RECIPE FOR INFLUENZA

(St. Louis City Journal.)
To the Editor:—October 14, 1918.
I am an old man for counsel, young men for war, and I being one of the first class, ruled out of active service by the government, still having a clear head, steady nerve, and good memory, feel that I having had many years' actual experience and successful practice work in the treatment of conditions found in the symptoms of true grip have so often been explained I will not dwell on them, but start by saying that the grip is purely and emphatically a nerve disease and when treated as such is readily controlled. In evidence of this I will say that as far back as 1870, this was recognized as a bad case to the head, the writer, like many other physicians, used in the treatment quinine, and perhaps other victory remedies, but failed to get good results, and six years went by before I was convinced that a sedative to the nerves was needed, and began treating the cases on these lines, and success crowned my efforts. Among the sedatives used I found asafoetida to be the most satisfactory, and after many tests fit upon the following formula, and in uncomplicated cases have never failed in curing. I use every case speedily and not one has been followed by pneumonia. Prepared (pure) asafoetida 1 dram, pulverized capsicum 10 grains, divide into twelve parts and put in capsules and add two coating pellets to each capsule to take each two hours until all are taken. At the end of twenty-four hours the patient will be found in nearly a normal condition unless he has been given quinine or whiskey or some other nerve vibrator. In that case it may be necessary to repeat the formula. The age, habits and condition of the patient must be considered. The habitual user of tobacco or strong drinks whose nerves are prostrated and weak, may need a larger dose or a longer treatment. Now for the reason why this formula does the work. The properties of asafoetida are those of an antidote, sedative, alterative, diaphoretic, expectorant, antiseptic, and disinfectant, all of which are suited to aid in the elimination of the existing unhealthy conditions. The capsicum used is a powerful tonic, toning up stomach and bowels. The cactus is a standard heart stimulant, furnishing nutrition and giving vigor and strength to the circulation. The formula includes no deleterious ingredients, and is used by the writer in hundreds of cases without a single bad result. A few hours after the last dose is given it will give a slight purgative, cleanse out the bowels thoroughly, and cleansing them of any and all autotoxic matter. A hot bath in which plenty of bicarbonate of soda has been dissolved will be found refreshing, just before or after treatment. The foregoing synopsis for this treatment of the grip does not cover all the details, but will be sufficient to aid others to investigate on new lines, as has been done by an old practitioner who is ready to serve his country or state when ever called. Dr. E. B. Crawford, Dr. Crawford is one of the pioneer settlers of Wayne county, having assisted in organizing that county in 1870. At that time he owned the townships of Wayne and Winslow. A practicing physician for the past fifty-six years, after many years spent in Wayne county, he removed to Chicago, where for several years he held the chair of medicine and practice at the Bennett medical college. He is one of the oldest living graduates of that college. Dr. Crawford, who is 79 years of age, is visiting in Sioux City, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Nora M. Payne, 1205 Pierce street.

SPANISH FLU.

Simple care for influenza is recommended. Doctor E. B. Crawford, who has just returned from a teachers' convention in Iowa. When he went he had been suffering for more than a week with a severe case of influenza. At the convention where he was to speak he met Dr. Charles E. Baker, the private physician of ex-President Taft during his administration, who has now been sent by the government to lecture in the institutions and cities of Iowa on hygiene. Dr. Barker told Dean Fordyce that he would care him of his ailment in thirty-six hours. Dean Fordyce, who had been trying many medical remedies, unsuccessfully, agreed to follow orders. At Dr. Barker's suggestion he went without food for thirty-six hours, in that time drinking all the water he could and drinking a pint and a half of lemonade containing ginger. When he returned to Lincoln Friday evening he was completely rid of the disease and feeling fresh and vigorous. Dr. Barker had not been able to follow one clause of Dr. Barker's suggestion which was to remain in bed where there was an even temperature during the day. ### Autocracy and Theocracy.

Omaha World-Herald. "Autocracy in Germany is really theocracy. It employs the church and religion to indicate the divine right of kings. The Kaiser had a god of his own which he claimed was always with him. 'The governments of the central powers claimed to be 'holy.' There was the 'Holy Alliance' which claimed that its representatives were the delegates of divine assistance, and that they recognized no other authority than God and were responsible only to God and answer to the people. It was the teaching of that doctrine that the world into the present confusion. There can never be peace in the world until it is trampled into the dust, so deep that it will never appear again. The people must rule and civil government be directed by them and not by some autocrat who says that he is the representative of God. That is what President Wilson means when he says that no peace can be negotiated with autocracy.

Only One-Fourth of American Telephone Exchanges Are Bell Owned or Controlled

Of the 21,700 telephone exchanges in the United States, only 5,400 or about 25 per cent, are owned by the Bell System.

The Bell System, composed of 37 associated companies, does not seek universal ownership of the telephone. It does, however, encourage the connection of all the telephone systems in the country with each other so that communication between any two telephones in the nation will be possible.

In addition to 9,129 independent telephone companies in the United States operating 16,300 exchanges, there are 22,000 mutual telephone associations of farmers with 1,400,000 rural telephones.

The United States today has over 11,700,000 telephones, or more than all the rest of the world combined, and the service is the best and cheapest given anywhere.

No single telephone organization can claim the credit for the magnificent showing made in this country. Every telephone company, large and small, Bell-owned, independently owned or a mutual association, is entitled to its full share of the credit.

I please allegiance to my flag and to the Republic for which it stands, one and indivisible, with Liberty and Justice to all.

If the Kaiser thought his peace move would frustrate the fourth liberty loan in this country, he was wrong. His peace move will be a failure. His plans have met defeat so often that he ought to be used to it.

Yes, the apple crop of Wayne county has been exhausted. Postpone writing to us about a quilt next summer when, if there is not a fruit shortage here, which seldom happens, we will give all orders careful attention.

To the street commissioner: You work well when you get around it, but you wait so long after a street that results are almost nil. You might as well try to make an impression on a piece of adamant with a toothbrush as try to reduce bumps in the road with a drag after they have become dry.

As to whether the German government introduced Spanish flu into this country or not, we don't know, although we believe it would do it if it could. There is no doubt it would be willing to do it. The German government has shown that it will practice any heinous crime if it helps its nefarious purpose.

H. E. Simon, republican candidate for state senator, is an aggressive and brainy lawyer of known integrity, and he will be able, if elected, to render effective service for the district which he represents. He will be a staunch friend of the Wayne State Normal. He is so well and favorably known in Wayne county that he should receive an immense majority.

It is now reported from Germany that the crown prince, whose fate is proof that he doesn't know enough to lead a flock of geese to water, won't be allowed to ascend the throne. We guess he won't. Not will any of the other members of the Hohenzollern bunch ascend the throne if we anticipate the achievements of the war correctly.

Remember this, every time you sneeze out in the open, you release 143,875 microorganisms, any one of which might cause an innocent passer-by to be stricken with influenza. Bigger in Lincoln Journal if this is true, and we don't doubt likely accuracy in counting them, people should be very careful. With such formidable arm of germ materialized and ready for action, one who wants to sneeze ought to first get a ball, then fill it half full of soap, killing acid, and finally shoot the cargo into it.

the town must keep open only between 8 o'clock in the morning and noon—as a precautionary measure against spread of the influenza. If stores are kept open only half time, more people would necessarily congregate at one time to buy goods. We can't see how the mayor could figure that fewer business hours would hamper the epidemic. In his ambition to impose restrictions to check disease, the mayor ought to have done something that would seem more practicable and effective.

The people of Wayne county have done wonderfully well in checking the Spanish influenza and reducing fatalities. Doctors and nurses, committee members and citizens, have been working night and day, wholly burying thought of self in the fight to overwhelm the disease and restore normal health. Members of the Red Cross and State Normal faculty have been conspicuous and efficient in the service to the flu out of commission. Judging results, this county has had more complete success than most Nebraska counties in stopping the epidemic.

Unconditional surrender may come quickly when the net snags into the German government that nothing short of such terms will satisfy the allies and stop hostilities. German military leaders know they are defeated. They are making an effort to save as much as possible from the wreck. They are accomplishing most in that direction by laying down their arms and submitting to the settlement to be named by the allied governments. They are putting off the day of final reckoning, but the day is coming and when it comes the Prussian autocrats will have to yield without dickerings or limitations.

We have no criticism of the man of wealth if he departs himself the people who have to have some. The man who has become comparatively rich owes more to society than the man of inferior success, but often he gives less for the public benefit and welfare. At this time, when many people's resources are taxed to the limit to respond to the needs of the government, we must find means and ways of utilizing financial abundance pursuing a contemptibly penurious and selfish course. The so-called rich man who gives just a little to support the different branches of the government as society will permit, is really a hindrance to the ardor and generosity of others of small means who yield more, but pretend less. The so-called rich man who wants credit for more than he does, but who conceals nothing to those who are doing more, is a social leprosy, and a barrier to worthy accomplishments. The rich man who aids public needs and serves the sick and afflicted in proportion to his ability and means is a golden boon to society. But the other sort—the monument of concrete selfishness, based on money and seeking only selfish comfort and security and unmerited praise and exaltation, may expect the popular contempt which he gets. Regeneration of the selfish rich should be one of the achievements of these crucial times.

Special Overcoat Week

THE last shipment of our overcoats for fall has been on the road several days and will be here by next Monday. We have decided to devote all next week, October 28 to November 2, especially to the showing of overcoats.

No matter how old or how young you are, nor how plain or how snappy you want your coat to be, you'll find them here in the right styles for you. The colors, too, come in a big range.

Our prices, too, will surprise you. They'll be less than you expect to pay. The range is $22.50 to $40.00, with an especially big showing from $25.00 to $35.00.

Be sure and come in next week and look them over while we have all the styles, colors and prices. All orders for fill-in sizes will be at greatly advanced prices over the original.

400 Coats and Suits to be Sold At a Loss Because we are Overstocked

The hundreds of coats in our upstairs stock room must be closed out at a loss.

Take the stairs on south side of our store to second floor and see what a wonderful bargain you can get in a fine winter coat or suit.

This big stock was bought to sell in other towns of Nebraska and South Dakota in which we give sales every fall; the "flu" has compelled us to cancel many of these sales, and now we have these hundreds of extra coats and suits on our hands.

We have marked them down to prices that ought to sell them on sight to anyone needing a coat this winter or next.

Come at once and you'll have first choice of these wonderful bargains.

Any woman who expects to buy a coat of suit this winter or next winter, will be greatly interested in the special sale advertised in the Herald this week for J. J. Ahern. For several years, this store has done a large business in coats and suits through special sales held in towns of Nebraska and south Dakota. Thousands of dollars worth of coats needed for these sales are stored each season on the second floor of the Ahern building, and sent out by trunkfuls each week to other towns. This season preparations were made on a larger scale than usual, and the out-of-town sales started off very successfully. The "flu" epidemic came on and many of the October sales have been cancelled, leaving a lot of coats on Mr. Ahern's hands which he is now offering for sale to his Wayne customers at reduced prices that ought to sell them readily to anyone needing a coat either this year or next. See his ad and attend this very unusual bargain offering. 0241ad

YANKEE PEP.
 The war was old and dreary, it ceased to make a hit; the struggling lusty were weary of blood and mud and grit; then came the Yankee fighters (laughed at by German writers as brash and untrained blight) to speed things up a bit. The Kaiser would not credit the tale that Yanks could scrap; he cooked up bunk and fed it to every German chap, because we were not willing to spend our lifetime drilling, we'd be no good at killing, or testing up the map. The war was stale and dragging, the armies badly mired, the generals were sagging, the soldiers sick and tired; then came the Yankee swooping—whizzing and kerbooping, to spur the spirits drooping, with energy all-fired. And now, behold the wonder: the tired old allies rose, and like a streak of thunder went zipping through the fog; they sent the Bulgur chasing, the Turk they gave a heings and a quiet, Fritz's racing until he tore his clothes. The Yanks are blithe

THE GREAT TONIC.
 No doubt all ailing critics, weary of their ills, have taken Simpson's bitter, or Popoff's purple pills, yet found their ailments chronic to their intense despair until they tried this tonic—the crisp October air. I've lapped up Tomson's syrup of seaweed, prunes and cheese and it would merely stir up new symptoms of disease; the doctor's diagnosis has often made me snort. I've taken dove in doses, a spoonful to a quart; I've piled on porous plasters. I've worn them inside out, to head off such disasters as rheumatiz and gout. In all the drags of healing there's nothing to compare with this, of which I'm speaking, the crisp October air. I'm living, at this writing, from all my ailments free. I'm in the bus of fighting, or shinning up a tree. No more you see me groping in cupboards for my pills, no more you see me dogging my works for sucking the marrow of organs dislocated, or falling of the hair; I've been rejuvenated by crisp October air. I'm active, blithe and sprightly, my gait is free and bold. I run around as lightly as any ten-year-old, my enemies I've throttled, disease and pain and care; it really should be bottled, this crisp October air.

WEARY WILLIE.
 It is the royal Tauton, and wearily he speaks: "I started all this shooting, his vision tears upon my cheeks; oh, huncs great and splendid my dreaming, stout attended; I thought I'd wear would be ended with triumph in six weeks. I thought my mighty legions would have a walk-away, and conquer all the regions that in their pathway lay. I thought 'twould be an outing, a time of glee and shouting, and I could do some spouting to big crowds every day. I saw myself in glory, upon a milk-white steed, while monarchs whipped and gory, kneel in the dust to plead; four years I have been fighting, four years of war-affighting, and I find me, this writing, but down all gone to seed. The truth comes to me now, I have no chance to win; the truth is most unholly—your Wilhelm is all in; and all around this world, wherever I may see, the men's hearts are hard as granite, from hating me like sin. I have to take a whipping, the truth I plainly see; I have to rest and drooping, and none will pity me, oh, none will sigh in sorrow; if I am licked tomorrow, but some will want to borrow my boots and a tree. Many were monarchs hated as I am hated now? The crown is laden weighed that rests upon my brow; the throne of chance is pressed down on my neck, which I pleasure, now bring me grief—unmeasured—I'd trade them for a cow. For I am lone and friendless, a king without a chin; my loneliness is a cross, for my friends will come, for all the world will hate me, detest me and herate me, until morticians erate me, when I am dead and dumb."

JOHN BARLEYCORN.
 John Barleycorn, my Jo, John, since nations had their birth, you have, with heastly arrogance misted this old earth. But now you see your mish, John, and many fits you throw; the bells are tolling knella for you, John Barleycorn, my Jo. This war has slain its millions, John, and many more must die, but you have killed far more than war, with its you old my and rye, the men fall on battlefields our prayers and blessings know, but those you slay must die in shame, John Barleycorn, my Jo. John Barleycorn, my Jo, John, your tricks cannot avail, you cannot set aside your doom, by blowing in the kale; nor gap the tears of crocodiles which down your whiskers flow, yet ever you cheer and shout; John Barleycorn, my Jo. 'Twill be a better world, John, when you've removed your rights when you no longer poison with tanglefoot and wine; for every plank you handle is the price of pain and woe, and that's a taunting challenge will say, "Why not let William have his way, and end this beastly war?" Oh, yes, let's put away our guns, and sit and gossip with the Huns, until they spy their breads, when with their energy restored, they'll usher in, with brand and sword, a new era of death, my Jo. But who has some thing to say of armistice and truce? Let us forget how he has lied (there is no truth here), how he hid, and then some waddler, loose, let us forget the Prussian's crimes, which have, in all historic times, no parallel, say men, and talk of peace and kindred boons, and liverwort and beer and prunes, until we're tricked again. We've seen the package Russia got when she gave ear to German rot, and banked on German lies; and we should do as Russia did, and in the ditch like Russia skid—it would be sane and wise. But it will be a little while before the Teut's entrancing smile can put us in a trance; some German towns we'll have to strike and show the folks what war's been like among the towns of France. We'll have to show the placid Fritz how scenery is blown to bits by modern allied guns; down German roads we'll have to wend, and stand the siver Rhine on end, and griete a lot of Huns.

We thought the Serbs had looped the loops, were down for good and all; but they came back, with ringing whoops, this most suspicious fall. They've undergone enough of woe to tend their souls in two, however, by a liquid, foetal, never-dry knee. THE KAISER'S TEARS. Sioux Falls Argus Leader: They say the kaiser weeps most of the time now. It may be true; but the tears are not for the sorrow he has brought to the world, but because of the defeat of his ambitions. A kaiser who could start so cruel a thing as a world war, knowing full well the millions of lives it would cost, is not capable of grief over the sufferings of others. The kaiser's pity is reserved for himself.

A Beautiful Woman. "Do you know that a beautiful woman always has a good digestion. If your digestion is faulty, eat light foods, and take an occasional dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to strengthen your digestion. Price 25c per box."

GERMANY WANTS PEACE

New York World: The desire of the Berlin war party for a prompt peace is well shown by the signing of the League of Nations. Germany has been courting Irish favor, after her brutal fashion, for years; now she continues "singing" the "Marseilles" in honor of the Irish volunteers in the Irish war, and she is now offering to give the Irish the same tokens of victory that the British have given to the Irish.

THERE MAY BE OTHERS.

St. Paul Pioneer-Press: We have already reached the point where we may say we have repulsed the German peace offensive as completely and effectively as we defeated the Hun military offensive. But will the wise and sane to keep our bayonets fixed.

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES

From the Wayne Herald, October 27, 1918. Mrs. Everett Laughlin returned from a visit with relatives in Illinois. Mrs. H. F. Wilson and little son were visiting relatives in Correctionville. A daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Goldie, October 25, 1918. Mrs. J. A. Hogue, who had been visiting at the Peter Meers home left for Kansas City. W. M. Wright attended the meeting of the silver-republican congressional committee held at Columbus, Assistant Cashier Nathan, Chase of the First National bank, enjoyed a much needed vacation at the exposition. Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Brenner, Miss Maude Tucker, Mrs. and Mrs. L. F. Rauburn and James McIntosh were passengers to Omaha to attend the exposition. R. P. Williams leased his restaurant building to Mrs. Salling who has taken possession. Mr. Williams is occupying the residence just south of Dr. P. S. Surfass. H. G. Webbles who sold the steam laundry to R. P. Williams has decided to engage in the restaurant business. J. C. Milligan will erect a building for him west of the Herald office. The following were passengers for Omaha to attend the exposition: Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Arley, Mrs. P. L. Miller, Mrs. R. J. Armstrong, Dr. L. J. Williams, J. D. King, D. C. Main and W. A. Ivory. From Ponca Junction October 26, 1918: Paula Gray and Wakefield, was in town on Monday. Mr. Gray is intending to go to California to pass the winter. He will start next month. Rev. Mr. Schur of Wayne filled his old place in the Lutheran parsonage this place last Sunday, and on Monday was hand-shaking with old-time friends and parishioners. A farmer living near Wakefield brought a load of wheat to this place yesterday and received 75 cents a bushel for it. He said they were only paying 60 cents for Wakefield, and he figured that 50 cents on a bushel paid him pretty well for bringing it to market. Some folks lately are reminding that winter is not far off. Now, bank up houses, dig potatoes, pick cabbages and lay in a big pile of wood. With all these things attended to, one may the winter toss his shirt before the fire and see the storm howl outside with comfort and complacency.

DAVID HERNER Democratic Nominee for Representative for Wayne County.

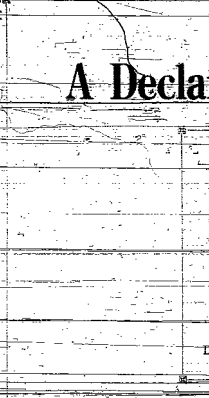

A Declaration of Principles

To the Voters of Wayne County. As I am a candidate for representative of the Twentieth Representative District, it is right that I make known my views on public questions, and take this opportunity to do so.

"I stand first for 100 per cent Americanism. No man should be elected to a position of trust unless he has shown that he favors the one central thought of making this country the greatest democracy on earth, free from taint of any special interest of any kind. That our state government assist our president in winning the war; that the legislature cooperate and assist in every way possible. I believe that the natural resources of the state should be owned and controlled by the people of the state, (such as water-power, mineral or oil or gas deposits). I believe it to be the duty of the next legislature to pass laws to control monopoly in restraint of trade; and to stop profiteering. All public utilities should be owned or controlled by the people. I am in sympathy with any patriotic movement the farmer and stock raiser may take to protect his calling and improve his condition. Every other trade and profession has organized for cooperative action; and why not the farmer? If elected, I promise to cooperate with the farmers in securing such just legislation as they may desire. I favor the ratification of the prohibitory amendment to the federal constitution. I favor the enactment of laws for the betterment of the people of the state educationally, socially and economically."

The Store That Serves Your Needs

WE feel free to announce with candor that no store in Wayne devotes more time or energy in anticipating the needs of the community than we. Not only do we tip-toe to the last word in novel ready-to-wear apparel as well as to the new ideas in dress accessories, but we also keep all staple lines complete as to sizes and colors. We have faced the dye situation, and, in most cases, have come out with the goods by placing small orders with dozens of different firms. When these tactics failed we visited the markets personally and secured what we wanted.

BLANKET WEEK

Every housewife in Wayne county will be overhauling her blanket supply this week. Scores will be adding "blankets" to their shopping list. Although we have a large stock, the wise customer comes early and gets first choice.

Cotton Blankets Some people prefer cotton blankets. It is surprising how much real warmth they do afford. You can have them in a variety of color combinations and at prices ranging from $2.25 to $8.50

Wool Blankets What is more luxurious than to snuggle down between soft wool blankets? Zero weather and cold rooms mean nothing if you are thus prepared. Take your choice of this complete assortment at from $9.00 to $12.75

Do It Now!	Do It Now!	Do It Now!	Do It Now!	Do It Now!
No matter if it does seem early, you will have to buy that winter UNDERWEAR. We have a variety of styles and weights to suit every taste. The SANITAS medium weight wool is a favorite number with ladies. You may have this number in a low-necked and short-sleeved model. Good heavy two-piece suits for the children.	Look over our line of MIT-TENS, especially for your boys and girls. We have yarn gloves for the girls and heavy leather mittens for the boys. Then there are CAPS. In our stock you will find caps of every description, some with fur-lined ear pads, some without. If you need a heavy DUCK COAT for choring or driving, come in and try on some of ours. They are absolutely wind-proof.	Buy your winter BLOUSE! Did you know that we received a large line of exquisite patterns for fancy blouses? Beautiful plaids and stripes in silk matiguetises with extra heavy chiffon cloth in harmonious shades for foundation. We also can show you exclusive patterns in heavier silks, such as taffeta, satin, etc.	Fit the family out with OVER-SHOES while our stock is still complete. One, two, and four-buckle storm shoes for the children who walk to school or play outdoors a great deal. High cut arctic for more dressy wear. It has been a hard pull to get quality over-shoes that we could sell at regular prices. Take advantage of our bargaining.	Begin to investigate our GROCERY department. Because of our immense volume of business we are able to move our groceries rapidly. This insures you only fresh pure foodstuffs at all times. Surely, the thoughtful woman will appreciate such service. Try our NORTHWESTERN line of canned goods.

Artists' Recital Postponed

We regret to announce that the recital to have been given by the artists, Glen Ellison, Dorothy Hoyle and Betsy Lane Shepherd at the Wayne State Normal Auditorium, November 1, has been postponed on account of the epidemic of Spanish influenza. These artists will appear in Wayne at a later date when further announcement will be made.

Music's Re-Creation

Edison's new art has come to be called the "Laboratory Re-Creation of Music," and thereby hangs a tale. A year or so ago one of the talking-machine-manufacturers complacently remarked: "Yes, Mr. Edison gets a wonderful result, but it's only a laboratory product; it can never be made in commercial quantities." The Edison Diamond Disc Phonograph and Diamond Disc Re-Creations of music are in fact laboratory products, but the genius of an Edison, after developing the new art which is expressed in this new product, converted his vast factories into a gigantic laboratory, where products of true laboratory quality are turned out in unlimited commercial quantities. Edison has gleefully adopted the talking machine manufacturer's designation of his new invention. It is a laboratory product and he is very proud of that fact.

Artists

Turn to a complete list of Edison artists, as you read the musical critiques in the leading American newspapers, and you will see that Edison, with unerring judgment, has selected the fresh, youthful voices which are now winning plaudits from the critics.

It is the irony of musical fate that an artist's reputation among the masses rarely reaches its highest point until a considerable time after the artist's powers have begun to wane. As a famous Italian baritone said not long ago to Umberto Sorrentino, "When I had a voice I had no reputation. Now I have a reputation, but I have no voice."

Mr. Edison paid little heed to existing reputations as measured by the general public's opinion. It was characteristic of him, that, instead, he employed highly paid critics to search the musical centers of the world for truly great voices. Through these agents Mr. Edison collected from the conservatories and opera stages of Europe and America the voice trials of over three thousand singers.

Get music—good music in the home, and life will run more smoothly and pleasantly for every member of the family.

LETTERS FROM FRANK ROE

Interesting Description of Conditions and Experiences.

Somewhere in France, September 27, 1918.

Dear Mother and All:

Will write you a few lines this morning while I am resting, for it is raining every few minutes, and about all we can do is stay here inside.

We are within a few miles of Bordeaux, in the southern part of France. Yesterday afternoon I had a pass and went over there for a while. Had a very enjoyable time, and feel well paid for my trip.

We are stationed here in what they call billets, which are barns and parts of houses, etc. While it is not as nice as it was while at Camp Lodge, I cannot say it is much better than many of our boys are having at the present time.

We have had quite a trip since done lots of traveling all of which has been very interesting.

This country makes me think quite a lot of Pennsylvania on account of there being so much gravel, and timber. There are stone walls almost everywhere.

I have been feeling O. K. so far through-out, but I keep it up. I will be well satisfied.

While we were in England we were taken out to visit a colonel's place, and the place was surely excellent. We also visited an abbey which was in excellent style. It had all kept up in excellent style. He had his own greenhouse, orchards, barns, and everything that one could want.

We also visited an abbey which was very interesting history.

There are lots of grapes in this country. They are just getting along fine now and it is awfully tempting to have to leave them alone. The people here are, very often, very interested in our going on their places, and especially taking anything, so we leave them alone.

Everything here is many years behind the times, and it is quite difficult to see the way they do things, and the different implements they are using.

I would like to have my shotgun. There seem to be quite a lot of hunters around here and there is quite a lot of quail. It would be a treat to have a good mess of quail.

It must not get very cold here, as they are planting gardens now, and I surely seem to have a good mess of things.

I must not get very cold here, as they are planting gardens now, and I surely seem to have a good mess of things.

now than we did while on the ship across, and we are all getting to look and feel better. We are filling our belt-lines out tight again.

I thought we would get our mail when we got here, but to date we have not, and no telling when we will. When we get our mail, if we get it all together we will almost have to take a day or so off to read it, as I suppose we will have a whole load of it.

It is rather funny here to go to town and see to buy something, as we cannot ask for it and have the people understand us, so we have to use our hands and either make signs or point to what we want, along with our talking. We get along pretty well, as they are getting so that most of them can understand the English.

These people here seem to enjoy the hard very much, as they are always out when ever they play.

Well dear ones, I will close for today. Will write soon again. Keep waiting that we are all well, and that I will soon hear from you. With love to all, I write soon. Your son, Frank.

it makes all the difference when we hear from you folks back there.

Where we are now it seems more like there was war on than any place, yet as there is no war here, and they are practicing most of the time with the different guns.

We can see airplanes and observe gun balloons in the air real often. Yesterday we built a fire in the bathroom, and took a good shower bath with real warm water. We all enjoyed it, and feel a lot better. It was the first shower bath we had had for quite a while for we have been on the move for a long time, and shower-baths are not available under all conditions.

I wrote a few cards to some of our Wayne friends today.

With this I will close for today. Keep waiting that we are all well, and that I will soon hear from you. With love to all, I write soon. Your son, Frank.

was never enjoyed by any of its predecessors. We have made the president's path easy. Criticism is dumb in the face of responsibility such as lies with the executive today. The government is functioning, but the newspapers are not. Thus it will be seen that newspaper-making has undergone a radical change within a year. Instead of being bold and enterprising, we must be careful and cautious; instead of expanding our space to meet the demands of a great occasion, we must restrict and conserve; instead of flamboyantly making the most of events as they occur, we must trail behind them. This is all very difficult and very novel to the up-to-date newspaper maker. The American newspapers, therefore, have not enjoyed the expansion which was good for them here, but brethren abroad. There, while the censorship has prevailed, it has not had the stifling effect that our own self-supplied supervision has produced here. Perhaps we should be glad that we do not benefit, because of the destruction of life, property, and human happiness.

It is not possible to lead ahead and observe the outcome. One thing we must remember, and that is that when the emergencies of war are passed, our old traditions will assert our power of criticism, and open wide our searchlights.

NEWSPAPER SACRIFICES

The following article treating of the newspaper situation during the war, written by Don C. Sizet, business manager of the New York World, and published in the current issue of the Publishers' Auxiliary, will be of general interest.

The newspapers at present are passing through some of the most trying days in the history of journalism. For the first time in a century we are in honor-bound to exercise the greatest care in the publication of war news. Indeed, there exists a strictness of requirement far in excess of anything such as was demanded during the war between the states and the war with Spain. The whispering loose, makes it needful that no fact get loose in the public print, but could by any possibility reach the enemy.

The world is upside down. The unbelievable is in control of events. Who would have dreamed ten years ago over the decision of a war between nations might happen in the air? Who thought that naval battles would be waged under the face of the sea, instead of on the seas? Who would have dreamed that these warring newspapers are so completely out of common sense, place. The intelligence we furnish our readers is regarded and often how after facts can be told only long after they have lost their pertinence, as we are doubly handicapped. The news upon which we feed is denied us and the cost of producing our product is enhanced, more so than usually. It is a real hardship for our men and her in trying for the best, and bravely and patriotically to our part.

While this is a kind of parties and our political conclusions are usually reached and great controversies, the administrative has been forced such newspaper support as

Somewhere in France, September 27, 1918.

Dear Mother and All:

Received our first mail here yesterday, and believe me, we were certainly glad to hear from home again, although it has been about a month since these letters were written. That clipping that you sent me about "Scoop" was very interesting, and several of the fellows read it and found me reading it.

We have been having dandy weather this week. A couple of days it was real hot, and especially when we were driving.

We've moved again and we are at a good sized training camp now. It seems more like Camp Dodge, as the trucks, guns, etc. So in a way it is not so much different.

We were sent here for the purpose of taking special training along our line of work. I think it is going to be real interesting as well as instructive, and it is very apt to be useful to us after we get back to the states.

All have barracks to live in again, and it seems rather good to us, living in the billets is not as nice as it could be, but I have to be thankful that we are having it as good as we can.

I got my share of mail, I guess, I got fourteen letters in the day yesterday. It was the mail that you wrote up and I read it. I suppose we will get our mail a little more regularly now, at least I hope so.

Dear Mother and All:

Received our first mail here yesterday, and believe me, we were certainly glad to hear from home again, although it has been about a month since these letters were written. That clipping that you sent me about "Scoop" was very interesting, and several of the fellows read it and found me reading it.

We have been having dandy weather this week. A couple of days it was real hot, and especially when we were driving.

We've moved again and we are at a good sized training camp now. It seems more like Camp Dodge, as the trucks, guns, etc. So in a way it is not so much different.

We were sent here for the purpose of taking special training along our line of work. I think it is going to be real interesting as well as instructive, and it is very apt to be useful to us after we get back to the states.

All have barracks to live in again, and it seems rather good to us, living in the billets is not as nice as it could be, but I have to be thankful that we are having it as good as we can.

I got my share of mail, I guess, I got fourteen letters in the day yesterday. It was the mail that you wrote up and I read it. I suppose we will get our mail a little more regularly now, at least I hope so.

Somewhere in France, September 27, 1918.

telegram to the effect that her husband had died of pneumonia at Camp Funston. The body was sent to Wakefield for burial, a comrade accompanying the same until it was safely turned over to friends here. In consequence of the prevailing epidemic of influenza, the funeral service was held in the open air on the lawn in the northeast corner of the cemetery. Rev. Frank Williams read part of the seventh chapter of Revelations and Rev. P. M. Orr offered prayer. Mrs. Tyner and Miss Carlson sang a duet, "Asleep in Jesus." Rev. Mr. Williams read part of the seventh chapter of Revelations and Rev. P. M. Orr offered prayer. Mrs. Tyner and Miss Carlson sang "Just as I Am," after which Rev. Mr. Williams read the obituary printed below and preached a short sermon on the text "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." The home guards then escorted the remains to the grave, where Rev. Mr. Williams repeated the impressive committal sentences; and Rev. Mr. Orr pronounced the benediction. The proceedings then ended by the bugler sounding the Last Post and the firing of three volleys over the open grave.

Besides the widow and immediate friends of the deceased, his uncle, E. G. Hazelrigg of Central, Oklahoma, were here for the funeral. Thomas Rawlins, a very old friend of the deceased, and of his family for many years in Kentucky, and then here on behalf of Mrs. Arrasmith in making all arrangements for the funeral, and quite a number of deceased's former workmates and employers were present in token of their great respect for Mrs. Arrasmith. Beautiful floral emblems accompanied the body to its last resting place. It is hardly necessary to say that Mrs. Arrasmith will have the deepest sympathy of our whole community in her bereavement. Harry Burns Arrasmith, only son of the late Mrs. Arrasmith, was born at Bethel, Ky., April 29, 1887. His mother died in 1895, and his father about a year ago. When his mother died Harry was two years with his grandfather. Since deceased and his uncle, R. C. Hazelrigg at Bethel, and with them he stayed until the year 1904, when he went to Chattanooga, working there for some years, and coming to Wakefield in 1908. On May 28, 1913, he was married to Miss Gertrude McCououghey. He served military service from 1916 to 1918, serving first in Company

13. Depot Brigade at Camp Funston, Kansas, and later being transferred to Company F, of the 20th Infantry, Regular Army, at Funston. Following a severe attack of pneumonia, he passed away at the base hospital, Fort Riley, Kansas, Wednesday, October 16, at the age of 31 years, 5 months, and 17 days. Besides his sorrowing widow he leaves two half sisters, six uncles, and two aunts, and many friends to grieve his loss.

New Plan for Battery Service Makes Appeal to Owners of Cars

The storage battery, always more or less of a mystery to the motor car owner, has also been the source of much grief and expense.

Failure to examine the batteries frequently; failure to keep the plates in the cells covered with distilled water as well as using the car in the day time only without burning the lights, thus allowing the generator to overcharge the battery, are a few of the many things that have caused car owners much trouble and have necessitated repair bills. In many cases neglect of this kind has made it necessary for car owners to discard the old battery and purchase a new one.

The continual dissatisfaction caused by neglect on the part of the car owner has been a bugaboo to battery men ever since batteries were installed on automobiles and, regardless of the amount of educational work which has been done, owners continue to neglect their batteries and continue to waive responsibility so far as their action is concerned.

A battery at its best, according to the Permalife distributors, will only last a year or so. Many car owners have been forced to purchase a battery on an average of every six months. The only solution for the car owner was to grin and bear it, but the constantly growing undercurrent of this dissatisfaction has caused one manufacturer at least to work out a successful plan for relieving this trouble.

This Permalife people have recently adopted a universal plan following the old Prest-O-Lite plan of exchanging gas tanks. Under this plan a Permalife battery will be installed and every 90 days it may be exchanged for a fully charged battery at a cost of $1.25. This exchange will amount to approximately $5.00 per year and will insure maximum battery efficiency.

It is the plan of the Permalife people to make this service a national service and it is anticipated that it will do much to relieve dissatisfaction on the part of car owners and ultimately will be adopted by many battery manufacturers. The Auto Electric Service Company, Omaha, distributor, has recently established 20 substations in Nebraska and this plan will be put into operation at all of these stations.

A BIT OF HOME WITHIN THE CAMP

A long low building of trap-congregation attractively planned, with white verandas and a homelike appearance, stands on the bank of the Great Lakes. The place is a little triangle of blue and the letters Y. W. C. A. It is a full afternoon and the air is a bit sharp. Through the front windows of the house the woman approaching up the walk can see the cheerful glow of an open fireplace. There is the sound of a piano and some one is singing.

The woman, who's slight and young and tired-looking, puts her heavy suitcase down on the walk and shifts the handle of a suitcase to her right hand. She steps a minute, then picks up the luggage and walks bravely up to the front door. Some one has heard her coming and she is met here. "Some one always is to place this one. The door is thrown open and a kind woman's voice says: "Oh, do come in and rest. Will you take the baby?" The baby is passed over and the stranger, worn from a long journey, tired and sad, is given the welcome which only the Y. W. C. A. hostesses know how to give.

She explains that she has come to see John before he leaves for the front. She has been saving her money for traveling expenses and has come to surprise him. John has never seen the baby, and how maybe he never will, for she has discovered that John has left on a two days' furlough to surprise her. Before she could get a train back to her home John's furlough will have expired and he will be on the "back to camp." The little mother does not know how to meet the situation and tears of fatigue and dis-appointment begin to flow.

"Well, that's too bad," says the sympathetic Y. W. C. A. worker. "But don't worry. You can just write him for a couple of days. Well send a wire to John at the first place his train stops and tell him to take the next train back. He can enjoy his furlough here."

This is done and the little family has a glorious day of it. The Young Women's Christian association has established 60 hostesses of houses of this character for American soldiers and sailors and their families. In this brief bulletin of news has one of the most potent factors in the raising of this war. Our boys are fighting for their homes. The Y. W. C. A. with its hostess work in this country is the most powerful in the world for the ideal of American home life comes constantly before the men who are protecting it. These men had to go away from their homes and families; but there is a home which follows them to wherever they can go when they are off duty and meet their families and rest. There is a room in every Y. W. C. A. hostess house with a cot where in it and domestic comforts. These are chairs with cushions on them; the chair is not of the iron-bound bucket variety necessary in camp; and there is a home which follows them to wherever they can go when they are off duty and meet their families and rest. ATTEMPTING THE IMPOSSIBLE. Philadelphia Public Ledger: It should not be assumed that the president's "peace with justice" does not mean a peace with punishment. In his reply to the chancellor he expresses very clearly his opinion of German atrocities. And there would be no atrocity unless they were punished.

HINDENBURG KNOWS. Sioux Falls Press: If Von Hindenburg is the great military commander - as he is - he probably has been telling those fellows in Berlin a thing or two about the situation on the western front. He knows.

THE MAIN LINE. Waterbury Public Opinion: It is a mistake to think that the "main line" is only on the right track.

ALL IMPORTANT. Paul Pioneer Press: And now it is themselves more important than the liberty loan, comes to political candidates the job of putting themselves "over the top."

THE TRUTH WILL OUT. Kansas City Star: "The members of the Hungarian diet are now convening the sessions by calling each other "blackguard, liar, traitor, slave, etc." Faith is mighty and will prevail.
