satisfactory basis.

For instance, a soldier, acting under the secrecy that the war department must enforce to keep absolute information from the enemy, may have had to leave for France without notifying his family and without making certain his preparations for their welfare. The Red Cross representative on shipboard will offer to help him and will send back a report to the Red Cross home service department which will result in action.

Letters, messages and other personal matters will be handled in confidence by the Red Cross representative, who also will explain to the soldiers what they may expect from the Red Cross in France. They may expect canteen service, hospital service, service in the thick of battle and many other helpful services.

With his mind free from worry because the Red Cross is doing this for him, the American soldier is going to give a wonderful account of himself in the days to come.

High Cattle Prices Accompany High Beef Prices

If consumers are to pay less for beef, live-stock raisers naturally will receive less for cattle.

If farmers are paid more for live stock, consumers will necessarily pay more for meat.

Swift & Company pays for cattle approximately 90 per cent of the price received for beef and by-products. The remaining 10 per cent pays for dressing, freight to market, operation of distributing houses, and in most cases, delivery to the retailer. Net profits also have to come out of this 10 per cent.

This margin cannot be squeezed arbitrarily without danger of crippling the only effective means of performing the complex service of converting cattle into meat and distributing this meat to the fighting forces and to consumers.

Swift & Company's net profit on beef during 1917 was only 1/4 of a cent per pound. On all products, it was a little less than four cents on each dollar of sales. Complete elimination of these profits would not affect appreciably retail prices of meat, or farm prices of live stock.

Swift & Company will be glad to co-operate in devising methods that will improve conditions in the meat and live stock industry.

WALT MASON'S OWN STORY

(Told by Himself.)

"I was born at Columbus, Ont., May 4, 1862. My parents were poor. I was the fifth of a series of six sons. My father was a dyer in a woolen mill, and was accidentally killed in that establishment when I was four years old. He was Welsh and my mother of Scotch descent. She died when I was fifteen years old. Meanwhile during my childhood I had been going to a country school and working for farmers, and also in the woolen mill. After my mother's death I went to Port Hope, Ontario, and worked in a hardware store for a year and a half, drawing the princely salary of two and a half dollars a week and boarding myself. When I was nine or ten years old I was nearly drowned, and was hauled out of the water, unconscious, by an older brother. I have had defective hearing ever since, and it probably is due to this that I never became a merchant prince. Anyhow, I was more successful in a hardware store, and when I told my employer I was going to leave he said it was the proudest and happiest moment of his life. Having severed my diplomatic relations with the hardware man, I crossed Lake Ontario, in 1880, going to New York state, where I lived before for a summer. It was the poorest fun I ever struck. The soil was stony, and the hoe was dull, and the sun was as hot as blazes, and there didn't seem to be any sense in hoeing beans, anyhow. From New York I took my way westward, arm in arm with the star of empire. I stopped a while in Ohio, then in Illinois, and finally reached St. Louis, where I went to work in a printing establishment and kicked the dirt for the hottest summer ever invented. There was a humorous weekly called the 'Hornet', in St. Louis, and I got some sort of a job there. I printed it, and the editor wrote to me and asked me to do it. He offered me five dollars a week to go to work in Kansas, and I went to get another job in St. Louis. I went to Kansas and worked around the state for three years as a hired man. Disgusted with that sort of work and being ambitious to get into the newspaper business, I managed to get a job with the 'Leavenworth Times'. Late in the year a reporter in the 'Atchison Globe', and there learned a great deal that was useful to me. From that time forward I was chomping at the bit, and I was connected with newspapers in a dozen cities, but always had the idea that the next town would be a little better, or more moving."

C B & Q Corn Planters

Can be Depended Upon in the Field

Winner of Gold Medal at San Francisco Exposition

Why C B & Q Planters Drop Kernels Accurately

The Gold Medal was the highest award conferred on corn planters at the San Francisco Exposition in 1915.

To secure the best planting results all seed corn should be graded and seed plates selected that will fit the size and shape of the kernels to be planted. The planter then has an even chance to perform its work.

The importance of this victory of the C B & Q planter means more when one stops to look into the reasons which led the Jury of Awards to confer this honor on this planter.

On the C B & Q planter the plates are operated directly from the solid steel axle. The drive chain is always kept taut by an automatic chain tightener, which prevents any lost motion in transmitting power.

The award means that the C B & Q planter is constructed of high-grade materials throughout, and therefore with proper care and handling will give good service for a long period of time.

This construction all has to do with the efficient working of the plates and the valves of the planter. The plates operate exactly on time so that the desired number of kernels are delivered to the upper valves and are there waiting to drop when the valves are tripped. The valves have a force feed action—in other words, a plunger which forces the kernels out together and into the bottom of the furrow.

Furthermore, it means that the planter was operated in the presence of the Jury of Awards and found to work properly, the plates and valves operating together so that the plates dropped a high percentage of kernels accurately. If the planter was set to drop three kernels to a hill, practically all the hills contained three kernels, not three, then two or four, but three practically every time.

The action of both the plates and the valves is positive. The power is dependable, the gears are carefully cut and therefore mesh properly, insuring a high percentage of accurate dropping for this planter. Adverse field conditions are met successfully by the C B & Q planter.

Equip your C B & Q with the simple power drop attachment shown here and use the planter without check wire. The attachment consists of two simple lugs, one on the seed plate shaft and one on the valve shaft. The valves are opened automatically. By shifting the chain on the different sprockets, or by changing sprockets you can obtain almost any hill distance desired. Power drop supplied as an extra.

One of the strongest features of the C B & Q planter is the combined variable drop and clutch. The clutch is built into the dropping mechanism in a way that is simple and effective. By means of the variable drop, 2, 3, or 4 kernels can be planted in each hill and the change can be made from the seat without stopping the team. The clutch is positive and accurate.

You can use edgedrop, flat-drop and full-hill drop plates in the same hopper without any change in the mechanism.

over and above the normal amount that might have been expected, has been marked since the requisition order was promulgated.

The marketing includes wheat from the north and south Platte districts, but the latter is much heavier in the marketing of wheat than the north Platte district.

So far Gordon W. Wattles, federal food administrator for Nebraska, has not had to resort to the requisition order. In some instances notices have been served by his office to holders of wheat to take it to the elevators. In every instance the request has been complied with, without even a second letter having been necessary.

A considerable amount of wheat yet remains in the hands of the farmers in the state but in small lots. This will be marketed as rapidly as circumstances permit and at present it does not seem that it will be necessary for Nebraska to issue a requisition order.

Proper Food for Weak Stomachs.

The proper food for one man may be all wrong for another. Every one should adopt a diet suited to his age and occupation. Those who have weak stomachs, need to be especially careful and should eat simply and masticate their food thoroughly. It is also important that they keep their bowels regular. When they become constipated or when they feel dull and stupid after eating, they should take Chamberlain's Tablets to strengthen the stomach and move the bowels. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect.—Adv.

CONSOLIDATED WITH THE WAYNE REPUBLICAN

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, MAY 2, 1918.

VOL. 31, NO. 47

FROM MISS KINGSBURY

Member of Wayne State Normal Faculty—Issues Statement.

Shakespeare says, "On rumor's tongue, continual slanders ride" and accordingly I feel in necessity to say a few words about myself to those who do not know me. I understand I am accused of being pro-German, which is due probably to the fact that I am a teacher of German. I am nothing but pro-American and that 100 per cent. I believe our country entered the war on the highest principles and was animated by hate, and I do not believe it is either christian or worldly-wise to deliberately set about to incite hate in the minds of the young. I can refer to the president of the United States as my guide, who said: "Just because we fight without rancor and without selfish object, seeking nothing for ourselves but what we shall wish to share with all free people we shall confidently conduct our operations as belligerents without passion, etc." (Speech of April 2, 1917.)

I also objected to the expression "All good Germans are dead Germans," as a direct slap at the great body of good American citizens of German origin, and as contrary to the repeated saying of President Wilson: "We have no quarrel with the German people." I myself have not a drop of German blood in me, but I have lived and studied in Germany and learned to see much of good in many German institutions and made a number of good friends. These however never wish to see again (unless it be those with American ideas) for they are, by the very act of war, my enemies and we have nothing in common any longer; they probably worship their Kaiser as a martyr, while I feel that he is the author of a pernicious system.—Elizabeth Kingsbury.

Cooperation and Moderation.

Editor Wayne Herald: The general agitation of the public brought about by the war has tendency to excite many people to do and say extreme things. If there ever was a time in the history of our nation when we need to stand for some ideal and to be united, that time is now. The thing for which America is contending, and which has been so ably put by President Wilson, is the great underlying principle upon which democracy rests. Some immoderate speakers and writers insist that the only way we can carry on a successful war against Germany is to hate the German people. It ought to be easy to see that the doctrine of hate is the wrong principle upon which to enter into this war, and expect to be united. When we place the contest upon the high grounds of democracy and fight for principle and not because we hate somebody, then everyone is free to join in and support that principle to the utmost.

The agitation is not incited by the amount of noise he makes, nor by the amount of criticism he directs toward those who cannot subscribe to the doctrine of hate; but it is measured by his moral support of the government's policies as well as by his contributions to the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the Liberty Loan and all other worthy war activities.

The curbstone orator who inveighs against his neighbor for the lack of patriotism in his neighborhood may not be above suspicion himself. The ignorant, misguided critic and gossip peddler may do more to disorganize society and prevent cooperation than the avowed enemy of our country. Our standing as a belligerent power depends upon our unity, and anything which prevents cooperation contributes just that much to the aid and comfort of the enemy.

If those who set up their own standard of patriotism and discredit everyone else who does not agree, might just quiet down a bit and contribute something to the war program besides talk, we would have more of the unity so much needed. Let us have more cooperation, more sympathy, more moderation in our assertions, and by so doing we will have more time and inclination to do things worth while.—U. S. Conn.

CONFERENCE AND REUNION

The Methodist reunion and third quarterly conference will be held at the Methodist church Friday evening, May 3, at 8 o'clock. Dr. Furman of Lincoln will speak, and there will be a short program of songs, followed by the serving of refreshments. All members and friends of the church are earnestly requested to be present at this social function and business session.—Committee.

COUNTY TO RAISE $12,000

Quota in Red Cross Drive to be $1 for Each Person in County.

The Red Cross drive starts May 20, and Wayne county is expected to raise $12,000 or $1 for each man, woman and child. The school district will be the unit. The population of each school district is to be found and on that basis the quota is to be fixed. Many districts will no doubt double their quotas. Specific plans for the campaign will be sent out next week.

FOOD INSPECTED.

The quartermaster corps, charged with the responsibility of feeding and clothing the soldiers, is rigidly inspecting the food purchased for the troops to see that only pure articles are supplied. As an indication of the amount of food that must be obtained, says a statement authorized by the quartermaster general, 1,500,000 men consume daily 1,500,000 pounds of beef, 225,000 pounds of bacon, 210,000 pounds of ham, 135,000 cans of tomatoes, and 225,000 cans of jam—with other articles aggregating 6,750,000 pounds. These quantities of supplies are subjected to thorough inspection, which begin at the source and continue until the food is actually consumed. Each depot of the quartermaster corps is a central distribution business of its own, supplying the camps, cantonments, aviation fields, and other posts in its territory. The subsistence officers are held responsible for the quality of the goods they receive.

Before the supplies reach the depot, however, they are passed upon by inspectors in the packing houses, canneries, and other sources of origin. The records at Washington show the capabilities, character, and standard of every establishment furnishing food for the army. The specifications which their products must meet are clear and exact.

The inspection branch maintains a current file of unreliable dealers and unreliable products, insuring the elimination of dealers who, having been denied the right to supply some of the many depots of the army, make subsequent attempts to obtain contracts at other points.

Miss Amanda Kent of Winside was having dental work done in Wayne Tuesday.

WAR DEPARTMENT REVIEW

American Soldiers Reinforce Allied Armies During Week.

Washington, April 29.—Formal announcement that American troops sent to reinforce the allied armies have taken part in the fighting is made today by the war department in its weekly review of the situation. "Our forces have taken part in the battle," says the statement briefly. "American units are in action against the Germans. During the engagements which have taken place in this week, they have acquitted themselves well."

The review in emphasizing the immediate need of fresh men to withstand the German onslaught, adds that America's imperative duty is to provide replacement units for the French front.

"In addition to those already called to the colors," says the statement, and those in training at our cantonment or already selected for service very large quotas will be required in the immediate future to fill the gaps."

Enemy Seeking Decision.

In this connection the review points out that "the enemy is seeking a decision that will end the war and the outcome of the present operations depends upon manpower."

"The statement comments on the attack on the American line north-west of Toul. Here on April 20, the review says, the Germans swept over American lines on a front of three kilometers but subsequently gave up the ground occupied. The department's statement is as follows:

"The outcome of the operations in the west depends on man power. The Germans are relying principally on rifles, machine guns, manpower and carefully thought methods of transportation and supplying munitions to the front of attack under all conditions which means that they have developed mobility of offensive action that can only be met by counter measures of equal flexibility."

Enemy Now Has Advantage.

A battle of such magnitude as the one being fought in the west cannot be decided by any single engagement, yet there is a series of crises on which the ultimate outcome depends. These crises have up to the present, in a large measure, resulted favorably to the enemy. "The vigorous attack driven against the British lines were intended to paralyze the independent will power of the British command. In this the enemy has failed. Unity of command of the allies has extended operations to the broader field of general engagements in which all the allied forces will benefit thereby by use interchangeably. Allies Unite Strength.

"This change in the combat situation has materially altered the method of decision of the offensive. Instead of the enemy being able to defeat the British army and turn it back, the allies are now able to oppose their full united strength to the hostile attack."

"It must constantly be borne in mind that the enemy is seeking a decision that will end the war. This decision can only be arrived at by the destruction of the allied forces in the field before fresh units contributed from additional levies in France and Great Britain as well as by our own troops can take up their positions in sufficient numbers to turn the German successes to defeat. We must be able to put fresh men in the field thoroughly and methodically trained. In addition to those already called to the colors and now training at our cantonments or already selected for service very large quotas will be required in the immediate future to fill the gaps."

Miss Alta Blough Willis was selected to the kindergarten department, has resigned to accept a position as supervisor kindergarten work in the schools at Metcalf, Arizona. Miss Blough's new position will carry increased responsibility and much larger salary. The vacancy caused by her resignation, together with vacancies in the departments of science and history, are yet to be filled.

OPEN STARCH FACTORIES

Nebraska State Journal: There is considerable talk in western Nebraska potato growing sections in regard to the establishment of starch factories. R. J. Holland was in Kimball county last Friday talking this matter over with growers. He had just come from a meeting held at Morrill where a factory may be put up soon.

A factory that would handle one car of potatoes per day would cost in the neighborhood of $20,000 for building, machinery and its installation. Such a factory, says the Kimball Observer, could be built cooperatively, by home stock company or by outside capital. It is understood that Omaha capital is already wanting to build a factory at Omaha and ship in potatoes. Such a move would mean lower prices because of freight to Omaha.

Several factories are in operation in eastern potato sections. They are paying in the neighborhood of 70 to 80 cents per hundred for potatoes at present. The normal price that such a factory would pay would probably be around 40 to 50 cents per hundred for cull potatoes. With the establishment of government grade there is bound to be a large amount of cull potatoes which would make starch. Even frosted or diseased potatoes can be used. If such a factory is established it should be done so that the acreage could be governed accordingly.

 ♦♦♦♦♦ Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Fleetwood received a letter two weeks ago from their son, Willis Fleetwood, who enlisted in the hospital company of the marines and was stationed at Quantico, Va., saying that he had received orders to sail for France within twenty-four hours. Mr. and Mrs. Fleetwood have received no word since then, so believe their son is on his way to Europe.

 ♦♦♦♦♦ Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Anton Lerner at this place that their son, Fred, is now with United States forces in France. He is understood to have gone to France in advance of other members of the company to which he belonged at Camp Deming. The fact that he is an expert baker and that services in that line are in great demand, helped him some advantage. While stationed with Co. E at Sioux City he was sergeant, and at last accounts he was a gunner in the field artillery.
 ♦♦♦♦♦ Ashton, Idaho, Enterprise: Mrs. F. K. Owen suffered a painful injury Sunday afternoon. She tripped on a stick of wood near the house and fell striking her head on a water-ery trough. Mr. Owen heard her cry out and went to her assistance and helped her into the house. After she had performed a few household duties, she fell ill and after lying down a short time she became unconscious and remained in that condition for several hours. She has rallied however and is getting along nicely.

NEW BOYD HOTEL OPENING

Bad Weather Did Not Prevent Crowd at Sunday Dinner.
 The New Boyd Hotel, under the management of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Gansko, late of Hartington, was opened to the public Sunday, and notwithstanding unfavorable weather, dinner was served on that day to nearly 100 people. The newly furnished interior and new furnishings aided Mr. and Mrs. Gansko in welcoming and serving their guests. Carriages gave each elegantly appointed table an extra touch of beauty. Music enlivened the spirit of the dining room. The menu which reflected the genius of culinary experts, was served in the best of style. Guests were thoroughly pleased with the New Boyd, and congratulate Wayne over the acquisition of Mr. and Mrs. Gansko. The new Boyd has been renovated, repaired, remodeled, repainted, repaired and refurnished throughout. It is modern and up-to-date. It will enable Mr. and Mrs. Gansko to demonstrate their well known ability to accomplish and popular hotel managers.

In connection with the screen recital of "The Blue Bird," it is interesting to recall that Gladys Hulette, whose latest release is "Mrs. Clark" was in the original stage version of this Mactelink play.

Obituary.

The funeral services of C. Elmer Blaker who died in Wakefield April 24, 1918, were held at the home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. J. T. Kraft. Miss Tillie Linnart sang, "Face to Face" and M. T. Ekeroth sang, "No Night There." Interment was made in Wakefield cemetery.

C. Elmer Blaker was born in Sweden, June 24, 1873, and died April 24, 1918, at the age of 44 years and 10 months. When the deceased was eight years of age he moved to America with his parents and located on a farm near Oakland, Neb. They lived there until 1899 when they came to Wakefield. He was united in marriage to Miss Lydia Swanson January 23, 1901. To this union were born five children, Bernice, Maurice, Florence, Robert and Willis.

Mr. Blaker had suffered with rheumatism for fourteen years and the last three years was able to do very little work. He was taken sick with pneumonia three weeks ago which left him with an abscess on one of his lungs, which was the immediate cause of his death. Besides his family he leaves his aged parents, now living in Russell, Minn.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral were: A. W. Blaker, the father, from Russell, Minn.; Mrs. Luther Sandahl, a cousin, from Logan Center, Ill.; T. E. Swanson, of St. Edwards, Neb.

Why You Should Own an Oakland

EXCEPTING only the element of utility, cost of operation and maintenance is today the most important factor in the satisfactory ownership of an automobile. In the design and manufacture of the new Oakland Sensible Six, this factor has had the most earnest and expert consideration. The primary purpose of Oakland is to build the maximum capacity for service into its product, but the aim to make this service economical is second only to this. As a result this new Oakland Sensible Six delivers the highest usefulness to the owner, with an economy unique in the present car field. The high-speed overhead-valve Oakland engine is immensely powerful and efficient, delivering 44 full horsepower at 2600 r. p. m., or one horsepower to every 48 pounds of car weight.

This unusual ratio of power to weight makes for extreme gasoline mileage; owners report from 18 to 25 miles per gallon under ordinary conditions. The finely-made chassis is uncommonly simple and strong, and has behind it the compelling endorsement of three years of satisfactory service. The eighty body is swung on long springs over a generous wheelbase, insuring full comfort; it is unusually roomy and accessible, and is upholstered with genuine leather throughout. This new Oakland Sensible Six is handsome in proportion and finish; it is swift, serviceable and saving—the sort of car you should own. As a perfected example of scientific light-weight construction, high power and fixed economy, its value is not equalled in the present car market.

BECAUSE of the light weight of the Oakland Sensible Six and its generous tire equipment, owners regularly report tire mileages of from 8,000 to 12,000 miles.

BARBERY BUSHES.

Lincoln, Neb., April 30.—Three hundred barbery bushes will be dug up on the university farm campus, and probably double that number on the main campus of the University of Nebraska and the campus of the medical college at Omaha, according to special agents of the United States department of agriculture who are conducting an anti-barbery campaign in Nebraska. The leaves of the barbery bush are the hatching places of wheat rust, which is collected by the insects. In addition to eradicating the bushes from the campuses of the state schools, state officials will see to it that the bush will grow from campuses of state buildings, scores of parks over the state, lawns of private residences, and public playgrounds will the barbery bush be attacked. "Out of ten counties visited, I found ten counties that had barbery," said Harry P. Rigdon, special agent of the department of agriculture, who is working in Nebraska on the barbery eradication campaign. "Every place I visited I found plenty of dangerous varieties of the common and purple barbery that Governor Howard has asked to be eradicated on May 4. The ten towns visited by Mr. Rigdon include Lincoln, Omaha, Hastings, Central City, Columbus, Fremont, West Point, Norfolk, Hartington and others." He found that the worst part of the state, south from Yankton, S. D., has barberies in quantities that have been supplied from the extensive nurseries here.

same way. Absolutely the only variety as far as known that is immature to rust is the Japanese, a dwarf plant, with spreading stem, single spines, small leaves that are smooth-edged and flowers that are single. The other varieties have three or five spines together and the leaves are always fringed with spines. Other varieties grow all the year. The harmless barbery may be identified by the single thorns, brown bark, single flowers or berries, small smooth-edged green leaves, small compact bushes. The enemy barberies have three to five parted thorns, grayish bark, curving like clusters of flowers and berries, larger tooth edged, green or purple leaves, and are coarser, more open bushes. In 1916 there were 200,000,000 bushels of wheat destroyed by rust. WAYNE COUNTY MEN LEAVE FOR SERVICE (Continued from Page 1, Section 1) back, but if this is not God's will then let us all have this consciousness that there are worse things that can come to us than giving our lives vicariously for those whom we hold dear. Thousands will return to their homes and business and why not you. We trust that you will. "Now just a word to those of us who are to remain behind. We stand before the world dedicated to a holy cause. Each man, each woman, and each child in this land has a task to perform, something to do to help his country. If we can not fight with our boys in France, we can stand behind them here, presenting a solid cheer, unwavering front to our enemies abroad and their agents here. "We, we, collectively and individually, fail in any degree we prove recreant to the trust placed in us by our brothers, our fathers, our sons, who have gone forth to their duty, to die, on the battlefields of Europe. "This is the splendid duty to which we are called. As Whittier said a generation ago, so may we now say with even greater truth and with reference to this most stupendous crisis: "Our fathers to their graves have gone: Their strife is past, their triumph won; But sterner trials wait the race Which rises in their honored place. A moral warfare with the crime And foil of an evil time. "So let it be. In God's own might We gird us for the coming fight. And, strong in Him whose cause is ours In conflict with unholy powers, We grasp the weapons He has given— The Light, and Truth, and Love of Heaven." W. R. Ellis was introduced and spoke as follows: "I count it an honor to be permitted to say a few words to the boys who are entering the service not only of your country but of the world—not only for your country but for humanity. There has been much talk on several occasions about this time of the year to address graduating classes in what we call commencement exercises and to give the benediction for the future was about to open to them boundless opportunities. But let me say to you my young friends, stand on guard against the possibility of a future fraught with greater possibilities than ever presented itself to any graduating class from this college. "It has been said that this is the old man's age—that the call to the front of thousands of young men has given the old man a new chance and that his services are in demand as never before. While this latter is true, yet I tell you that this is pre-eminently the young man's age. It is the boys in khaki and in blue that we are thinking about and talking about and reading about. A few years ago the newspapers and magazines were filled with pictures of gray-haired captains of industry—successful men of the business world. But this has given place to pictures of young men in uniform. A few years ago all we could read about was stock quotations, market fluctuations, corners in this and that. Wall street scandals, fraud and finance and kindred topics. Even preachers who wished to select a catchy subject for a popular sermon would couple some of these things with a text in scripture to entertain the high-brows in the pews. Now, however, the press and the pulpit are with one accord in extolling the virtues of patriotism, loyalty, democracy, love of country, justice and duty, and linked with these high ideals are associated words like soldier, serious, considerate are, not the pompous men so much in the public eye ten or fifteen years ago, but the boys who are so nobly and cheerfully responding to their country's call in this hour of her supreme need. I tell you that after this war is over the big men of the age and for the next fifty years will be the men who have given themselves whole-heartedly to this great cause and have come out of it bigger and broader and better in every way than they would ever have been but for the struggle through which they have passed. Men are made great largely by being given the opportunity of finding themselves—of discovering the latent forces of their better nature. Abraham Lincoln would never have been the 'idol of every heart' that he is, had it not been for the long years of fiery trial through which he was permitted to pass. He had the manhood to meet every test and win and his position in history will become brighter as time goes by. President Wilson, in my opinion, would never have been accorded the high position which he will occupy in history were it not for the opportunities which this crisis has afforded him to rise to the first and highest ideals of his nature. And I firmly believe, boys, you will return to us heroes, only because of your bravery and courage in positions of danger. It will occur in history were it not because of the fact that you will have found in yourselves hid-

Prest-O-Lite BATTERIES A Member of The Prest-O-Lite Clan The members of this happy clan hardly know a battery "grid" from a piece of cheese. They don't know and don't want to know about the functioning of "electrodes" or "electrolytes." They are tickled to death to leave all that engineering "dope" to their battery-bug-friends, and the expert who runs the Prest-O-Lite Service Station down the street. What they do know is that the little box of power, labelled "Prest-O-Lite," is an all-the-year-round, one hundred per cent performer in wet, dry, hot and twenty below zero weather; that it carries in storage the necessary surplus power to feed the electric head-lights and spins the stiffest engine under conditions that would have forced any other man's battery lay down on the job. They know that the Prest-O-Lite Service expert is the proper party to pass on the condition of the battery and from time to time apply the simple treatments necessary to keep it up to its rated capacity. They know that this service man's station is just down the street. That it's an easy matter to stop the car at his place for a few minutes once a month; And—they know that the said Prest-O-Lite Service man is a human being—a deserving battery engineer who in accordance with our well known policy makes no charge for "inspection" or distilled water—but has his fixed rates for all other services rendered. If you can say "Amen!" to this solution of all your car battery problems you are eligible to membership in the Prest-O-Lite Clan. Vern Fisher Agent WAYNE, NEBRASKA

THE NATIONS NEED - MORE CORN

Average Planting
Average's in-line and miss planting—under-planting some hills and over-planting others. Under-planted hills produce only one or two ears where they should produce three good ears. Over-planted hills produce barren stalks, stubbins and possibly a couple of fair ears.

Accurate Planting
Accurate Planting means the desired number of kernels in every hill that number depending upon the soil's fertility. It means that each hill is called upon to produce its proportionate part of the yield. It eliminates under- or over-planting.

We can sell you the planter that results in more corn—the planter that gives the same accuracy that you would get by counting out the kernels and dropping them by hand. Come in and inspect this planter—ask for the

JOHN DEERE 999 Corn Planter.

The Accurate, Variable-Drop Planter equipped with Natural-Fill, Edge-Delivery Seed Cases. Each kernel settles itself in the seed plate in a natural position. The sloping hopper bottom feeds the corn to the cells whether the hopper is full or nearly empty. It is the most simple, yet most effective, planting mechanism ever used on a corn planter.

You control the number of kernels per hill. Without changing seed plates or even stopping the team, you can plant two, three or four kernels in the hill, whichever number you decide the land will sustain. Merely shifting the foot lever varies the number dropped, and you can change the drop as frequently as you desire. The variable-drop mechanism of this planter is just as perfect and well protected as the gears on the best automobile. You can also drill corn with the John-Deere Planter. Change from hilling to drilling, or back to hilling, is made instantly by means of a foot drop lever. No necessary to get off the seat or stop the team. The 999 Planter gives nine different drilling designs without changing seed plates.

We Can Demonstrate to You the Accuracy of This Planter

A GOOD FRIEND

A good friend stands by you when in need. Wayne people tell how Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. Mrs. Ira Hoshaw of Wayne endorsed Doan's almost six years ago and again confirms the story. Could you ask for more convincing testimony?
"I was in bed for several weeks with a severe attack of the grip," says Mrs. Hoshaw. "Upon recovering, I found my kidneys had become weakened. I was a great sufferer from sharp pains across the small of my back and lameness through my loins. My head throbbled for hours at a time and I couldn't rest at night. After taking Doan's Kidney Pills a few days, the backache was relieved and my kidneys were strengthened. In three weeks all symptoms of kidney trouble had disappeared."
Mrs. Hoshaw gave the above statement in August, 1910, and almost six years later, on or July 15, 1916, she added: "I keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house all the time, getting them at Felber's Pharmacy. They keep me in good health by driving away any signs of kidney trouble I may have."

NAME NEW AUTO ROAD.

Norfolk News, April 29: "Goldenrod Trail" seems to be the name generally favored for the new cut-off road between Sioux City and Grand Island, according to Secretary-Treasurer Beels of the association, who is sending letters to all the directors asking for a vote by mail. The result of this vote will then be sent to the advisory state highway committee, who will decide the matter.
Money for marking the trail is also being received in generous amounts, a number of towns having already sent in their donations.

ALIEN ENEMY HELD.

Norfolk Daily News, April 29: The Stanton County Council of Defense held a meeting in the court room at Stanton Friday afternoon. Among those to appear was one Gustave Steinburg, alias Gustav Stein, an alien Prussian enemy, who has been only recently residing in Spring Branch precinct and who raised some disturbance at a patriotic meeting held in a school house at that precinct a short time ago. The examination of Mr. Steinburg disclosed facts that caused him to be placed in the custody of the sheriff who placed him in jail awaiting the arrival of a U. S. marshal to take him in charge.

DR. BOHN A SUCCESS.

of foreigners. The people stay through two hours of rapid fire talk at the end of which they know a great deal more about the causes of the war than they did at the beginning. A state organization of the "Friends of German Democracy" is expected to follow the tour. Mr. Bohn is now making.

A WARNING TO GIRLS.

Randolph Times: Numerous complaints have reached this office out of town young men with pure, turning they seek up to the church and asking, Randolph girls to take a ride with them. The offenses have occurred mostly on Sunday afternoon and evenings when the young ladies might be walking along the street in the residence districts. Usually there are two young men in the car. They are very polite and the young married women have been given the insulting invitation by strangers, and so far as we have heard all have been turned down. Marshal Carroll observed an cident of the kind recently, but the car skipped out before he could get its number or the mothers it contained.

Some of these smart boys are going to get into trouble. Parents should warn their daughters of the danger of accepting auto rides from strangers who draw up to the curb and ask them to get into a car. This thing has been going on here for several weeks and the authorities will not stand for it.

CLUB LADIES DO WAR WORK

(By Mrs. J. G. W. Lewis.) The fifteenth annual convention of the third district Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs which met at Oakland, April 9 and 10 was distinctly a war meeting. Each state or district chairman in presenting the work of her department, whether it was health, civil service, home economics, industrial and social conditions, education, conservation, or art, "bowed close to the line" of war service. And why should it not be so? War work today means not only great armies of men in the camps, on the march, in the trenches, in the battle, and the horrible bloodshed and destruction, and the relief services after the war of age; but war work is a question of food, of factories, of fields, of schools, of churches, of homes, of music and art, of work, of recreation and diversion. Club women must be helpful to the community along all these lines. Today our homes, the world and our king, suffering humanity. Women's clubs must be a place where the plans of the government are made known and discussed. Club women are peculiarly fitted to enter immediately into the plans of our government for carrying on war work, for they have long been organized and have been working together on the very same lines of work upon which the government is placing war-time emphasis last night it is interesting to note that almost all of the speakers and many of the delegates at the convention are workers in the women's committee of the Council of National Defense, either as officers, heads of departments, or county chairmen. This is just as true throughout the entire state. Mrs. A. E. Sheldon, state president of the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs, gave the main address on Tuesday evening, her subject being "Things Come Enough to Be True." On Wednesday evening a most excellent address on "Women's War Work" was given by Prof. Sarka Hrbkova, head of the department of Slavonic languages of the state university, and state chairman of the Woman's Council of Defense. DESTROYING U-BOATS. Scientific American. The situation in the submarine warfare today is this: That our scientists and engineers as a result of patient investigation, have devised certain means for killing the submarine, which are so efficient that, if sufficient number of boats can be found on which to place them, submarine piracy will be practically snuffed out within a few weeks after the start of boats in commission.

You know, of course, that the Maxwell Motor Car is the long distance champion of the world.

You have read that a "stock" Maxwell 5-passenger car ran for 44 days and nights without stopping the motor.

And that, in the 44 days non-stop test, the Maxwell covered 22,022 miles, at an average speed of 25 miles per hour.

But have you, up to now, realized the full significance of that performance? Do you know that no other motor car in the world has ever equalled or even approached that performance?

In a word, did you take this test seriously when you heard of it? Or did you set it down as a "selling stunt" to give the publicity man something to talk about?

It's worth your while to read and to study the conditions under which that test was made.

You know that the American Automobile Association (familiarly known as the "A. A. A.") is the official arbiter of every automobile test and contest.

But perhaps you didn't know that when a maker places his product under A. A. A. supervision he must do absolutely as told and abide by the decisions of the Board. That's why there are so few A. A. A. Official Records!

This 22,000-mile Maxwell non-stop test was official from start to finish. Therein lies its value to you.

It proves absolutely the quality of the car—the very Maxwell you buy. For verily this was a "stock" Maxwell. Listen:—

First: the inspectors disassembled the motor to see that no special pistons, valves, bearing-metal or other parts had been used.

Every other unit was as critically inspected. Then the car was re-assembled under their own supervision.

As we had much at stake and the test was made in winter (November 23 to January 5) we asked permission to take certain little precautions against accidental stoppage.

Sounds reasonable, doesn't it?

But they refused permission to do any such thing.

For example:—They would not permit a rubber cover over the magneto—it wasn't "stock."

They refused to let us tape the ignition wire terminals—they are not taped on the Maxwells we sell—so of course it wasn't "stock."

Neither would they let us use a spiral coiled pipe in place of the usual straight one from tank to carburetor to guard against a breakage from the constant, unremitting vibration—it isn't "stock."

Nor to use a special high priced foreign make of spark plug—the run was made on the same spark plugs with which all Maxwells are equipped.

So rigid were the rules, we were unable to carry a spare tire on the rear—it wasn't "stock." A telegram to headquarters in New York finally brought a special permit to carry a spare tire.

"It isn't stock!" "It isn't stock!"

That was the laconic reply of those A. A. A. inspectors to every last suggestion that called for anything but the precise condition of the standard, stock model Maxwell that any customer can buy from any one of 3000 dealers anywhere.

We are glad now—mighty glad—that the rules were so strict and so rigidly enforced.

Any other car that ever attempts to equal that record must do it under official supervision—and comply with the same terms.

And it will have to go some.

For Maxwell set the standard when it performed this wonderful feat. Maxwell complied with those rules—and made good.

Every drop of gasoline and oil and water was measured out and poured in by the inspectors themselves. They would not even let our man pour it in!

Every four hours the car had to report at the official station for checking. And it had to be there on the minute.

And every minute there was an inspector beside the driver on the front seat—two men in the rear. One got out only to let another in—day and night for 44 days and nights!

There was one technical stop.

It is interesting to know the circumstances.

Dead of night—a driving storm—a cloudburst—suddenly another car appeared in the road ahead.

In his effort to avoid a collision the Maxwell driver stalled his motor. At least the observers thought it stopped and so reported.

The car did not stop, however, so its momentum again started the motor (if it had indeed stalled) when the clutch was let-in.

The contest board exonerated our driver on grounds that his action was necessary to save life.

That shows you how rigid were the rules—how conscientiously applied by the observers.

You who have owned and driven motor cars—you who know how small a thing may clog a carburetor or a feed pipe; how a spark or stall a motor—will realize what a wonderfully well made car this must be to go through that test under those conditions—44 days—22,022 miles without stopping.

The exact amount of gasoline, of oil, of water used; the tire mileage, tire troubles, tire changes; the distance and the routes are matters of official record, attested under oath and guaranteed by the A. A. A.

(By the way, the average was nearly 10,000 miles per tire.)

Any Maxwell owner—or anyone interested may see those records.

And—here's the most wonderful part—though no attempt was or could be made for economy; the Maxwell averaged 22 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Some other car may, some time, equal some one of those performances. But to equal them all in the same test—that car must be a Maxwell.
